with him. So they let Rebecca their syster go with her nurse, and Abrahams servaunt, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde unto her: Thou art oure syster, growe thou to many thousandes, & and thy sede possesse the gates of his enemies. Gen.22.c

Gene.35.b So Rebecca gat her up, & her damsels, and sat them upon the camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the servaunt toke Rebecca, and departed.

As for Isaac, he was comynge fro * the well of the lyvynge & seynge, for he dwelt in the south countrey, and was gone forth to his meditacions in the felde aboute the eveninge. And he lyft up his eyes and sawe, that there were camels comynge. And Rebecca lift up hir eyes, and sawe Isaac. Then lyghted she of the camell, and sayde unto the servaunte: What man is this, that commeth agaynst us in the felde? The servaunt sayde: The same is my master. Gen.16.b

Then toke she hir cloke, and put it aboute her. And the servaunt tolde Isaac all the thynges that he had done. Then Isaac brought her in to his mothers Saras tent, and toke Rebecca, & she became his wyfe, and he loved her. So Isaac was comforted over his mothers deeth.

The xxv. Chapter.

The .xxvi. Chapter.

Isaac goeth into Gerar, fayneth Re becca to be his syster, increaseth in ryches, the Philistines stoppe his welles.
Abimelech & he are sworne frendes.

There came a derth in ŷ lande passynge ŷ other * that was Gen.12.c in Abrahams tyme. And Isaac went to Gerar, vnto Abimelech the kynge of ŷ Phi listines. Then the LORDE appeared Gen.44.d vnto hym, and sayd: * Go not downe in to Egipte, but tarye in the lande that I shall saye vnto the. Be thou a straũger in this lande, and I wyll be with the & blesse the. For vnto ŷ, and thy sede wyll I geue all this lande, and wyll perfourme myne ooth that I sware to thy fa-Gen.15.c ther Abraham * And I wyll multiplye and.22.c thy sede as the starres of heauen, and vn to thy sede wyll I geue all this lande, & thorowe thy sede shall all nacyons be blessed, because Abraham was obediẽt vnto my voyce, and kepte myne ordy-naunces, my cõmaundementes, my statutes, and my lawes.
So Isaac dwelt at Gerar. And whã the men of the same place axed hym of Gen.12.c his wyfe, he sayd, * she is my syster. For and.20.a he was afrayed to saye: she is my wyfe (thynkynge thus:) they myght slaye me for Rebeccas sake, for she was beutyful to loke vnto. Now whan he hadde bene there a longe season, Abimelech ŷ kynge of the Philistines loked out at the wyn dowe, and sawe Isaac sportynge with Rebecca his wyfe.
B Then Abimelech called Isaac, and sayd: Beholde, she is thy wyfe, why say dest thou then: She is my syster? Isaac answered hym: I thought, I myght per aduenture haue dyed because of her. Abimelech sayd: Why hast thou the done this vnto vs? It coude lyghtely haue come to passe, that some of the people myght haue lyen with thy wyfe, and so haddest thou brought synne vpon vs.
Then Abimelech commaunded all the people, and sayd: Who so toucheth this man, or his wyfe, shall dye the death.
And Isaac sowed in that londe, and founde the same yeare an hundreth bus shels, for the LORDE blessed hym.
And he became a great man, went forth and grewe, tyl he was exceadyng great, so that he had moche good in shepe and great catel, and a great housholde. Ther fore had the Philistines enuye at hym, and * stopped all the welles, that his fa Gen.21. thers seruauntes had dygged in ŷ tyme of Abraham his father, and fylled them with earth, In so moch that Abimelech also hym selfe sayd vnto hym: Departe from vs, for thou arte farre myghtyer then we,
Then departed Isaac from thence, C and pytched his tent in the valley of Ge rar, and dwelte there. And whã he was setled, he caused to dygge vp the welles agayne, that they had dygged vp in his father Abrahams tyme, which the Philistines had stopte after the death of Abrahã, and he called them after ŷ same names that his father had named them with all.
Isaacs seruauntes also dygged in the valley, and there they founde a well of lyuynge water. * But the herdmen Gen.13. of Gerar stroue with Isaacs hyrdmen, and sayd: The water is ours. Then called he the well Esech, because they had done hym wronge.
Then dygged they another wel and stroue for that also: therfore called he it Sytena. So he gat hym from thence, & dygged another well, for the which they stroue not: therfore he called it Rehoboth, and sayd: Now hath the LORDE made vs rowme, and letten vs growe in the londe. Afterwarde he departed thence vnto Bersaba.
And the LORDE appeare[d vnto] hym the same nyght, and sayde: [I am the] God of thy father Abraham, f[eare] not, for I am with the, and I [wyll blesse] the, and multiplye thy sede f[or my ser-] uaunt Abrahams sake. Th[en buylded] he an aulter there, and cal[led vpon the] name of ŷ LORDE, & pytch[ed] the, & ther his seruauntes digged a wel.

Gen. 21. c *And Abimelech wente vnto hym from Gerar, and Ahusath his frende, and Phicol his chefe captayne. But Is aac sayde vnto the: *Wherfore come ye to me: seynge ye hate me, & haue put me awaye from you? They sayde: We se with open eyes, that the LORDE is with the, therfore we deuysed that there shulde be an ooth betwixte vs and the,
and that we wolde make a bonde with the, that thou do vs no harme, lyke as we haue not hurte the, & as we haue done nothynge vnto the, but all good, and let the departe in peace.
As for the, thou art y^e blessed of the LORDE. Then Isaac made them a feast, and they dyd eate and drynke And on the morow they arose, & sware one to the other. And Isaac let the go, and they departed from hym in peace.
The same daye came Isaacs seruauntes, and tolde hym of the well that they had dygged, and sayde vnto hym: We haue founde water. And he called it Sa ba, Therfore is the cite called Berseba vnto this daye.

The.xxvii.Chapter.

Jacob is blessed before Esau, which threateneth him, but he flyeth in to Haran to Laban his mothers brother.

WHan Esau was fortye yeare olde, he toke wyues:
Gen. 36. a *Judith the doughter of Beeri the Hethite, and Basmath the doughter of Elon the Hethite: both these were dishobedient vnto y^e sprete of Isaac & Rebecca.
And it came to passe whan Isaac was olde, his eyes waxed dymme of syght, & he called Esau his greater sonne, and sayde vnto hym: My sonne. He answered hym: Here am I. And he sayde: Be-holde, I am olde, and knowe not whan I shal dye. Now therfore take thy gear, thy quyuer and thy bowe, and get the forth to the felde, & take me some venyson, & make me meate (soch as I loue) and brynge it me herein, y^t I may eate, that my soule maye blesse the, before I dye.
But Rebecca herde these wordes that he spake vnto his sonne. And Esau wente forth in to y^e felde, to hunte venyson, and to brynge it home. Then sayde Rebecca vnto Jacob hir sonne: Be-holde, I haue herde thy father talkinge with Esau thy brother, and sayenge: Brynge me venyson, & make me meate B that I maye eate, and blesse the before the LORDE, yer I dye. Now therfore my sonne, heare my voyce, what I commaunde the: Go thy waye to the flocke, and fetch me two good kyddes, that I maye make meate of the for thy father, soch as he loueth: this shalt thou brynge in vnto thy father, that he maye eate, that he may blesse the before his death.
Neuertheles Jacob sayde vnto Rebecca his mother: Beholde, my brother Esau is rough, and I am smooth: then might my father peraduenture fele me, and I shulde seme vnto hym as though I begyled hym, and so brynge a curse vpon me & not a blessynge. Then sayde his mother vnto hym: That curse be vpō me my sonne, folowe thou my voyce go thy waye & fetch it me. So he wente his waye, and fetched it, and broughte it vnto his mother.
Then his mother made meate, accor- C dinge as his father loued, & toke Esaus hir elder sonnes costly rayment (which she had with her in the house) and put the vpon Jacob hir yonger sonne. But the kyddes skynnes put she aboute his handes, & where he was smooth aboute the necke: and so she put the meate with bred (as she had made it) in hir sonne Jacobs hande.
And he broughte it in vnto his father and sayde: My father. He answered: here am I, who arte thou my sonne? Jacob sayde: I am Esau thy firstborne sonne, I haue done as thou badest me: vp, aryse, syt vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Isa ac sayde vnto his sonne: My sonne, how hast thou founde it so soone? He answered: The LORDE thy God broughte it to my hande.
Then sayd Isaac vnto Jacob: Come neare my sonne, that I maye fele the, whether thou be my sonne Esau or no.
So Jacob wete vnto Isaac his father.
And when he had felt hym, he sayde:
The voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the han-des are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, for his handes were rough as y^e handes of his brother Esau.
And he blessed hym.
And he sayde vnto hym: Art thou D my sonne Esau? He answered: Yee I am. Then sayde he: Brynge me here the venyson my sonne, y^t my soule maye blesse the. The broughte he it hym, & he dyd eate: and he broughte him wyne, & he dranke.

wyne also, and he dranke. And Isaac his father sayde vnto hym: Come nye, and kysse me my sone. So he came nye, and he kyssed hym.
Then smelled he the sauoure of his clothes, and blessed hym, and sayde: Be holde, the smel of my sonne is as ye smel of the felde, which the LORDE hath Heb. 11. d. blessed. * God geue the of the dew of hea

G Now whã Isaac had made an ende of blessynge, and Jacob was scace gone out from his father Isaac, his brother Esau came from his huntynge, & made meate also, and brought it vnto his fa ther, and sayde vnto hym: Aryse my fa ther, & eate of thy sonnes venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. Then answe red hym Isaac his father: Who art thou?
He sayd: I am Esau thy fyrstborne sone.
Then was Isaac exceadyngly amased aboue measure, & sayde: Who? Where is then the hũter that brought me, and I haue eaten of all afore thou camest, and haue blessed hym? And he shalbe blessed styll.
Whan Esau herde these wordes of his father, he cryed loude, & was excea dynge sory, and sayde vnto his father: O blesse me also my father. But he sayde: Thy brother came with sotyltie, and hath taken thy blessynge awaye.
Then sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermined me now two tymes. My byrthrighte hath he a waye, & beholde, now taketh he awaye my blessynge also.
F And he sayde: Hast thou not kepte one blessyng for me? Isaac answered, & sayd vnto hym: I haue made him Lord ouer the, & all his brethren haue I made his seruauntes. With corne and wyne haue I prouyded hym. What shal I do vnto the now my sonne? Esau sayde vn to his father: Hast thou not one blessynge more my father? O blesse me also my fa ther.
Heb. 12. c. * And he lift vp his voice & wept. Then Isaac his father answered & sayd vnto Heb. 11. d. him: * Beholde, thou shalt haue a fat dwel

* And Esau bare euill wyll vnto Ja G cob, because of the blessynge that his fa Abdi. 1. ther had blessed hym withall, and sayde in his herte: The tyme wyll come shortly, ly, that my father shall mourne, for I wyll slaye my brother Jacob. Then was it tolde Rebecca of these wordes of hir el der sonne, & she sent, & bad call for Ja cob hir yonger sonne, & sayd vnto hym.
Beholde, thy brother Esau threteneth the,
that he wyll slaye the. And now my sone hea re my voyce: Get the vp, & flye vnto my brother Labã in Haran: & tary there with agaynst the be turned from the, and he forget what thou hast done vnto hym.

So wyll I thẽ sende for the, and cause the be fetched from thence. Why shulde I be robbed of you both in one daye?
And Rebecca sayde vnto Isaac: I am werey of my life, because of the dough ters of Heth: Yf Jacob take a wyfe of Gen. 26. the doughters of * Heth, which are as the doughters of this londe, what shall this lyfe then profyt me?

Isaac sendeth Jacob awaye to mar ry amonge Labans doughters, Jacob seith a vision, God confirmeth hym the promes made vnto Abraham, wher vp pon Jacob maketh a vowe.

Then called Isaac his sonne A Jacob and blessed hym, and charged hym, and sayde vnto hym: Take not a wy

Jacob departe, that he myght go in to Mesopotamia vnto Laban the sonne of Bethuell of Siria, the brother of Re becca, his and Esaus mother.
Now when Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and let him departe in to Mesopotamia that he might take a wife there: and that, as he blessed him he charged hym, and sayde: Thou shalt not take a wyfe of the doughters of Ca= naan, and that Jacob obeyed his father and his mother, & was gone vnto Me= doughter of Ismael (Abrahams sonne) the syster of Nebaioth, to wyfe.

C As for Jacob, he departed frō Ber= to a place, where he taryed all night: for the sonne was downe. And he toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder his head, and layed him downe in the same him, & beholde, ther was a well in ẏ felde, & thre flo= kes of shepe therby, for ẏ flockes dranke of ẏ well. And there laye a greate stone at the welles mouth, and thyther they vsed to brynge the flockes, and to roule the stone from the mouth of the well, & to geue the shepe drynke, & so they put the stone agayne vpon ẏ welles mouth in to his place.

And Jacob sayde vnto them: Bre= thren, whence be ye? They answered: we are of Haran. He sayde vnto them: Knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor?
They answered: We knowe him well. Gen.43.a He sayd: * Is he in good health? They answered: he is in good health. And lo, there commeth his doughter Rachel w the shepe. He sayde: It is yet hye daye, & is not yet tyme to dryue in the catell: geue the shepe to drynke, and go youre kepte the shepe. Whan Jacob sawe Ra chel the doughter of Labā his mothers brother, & the shepe of [illegible] his mo= thers brother, he [illegible] rolled ẏ stone from the welles mouth, and gaue his mothers [illegible] shepe to drynke, and kyssed [illegible], lyft vp his voyce, and wepte [illegible] her, that he was hir fa [illegible], and the sonne of Rebecca [illegible] she, and tolde her father.

Whan Laban herde of Jacob his sisters sonne, he ranne to mete hym, and embraced him, & kyssed hym, & brought him in to his house. And so he tolde him all this matter. Then sayde Laban vn to him: Well, thou art my bone and my flesh. C And he abode with hym a Some moneth longe. But after that sayd he reade vnto Jacob: Because thou art my bro= Abyde ther, shalt thou therfore serue me for with [illegible] nought? Tell me: what shall thy wages be? Labā had two doughters, the eldest was called Lea, & the yongest Rachel.
And Lea was tender eyed, but Rachel was beutyfull & wel fauoured of face, and Jacob loued her well, and sayde: I wyll serue the seuen yeare, for Rachel thy yongest doughter Laban answered: It is better that I geue her the, then vn to another: tary thou with me.

C So Jacob serued seuē yeare for Ra chel, and they semed vnto him but few dayes, he loued her so well. And Jacob sayde vnto Labā: geue me my wyfe, for the tyme is come that I shulde lye with her. Then Laban bad all the people of ẏ place, and made a mariage. But at euē he toke his doughter Lea, and brought her in vnto hym, & he laye with her. And Laban gaue Silpa his mayde vnto his doughter Lea to be hir made.
But on the morow, beholde, it was Lea. And he sayd vnto Labā: Why hast ẏ don this vnto me? Haue not I serued the for Rachel? Why hast thou then be gyled me? Laban answered: It is not the maner in oure countre, to mary the yongest before the eldest. Holde out this weke, & I wyll geue the this also, for ẏ seruyce ẏ thou shalt do me yet seuē yea-res more. Jacob dyd so, & helde out that weke. Then gaue he hym Rachel his doughter to wyfe. And laban gaue Bil ha his mayden vnto Rachel his dough ter to be hir mayden. So he laye with Rachel also, & loued Rachel more then Lea, & serued hym yet seuē yeres more.
D But when the LORDE sawe, ẏ Lea was nothynge regarded, he made her frutefull, & Rachel baren. And Lea 1.Pa.2.a conceaued, and bare a sonne, * whom she called Ruben, & sayd: The LORD hath loked vpon myne aduersite. Now wyll my husbande loue me. And she cōceaued agayne, and bare a sōne, & sayd: The LORDE hath herde that I am despysed, and hath geuen me this also, and she called hym Symeon. She con ceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, & sayde: Now wyl my husbande kepe me company agayne, for I haue borne hym thre sōnes, therfore called she his name Leui. She conceaued the fourth tyme, and bare a sonne, & sayde: Now wyl I geue thankes vnto the LORDE, ther fore called she hym Juda, and left bea-ryuge.

The.xxx.Chapter.

Rachel geueth Jacob hir mayde & so doth Lea, they beare hym chyldren, his rewarde is appoynted with a condi cion, whereby he is made ryche.

A When Rachel sawe that she bare no chyldre vnto Jacob, she had enuye at hir syster, & sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me chyldren also, or els I am but deed. But Jacob was very wroth at Rachel, and sayd: Am I then in gods steade, which kepeth the frute of thy wombe frō the? Neuertheles she sayde: Beholde, there is Bilha my mayden, pe, & * ẏ I may be increased by her. And Gen.16. so she gaue hī Bilha hir mayde to wyfe.

And Jacob laye with her. So Bilha conceaued, & bare Jacob a sonne. Thē sayde Rachel: God hath geuē sentence on my syde, and herde my voyce, & geuē me a sōne, therfore called she him Dan.
B Bilha Rachels mayde cōceaued agayn, & bare another sonne vnto Jacob. Thē sayd Rachel: God hath turned it with me, and my syster, & I haue gottē ẏ vp-perhande. And she called him Nephtali.
Now whā Lea sawe that she had left bearynge, she toke Silpa hir mayde, and gaue her vnto Jacob to wyfe. So Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob a sōne.
Thē sayd Lea: This is good lucke, and she called hym Gad. After this Silpa Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne Thē sayd Lea: Wel is me, for ẏ dough hym Aser.

Ruben wente out in the tyme of the

But he sayde vnto him: Thou knowest of catell thou hast vnder me. Thou haddest but litle afore I came hither, but now is it growen in to a multitude, and the LORDE hath blessed the for my owne house also? He sayde: What shall I then geue the?

Iacob sayde: Thou shalt geue me nothing at all, but yf thou wylt do this for me that I saye, thē wyll I fede and kepe thy shepe agayne. I wyll go thorowe all thy flockes to daye, and separate thou from amonge them all the shepe that be spotted and partye coloured, & all blacke shepe amonge the lābes. Now loke what shalbe partie coloured & spotted amonge the kyddes, the same shalbe my rewarde: so shall my righteousnes testifye with me to daye or to morow, whan it commeth vnto my rewarde before the, so that whatsoeuer is not spotted and partyē coloured amōge the kyddes, and blacke amonge the lambes, let that be thefte with me.
Then sayde Laban: Beholde, let it F be so as thou hast sayde. And that same daye he sundered out the speckled and partye coloured goates, and all the spotted and partye coloured kyddes (where there was any whyte vpon thē) and all that was black amonge the lābes, and put them vnder the hande of his chyldrē and made rowme of thre dayes iourney wyde betwixte hym and Iacob. So Ia-cob kepte the resydue of Labans flocke.
But Iacob toke staues of grene wyllies, hasell and of chestnottrees, and pylled whyte strekes in them, and layed the staues that he had pylled, in the drinkyng troughes before the flocke, which came there to drynke, that they shulde conceaue, whā they came to drynke. So the flockes conceaued ouer the staues, & broughte forth speckelde, spotted and partye coloured. G Then Iacob parted the lābes, and put them to the flocke vnto the spotted and all that was black in Labās flocke, that put he vnto the spotted. And he made hym a flocke of his owne, whiche he put not vnto Labans flocke. Neuer-theles in the fyrst buckynge tyme of the flockes, he layed the staues in the drin-kynge troughes before the eyes of the flockes, that they shulde conceaue ouer the staues. But in the latter buckynge tyme he layed them not in. So the later were Labans, but the fyrstlynges were Iacobs. Thus the man became excea-dynge ryche: so that he had many shepe, maydens, and seruauntes, camels and asses.

The.xxxi.Chapter.

Iacob goeth homward, Rachel stealeth hir fathers ymages, Laban ouertaketh thē, & fyndeth not his ymages, they sweare together, ye angel meteth Iacob.

HE herde also of the wordes A of Labās childrē, that they sayde: Iacob hath brought all oure fathers good vnto hymselfe, & of oure fathers good hath he gotten these ryches. And Iacob beheld Labans countenaunce, & beholde, it was not toward hym as yesterdaye and yeryesterdaye.
And the LORDE sayde vnto him
* Departe agayne to thy fatherlande, Gen.32.b. and to thy kynred, I wyll be with the.
Then sent Iacob, and had call Rachel, and Lea in the felde to his flockes: and sayde vnto thē: I se your fathers coūtenaunce, that it is not towarde me like as yesterdaye and yeryesterday: but the God of my father hath bene with me.
And ye knowe, that I haue serued your father with all my power.
And he hath disceaued me, & chaūged B my wages now ten tymes. But God hath not suffred hym, to do me harme.
Yf he sayde: The partye coloured shall be thy reward, thē the whole flock bare partye coloured. Yf he sayd: The speckelde shalbe thy reward, then the whole flocke bare speckelde, Thus hath God withdrawen youre fathers goodes frō hym, & geuē thē vnto me. For whan the buckynge tyme came, I lyfte vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame, and beholde the rammes lepte vpon the flocke that was speckelde, spotted, and partye coloured.

And the angell of God sayde vnto me in a dreame: Jacob. And I answered here am I. He sayd: lyfte vp thyne eyes, and beholde, the rammes leape vpon the speckelde, spotted, and partie coloured flocke: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the. I am the God at Bethel

C Then answered Rachell and Lea, And sayd vnto hym: As for vs, we haue

So Jacob gat vp, & set his chyldrē his catel & all his substaūce, that he had gotten at Mesopotamia, ẏ he myghte come vnto Isaac his father in the londe

& Ge. 35. a. his flocke, & Rachel stal her fathers ẏmages. Thus dyd Jacob steale away ẏ herte of Laban the Syrian, in ẏ he tolde hym not that he fled. So he fled, & all that was his, gat vp, and passed ouer ẏ water, and wente straynght towarde the mount Gilead.

D Upon the thyrde daye it was tolde Laban, that Jacob fled. And he toke his brethren vnto hym, and folowed after hym seuen dayes iourney, and ouertoke hym vpon the mount Gilead. But God came vnto Laban the Syrian in a dreame by nyght, & sayd vnto hym: Beware, that thou speake nothynge to Jacob but good. And Laban drewe nye vn to Jacob. As for Jacob, he had pytched his tent vpon the mount. And Laban with his brethren pytched hys tent also vpon the same mount Gilead.

Thē sayd Labā vnto Jacob: What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen awaye my herte, and caryed awaye my doughters, as though they had ben taken captyue with the swerde? Wherfore keptest thou that secrete, that thou woldest flye, & hast stolen away frō me, & toldest me not, ẏ I myght haue brought ẏ on thy waye [illegible] [illegible], & syngyng with tabrettes, & harpes? & hast not suf fred me to kysse my chyldren & doughters? Thou hast done folishly, & so moch myght I haue made, that I coude haue done you euel: but your fathers god sayd yesterday vnto me: Beware, ẏ ẏ speake nothyng vnto Jacob but good. And for so moch then as ẏ woldest nedes departe & longedest sore after thy fathers house, why hast ẏ stolen away my goddes?

E Jacob answered and sayd vnto Laban: I was afrayed that thou shuldest haue taken away thy doughters fro me: but loke by whom thou fyndest thy god des, let the same here dye before our bre thren. Seke that thyne is by me, & take it awaye. (But he knewe not, that Rachell had stolen them) Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tent & into Leas tent, and into both the maydens tentes, and founde nothynge. And out of Leas tent, he wente into Rachels tent. The[illegible] Rachell the ymages, and layed them vn der the camels strawe, and sat downe vpon them. But Laban searched ẏ hole tent, and founde nothynge. Then sayde she vnto her father: Be not angrye my lorde, that I cā not ryse vp vnto the: for it goeth with me after the maner of wo men. So he sought, and founde not the ymages.

And Jacob was wroth, and chode wt Laban, answered & sayde vnto hym: What haue I trespased or offended, ẏ thou art so wroth with me? Thou hast searched all my householde stuffe? and Laban answered and sayde: The doughters are my doughters, & the chyldren are my chyldren, and the flockes are my flockes, and all that thou seyst is myne. What can I do this daye vnto these my doughters, or to their chyldren whom they haue borne? Now therfore come on, let vs make a couenaunt (I & thou) which may be a witnesse betwene me & the. Than toke Iacob a stone, & set it vp (for a pyler or marke stone) & sayd vnto his brethren: Gather stones. And they toke the stones, and made an heape and dyd eate vpon the same heape. And Laban called it Iegar Sahadutha, but Iacob called it Gilead: (eyther of them after the propertie of his language.)

G
Then sayd Labã: * This heape be wytnes betwene me & the this daye (therfore is it called Gilead) and a testimony for he said: The LORDE loke betwene me and the, whan we are departed the one from the other: yf thou vexe my doughters, or take other wyues vnto them. There is no man with vs, but lo, God is the wytnes betwene me and the. And Laban sayd moreouer vnto Iacob: Beholde, this is the heape, and this is the marckstone, that I haue set vp betwixt me and the: the same heape be wytnesse, and the same marckstone also be wytnes, yf I passe ouer vnto the, or yf thou passe ouer this heap and marckstone vnto me, to do any harme. The God of Abrahã, and the God of Nahor, and the God of theyr fathers, be iudge betwene vs.

And Iacob sware vnto hym by the feare of his father Isaac. And Iacob offred an offrynge vpon the mounte, and called his brethrẽ to eat bread. And whã they had eate, they taryed vpon the mounte all nyght. But vpon the morow, Laban rose vp early, kissed his childrẽ & doughters, and blessed them, and departed, & came agayne vnto his place. As for Iacob, he went on his iourney, and the angels of God met hym. And whã he saw them, he sayd: It is Gods hoost, and called the same place Mahanaim.

The.xxxii. Chapter.

Iacob sendeth presentes vnto Esau. Putteth God in remembraunce of his promes, and wrestleth with the angell, which changeth his name, and blesseth hym.

IAcob sent messaungers before hym to his brother Esau in to the lãde of Seir, of the felde of Edom, & cõmaunded them, and sayde: Saye thus vnto my lorde Esau: Thy seruaunt Iacob sendeth the this worde: I haue ben out with Laban, and haue bene hitherto amonge straungers, and haue oxen, and asses, shepe, seruauntes, and maydes, & haue sent forth to shewe it the my lorde, that I myght fynde fauoure in thy syght. Iosu.24. a

The messaungers came agayne vnto Iacob, & sayd: We cam vnto thy brother Esau, & he cõmeth forth also agaynst the with foure hundreth mẽ. Then was Iacob sore afrayed, & wyst not what waye to turne hym selfe, & deuyded the people that was with hym, and the shepe, and the oxen, & the camels into two droues, & sayd: Yf Esau come vpon the one droue and smyte it, the other shall escape.

Iacob sayd moreouer: O God of my father Abraham, God of my father Isaac, LORDE, thou that saydest vnto me: * Departe agayne to thyne owne lande and to thy kynred, and I wyll do the good: I am to lytle for all the mercyes and all the treuth that thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt (for I had no more but this staffe whan I wente ouer this Iordã, and now am I become two droues) delyuer me from the hande of my brother, from the hande of Esau, for I am afrayed of hym, lest he come & smyte me, the mother with the chyldren. Thou saydest: I wyll do the good, & wyl make thy sede as the sonde of the see, which can not be nombred for multitude. Gen.31. c

And there he taried that nyght, * & toke of such as came to hande a present vnto his brother Esau, two hundreth she goates, and twentye he goates, two hundreth shepe, twentye rammes, & thirtye mylkynge camels with their foales, fortye kyne, ten bullockes, twentye she asses with ten foales, and put them in the hande of his seruauntes, euery flocke by them selues, and sayd vnto them: Go ye forth before me, & put a space betwixte one flocke after the other, and commaunded the fyrst and sayde: 1.Re.25. e and cõmeth behynde vs hym selfe.

D Thus cõmaunded he the seconde also, and the thirde, and all them that folowed the flockes, and sayde: Lyke as I haue tolde you, so speake ye vnto Esau, whan ye mete hym, and saye vnto hym also: Beholde, thy seruaunt Iacob is be hynde vs. For he thought: I wyll recon cyle him wt the presẽt that goeth before

So the presente wente also before him, but he taried in ẏ tẽte ẏ samenight

But he sayde vnto him. My lord, thou knowest ẏ I haue tẽder children wt me, and small and greate catell also, which are yet but yonge: yf they shulde be dry-uen ouer in one daye, the whole flocke wold dye. Let my lorde go on before his seruaunt. I wyll dryue after fayre and softly, (there after as ẏ catell & the chilnot the vse to do.

B Then comened Hemor with them, and sayde: My sonne Sichems hart lõgeth for youre doughter, O geue hir hym to wyfe: make frendshippe with vs, geue vs youre doughters, and take ye oure doughters, and dwell with vs, the londe shall be open vnto you, dwell and occupie, and haue youre possessiõs theryn. And Sichem sayde vnto his father and brethren: Let me fynde grace with you, loke what ye appoynte me, I wyll geue it: requyre the dowrye & gyft of me hardely, I wyll geue it acordynge as ye wyll axe, onely geue me the dam-sell to wyfe.
Then Jacobs sonnes answered Si chem and Hemor his father (and spake disceatfully, because their sister Dina was defyled) & sayde vnto thē: That cā we not do, to geue oure sister to an vn-circumcised mā: for that were a shame vnto vs.
C Neuertheles we wyl cõsente vnto you, yf ye wyll be like vnto vs, and be circū-cised asmany as are males amõge you: then wyll we geue you oure doughters, and take youre doughters vnto vs, and dwell with you, and be one people.
But yf ye wyll not herken vnto vs, to be circumcised, then wyll we take oure doughter, and go oure waye.
These wordes pleased Hemor and his sonne well, & the yonge man deferrede not to do yͤ same, for he had lust to Jacobs doughter: & he was holden in honoure aboue all in his fathers house.
Thē came Hemor & Sichem his sonne vnder the gate of ciie, & comened with the citisens of the cite, & sayde: These men are peaceable with vs, & wyl dwel in yͤ lāde & occupye: now is yͤ lōde brode of both the sydes, we will take their doughters vnto vs, and geue thē oure doughters.
But then wyll they cõsent vnto vs, D to dwell by vs, & to be one people with vs, yf we circumcise all the men childrē amõge vs, like as they are circumcised: their catell and goodes, and all yͭ they haue, shalbe oures, yf we cõsent vnto thē that they maye dwell with vs And they herkened vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne, as many as wente out and in at yͤ gate of his cite, and circumcised all the males, that wente out and in at his cite. *And vpon yͤ thyrde Jud.9.a daye (whan it was panefull to thē) the two sonnes of Jacob Simeon, and Le-ui Dinas brethren, toke euery man his swearde, and wente boldly in to yͤ cite, Gen.49.a *and slew all the males, and slew He-mor also and Sichem his sonne with yͤ edge of the swearde, and toke their sys-ter Dina out of Sichems house, and wente their waye.
Then came Jacobs sonnes ouer yͤ E slayne, & spoyled the cite (because they had defyled their sister) and toke their shepe, oxen, asses, and what so euer was in the cite & in the londe, and all maner of goodes: All their childrē and wyues toke they captyue, and spoyled all that was in the houses.
And Jacob sayde vnto Symeon, & Leui: Ye haue brought it so to passe, yͭ I stynke before the inhabiters of this londe, the Cananites & Pherezites, and I am but a small nombre: Yf they gather them selues now together agaynst me, they shall slaye me, so shall I be destroyed & my house. But they answered: Shulde they them deale & oure sister as with an whore?

The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan, and Nepthali. The sōnes of Silpa Leas mayde: Gad and Aser. These are the sonnes of Jacob, which were borne vnto him in Mesopotamia. And he came to his father Isaac to Mamre in to the head citie which is called Hebron, wherin Abraham and Isaac were straungers. And Isaac was an hūdreth & foure score yere olde, & fell sycke, and dyed, and was gathered vnto his people, when he was olde, and had lyued ynough: and his sonnes Esau and Jacob buried hym.

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

This is the generacyon of Esau, which is called Edō. Esau toke wyues of the doughters of Canaan. * Ada ẏ doughter of Elō the Hethite: and Ahalibama the doughter of Ana, the chyldes chylde of Sibeō the Heuyte: And Basmath * Ismaels doughter: the sister of Nebaioth. And Ada bare Eliphas vnto Esau. Basmath bare Reguel. Ahalibama bare Jeus, Jaelam, and Korah. These are the chyldren of Esau, that were borne vnto hym in the lande of Canaan.

And Esau toke his wyues, sonnes and doughters, and all the soules of his house, his substaunce, and all the catell with all the goodes that he had gotten in the lande of Canaan, and wente in to a countre awaye frō his brother Jacob: for theyr substaunce was so greate, that they coude not dwell together: and the londe wherin they were straũgers, myght not holde them because of their goodes. So Esau dwelt vpon mount Seir. And Esau is Edom.

* This is the generacyon of Esau, B of whome are come the Edomytes vpō the mount Seir. And these are the names of the Chyldren of Esau: Eliphas the sonne of Ada Esaus wyfe: Reguell the sōne of Basmath Esaus wyfe: The

[The so]nnes of Eliphas were these: Themā, Omar, Zepho, Gaethan and Kenas. And * Thimna was a concubyne of Eliphas the sōne of Esau, and bare hym Amalech. These are the chyldrē of Ada Esaus wyfe.

The chyldren of Reguell are these: Nahath, Serah, Sāma, Mysa. These are y chyldrē of Basmath Esaus wyfe.

The chyldren of Ahalibama Esaus wyfe, the doughter of Ana, that was y chyldes chylde of Zibeon (whiche she bare vnto Esau) are these: Jeus, Jaelā and Korah.

These are the prynces amonge the chyldren of Esau. The chyldren of Elyphas the fyrst sonne of Esau, were these: The prynce Theman, the prynce Omar, the prynce Zepho, the prynce Kenas, the prynce Korah, the prynce Gaethan, the prynce Amaleke. These are the prynces of Elyphas in the lande of Edom, and are the chyldren of Ada.

And these are the chyldrē of Reguel Esaus sonne: the prynce Nahath, the prynce Serah, the prynce Samma, the prynce Misa. These are the prynces of Reguel in the lande of the Edomites, and they are the chyldren of Basmath Esaus wyfe. These are the chyldren of Ahalibama Esaus wyfe: The prince Jeus, the prynce Jaelam, the prince Korah. These are the prynces of Ahalibama, y doughter of Ana Esaus wyfe. These are the chyldren of Esau & theyr prynces. He is Edom. The chyldren of Seir

D the Horite that dwelte in y londe, are these: Lothan, Soball, Zibeon, Ana, Dison, Ezer and Dison. These are y princes of the Horites, all the chyldren of Seir in the lande of Idumea. But the chyldren of Lothan were these: Hori, & Heman, and Lothans syster was called

Gen.36.b * Thimna.

The chyldren of Sobal were these: Aluan, Manahat, Ebal, Zepho and Onam. The chyldrē of Zibeon were: Aia and Ana. This is the same Ana y founde

...19.c * mules in the wyldernes, whā he kepte his fathers Zibeons asses. The chyldrē of Ana were: Dison and Ahalibama, y is the doughter of Ana. The chyldrē of Dison were: Hemdan, Esban, Jethran and Charan. The chyldrē of Ezer were: Bilhan, Seauan, and Acan. The chyldren of Disan were: Uz and Aran.

These are y prynces of the Horites. The prince Lothan, y prynce Soball, y prynce Zibeon, y prince Ana, y prynce Dison, y prince Ezer, the prince Disan. These are y princes of the Horites, whiche ruled in y lāde of Seir. * The kynges y reygned in the lande of Edumea (before the chyldren of Israel had any G 1.Pa.1.d kynge) are these: Bela y sonne of Beor was kyng in Edumea, & y name of his cite was Dinhaba. And whā Bela died Jobab y sōne of Serah of Bosra was kynge in his steade. Whā Jobab dyed, Husā out of y lande of y Themanites was kynge in his steade. Whā Husam dyed, Hadad y sōne of Bedad (whiche slewe y Madianites in the Moabites felde) was kynge in his steade, & y name of his cyte was Auith. Whā Hadad dyed, Samla of Masrecke was kynge in his steade. Whā Samla dyed, Saul of Rehoboth by y water syde, was kynge in his steade. Whā Saul dyed, Baal Hanā the sonne of Achbor was kynge in his steade. Whan Baal Hanan the sōne of Achbor dyed, Hadad was kyng in his steade, and the name of his cyte was Pagu, and his wyues name was Mehet Abeel, the doughter of Matred, the doughter of Mesahab.

Thus are the princes of Esau called in theyr kinredes, places, & names: the prince Thymna, the prynce Alua, y prynce Jetheth, the prynce Ahalibama, y prince Ela, the Prince Pynon, the prince Kenas, the prince Themā, the prince Mibsar, the prince Magdiel, the prince Jrā. These are the princes in Edumea, like as they dwelt in the lande of theyr possessions. And Esau is the father of the Edomites.

The.xxxvii. Chapter.

Iacob dwelt in y lande, wherin his father was a straunger, namely in y lāde of Canaan. And these are y generacyons of Jacob. Joseph was seuentene yeare olde, whā he became a keper of the catel with his brethren, & the lad was with the chyldren of Bilha & Zilpa his fathers wyues, and tolde theyr father of the euell reporte that was of them. Israel loued Joseph more then all his chyldren because he had begotten hym in his olde age, & he made hym a cote of many coloures.

Now whan his brethren sawe that his father loued hym more then all his brethren, they had euel wyll at hym, and coulde not speake a frendly worde vnto

Gen.42. a hym. * Joseph also had once a dreame, & tolde his brethrē therof. Then hated they hym ẏ more, for he sayd: ☩ Hear I pray you what I dreamed. Me thought we were byndynge sheues vpō ẏ felde, & my sheefe arose, & stode vp, and your sheeues roūde about made obeysaunce vnto my sheefe.
B Thē sayd his brethren vnto hym: Shalt ẏ be our kynge, & haue dominiō ouer vs? And they hated him yet ẏ more because of his dreame, & his wordes.
And he had yet another dreame, whiche he tolde his brethrē, & sayd: Beholde, I had yet another dreame: Me thought ẏ Sonne, & the Moone, & eleuen starres made obeysaūce to me. And when this was tolde his father & his brethrē, his father reproued hym, & sayd vnto hym: What maner of dreame is this, that ẏ hast dreamed? Shall I & thy mother, & thy brethrē come & fall before ẏ vpō the grounde? & his brethrē had enuye at him.
Luce.2.g * But his father marked this sayeng.
C Now whan his brethren were gone forth to kepe theyr fathers catell in Si-chē, Israel sayd vnto Joseph: Do not thy brethrē kepe ẏ catel in Sichē? Com I wyll sende the vnto thē. He answered sayde: they are gone from hence, for I herde them saye: let vs go vnto Dothā.

Then folowed Joseph after his bre-

When Joseph now cam to his brethren, they stripped hym out of his cote, E that partye coloured cote, which he had vpon hym, and toke hym and cast hym into a pytte. But the same pyt was eme-tye, and no water in it, and they sat thē downe to eat. In the meane season they lyft vp theyr eyes, and sawe a company of Ismaelites commynge from Gilead, with theyr camels, whiche bare spyces, balme, and myrre, & were goynge down into Egipte.
Then sayd Juda vnto his brethren: What helpeth it vs, that we slaye oure brother, & hyd his bloude? Come, let vs sell hym vnto the Ismaelites, that oure handes be not defyled vpon hym, for he is oure brother, our fleshe and bloude.
And they herkened vnto hym.
And as the Madianites marchaunt men wente by, they drewe Joseph out of the pytte, * and solde hym vnto the Actu.7.a Ismaelites (for twentye syluer pens) which brought hym into Egipte.
Now whan Ruben came agayne F vnto the pytte, and founde not Joseph to his brethren and said: The lad is not yonder, whyther shall I go? Then toke they Josephs cote & slewe a goate, & dypped his cote in the bloude, & sent awaye that partye coloured cote, and caused it be brought vnto theyr father and sayd: This haue we founde, loke, whether it be thy sonnes coate, or no.

But he knewe it and sayd: It is my sonnes coate, * a wicked beast hath de- Ge.44.d uoured hym, a rauyshynge beast hath rauyshed Joseph. And Jacob rent his clothes, & put a sacke cloth aboute his loynes, & mourned for his sōne a longe season. And all his sōnes & doughters cam vnto hym to cōforte hym. But he wolde not be conforted, & sayd: With sorowe wyll I go downe into ẏ graue vnto my sonne. And his father wepte for hym.
* But ẏ Madianites solde hī in Egipt Psa.104 vnto Pothiphar Pharaos chef marshal.

The.xxxviii. Chapter.

¶ Juda lyeth wt his doughter in lawe which beareth hym two sonnes.

IT fortuned at ẏ same tyme, B ẏ Juda went downe frō his brethrē, & gat hī a to mā called Hyra at Odollam. And ther Juda sawe a mās dough-ter of Canaan called Sua, & toke her

And when he had lyen with her, she conceaued & bare a sonne, whom she called Er.
And she conceaued agayne, & bare a sonne, whom she called Onan. She proceded yet further, and bare a sonne, whom she called Sela. And whan she had borne hym, she left of bearynge.

And Juda gaue his fyrst sonne Er a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. But he was wycked before the LORDE, therfore the LORDE slew hym. Then sayde Juda vnto his sonne Onan: Go in to thy brothers wyfe, and marye thy self with her, that thou mayest rayse vp sede vnto thy brother. But when Onan knewe that the sede shulde not be his owne, whan he laye with his brothers wyfe, he let it fall vpon the earth & destroyed it, that he shulde not geue sede vnto his brother. This thynge that he dyd dyspleased the LORDE sore, and he slewe hym also.

Then sayde Judas vnto Thamar his sonnes wyfe, Remayne a wydowe in thy fathers house, tyll my sonne Sela be growen: for he thought peraduenture he myght dye also lyke as his brethren. So Thamar wente hir waye, & remayned in hir fathers house. Now whan many dayes were past, the doughter of Sua Judas wyfe dyed. And whan Juda had left mournynge, he wente vp vnto Thimnath to clyppe his shepe with his shepherde Hyra of Odolla.

C Then was it tolde Thamar: Beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp vnto Thimnath, to clyppe his shepe. Then put she of the wyddowes garmentes that she hadde vpon her, couered and disgysed hir self, & sat hir downe without the porte by the wayesyde towarde Thymnath. For she sawe that Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto hym to wyfe.

Now whan Juda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whore, for she hadde couered hir face: and he gat hym to her in the waye, and sayde: I praye the let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his doughter in lawe. She answered: What wilt thou geue me, that thou mayest lye with me? He sayde: I wyll sende the a kydde from the flocke. She answered: Geue me a pledge then, tyll thou sende it me. He sayde: What pledge wilt thou that I geue the?

D She answered: Thy sygnet, and thy bracelet, and thy staff that thou hast in thy hande. Then he gaue it her, and laye with her, and she was with childe of hym. And she gat hir vp, and wente hyr waye, and layed of hir clocke, & put on hir wyddowes garmentes agayne.

Juda sent the kydde by his shepherde of Odolla, to fetch the pledge agayne from the woman, and he founde her not. Then axed he the men of the same place, & sayde: Where is the whore that sat without in the waye? They answered: There hath no whore bene here. And he came agayne vnto Juda, and sayde: I haue not founde her, moreouer the men of the same place sayde: that there hath no whore bene there. Juda sayde: Let her take it vnto her, lest we happly be shamed, for I haue sent the kydde, and thou hast not founde her.

E After thre monethes it was tolde Juda: Thamar thy doughter in lawe hathe played the whore: and beholde, by whoredome is she gotten with chylde. Juda sayde: brynge her forth, that she maye be brent. And whan she was brought forth, she sent vnto hir father in lawe, and sayde: By the man that oweth these, am I with chylde. And she sayde: Knowest thou whose is this sygnet, this bracelet, & this staffe? Juda knewe them, & sayde: She is more ryghteous then I, for I gaue her not my sonne Sela. But he laye nomore with her.

Whan the tyme came that she shulde be delyuered, there were two twynnes founde in hir wombe. And as she was now in trauelynge, the one put out his hande. Then the mydwyfe toke, and bounde a reed threde aboute it, & sayde: This shal come out first. But whan he plucked in his hande agayne, his brother came forth. And she sayde: Wherfore is there a rent made for thy sake? And he was called Phares. Afterwarde came his brother forth, which had the red threde aboute his hande, & he was called Zarach. 1.Par.2.a Mat.1.a

The.xxxix. Chapter.

Joseph is beloued: & because he wyll not consente to the inordinate desyre of his maistresse, he is put in preson.

Joseph was brought downe in to Egypte, & Putiphar an Egypcian [illegible] bought him of the Ismaelites, which brought him downe. And the LORDE was with Joseph, in so moch that he became a lucky man, & was in his master the Egipcians house. And his master sawe that the LORDE was with him: for whatsoeuer he dyd, the LORDE made it to prospere in his hande: So that Gen.17.d

he founde fauour in his masters sight, & was his seruaunt. He made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had vnder his hande. And from the tyme forth þ he had made hym ruler of his house and all his goodes, the LORDE blessed þ Egipcians house for Josephs sake and there was nothynge but the very blessynge of þ LORDE in all that he had in þ house, & in þ felde, therfore left he al þ he had, i Josephs hãde And medled w nothynge himselfe, saue onely the B bread þ he eate. And Joseph was fayre of bewtye, & well fauoured of face.

And it fortuned after these actes, þ his masters wyfe cast hir eyes vpon Joseph, and sayde: Slepe with me. But he denyed, and sayd vnto her: Beholde, my master knoweth not what is in þ house, & all þ he hath, þ hath he put vnder my hande And there is nomã so greate in þ house as I, and he hath kepte nothynge fro me, excepte the: for thou art his wife How shulde I then do so greate euell, and synne agaynst God? But she spake such wordes vnto Joseph dayly. Neuertheles he herkened not vnto her, to slepe by her, or to be in her company.

C It fortuned vpon a tyme, that Joseph wente in to the house to do his busynesse, and there was none of the folkes of þ house thereby. And she caught hym by his garment, & sayde: Slepe w me. But he left the garment in hir hãde, and fled, and gat hym out of the house.

Now whã she sawe that he had left his garment in hir hande, and fled out: she called the folkes in the house, & sayd vnto thẽ: Lo, he hath brought vs in the Hebrue, to do vs shame. He came in here vnto me, to slepe by me: but I cryed w loude voyce. And when he herde that I made a noyse & cried, he left his garmẽt here by me, and fled, & ranne out.

D And she layed vp his garmẽt by her, tyll his master came home, and tolde him euẽ the same wordes, & sayde: The Hebrue seruaunt whom thou broughtest here vnto vs, came in here to me, for to brynge me shame. But whan I made a noyse and cryed, he left his garmẽt here by me, and fled out. When his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde hym, and sayde: Thus hath þ Hebrue seruaunt done vnto me, he was very wroth.

Ps. 104. c hym in the preson, wherin the kynges presoners laye. And there he laye in preson. But the LORDE was with him, and had mercy vpon hym, and caused hym to fynde fauour in the syght of the officer of the preson, so that he commytted all the presoners of the preson vnto his handes: that whatsoeuer were done, myght be done by hym. For the officer of the preson sawe, that the LORDE was with hym in all that was vnder his handes, and that whatsoeuer he dyd, the LORDE made it to come prosperously to passe.

The. xl. Chapter.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two presoners.

AND it fortuned after this that þ kynge of Egiptes chefe butlar & þ chefe baker offended their lorde þ kynge of Egipte. And Pharao was angrie w them, & caused them be put in preson in the chefe marshals house, where Joseph laye presoner. And the chefe marshall put Joseph vnto thẽ, þ he myght serue them. And so they were in preson for a season.

And they dreamed, both the butlar and the baker in one nyght, euery man his own dreame, and euery dreame had his interpretacion. Now in þ mornynge whan Joseph came in vnto thẽ & sawe that they loked sadly, he axed thẽ & said Why loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered: We haue dreamed, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Joseph sayde: Interpretynge belongeth vnto God, but tell it me yet.

Then the chefe butlar tolde Joseph B his dreame, and sayde vnto hym: I dreamed that there was a vyne before me, which had thre braunches, and it budded, grewe, and bare blossoms, and the grapes therof were rype. And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and toke (the grapes) and wronge them in to the cuppe, and gaue Pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Joseph sayde: This is the interpretacion: The thre braunches are thre dayes, and ouer thre dayes shall Pharao take þ, & put the in thine office agayne, that þ mayest geue him the cuppe in his hãde after þ olde maner, whã thou wast his butlar. But whan þ art in thy prosperite, thynke vpõ me, & shewe me kyndnesse, that þ mayest certifye Pharao of me, y^t he may brynge me out of this house: for I was preuely caried out of y^e lande of the Hebrues, & here also haue I done nothynge, that they shulde haue put me in this dongeon.

C When the chefe baker sawe, that y^e interpretacion was good, he sayd vnto Joseph: I dreamed, that I bare thre wyker baskettes vpon my heade, and in y^e vppermost basket all maner of baken meates vnto Pharao, & the foules ate out of the basket vpon my heade.

Joseph answered, and sayd: This is the interpretacion: The thre baskettes are thre dayes, and after thre dayes shal Pharao take the, and hange the vpon the galowes, & the foules shall eate thy flesh from of the.

And vpō the thirde daye it came to passe, y^t Pharao helde his * byrth daye, & made a feast vnto all his seruauntes, & toke the chefe butlar and y^e chefe baker before all his seruauntes, & restored the chefe butlar to his butlarshippe agayne, so that he reached y^e cuppe in to Pharaos hande. As for the chefe baker, he caused hym be hāged lyke as Joseph had interpreted vnto hym. Neuertheles the chefe butlar thought not on Joseph, but forgat hym.

The.xli. Chapter.

Joseph declareth Pharaos dreame, & is made a lord of Egipte. The derth begynneth.

AND after two yeares Pharao had a dreame, how y^t he stode by a water syde: & beholde, out of the water there came seuē goodly kyne, & fatfleshed, and wente fedynge in y^e medow. After these he sawe other seuē kyne come out of the water, which were euel fauoured & leane fleshed, & wente by y^e kyne vpon y^e watersyde: & the euell fauoured leane kyne ate vp the seuē good & fat kine Thē Pharao awaked.

And he slepte agayne, & dreamed y^e seconde tyme. And he sawe y^t seuē eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke, full and good. Afterward he sawe seuē thynne & blasted eares come vp, & y^e seuē thynne eares deuoured the seuen greate, & full eares. Thē Pharao awaked, and sawe that it was a dreame. And whan it was daye, his sprete was troubled, & he sent forth, & caused to call all the soythsayers in Egipte & all the wyse men, and tolde the his dreame. But there was none, y^t coulde tell Pharao y^e interpretaciō of it.

[illegible] spake the chefe butlar vnto Pharao, & sayd: This daye do I remembre my faute. When Pharao was angrye w^t his seruauntes, & put me in preson w^t y^e chef baker i y^e chef marshals house, we dreamed both in one night euery man his dreame, hauynge his owne interpretacion. Then was there with vs a yonge man an Hebrue, the chefe marshals seruaunt, vnto whom we tolde it, and he declared oure dreames vnto vs, vnto euery man acordinge to his dreame. And as he declared it vnto vs, so came it to passe. For I was restored vnto myne office, and he was hanged.

Then Pharao sent & called for Joseph & they let hym out of the dongeon. And he let hymself be shauen, & chaunged his clothes, and came in vnto Pharao. Then sayde Pharao vnto hym: I haue dreamed a dreame, & there is no man y^t can interprete it: But I haue herde tell of the, y^t whan thou hearest a dreame, y^u declarest it. Joseph answered Pharao, & sayd: God shall geue Pharao a prosperous answere, yee well without me.

C Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I dreamed that I stode by a water syde, & beholde, out of the water there came seuē kyne, fatfleshed and goodly, & wente fedynge in the medowe. And after thē I sawe other seuē kyne come out, thynne, euell fauoured, and leanfleshed. So euell fauoured sawe I neuer in all the lande of Egipte. And the seuen leane & euel fauoured kyne, ate vp the seuē first fat kyne And whā they had eaten them vp, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten thē, & were as euell fauoured as they were afore. Then I awaked.

And I sawe agayne in my dreame seuen eares of corne, growynge vpō one stalke, full and good. Afterwarde there sprange vp seuē wythered eares, thynne and blasted, and the seuen thynne eares deuoured the seuen good eares. And I haue shewed it vnto my soithsayers, but they can tell me nothynge therof.

D Joseph answered Pharao: Both Pharaos dreames are one. God sheweth Pharao what he wyll do. The seuē good kyne are seuen yeares, and the seuen good eares are seuen yeares also. It is one dreame. The seuen leane and euell fauoured kyne, that came vp after them, are seuen yeares. And the seuen thynne and blasted eares, shalbe seuen yeares of derth. This is now y^e thynge which I tolde Pharao, that God sheweth Pharao, what he wyll do.

he founde fauour in his masters sight, & was his seruaũt. He made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had vn der his hande. And from the tyme forth yt he had made hym ruler of his house and all his goodes, the LORDE blessed ye Egipciãs house for Josephs sake and there was nothynge but the very blessynge of ye LORDE in all that he had in ye house, & in ye felde, therfore left he al yt he had, i Josephs hãde. And med led wt nothynge himself, saue onely the B bread yt he eate. And Joseph was fayre of bewtye, & well fauoured of face.

And it fortuned after these actes, yt his masters wyfe cast hir eyes vpon Jo seph, and sayde: Slepe with me. But he denyed, and sayd vnto her: Beholde, my master knoweth not what is in ye house, & all yt he hath, yt hath he put vnder my hande. And there is nomã so greate in ye house as I, and he hath kepte nothynge fro me, excepte the: for thou art his wife How shulde I then do so greate euell, and synne agaynst God? But she spake such wordes vnto Joseph daylie. Ne-uertheles he herkened not vnto her, to slepe by her, or to be in her company.

C It fortuned vpon a tyme, that Joseph wente in to the house to do his bu synesse, and there was none of the folkes of ye house therby. And she caught hym by his garment, & sayde: Slepe wt me. But he left the garment in hir hãde, and fled, and gat hym out of the house.

Now whã she sawe that he had left his garment in hir hande, and fled out: she called the folkes in the house, & sayd vnto thẽ: Lo, he hath brought vs in the Hebrue, to do vs shame. He came in here vnto me, to slepe by me: but I cryed wt loude voyce. And whan he herde that I made a noyse & cried, he left his garmẽt here by me, and fled, & ranne out.

D And she layed vp his garmẽt by her, tyll his master came home, and tolde him euẽ the same wordes, & sayde: The Hebrue seruaunt whom thou broughtest here vnto vs, came in here to me, for to do me shame. But whan I made a noyse and cryed, he left his garmẽt here by me, and fled out. Whan his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde hym, and sayde: Thus hath ye He-brue seruaunt done vnto me, he was very wroth.

Ps. 104. c hym in the preson, wherin the kynges presoners laye. And there he laye in pre-son. But the LORDE was with him, and had mercy vpon hym, and cau sed hym to fynde fauour in the syght of the officer of the preson, so that he committed all the presoners of the pre son vnto his handes: that whatsoeuer were done, myght be done by hym. For the officer of the preson sawe, that the LORDE was with hym in all that was vnder his handes, and that what soeuer he dyd, the LORDE made it to come prosperously to passe.

The. xl. Chapter.

AND it fortuned after this that ye kynge of Egiptes chefe butlar & ye chefe baker offended their lorde ye kynge of Egipte. And Pharao was angrie wt them, & caused them be put in preson in the chefe marshals house, where Joseph laye presoner. And the chefe marshall put Joseph vnto thẽ, yt he myght serue them. And so they were in preson for a season.

And they dreamed, both the butlar and the baker in one nyght, euery man his own dreame, and euery dreame had his interpretacion. Now in ye mornynge whan Joseph came in vnto thẽ, & sawe that they loked sadly, he axed thẽ & said Why loke ye so sadly to daye? They an swered: We haue dreamed, and haue no man to declare it vnto vs. Joseph sayde: Interpretynge belongeth vnto God, but tell it me yet.

B Then the chefe butlar tolde Joseph his dreame, and sayde vnto hym: I drea med that there was a vyne before me, which had thre braunches, and it budded, grewe, and bare blossoms, and the grapes therof were rype. And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and toke (the grapes) and wronge them in to the cuppe, and gaue Pharao the cuppe in his hande.

Joseph sayde: This is the interpre-tacion: The thre braunches are thre da-yes, and ouer thre dayes shall Pharao take ye, & put the in thine office agayne, that yu mayest geue him the cuppe in his hãde after ye olde maner, whã thou wast his butlar. But whan yu art in thy pros perite, thynke vpõ me, & shewe me kind nesse, that yu mayest certifye Pharao of me, yt he may brynge me out of this house for I was preuely caried out of ye lande of the Hebrues, & here also haue I done nothynge, that they shulde haue put me in this dongeon.

C When the chefe baker sawe, that ye interpretacion was good, he sayd vnto Joseph: I dreamed, that I bare thre wyker baskettes vpon my heade, and in ye vppermost basket all maner of baken meates vnto Pharao, & the foules ate out of the basket vpon my heade.

And vpō the thirde daye it came to passe, yt Pharao helde his * byrth daye, & made a feast vnto all his seruauntes, & toke the chefe butlar and ye chefe baker before all his seruauntes, & restored the chefe butlar to his butlarshippe agayne, so that he reached ye cuppe in to Pharaos hande. As for the chefe baker, he caused hym be hāged lyke as Joseph had interpreted vnto hym. Neuerthelesse the chefe butlar thought not on Joseph, but forgat hym.

Then I awaked.

And I sawe agayne in my dreame seuen eares of corne, growynge vpō one stalke, full and good. Afterwarde there sprange vp seuē wythred eares, thynne and blasted, and the seuen thynne eares deuoured the seuen good eares. And I haue shewed it vnto my soithsayers, but they can tell me nothynge therof.

D Joseph answered Pharao: Both Pharaos dreames are one. God sheweth Pharao what he wyll do. The seuē good kyne are seuen yeares, and the seuen good eares are seuen yeares also. It is one dreame. This is now ye thynge which I tolde Pharao, that God sheweth Pharao, what he wyll do.

Beholde, there shal come seuē yeares with greate plenteousnes in the whole lande of Egipte, and after ẏ same, there shall come seuen yeares of derth, so that all this plenteousnes shalbe forgottē in the lande of Egipte: and the derth shall consume the lande, so that the plente= ousnes shal not be perceaued in the lāde because of the derth that cōmeth ther= after, for it shall be very greate. Where as Pharao dreamed the seconde tyme, it signifieth that this thynge is surely prepared of God, & that God wyl short ly brynge the same to passe.

E Let Pharao now prouyde for a mā of vnderstōdynge and wysdome, whom he maye set ouer the londe of Egypte, and se that he ordene officers in the lōde and take the fifth (parte) of the londe of Egypte in the seuen plenteous yeares, and gather all the foode that shal come of the plenteous yeares, that they maye laye vp corne vnder Pharaos power for sustenaunce in the cities, and kepe it that there maye be foode founde prepa= pared for the londe in the seuen deare yeares, which shall come vpon the lāde of Egypte that the londe be not destro= yed of hōger. The sayeng pleased Pha rao well and all his seruauntes. And Pharao sade vnto his seruaūtes: How might we fynde such a man, in whome is the sprete of God? And sayde vnto Joseph: For so much as God hath she= wed the all this, ther is none of such vn derstondynge, and wysdome as thou.

F Psal.104.c Actu.7.b
*Thou shalt be ouer my house, and accordynge vnto thy worde shall all my people obey: onely in the kynges seate wyll I be more then thou. And he sayde Beholde, I haue set the ouer the whole lāde of Egypte. And he toke of his ryng from his hande, and gaue it Joseph in his hande, and clothed hym with whyte sylke, and honge a cheane of golde a= boute his necke, and made hym ryde vp pon the seconde charet: and caused it be proclamed before hym, that men shulde bowe their knees vnto hym, as to hym whome Pharao had set ouer the whole lande of Egypte.

And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharao: without thy wyll shall noman moue his hāde or his fote in all the lande of Egipte. And he called hym ☞ Zaphnath Paena, and gaue hym a wyfe, euē Asnath the doughter of Po tiphar ẏ prest of On. So Joseph wēte out, for to vyset the lande of Egypte.

Zaphnath Paena. ẏ is to saye: An expounder of se=

(And he was thirtye yeare olde, whā he stode before Pharao) And he departed from Pharao, and wēte thorow all the londe of Egipte.

And the lond dyd so those seuē plen= teous yeares, and they gathered all the foode of the seuen yeares that were in the lande of Egypte, and layed it in the cities. Loke what foode grewe in ẏ feld rounde aboute euery cite, they put it ther in. So Joseph layed vp the corne in stoare, and that much aboue meas[illegible], as the sonde of the see: in so muche that h left of nombrynge of it, for it coude no be nombred.

*And vnto Joseph there were bor two sonnes (before the derth came) [illegible] Asnath the doughter of Potiphar prest of On bare vnto hym. And the fyrst cal led he Manasses: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to forget all my laboure and all my fathers house. The seconde called he Ephraim: for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

ganne the seuen deare yeares to come, wherof Joseph had sayde. And there was derth in all landes, but in all the land of Egypte there was foode. Now whan the lande of Egypte beganne to suffre hōger also, the people cried vnto Pharao for bread. But Pharao sayde vnto all the Egypciās: Go vnto Joseph what he sayeth vnto you, that do. So whan there was derth in all the lande, Joseph opened all that was by hym, & solde vnto the Egypcians. Thus the derth preuailed in the lande, and all coū tres came to Egypte to bye at Joseph: for the derth was mightye in all lādes.

The.xlii.Chapter.

¶ Josephs brethren come in to Egypte to bye corne, and are troubled of hym.

WHan Jacob sawe that there was much corne in Egypte, he sayde vnto his sonnes: A Why gape ye? Beholde, I heare there is muche corne in Egypte, go downe and bye vs corne, that we maye lyue and not dye. So Jo sephs ten brethren wente downe to bye corne in Egypte. As for Ben Jamin Jo sephs brother, Jacob wolde not let him go with his brethrē, for he sayde: Some mysfortune might happē vnto him. So ẏ children of Israel came to bye corne, a= mong other ẏ came with thē: for there was derth also in ỹ lãde of Canaã. But Joseph was gouernour in ỹ lãde, & sol, de corne vnto all the people in the lõde.

Now whan his brethren came to hym, they fill downe to the grounde before hym vpon theyr faces. And he saw them, and knewe them, & helde hymself straunge towarde them, & talked rough ly with them, & sayd vnto them: Where come ye? They sayd: Out of the lande of Canaan to bye vytayle. Neuertheles though he knewe them, yet knewe they not hym. And Joseph thought vpon ỹ Gen.37. dreames * that he had dreamed of them and sayd vnto them: Ye are spyes, and are come to se where the lande is open.
B They answered hym: No my lorde, thy seruauntes are come to bye vitayle: we are all one mannes sonnes, we are vnfayned, and thy seruauntes were neuer spyes. He sayd vnto them: No, but ye are come to se where the lande is open. They answered hym: We thy seruauntes are twelfe brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan, & ỹ yongest is with oure father: as for one, he is awaye.
Joseph sayd vnto them: This is it that I sayd vnto you: spyes are ye. Here by wyll I proue you: By ỹ lyfe of Pha rao ye shall not get hence, excepte youre yongest brother come hether. Sende awaye one of you to fetche your brother, but ye shalbe in preson. Thus wyll I trye out youre wordes, whether ye go about with trueth or not: for eles, by ỹ lyfe of Pharao ye are spyes. And he put thẽ together in warde thre dayes longe.
C Upon the thyrde daye he sayd vnto them: Yf ye wyll lyue, then do thus, for I feare God: Yf ye be vnfayned, let one of your brethren lye bounde in your pre son: but go ye youre waye, & carye home the necessary foode, and brynge me your yongest brother, so wyll I beleue youre wordes, ỹ ye shal not dye. & so they dyd.
And they sayd one to another: This haue we deserued agaynst our brother, in ỹ we sawe the anguishe of his soule, whã he besought vs, and we wolde not heare hym: therfore commeth now this trouble vpon vs. Rubẽ answered them and sayde: Tolde not I you the same, Gen.37.d. whan I sayd: * O synne not agaynst ỹ lad, but ye wolde not heare. Now is his bloude requyred. But they knewe not ỹ Joseph vnderstode it, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he tur ned hym from them, and wepte. Now whan he had turned hym to thẽ agayne and talked with them, he toke Symeon amonge thẽ & bounde hym before theyr eyes, & commaunded to fyll theyr sackes with corne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, and to geue euery one his expenses by the way. And so was it done vnto them.
And they laded theyr corne vpõ theyr D asses, & departed thence. But whan one opened his sacke to geue his asse prouẽder in the Inne, he spyed his money in his sacke mouth, and sayd vnto his bre thren: My money is restored my agayne lo, it is in my sacke. Then theyr hertes fayled them, & they were afrayed amõg them selues, and sayd: Wherfore hathe God done this vnto vs?
Now whan they came home to Ja cob theyr father in the lande of Canaan they tolde hym all that happened vnto them, and sayd: The man that is lorde of the lande, spake roughly to vs, & toke vs for spyes of the countre. And whan we answered: we are vnfayned, & were neuer spyes, but are twelfe brethren the sonnes of oure father: one is away, and the yongest is yet this daye with our fa ther in the lande of Canaan. He sayde: Hereby wyll I marke, that ye are vnfay ned: Leaue one of youre brethren with me, and take foode necessarye for youre houses, and go youre waye, and brynge youre yongest brother vnto me: so shall I knowe that ye are no spyes, but vnfayned: than shall I delyuer you youre brother also, and ye maye occupye in the lande. E
And whan they opened theyr sackes euery man founde his boundell of money in his sacke. And whan they & theyr father sawe, that it was the bundels of they money, they were afrayed.
Then sayd Jacob theyr father: Ye haue robbed me of my chyldren. Joseph is awaye, Simeon is away, and ye wyl take BeIamin away: It goeth all ouer me. Ruben answered his father & sayde: Yf I brynge hym not to the agayne, then slaye my two sonnes: delyuer hym but into my hande, I wyll brynge hym agayne vnto the. He sayd: my sõne shall not go downe with you: for his brother is dead, and he is lefte alone. Yf any myssfortune shulde happen vnto hym by the waye that ye go, ye shuld brynge my gray heer wt sorow downe into ỹ graue.

The.xliii. Chapter.

¶ They came agayne for corne, brynge BenJamyn with them, and are put to more trouble.

A B Ut the derth oppressed the lande. And whan all vytayles that they had broughte out of Egipte were spent, Jacob theyr father sayd vn to the: Go agayne, & bye vs a lytle fode.
Then Juda answered hym, & sayd:
The man sware vnto vs, & sayd: ye shal not se my face, excepte youre brother be with you. Yf so be now that thou wylt sende oure brother with vs, we wyll go downe, & bye the foode. But yf ÿ wylte not sende hym, we wyll not go downe.
For the mā said vnto vs: Ye shal not se my face, except your brother be wt you.
B Israel sayd: Wherfore haue ye done this euel vnto me, to tell the mā, that ye had yet a brother? They answerd: The man enquered so straitely of vs & of our kynrede, and sayd: Is youre father yet a lyue? Haue ye yet a brother? Thē tolde we hym, as he axed vs. How coulde we knowe, that he wolde saye: brynge your brother downe with you? Thē sayd Ju da vnto Israel his father: Let the lad go with me, that we maye get vs vp & take our iourney, and lyue, and not dye, both we and thou, and our chyldrē. * I Gen.44 wyll be suertye for hym, of my handes shalt thou requyre hym. If I bryng him not vnto the agayne, and set hym before thyne eyes, I wyll beare the blame my lyfe longe. For yf we had not made this taryenge, we had now ben come agayne twyse.
Then sayd Israel theyr father vnto them: Yf it must nedes be so, then do this: take of the best frutes of the londe in youre sackes, and brynge the man a present: a curtsy balme, and hony, & spy ces, and myrre, and dates, and almondes.
Take other money with you also, & the money ÿ was brought agayne in youre sacke mouthes, cary it agayne with you peraduenture it was an ouersyght. And C take your brother, get you vp, and go a-gayne vnto the man. The almyghtye God geue you mercy in the syght of the man, that he maye let you haue your other brother, and BenJamin. As for me I must be as one, that is robbed of his chyldren.
So they toke the present, and other money with them, and BenJamin: gat them vp, and went into Egipte, & stode before Joseph. Then Joseph behelde th with BenJamin, and sayd vnto ÿ ruler of his house: Brynge these men in, and sley, and make ready, for they shall dyne with me at noone. And the man dyd as Joseph bad hym, and brought the men into Josephs house.
When they were brought into Josephs house, they were afrayed, & sayd We are brought hither because of the money, that came agayne in oure sackes at the fyrst, to pyke a quarel with vs, & to laye somthynge to our charge, and to take vs for bonde seruauntes with our asses.
Therfore came they to the mā, that D was ruler of Josephs house, and talked with hym at the dore, and sayde: Syr, * we came downe at ÿ fyrst to bye foode Gen.4 and whan we came in the Inne, and opened oure sackes, beholde, euery mans money was in his sackemouth with ful weyght: therfore haue we brought it wt vs agayne, and haue brought other money with vs also, to bye foode: but we can not tell, who put our money in oure sackes.
He sayd: be cōtent, fear ye not, youre God, euē ÿ God of your fathers hath ge uē you ÿ treasure in your sackes, I had your money. And he brought forth Simeon vnto them, & led thē into Josephs house, & gaue them water to wash their fete, & gaue thyr asses prouender.
And they made ready the present, a-gaynst Joseph came at noone: for they herde, that they shulde dyne there. Now whā Joseph went into the house, they brought hym home ÿ present ÿ they had & fell downe to the grounde before hym But he welcomed them curteously, and sayd: is your father, (that old mā which ye tolde me of) in good health? Is he yet alyue? They answered: Thy seruaūt our father is in good health, and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues, and fell downe before hym.
And he lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe his brother BenJamin his mothers sonne, and sayd: * Is this your yongest brother, that ye told me of? And he sayd moreouer: God be merciful vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (* for the 3.Reg.3 grōnde of his hert was kindled toward his brother) and sought how he myghte wepe, and went into his chamber, and wepte there.
And whan he had wasshed his face, F he wente out, and refrayned hym selfe, and sayde: set bread (on the table.) And they brought vnto hym by hym selfe, & vnto the by them selues, & to the Egyp cians also that ate w them, by them sel ues. (For the Egipcians darre not eate bred with the Hebrues, that is abhomi nacion vnto them.) And they were set ouer agaynst hym, the first borne acor dynge to his fyrst byrth, and the yongest after his youth. They marueled at it a monge them selues, & there were brought them sundrye meates from his table.

But Ben Jamins parte was fyue ty mes more then the other. And they dronke, and were mery with hym.

The .xliiii. Chapter.

As they go home, he causeth them be brought agayne, & put to more feare.

A And Joseph commaunded y ruler of his house, and sayd: Fyll the mens sackes with foode, as moch as they maye carye, and put euery mans money in his sackes mouth: & put my sil uer cuppe in y sack mouth of the yongest & his money for the vitayles. He dyd as Joseph had sayde. And on the morow whan it was daye, they let the men go with their Asses.
But whan they were out of the cite, & not come farre, Joseph sayde to the ruler of his house: Up, and folowe af ter the men, and whan thou ouertakest them, saye vnto them: Wherfore haue ye re warded euell for good? Is not that it, that my lorde drynketh out of? and that he prophecieth with all? It is euel done of you, that ye haue done.
B And whan he had ouertaken them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. They answered hym: Wherfore sayeth my lorde such wordes? God forbyd, that thy seruauntes shulde do any soch thynge.
Beholde, the money that we founde in oure sackes mouthes, that brought we vnto the agayne, out of the lande of Ca naan: how shuld we then haue stollen ey ther syluer or golde out of thy lordes house? Loke by whom it shalbe founde a monge thy seruauntes, let him dye: yet & we also wyll be my lordes bondmen. He sayd: let it so be, as ye haue spoken. Loke by whom it shall be founde, let hym be my seruaunt, but ye shalbe harmlesse.
And they made hayst, & toke downe euery man his sack to the grounde, and euery man opened his sack: And he sear ched, & beganne at the greatest vnto the yongest, & the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke. Then rente they theyr clo thes, & euery man lade the burthen vpon his asse, and wente agayne vnto the cite.
And Juda wente with his brethren vn to Josephs house (for he was there yet) and they fel before him vnto the groūd.
Joseph sayde vnto them: What maner of dede is this, y ye haue done? knewe ye not, that suche a man as I am, can prophecy?
Juda sayde: What shal we saye vn C to my lorde? or how shall we speake? & what excuse shall we make? God hath founde out the wickednesse of thy ser uauntes. Beholde, we and he, by whome the cuppe is founde, are my lordes ser uauntes. But he sayd: God forbyd that I shulde do so. The man by whome the cuppe is founde, shall be my seruaunt, but go ye vp in peace vnto your father.
Then stepte Juda vnto hym, and sayde: My lorde, let thy seruaunt speake one worde in thyne eares my lorde, be not displeased at thy seruaunt also, for thou art euē as Pharao. My lord axed his seruauntes, and sayde: Haue ye yet a father or brother? Then answered we:
We haue a father, which is olde, and a yonge lad begotten in his age, and his brother is dead, and he is left alone of his mother, and his father loueth hym.
Then saydest thou: Brynge hym D downe vnto me, & I wyll se hym. But we answered my lord: The lad can not come from his father, yf he shulde come from hym, he were but a dead man. Then saydest thou vnto thy seruauntes: * If Gen. 43. a youre yongest brother come not hither with you, ye shall se my face nomore.
Then wente we vp vnto thy seruaunt my father, and tolde hym my lordes wordes. Then sayde oure father: Go youre waye agayne, and bye vs a lytle foode. But we sayde: We can not go downe, excepte oure yongest brother be with vs, then wyll we go downe: for we darre not loke the man in the face, yf oure yongest brother be not with vs.
Then sayde thy seruaunt my father vn to vs: Ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes, one wente out fro me, and Gen. 37. f I sayde: * he is torne in peces. If ye take this fro me also, & any mysfortune Gen. 42. d happen hym, then shall ye brynge my gray heer with sorow downe vnto the graue.
If I now come home vnto my father, and the lad be not with vs (seynge his soule hangeth by the soule of this) then shall it come to passe, that yf he se not y lad there, he shal dye. So shall we thy seruauntes brynge the gray heer of thy seruaunt oure father with sorowe downe Gen. 43.b to the graue. * For I thy seruaunt became suertye for ye lad vnto my father, and sayde: yf I brynge hym not agayn, I wyll beare the blame all my lyfe lõge Therfore let thy seruaunt byde here in steade of the lad, to be my lordes bonde mã, & let the lad go vp with his brethrẽ.

For how can I go vp vnto my father, yf the lad be not with me? Then shulde I se the mysery that shulde happen vnto my father.

The.xlv.Chapter.

Joseph vttereth hymselfe to his brethren, and sendeth for his father

A Then coulde not Joseph re-frayne hym self before all thẽ that stode aboute him: & he commaũded euery mã to go of from him, & there stode no mã by hym, whan Joseph vttered hymself vnto his brethren. And he wepte loude, so that the Egipcians and Pharaos housholde harde it. And Act.7.b he sayde vnto his brethrẽ: * I am Joseph, is my father yet alyue? And his brethren coulde not answere hym, they were so abashed before his face. But he sayd: Come nye vnto me. And they came nye. And he sayde: I am Joseph youre Gen.37.e. brother: * whom ye solde in to Egipte.
And now vexe not youre selues, and thynke not that there is any wrath, be-Gen.50. c cause ye solde me hither. * For God sent me hyther before you, for youre lyues sake. For these are now two yeares, that ye derth hath bene in the lande, & there are yet fyue yeares behynde, wheryn there shalbe no plowynge, nor haruest.
B But God sent me hyther before you, that he myght let you remayne vpon earth, & to saue youre lyues by a greate delyueraunce. And now, it was not ye then yt sent me hyther, but God which hath made me a father vnto Pharao, & lorde ouer all his house, and a prynce in the whole lande of Egipte. Hayst you therfore, & go vp vnto my father, & saye vnto hym: Thy sonne Joseph sendeth ye this worde: God hath made my lord in all Egipte, come downe vnto me, tarye not, thou shalt dwel in the lande of Gosen, and be with me: thou and thy chyldren, and thy chylders chyldrẽ, thy smal and greate catell, and all yt thou hast.
There wyll I make prouysion for the (for there are yet fyue yeares of derth) that thou peryshe not with thyne house, & all that is thyne. Beholde, youre eyes, and the eyes of my brother Ben Jamin se, that I myne owne self speake vnto you by mouth. Shewe my father all my worshippe in Egypte, and all yt ye haue sene: haist you, and come downe hyther with my father. C
And he fell aboute his brother Ben Jamins neck, and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte vpon his neck also. And he kyssed all his brethren, and wepte vpon thẽ. And afterwarde talked his breth[illegible] with him. And this tydinges came in[illegible] Pharaos house: Josephs br[illegible] a[illegible] come, which pleased Pharao well, a[illegible] all his seruauntes.
And Pharao spake vnto Joseph: Saye vnto thy brethrẽ: Do thus, lade youre beastes, go youre waye, & whan ye come in to the lande of Canaan, take youre father and youre housholdes, and come vnto me, I wyll geue you of the goodes in the lande of Egipte, so that ye shall eate the fatt in the lãde. And he cõmaunded them, Do thus, Take you charettes out of the lande of Egipte for youre chyldrẽ and wyues, & brynge youre father, and come, & regarde not youre housholde stuff: for the goode of all the lande of Egipte shalbe youres.
The chyldren of Israel dyd so, & Jo- D seph gaue them charettes acordynge to Pharaos cõmaundement, & expenses by the waye, & gaue them all, vnto eue-ry one a chaunge of raymẽt, but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue thre hundreth syluer pens, and fyue chaunge of rayment.
As for his father, he sent hym te Asses laden with goodes out of Egipt, & ten Asses with corne, and bread, and vytayles for his father by ye waye. So he sent awaye his brethrẽ, and sayde vnto thẽ: Stryue not by the waye.
Thus they departed out of Egipte, E and came to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde hym, and sayde: Thy sonne Joseph is yet alyue, & is a lorde in all the lãde of Egypte. But his hert wauered, for he bleued thẽ not.
Thẽ tolde they hym all the wordes of Joseph, which he had sayde vnto them.
And whan he sawe the charettes yt Joseph had sent to fetch hym, his sprete re-uyued, & he sayde: I haue ynough, that my sonne Joseph is yet alyue I wyll go, and se hym, before I dye.

The.xlvi.Chapter.

Jacob cometh in to Egypte with all his people, Joseph receaueth hym.

A Israel * toke his iourney & all that he had. And whan he cam to Berseba, he offred of-frynges vnto the God of his father Isaac And god spake vnto hym in a vision by nyght. Jacob Jacob. He sayd: here am I. And he sayd I am the myghtye God of thy father, be not afrayed to go into Egipte, * for there wyll I make a great people of the I wyll go downe with the, & wyl bryng the vp also. And Joseph shall laye his hande vpon thyne eyes.
Then Jacob gat hym vp from Ber sa, and the chyldren of Israel caryed Jacob theyr father with theyr chyldren & theyr wyues vpō ẏ charettes ẏ Pharao had sent to cary hym. And they toke theyr catell, & substaūce which they had gottē in ẏ lande of Canaā, & so came in to Egipte: * Jacob & all his sede with hym, his chyldrē, & his chylders chyldrē with hym, his doughters, & the doughters of his chyldren, and all his sede.
B These are ẏ names of ẏ chyldren of Israel, which came into Egipte, Jacob & his sōnes. * The fyrst borne sonne of Jacob: Ruben. The chyldrē of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron and Charmi.
* The chyldrē of Simeō: Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachim, Sohar & Saul the sōne of the Cananitish womā. The chyl drē of Leui: Gerson, Cahath & Merari.
The chyldrē of Juda: Er, Onan, Sela, Phares & Serah. But Er & Onā dyed in ẏ lande of Canaan. The chyldren of Phares: Hesron & Hamul. * The chyldren of Isachar: Thola, Phua, Job, & Simron. The chyldrē of Sabulō: Se-red, Elon & Jahleel. These are the chyldren of Lea, which she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia & his doughter Di-na. These all together with sonnes and doughters make thre & thyrtie soules.
C The chyldrē of Gad: Sipheō, Haggi, Suni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi and Areli.
The chyldrē of Aser: Jemna, Jesua, Je sui, Bria & Sera theyr syster. The chyldren of Bria: Heber & Malchiel. These are the chyldrē of Silpa, * whō Laban gaue vnto Lea his doughter, & she bare vnto Jacob these sixtene soules.
The chyldrē of Rachel Jacobs wyfe: Joseph & BenJamin. And vnto Joseph in the lande of Egipte * wer b[orne] Manasses & Ephraim, whom [...] the doughter of Pothiphar [...] bare vnto hym. The chyld[rē of Ben Ja-] min: Bela, Becher, Asb[el] [...] Ehi, Ros, Mupim, Hupim, and Ard.
These are the chyldrē of Rachel, which were borne vnto Jacob, fortene soules all together.
The chyldren of Dan: Husym. The D chyldrē of Nephtali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, Sillem. These are the chyldrē of Bil-ha, whom Laban gaue vnto his dough ter Rachel, & she bare Jacob these seuen soules. * All the soules ẏ came with Deu. 10. d Jacob in to Egipte, which proceded out of his loynes (besyde the wyues of his chyldren) are altogether syxe & syx-tie soules. And Josephs chyldren which were borne vnto hym in Egipte, were two soules: so that all the soules of the house of Jacob which came in to Egip-te, were seuentye.
And he sent Juda before him vnto Joseph, to shew him the waye to Gosen, & they came in to the lāde of Gosen. Thē Joseph bended his charett fast, & went vp to mete Israell his father vnto Go sen. And whan he sawe hym, he fell about his nek, & wepte sore vpō his neck Then sayde Israel vnto Joseph: Now am I content to dye, for so moch as I haue sene thy face, ẏ thou art yet alyue.
Joseph sayde vnto his brethrē, & to E his fathers house: I wyll go vp, and tel Pharao, & saye vnto hym: My brethrē and my fathers house are come vnto me out of the lande of Canaan, and are he-pers of catell (for they are men ẏ deale with catell:) theyr small & greate catell, and all ẏ they haue, haue they brought with them. Now yf Pharao call you, and saye: what is youre occupaciō? thē ye shall saye: Thy seruauntes are mē ẏ haue deale with catell from oure youth vp hytherto, both we and oure fathers, that ye maye dwell in the lande of Gosen: for the Egypcians abhorre all he-pers of catel.

The.xlvii. Chapter

¶ Pharao geueth them the lōde of Go sen: the derth is greate in Egipte &c.

A Then came Joseph, and tolde Pharao & sayde: My father & my brethren, their small & greate catell, & all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan: and beholde, th[ey] [...]

And they sayd moreouer vnto Pharao: We are come to dwell wt you in ye lõde, for thy seruauntes haue no pasture for their catel, so sore doth ye derth oppresse the lãde of Canaã. Now therfor let thy seruaũtes dwell in the lande of Gosen.
B Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: Thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the: the lande of Egypte is open before the, let them dwell in the beste place of the lande, and se that they dwell euen in the lãde of Gosen. And yf thou knowest that there be men of actiuyte amonge them, make them rulers of my catell.
Joseph brought in Jacob his father also, and set hym before Pharao. And Jacob thanked Pharao. But Pharao axed Jacob, How olde art thou? Jacob Job.14.c. sayde: The tyme of my * pylgremage Psal.118.c. is an hundreth and thirtye yeares: lytle and euell is the tyme of my pylgremage & attayneth not vnto the tyme of my fa thers in their pylgremages. And Jacob thanked Pharao, & wete out from him.
C So Joseph prepared dwellynges for his father and his brethren, & gaue them a possession in the londe of Egyp te, euen in the best place of the lande, na mely, in the lande of Raemses, as Pha rao commaunded. And he made prouy syon for his father and his brethrẽ, and all his fathers house with breade, euen as yonge chyldren.
There was no bread in all the lõde, for the derth was very sore, so that the londe of Egipte & the lande of Canaan were fameshed by the reason of ye derth And Joseph brought together all the money that was founde in Egipte and Canaan, for the corne that they bought And he layed vp all the money in Pha raos house.
Now whã money fayled in the lãde of Egypte and Canaan, all the Egip cyans came vnto Joseph, & sayd: Geue vs breade. Why suffrest thou vs to dye before the, because we are without mo ney: Joseph sayde: Brynge hither youre D catell, so wyll J geue you for youre catell seyenge ye are without money. Then brought they their catell vnto Joseph.
And he gaue thẽ [illegible]ad for their horses, [illegible] oxen & asses. [illegible] he fed thẽ with [illegible]reare [illegible] and there is nothinge left more for oure Lorde, but only our body and oure lãde Wherfore suffrest thou both vs to dye, and oure lande? Take vs and oure lande for breade, that we and our lande maye be bonde vnto Pharao: geue vs sede, that we maye lyue & not dye, and that the lãde become not a wyldernesse.

So Joseph toke in all the lande of Egipte for Pharao: for the Egyptiãs solde euery man his lande, because the derth was so mightie vpõ them, and so the lõde became Pharaos, with the peo ple that wente out and in at his cities, from one syde of Egipte vnto the other excepte the prestes lõde, yt toke he not in.
For it was ordened of Pharao for the prestes, yt they shulde eate yt which was appoynted thẽ, which he gaue thẽ, ther fore they neded not to sell their londes.
Then sayd Joseph vnto the people: B Behold, J haue taken possession of you and youre lande this daye for Pharao.
Beholde, there haue ye sede, sowe the lond, and of the corne ye shall geue the fyfth parte vnto Pharao: foure partes shalbe youres, to sowe ye londe for youre sustenaunce, and for youre houses and chyldren.
They sayde: Let vs lyue, and fynde grace before the oure lorde, we wyll gladly be Pharaos seruaũtes. So Jo seph made them a lawe vnto this daye ouer the Egipcyans londe, to geue Pha rao the fifthe parte, excepte the prestes lõde, which was not bõde vnto Pharao.
So Israell dwelt in Egypte in the londe of Gosen, and had it in possession C and grew and multiplyed exceadyngly.
And Jacob lyued seuentene yeare in the lãde of Egipte, so yt his whole age was an hundreth and seuen & fortye yeares.
Now whan the tyme came that Is rael shuld dye, he called Joseph his sone and sayde vnto hym: Yf J haue founde grace in thy sighte, * then laye thyne Gen. honde vnder my thye, yt thou shalt shew mercy and faithfulnesse vpon me, and not burye me in Egipte, but J wyll lye by my fathers, and thou shalt carye me out of Egipte, and burye me in their buryall. He sayde: J wyll do as thou hast sayd. But he sayde: * Then sweare Gen. vnto me. And he sware vnto hym. Thẽ [illegible]ycke, & blesseth Josephs

A Fter this it was tolde Joseph: Beholde, thy father is syke. And he toke with hym his two sōnes Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it tolde Jacob: Beholde, thy sonne Joseph cōmeth vnto the. And Israell toke a corage vnto hym, & sat vp vpon the bed, and sayd vnto Joseph: The al[illegible].28.c myghtye God appeared vnto me * at Lus in the lande of Canaan, and blessed me, and sayd vnto me: Beholde, I wyll cause the to growe and increace & wyll make a multitude of people of the, and wyll geue this lande vnto thy sede after the for an euerlastynge possession. Therfore shall now thy two sonnes Manas[illegible].41.g ses and Ephraim (* which were borne vnto the in Egipte, before I came he-ther vnto the) be myne, lyke as Ruben, and Symeon. As for those thou begettest after them, they shalbe thyne owne.
But these shalbe named [illegible] the names of

B And whā I came out of Mesopota-of Canaā by ẏ way, whā there was yet but a feldes bred vnto Ephrath: and I buryed her in ẏ way toward Ephrath, which now is called Bethleem.

And Israel loked vpō Josephs son-nes, and sayd: What are these? Joseph answered: They are my sonnes, whiche God hath geuē me here. He sayd: bryng them hether to me, that I maye blesse them. (For Israels eyes were heuye for age, and he coulde not well se.) And he brought them vnto hym. So he kyssed them, & embraced them, & sayd vnto Joseph: Behold, I haue sene thy face, whiche I thought not: & lo, God hath caused me to se thy sede also. And Joseph toke them from his lappe, and they fell C downe to the grounde vpon theyr face.
Thē Joseph toke thē both, Ephraim in his ryght hande, towarde Israels lefte hāde, & Manasses in his lefte hāde towarde Israels ryght hāde, & brought them vnto hym. But Israel stretched out his ryghthande, & layed it vpon the heade of Ephraim the yongest, and his left hande vpō Manasses head, & dyd so [illegible].17.a wittyngly [illegible] his hādes, * for Manasses [illegible].11.d. was ẏ first borne. And ‡ he blessed Joseph, & sayd: The God before whō my fathers Abrahā, & Isaac haue walked: ẏ God ẏ hath fed me my lyfe lōge vnto this day: ẏ angell which hath delyuered me frō al euel, blesse these laddes, ẏ they maye be called after my name, & after ẏ name of my fathers Abrahā, & Isaac, that they maye growe & multiplie, vpō earth. But whan Joseph sawe ẏ his fa- D ther layed the ryght hāde vpon Ephraims heade, it displeased him, and he lift vp his fathers hāde, to remoue it frō Ephraims heade vnto ẏ heade of Manasses, & sayd vnto him: Not so my father this is the fyrstborne, laye thy right-hande vpon his heade. Neuertheles his father wolde not, and sayd: I knowe it wel, my sonne I knowe it well this shall be a people also, & shall be greate: but his yonger brother shall be greater then he, & his sede shal be full of people So he blessed thē the same daye & sayd: In ẏ shall Israel blesse, so that it shall be sayde: God set the as Ephraim and Manasses. * And so he set Ephraim a- Iere.31.b boue Manasses.
And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Be-holde, I dye, and God shalbe [illegible] you, & brynge you agayne in to ẏ lāde of your Joh.4.a fathers * I haue geuē the a pece of lōde, without thy brethren, which I gat with my swerde & my bowe out of the hande of the Amorites.

Israell: and this is it that their father spake vnto them, whan he blessed them euery one with a sundrye blessynge.
And he cōmaunded them, and sayde E vnto them: I shall be gathered vnto my people, * burye me vnto my fathers in Gen.23.b

his fete together vpō the bed, and dyed F and * was gathered vnto his people.
Thē fell Joseph vpon his fathers face, and wepte, and kyssed hym.

The.l.Chapter.

Joseph buryeth his father, chargeth his brethrē concernynge his bones, and dyeth in Egipte.

AND Joseph commaunded A his seruauntes the Phisici ās, to embawme his father And the Phisiciās embaw med Israell, tyll fourtye day es were ended (for so longe endured the dayes of embawminge) and the Egip cians bewayled hym seuentye dayes.
Now whan the mournynge dayes were ended, Joseph spake vnto Pha raos housholde, and sayde: Yf I haue founde fauour in your sight, thē speake vnto Pharao & saye: My father hath taken an ooth of me, and sayde: * Be Gen. holde, I dye, burye me in myne owne graue, whiche I dygged for my selfe in the lāde of Canaā, therfore wyl I now go vp, and burye my father, and come agayne. Pharao sayd: Go thy way vp, & burye thy father, accordynge as thou hast sworne vnto hym.
So Joseph wente vp, to burye his B father. And there wente with hym all Pharaos seruauntes that were the el ders of his courte, and all the elders of the londe of Egypte, and all Josephs housholde, and his brethren, and his fa thers housholde. Onely theyr chyldren, shepe, and oxen lefte they in the lande of Gosen, and toke theyr yourney vp with hym, vpon charettes and horses, and the company was exceadinge greate.

Now whan these came to ye playne of Atad that lyeth beyonde Jordane, they made there a very greate and bytter lamentacyō, & * he mourned for his father seuen dayes. And whā the people in the lande (the Cananytes) sawe the mournynge in the playne of Atad, they sayde: The Egipciās make there greate lamentacion. Therfore is the place called The lamentacion of the Egipciās, which lyeth beyonde Jordane.

And his chyldren dyd as he had * cōmaunded them, and ‡ caried hym to the lande of Canaan, and buried hym in ye dubble caue of the felde, that * Abraham bought with the felde for a possession to bury in, of Ephron the Hethite ouer agaynst Mamre. So Joseph toke his iourney agayne in to Egipte with his brethren, and with all those that wente vp with hym to burye his father, whā they had buryed hym.

But Josephs brethrē were afrayed, whan their father was dead, and sayde: Joseph might happly haue indignaciō at vs, and recompence vs all the euell ye we dyd vnto hym, * therfor let they say vnto hym: Thy father commaunded before his death, and sayde: Thus shal ye say vnto Joseph: O forgeue thy brethrē the offēce and their synne, that they dyd so euell vnto the. O forgeue now this trespace of vs ye seruaūtes of thy fathers God. But Joseph wepte, whan they spake so vnto hym.

And his brethren went & fell downe before hym, and sayd: Beholde, here are we thy seruauntes. Joseph sayde vnto them: Feare ye not, for I am vnder God. Ye thought euel ouer me, but God hath turned it vnto good, to do as it is come to passe this daye, for the sauynge of moch people. Therfore be not ye now afrayed, I wyll care for you and youre chyldren. And he comforted them, and spake louyngly vnto them.

Thus dwelt Joseph in Egipte & his fathers house, and lyued a hundreth D and ten yeare, and * sawe Ephraims Tob.14.B chyldren, vnto the thyrde generacyon: Job.42.c.
In lyke maner the chyldren of Machir ye Psa.127.B

And Joseph sayd vnto his brethren
* I dye, and God wyll vyset you, and Heb.11.B brynge you out of this lande, to ye lande that he sware vnto Abrahā, Isaac, and Jacob. Therfore toke he an ooth of the chyldren of Israel, and sayde: Whan God shal vyset you, * then cary Exo.13.D.

So Joseph dyed, whan he was an hūdreth and ten yeare olde, and they enbawmed hym, and layed hym in a chest in Egipte.

The ende of the first boke of Moses, called Genesis.

The end of the first booke

The secõde boke of Moses called Exodus.

What this boke contayneth.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The chyldren of Israell increase in Egipte. The kynge cõmaundeth to slay them and to drowne them.

These are the names of the chyldren of Israel, * that came with Ja-Gen.46.b cob in to Egipte: eue-ry one came in with his house, Ruben, Simeon, Leui, Juda, Isachar, Zabulon, Beniamin, Dan, Nepthali, Gad and Aser.
And of all the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob, there were seuẽtie.
As for Joseph he was i Egipte al rea-Psal.104.c dy. * Now whã Joseph was deed, & al Actu.7.c. his brethrẽ, & all they y lyued at y tyme the chyldrẽ of Israell grewe, and increased, and multiplied, and became excea-dynge myghtie, so that the lande was full of them.
B Then came there a new kynge ouer Egipte, whiche knewe nothinge of Joseph, & sayde vnto his people: Beholde, the people of the chyldren of Israel are many and mightier then we: Up, let vs deale wysely with thẽ, that there be not so many of thẽ. For yf there shulde ryse vp any warre agaynst vs, they might ioyne thẽ selues also vnto oure enemies and ouercome vs, and so get them out of the lande.
And he set worke masters ouer thẽ, to kepe them vnder with burthẽs. (For they buylded the cities Phiton and Raemses, for treasuries vnto Pharao.) But the more they vexed them, the more they multiplied and grewe.
C Therfore had they indignation at the chyldren of Israell, and the Egipcians compelled the chyldren of Israell without mercy to do seruice, and made their lyues bytter vnto them with greuous laboure in claye and brycke, and with all maner of bondage in the felde, and with all maner of laboure, whiche they layed vpon them without mercy.
And the kynge of Egipte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebrue wemẽ, (Of the which one was called Siphra, and the other Pua:) When ye helpe the wemen of the Hebrues, and se vpon the stole, y it is a sonne, then slaye him: but yf it be a doughter let her lyue. Neuer-theles the mydwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egipte cõmaũded them, but let the chyldren lyue.
Thẽ the kynge of Egipte called the mydwyues, and sayde vnto thẽ: Wherfore do ye this, that ye let the chyldren lyue? The mydwyues answered Pharao: The wemen of the Hebrues are not as the wemen of Egipte, for they are sturdy wemen: or euer the mydwy-ues come at them, they are delyuered.
Therfore God dealt well with the mydwyues. And the people multiplied, and became exceadynge mightie. And for so muche as the mydwyues feared God, * he made thẽ houses. Thẽ Pharao cõmaunded all his people and sayde: All the sonnes that are borne, cast in to the water, but let all y doughters lyue.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ The byrth of Moses, which is layed vpon the water. Pharaos doughter taketh him & bryngeth him vp. He slayeth one of the Egipcyans, and flyeth his waye in to Madian, where he marieth.
The chyldren of Israell crye vnto the LORDE.

And there wente forth a man * of the house of Le-ui, & toke a doughter of Leui. ‡ And the wyfe conceaued and bare a sonne.
* And whã she sawe that it was a proper chylde, she hyd hym thre monethes. And whan she coude hyde hym no longer, she toke an Arke of redes, & dawbed it ouer with slyme and pitche, and layed the chylde therin, & set it amonge the redes by the waters brinke. But his sister stode a fare of, to wete what wolde come of hym.
And Pharaos doughter came down * to wash herselfe in the water: and hir maydẽs walked by the water syde: and whan she sawe the Arke amonge the re-des, she sent one of hir maydens, and caused it to be fet. And whan she o[illegible] ned it, she sawe the chylde: and beh[illegible] the babe wepte. Then had she pyt[illegible] on it, and sayde: It is one of the He-brues children.
Then sayde his syster vnto Pha-raos doughter: Shall I go, and cal the a nurse of the Hebrues wemen, to nurse the, the chylde? Pharaos doughter sayd unto her: Go thy waye. The mayde wente, & called the childes mother. The sayde Pharaos doughter unto her: Take this chylde, and nurse it for me, I wyll geve the thy rewarde. The woman toke the chylde, and nursed it.

And whan the chylde was growen, she brought it unto Pharaos doughter and it became hir sonne, and she called hym Moses. For she sayde: I toke hym out of the water.

Upon a tyme whan Moses was great, he wente forth unto his brethren, and loked upon their burthens, and sawe, that an Egipcian smote one of his brethren the Hebrues. And he loked rounde aboute him: & whan he sawe that there was no man, he slewe the Egipcyan, and buryed hym in the sonde.

The nexte daye he wente forth also and sawe two men of the Hebrues stryvynge together, & sayde to the ungodly: Wherfore smytest thou thy neghboure? But he sayde: * Who made the a ruler or iudge over us? Wilt thou slaye me also, as thou slewest y^e Egypcian? Then was Moses afrayed, and sayde: Howe is this knowen? And Pharao herde of it, and sought for Moses, to slaye hym. But Moses fled from Pharao, & kepte hym in the lande of Madian, & sat him downe by a welles syde.

The prest of Madiã had seven doughters, whiche came to drawe water, and fylled y^e troughes, to geve their fathers shepe to drynke. Then came the shepherdes, and drove them awaye. But Moses gat him up, and helped thẽ, & gave their shepe to drynke. And whan they came to Reguell their father, he sayde: How came ye so soone to daye? They sayde: A man of Egypte delyvered us fro the shepherdes, and drew unto us, and gave the shepe to drynke. He sayde unto his doughters: Where is he? Wherfore let ye the man go, that ye called hym not to eate with us?

And Moses was content to dwell with the man. * And he gave Moses his doughter Zipora, which bare him a sonne, and he * called him Gerson, for he sayde: I am become a straunger in a straunge lande. And she bare hym yet a sonne, whome he called Elieser, & sayde: The God of my father is my helper, & hath delyvered me from Pharaos hande.

But after this in processe of tyme, the kynge of Egypte dyed. And the chyldren of Israel sighed over their labour, & cryed. And their crye over their laboure came before God. * And God herde their cõplaynte, & remẽbred his covenaunt * with Abrahã, Isaac, and Iacob. And God loked upon the chyldren of Israell, and God knew it. Jud. 2. c. Gen. 15. c.

The.iii. Chapter.

God appeareth unto Moses in the bush, and sendeth hym unto the kynge and the people.

Moses kepte the shepe * of Iethro his father in lawe prest of Madiã, and drove the shepe on the backsyde of the wyldernesse, & came to the mountayns of God, Horeb * And the angell of the LORDE appeared unto him in a flamme of fyre out of the bush. And he sawe that the bushe brent with fyre, and yet was not consumed, and sayde: I wyll go hence, and se this greate sight, why the bush is not brent. A Exo. 18. a. 4. Es. 14. a Actu. 7. d.

Whan the LORDE sawe, that he wente his waye to se, God called unto hym out of the bush, and sayde: Moses Moses. He answered: Here am I. He sayd, * Come not hither, put thy shues of thy fete, for the place wheron thou stondest, is an holy grounde. And he sayd moreover * I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Iacob. And Moses covered his face, for he was afrayed to loke upon God. Joh. 5. d. Mat. 22. d Mar. 12. c. Luce. 20. e.

And the Lord sayde: I have sene the trouble of my people in Egypte * and have herde their crye over those that oppresse thẽ. I knowe theyr sorowe, & am come downe to delyver them from the power of the Egypcyans, and to carye them out of that londe, into a good and wyde londe, even in to a londe that floweth with mylke and hony: namely, unto the place of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Hevites, and Iebusites. For so much now as the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel is come before me, & I have sene their oppressiõ wherwith the Egypcians oppresse thẽ: * Go now thy waye therfore, I wyll sende the unto Pharao, that thou mayest brynge my people the children of Israel out of Egypte. Moses sayde unto God: * Who am I, that I shulde go unto Pharao, and brynge the chyldrẽ of Israell out of Egypte. B Exo. 12. c. Eccl. 11. c. Actu. 7. [illegible] Jud. 6. c.

C He sayd: I wyll be with þ, and this shalbe thy token, that I haue sent the. Whā thou hast brought my people out of Egipte, ye shall serue God vpō this mountayne. Moses sayd vnto God: Beholde, whan I come to the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: The God of youre fathers hath sent me vnto you, and they saye vnto me: What is his name? what shall I saye vnto them? God sayd vnto Moses: * I wyl be what I wylbe. And he sayd: Thus shalte thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I wyl be, hath sent me vnto you. And God sayd moreouer vnto Moses: Thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: * The LORDE God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God Jacob hath sent me vnto you, this is my name for euer, & my memoriall frō chylde to chyldes chylde.

Heb.11.c

D Go thy waye therfore, and gather the elders of Israel together, and saye vnto them: The LORDE God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto me, and sayde: I haue vysited you, and sene what is done vnto you in Egipte, and haue sayde: I wyll brynge you out of þ trouble of Egipte, into the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherisites, Heuites and Jebusites: into a lande that floweth with mylke and hony. And yf they heare thy voyce, then shalt thou and the elders of Israel go in to the kynge of Egipte, & saye vnto hym: The LORDE God of the Hebrues hath called vs. * Let vs go now therfore thre dayes iourney in þ wyldernesse, that we maye do sacrifice vnto þ LORDE our God.

Exo.9.f.

E But I knowe, that the kynge of Egipte wyll not let you go, but thorow a myghtye hande. For I wyll stretch out myn hande, and smyte Egipte with all maner of wonders whiche I wyll do therin: after that shall he let you go. * And I wyll geue this people fauoure in the syghte of the Egipcians: so that whan ye go forth, ye shall not go forth emptye: but euery wyfe shall borowe of her neghbouresse, & of her þ sogeourneth in her house, Jewels of syluer, & golde, & raymēt: those shall ye put vpō youre sones & doughters, & spoyle þ Egipcians.

Exo.11.a and 12.e

C Moses is loth to go & excuseth hym selfe. But þ LORD encourageth hym maketh hym stronge, & comforteth hym Moses taketh leue of his father in law, to go vnto his people.

Moses answered, and sayde: A Beholde, they shall not beleue me, nor heare my voyce, but shall saye: The LORDE hath not appeared vnto the. The LORDE sayd vnto hym: What is that, þ þ hast in thine hande? He sayd a staffe. He sayd: Cast it from the vpon the grounde. And he cast it from hym: thē was it turned to a serpent. And Moses fled frō it. But the LORDE sayd vnto hym: Stretch forth thyne hande, & take it by the tayle. Then stretched he forth his hande, and toke it, and it became a staffe agayne in his hande. Therfore shal they beleue that the LORDE God of theyr fathers the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the LORD sayd furthermore B vnto hym: Thrust thyne hande into thy bosome. And he thrust it into his bosom & toke it out, beholde, then was it leper lyke snowe. And he sayd: put it in to thy bosome agayn. And he put it agayn into his bosōe, & toke it out: behold, thē was it turned again as his flesh. Yf they wyl not beleue þ, nor hear þ voyce of þ fyrst token, yet shall they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But yf they wyll not beleue these two tokens nor heare thy voyce, then take of the water of þ ryuer and poure it vpon the drye londe: so that the same water that thou hast takē out of the ryuer, be turned vnto bloude vpon the drye londe.

But Moses sayd vnto the LORD: C * Oh my LORDE, I am a man that is not eloquent, frō yesterdaye, & yerpesterdaye, and sence the tyme þ thou hast spoken vnto thy seruaunt: for I haue a slowe speache, and a slowe tonge. The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Who hath made the mouth of man? Or who hath made the domme, or the deaf, or þ seyng or the blynde? Haue not I the LORD done it? Go now thy waye therfore, I wyll be with thy mouth, and teache the what thou shalt saye.

But Moses sayd: My LORDE, sende whom thou wylt sende. Thē was the LORDE very angrye at Moses, and sayd: Do not I knowe then, þ thy brother Aaron the Leuite is well spoken? And beholde, * he shall go forth to mete the: & whā he seyth þ, he shal reioyce frō his hert. Thou shalt speake vnto hym, and put the wordes in his mouth: and I wyll be with thy mouth and his, and teach you what ye shall doo, & he shall speake vnto the people for the. He shall be thy mouth, & thou shalt be his God.

And take in thine hande this staf, wher with thou shalt do tokens.
D Moses wente, & came agayne vnto Iethro his father in lawe, and sayd vnto hym: Let me go (I praye the) that I maye turne agayne vnto my brethren, which are in Egipte, & se whether they be yet alyue. Iethro sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye in peace. The LORDE sayd also vnto hym in Madiã: Go thy waye, turne agayne in to Egipte, for the men are dead, that sought after thy lyfe. So Moses toke his wyfe, and his sonnes, and caried them vpon an Asse, & wente agayne into the lande of Egipte, & toke the staf of God in his hande. And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: When thou commest agayne, in to Egipte se ẏ thou do all ẏ wõders (before Pharao) which 7.a I haue put in thy hande. * But I wyll harden his hart, that he shall not let the people go. And thou shalt say vnto Pharao: Thus sayeth ẏ LORDE: Israel is my firstborne sonne, & I saye vnto ẏ: Let my sõne go, that he maye serue me: 12.e Yf thou wilt not let hym go, * thẽ wyl I slaye thy firstborne sonne.
E And as he was by the waye in the Inne, the LORDE met hym, & wolde haue slayne hym. Then toke Sipora 5.a * a stone, & circumcised ẏ foreskynne of hir sonne, & touched his fete, & sayde: A bloudy brydegrome art thou vnto me.
Thẽ let he him go. But she sayd: A blou dy brydegrome, because of ẏ circũcisiõ.
And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: Go mete Moses in the wyldernesse.
And he wente, & met hym on ẏ mount of God, & kyssed hym. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the LORDE, which had sent hym: and all the tokens ẏ he had charged hym w̃ all. And they wente, & gathered all the elders of the chyldrẽ of Israel. And Aaron tolde all ẏ wordes, that the LORD had spokẽ vn to Moses: & dyd the tokens before the people, and the people beleued And whã they herde that the LORDE vysited the chyldren of Israell, and loked vpon their trouble, they bowed them selues, and worshipped.

The.v.Chapter.

¶ Moses & Aaron go vnto the kynge, which oppresseth the people the more.

A Fterwarde wente Moses & A Aaron, & spake vnto Pharao: Thus sayeth ẏ LORD ẏ God of Israel: let my people go, that they maye kepe holy daye vnto me in the wildernesse.
Pharao answered: * What felowe is Iob.21.b ẏ LORD, that I must heare his voyce, and let Israell go? I knowe not the LORDE, nether wyl I let Israel go.
They sayde: The God of the He-brues hath called vs. Let vs go now therfore thre dayes iourney in the wyl-dernesse, & do sacrifice vnto ẏ LORD our God, that there happẽ not vnto vs pestilẽce or swearde. Thẽ sayd ẏ kynge of Egipte vnto thẽ: Why make ye the people (thou Moses & Aaron) to leaue their worke? Get you hence to your laboure. Pharao sayd moreouer: Behold, ẏ people are to many in the lande, & yet wil ye byd thẽ ceasse frõ their laboure.
The same daye therfore dyd Pha- B rao commaunde the workmasters of ẏ people, and their officers, and sayde: Ye shal not gather and geue the people any more strawe, to burne bryck, as yesterdaye and yeryesterdaye. Let them go, & gather them strawe them selues. And ẏ nombre of the brycke which they made yesterdaye & yeryesterdaye, shall ye laye vpon them neuertheles, & mynysh no-thynge therof: for they are ydle. Therfore crye they and saye: We wyll go, & do sacrifice vnto oure God. Let ẏ men be kepte downe with laboure, that they maye haue to do, and not to turne them selue to false wordes.
Thẽ wente the workmasters of the people & their officers out, & spake vnto the people: Thus sayeth Pharao: There shall no strawe be geuen you, go youre waye youre selues, and yet you strawe, where ye can fynde it. But of youre laboure there shal nothynge be my nished. Then were the people scatred in all the lãde of Egipte, to gather stubble, that they myght haue strawe.
And the workmasters hastied thẽ C forwarde, & sayde: Fulfill your dayes worke, lyke as whan ye had strawe. And the officers of the chyldren of Israell, whome Pharaos workmasters had set ouer them, were beaten, and it was sayde vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfylled youre appoynted dayes worke to daye and yesterdaye, lyke as in tymes past?

Than wente the officers of the chyldren of Israel, & cōplayned vnto Pharao, Wherfore wilt thou deale thus w thy seruauntes? Thy seruauntes haue no strawe geuē thē, & yet must we make the brycke that are apoynted vs. And be holde, thy seruauntes are beaten, & thy people are euel intreated. Pharao sayde: Ye are ydle, ydle are ye, therfore saye ye: we wyll go, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE. Go now your waye therfore, and worke: there shall no strawe be geuen you, but the nombre of brycke shall ye delyuer.

D Thē sawe the officers of y chyldren of Israel, that it was not amended, for it was sayde: ye shall mynysh nothynge of the dayesworke of the brycke. And whan Moses & Aaron wente frō Pha rao, they came forth to mete them, and sayde vnto them: The LORDE loke vpon you, & iudge it, for ye haue made the sauoure of vs to stynke before Pha rao and his seruauntes, and haue geuē thē a swearde in their hādes, to slaye vs.

But Moses came agayne vnto the LORDE, and sayde: LORDE wher fore dealest thou so euell with this people? Wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence the tyme y I wente in vnto Pha rao, to speake vnto hym in thy name, he hath deale euell with this people, & thou hast not delyuered thy people. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Now shalt thou se, what I wyl do vnto Pha

The. vi. Chapter.

¶ God geueth Moses more instrucciō and sendeth hym vnto the people. The trybes are nombred.

A AND God spake vnto Moses, & sayd vnto hym: I am the LORDE, & I appeared vnto Abrahā, Isaac & Iacob, an allmyghtie God:
Gen. 32. e but * my name, LORDE, haue I not shewed vnto them: My couenaunt also Gen. 17. a haue I made with them, * that I wyll geue thē the londe of Canaan, y londe of their pilgremage, wherin they haue bene straūgers. Morouer I haue herde the complaynte of the chyldren of Israel, whom the Egipcians oppresse w laboure, and haue remembred my couenaunt.

Therfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I am the LORDE, and wyll brynge you out from youre burthens in Egipte, and wyll rydde you from youre laboure, and wyll delyuer you thorow a stretchedout arme & greate iudgemētes, and wyl receaue you for my people, and wyll be your God: so that ye shall knowe, that I the LORDE am youre God, which brynge you out from y bur then of Egipte, and wyll brynge you in to the lande, ouer the which I haue lift vp my hande, to geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Iacob, the same wyl I geue vnto you for a possessiō. I y LORDE.

Moses tolde this vnto the chyldren B of Israel. But they herkened not vnto hym, for very anguysh of sprete, and for sore laboure. Then spake the LORD vnto Moses, and sayde: Go thy waye & speake vnto Pharao the kynge of E-gipte, that he let the chyldren of Israell go out of his lande. But Moses spake before the LORDE, and sayde: Be-holde, the chyldren of Isrell herken not vnto me, how shulde Pharao thē heare me: * And I am also of vncircūcised Exo. 4. lyppes. Exo. 6.

So the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron, & gaue thē a commaundemēt vnto y chyldrē of Israel, & vnto Pharao y kynge of Egipt, y they shulde brynge y chyldrē of Israel out of Egipt.

* These are the heades of y house Gen. of theyr fathers. The chyldrē of Rubē Num. the first sonne of Israel, are these: Ha- 1. par.

are the generacions of Ruben.

The chyldren of Simeon are these:
Iemuell Iamyn, Ohad, Iachin, So-phar, and Saul the sonne of the canaani tish woman: These are the generaciōs of Symeon.

* These are the names of the chyl- Num. drē of Leui in their generaciōs: Gersō, Kahath and Merari: Leui was an hun dreth and seuen and thyrtie yeare olde.
The chyldren of Gerson are these: Li-bni and Semei in their generacions.
* The chyldrē of Kahath are these: Am- 1. par. ram, Iezear, Hebrō, Usiel. Kahath was an hundreth & thre & thirtie yeare olde.
The chyldren of Merari are these Ma heli & Musi. These are the generaciōs of Leui in their kynreds.

* And Amrā toke his vncles dough Exo.

Aaron and Moses. Amram was an. C.
& vii. & thirtie yeare olde. The Chyldrē of Iezear are these: Korah, Nepheg, Si chri. The chyldren of Usiel are these:

Misaell, Elzaphan, Sithry.
Aaron toke Elizaba the doughter of Amminadab Nahassons sister to wyfe, which bare hym Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar, Ithamar.
The chyldren of Korah are these:
D Assir, Elcana, & Abiasaph. These are the generacyōs of the Korahites. Eleasar Aarōs sonne toke one of the dough ters of Putiel to wyfe, which bare him Phineas. These are the heades among ẏ fathers of ẏ generacyōs of ẏ Leuites.
This is that Aaron and Moses, vn to whom the LORDE sayde: Brynge the chyldren of Israell out of the lande of Egipte with their armies. It is they (namely Moses and Aaron) that spake vnto Pharao ẏ kynge of Egypte, that they might brynge the childrē of Israel out of Egypte. The same daye spake the LORDE vnto Moses in the lāde of Egypte, and sayd: I am the LORD speake thou vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte, all that I saye vnto the. And he answered before the LORDE: * Be-

The.vii. Chapter.

Moses and Aaron go vnto the kyng and shewe tokens before hym: but the kynge wareth hardherted.

A The LORDE sayde vnto Mo ses: Beholde, I haue made the a God ouer Pharao, & Aarō thy brother shalbe thy prophet. Thou shalt speake al ẏ I cōmaūde ẏ: but Aarō thy brother shall speake vnto Pharao, ẏ he may let the childrē of Israel go out of his lāde.
Exo.4.d Neuertheles * I wyll harde Pharaos herte, that I maye multiplye my tokēs and wonders in the lande of Egypte.
And Pharao shall not heare you, that I maye shewe my hāde in Egypte, and brynge myne armyes, euen my people the children of Israell out of the lande of Egypte, by greate iudgementes. And the Egypcians shall knowe, that I am the LORDE, whan I shall stretch out my hande vpon Egypte, and bryng the chyldrē of Israell out from among thē.
B Moses & Aaron dyd as the LOR-DE cōmaunded them, and Moses was foure score yeare olde, and Aaron thre & foure score yeare olde, whā they spake vnto Pharao. And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses and Aaron: Whan Pharao sayeth vnto you: Shew youre won ders, then shalt thou saye vnto Aaron:

Take thy staffe and cast it before Pharao, and it shall come to a serpent.
Then wente Moses and Aaron in vnto Pharao, and dyd as the LORD commaunded them. And Aaron cast his staff before Pharao and before his seruauntes, and * it turned to a serpent. Exo.4.a Then Pharao called for the wyse men and sorcerers. And the sorcerers of Egypte also dyd lykewyse with their sor ceries, and euery one cast his staffe befor hym, & they turned vnto serpentes. But Aarons staff deuoured their staues. So Pharaos hert was herdened, & he her-kened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde.
And the LORDE sayd vnto Mo- C ses: The hert of Pharao is hardened he refuseth to let the people go. Get ẏ vnto Pharao in the mornynge, beholde, he shall come vnto the water, mete thou hym vpon the waters brynke, and take thy staffe which turned to a serpent, in thyne hande, and saye vnto hym: The LORDE God of ẏ Hebrues hath sent me vnto the, & sendeth the worde * Let Exod.8.a my people go, that they maye serue me in the wyldernesse: but hitherto thou woldest not heare.
Therfore thus sayeth the LORD Hereby shalt thou knowe, that I am ẏ LORDE. Beholde, with the staffe that I haue in my hande, wyll I smyte the water which is in the ryuer, and it shall be turned in to bloud: so that the fishes in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shal stynke, and it shall greue the Egypciās to drynke of the water of the ryuer.
And the LORD spake vnto Mo- D ses, Saye vnto Aaron: Take thy staffe and stretche out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer their ryuers, & brokes, and pondes, and ouer all water poles, ẏ they maye be turned to bloude, and that there maye be bloude in all the lande of Egipte, both in the vessels of wodd and stone.
* Moses & Aaron dyd as the Lord psal.77.d cōmaunded them, and lift vp the staffe, and smote the water that was in the ry uer, before Pharao and his seruauntes and all the water in the ryuer was turned into bloude, and the fyshe in the ryuer dyed, and the ryuer stanke, so that the Egipcians coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer, & there was bloude in all ẏ lāde of Egypte. And ẏ sorcerers also of Egypt dyd lykewyse with their sorceries. But Pharao [illegible] hardened, and he herkened not vnto thē Exo.4.d * lyke as the LORDE had sayde. And and 7.a Pharao turned hym selfe, and wente home, and set not his herte theron. All the Egypcyans dygged rounde aboute the ryuer, for water to drynke: for they coude not drynk of the water out of the ryuer. And this endured seuē dayes lōge that the LORDE smote the ryuer.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ After many tokens Pharao graunteth to let the people go: but assone as ŷ plage ceaseth, he is as vngodly as afor.

A THe LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Go thy waye to Pharao, and speake vnto him: Thus saieth ŷ LOR Exo.7.f DE: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me: Yf thou wylt not let them go, behold I wyll smyte all the borders of the londe with frogges, so that the ryuer shal scraule with frog ges: these shall clymme vp, and come in to thyne house, in to thy chamber, wher thou slepest, vpon thy bed, and in to the houses of thy seruauntes, amonge thy people, in to thyne ouens, and vpon thy dowe: and the frogges shall come vp vpon the, and vpon thy people, & vpon all thy seruauntes.
B * And the LORDE spake vnto psal.77.c. Moses: Say vnto Aarō: Stretch forth and.104.d thyne hande with thy staffe ouer ŷ strea mes, and ryuers, & pondes, and let frog ges come vpō the lande of Egypt. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the wa ters in Egypte, and there came vp frog ges, so that the lande of Egypte was couered. The sorcers also dyd likewyse with their sorceryes, & caused frogges to come vpon the londe of Egypte. The called Pharao for Moses and Aaron, 3.Re.13.b and sayd: * Praye the LORD for me, Exo.9.f that he maye take awaye the frogges and.10.e fro me and fro my people, & I wyll let Acto.8.c the people go, that they maye do sacri fice vnto the LORDE.
C Moses sayd: Haue thou the honoure before me, & appoynte me, whan I shall pray for the, for thy seruaūtes, & for thy people: ŷ the frogges may be dryuen a way frō the & frō thy house, & remayne only in ŷ ryuer. He sayd: to morow. He sayd: Euen as ŷ hast sayd, that ŷ mayst knowe, that there is none lyke vnto the LORD our God: And ŷ frogges shall be taken from the, and from thy house, from thy seruauntes, and from thy peo ple, and remayne onely in the ryuer.

So Moses and Aaron wente from Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the LORDE for the appoyntemēt ouer the frogges, whiche he had promysed vnto Pharao. And the LORD dyd as Mo ses sayde. And the frogges dyed in the houses, in the courtes, and vpō the felde and they gathered them together, here an heape, and there an heape, and the lande stanke of them. But whan Pha rao sawe that he had gotten breth, his herte was hardened, and he herkened not vnto thē, euē as the Lorde had sayd.
And the LORDE spake vnto Mo D ses: Saye vnto Aaron: Stretch out thy staff, and smyte the dust vpon the earth, that there may be lyce in the whole lōde of Egypte. They dyd so. And Aaron stretched out his hande with his staffe, and smote the dust vpon the earth, and there were lyce vpon men and vpon ca tell: Al the dust of the londe was turned vnto lyce in all the lande of Egypte.
The sorcerors also assayde lykewyse with their sorceryes that they myghte bringe forth lyce, but they coude not.
And the lyce were vpon men and catell.
Then sayd the sorcerers vnto Pharao It is the fynger of God. But Pharaos harte was hardened, & he herkned, not vnto thē * euē as the Lorde had sayde. Exo.
And the LORDE sayde vnto Mo E ses: Get the vp tomorow by tymes, and stonde before Pharao: beholde he wyll go vnto the water, and speake thou vn to hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: let
my people go, that they maye serue me: yf not, Beholde, I wyll cause cruel wor mes (or flyes) to come vpon the, thy ser uauntes, thy people, and thy house, so that all the Egypcians houses, and the felde, and what theron is shalbe full of cruell wormes: and the same daye wyll I separate the londe of * Gosen, wher Gen. in my people are, so ŷ no cruell worme shalbe there, that ŷ mayest knowe ŷ I am ŷ LORD in the myddest of ŷ earth And I wyll set a delyueraūce betwene my people, and thyne. Tomorow shall this token come to passe.
And the LORDE dyd so. And ther came perlous cruell wormes in to Pha raos house, in to his seruauntes houses and vpon all the londe of Egypte: & the londe was marred wt noysom wormes.
Then called Pharao for Moses F & Aarō, and sayd: Go your waye, & do sacrifice vnto your God in ŷ lōde. Mo ses sayd: It is not mete, ŷ we shuld so do so shulde we offer the abhomynaciō of the Egipciās vnto the LORDE our God. Beholde, yf we shulde offer yͤ ab-hominacion of the Egipcians before theyr eyes, shulde they not stone vs?

Thre dayes iourney wyll we go in the wyldernes, and do sacrifice vnto the LORDE oure God *like as he hath sayde vnto vs.
Pharao sayde: I wyll let you go, yͭ ye maye do sacrifice vnto the LORD your God in the wyldernes (onely that ye go no farther) & praye for me. Moses sayde: Beholde, whan I am come forth from the, I wyll praye vnto the LOR-DE, that the cruell wormes maye be taken from Pharao, & from his seruauntes, and from his people, eue͂ tomorow: onely disceaue me nomore, yͭ thou wol-dest not let the people go to do sacrifice vnto the LORD.
And Moses wēte out frō Pharao, & prayed vnto the LORDE. And the LORDE dyd as Moses sayde, & to-ke awaye the cruell wormes from Pharao, from his seruauntes, and from his people, so that there remayned not one.
But Pharao hardened his hert euen then also, and let not the people go.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ There cōmeth a death amonge all yͤ catell: then commeth the sores, blaynes, and the hayle.

A THe LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Go in to Pharao, & speake vnto him: Thus saieth yͤ LOR-DE God of the Hebrues: let my people go, yͭ they maye serue me. Yf thou wilt not, but holde them longer, be-holde, yͤ hande of the LORDE shalbe vpon thy catell in the felde, vpō horses, vpon asses, vpon camels, vpon oxen, vpon shepe wt a very sore pestilence. And the LORDE shal make a dyuisiō be-twene the catell of the Israelites, & the Egipcians, so that there shall nothinge dye of all that the chyldren of Israell haue. And the LORDE appoynted a tyme, and sayde: Tomorow shall the LORDE do this vpon earth.
B And the LORDE dyd yͤ same on the morow And there dyed of all maner of catell of the Egipciās: but of the ca-tell of yͤ childre of Israel there dyed not one And Pharao sent thither, & behold, there was not one of the catel of Israel dead. But Pharaos hert was hardened so yͭ he let not yͤ people go. Thē sayd yͤ LORDE vnto Moses & Aaron: Take youre handes full of asshes out of yͤ fornace, & let Moses sprinkle it toward heauen before Pharao, yͭ it maye be dust in all the lande of Egipte, and that there maye be sores & blaynes vpon men and vpon catell in all the lande of Egipte.
And they toke asshes out of the fornace, & stode before Pharao, & Moses sprenkled it towarde heauē. Thē were there sores & blaynes vpon men & vpō catell, so that the sorcerers myght not C stonde before Moses by reason of yͤ sores. For there were sores vpon the sorcerers as well as vpō all the Egipciās.
But the LORDE hardened Pharaos hert, so that he herkened not vnto thē, *euen as the LORDE had sayd vnto Exo.4.d Moses.
Then sayd the LORDE vnto Moses: Get the vp tomorow by tymes, and stonde before Pharao, and speake vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of the Hebrues: *let my people go, that Exo.8.a they maye serue me, els wyll I at this tyme sēde al my plages in to thyne hert, & vpon thy seruauntes & vpon thy people: that thou mayest knowe, yͭ there is none like me in all londes. For I wyll now stretch out my hande, & smyte the and thy people wt pestilēce, so that thou shalt be roted out from the earth. Yet Some haue I ☞ stered the vp for this cause, reade: eue͂ to shew my power vpon the, & that I haue hol my name might be declared in al lōdes. den yͤ vp Thou holdest my people yet, & wilt D not let them go, beholde, to morow a-boute this tyme wyl I cause a myghtie greate hayle to rayne, soch as hath not bene in the londe of Egipte, sence the tyme yͭ it was groūded, hither to. And now sende thou, & saue thy catell, & al that thou hast in the felde: for all men & catell that shalbe founde in the felde, & not brought in to the houses, yf yͤ hayle fall vpon thē, they shall dye. Now who so feared the worde of the LORDE amonge Pharaos seruauntes, caused his seruauntes, & catell to flye in to the houses: but loke whose hertes regarded not the worde of the LORD, left there seruauntes and catell in the felde.
Then sayd the LORDE vnto Mo- E ses: Stretch out thy hande towarde heauen, that it maye hayle vpon all yͤ lande of Egipte, vpon men, vpon catell, and vpon all herbes of the felde in the lan-de of Egipte. *So Moses stretched Psa.77.e out his staf toward heauē, & yͤ LORD & 104.e caused it to thonder, and hayle, so that the fyre ranne alonge vpon the earth.

Thus the LORDE hayled, & rayned vpon the londe of Egipte, so þ the hayle and fyre wente so horrblye together, as neuer was in al the londe of Egipte, sence the tyme that there were people therin. And the hayle smote þ hole lande F of Egipte, all that was vpon the felde, both men and catell, & smote all the her-bes vpon the felde, and brake all þ trees vpon the felde, saue onely in the lande of Gosen, where the chyldren of Israel were, ther it hayled not. Then sent Pharao and called for Moses and Aaron, & sayd vnto thē: *Now haue I synned, þ Exo.8,b and.10.c LORDE is ryghteous, but I and my people are vngodly. Yet praye ye vnto þ LORDE that the thonder, and hayle of God may cease, thē will I let you go, that ye shall tary here no longer. Moses sayd vnto hym: Whan I am come out of the cyte, I wyll stretch out myne han-des vnto the LORDE, so shall þ thonder cease, and ther shalbe nomore hayle: that thou mayest knowe, that the earth is the LORDES. But I knowe that both thou, and thy seruauntes feare not G yet the LORDE God. Thus the flaxe and the barlye were smytten: for þ bar-lye was shot vp, and the flaxe was boul-led: but the wheat and the rye were not smytten, for they were late sowen.
So Moses went from Pharao out of the cyte, and stretched out his hādes vnto the LORDE. And the thonder & the hayle ceased, and the rayne dropped not vpon the earth. But whan Pharao sawe that the rayne and thōder & hayle ceased, he synned agayne, and hardened his hert: he and his seruauntes. So Pha-raos hert was hardened, that he let not the chyldren of Israel go, euen as the LORDE had sayd by Moses.

The .x. Chapter.

¶ The greshoppers, & darkenes in E-gipte Pharao forbyddeth Moses to come any more in his syght.

A And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Go in vnto Pharao, for I haue hardened his hert, and the hertes of his seruauntes, þ I myght do these my tokens amonge them, and that thou myghtest shewe it in þ eares of thy chyldre, & of thy chyldrens chyldren, what I haue done in Egipte, & how I haue shewed my tokens amonge them, þ ye may knowe, how that I am the LORDE.
So Moses and Aaron wente in vnto Pharao, & spake vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of the He-brues: How longe refusest thou to submytte thy selfe vnto me, to *let my peo- Exo.7.f 8.a.9.a ple go, that they may serue me? Yf thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, to mo-rowe wyll I cause greshoppers to come vpon all places, that they maye couer þ lande, so that the lande can not be sene, and they shall eate vp that is left you & B was delyuered from the hayle: and shall eate vp all youre grene trees vpon the felde, and shall fyll thy house, all thy seruauntes houses, and all the Egipcians houses: suche as thy father and thy fathers fathers haue not sene, sence the tyme they were vpon earth vnto this daye. And he turned hym, and went out from Pharao. Then sayd Pharaos seruauntes vnto hym: How longe shall we be snared after this maner? Let the men go, that they maye serue the LORDE theyr God. Knowest thou not yet, that Egipte is destroyed? Moses and Aarō were brought againe to Pharao, which sayd vnto them: Go youre waye, & serue the LORDE youre God. But who are they that shal go? Moses sayd: We wyl go with yonge, and olde, with sonnes & doughters, with shepe and oxen: for we haue a feast of the LORDE. He sayde vnto them: Let it be so, the LORDE be with you. Shulde I let you go and youre chyldre also? loke that ye haue not some myschefe in hande. Not so, but go ye that are men, and serue the LORDE, for þ was youre desyre. And they thrust them out from Pharao.
Thē sayd the LORDE vnto Mo- C ses: Stretch out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egipte, for the *greshoppers, þ they maye come vpon þ lande of Egipte Psa.104 Sap.16 Joel.2.a Apo.9.a and eate vp all the herbes in the lande, with all that escaped the hayle. Moses stretched out his staffe ouer the lande of Egipte, and the LORDE brought an east wynde into the lande all that daye & all þ nyghte, & in the mornynge þ east wynde broughte the greshoppers. And they came ouer the hole lande of Egipte & lyghted in all places of Egipte, so ex-ceadynge many, that before tyme there were neuer such, nether shalbe herafter: for they couered þ lāde, & made it dark.
And they dyd eate vp all the herbes in þ lande, and all the frutes vpon the trees which remayned from the hayle, & left no grene thynge behynde in ẏ trees and herbes vpon the felde in all the lande of Egipte.

E Then Pharao called for Moses & Aarō in all the haist, and sayd: * I haue synned agaynst the LORDE your God, and agaynst you: forgeue me my synne this once also, and praye the LORDE your God, that he maye take awaye fro me this death onely. And he wente out from Pharao, & prayed vnto ẏ LORDE. Then the LORDE turned a maruelous stronge westwynde, and toke vp ẏ greshoppers, and cast them into the reed see, so that there was not one lefte in all the quarters of Egipte. But ẏ LORDE hardened Pharaos herte, that he let not the chyldren of Israel go. The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Stretche out thyne hande towarde heauē, that it be so dark in the lande of Egipte, that it maye be felt. And Moses stretched out his hande towarde heuen, * thē was there a thyck darkenesse in al the lande of Egipte thre dayes, so that in thre dayes no man saw another, nor rose vp from ẏ place wher he was. But with the chyldren of Israel there was lyght in theyr dwellynges.

Exo.8.b / 9.f. — 17.a

F Then Pharao called for Moses, & sayd Go your way and serue the LORDE: onely leaue youre shepe and youre oxen here: let your chyldren go with you also. Moses sayd: Thou must geue vs offerynges, and brent offerynges, that we may do sacrifice vnto ẏ LORDE our God. Our catell shall go with vs, & ther shall not one hoofe be lefte behynde: for we must take therof for the seruyce of ẏ LORDE our God. Moreouer we know not wherwith we shal serue ẏ LORDE tyl we come thither. But the LORDE hardened Pharaos herte, that he wolde not let them go. And Pharao sayd vnto hym: Get the hence fro me, & beware, ẏ thou come nomore in my sight: For lo what day so euer ẏ comest in my syght, thou shalt dye. Moses answered: Euen as thou hast sayd, I wyll come nomore in thy syght.

The.xi. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde promyseth to brynge yet another plage vpon Egipte, & cōmaundeth ẏ Israelites to borowe Jewels of syluer and golde of the Egipcians.

A AND the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: I wyl yet brynge a plage vpon Pharao and Egipte: after that shal he let you go from hence, and shal not onely let all go, but also dryue you hence. Therfore saye now you vnto the people, ẏ euery mā borowe of his neyghboure, & euery woman of hir neyghbouresse, * Jewels of syluer & golde, for the LORDE shall geue the people fauour in the sight of the Egipciās. And Moses was a very greate mā in the lāde of Egipte, in the sight of Pharaos seruauntes, and in the syght of the people.

Exo.3.c. and.12.e — Eccl.45.a

B And Moses sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: At mydnight wyll I go out in ẏ lāde of Egipte, & all the first borne in the lande of Egipte shall dye: From Pharaos fyrst sonne (ẏ sytteth vpō his seate) vnto the first sonne of the mayde seruaunte which is behynde the myll: & all the first borne amonge the catell: and there shalbe a greate crie in all the lāde of Egipt, soch as neuer was, nor shalbe. But amonge all the chyldrē of Israell there shall not a dogge quatche with his tonge, fro men vnto catell, that ye maye knowe, how ẏ the LORDE hath put a difference betwixte Egipte & Israell.

C Thē shall all these thy seruauntes come downe vnto me, and fall at my fote, and sayd: Get the out, thou and all ẏ people that are vnder the. After that wyl I departe. And he wente frō Pharao with a wrothful displeasure. The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Pharao herkeneth not vnto you, that many wōders maye be done in the lāde of Egipte. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders before Pharao: but ẏ LORDE hardened his herte, that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israell go out of his londe.

The.xii. Chapter.

¶ The vse of the Easterlambe. God slayeth al ẏ fyrstborne. Pharao dryueth all the people out of the lande.

A THE LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron in ẏ londe of Egipt: This moneth shal be vnto you the first moneth, & as it ye shal begynne the monethes of the yeare. Speake ye vnto al ẏ congregacion of Israel, & saye: Upon the tenth daye of this moneth let euery one take a * lābe (or a kydde) where a housholder is, to euery house a lābe. And Moses called all the Elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out and take to euery housholde a shepe and kyl Passeouer vnto the LORDE: and take a bunch of ysope, and dyppe it in the bloude in the basen, and stryke it vp on the vpperpost and vpō the two syde Egipcyans. And whā he seyth ẏ bloude vpon the vpperpost, and vpon the two sydepostes, he wyl passe ouer by ẏ dore, & not suffre ẏ destroyer to come by your houses to plage. Therfore kepe this cu=

And whā ye be come into the lāde ẏ ẏ LORDE shall geue you, (as he hath sayd) then kepe this seruice. * And whā Jos. youre chyldren say vnto you: What ser uyce is this, that ye haue? Ye shall say: It is the sacrifice of the LORDES Passeouer, which passed ouer by ẏ chyl dren of Israel in Egipte, whan he pla= ged the Egipcyans, and saued our hou= ses. Thē the people bowed them selues, and worshipped. And the chyldren of Is rael wente and dyd, as the LORDE had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

* And at mydnyght the LORDE E smote all the fyrstborne in the lande of Egipte: frō Pharaos fyrst sōne (whiche psal. sat vpon his seate) vntyll the fyrst sōne and.
of the presoner that was in the preson, and all the fyrstborne of the catell. Thē Pharao arose the same nyghte, and all his seruauntes, and all the Egipcians, and there was a great crye in Egipte: for ther was no house wherin ther was not one dead.

And he called for Moses and Aaron in the nyght, and sayd: * Get you vp, & departe out fro my people, ye and ẏ chyl dren of Israel: go youre waye and serue ẏ LORDE, as ye haue sayde: and take youre shepe and youre oxen with you, * as ye haue sayd, and departe, & blesse Exo. me also. And the Egipcyās were fearce vpon the people, to dryue them hastely out of the lande, for they sayd we are all but dead.

And the people toke the rawe dowe, befoꝛe it was leuended(foꝛ their foode) bounde in their clothes vpon their shulders. And ỹ chyldꝛen of Israel had done [illegible]d.3.c * as Moses sayd, and boꝛowed iewels [illegible].11.a of syluer & golde, and clothes of the Egipcians: the LORDE also had geuē the people fauoure in the sight of ỹ Egipcians, that they lent thē, and so they spoyled the Egipcians.

F * Thus the chyldꝛen of Israel toke [illegible]33.a their iourney frō Raemses to Suchoth, [illegible]1.e ✝ sixe hundꝛeth thousande men ys fote, Nu.11.e besyde chyldꝛen. There wente with thē also moch cōmō people, & shepe, ad oxē, and exceadinge many catell.

And of ỹ rawe dowe ỹ they bꝛought out of Egipte, they baked vnleuended cakes: foꝛ it was not leuended, in so moch as they were thꝛust out of Egipte, and coulde not tary: nether had they pꝛepa-red them any other meate.

[illegible]n.15.c * The tyme ỹ the chyldꝛē of Israell [illegible]7.a dwelt in Egipte, is foure hondꝛeth and thirtye yeares. When the same were en ded, the wh[illegible] hoost of the LORDE wente out [illegible] the lōde of Egipte in one daye. Therfoꝛe shal this nyght be kepte vnto the LORD, because he bꝛought thē out of the londe of Egipte: And the chyldꝛen of Israell shall kepe it vnto ỹ LORDE, they and their posterities.
G And the LORD sayd vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the maner of the kepynge of Passeouer: There shall no straunger eate of it. But who so is a bought seruaunt let hym be circūcysed, & then eate therof. A straunger and an hyꝛed seruaunt shall not eate of it. In one house shall it be eaten. Ye shall cary [illegible]m.9.b none of his flesh out of the house, & * ye [illegible]h.19.d shall not bꝛeake a bone of hym. The whole congregaciō of Israel shal do it.

But yf there dwell a straūger with the, and wyl holde Passeouer vnto the LORDE, let him circumcise euery one that is male, and thē let hym first come, and do it, and be as one that is boꝛne in the londe: foꝛ there shall no vncircum cysed eate therof. One maner of lawe be vnto hym that is boꝛne in the londe, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth a monge you. And all the Chyldꝛen of Is rael dyd as the LORD commaunded Moses and Aaron. So vpon one daye the LORDE bꝛought the chyldꝛen of Israell out of the lōde of Egypte with their armies.

The.xiii.Chapter.

And thou shalte tell thy sonne at the B

When the LORDE now hath shalt thou sunder out vnto the LORD all that bꝛeaketh the matrice, and fyꝛstboꝛne among thy catel, such as is male.

The fyꝛstboꝛne of the asse shalt thou it not, thē bꝛeake his necke. All the fyꝛst thou redeme.

And whan thy chylde axeth the to C shalt say vnto hym: The Loꝛd bꝛought vs out of Egypte from the house of bondage with a mightie hãde: for whã

DE slew all the firstborne in the lande of Egipte, from the firstborne of mẽ vn fer I vnto the LORDE all that brea keth the matrice, beynge a male, and the firstborne of my chyldrẽ I redeme. And this shall be a signe vnto the in thyne hande, and a token to thyne vpon before thyne eyes, how that the LORDE brought vs out of Egipte with a migh tye hande.

Now whan Pharao had let ỹ peo-D ple go, God led them not the way tho-row the londe of the Phylistines, which was the nexte: for he thought: The peo ple myght repent, whan they se warre, & so turne in agayne in to Egipte. Therfore led he the people aboute, euen the waye thorow the wyldernesse by ỹ reed nessed out of the londe of Egipte. And Moses toke Josephs bones with him, Gen.50.d. * for he toke an ooth of the chyldren of Josu.24.f Israel, and sayd: God wyl surely vyset you, therfore cary awaye my bones wt you from hence.

The xiiii. Chapter.

Pharao foloweth vpõ the people of God, which delyuereth his owne, carieth them thorow the reed see, & drowneth ỹ enemyes therin.

A And the LORDE spake vn
to Moses, & sayde: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and byd them that they turne aboute, & pitch their ten-Nu.33.b. tes before the valley of Hyroth, * be-twixte Migdol and the see towarde Ba al Zephon, & there pitch ỹ tentes ryght ouer by the see. For Pharao shall saye of the chyldren of Israel: They can not tell how to get out of the londe, the wyl dernesse hath shut them in. And I wyll hardẽ his hart, ỷ he shall folowe after thẽ, & I wyll get me honoure vpõ Pha rao, and vpon all his power. And the E gipcians shall knowe, that I am the LORDE. And they dyd so.
And whã it was tolde ỹ kynge of E- B gipte, ỷ ỹ people fled, his hart & his seruauntes were turned agaynst ỹ people, & sayd: Why haue we done this, that we haue let Israel go, ỷ they shulde not ser-ue vs? And he bounde his charettes fast & toke his people wt him, & toke sixe hũ-dreth chosen charettes, & the other cha-rettes besyde that were in Egipte, and ỹ captaynes ouer all his: for ỹ LORDE hardened the hart of Pharao kynge of Egipte, ỷ he folowed after the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Israell wente out with an hye hande.
And ỹ Egipciãs folowed after thẽ, & C ouertoke thẽ (where they had pitched by ỹ see) wt horses & charettes, & horsmen, and wt his power, in ỹ valley of Hyrath towarde Baal Zephon.* And whan Pharao came nye thẽ, ỹ chyldrẽ of Israel lift vp their eyes, & beholde, ỹ Egip cians were behinde thẽ, and they were sore afrayed, & cried vnto the LORDE.
And sayd vnto Moses: Were there no graues in Egipte, ỷ ỹ hast brought vs away to dye in ỹ wyldernes? Wher fore hast thou done this vnto vs, that ỹ hast caried vs out of Egipte? Is not this it, ỷ we sayde vnto the in Egipte: Leaue of, & let vs serue the Egipcians: for it were better for vs to serue ỹ Egip cians, then to dye in ỹ wyldernesse? Mo ses sayd vnto ỹ people:* Feare you not stonde styll, & beholde, what a saluacion the LORDE shall shewe vpõ you this daye:* for these Egipciãs whom ye se this daye, shal ye neuer se more for euer: the LORDE shall fight for you, onely quyete youre selues.
The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: D Wherfore criest ỹ vnto me? Speake vn to the chyldrẽ of Israell, ỷ they go forward.* But lift ỹ vp thy staf, & stretch out thyne hande ouer the see, & parte it asunder, ỷ the chyldrẽ of Israell maye go in thorow ỹ myddest of it vpon the drye grounde. Beholde, I wyll hardẽ ỹ hert of the Egipciãs, that they shall fo-lowe after you. Thus wyll I get me ho noure vpõ Pharao, & vpõ al his power vpon his charettes, and horsmẽ: and ỹ Egipciãs shall knowe, ỷ I am ỹ LOR DE, whan I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes, and vpon his horsmen.

104 c ✱ Then the angell of God that wente before the armyes of Israell, remoued, and gat hym behynde them: and the cloudy pyler remoued also from before them, and stode behynde them, and came betwixte the armies of the Egip-cyans & the armies of Israell. It was a darcke cloude, & gaue light that night so that all the night lõge these and they coulde not come together.

E ✱ Whã Moses now stretched forth 9.b his handes ouer the see, the LORDE caused it to passe awaye thorow a migh tye east wynde all that night, and made 2.b the see drye ✱ and the water deuyded it 4.b selfe asunder. And the chyldren of Is-5.c raell wẽte in thorow the myddest of the 77.b see vpon the drye grounde, & the water was vnto them as a wall, vpon their righte hande and vpon their lyft. And the Egipciãs folowed, and wente in after them, all Pharaos horses, and char-rettes, and horsmen, euen in to the myd-des of the see.

9.a ✱ Now whan the mornynge watch came, the LORDE loked vpon the ar-myes of the Egyptians out the pyler of fyre and the cloude, and troubled theyr armyes, and smote the wheles frõ their charettes, and ouerthrew them with a 32.b storme. Thẽ sayde the Egypciãs: ✱ Let vs flye from Israel, the LORDE figh teth for them agaynst the Egyptians.

F But the LORDE sayde vnto Mo ses: Stretch out thyn hãde ouer the see, that the water maye come agayne vpõ the Egipciãs, vpon their charettes, and horsmẽ. Then Moses stretched out his hande ouer the see, and the see came a-gayne before daye in his course and strength, and the Egypciãs fled agaynst 10.b it. ✱ Thus the LORDE ouerthrewe them in the myddest of the see, so that ÿ water came agayne, & couered the char-rettes and horsmen, and all Pharaos power which folowed after them in to the see, so that there remayned not one 11.f. of thẽ. ✱ But the chyldrẽ of Israel wẽte drye thorow the myddest of the see, and the water was vnto thẽ as a wall vpon their righte hande and vpon theyr lefte.

4.a ✱ Thus the LORDE delyuered Israel in the day from the hande of E-gipcyans. And they sawe the Egipciãs dead vpon the see syde, and the greate hande that the LORDE had shewed vpon the Egipcyãs. And the people fea red the LORDE, & beleued hym, and his seruaunt Moses.

The.xv. Chapter.

Moses and the people synge a songe of thankesgeuynge vnto the LORDE and come to Marath, where the bytter water is made swete.

T Hen songe Moses & the chyl- B dren of Israel this songe vn to the LORDE, and sayd: Exo.15.e ✱ I wyll synge vnto the LORDE, for he hath done gloriously, horse & charet hath he ouer-throwen in the see.

✱ The LORDE is my strength, & Psa.117b my songe, & is become my saluacyon. Esa.12.a

This is my God, I wyll magnifie hym: He is my fathers God, I wyll exalte hym.

The LORDE is the ryghte man of warre, LORDE is his name. The charettes of Pharao and his power, hath he cast in to the see.

His chosen captaynes are drowned in the reed see, the depe hath couered thẽ, they fell to the grounde as a stone.

Thy ryght hande (o LORDE) is glorious in power: thy ryght hãde (o LORDE) hath smytten the enemyes.

And with thy great glorye thou hast destroyed thyne aduersaries: thou sen-test out thy wrath, and it consumed thẽ, euen as stobble.

In the breth of thy wrathe the waters fell together, the floudes went vpõ a heape: The depes plomped together in the myddest of the see.

The enemye thought: I wyl folowe B vpõ them, and ouertake them, & deuyde the spoyle, and coole my luste vpõ thẽ.

I wyll drawe my swearde, and my hande shall destroye them.

Thou blewest with thy wynde, ÿ see couered them, and they sanke downe as leed in the myghtye waters.

LORDE, who is lyke vnto the amonge the goddes? Who is so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, & doynge wonders?

When ÿ stretchedest out thy ryghte hande, the earth swalowed them vp.

Thou of thy very mercy hast led thy people, whom thou hast delyuered, & with thy strength ÿ hast brought thẽ vnto the dwellynge of thy Sanctuary.

When the nacions herde this, they raged, sorowe cam vpõ the Philistines.

The were ÿ princes of Edõ afrayed tremblynge came vpon the myghtye of Moab, all the indwellers of Canaan waxed faynthearted.

C Let feare and drede fall vpon them thorow thy greate arme, that they may be as styll as a stone, tyll thy people (O LORDE) be gone thorow, tyl thy people whō thou hast gotten, be gone thorow.
Brynge them in, and plante thē vppon the mountayne of thy enheritaunce vnto the place that thou hast made for thyne owne dwellynge: euē to thy tēple (O Lorde) which thy hādes haue prepared.
The LORDE shalbe kynge for euer and euer. For Pharao wente in to the see with horses, and charettes, & horsmen, & the LORDE made the see fall agayne vpon them.
But the chyldren of Israell wente drye thorow the myddes of the see.
And Miriā the prophetysse, Aarōs syster, toke a tymbrell in hir hande, and all the wemen folowed out after her with tymbrels in a daunse. And Miriā Exo.15.a sange before thē: * O let vs synge vnto

D Nu.33.b. * Moses caused the chyldren of Israell to departe out from the reed see, vnto the wyldernesse of Sur, and they wente thre dayes in the wyldernesse, that they founde no water. Then came they to Marath, but they coude not drynke the water for bytternesse, for it was bitter. Therfore was it called Ma rath, (y is bitternesse) Then the people murmured agaynst Moses, and sayde: what shall we drynke? And Moses, Iudit. 5.d cryed vnto y LORDE, * which shewed Eccl. 38.a hym a tree, this he put in the water, thē was it swete.
4.Re.4.e There he made them a statute, and

The .xvi. Chapter.

C The LORDE sendeth quayles and the Manna to the vnpacient people.

A Nu.33.b ANd they cam vnto * Elim, where there were twolue welles of water, and seuen-tie palme trees, & ther they pitched by the water syde.
From Elim they toke theyr iourney, & the whole congregation of the children of Israell came into the wyldernesse of Sin (which lyeth betwene Elim & Sinay) vpon the fyfteth daye of the seconde moneth, after that they were departed out of the lōde of Egypte. And y whole multitude of y chyldren of Israel * mur Nu. mured agaynste Moses & Aaron in the wyldernesse, & sayde vnto them: Wolde God we had dyed in the londe of Egip te by the hande of the LORDE, whā we sat by the flesh pottes, & had bread ynough to eate: for ye haue brought vs out in to this wyldernesse, to cause this whole multitude dye of honger.
Then sayde the LORDE vnto Moses: beholde * I wyll rayne you breade frō heauen, and let the people go out, & gather daylie, what they nede, y I maye proue whether they walke in my lawe or not: but vpō the sixte daye they shall prepare thē selues, that they may brynge in twyse as much as they gather daylie.
Moses & Aaron sayde vnto all the B chyldren of Israel: At euen ye shall know that the LORDE hath broughte you out of the londe of Egypte, and in the mornynge shall ye se the glory of the LORDE: for he hath herd your grud gynges agaynst the LORDE. For what are we, that ye grudge agaynst vs?
Moses sayde moreouer: * At euen Nu. shall the LORDE geue you flesh to eate, and in the mornynge breade ynough: because the LORDE hath herde youre grudgynges, y ye haue grudged agāyst hym. For what are we? Youre murmuryng is not agaynst vs, but agaynst the LORDE. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Speake vnto the whole multitude of the chyldren of Israel: Come forth before the LORDE, for he hath herde youre murmurynges.
And whyle Aaron spake thus vnto C the whole congregacyon of the children of Israell, they turned thē towarde the wyldernesse: & beholde, the glory of the LORDE appeared in a cloude, & the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: I haue herde the murmurynge of the chyldren of Israel. Tell them: At euen shall ye haue flesh to eate, & in the mornyng shal ye be fylled with breade, and ye shall knowe, that I am the LORDE, youre God.
* And at euē y quayles came vp, & co- Nu. uered the tentes: & in the mornynge the dewe laye roūde aboute the tentes. And whan the dew was fallē, beholde, there laye a thyng in y wyldernesse, thynne, & small, as the horefrost vpō the grounde.
And whā the chyldren of Israel saw D it, they sayde one to another: This is man. For they wyst not what it was But Moses sayde vnto them: It is the bread that the LORDE hath geuē you to eate. This is it that the Lord hath cō maūded: Euery one gather for himselfe as much as he eateth, & take a Gomor for euery heade, accordyng to the nōbre of the soules in his tente.

And the childre of Israel dyd so, & ga thered some more, some lesse. But whā it was measured out with ÿ Gomor, he that gathered muche, had not the more:
Co. 8. b * & he ÿ gathered litle: wāted nothing, but euery one gathered for hymselfe, as much as he dyd eate. And Moses sayde vnto thē: Let noman leaue ought therof vntyll the mornyng. But they harkened not vnto Moses. And some left of it vntyll ÿ mornyng. Thē wared it full of wormes and stanke. And Moses was angrye at them.

And euery mornynge they gathered for thē selues, as much as euery one did eate: but as soone as it was whote of ÿ Sonne, it melted awaye. And vpon the sixte day they gathered twyse as much of bread, two Gomors for one. And all the rulers of the congregacyon came in E & tolde Moses. And he sayde vnto thē: This is it, that the Lord hath sayd: To morow is the Sabbath of the holy rest of the Lorde: loke what ye wyll bake, ÿ bake: & what ye wyl seeth: that seeth & that remayneth ouer, let it remayn, that it maye be kepte vntyll ÿ mornyng. And they let it remayne tyll the morow, as Moses cōmaūded. Thē stanke it not, ne ther was there any worme therin. Thē sayd Moses: Eate that to daye, for to day is the Sabbath of the Lord to day shal ye fynde none in the feld. Sixe day-es shall ye gather it, but the seuenthe daye is the Sabbath, wherin there shal be none.

But vpō the seueth daye there wēte out some of ÿ people to gather, & foūde nothing. Thē sayd ÿ LORDE vnto Ex. 20. b Moses: * How lōge refuse ye to kepe my cōmaūdemētes & lawes? Behold, ÿ LORDE hath geuē you the Sabbath therfore vpon ÿ sixte day he geueth you bread for two dayes: therfore let euery man now byde at home, and noman go forth of his place vpon the seueth daye.
F So the people rested vpō the seueth daye. And the house of Israell called it Man, & * it was lyke Coriāder sede, & whyte, & had a tast like symnels & hony

And Moses sayd: This is it that ÿ LORDE hath commaunded: Fill a Go mor therof to be kepte for youre poste-rities, that they maye se the bread, whe with I fed you, whan I brought you out of the lande of Egipte. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: Take a * cruse, and Heb. 9. a. put a Gomor full of Man there in, & laye it vp before the LORDE, to be kepte for youre posterities, as ÿ LORD cō-maunded Moses. So Aarō layed it vp there for a testimony to be kepte.

* And the chyldre of Israel dyd eate Jud. 5. d

Moses cried vnto the LORDE, B & sayd: What shal I do wt this people?
They are all most ready to stone me.
The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Go

And Iosua discomfited Amaleck, & his

The .xviii. Chapter.

Iethro bryngeth Moses his wyfe & chyldren, and geueth hym good councell.

A And whā Iethro the prest in Madian, Moses father in lawe herde of all, ẏ God had done with Moses, and his people of Israel, how that ẏ LORDE had brought Israel out of Egipte, he toke Sipora Moses wyfe, whom he had sent backe, with her two Exod. 2. d. sonnes. * The one was called Gerson, for he sayd: I am become a straunger in a straunge lande. And the other was called Elieser, for he sayd: The God of my fathers hath bene my helpe, and hath delyuered me from Pharaos swearde.
Now when Iethro Moses father in lawe, and his sonnes, and his wyfe came vnto hym in the wyldernes by the mount of God, where he hadde pitched his tent, he sent worde vnto Moses: I Iethro thy father in lawe am come vnto the, and thy wyfe, and both her chyldren with her. Then went Moses forth to mete hym, and dyd obeysaunce vnto hym, and kyssed hym. And when they had saluted eche other, they wente in to the tente.
Then Moses tolde his father in law B all that the LORDE had done vnto Pharao and the Egipcyans for Isra-els sake, and all the trauayle that hadde happened them by the waye, and how the LORDE had delyuered them. Ie-thro reioysed ouer all the good that the LORDE had done for Israel, that he had delyuered them from the hande of the Egipcians. And Iethro sayd: Praysesed be the LORDE, which hath delyuered you from the hande of the Egip-cyans, and of Pharao. (and) that knoweth how to delyuer his people from ẏ Egipcyans hande. Now I knowe, that the LORDE is greater then all god-des, because they dealt proudly wt them.
And Iethro toke brentofferynges, and offered vnto God. Then came Aaron & all the elders of Israel to eate bread wt Moses father in lawe before God.
On the next morow sat Moses to C iudge the people, and the people stode rounde aboute Moses frō the mornyng vntyll the euen. But when his father in lawe sawe al that he dyd with ẏ people he sayd: What is this, that thou doest with the people? Wherfore syttest thou alone, and all the people stonde rounde aboute the from the mornynge vntyll ẏ euen? Moses answered hym: The people come to me, and axe councel at God: for when they haue any thynge to do, they come vnto me, that I may iudge be-twixte euery one and his neghbour, and shewe them the statutes of God, & his lawes.
* His father in lawe sayd vnto him: Deu It is not well ẏ thou doest. Thou weariest thy selfe, and ẏ people that is with causes before God, and prouyde them with statutes and lawes, ẏ thou mayest shewe them the waye wherin they shuld walke, & the workes that they shulde do.

But loke out amonge all the people, for honest men, that feare God, such as are true, & hate couetousnes: make these rulers ouer them, some ouer thousādes, curteyne shalbe eyght and twenty cuby tes the bredth foure cubytes: and all the ten shalbe lyke, and shalbe coupled fyue and fyue together, one vnto the other.

And thou shalt make loupes of yalowe sylke by y edge of euery curtayne, wher they shalbe coupled together, that there maye be euer two and two fastened to gether vpon theyr edges: fyftye loupes vpon euery curtayne, that one may faste the other together. And thou shalt make fyftye buttons of golde, wherwith the curtaynes may be coupled together, one to the other, that it maye be one coue

*Thou shalt make a couerynge also B of goates heer for a tente ouer the haby Exo.36.c tacyon, of eleuen curteynes. The length of one curtayne shalbe thyrty cubytes, y bredth foure cubytes. And all the eleuen shalbe alyke great: fyue shalte thou cou ple together by them selues, and sixe al so by them selues, that thou mayest dou ble the sixte curtayne in the forefront of the Tabernacle. And vpon euery cur teyne thou shalt make fyftye loupes vp on the edges of them, that they may be coupled together by the edges. And fyf tye buttons of brasse shalt thou make, and put the buttōs into the loupes, that the tente maye be coupled together, and be one couerynge.
As for the remnaunt of the curtey nes of the tente, thou shalte let the halfe parte hange ouer behynd the tente, vpō both the sydes a cubyte longe, that the resydue maye be vpon the sydes of the skynnes.

*Thou shalt make bordes also for Exo.36.d. the habitacyon, of fyrre tre, which shall stonde: one borde shalbe ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode.
Two fete shall one borde haue, that one maye be set by the other.
Thus shalt thou make all y bordes for the Tabernacle: Twentye of them shall stonde towarde the south, whiche shal haue forty sokettes of syluer vnder them, two sokettes vnder euery borde for his two fete.

Lykewyse vpon the other syde towarde the north there shall stande twentye bordes also, and fortye sokettes of syluer, two sokettes vnder euery borde.

But behynde the habitacyō towarde the west thou shalte make sixe bordes, & two bordes mo for ŷ two corners of the habitacion, that euery one of them both may be coupled frō vnder vp with his cornerborde, and aboue vpon the heade to come euen together with a clampe: so that there be eyght bordes with theyr syluer sokettes, wherof there shalbe syxtene, two vnder euery borde.

D And thou shalt make barres of fyrre tre, fyue for the bordes vpō the one syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes vpon the other syde of the Tabernacle, and fyue for the bordes behynde the Tabernacle towarde the west. And the barres shalt thou shute thorowe the myddest of the bordes, and fasten altogether frō the one corner to the other. And thou shalt ouerlay the bordes with golde, and make theyr rynges of golde, that the barres maye be put therin. And ŷ barres shalt thou ouerlaye with gold, and so shalt thou set vp the Tabernacle accordynge to the fashion as thou hast sene vpon the mount.

E And thou shalt make a vayle of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. And Cherubyns shalt ŷ make theron of broderd worke, & shalte hange it vpon foure pylers of fyrre tre whichich are ouerlayed with golde, hauynge knoppes of golde, and foure sokettes of syluer. And ŷ vayle shalt thou fasten with bottons, and set the Arke of wytnesse within the vayle, that it maye be vnto you a difference betwixte the holy and the moost holy.

And thou shalt set the Mercyseate vpon the Arke of wytnes in the Moost holy. But set the table without ŷ vayle and the candelsticke ouer agaynst the table vpon the southsyde of the Tabernacle, that the table maye stande on the northsyde.

And in the dore of the Tabernacle thou shalt make an hangynge, of yalow sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And for the same hangynge thou shalt make fyue pylers of Fyrre tre, ouerlayed with golde, with knoppes of golde. And shalte cast fyue sokettes of brasse for them.

The .xxvii. Chapter.

¶ Of the altare and the apparell therof. Of the court of the habitacyon. Of the oyle and lampes.

And thou shalt make an altare of fyrre tre, fyue cubites longe and brode, that it maye be foure square, and thre cubites hye: thou shalt make hornes vpon the foure corners of it, and shalt ouerlaye it with brasse. Make ashpannes, shouels, basens, fleshokes, colepannes. All the apparell therof shalt thou make of brasse. Thou shalte make a gredyron also lyke a nette, of brasse, and foure brasen rynges vpō the foure corners of it: frō vnder vp aboute the altare shalt thou make it, so that the gredyron reache vnto the myddest of the altare. Thou shalt make staues also for the altare, of fyrretre, ouerlayed with brasse, and shalt put the staues in ŷ rynges, that the staues maye be on both the sydes of the altare, to beare it with all. And holowe wt bordes shalt thou make it, lyke as it is shewed the in the mount.

And to the habitacyon thou shalte make a court, an hāgynge of whyte twyned sylke: vpon the one syde an .c. cubytes longe towarde the south, and .xx. pylers vpon .xx. brasē sokettes, & the knoppes with theyr whoopes of syluer. Lykewyse vpon the north syde there shalbe an hangynge of an .c. cubytes longe, twenty pylers vpon twenty brasen sokettes, and theyr knoppes with theyr whoopes of syluer. B

But vpon the west syde the bredth of the court shall haue an hangynge of fyftye cubites longe, and ten pylers vpō ten sokettes. Vpon the east syde also shall the bredth of the court haue fyftye cubites, so that the hangynge haue vpō one syde fyftene cubites, and thre pylers vpon thre sokettes: And vpon ŷ other syde fyftene cubites also, and thre pylers vpon thre sokettes.

And in the courte gate there shalbe an hangynge twenty cubytes brode of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, wrought wt nedle worke, and foure pylers vpon theyr foure sokettes. All the pylers rounde aboute the courte shall haue syluer whoopes, and syluer knoppes, and sokettes of brasse. And the lengthe of the courte shalbe an hundreth cubytes, the bredth fyftye cubytes, the heyght fyue cubytes, of whyte C twyned sylke and ye sokettes therof shal be of brasse. All the vessels also of the ha

The.xxviii. Chapter.

How the prestes were arayed and consecrated.

A And thou shalt take vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sonnes from amonge ye chyldren of Israell, that he may be my prest: namely Aaron and his sonnes Nadab, Abihu, Eleasar, and Ithamar: and thou shalt make holy clothes for Aaron thy brother, honorable and glorious, and shalte speake vnto all them that are wyse of hert, whom I haue fylled with the sprete of wysdome, that they make garmentes to Aaron for his consecracyon, that he maye be my preste.

These are the garmentes which they shall make: a brestlappe, an ouerbody cote, a tunycle, an albe, a myter and a gyrdell. Thus shall they make holy garmentes for thy brother Aaron and his sonnes, that he maye be my prest. They shall take therto golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

B The ouerbody cote shall they make of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke of brodered worke, that it maye be fastened together vpon both the sydes by the edges therof. And his gyrdell vpon it shalbe of the same workmanshyppe and stuffe, euen of golde yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. And thou shalte take two Onix stones, and graue in them the names of the chyldren of Israell. Syxe names vpō the one stone, and the syxe other names vpon ye other stone acordynge to the order of theyr age. This shalt thou do by the stonegrauers that graue signettes, so that the stones with the names of the chyldren of Israel to be set rounde aboute with golde: and thou shalt put them vpon the two shulders of ye ouerbody cote, that they may be stones of remembraunce for the chyldren of Israell, that Aaron maye beare their names vpon both his shulders before the LORDE for a remembraunce.

C Thou shalt make hokes of golde also, and two wrethen cheynes of pure golde, and shalt fasten them vnto the hookes.

The brestlappe of iudgement shalt thou make of brodered worke, euen after the worke of the ouerbody cote, of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke. Foure square shall it be and double, an handebredth longe, and an handebredth brode. And thou shalt fyll it with foure rowes full of stones. Let the fyrste rowe be a Sardis, a Topas, & a Smaragde. The seconde a Rubyn, a Saphyre, and a Dyamonde. The thyrde a Ligurios, an Achate, and an Amatyst. The fourth a Turcas, an Onix, & a Iaspis. In golde shall they be sett in all the rowes, and shall stonde acordynge to the twolue names of the chyldren of Israell, graued of the stone grauers, euery one with his name acordynge to the twolue trybes.

D And vpon the brestlappe thou shalt make wrethen cheynes by the corners of pure golde, and two golde rynges, so that thou fasten the same two rynges vnto two edges of the brestlappe, and put the two wrethen cheynes of golde in ye same two rynges, that are in ye two edges of the brestlappe. But the two endes of the two wrethen cheynes shalt thou fasten in the two hokes vpon the ouerbody cote one ouer agaynst another.

And thou shalt make two other rynges of golde, and fasten them vnto the other two edges of the brestlappe, euen to the borders therof, wherby it maye hange on the insyde vpon the ouerbody cote. And yet shalt thou make two rynges of golde, and fasten them vpon the two edges beneth of the ouerbodycote vpon the outsyde, one ouer agaynst another where the ouerbody E cote is ioyned together. And ye brestlappe shalbe fastened by his rynges vnto the rynges of the ouerbody cote with a yalowe lace, ye it may lye close vpon the ouerbody cote, & that ye brestlap be not lowsed upon the ouerbody cote.

¶ Thus shall Aaron beare the names of ye children of Israel in ye brestlappe of iudgment upon his hart, whan he goeth in to the Sanctuary, for a remembraunce before the LORDE alwaye. And in the brestlappe of iudgment thou shalt

Deu. 33. b put * light and perfectnesse, that they be upon Aarons hart, whan he goeth in before the LORDE: that he may beare the iudgment of the children of Israel upon his herte before the LORDE alwaye.

¶ Thou shalt make the tunycle also to the ouerbody cote all of yalowe sylke, and aboue in the myddest there shalbe an hole, & a bonde folde together rounde aboute the hole, that it rente not. And beneth upon the hemme thou shalt make

F pomgranates of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple rounde aboute, & belles of golde betwene the same rounde aboute: that there be euer a golden bell and pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemme of the same

Eccl. 45. b tunycle.* And Aaron shall haue it upon hym when he ministreth, that the sounde therof maye be herde, whan he goeth out and in at ye sanctuary before the LORDE, that he dye not.

¶ Thou shalt make a forheade plate also of pure golde, and graue therin (af-

G ter the workmanshippe of the stone grauer:) the holynesse of the LORDE, and with a yalowe lace shalt thou fasten it unto the forefront of the myter upon Aarons forheade, that Aaron maye so beare ye synne of ye holy thynges, which the children of Israel halowe in all their gyftes and sanctuary. And it shalbe alwaye upon his forheade, that he maye reconcyle them before the LORDE.

H ¶ Thou shalt make an albe also of whyte sylke, and a myter of whyt sylke and a gyrdle of nedle worke:

And for Aarons sonnes thou shalt make cotes, gyrdels and bonettes, honorable and glorious, and shalt put them upon thy brother Aaron and his sonnes and shalt anoynte them, and fyll their handes, and consecrate them, that they maye be my prestes. And thou shalt make them lynen breches, to couer the flesh of their preuytees, from the loynes unto the thyes. And Aaron & his sonnes shal haue them on, whan they go in to the Tabernacle of witnesse, or go unto the altare to ministre in the Holy, that they beare not their synne, & dye. This shal be a perpetual custome for him [illegible] seede after hym.

The xxix. Chapter.

This is it also, that [illegible] shalt do unto the, that [illegible] maye be consecrated [illegible] unto me: * Take a [illegible] bullocke and two [illegible] without blemysh, unleuended [illegible] and unleuended cakes mixte with [illegible] and wafers of swete brede [illegible] with oyle. Of wheate floure shalt [illegible] make them al, and put them in a [illegible] and brynge the in the maunde, with [illegible] bullocke and two rammes.

And thou shalt brynge Aaron [illegible] sonnes unto the dore of the Taber[illegible] cle of witnesse, and washe them [illegible] water and take the garmentes, [illegible] upon Aaron the albe & the tunicle, [illegible] bycote & the brestlappe to the [illegible] cote &, shalte gyrde him on the [illegible] upon ye ouerbody cote, & set ye myter [illegible] his heade, and the holy crowne upon [illegible] myter, and shalt take the anoynt[illegible] oyle, and poure it upon his heade, [illegible] anoynte hym.

Thou shalt brynge forth his [illegible] also, and put the albes upon them, [illegible] gyrde both Aaron and them with [illegible] les, and set the bonettes upon their [illegible] des, that they maye haue the pres[illegible] for a perpetuall custome.

And thou shalt fyll the handes of [illegible] ron & his sonnes, and brynge forth [illegible] bullocke before the Tabernacle of [illegible] nesse.* And Aaron and his sonnes [illegible] laye their handes upon the heade of [illegible] bullocke, and than shalt slay the [illegible] before the LORDE, at the dore of [illegible] Tabernacle of witnesse, and shalt [illegible] of his bloude, and put it upon the [illegible] nes of the altare with thy fynger, [illegible] poure all the other bloude upon [illegible] tome of the altare.

* And thou shalt take all the fat [illegible] couereth the bowels and the net [illegible] the leuer, and the two kydneyes [illegible] fat that is aboute them, and burne [illegible] upon the altare. But the bullockes [illegible] skynne, & donge, shalt thou burne [illegible] fyre without the hoost: for it is a [illegible] offerynge.

The one ramme shalt thou take [illegible] so, and Aaron with his sonnes shal [illegible] their handes upon his heade, [illegible] thou slaye hym, and take of his bloude, and sprenkle it vpon the altare rounde aboute. But the ramme shalt thou de-uyde in peces, and wash his bowels, & his legges, and laye them vpon the pieces and the heade, and burne the whole ramme vpõ the altare: for it is a burnt offerynge, and a swete sauoure of the sa crifice vnto the LORDE.

As for the other ramme, thou shalt take hym, & Aaron with his sonnes shall laye their handes vpõ his heade, & thou shalt slaye him, & take of his bloude, and put it vpõ the typpe of the right eare of Aaron and his sonnes, and vpõ the thõbe of their right hãdes, & vpon the greate toe of their righte fete, and thou shalt sprenkle the bloude vpon the altare rounde aboute, & shalt take of ỹ bloude vpon the altare & the anoyntynge oyle, and sprenkle it vpon Aaron and his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes and theire vestimentes. So shall he and his clothes his sonnes and their clothes be consecrated.

D * Then shalt thou take the fat of the ramme, the rompe, and the fat that couereth the bowels, the net vpon the leuer, & the two kydneys with the fatte that is aboute them, & the right shulder (for it is a ramme of consecracyon) and a symnel of bread, and oyled cake, and a wafer out of the maunde of the vnleuen-

The consecratynge of Aaron, of his sonnes, and of the altare.

This is it also, that thou shalt do vnto the, that they maye be cõsecrated prestes vnto me: * Take a yonge bullocke and two rammes without blemyshe, vnleuended breade and vnleuended cakes mixte with oyle, and wafers of swete breade tempered with oyle: Of wheate floure shalt thou make them al, and put them in a maunde and brynge thẽ in the maunde, with the bullocke and two rammes.

And thou shalt brynge Aaron & his sonnes vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and washe them with water and take the garmentes, and put vpõ Aarõ the albe & the tunicle, ouerbodycote & the brestlappe to the ouerbody cote &, shalte gyrde him on the out syde vpõ yͤ ouerbody cote, & set yͤ myter vpõ his heade, and the holy crown vpon the myter: and shalt take the anoyntynge oyle, and poure it vpon his heade, and anoynte hym.

Thou shalt brynge forth his sonnes H also, and put the albes vpon them, and gyrde both Aaron and them with gyrdles, and set the bonettes vpon their heades, that they maye haue the presthode for a perpetuall custome.

And thou shalt fyll the hãdes of Aaron & his sonnes, and brynge forth the bullocke before the Tabernacle of witnesse. * And Aaron and his sonnes shal laye their handes vpon the heade of the bullocke, and thou shalt sley the bullocke before the LORDE, at the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and shalt take of his bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare with thy fynger, and poure all the other bloude vpon the botome of the altare.

* And thou shalt take all the fat yͭ couereth the bowels and the nette vpon the leuer, and the two kydneys with the fat that is aboute them, and burne them vpõ the altare. But the bullockes flesh, skynne, & donge, shalt thou burne with fyre without the hoost: for it is a synne offerynge.

The one ramme shalt thou take also, and Aaron with his sonnes shal lay theyr handes vpon his heade. The shal thou slaye hym, and take of his bloude, and sprenkle it vpon the altare rounde aboute. But the ramme shalt thou devyde in peces, and wash his bowels, & his legges, and laye them vpon the peces and the heade, and burne the whole ramme vpõ the altare: for it is a burntofferyng, and a swete sauoure of the sacrifice vnto the LORDE.

fyre, and stamped it vnto powlder, & stro-wed it in the water, and gaue it vnto y chyldren of Israell to drynke, and sayd vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vn-Aaron sayd: Let not y wrath of my Moses, that brought vs out of y lande of Egipte. I sayd vnto them: Who so hath gold, let hym plucke it of, and gyue it me: and I cast it in y fyre, therof came this calfe.

Now whan Moses sawe, that the people were naked (for Aaron, whan he set them vp, made them naked to their shame) he went into the gate of y hoost, and sayde: Who so belongeth vnto the LORD, let hym come hither vnto me.
Then all the chyldren of Leui gathered and slaye euery man his brother, frende,

The chyldren of Leui dyd, as Mo-people the same daye thre thousand men.

Then sayd Moses: Consecrate your hades this daye vnto the LORDE, euery man vpon his sonne and brother, that y prayse may be geuen ouer you this day.

On the morow Moses sayd vnto y people: Ye haue done a great synne.
Now I wyll go vp vnto the LORD, yf peraduenture I may make an atonement for youre synnes.

Now whā Moses came agayne vnto the LORDE, he sayd: Oh this people haue done a great synne, and haue made thē goddes of gold. * Now forgeue thē theyr synne: yf not, then wype me out of thy boke, that thou hast wrytten.
The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: What? Hym that synneth agaynst me, wyll I wype out of my * boke. Go thou Beholde, myne angel shal go before the.

But in the daye of my visitacion I wyl vysite theyr synnes vpon them. So the LORDE plaged the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

from the, that I maye knowe what to do vnto the. So the children of Israel layed theyr goodly araye from thẽ, out before the mount Horeb.

Moses toke the tabernacle, and pitched it without afarre of frõ the hoost and called it ye Tabernacle of witnesse.
And whosoeuer wold axe any question at the LORDE, wente out vnto the Tabernacle of witnesse before ye hoost.
And whan Moses wente out vnto the Tabernacle, all the people rose vp and stode euery one in his tente dore, and loked after Moses tyll he was gone in to the Tabernacle. * And whan Moses entred in to the Tabernacle, ye cloudy pyler came downe, and stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people sawe the cloudy pyler stõde in the dore of the Tabernacle, and rose vp, and worshipped, euery one in his tent dore.

C * And the LORDE spake vnto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh with his frende. And whan he turned agayne to the hoost, the yonge mã * Josua the sonne of Nun his minister, departed not out of the Tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Beholde, thou sayedest vnto me: Brynge the people vp, and lettest me not know, whom thou wilt sende with me, & yet hast thou sayd: I knowe the by name, and thou hast founde grace in my sight Let me knowe thy waye therfore, wherby I maye be certifyed, that I fynde grace in thy sight: And cõsydre yet, that this people is thy people.

He sayde: My presence shall go before the, therwith will I lede the. But he sayde vnto hym: Yf thy presence go not, then cary vs not vp frõ hence, for wherby shall it be knowne, yt I and thy people haue foũde fauoure in thy sight, but in that thou goest with vs? yt I and thy people maye haue some preeminẽce before all people that are vpon the face of the earth? The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: I wyl do th s also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my syght, and I knowe ye by name.

D He sayde: Oh let me the se thy glory. And he sayd, I wyl cause al my good go ouer before thy face, and wyll let the name of ye LORDE be called vpõ before the. * And I shewe mercy, to whõ I shewe mercy, & haue compassion, on whom I haue compassion. And he sayd moreouer: Thou mayest not se my face, * for there shall no mã lyue, yt seyth me.
And the LORDE sayde farthermore: beholde, there is a place by me, there shalt thou stonde vpon the rocke. Now whan my glory goeth forth, I wyl put the in a clyfte of ye rocke, and my hande shall holde styll vpon the, tyll I be passed by. And whan I take awaye myne hande from the, thou shalt se my back partes, but my face shall not be sene.

The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Moses receaueth other tables of ye LORDE with certayne lawes. The people are afrayed at the bryghtnesse of his face.

A And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: * Hew ye two tables of stone, like as the first were, yt I maye wryte in the the wordes, that were in the first tables, which thou brakest: and be ready in the mornynge, yt thou mayest come vp early vnto mounte Sinai, and stonde me vpon the toppe of the mount.
And let no man come vp with the, that there be no man sene thorow out all ye mount: & let nether shepe nor oxen fede before the mount.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone lyke as the first were, & arose early in the mornynge, and wente vp vnto mount Sinai, as the LORDE commaunded him, & toke the two tables of stone in his hande. The came the LORDE downe in a cloude. And there he stode vnto hym, & called vpon the name of ye LORDE. And whan the LORDE passed by befor his face, he cryed: LORDE LORDE, God * mercyfull & gracious, & lõge sufferinge, & of greate mercy, & trueth & & that kepest mercy in stoare for thousandes, & forgeuest wyckednes,

The.xxxv.Chapter.

¶ Certayne statutes cōcernynge ẏ Tabernacle. The workmē are appoynted.

A And Moses gathered all the congregaciō of the chyldren of Israell together, & sayde vnto them: This is it ẏ the LORDE hath commaunded you to do: * Sixe dayes shall ye worke, but the seuenth daye shall ye kepe holy: a Sabbath of ẏ LORDES rest. Who so euer doeth eny worke therin, shall dye. Ye shall kyndle no fyre vpon ẏ Sabbath day in al youre dwellinges. (Exo.20.b / Exo.34.c)

And Moses sayd vnto the whole cōgregacion of ẏ chyldrē of Israel: This is it, ẏ the LORD hath commaunded: * Geue from amonge you Heueofferinges vnto ẏ LORD, so ẏ euery one bringe ẏ LORDES Heueofferynge with a fre hart: golde, syluer, brasse, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, & goates heere, reed skynnes of rammes, doo skynnes, and Fyre tre, oyle, for ẏ lāpes, & spyces for the anoyntinge oyle & for swete incēse. Onix stones, & stones to be set in ẏ ouerbodycote, & for ẏ brestlappe. (Exo.25.a)

B And who so is wyse of hart amōge you, let him come, & make what ẏ LORDE hath cōmaunded: namely, the Habitacion with the tent & couerynge therof, the rynges, bordes, barres, pylers & sokettes: The Arke wt the staues therof, the Mercyseate & the vayle: ẏ table wt his staues & all his apparell: and the Shewbread: The candilsticke of lyght & his apparell, and his lampes, & the oyle for the lyghtes: The altare of incense wt his staues: The anoyntynge oyle & spyces for incense: The hāgynge before ẏ Tabernacle dore: The alter of burntofferynges wt his brasen gredyron, staues & all his apparel: The lauer wt his fote: The hanginges of the courte, with the pylers & sokettes therof & the hanginge of the courtedore: The nayles of the habitacion & of the courte with their coardes: The mynistrynge garmentes for ẏ seruyce in the Holy, the holy vestymentes of Aarō ẏ prest with the vestimētes of his sonnes for the prestes office.

C Then wente all ẏ congregaciō of ẏ chyldren of Israel out frō Moses, and euery one brought the gift of his hart: & all ẏ they wolde of fre wyll, the same brought they for an Heueofferynge vnto ẏ LORDE for the worke of ẏ Tabernacle of wytnesse, & for all ẏ seruyce therof, & for the holy vestymētes. Both mē & wemē ẏ were of a wyllynge hart, brought braceletes, earynges, rynges & gyrdels, & all maner iewels of golde: Euery mā also brought gold for Waueofferynges vnto the LORDE.

And who so euer foūde by hym yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, whyte sylke, goates heere, reed skynnes of rammes, & doo skynnes, brought it. And who so euer houe vp syluer, & brasse, brought it for the Heueofferynge vnto ẏ LORD And who so euer founde Fyre tre by hym, brought it for all maner of worke of the Gods seruyce. And such wemē as were wyse harted, spanne with their hādes, & brought their spōne worke of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte sylke. And soch wemen as had hye vnderstondynge in wysdome, spāne goates heere.

D As for the prynces, they brought Onix stones, and set stones, for the ouerbody coate, & for the brestlappe, & spyces, and oyle for the lyghtes, and for the anoyntynge oyle, and for swete incense. Thus the chyldren of Israell brought fre wyllynge offerynges, both man and women, for all maner of worke, that the LORDE had cōmaunded by Moses, to be made.

And Moses sayd vnto ẏ chyldrē of Israel: Beholde, ẏ LORD hath called by name Bezaleel the sonne of Vri, the sonne of Hur of ẏ trybe of Iuda, and hath fylled hym wt the sprete of God, ẏ he maye haue wysdome, vnderstondinge, & knowlege for all maner of worke, to worke connyngly in golde, syluer and brasse, to graue precious stones & to set them, to carue in wood, to make all maner of connyng workes, and hath geuē instruccion in his hart, both him & Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of ẏ trybe of Dan. These hath he fylled with wysdome of hart, to make all maner of worke, to carue, to broder, to worke wt nedle worke, wt yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte sylke, and wt weuynge to make all maner of worke, and to deuyse connynge workes.

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ What the thinges be ẏ they made.

A Then wrought * Bezaleel & Ahaliab & all the wyse harted mē, vnto whō ẏ LORDE had geuen wysdome & vnderstondynge to knowe, how they shulde make all maner worke for the seruyce of the Sanctuary, acordinge vnto all that the LORDE cōm- (Exod.31.a) maunded. And Moses called for Bez-leel & Ahaliab, & all ẏ wyse harted mē, vnto whom the LORDE had geuen wysdom in their hartes, namely, al such as willingly offred thē selues there, and came to laboure in the worke. And they receaued of Moses all the Heueofferin ges, ẏ the chyldren of Israell had brought for the worke of the seruyce of the Sanctuary, ẏ it myght be made: & euery mornynge brought they their wyllynge offerynges vnto hym.

B Then came all the wyse men that wrought in the worke of the Sanctuary, euery one from his worke ẏ he made, & sayde vnto Moses: The people brynngeth to much, more then nede is for the worke of this seruyce, which ẏ LORDE hath commaunded to make. Thē commaunded Moses ẏ it shulde be proclamed thorow out ẏ hoost: No mā brynge more to the Heueofferynge of ẏ Sanctuary. Then were the people forbyddē to brynge: for there was stuf ynough for all maner of worke, ẏ was to be made, and to much.

Exo.26.a. *So all the wyse harted mē amōge thē ẏ wrought in ẏ worke of the Habitacyon, made ten curtaynes of whyte twyned sylke yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, wͭ Cherubyns of brodered worke.
The lenght of one curtayne was eight and twentye cubites, & the bredth foure cubites, and were all of one measure: & he coupled the curtaynes fyue & fyue to gether one to the other.

C And made yalow loupes a longe by the edge of euery curtayne, where they shulde be coupled together: fiftie loupes vpō euery curtayne, wherby one might be coupled to another. And made fiftie buttōs of golde, and with the buttons he coupled the curtaynes together one to ẏ other, ẏ it might be one coueringe.

Exo.26.b. *And he made xi. curtaynes of goates heere (for the tent ouer ẏ habitaciō) of thyrtie cubytes lōge, & foure cubites brode, all of one measure, and coupled fyue together by them selues, & sixe by thē selues, & made fiftie loupes a longe by the edge of euery curtayne, wherby they myght be coupled together, & made fiftie buttons of brasse, to couple ẏ tent together withall. And made ouer ẏ tent a coueringe of reed skynnes of rammes, & ouer ẏ a coueringe of doskinnes.

D *And made standinge bordes for the Exo.26.c. Habitacion, of Fyrre tre, euery one ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and a half brode, & two fete vnto euery one, wher-by one myght be ioyned to another. So ẏ on the south syde there stode twentye of the same bordes: & made fortye syluer sokettes there vnder, vnder euery borde two sokettes for his two fete. In lyke maner for ẏ other syde of the Habitaciō towarde the north, he made twētye bor-des also with fortye syluer sokettes, vnder euery borde twoo sokettes: But behynde ẏ Habitacion vpō the west syde, he made sixe bordes, and two other for the corners of the Habitacion behynde, that eyther of thē both might be ioyned with his corner borde from vnder vp, & aboue vpon the heade to come together with a clampe: so that there were eyght bordes, and sixtene sokettes of syluer, vnder euery one two sokettes.

And he made barres of Fyrre tre, fyue for the bordes vpō the one syde of the Habitacion, and fyue vpon ẏ other syde, and fyue behynde towarde ẏ west: and made the barres to shute thorow the bordes, from the one ende to the other, & ouerlayde the bordes with golde But their rynges made he of golde for the barres, and ouerlayde the barres with golde.

And made Cherubyns vpon the hā-gyng wͭ brodered worke, of yalow silke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke.
And made for the same, foure pylers of Fyrre tre, and ouerlayed them wͭ golde, and their knoppes of golde, & cast foure sokettes of syluer for them.

And made an hangynge in the Tabernacle dore, of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, & whyte twyned sylke, of nedle worke, and fyue pylers therto wͭ theyr knoppes (and ouerlayed their knoppes and whoopes with golde) & fyue soket-tes of brasse therto.

The.xxxvii.Chapter.

The Tabernacle of wytnesse with the staues, Cherubins, the table, cand-sticke.

AND Bezaleel made the Ar-ke of Fyrre tre, two cubites and a half longe, a cubyte & a half brode, and a cubyte and a half hye, and ouerlay-ed it wͭ fyne golde within & without, and made a crowne of golde vnto it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure ringes of golde to the foure corners of it vpon euery syde two. And made staues of fyrretre, & ouerlayed them with golde and put them in the rynges alonge by the sydes of the Arke, to beare it withall.

And he made ye Mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and an halfe longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode, & made two Cherubins of fyne beaten golde vp on the two endes of the Mercyseate: One Cherub vpon the one ende, and the other Cherub vpon the other ende and the Cherubyns spredde out theyr wynges aboue an hye, and couered the Mercyseate therwith: and theyr faces stode one ouer agaynst the other, and loked vnto the Mercyseate.

* And he made the table, of fyrretre B two cubytes longe, a cubyte brode, and xo.25.c a cubyte and a halfe hye, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, & made vnto it an whoope of an handebredth hye, and made a crowne of golde rou͂de aboute the whoope. And for it he cast foure golde rynges, and put them in the foure corners by the fete harde by the whoope, that ye staues myght be therin to beare the table withall: and made the staues of fyrretre, and ouerlayed them with golde, to beare the staues withall. And the vessels vpon the table made he also of fyne gold: the dishes, spones, flat peces and pottes, to poure in and out withall.

C * And he made the ca͂delsticke of fyne xo.25.d beaten golde, wher vpon was the shafte with braunches, cuppes, knoppes, and floures. Syre braunches proceaded out of the sydes therof, vpo͂ eyther syde thre braunches: vpon euery braunche were thre cuppes lyke almondes, with knoppes and floures. Vpo͂ the candelsticke it selfe were foure cuppes with knoppes and floures, vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. The knoppes and braunches therof proceaded out of it, and were all one pece of fyne beaten golde. And he made the seuen lampes with theyr snoffers and outquenchers of pure golde. Of an hundreth weyght of golde made he it, and all the apparell therof.

He made also the altare of incense, D of fyrretre, a cubyte longe and brode, euen foure squayred, & two cubytes hye with the hornes of it, and ouerlayed it with fyne golde, the toppe and ye sydes of it rounde aboute, and the hornes therof, and made a crowne vnto it rounde aboute of pure golde, and two golde rynges vnder the crowne on both the sydes to put the staues therin, and to beare it withall: but the staues made he of fyrretre, and ouerlayed them with golde.

And he made the holy anoyntynge oyle, and the ince͂se of pure spyces, after the craft of the apoticary.

The.xxxviii. Chapter.

The altare of brent offerynges with the thynges belongynge therto.

And the * altare of burntofferynges made he of fyrretre, fyue cubytes longe and brode, euen foure squayred, & thre cubytes hye. And made foure hornes, whiche proceaded out of foure corners therof, and ouerlayed it with brasse. And he made all maner of vessels for the altare, cauldrons shouels, ba sens, fleshokes, and colepannes all of brasse. And vnto ye altare he made a brasen gredyron of net worke rou͂de about, from vnder vp vnto the myddest of the altare, and cast foure rynges in the foure corners of the brasen gredyron, for the staues: whiche he made of fyrretre, and ouerlayed them with brasse, and put the͂ in the rynges by the sydes of the altare, to beare it withall, and made it holowe with bordes.

2.Par.1.a

And he made the Lauer of brasse, & his fote also of brasse vpon the place of the hoost, that laye before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse.

And he made the court on the south B syde: the hangynges an hu͂dreth cubytes longe, of whyte twyned sylke, with the twentye pilers therof, and twentye sokettes of brasse: but ye knoppes & whoopes of syluer. In lyke maner vpon the north syde an hundreth cubytes & twentye pilers, and twenty sokettes of brasse but theyr knoppes and whoopes of syluer. Vpon the west syde fyftye cubytes with ten pilers & ten sokettes, but theyr knoppes and whoopes of syluer. Vpon the East syde fyfty cubytes. Fyftene cubytes vpo͂ eyther syde of the court dore, with thre pilers and thre sokettes: So that all the ha͂gynges of the court were of whyte twyned sylke, and the sokettes of the pi[illegible] were of brasse, and theyr knoppes and whoopes of syluer: theyr heades were ouerlayed with syluer, and al the pilers of the court were whooped aboute with syluer.

C And the hangynge in the court gate made he with nedle worke, of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, twenty cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes hye, after the measure of the hangynges of the courte: foure pylers also therto, and foure sokettes of brasse, and theyr knoppes of syluer, and theyr heades ouerlaped, and theyr whoopes of syluer. And all the nayles of the Habitacyon and of the courte rounde aboute, were of brasse.

This is now the summe of the Habitacyon of witnesse (which was counted at the commaūdement of Moses to the Gods seruice of the Leuites vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the prest) which Bezaleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Juda made, all as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And with hym Ahaliab the sonne of Ahisamach of ye trybe of Dan, a connynge grauer, to worke nedle worke, with yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte sylke.

All the golde that was wrought in all this worke of Sanctuary (whiche was geuen to ye Waueofferyng) is nyne and twenty hundreth weyght: seuen hūdreth and thyrty Sycles, after ye Sycle of the Sanctuary.

Exo.30.b. D * The syluer yt came of the congregacyon, was fyue score hūdreth weyght, a thousande, seuen hundreth, fyue and seuenty Sycles, after ye Sycle of the sanctuarye: so many heades, so many halfe Sycles after the Sycle of the Sanctuary, of all yt were nombred from twenty yeare olde and aboue, euen sixe hundreth thousande, thre thousande, fyue hundreth and fyftye.

Of ye fyue score hūdreth weyght of syluer, were cast ye sokettes of ye Sanctuary, & the sokettes of ye vayle, an hūdreth sokettes of ye fyue score hūdreth weight an hundreth weyght to euery soket. Of the thousande, seuē hundreth & fyue and seuenty Sycles were made the knoppes of the pilers (& theyr heades ouerlaped) and theyr whoopes.

As for the Waueofferynge of brasse it was seuentye hundreth weyght, two thousande and foure hundreth Sycles: Wherof were made the sokettes in the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyron therto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sokettes of the court rounde aboute, and the sokettes of the courte gate, all the nayles of the Habitacyō, & al the nayles of the court rou̅de aboute.

The.xxxix. Chapter.

C Of the prestes garmentes.

Of the yalowe sylke, scarlet, & purple, they made Aarons mynistrynge vestimentes, to do seruyce in the Sāctuary, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And he made the ouerbody cote, of golde, yalowe sylke scarlet, purple, and white twyned sylke, and bette the golde into thynne plates, and cut it in to wyers, that it mighte be wrought amonge the yalow sylke, scarlet, purple & whyte sylke, and made it so, that the ouerbody cote came together by ye edges on both the sydes. And his gyrdel was after the same crafte and worke: euen of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple and whyte twyned sylke, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And they wroughte two Onix stones, set it rounde aboute with golde, grauen by the stone grauer with the names of the chyldren of Israel: and fastened them vpon the shulders of the ouerbodycote, that they mighte be stones of remēbraūce vnto the childrē of Israell, as the LORDE cōmaūded Moses.

And they made the brestlappe after the craft & worke of the ouerbody cote of golde, yalowe sylke, scarlet purple, & whyte twyned sylke, so yt it was foure squayre and dubble, an hande bredth longe and brode, and filled it with foure rowes of stones. The fyrst rowe was: a Sardis, a Topas, a Smaragde. The seconde: a Ruby, a Saphyre, & a Dyamōde. The third: a Ligurios, an Achat and an Amatist. The fourth: a Turcas, an Onix and a Jaspis: closed rounde aboute with gold in all the rowes. And the stones stode after the twolue names of the children of Israell, grauen by the stone grauer, euery one with his name, accordynge to the twolue trybes.

And vpon the brestlappe they made wrythē cheynes of pure golde, and two hokes of golde, and two golde rynges, and fastened the two rynges vpon the two edges of the brestlappe: & the two wrythē cheynes put they in the two rynges vpon the corners of the brestlappe. But the two endes of the wrythen cheynes put they to the two hokes, & fastened them vpon the corners of the ouerbody cote, one ouer agaynst another.

And they made two other rynges of golde, & fastened them to the other two corners of the brestlappe by the edge of it, that it myght hange vpō the outsyde of the ouerbody cote. And they made yet two other golde rynges, which they put beneth vpō the two corners of the ouerbody cote, one ouer agaynst another where the ouerbody cote ioyneth together, ŷ the brestlappe myght be festened by his rynges vnto the rynges of the ouerbody cote with a yalowe lace, that it myght lye close vpō ŷ ouerbody cote, and not be lowsed from the ouerbody cote, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And he made the tunycle vnto the ouerbody cote, wrought al of yalow silke, & the hole therof aboue in the myddest, & a bonde folde together rounde aboute the hole, that it shulde not rente. And beneth vpon the hemme of it, they made pomgranates of yalow sylke, scarlet, purple, and whyte twyned sylke, & they made belles of pure golde, which they put betwixte the pomgranates rounde aboute vpon the hemme of the tunycle, a bell and a pomgrate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute, to do seruyce in, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses.

D And they made albes also wrought of whyte sylke for Aaron and his sōnes, and the myter of whyte sylke, and the goodly bonettes of whyte sylke, and breches of twyned whyte lynnen, and the girdle of nedle worke out of whyte twyned sylke, yalow sylke, scarlet, and purple, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses.

They made the forheade plate also to the holy crowne, of pure golde, and wrote therin with grauen worke: the holynes of the LORDE, and festened a yalowe lace theron, to tye it vnto the myter aboue, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses.

Thus the whole worke of the habitacyon of ŷ Tabernacle of witnesse, was fynyshed. And the children of Israel dyd all that the LORDE cōmaunded Moses, and broughte the habitacion vnto Moses: the Tabernacle and all the apparell therof, the buttons, bordes, barres, pylers, sokettes, the couerynge of reed skynnes of rammes, the couerynge of dooskynnes, and the vayle, the Arke of witnesse with the staues therof. The Mercyseate, the table and all his apparell, and the shewbred, the candelsticke, E with the lampes prepared, & all his apparell, and oyle for ŷ lightes, the golde altare, the anoyntynge oyle and incense, the hanging in the Tabernacle dore, the brasen altare, and his brasen gredyron with his staues, & all his apparell, the lauer with his foote, the hangynges of the courte with the pylers and sokettes therof, the hangynge in the courtgate with his pylers and nayles, and al the ordynaunce for the seruice of the habitacyon of the Tabernacle of witnesse, the mynistrynge vestimentes of Aaron the prest, to do seruyce in the Sanctuary, and the garmentes of his sonnes, that they might execute the prestes office. Acordynge to all that the LORDE commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the chyldrē of Israell in all this seruice. And Moses sawe all the worke, that they dyd it euen as the LORDE had commaunded, and he blessed them.

The .xl. Chapter.

¶ The LORDE commaundeth Moses to set vp the tabernacle, & to order the apparell therof.

A AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, & sayde: In the first day of the first moneth shalt thou set vp the Habi-tacion of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & shalt put ŷ Arke of wytnes therin, & hange the vayle before the Ar ke. And thou shalt brynge in the table, and garnish it, and brynge in the candil sticke, and put the lampes theron. And the golde altare of incense shalt thou set before the Arke of wytnesse, & hange vp the hangynge in the dore of the Ha-bitacion. But the altare of burntofferin ges shalt thou set before the dore of the Habitacion of the Tabernacle of wyt-nesse: & the lauer betwixte the Taberna cle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water theryn, & set the courte rounde aboute, and hange vp the hangynge in the courtegate.
B And thou shalt take the anoyntinge oyle, and anoynte the Habitacion & all Exo. 30.f that is there in, * and shalt cōsecrate it, and all the apparel therof, that it maye be holy. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burntofferynges and all his ves sels, & consecrate it, ŷ it maye be moost holy. The lauer also and his fote shalt thou anoynte and consecrate.
Exo. 29.a. * And thou shalt brynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and wash them with water, & put the holy vestimentes vpon Aaron, and anoynte hym, and consecrate hym, that he maye be my prest. And thou shalt brynge his sonnes also, and put the albes vpon thē, & anoynte thē, as thou hast anoynted their father, that they maye be my prestes. And this anoyn tinge shall they haue for an euerlastinge presthode amonge their posterities.
Num. 7.a * And Moses dyd all as the LORDE commaunded hym.
C * Thus was the tabernacle set vp Num. 9.c. in the seconde yeare vpon the first daye of the first moneth. And whan Moses reared it vp, he fastened the sokettes & the bordes, and barres, and set vp the pylers, and spred out the tent ouer the Habitation, and put the couerynge of the tent aboue an hye, as ŷ LORDE commaunded hym. And he toke the wit nesse, and layed in the Arke, & put ŷ sta ues in the Arke, and set the Mercyseate aboue vpon the Arke, and brought ŷ Arke in to the Habitacion, and hanged the vayle before the Arke of wytnesse, as the LORDE commaunded hym.
And he set the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, in the corner of ŷ Ha bitaciō vpon the northsyde without the vayle, and prepared bread therō before the LORDE * as the LORDE com maunded hym.
D And he set in the candlesticke also, euen ouer agaynst the table, in the corner of Habitacion vpon the south syde, and put the lampes theron before the LORDE, as the LORD cōmaunded hym. And the golden altare set he in al so before the vayle, and brent swet incense theron, as the LORDE cōmaun ded hym. And hanged vp the hangynge in the tabernacle dore. As for the altare of burntofferynges, he set it before the dore of the Habitacion of the Taberna cle of wytnesse, and offred burntofferin ges and meate offerynges theron, as ŷ LORDE commaunded hym.
* And ŷ Lauer set he be twixte ŷ Ta bernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water theryn to wash withall. And Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their hādes & fete therat: for they ought to wash thē, and they wente in to ŷ Ta bernacle of wytnesse, or whā they came vnto the altare, as the LORDE com
maunded hym.
And he set vp the courte rounde a-boute the Habitacion and the altare, & hanged vp the hangynge in the courte gate. Thus Moses fynyshed the whole worke.
* Then a cloude couered the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and the glory of the LORDE fylled the Habitacion. And Moses coulde not go in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse, whyle ŷ cloude abode theron and the glory of the LORDE fylled the habitacion.
And whan the cloude remoued fro the Habitacion, then wente the chyldren of Israel forth, as oft as they toke their iourney. But yf the cloude remoued not then toke not they theyr iourney, tyll the daye ŷ it remoued: for in the daye tyme was the cloud of the LORDE vpō ŷ Habitacyon, & in the nyght season was fyre theryn, in the syght of all the house of Israel, in all theyr iourneys.

B God shalbe mercyfull vnto hym.
And he shall kyll ỹ yonge oxe before the LORD: & the prestes Aarōs sōnes shall brynge ỹ bloud, & sprynkle it rounde aboute vpon ỹ altare, ỹ is before ỹ dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the skynne shalbe flayne frō of ỹ burntofferynge, & it shalbe hewē in peces. And ỹ sōnes of Aarō the prest shal make a fyre vpō ỹ altare, & laye wood aboue theron & the peces, ỹ heade, & the fat shal they laye vpon ỹ wood ỹ lyeth vpon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels & legges shalbe wasshen with water, & the prest shall burne altogether vpō the altare for a burntsacrifice: this is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.
C Yf he wyll offre a burntsacrifice of the small catell, that is, of the lambes or goates, the let him offre a male without a blemyshe. And he shall kyll it before ỹ LORDE, euen at the corner of the altare on the northsyde before the LORD. And (the prestes) Aarons sonnes shall sprynkle his bloude rounde about vpon the altare, & it shalbe hewen in peces. And the prest shal laye them with the head & the fat, vpon the wood that lyeth vpon the fyre on the altare. But the bowels & the legges shalbe washen with water. And the prest shall offre it altogether, & burne it vpon the altare for a burntsacrifice. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

D But yf he wyl offre a burntsacrifice of the foules vnto the LORDE, then let hym offre it of the turtell doues or of the yonge pigeons. And the prest shall brynge it vnto the altare, & wrynge the necke of it a sunder, ỹ it maye be burnt vpon the altare, and let the bloude of it runne out vpon the sydes of the altare, and the croppe of it with the fethers shalbe cast vpon the heape of asshes besyde ỹ altare towarde ỹ east, and he shall deuyde the wynges of it, but not breake them cleane of. And thus shall the prest burne it vpon the altare, euen vpon the wood that lyeth vpon the fyre, for a burntsacrifice. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

The.ii. Chapter.

Of meatofferynges with fine floure. &c.

E When a soule wyll offre a meatofferynge vnto the LORD, then shal it be of fyne floure, and he shall poure oyle vpō it, and put frankensense theron, and so brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the prestes. Then shal one of them take his handefull of the same floure, & oyle with all the frankencense, and burne it for a remembraūce vpon the altare. This is an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. * As for the remnaunt of the meatofferynge, it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. This shalbe the most holy of the offerynge of the LORDE.
F But yf he wyl brynge a meatofferynge of that which is baken in the ouen, then let hym take swete cakes of wheate, mixte with oyle, and vnleuended wafers anoynted with oyle. Neuertheles yf thy meatofferynge be any thynge of that which is fryed in ỹ panne, the shal it be of fyne swete floure mixt with oyle. And thou shalt cut it in peces, & poure oyle theron: so is it a meatofferynge.
But yf thy meatofferinge be ought broyled on the gredyron, then shalt thou make it of fyne floure with oyle. And ẏ meatofferynge that thou wylt make of suche thynges for the LORDE, shalte thou brynge vnto the prest, whiche shall brynge it vnto the altare, and shal heue vp the same meatofferynge for a remem braunce, and burne it vpon the altare.

C This is an offerynge of a swete sauour vnto the LORDE. As for the remnaunt it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes. This shalbe the moost holy of the offerynges of the LORDE.

All the meatofferynges that ye wyll offre vnto the LORDE, shall ye make without leuen. For there shall no leuen nor hony be burnt for an offerynge vnto the LORDE. But for the offerynge of the fyrstelynges shall ye offer them vnto the LORDE. Neuertheles they shall come vpō no altare for a swete sauour.
D All thy meatofferynges shalte thou at.5.b * salt. And thy meatofferynge shall ne ar.9.c uer be without the salt of the couenaūt thou offre salt.

But yf thou wylt offre a meatoffe rynge of the fyrst frutes vnto ẏ LORD then shalt thou drye that which is grene by the fyre, and beate it small, and so of fre the meatofferynge of thy fyrste fru tes. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye frankencense theron, so is it a meat offerynge. And then shall the prest beate it, and burne of the oyle with all ẏ fran kencense for a remembraunce. This is an offerynge vnto the LORDE.

of the offerynge vnto the LORDE.

But yf his offerynge be a goate, and C brynge it before the LORDE, he shall laye his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the Tabernacle of yonge bullocke for a synofferynge, & set hym before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Elders of the congregacyon shall laye theyr handes vpon his head before the LORDE, and kyl the prest that is anoynted, shall brynge of the bullockes bloude into the Taber that stondeth before the dore of the Ta bernacle of wytnesse. But all his fatte shall he heue vp, and burne it vpon the altare: and shall do with this bullocke, as he dyd with the bullocke of the synofferynge: Thus the prest shall make an attonemēt for them, and it shalbe forgeuen them. And ẏ bullocke shall he bryng without the hoost, and burne him, as he brent the fyrst bullocke. This shalbe the synofferynge of the congregacyon.

When a prynce synneth, and doth a- E gaynst the cōmaundement of ẏ LORD his God, that he ought not to do, and of-fendeth ignorauntly, and commeth to ẏ knowlege of his synne ẏ he hath done, he shall brynge for his offerynge an he goate without blemysshe, and laye his hande vpon the goates heade, and slaye him in the place where the burntofferyn ges are slayne before the LORDE. Let this be his synofferynge. Then shall the prest take of the bloude of the synoffe-rynge with his fynger, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare of burntofferyn ges, and poure ẏ other bloude vpon the botome of the altare of burntofferynges.
But all the fat of it shall he burne vpon the altare, lyke as the fat of the thank-offerynge. And so the prest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shal be forgeuen hym.

When a soule of the comon people F on the botome of the altare. But all the fat of it shall he take awaye, lyke as he taketh awaye the fat of the thankoffe-rynge, and shal burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE.

And so shall ẏ prest make an attonemēt for hym, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

But yf he brynge a lambe for a syn G offerynge, then let hym brynge a femall without blemyshe, & laye his hande vpō all the fatte therof shall he take from it, lyke as he dyd the fat of the lambe of the thankofferynges, and shall burne it vpon the altare for the LORDES sa crifice. And so the prest shall make an attonement for the synne that he hath done, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.

The.v.Chapter.

The offeryng for swearynge, for an errour or ignoraunce.

A Whan a soule synneth, that .24.c he heare a cursynge, and is witnesse therof, or hath sene it, or knowne it & telleth it
.2.b not, he is giltye of a trespas
.6.c ce. * Or whan a soule ye toucheth any vn cleane thyng, whether it be carion of an vncleane beast or catel or worme, & was not aware of it, he is vncleane, & hath offended. Or whan he toucheth an vnclean man (what vnclenesse soeuer a man is defyled withall) & was not aware of it, & afterwarde commeth to the knowlege therof, the same hath offended. Or whan a soule sweareth, so that he pronounce with his mouth to do euell or good (what soeuer it be that a man pronounceth with an ooth) and was not aware of it, and
therof, he hath offended in one of these.
B Now whan it so is, that he hath of fended one of these, and is enfourmed therof, what he hath synned, he shall brynge vnto the LORDE for his tres pace of this his synne that he hath done a femall from the flocke, eyther a yewe or a she goate for a synofferynge: so shal the prest make an attonement for hym .12.d concernynge his synne. * But yf he be not able to brynge a shepe, then let hym brynge vnto the LORD for his offence that he hath done, two turtell doues or two yonge pigyons: one for a synne offe rynge, the other for a burnt offerynge, and brynge them to the prest. Which shall make the fyrst a synneofferynge, & fyrst wrynge the necke of it, so that he plucke it not cleane of, and sprenckle with the bloud vpon the sydes of the altare, and let the resydue of the bloude blede out C vpon the botome of the altare: This is the synofferyng. As for the other, he shal make it a burntofferynge, after the ma ner therof. And thus shal the prest make an attonement for hym concernynge the synne that he hath done, and it shall be forgeuen hym. But yf he be not able to brynge two turtell doues or two yonge pigyons, then let hym brynge his offe rynge for his synne, a tenth deale of an Epha of fyne floure for a synofferynge.
But he shall put no oyle theron, nor laye frankencense vpon it, for it is a synne offerynge. And he shall brynge it vnto ye prest, and the prest shall take his hande full of it for a remembraunce, and burne it vpon the altare for an offerynge vnto the LORDE. This is a synofferynge.
And so shall the prest make an attone ment for him, concernynge his synne that he hath done, and it shalbe forgeuen him.
And the remnaunt shalbe the prestes, lyke a meatofferynge.
And the LORDE spake vnto Mo ses, & sayde: Yf a soule trespace, so that thorow ignoraunce he offendeth in any thynge that is halowed vnto the LOR DE, he shall brynge his trespaceoffe rynge vnto the LORDE, euen a ramme D from the flocke without blemysh, worth two Sycles of syluer, * after the Sycle Exo. 30.d of the Sanctuary, for a trespace offe rynge: and loke what he hath offended in the halowed thynge, he shall make re stitucyon, and geue the fyfth parte more therto. And he shall delyuer it vnto the prest, which shall make an attonement for him with the ramme of the trespace offerynge, and it shalbe forgeuen hym.
Whan a soule synneth, & doth ought agaynste any commaundement of the LORDE, that he shulde not do, and is infourmed therof, he hath trespased, & is giltie of the synne. And he shall bryng from the flocke a ramme without ble mysh (that is worth a trespaceofferyng) vnto the prest, which shall make an atto nement for hym concernynge his igno raunce which he dyd, & was not aware and it shalbe forgeuen hym. This is the trespaceofferynge, because he trespaced agaynst the LORDE.
And the LORDE talked with Mo E ses, and sayde: Whan a soule synneth, & trespaceth agaynst the LORD, so that he denyeth vnto his neyghboure ye which he gaue him to kepe, or that was put vn der his hande, or that he hath violently taken awaye, or gotten vnrighteously, or founde that was lost, and denyeth it with a false ooth, what soeuer it be, wherin a man synneth agaynst his neygh boure. * Now whan it commeth so to Num. 5.a passe, that he synneth after this maner, and trespaceth, he shall restore agayne ye he toke violently awaye, or gat wrong ously, or that was geuen him to kepe, or that he hath founde, or whatsoeuer it be aboute the which he hath sworne falsely he shall restore it agayne whole alltogether, and geue the fyfth parte more therto, euen to hym that it belonged vnto, ÿ same daye that he geueth his trespace offerynge. But for his trespace he shall brynge for the LORDE (euen vnto the prest) a ramme from the flocke without blemysshe, that is worth a trespace offerynge. Then shall the prest make an atonement for him before the LORDE, and all that he hath synned in, shalbe forgeuen hym.

The.vi.Chapter.

Of daylie burntofferynges and other oblacyons: The offerynge of the prest in the dayes of his anoyntynge.

A And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the burntofferynge.

Exo.29.g * The burntofferynge shall burne vpō the altare all night vntyll the mornynge But the fyre of the altare onely shall burne theron. And the prest shall put on Exo.28.g his lynen * albe, & his lynen breches vpon his flesh, and shall take vp ÿ asshes, that the fyre of the burntofferynge vpō the altare hath made, & shal poure them besyde the altare. Then shall he put of his rayment, and put on other rayment, and cary out ÿ asshes without the hoost, into a cleane place.

The fyre vpon the altare shal burne and neuer go out. The prest shal kyndle wod theron euery mornynge, and dresse the burntofferynge vpon it, and burne ÿ fat of the thankofferynges theron. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the altare, & neuer go out.

B And this is the lawe of the * meat-

Nu.15.a offerynge, which Aarons sonnes shall

Leui.2.a offre before the LORDE vpon the altare. One of them shall heue his hande full of fyne floure of the meatofferynge, and of the oyle, and all the frankencense that lyeth vpon the meatofferynge, and shall burne it vpon the altare for a swete sauoure a remembraunce vnto the LORDE. As for the remnaunt, Aaron & his sonnes shall eate it, and vnleuended shal they eate it in the holy place, namely, in the courte of tabernacle of witnesse. With leuen shall they not bake theyr porcyon, which I haue geuen thē of my offerynges, it shalbe vnto them most holy, as the synofferynge and trespace offerynge. All the males amonge the children of Aaron shall eate of it. Let this be a perpetuall lawe for youre posterities in the sacrifices of the LORDE. No man shall touch it, excepte he be consecrated.

C And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: This shalbe the offerynge of Aaron and of his sonnes, which they shall offre vnto the LORDE in ÿ daye of their anoyntynge. The tenth parte of an Epha of fyne floure for a meatofferynge daylie, the one halfe parte in the mornynge, the other halfe parte at euen. In the panne with oyle shalt thou make it, and brynge it fryed, and in peces shalt thou offer it for the swete sauour of the LORDE. And the prest which among his sonnes shalbe anoynted in his steade shall do this. This is a perpetuall dewtye vnto the LORDE. It shalbe burnt alltogether: for all the meatofferynges of the prest shalbe consumed with the fyre, and not be eaten.

D And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayd: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synofferynge: In the place where thou slayest the burntofferynge, shalt thou slaye the synne offerynge also before the LORDE. This is moost holy. * The prest that offereth the synofferynge, shall eate it in the holy place, in the courte of the Tabernacle of witnesse. No man shal touch the flesh therof excepte he be halowed. And yf any garment be sprynkled with the bloude of it, it shalbe wasshen in the holy place. And * the earthen pot that it is sodde in shal be broken. But yf it be a brasen pot, it shalbe scoured, and rensed with water. All the males amonge the prestes shall eate therof, for it is most holy. Notwithstondynge all the synofferynge, whose bloude is brought in to the Tabernacle of witnesse to make an attonement, shal not be eaten, but burnt with fyre.

The.vii.Chapter.

Of thankofferynges. Of the fat and bloude, and of the anoyntynge of the prestes.

A AND this is the lawe of the trespaceofferynge, and it shal be moost holy. In the place where the burntofferynge is slayne, shall the trespaceofferynge be slayne also, and there shall of his bloude be sprynkled rounde aboute vpō the altare. And all his fat shalbe offered: the rompe & the fat that couereth the bowels, the two kydneys with the fat that is theron vpon the loynes, and the net on the leuer vpon the kydneys al so. And the prest shall burne it vpon the altare for an offerynge vnto the LOR-DE. This is a trespaceofferynge.

All the males amonge the prestes shall eate it in the holy place, for it is moost holy: euen as the synneofferynge, so shall the trespaceofferynge be also, they shall both haue one law: and it shal be the prestes, that recõcyleth therwith.
Loke whiche preste offereth any mans burntofferynge, the skynne of the same burntofferyng that he hath offered shall be his. And euery meatofferynge that is baken in the ouen, rosted vpon the gre-dyron, or fryed in the panne, shall be the prestes that offereth it. And euery meatofferynge that is myngled with oyle, or drye shall belonge vnto all Aarõs sõnes vnto one as well as another.

B And this is the lawe of the thãkoffe rynge, that is offered vnto the LORD, 115.a * Yf they wyll offre a sacrifyce of thãkesgeuynge, then shall they offre vnleuẽ ded cakes mengled with oyle, and swete wafers straked ouer with oyle, & fryed cakes of fyne floure mengled with oyle.
This offerynge also shall they brynge vpon a cake of leuended breade, to the thankofferynge of his healthofferynge: and of them all he shall offre one for an Heueofferyng vnto the LORDE. And it shalbe the prestes, that sprenkleth the bloude of the healthofferynge. And the flesh of the thankofferyng in his health offerynges, shalbe eaten the same daye that it is offred, and there shall nothing be left ouer vntyll the mornynge.

19.b And whether it be a vowe, or a fre wyllofferynge, * it shalbe eaten ye same daye yt it is offred: yf ought be left ouer vntyll the mornyng, yet maye it be eatẽ.
But loke what remayneth vnto ye thirde daye of the flesh that is offred, it shalbe brent with the fyre. And yf any man vp pon the thirde daye eate of the offred flesh of his thankofferynge, he shall not be accepted that offered it. Nether shall it be rekened vnto hym, but it shalbe refused. And loke which soule eateth ther of, the same is gyltie of a mysdede.

C And the fleshe that toucheth any vn cleane thynge shall not be eaten, but burnt with the fyre. But whosoeuer is cleane of body, shal eate of the flesh: and the soule that eateth of the fleshe of the thankofferynge whiche belongeth vnto the LORDE; his vnclennes be vpon hym, and he shalbe roted out from amonge the people.

And whan a soule toucheth any vncleane thyng, whether it be an vncleane man, catell, or any other abhominacyon that is, & eateth of the flesh of ye burntofferynge, that belõgeth vnto the LOR-DE, the same shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

And the LORD talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the chyldrẽ of Israel, and saye: * Ye shall eate no Leui.3.c fat of oxen, lambes, and goates: neuer-thelesse the fat of it that dyeth alone, & of suche as is torne of wylde beastes, that maye ye occupye to all maner of vses, but ye shall not eate it.

For whosoeuer eateth the fat of the beast that is geuen vnto the LORDE for an offerynge, the same soule shalbe roted out frõ his people. Morouer, * ye Gene. 9.a shall eate no bloude, nether of catell, nor Leui.3.e. of foules where soeuer ye dwell. What 17.c. 39.f. soule eateth any bloude, the same shalbe Deu.12.b roted out from people. 1.Re.14.c

And the LORDE talked with Mo ses, and sayde: Speake vnto the childrẽ of Israell, and saye: Who so wyll offre his thankofferynge vnto the LORDE the same shal also brynge with all, that belongeth vnto the thãkofferynge for ye LORDE. But he shall brynge it with his hande for the offerynge of the LOR-DE: namely the fat vpon the brest shall he brynge, with the brest, to be a Waue offeryng before the LORDE. And the prest shall burne the fat vpon the altare and the brest shalbe Aarõs & his sõnes.

And the right shulder shall they geue D vnto the prest for a gyft of their thank-offerynges. And loke whiche of Aarons sonnes offreth the bloude of the thanke offerynges, and the fat, the same shall haue the righte shulder for his parte.
* For the Wauebrest and the Heueshul Nu.18.c der haue I taken of the chyldren of Israell, and of their thankofferynges, and haue geuen them vnto Aaron the preste vnto his sõnes for a perpetuall dewtie.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron and of his sonnes, of the offerynges of the LORDE, in the daye whã Moses presented them to be prestes vnto the LORDE, what tyme as the LORD commaunded (in the daye whan he an-oynted them) to be geuen thẽ of the chil dren of Israell for a perpetuall dewtye and vnto all their posterities. And this is the lawe of the burntofferynge, of the meatofferyng, of the synofferynge, of the trespaceofferynge of the offerynge of cō secracyon, and of the thankofferynges, which the LORDE cōmaunded Moses vpō mount Synai, in the daye whā he gaue hym in cōmaundemēt vnto the chyldren of Israell, to offre their offerin ges vnto the LORDE in the wildernesse of Synai.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ Of the anoyntynge and cōsecratyng of Aaron and his sonnes.

to Moses, and sayde: Take Aaron and his sonnes with Exo. 28.a hym, * and their vestimētes * Ex. 29.a and the anoyntyng oyle, & a a bullocke for a synofferynge, two rammes, & a maunde with vnleuended bread and call the whole congregacyon together, before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. Moses dyd as the LORD cōmaunded hym, and gathered the congregacyon together vnto ye dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and sayd vnto them: This is it, that the LORDE hath commaunded to do.
B And he toke Aaron and his sonnes, and washed them with water, and put the albe vpon him, and gyrde him with the gyrdell, and put vpon hym the ya-lowe tunicle, and put the ouerbody cote vpon hym, & gyrde hym vpon the ouerbody cote, and put the brestlappe therō and in the brestlappe light and perfect-nesse: And set the myter vpon his heade And vpon the myter euē aboue his fore heade, put he a plate of golde on ye holy crowne: as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke the * anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the habitacyon, and all that was therin, and consecrated it, and sprenkled therwith seuē tymes vppon the altare, and anoynted the altare with all his vessels, the lauer with his fote, that it might be consecrated: * and poured the anoyntynge oyle vpō Aarōs heade, and anoynted him, that he might be consecrated.
And he brought Aarōs sonnes, and C put albes vpon them, & gyrde thē with the gyrdle, and put bonettes vpon their heades, as the LORD cōmaūded him.
And he caused brynge a bullocke for a synofferyng. And Aaron with his son-nes layed their handes vpon his heade, and thē was he slayne. And Moses toke of the bloude, and put it vpon the hor-nes of the altare rounde aboute with his fynger, and purified the altare, and poured the bloude vpon the botome of the altare, and cōsecrated it, that he might reconcyle it. And toke all the fat vpon the bowels, the nette vpō the leuer, and the two kydneys with the fatte there on, and burned it vpon the altare. But the bullocke with his skynne, flesh, and donge, burned he with fyre without the hoost, * as the LORDE commaunded hym.
And he brought a ramme for a burnt- D offerynge. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their hādes vpon his heade, & thē was he slayne. And Moses sprenkled of the bloude vpō the altare rounde about hewed the ramme in peces, and burnt the heade, the peces, & the fatt. And washed the bowels and the legges with water, and so burnt the whole ramme vpō the altare. This was a burntofferynge for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifyce vnto the LORDE, * as the LORDE cō-maunded hym.
He broughte also the other ramme of the offerynge of the cōsecracyon. And Aaron with his sonnes layed their hān des vpō his heade, & then was it slayne And Moses toke of his bloude, and put it vpon the typpe of Aarons right eare & vpō the thōbe of his righthāde, and vpon the greate too of his right fote.
And he brought Aarōs sonnes, and put of the bloude vpon the typpe of the right eare of them, and vpon the thombes of their righte handes, and vpon ẏ greate toes of their ryghte fete, & poured the resydue of the bloude vpon the .29.d altare rounde aboute. * And he toke ẏ fat and the rompe, and all the fat vpon the bowels, and the net vpon the leuer, the two kydneys with the fat theron, & the ryghte shulder. And out of the maũ de of vnleuended bread before ẏ LOR DE, he toke an vnleuended cake, and a cake of oyled breade, & a wefer, & layed thẽ vpon the fat, & vpon the ryght shul der, and put all together vpon the han-des of Aaron and of his sonnes, and waued it for a Waueofferynge before the LORDE.

F And afterwarde toke he all agayne from their hondes, and burned them on the altare, euẽ vpon the burntofferinge: for it is an offerynge of consecraciõ for a swete sauoure, euen a sacrifice vnto .29.e the LORDE. * And Moses toke the brest, and waued it a Waueofferynge before ẏ LORD of ẏ rãme of ẏ offring of consecracion, the same was Moses parte, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And Moses toke of the anoyn-tynge oyle, and of the bloude vpon the altare, and sprenkled it vpon Aaron & his vestimentes, vpon his sonnes & vpõ their vestimentes, and so consecrated Aaron & his vestimentes, his sonnes & their vestimentes with hym.

G And he sayde vnto Aaron and his sonnes: Seeth the flesh before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & there eate it, and the bread in the maũde of ẏ consecraciõ offerynges, as it is cõmaun ded me, and sayde: Aaron and his son-nes shall eate it. As for that which remayneth of the flesh and bread, ye shall burne it with fyre. And in seuen dayes shall ye not departe from the dore of ẏ Tabernacle of wytnesse, vntyll ẏ daye, that the dayes of your consecracion of-ferynges be at an ende: for seuen dayes must your handes be cõsecrated, as it is come to passe this daye: The LOR-DE hath cõmaunded to do it, that ye myght be reconcyled. And ye shall tary before the Tabernacle of witnesse daye and nyght seuen dayes longe, and shall kepe the watch of the LORD, that ye dye not, for thus am I cõmaũded. And Aaron with his sonnes dyd all, that the LORDE commaunded by Moses.

The.ix. Chapter.

How Aaron and his sonnes offered for synne, and how the fyre of God consumed the burntofferynge.

AND vpon the eyght daye Moses A called Aaron and his sonnes, and the Elders in Israel, and sayde vnto Aarõ: Take vnto the a yõge calfe for a synofferynge, and a rãme for a burntofferyng, both without blemysh and brynge them before the LORDE and speake vnto the children of Israel, and say: Take an he goate for a synoffe-rynge, and a calfe, and a shepe, both of a yeare olde, and without blemyshe for a burntofferynge: and an oxe and a rãme for a thãkofferynge, that we maye offre before the LORDE: ẏ meatofferynge myngled with oyle. For to daye shall the LORDE appeare vnto you.

And they toke what Moses com- B maunded before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the whole congre gacyon came nye and stode before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses: This is it, which the LORDE commaũded that ye shulde do, and then shall the glorye of the LORDE appeare vnto you And Moses said vnto Aaron: Go vnto the altare, and * offre thy synofferynge Heb. 5.d and thy burntofferyng, and make an at and. 7.d tonement for the and for the people. The offre the peoples offerynges, and reconcyle them also, as the LORDE hath commaunded.

* And Aaron went vnto the altare, Leui.4.a and slewe the calfe for his synofferinge, and his sonnes brought the bloude vnto hym. And he dypte his fynger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of ẏ altare, and poured the bloude vpon the botome of the altare. As for the fat and the kydneys and the net vpon the leuer of the synofferynge, he burnt them vpon the altare, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. The fleshe also & the hyde burnt he with fyre without the hoost.

Afterwarde he slewe the burntoffe- C rynge, and Aarons sonnes brought the bloude vnto hym, and he sprenkled it rounde aboute vpon ẏ altare. And they brought him the burntofferyng in peces and the heade: and he burnt it vpon the altare. And he wasshed the bowels & the legges, and burnt them a boue vpon the burntofferynge on the altare.

* Then brought he the offerynge of Leui.4.e the people, and toke the goate, that syn offerynge of the people, & slewe it, and made a synofferynge therof, as of the fyrste. And brought the burntofferynge, Leui.1.a and dyd as the lawe is: * and broughte the meatofferynge, and toke his hādfull and burnt it vpon the altare, besyde the burntofferynge of the mornynge.

D Afterward slewe he the oxe and the rāme for the thankofferynge of the people. And his sonnes broughte hym the bloude, which he sprenkled vpon the al tare rounde aboute. But the fat of the oxe and of the ramme, the romps, and ye fat that couereth ye bowels, and the kyd neys, and the net vpō the leuer, all such fat layed they vpon the brest, and burnt the fat vpon the altare. * But the brest Leui.7.d and the righte shulder waued Aarō for a Waueofferynge before the LORD, as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses.
And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people, and blessed them, and came downe from the worke of the synoffe-rynge, burntofferynge, and thankoffe-rynge. And Moses and Aaron wente in to the Tabernacle of witnesse. And whā they came out agayne, they blessed the people. Then appeared the glory of the LORD vnto all the people. For there 1.Par.7.a came * a fyre from the LORDE, and 2.mac.2.b it consumed the burntofferyng, and the fat vpon the altare. Whan all the people sawe that, they reioysed, and fel vp-on their faces.

The.x.Chapter.

The death of Nadab & Abihu. The prestes were forbydden to drynke wyne and their porcion of the offerynges ap-poynted them.

A AND the sonnes of Aaron, Leui.16.a Nadab & Abihu, toke ether Nu.26.e of them his censoure, & put fyre therin, and layed the in cense vpon it, and broughte Exo.30.b straunge fyre before ye LORD, * which he commaunded them not. Then wente there out a fyre from the LORDE, and consumed them so that they dyed before the LORDE. Then sayde Moses vn to Aarō: This is it, that the LORDE sayde: I wyll be sanctifyed vpon them that come nye me, and before all the peo ple wyll I be glorifyed. And Aarō helde his peace.
B Moses called Misael & Elzaphan the sonnes of Vsiel Aarons vncle, and sayde vnto them: Go to, and cary youre brethrē out of the Sanctuary, without the hoost. And they wēte, and caried thē forth in their albes without the hoost, as Moses sayde.
Thē sayde Moses vnto Aaron and to his sonnes Eleasar and Ithamar:
* Ye shall not vncouer youre heades, nor rente youre clothes, that ye dye not, and the wrath come vpon the whole cō gregacyō: Let your brethrē of the whole house of Israell bewepe this burnyng, which the LORDE hath done. As for you, ye shal not go out from the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of the LORD is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses sayde.
The LORDE spake vnto Aaron, and sayde: * Thou & thy sonnes with the shall drynke no wyne nor stronge drynke, whan ye go in to the Tabernacle of witnesse: that ye dye not. Let this be a perpetuall lawe vnto all your pos-terities: that ye maye haue knowlege to discerne, what is holy & vnholy, what is cleane and vncleane: and that ye may teache the children of Israell all the lawes, which the LORDE hath spoken vnto you by Moses.
* And Moses sayd vnto Aaron, and vnto Eleasar and Ithamar his sonnes that were lefte: Take the remnaunt of the meatofferynge in the sacrifices of the LORDE, and eate it without leuen besyde the altare, for it is moost holy, but in the holy place shall ye eate it. For it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye in the sacrifices of the LORDE: for thus am I cōmaunded. But the Wauebrest and the Heueshulder shalt thou eate, & thy sonnes and thy doughters with the in a cleane place. For this dutie is geuen vnto the and thy chyldren in the thank offerynges of the chyldrē of Israel. For the Heueshulder and the Wauebrest to the offeringes of the fat, shalbe brought in, that they maye be waued for a Wa-ueofferyng before the LORDE. There fore is it thyne and thy chyldrens for a perpetuall dutye, as the LORDE cō-maunded.
And Moses sought for the goate of the synofferynge, and founde it burnt.
And he was angrye at Eleasar and I-thamar the sonnes of Aaron, which were left alyue, & sayd: Wherfore haue ye not eatē the synofferynge in the holy place? for it is moost holy, and he hath geuen it you, that ye myghte beare the synne of the cōgregacyon, to make atone ment for thē before the LORDE. Be-holde, the bloud of it came not in to the Sanctuary: Ye shulde haue eaten it in the Sanctuary, as I was cōmaunded. Aaron sayd vnto Moses: Beholde, this daye haue they offred their synoffe rynge and their burntofferynge before the LORDE. And it is chaunsed me after this maner. And shulde I eate of the synofferynge to daye, & be mery before the LORDE? Whan Moses herde that, he was content.

The.xi.Chapter.

Of cleane and vncleane beastes and foules.

And the LORDE talked wt Moses & Aaron and sayd: Speake vnto ẏ childrē of Israell, and saye: These are 14.a * the beastes which ye shal o.b. eate amonge all the beastes vpon earth: What so euer hath hofe, & deuydeth it in to two clawes, & cheweth cud amōg the beastes, that shall ye eate. But loke what cheweth cud & hath hofe, & deuydeth it not, as the Camell, the same is vncleane vnto you, & ye shal not eate it. The Conyes chewe cud, but they deuyde not ẏ hofe in to two clawes, therfore are they vncleane vnto you. The hayre cheweth cud also, but deuydeth not the hofe in to two clawes, therfore is he vn B cleane vnto you. And the Swyne deuydeth the hofe in to two clawes, but cheweth not the cud, therfore is it vncleane vnto you. Of the flesh of these shall ye not eate, nor touch their carcases, for they are vncleane vnto you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: What so euer hath fynnes and scales in the waters, sees & ryuers, ẏ shall ye eate. But what so euer hath not fynnes and scales in the sees and ryuers, amonge all that moue in the waters, of all that lyue in ẏ waters, it shall be an abhominacion vnto you, so that ye eate not of their flesh, and that ye abhorre their carcases. For all that haue not fynnes & scales in the waters, shall ye abhorre.
And these shall ye abhorre amonge ẏ foules, so that ye eate them not: The Aegle, the Goshauke, the Cormorāte, the Vultur, ẏ Kyte, and all his kynde, & all Rauens wt their kynde: the Estrich, the Nightcrow, the Cocow, ẏ Sparow hauke with his kynde, the litle Oule, ẏ Storke, the greate Oule, ẏ Backe, the Pellycane, the Swanne, the Pye, ẏ Heron, the Iaye with his kynde, the Lapwynge, and the Swalowe. And whatso euer crepeth amonge the foules, & goeth vpon foure fete, shalbe an obhominaciō vnto you. Yet these shall ye eate of the foules that crepe & go vpon foure fete: euen those that haue no knyees aboue vpon the legges, to hoppe withall vpon D earth. Of these maye ye eate, as there is the Arbe with his kynde, and the Selaam with his kynde, & the Hargol wt his kynde, and the Hagab wt his kynde. But what so euer els hath foure fete amonge the foules, it shalbe an abhomynacyon vnto you, and ye shal take it for vncleane. * Who so euer toucheth the Leui.5.a the euen: and who so euer beareth ẏ carcase of eny of these, shall wash his clothes, & shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

Therfore euery beast that hath an hofe, & deuydeth it not in to two clawes and cheweth not cud, shalbe vncleane vnto you. Who so euer toucheth such, shalbe vncleane. And whatsoeuer goeth vpon handes amonge the beastes that go vpon foure fete, shalbe vncleane vnto you. Whosoeuer toucheth the carcases of thē, shalbe vncleane vntyll euen. And he that beareth their carcase, shall wasshe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euē: For such are vncleane vnto you.

These shalbe vncleane vnto you al- E so, amonge the beastes that crepe vpon earth: the Wesel, the Mouse, the Tode, euery one with his kynde, the Hedgehogge, the Stellio, ẏ Lacerte, the Snayle, & the Moule, these are vncleane vnto you amonge all ẏ crepe. Who so euer toucheth the death carcase of thē, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And what so euer any such death carcase falleth vpō it shalbe vncleane, whatsoeuer vessel of wood it be, or rayment, or skynne, or bagge. And euery vessell that eny thynge is occupied with all, shalbe put in the water, & is vncleane vntyll ẏ euen, and thē shall it be cleane. * All maner of earthē Leui.6.d

shal all be vncleane ẏ therin is, & ye shal breake it. All meate which is eaten, that eny such water cometh in to, is vncleane: & all maner of drynke that is dronkē in all maner of such vessel, is vncleane. And what so euer any such carcase falleth vpon, it shall be vncleane, whether it be ouen or kettell, so shall it be brokē, for it is vncleane, and shalbe vncleane vnto you: Neuertheles the fountaynes welles, and pondes of water are cleane. But whosoeuer toucheth theyr carcases is vncleane.

F And though the dead carcase of any suche fell vpon the sede that is sowe yet is it cleane. But whan there is water poured vpon the sede, & afterwarde any suche dead carcase falleth theron, then shall it be vncleane vnto you.

Whā a beast dyeth that ye may eat, he that toucheth the dead carcase therof is vncleane vntyll the euen. Who so eateth of any suche carcase, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll ŷ euen. Lykewyse he that beareth any such carcase, shall washe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

What so euer crepeth vpon earth, shalbe an abhominacyon vnto you, and shall not be eaten. And what so euer crepeth vpon the bely, or all that goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that crepeth vpon earth, shall ye not eate, for it shalbe an abhominacyon vnto you. Make not youre soules abhominable, & defyle you not in them, to stayne youre selues: for I am the LORDE youre

This is the lawe ouer the beastes & foules, & all maner of soules of creppyng beastes in the waters, & al maner of soules that crepe vpon earth: that ye maye knowe to discerne what is vncleane & cleane, and what maner of beastes are to be eaten, and whiche are not to be eaten.

The.xii.Chapter.

¶ Of the vnclenes of a womā in chyldbedde, of her clensynge or purificacyon and of her offerynge.

A Nd the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayd: Speak vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: Whā a womā hath conceaued, and beareth a mā chylde, she shalbe vncleane seuen dayes,

Gen.17.b so longe as she suffreth her disease, * & in the eyghte daye shall the fleshe of his forskynne be cut awaye. And she shal byde at home thre & thyrty dayes in ŷ bloude of his purifienge: she shall touch no holy thynge, nor come in the Sanctuary, tyll the dayes of her purifienge be out. But yf she beare a maydechylde, then shal she be vncleane two wekes, so longe as she suffreth her disease, and sixe & thre score dayes shall she byde at home in ŷ bloude of her purifienge.

* And whan the dayes of her purifyeng are out, for ŷ sonne or for ŷ doughter, she shall brynge a lābe of one yeare olde for a burntofferynge, and a yonge pigeon or a turtill doue for a synneofferynge to the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse vnto the prest, which shall offer it before the LORDE, and make an attonement for her, and so shal she be clensed from her bloudy yssue. This is the lawe for her ŷ beareth a manchylde or maydechylde.

* But yf she be not able to brynge a lambe, thē let her take two turtill doues, or two yonge pigeons, ŷ one for a burntofferynge, the other for a synofferynge, then shall the prest make an attonement for her, so that she shalbe cleane.

The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ Of Leprosy or Mezell.

A Nd the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aarō, & sayde: When there ryseth vp any thynge in ŷ skynne of a mās flesh, whether it be a scabbe or a glisterynge whyte (as though there wolde be a leprosye in the skynne of his fleshe) he shalbe brought vnto Aaron the prest, or to one of his sonnes amonge ŷ prestes. And whā the prest seyth ŷ plage vpon the skinne of the flesh, that the heeres are turned to whyte, and it seme deper in that place then the other skynne of his flesh, then is it surely a leprosye, therfore shall the prest loke vpon hym, & iudge hym vncleane.

But whan there is any whyt place in the skynne of his fleshe, and yet seme no deper then the other skynne of the fleshe, and the heeres be not turned to whyte, thē ŷ prest shal shut him vp seuen dayes, and on the seuenth daye loke vpon hym: yf ŷ plage seme vnto hym as afore, and hath frete no deper in the skynne, then shall the prest shut hym vp yet seuen dayes mo. And whan he loketh on hym agayne vpon the seuenth daye, and seyth, that the plage be darkish, and hath frete no deper in the skynne, then shall he iudge hym cleane, for it is but a [illegible] and he shall washe his clothes, and [illegible] is he cleane.

B But whā the scabbe fretteth farther in the skynne (after that he is sene of the prest, and iudged cleane) and he be now sene of the prest agayne: whan the prest seyth then, that the scabbe hath fret farther in the skynne, he shal iudge him vncleane, for it is surely a leprosye.

Whan a plage of leprosye is vpon a man, he shalbe brought vnto the prest. Whan he seyth and fyndeth, that there is whyte rysen vp in the skynne, and ye heere turned vnto whyte, and there be rawe flesh in the sore, thē is it surely an olde leprosy in the skynne of his fleshe, therfore shal ye prest iudge hym vncleane and not shut hym vp, for he is vncleane already.

But whan the leprosy breaketh out in the skynne, and couereth the whole skynne, from the heade vnto the fote, al that the prest can se, So whan the prest loketh vpon it, and fyndeth, that the leprosye hath couered all the fleshe, he shal iudge hym cleane, for so muche as it is turned all into whyte vpon hym, for he is cleane.

C Notwithstandyng yf there be rawe flesh there, in the daye whan he is loked vpon, then is he vncleane. And whā the prest seyth the rawe fleshe, he shall iudge hym vncleane, for he is vncleane, and it is surely a leprosye. But yf the rawe fleshe chaunge agayne, and be turned in to whyte, then shal he come vnto ye prest. And whan the preste loketh vpon hym, and fyndeth, that the plage is turned to whyte, he shall iudge hym cleane, for he is cleane.

Whan there is a byle in the skynne of any mans fleshe, and healeth agayne, and afterwarde in the same place there aryse vp any whyte thynge, or a glystertynge whyt, somwhat reedysh, he shalbe sene of the prest. So whā the prest seyth that it appeareth to be lower then the other skynne, & the heere turned to whyt, then shall he iudge hym vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosye broken out of the byle. But yf the prest se and fynde that the heeres are not whyte, and it not lower then the other skynne, and is darkyshe, he shall shut hym vp seuen dayes.

D Yf it hath fret farther in the skynne, thē shall he iudge hym vncleane, for it is surely a plage of leprosye. But yf the glysterynge whyte abyde styll, and fret no farther, then is it but a prynte of ye byle, and the prest shall iudge hym cleane.

Whan the skynne of any mans flesh is hurte with fyre, and the prynte of the burnyng is reedish or whyte, and ye prest loketh vpon hym, and fyndeth the heere turned to whyte vpon the marke of the burnynge, and it apeare deper then the other skynne, thē is there surely a leprosye broken out of the prynte of the burnynge: therfore shall the prest iudge hym vncleane, for it is a plage of leprosye. But yf the preste se and fynde, that the heere vpon the prynte of the burnynge is not turned vnto whyte, and is no lower then the other skynne, and is darkyshe also: he shall shutte hym vp seuen dayes.

And vpon the seuenth daye he shall loke vpon hym: yf it hath fret farther in the skynne, then shall he iudge hym vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But yf it stonde styll vpon the marke of the burnynge, and fret no farther in the skynne and is darkyshe, then is it a sore in the marke of the burnyng, and the prest shal iudge hym cleane, for it is but the prynt of the burnynge.

E Whan a man or woman is skyrue vpon the heade or beerd, and the preste seyth the marke, and fyndeth that it appeareth deper thē the other skynne, and the heere be there golden and thyne, thē shall he iudge hym vncleane: for it is a skyrfe of leprosye of the head or of the beerde. But yf the prest se that the skyrf appeare no deper then the skynne, and that the heer is not of a pale colour: he shall shutte hym vp seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye whan he loketh, and fyndeth, that the skyrfe hath frette no farther, and there be no goldē heere there, and that the skyrfe appeare no deper then the other skynne, then let hym be shauen: but so that he shaue not of the scabbe, and the preste shall shutte hym vp yet seuen dayes mo. And vpon the seuenth day whan he loketh, and fyndeth that the skyrfe hathe frette no farther in the skynne, and that it appeareth no deper then the other skynne, thē shall the preste iudge hym cleane. And he shall washe his clothes, for he is cleane. But yf the scabbe fret farther in the skynne (after that he is iudged cleane) and the preste loketh, and fyndeth, that the scabbe hathe frette farther in the skynne, then shall he seke no more for golden heeres, for he is vn-

F cleane. Neuertheles yf he se ye ye scabbe stondeth styll, and that pale heeres are there rysen vp, then is the scabbe hole, & he is cleane, therfore shall ye preste iudge hym to be cleane.

When there is any glisteryng whyt vpon the skynne of the fleshe of a man or woman, and the preste seyth there, ye the glysterynge whyte vanysheth: thē is it but a whyte scabbe rysen vp in the skynne, and he is cleane.

When the herres fall out of ye head of a man or woman, so that he is balde, the same is cleane. Yf they fal out of his forheade, then is his forheade balde and cleane. But yf there be a whyte reedishe sore in the balde heade, or bald fore heade, then is there a leprosy rysen vp in the balde heade or balde forehead: therfore shall the preste loke vpon hym. And whan he fyndeth the whyte reedysh sore rysen vp in his balde head or balde fore heade, then shall the skynne of ye fleshe be as leporous, therfore is he a leporous man and vncleane. And the preste shall iudge hym vncleane, because of ye same sore vpon his heade.

G Who so now is leporous, his clothes shalbe rent, and the head bare, and the lippes mofled, and shal in any wyse Num.5.a. be called vncleane. * And as longe as ye 4.Re.15.a sore is vpon hym, he shalbe vncleane, dwell alone, & haue his dwellynge with out the hoost.

When the plage of leprosy is in a cloth, whether it be wollen or lynnen, in the warpe or wefte, whether it be lynnē or wollē, or in a skynne or in any maner thyng that is made of skynne. And whā the plage is pale or reedyshe in the cloth or skynne, eyther in the warpe or wefte, or in any maner thynge that is made of skynne, the same is surely the plage of leprosy, therfore shall the prest loke vpō it. And whan he seyth the plage, he shall shut it vp seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye whan he seyth that ye plage hath fret farther in the cloth, in ye warp or wefte, in a skynne or in any maner thynge that is made of skynne, then is it a frettynge plage of leprosye, and is vncleane: And the cloth shall be burnt, eyther warpe or wefte, whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thynge made of skynne, wherin is any suche plage. For it is a plage of leprosy, and shalbe burnt with fyre.

H But yf the prest se ye the plage hath fret no farther in the cloth, eyther in the warpe or wefte, or any thynge made of skynne, then shall he commaunde to wash the thynge that the plage is in, and shal shute it vp other seuen dayes. And whan the preste seyth (after that the plage is wasshen) that the plage is not chaunged before his eyes, and hath fret no farther also, yet is it vncleane, and shall be burnt with fyre: for it is depe freten inwarde, and hath made skyrtes. Neuertheles whan the prest seyth that ye plage is vanyshed after the washyng of it, the shall he rent it out of ye cloth, and of the skynne, out of the warpe or wefte. But yf it appeare any more in the cloth (eyther in the warpe, or in the weft) or any maner thynge made of skynne, then is it a waxynge plage: and with fyre shall it be burnt that any suche plage is in. But for the cloth, eyther warpe or weft, or any maner thynge made of skinne that is wasshen, and the plage be departed frō it, it shalbe wasshen once agayne, & then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer the plage of leprosye in clothes, whether they be wollen or lynnen (eyther in the warpe or in the wefte) and in any maner of thynge made of skynne, to iudge them cleane or vncleane.

¶ The clensynge of lepers, and theyr offerynge.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: This is the lawe ouer the leper, whan he shalbe clensed. * He shall come vnto the prest, and the prest shall go out of the hoost, and loke how the plage of leprosye is healed vpō the leper. And he shall commaunde hym that is to be clensed, to take two lyuyng byrdes, which are cleane, & Ceder wood and purple woll, and ysope: and shal commaunde the one byrde to be kylled in an earthen vessell ouer sprynginge water. And he shall take the lyuyng byrde with the Ceder wood, ye purple woll, & ysope, and dype them in the bloude of ye slayne byrde vpon the sprynginge water, and sprenkle it seuen tymes vpon hym that must be clensed from the leprosye: and so clense hym, and let the lyuynge byrde flye at lybertie into the felde.

But he that is clensed, shall wash his clothes, and shaue of all his herre, & bathe hym selfe with water, so is he cleane. Afterwarde let hym go into the hoost, yet shall he tary without his tent seuen dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye shal he shaue of all the heere vpon his heade, vpon his beerde, vpon his browes, so that al the heere be shauen of, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe his flesh in water, then is he cleane.

And vpō the eight daye shal he take two lābes without blemish, and a shepe of a yeare olde without blemysh, & thre tenth deales of fyne floure for a meatofferynge, myngled with oyle, & a logge of oyle. Thē shall the prest presente him that is clensed and these thynges before the LORDE, before the dore of ŷ Tabernacle of wytnesse, & shall take ŷ one lambe, and offre it for a trespace offerynge, with the logge of oyle, and shall waue them before the LORDE, and afterwarde slaye the lābe, where the synofferynge and burntofferynge are slayne, namely, in the holy place. For as the synofferynge, so is the trespaceoffrynge the prestes also, for it is moost holy.

C And the prest shall take of the bloud of the trespace offerynge, and put it vpon the typpe of the ryght eare of hym that is clensed, and vpō the thombe of his ryghthande, and vpō the greate too of his ryght fote. Afterwarde shall he take of the oyle out of the logge, & poure it in to his awne left hande, and dyppe his ryght fynger in the oyle that is in his left hande, and sprenkle the oyle wt his fynger seuen tymes before ŷ LORDE. As for the remnaunt of the oyle in his hande, he shall put it vpon ŷ typpe of the ryght eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hāde, & vpō the greate too of his ryght fote, euen aboue vpon the bloude of the trespace offerynge. But the remnaūt of the oyle in his hande, shall he poure vpon ŷ heade of hym that is clensed, and make an attonemēt for him before ŷ LORDE. And he shall make the synofferynge, & reconcyle him that is clensed, because of his vnclennesse. And afterwarde shal he slaye the burntofferynge, and shall offre it vpon the altare wt the meatoffrynge, and make an attonement for hym, and than is he cleane.

D ul.5.b o.12.D * But yf he be poore, and getteth not so much with his handes, then let hym take one lambe for a trespace offerynge to waue it, to make an attonemēt for him, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferinge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtyll doues, or two yonge pygeons which he is able to get with his hande, let the one be a synofferynge, the other a burntofferynge: and let hym brynge then vpon ŷ eyght daye of his clensynge vnto ŷ prest before the dore of ŷ Tabernacle of wytnesse before the LORDE.

Then shall the prest take the lambe for the synofferynge, and ŷ logge of oyle, and shall waue them all before ŷ LORDE and slay the lambe of the trespace offerynge: and take of the bloude of the same trespaceofferynge, and put it vpō the typpe of the ryghte eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryghthande, and vpō the greate too of his ryghte fote, and poure of the oyle in to his awne lefte hande, and with his ryght fynger sprenkle the oyle that is in his left hande, seuen tymes before the LORDE

E As for the remnaunt of the oyle in his hande, he shal put it vpon the typpe of the ryght eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his right hāde, and vpō the greate too of his ryght fote, euen aboue vpon the bloude of ŷ trespace offerynge. The other oyle in his hande shall he poure vpon the heade of hym that is clensed, to make an attonement for him before the LORDE. And afterwarde of the one of the turtyll doues or yonge pygeōs (acordynge as his handes are able to get) he shall make a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, with the meatofferynge: and so shall the prest make an attonement for him that is clensed before the LORD.

Let this be the lawe for the leper, which is not able with his hāde to get, that belongeth vnto his clensynge.

F And the LORD spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Whā ye are come in to the lande of Canaan, which I geue you to possesse, and yf there happen a plage of leprosy in any house of your possessyon, then shal he that oweth the house, come and tell the prest, & saye: Me thynke there is as it were a plage of leprosy in my house. Then shall the prest commaunde to rydde all thynge out of the house or euer the prest go in to se the plage, lest all that is in the house be made vncleane. Afterwarde shal ŷ prest go in, to se the plage.

Now whan he loketh, and fyndeth, that there be holowe strakes yalowe or redysh in the walles of the house, and they seme to be lower then the wall besyde, then shall he go out at the dore of the house, and shutt vp the house for seuē dayes. And vpon the seuenth daye whan he commeth, and seyth that the plage hath fretten farther in the walles of the house, thē shall he cōmaūde to breake out the stones wherin ẏ plage is, and to cast thē in a foule place without the cite, and the house to be scraped within rounde about, & ẏ dust ẏ is scraped of, to be poured without the cite in an vnclene place, and to take other stones, and put them in the place of the other, and to take other playster, and playster

G the house.

Whan the plage then commeth agayne, and breaketh forth in the house, after that the stones are broken out, the playster scraped of, and the house playstered of the new, then shal the prest go in: and whan he seyth ẏ the plage hath fretten farther in the house, thē is there surely a fretynge leprosy in the house, & it is vncleane: therfore shal the house be broken downe, both the stones, and the tymber and all the dust of the house, & shall be caried out of the cite in to an vncleane place. And who so goeth in to the house whyle it is shut vp, is vnclene vntyll the euen. And he that lyeth therin, or eateth theryn, shall wash his clothes.

But yf the prest se (whā he goeth in) that this plage hath frett no farther in the house, after that the house is new playstered, then shall he iudge it to be cleane, for the plage is healed. And to a synofferynge for the house, he shall take two byrdes, ceder wood, & purple wol, and ysope, and slaye the one byrde in an erthen vessell vpon sprynginge water, and shall take the ceder wood, the purple woll, the ysope, and the lyuynge byrde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byrde vpon the sprynginge water, and sprenkle the house withall seuē tymes: and so shall he purifie the house with the bloude of the byrde, with the sprynginge water, & the lyuynge byrde, with the ceder woode, with the ysope, and with the purple woll. And the lyuynge byrde shall he let flye at lybertye out of the towne in to the felde, & make an atonement for the house, and then is it cleane.

This is the lawe ouer all maner plage of leprosye and skyrfe, ouer the leprosye of clothes and of houses, ouer sores, scabbes, and glysterynge whyte, that it maye be knowne, whan any thinge is vncleane or cleane. This is the lawe of leprosye.

The.xv.Chapter.

¶ Of all maner of vncleane fluxes or yssues, both of men and wemen.

AND the LORDE talked B with Moses and Aaron, & sayde: Speake to the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them: Whan a man hath a runnynge yssue from out of his flesh, the same is vncleane: but then is he vncleane by the reason of this yssue, whan his flesh is fretten of the yssue or wombe. Euery bed where on he lyeth, and what so euer he sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane.

And he that toucheth his bed shall washe his clothes, and bathe hymself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

And he that sytteth where he sat, shall wash his clothes, and bathe hymself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euē. Who so toucheth his flesh, shall wash his clothes, and bathe hymself in water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. Whan he spytteth vpon hym that is cleane, the same shall wash his clothes, & bathe himself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. D

And the saddel and what so euer he rydeth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And who so euer toucheth any thynge that hath bene vnder hym, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And who so beareth any such, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hymself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euē. And whom so euer he toucheth, and wassheth not his handes first, the same shal washe his clothes, and bathe himself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen. * Whan he toucheth an erthen vessel, it shall be broken: but the treen vessell shal be rensed with water. And whan he is cleane of his yssue, he shall nombre.vii.dayes, after that he is made cleane, and wash his clothes, and bathe hymself with sprynginge water, thē is he cleane. And vpon ẏ eight daye shall he take two turtyll doues or two yonge pigeons, and brynge them before the LORDE before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shall make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferynge, and make an atonement for hym before the LORDE, as concernynge his yssue.

C When a mans sede departeth from him in slepe, the same shall bathe all his flesh with water, & be vncleane vntyll the euē. And all clothes, & euery skynne that is stayned with such sede, shall he wash with water, & be vncleane vntyll the euen. A woman, by whom such one lyeth, shall bathe hir self with water, & be vncleane vntyll the euen.

When a woman hath the bloude yssue of hir flesh, she shalbe put aparte vii. dayes in to a sundrye place. Who so euer toucheth her, shalbe vncleane vntil the euen. And all that she lyeth vpon (as longe as she is put aparte) shalbe vncleane. And that she sytteth vpon, shalbe vncleane. And whosoeuer toucheth hir bed, shal wash his clothes, & bathe him self with water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And whosoeuer toucheth eny maner thynge that she hath sytten vpon, shall wash his clothes, & bathe hymself with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

D * And yf a man lye with her (whyle Leui. 18. c she is put aparte) he shalbe vncleane seuen dayes, and the bed that he laye vpō, shalbe vncleane.

Matt. 9. c * But whan a woman hath hyr bloud yssue a longe season, not onely at the tyme of hir naturall course, but also out of the tyme of hir naturall course, then shall she be vncleane so lōge as she hath the yssue: euen as she is at yͤ tyme whan she is put a parte, so shall she be vncleane here also. Whatsoeuer she lyeth vpon all the tyme of hir yssue, shalbe as hir bed, whan she is put aparte, And al that she sytteth vpō, shalbe vncleane, as is hir vnclennesse, whan she is put a parte. Whosoeuer toucheth eny of thē, shall be vncleane, and shall wash his clo thes, and bathe hymself with water, & be vncleane vntyll the euen.

E But yf she be cleane of hyr yssue, then shall she nombre seuen dayes, after warde shall she be cleane: and vpon the eyght daye shall she take two turtilduues, or two yōge pigeons, & brynge thē vnto the prest before the dore of the Ta bernacle of witnesse, And the prest shall make of the one a synofferynge, of the other a burntofferyng, and make an at tonement for her before the LORDE as cōcernynge yͤ yssue of hir vnclēnesse.

Thus shall ye se that the chyldrē of Israell kepe them selues frō theyr vn-clennesse, that they dye not in theire vn-clennesse whan they defyle my habita-cyon, which is amonge you.

This is yͤ lawe ouer hym that hath a runnynge sore, and him whose sede de parteth from hym in slepe, so that he is vncleane therof. And ouer her that hath hir bloude yssue, and whosoeuer hath a rūnynge sore, whether it be man or wo man, and whan a man lyeth with her yͭ is vncleane.

The.xvi. Chapter.

Aaron myght not alwaye go in to yͤ Sanctuary. Of the two goates. Of fa-stynge in the seuenth moneth.

And the LORDE spake vn- A to Moses (after that Aarōs two sonnes were dead * whā Leui. 10. a they offered before yͤ LOR DE) and sayde: Speake vn to Aaron thy brother, that he go not at all tymes in to the ynnermer Sanctuary, within the vale before the Mercyseate, which is vpon the Arke, that he dye not: * for I wyll appeare in a Exo. 40. c cloude vpon the Mercyseate. But here 3. Reg. 8. b witholl shall he go in, euen with a yōge bullocke for a synofferynge, and with a ramme for a burntofferynge, and shall put on the holy lynnen albe, & haue lyn nen breches vpon his flesh, and gyrde hym with a lynnen gyrdel, and haue the lynnen myter vpon his heade.

For these are the holy garmentes: B & he shall bathe his flesh with water, & put them on: & of the congregacion of yͤ chyldren of Israell he shall take two he goates for a synofferynge, and a rāme for a burntofferynge.

And Aaron shall brynge yͤ bullocke his owne synofferynge, * and make an Hebr. 9. b. attonement for hymself and his house: and afterwarde shal he take yͤ two goa tes, and present them before the LOR-DE, euen before the dore of the Taber nacle of wytnesse, and shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: the lot of the one goate for the LORDE, and the other for yͤ fre goate. And yͤ goate yͭ the LOR DES lot fell vpon, shall he offre for a synofferynge. But the goate, that yͤ fre goates lot fell vpon, shall he present a-lyue before the LORDE, to make an attonement for hym, & to let the fre goa te go in to the wyldernesse. And so shal he brynge the bullocke of his synoffe-rynge, and make an attonemēt for hym and his housholde, and shall kyll hym.

And he shall take a cẽsor full of coales from the altare that stondeth before the LORDE, & his handfull of beatẽ incense, & brynge thẽ in within the vaile and put the incense vpon the fyre before the LORDE, that the cloude of the incense maye couer ÿ Mercyseate, which is vpon the witnesse, that he dye not.
Leui. 4.a * And he shall take of the bloud of the bullocke, & sprenkle it with his fynger toward the Mercyseate on the foresyde. Seuen tymes shall he sprenkle of the bloude thus with his fynger before the Mercyseate. Thẽ shall he kyl the goate which is the peoples synofferynge, and brynge in of his bloud within the vayle and shall do with his bloude, as he dyd with ÿ bloude of the bullocke, and sprẽkle therwith also on the foresyde towarde the Mercyseate, and so shall he reconcyle the Sanctuary from the vnclennesse of the children of Israell, and from their trespaces in all their synnes.
D Thus shall he do vnto the Tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche is the habitacyon with them amonge their vnclennesses.

Nomã shalbe in the Tabernacle of witnesse, whan he goeth in to make an attonement in the Sanctuary, vntyl he go out: and so shall he make an attonement for hymselfe and his house, and for the whole congregacyon of Israell. And whã he goeth forth vnto the altare that stondeth before the LORDE, he shall recõcyle it, and shal take of the bullockes bloude, and of the goates bloude and put it vpõ the hornes of the altare roũde aboute. And with his fynger shal he sprenkle of the bloude theron seuen tymes, and halowe it, and consecrate it from the vnclennesse of the chyldren of Israell.

E And whan he hath made an ende of recõcylynge the Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the altare, he shall brynge the lyuynge goate.

Then shall Aaron laye both his hãdes vpon the heade of hym, and cõfesse ouer hym all the mysdedes of the chyldren of Israell, and all their trespaces in their synnes, and shall laye them vpõ the heade of the goate, and by some mã that is at hande, shall he let hym runne in to the wyldernes: that the goate may so beare all their mysdedes vpon hym in to the wyldernesse, and he shall leaue hym in the wyldernesse.

And Aaron shal go in to the Tabernacle of witnesse, and put of the lynnen clothes, which he put on whan he wente in to the Sanctuary, and shall leaue thẽ there, and bath his flesh with water in ÿ holy place & put on his awne raymẽt.

And he shall go forth, and make his F burntofferynge, and the burntofferynge of the people, and make an attonement both for hymselfe and for the people, & burne the fat of the synofferynge vpon the altare. But he that caried out ÿ fre goate, shall washe his clothes, & bathe hymselfe with water, and then come in to the hooste.

The bullocke of the synofferynge, & the goate of the synofferynge (whose bloude was brought in the Sanctuary to make an attonement) shalbe caryed out of the hoost, & brent with fyre, both their skynnes, flesh, and doũge. And he that burneth them, shall wash his clothes, and bathe hymselfe with water, and then come in to the hoost.

* And this shalbe a perpetual lawe G vnto you: Upon the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth shal ye humble youre soules, and do no worke, whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger amonge you. For in this daye is youre attonement made, that ye maye be clensed frõ all youre synnes before the LORDE: therfore shall it be a fre Sabbath vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules. Let this be a perpetuall lawe.

But the prest that is anoynted, and whose hande was fylled to be preste in his fathers steade, shall make this attonement, and shall put on the lynnẽ clothes, namely the holy vestimentes, so shall he reconcyle the holy Sanctuary, and the Tabernacle of witnesse, & the altare, and the prestes, and all the people of the congregacyon. * This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto you, that ye reconcyle the chyldren of Israell from all their synnes once a yeare. And Moses dyd, as the LORDE cõmaunded hym.

The.xvii. Chapter.

All offerynges were fyrst brought to the Tabernacle dore, no bloud nor dead caryon was to be eaten.

AND the LORDE talked A with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron & his sonnes, & to all the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto them: This is it that the LORDE hath cõmaunded: What so euer he be of the house of Israell that kylleth an ox or lambe, or goate in the hoost, or out of the hoost, and bryngeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, that it maye be brought vnto the LORDE for an offerynge before the Habitacyon of the LORDE, the same shalbe gylty of bloude, as though he had shed bloud and suche a man shalbe roted out from amonge his people.

Therfore shall the chyldren of Isra-B ell brynge theyr offerynges (that they wyll offre vpon the wyde felde) before yͤ LORDE, euen before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, vnto the prest, and there offer theyr thankofferynges vnto the LORDE. And the prest shall sprenkle the bloude vpon the altare of the LORDE before the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat for a swete sauoure vnto yͤ LORD and they shall offer theyr offerynges no-more vnto deuels, with whome they go awhorynge. This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto thē amonge theyr posterites.
C Therfore shalt thou saye vnto thē: What man soeuer he be of the house of Israel, or a strāger also that is amōge you, which offereth a burntofferynge or any other offerynge, and bryngeth it not before the dore of the Tabernacle of wit nesse to offer it vnto the LORDE, he shalbe roted out frō among his people.
*And what man soeuer it be (eyther .2.7.c of the house of Israel, or a straunger amonge you) that eateth any maner of bloude, agaynst hym wyl I set my face, and wyll rote hym out from among his people: for the soule of the body is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it you for the altare, that your soules maye be recon-cyled therwith: For the bloude that is in the soule maketh attonement. Therfore haue I sayd vnto the chyldrē of Is raell: No soule amonge you shall eate bloude: no, nor any straunger that dwel leth amonge you.
And what man soeuer it be amonge D you (whether he be of the house of Isra ell, or a straunger amonge you) yͭ at the huntynge taketh a beast or foule whiche may be eaten, he shall poure out yͤ bloud of the same, & couer it with earth: for all fleshe lyueth in the bloude.
And I haue sayd vnto the chyldren .9.a of Israell: * Ye shall eate the bloude of .3.c no body: for the lyfe of all flesh is in his 9.c bloude. Whosoeuer eateth it, shalbe roted out. And whatsoeuer soule eateth yͭ which dyed alone, or that was torne of wyld beastes (whether he be one of your selues or a strāger) the same shal wash his clothes, and bath hymselfe with wa ter and be vncleane vntyll the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he washe not his clothes, nor bath hymselfe, then shal he beare his synne.

enheritaunce a lōde, that floweth with mylke and hony. I am the LORDE youre God, which haue separated you from the nacions, that ye also shulde se parate the cleane beastes from the vncleane, & the vncleane foules from the cleane: and not defyle youre soules wt beastes, vpon foules, & vpō all that cre-peth on the grounde: * which I haue se parated vnto you, ẏ they shulde be vncleane. Therfor shal ye be holy vnto me: for I the LORDE am holy, which haue separated you from the nacyons, ẏ ye shulde be myne.
* Yf a man or woman be a soythsa-yer or an expounder of tokens, the same shall dye the death, they shalbe stoned, their bloude be vpon them.

The.xxi. Chapter.

How cleane and vndefyled the pres-tes ought to lyue.

AND the LORDE sayd vn- 1 to Moses: Speake to ẏ prestes the sonnes of Aaron, & saye vnto thē: * A prest shal defyle himself vpō no soule of his people, but vpon his nexte kyn that belongeth vnto hym: as vpon his mother, vpō his father, vpon his sonne, vpon his doughter, vpon his brother, & vpon his sister, which is yet a virgyn, & hath bene nomans wife (which belongeth vnto him) vpon her maye he defyle himself. Morouer he shal not defyle him self vpon any ruler in his people, to vn-halowe hymself.
* He shall make no crowne also vpon his heade, nor shaue of his beard, nether shall they cut out any markes in their fleshe. They shalbe holy vnto their God, & not vnhalowe the name of their God: for they offre the sacrifice of the LORDE, the bread of their God, therfore shall they be holy.
* They shal take no whore, nor one that is defyled, or that is put awaye fro hir husbāde, for he is holy vnto his God therfore shal he sanctifie hymself, for he offreth the bread of thy God. He shal be holy vnto the, for I am holy, euen the LORDE that sanctifieth you.
Yf a prestes doughter fall to whore dome, she shalbe burnt with fyre, for she hath shamed her father. He that is hye prest amonge his brethren, vpon whose heade the anoyntynge oyle is poured, & his hande fylled (that he myght be aray ed with the vestimentes) shall not vnco uer his heade, nor cut his clothes, & shal …2.9.f come at no dead, *and shall defyle hym selfe nether vpon father, nor mother. He shal not go out of the Sanctuarye, that he vnhalowe not the Sanctuary of his God. For the crowne of the anoyntinge oyle of hys God is vpon hym, for I am

the LORDE.

C *A virgyn shall he take to wyfe, …44.d but no wedowe, nor deuorsed, nor defy-
…2.b led, nor whore, but a virgyn of his owne people shall he take to wyfe, that he vn-halowe not his sede amonge his people For I am ye LORD, which sāctify him

And ye LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto Aaron, & saye: Yf there be a blemysh vpon any of thy sede in your generacyons, the same shall not prease to offre the bread of his …g.5.b God: *For whosoeuer hath a blemysh vpon hym, shall not come nere, whether he be blynde, lame, with an euell fauoured nose, with any myshapen membre, or that hath a broken fote, or hande, or is croke backed, or hath any blemyshe in the eye, or is gleyed, or is skyrnye or scaulde, or hath his stones broken.

D Whosoeuer now of the sede of Aaron the prest hath any blemysh vpō him shall not come nye to offre the sacrifice of the LORDE. For he hath a deform-myte. Therfore shall he not prease vnto ye bread of his God, to offre it. Notwith stondynge he shall eate of ye bread of his God, both of the holy, and of the moost holy: but he shall not go into the vayle, nor come nye the altare (for so much as he hath a blemysh vpon hym) that he vn halowe not my Sanctuary. For I am the LORDE that sanctifieth them.
And Moses spake this vnto Aarō & to his sōnes, & to all the chyldre of Israel.

The.xxii. Chapter.

How the prestes and theyr housholde ought to be: & how the offrynges ought to be vsed.

B AND ye LORDE talked wt
Moses, & sayd: Speake vn to Aarō, & his sōnes, yt they abstayne frō ye halowed thin ges of ye chyldre of Israell, which they haue halowed vnto me, & yt they vnhalowe not my holy name: for I am ye LORD. Say now to the & theyr posterities: Whoso euer he be of your sede yt cōmeth nye vnto the holy thyn-ges, which the chyldren of Israell ha-lowe vnto the LORDE, and so defyleth himselfe vpon ye same, his soule shal perish before my face: for I am ye Lorde.

Whosoeuer of the sede of Aaron is a leper, or hath * a runnynge yssue, shal Leui.15.a not eate of the holy thynges, tyll he be clensed. Who so toucheth any vncleane thynge, or whose sede departeth from hym by nyght, or who so toucheth any worme that is vncleane vnto him, or a man that is vncleane vnto him, & what so euer defyleth hī, loke what soule toucheth any such, is vncleane vntyll the euen, & shal not eate of the holy thynges, but shall first bath his flesh with water And whan ye Sonne is gone downe, & he cleane, then maye he eate therof, for it is his fode * Loke what dyeth alone, Exo 22.d. or is rent of wylde beastes, shall he not Eze.44.d eate, that he be not vncleane theron: for I am the LORD. Therfore shal they kepe my lawe, that they lade not synne vpon thē, and dye therin, whan they vn halowe them selues in it. For I am the LORDE, that halowe them.

A straunger shall not eate of the ho- B ly thynges, nor an housholdegest of the prestes, nor an hyred seruaunt. But yf ye prest bye a soule for his money, ye same maye eate therof. And loke who is borne in his house, maye eate of his bread also. Neuertheles yf the prestes dough-ter be a straūgers wife, she shal not eate of ye Heueoffrynges of holynes. But yf she be a wedowe, or deuorced, or haue no sede, & commeth agayne to hir fathers house as a fore (whā she was yet a may den in hir fathers house) then shall she eate of hir fathers bread. But no straū-ger shall eate therof.

Who so els eateth of the halowed thynges vnwyttingly, shall put ye fyfth parte there vnto, and geue it vnto the prest wt the halowed thynge, that they vnhalowe not the halowed thynges of the chyldre of Israel, which they heue vp vnto the LORD, lest they lade thē selues with mysdoynges and trespace, whan they eate their halowed thynges, for I am the LORDE which halowe them.

And ye LORDE talked wt Moses, C & sayde: Speake vnto Aaron & his son nes, & to al ye chyldre of Israel: * What Deu.15.c soeuer Israelite or straunger in Israell and.17.a wyll to his offrynge, whether it be their vowe or of fre wyll, yf they wyll offre a burntofferyng vnto ye LORDE, to recöcyle thēselues, it shalbe a male, & without blemyshe, of the oxen, or lambes or Mala.1.b goates. * Whatsoeuer hath any ble-myshe, shall they not offre, for they shall fynde no fauoure therwith.

And whoso wyll offre an thankoffe-rynge vnto ye LORDE, to separate out a vowe, or of fre wyll, oxen or shepe: it shalbe without blemysh, that it maye be accepted. It shal haue no deformite. Yf it be blynde, or broken, or wounded, or haue a wen, or skyruye, or scabbed, they shall offre none suche vnto the LORD nor put an offerynge of any such vpon the altare of the LORDE.

An oxe or shepe that hath myshapen membres, or no rompe, mayst thou offre of a fre wyll: but to a vowe it maye not be accepted. Thou shalt offre also vnto the LORDE nothinge that is brused, or broken, or rent, or cutte out, & ye shall do no suche in your londe. Moreouer ye shall offre no breade vnto youre God of a straungers hande: for it is marred of hym, & he hath deformite, therfore shall it not be accepted for you.

D And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Whan an oxe, or lambe, or goate is brought forth, it shalbe seuē dayes with the dame, & vpon the eight daye, and therafter it may be offered vnto the LORD, then is it accepted. Whether it be oxe or lambe it shall not be slayne with his yonge in one daye.

But whan ye wyll offre a thankoffe-rynge vnto the LORDE that it maye be accepted, ye shall eate it ye same daye and kepe nothinge ouer vntyll the mor-nynge: for I am the LORDE. Therfore kepe now my commaundementes, and do thē: for I am the LORD, that ye vnhalowe not my holy name, & that I maye be halowed amonge the childrē of Israel. For I am he that halow you euen the LORDE, which brought you out of the lāde of Egypte, that I might be your God: Euen I the LORDE.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

Of the holy dayes and hye feastes: namely, the Sabbath, Easter, Whyte-sondaye (otherwyse called the feast of wekes) the feast of Tabernacles. &c.

B AND the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them: These are the feastes of the LORDE, which ye shall call holy dayes. * Sixe dayes shalt ye worke, but the seuenth daye is the reste of the Sabbath, & shalbe called holy. Ye shall do no worke therin, for it is ye Sabbath of the LORDE, wheresoeuer ye dwell.

These are the feastes of the LOR-DE, that are called holy, which ye shall call your feastes: * Vpō the fourtenth daye of the fyrst moneth at euen, is the LORDES Easter. And vpon the fyftenth daye of the same moneth is the feaste of vnleuended breade of the LORDE. Then shall ye eate vnleuen-ded bread seuen dayes.

The fyrste daye shalbe called holy amonge you, ye shall do no worke of bō-dage therin, * and seuen dayes shall ye offre vnto the LORDE. The seuenth daye shalbe called holy lykewyse, wher-in ye shall do no worke of bōdage also.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: Speake to the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them: * Whan ye come into the lande that I shall geue you, and reape downe youre haruest, ye shall brynge a shefe of the fyrste frutes of youre haruest vnto the prest, the shall the shefe be waued before the LORDE, that ye maye be accepted: but this shall the prest do the nexte day after the Sabbath. And the same daye that your shefe is waued, shall ye offre a burntofferynge vnto the LORDE, of a lambe which is without blemysh & of one yeare olde, with the meatofferynge, two tenth dea-les of fyne floure mengled with oyle, for an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto ye LORDE: and the drynkofferynge also euē the fourth parte of an hin of wyne.

* And ye shal eate nether bread, nor cakes, nor furmentye (of new corne) tyll the same day that ye brynge an offerynge vnto your God. This shalbe a lawe vnto youre posterityes, where so euer ye dwell.

* Then shall ye nombre (from the nexte daye after the Sabbath, whan ye brought the Waueshefe) seuen whole wekes, vntyll the nexte daye after the seuenth weke, namely fyftie dayes, shal ye nombre, and offre new meatofferynge vnto the LORDE. And out of all youre dwellynges shall ye offre, namely, two Waueloaues of two tēth deales of fyne floure leuended, and baken for the fyrstfrutes vnto the LORDE. * And with your breade ye shall brynge seuen lābes of one yeare olde without blemysh, and a yonge bulloche, and two rammes: this shalbe the LORDES burntofferinge, meatofferynge, & drynkofferynge. This is a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto þ LORDE.

D Morouer ye shall offre an he goate for a synofferyng, & two lambes of a yea re olde for a thankofferinge. And þ prest shall waue it vpon the bread of þ first frutes before the LORDE & the two lambes. And they shal be holy vnto the LORD, and shall be the prestes. And this daye shall ye proclame, for it shalbe called holy amonge you, no seruyle wor ke shall ye do therin. A perpetuall lawe shal it be amõge youre posterities, wher so euer ye dwell.

...l.19.c. * Whan ye reape down þ haruest of ...n.24.b youre lõd, ye shal not cut it cleane down vpon þ felde, nor gather vp all, but shal leaue it for the poore and straungers. I am the LORDE youre God.

And the LORD talked with Mo-
ses, and sayde: Speake vnto the childrẽ
...n.29.a of Israel, & saye: * Vpon the first daye of the seuenth moneth shall ye haue the holy rest of the remembraũce of blowing, wheryn ye shall do no seruyle worke, & ye shall offre sacrifice vnto þ LORD.

E And the LORDE spake vnto Mo...l.16.g ses, and sayd: * Vpon the tenth daye in ...n.29.a this seuenth moneth is the daye of recõ cylinge, wich shalbe an holy conuoca cyon wt you. Ye shall humble youre sou les therin, and offre vnto the LORD, and shall do no seruyle worke in this daye: for it is the daye of attonement, þ ye maye be reconcyled before the LOR DE youre God. For what soule so euer humbleth not himself vpon this daye, þ same shalbe roted out from amõge his people. And what soule so euer doth e-ny worke this daye, the same wyl I de-stroye from amonge his people: therfore shall ye do no worke. This shalbe a per petual law vnto youre posterities, wher so euer ye dwell. It is the rest of youre Sabbath, that ye maye humble youre soules. Vpon the nyenth daye of þ mo-neth at euen, shal ye kepe this holy daye frõ þ euẽ forth vntyl the euen agayne.

F And the LORD talked with Mo...n.29.b ses, & sayde: * Vpon the fifteenth daye
...Esd.3.e of the seuẽth moneth, is the feast of Ta
...Ma.1.b bernacles seuen dayes vnto þ LORD.
The first daye shalbe an holy conuoca cion: no seruyle worke shall ye do therin Seuẽ dayes shal ye offre vnto þ LOR DE. The eight daye shalbe an holy cõ uocation vnto you also, and ye shall of-fre vnto the LORDE: for it is þ daye of gatheryng together: No seruyle wor ke shall ye do therin.

These are the holy dayes of þ LOR DE, which ye shall proclame and holde for holy conuocations, that ye maye of-fre vnto the LORDE burntofferinges, meatofferynges, drynkofferynges, and other offerynges, euery one acordynge to his daye, besyde the Sabbathes of þ LORDE, and youre giftes, & vowes, and frewylofferynges, that ye offre vnto the LORDE.

So vpõ the fifteenth daye of the se- G uenth moneth, whã ye haue brought in the increase of the londe, ye shall kepe þ LORDES feast seuen dayes longe.
The first daye shall be kepte holy daye, & the eight daye shalbe kepte holy daye also. And vpon the first daye ye shal take of the goodly fruteful trees, braunches of palme trees, and bowes of thicke trees, and Wyllies of the broke, and seuen dayes shall ye be mery before the LORDE your God: and thus shall ye kepe the feast vnto the LORDE seuẽ dayes in the yeare. This shalbe a perpe tuall lawe amonge youre posterities, þ they kepe holy daye thus in the seuenth moneth. Seuen dayes shall ye dwell in bothes. Who so euer is an Israelite borne, shall dwell in bothes, that they which come after you, maye knowe, how that I made the chyldren of Israel to dwel in bothes, whã I brought them out of the londe of Egipte. I am the LORDE your God. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israell these holy dayes of the LORDE.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

Of the oyle for the lampes & lyghtes Of the shewbread. Punyshment for cur synge and blasphemy.

And the LORD speake vn- B to Moses, & sayde: * Com- Exo.27.d maunde the chyldren of Israell, that they brynge pure oyle olyue beatẽ for lyghtes, that it maye be alwaye put in the lam pes, without before the vayle of wyt-nesse in þ Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall dresse it alwaye at euen & in the mornynge before the LORDE.
Let this be a perpetual lawe vnto your posterities. The lampes shall he dresse vpon the pure candilsticke before the LORDE perpetually.

B * And thou shalt take fyne floure, Exo.25.c. and bake twolue cakes therof: two tēth deales shall euery cake haue, and thou shalt laye them sixe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the LORDE. And vpō the same shalt thou laye pure frankencense, that it maye be bread of remē-braūce for an offerynge vnto the LOR DE. Euery Sabbath shall he prepare them before the LORDE alwaye, and receaue them of the chyldren of Israell they shalbe Aarons & his sonnes, which shall eate them in the holy place. For this is his moost holy of the offerynges of the LORDE.

And the LORDE spake vnto Mo-

let the whole congregacion stone hym.

Moses tolde the children of Israell And they brought him that had cursed, out of the hoost, and stoned hym. Thus dyd the chyldren of Israel as the LOR DE commaunded Moses.

The.xxv. Chapter.

Of the reste of the seuenth yeare, libertye of the fyftieth yeare, otherwyse called the yeare of Jubylie, the yeare of hornes blowynge, or the trompet yeare.

AND the LORDE talked with Moses vpon mounte Synai, and sayde: Speake to the children of Israell, & saye vnto them: * Whā ye come in to the londe, that I shall geue you, the londe shall rest vnto the LOR DE, so that thou sowe thy felde sixe yeares, and sixe yeares cut thy vynes, and gather in the frutes. But in the seuenth yeare the lōde shal haue his Sab bath of reste for a Sabbath vnto the LORDE, wherin thou shalt not sowe thy felde nor cut thy vynes.

Loke what groweth of it selfe after thy haruest, thou shalt not reape it. And the grapes that growe without thy labour, shalt thou not gather, for so much as it is yͤ * yeare of the londes rest: But the rest of the londe shalt thou kepe for this intēt, that thou mayest eate therof, thy seruaunte, thy mayde, thy hyrelyng, thy gest thy straunger with the, thy ca-tell, and the beastes in thy londe. All the encrease shall be meate.

And thou shalt nombre seuē of these yeare Sabbathes, that seuen yeares maye be tolde seuen tymes, and so the tyme of yͤ seuē yeare Sabbathes make nyne and fortie yeares. Thē shalt thou let the blaste of the horne go thorow all youre londe, vpon the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, euen in the daye of attonement. And ye shall halowe the fiftieth yeare, and shall call it a fre yeare in the londe, for all thē that dwell therin: for it is the yeare of Jubilye. * Thē shall euery one among you come agayn to his possession and to his kynred: for the fyftieth yeare is the yeare of Jubi-lye. Ye shall not sowe nor reape it that groweth of it selfe, nor gather the grapes, that growe without laboure. For the yeare of Jubilye shalbe holy amōge you. But loke what the felde beareth, that shall ye eate. This is the yeare of Jubilye, wherin ye shall come agayne euery man to his owne.

Now whā yͤ sellest ought vnto thy C neghboure, or byeste any thynge of him, then shal of you none oppresse his brother but accordyng to the nombre of the yeare of Jubilye shalt thou bye it of hym:and accordynge to the nombre of the yeares of increase shall he sell it vnto the. Accordynge to the multitude of the yeares shalt thou rayse the pryce, & accordynge to the fewnesse of the yeares shalt thou mynyshe the pryce:for he shall sell it vnto the accordynge to the nombre of the ...el.4.a increase. Therfor * let no mã defraude his neghboure, but feare thy God. For I am the LORDE your God. Wherfore do after my statutes, and kepe my lawes, so that ye do them that ye maye dwell safe in the lande. For the lande shall geue you her frute, so that ye shall haue ynough to eat, & dwell safe therin.

And yf ye wolde say: What shall we eate in the seuenth yeare, in as much as we shall not sowe, nor gather in oure increase? I wyll sende my blessynge vpon you in the sixte yeare, that it shall brynge forth frute for thre yeare so that ye shall sowe in the eyght yeare, D and eate of the olde frute vntyll y^e nynth yeare, that ye may eat of y^e olde tyll new frutes come agayne. Therfore shall ye
...23.a. not sell the lande for euer, * for y^e lande is myne. And ye are straungers and indwellers before me. And in all your lãde shall ye geue youre lande to lowse.

...36.c. * Whan thy brother wareth poore,
...32.b. and selleth the his possession, & his next
...h.4.a kynsman commeth to hym, that he may redeme it, then shall he redeme that his brother solde. But whan a man hathe none to redeme it, and can get so muche with his hande as to redeme one parte: then shall it be rekened how many yeares it hath ben solde, and the remnaunt shalbe restored vnto hym to whome he solde it, that he may come againe to his possession. But yf his hande can not get so muche, as to haue one parte agayne: then shall it that he solde be styll in the hande of the byer vntyll the yeare of Jubilye: In the same shall it go out, and returne to his owner agayne.

E He that selleth a dwellynge house within the walles of the cyte, hath an hole yeare respyte to louse it out agayne that shalbe the tyme, wherin he maye redeme it. But yf he redeme it not afore y^e hole yeare be out then shall he y^t bought it, and his successours kepe it for euer, and it shall not go out lowse in the yere of Jubilie. Neuertheles yf it be an house in a village that hath no wall aboute it, it shalbe counted lyke vnto the felde of countre, and maye be redemed and shall go out fre in the yeare of Jubilye.

The cyties of the Leuites, and the houses in the cyties that theyr possessiõ is in, may alwaye be redemed. Who so purchaceth ought of the Leuites, shall leaue it in the yeare of Jubilye, whether it be house or cyte y^t he hath had in possession. For the houses in the cyties of the Leuites are theyr possession amonge the chyldren of Israel. But the felde before theyr cyties shall not be solde, for it is theyr owne for euer.

Whan thy brother wareth poore, & F falleth in decaye besyde the, thou shalte receaue hym as a straunger, or gest, y^t he maye lyue by the:and thou shalt take no shalt not lende hym thy money vpon v- and 22.b sury, nor delyuer hym thy meate vpon vauntage. For I am the LORDE your God, which haue brought you out of the londe of Egipte, to geue you the lande of Canaan, and to be your God.

* Whan thy brother wareth poore Exo.21.a besyde the, and selleth hym selfe vnto y^e, Deu.15.b thou shalt not holde hym as a bonde mã Jere.34. but as an hyred seruaunt & as a soiourner shal he be with the, and serue the vntyll the yeare of Jubilye. Then shall he departe lowse from the, and his chyldrẽ with hym, and shal returne to his owne kynred, and to his fathers possessiõ: for they are my seruauntes, whõ I brought out of the lande of Egipte. Therfore shall they not be solde lyke bondmen. And thou shalt not raigne ouer them w^t crueltie, but shalt feare thy God. But yf thou wylt haue bonde seruauntes and maydens, thou shalt bye them of y^e Heythen, that are round aboute you: of the chyldren of the soiourners and straungers amonge you, and of theyr generacyons with you, and that are borne in your lande, the same shall ye haue for bonde seruaũtes, and shall possesse thẽ, and your chyldren after you for an euerlastyng possessiõ, these shalbe your bond men. * But ouer your brethren the chyl- 3.Re.9.b

Whan a straũger or soiourner war- G eth ryche by y^e, and thy brother wareth poore besyde hym, and selleth hym selfe vnto the straunger or soiourner by the, or to any of his kynne, then shal he haue ryght (after y^t he is solde) to be redemed agayne. And ony of his brethren maye lowse hym out: or his vncle, or his vncles sonne, or any other kynsman of his kynred: Or yf his awne hande getteth so much, he shall louse himselfe out, and shall reken with hym that bought hym, from ỹ yeare that he solde hymselfe, vn tyll the yeare of Jubilye. And ỹ money shall be counted accordynge to the nombre of the yeares that he was solde, and his wages of the whole tyme shalbe rekened withall.

Yf there be yet many yeares vnto the yeare of Jubelye, then shall he (accordyng to ỹ same) geue ỹ more for hys delyueraunce, therafter as he is solde. Yf there remayne but few yeares vnto the year of Jubilye thẽ shal he geue againe therafter for his redempcyon. And his wages from yeare to yeare shal he rekẽ withall, and thou shalt not let the other raygne cruelly ouer hym in thy sighte. But yf he bye not hymselfe out after this maner: thẽ shall he go out fre in the yeare of Jubilye, and his children with hym: for the chyldren of Israell are my seruauntes, which I haue brought out of the lõde of Egypte. I am the LORDE youre God.

Deu.5.a * Ye shall make you no Idols nor ymage, and ye shall reare you vp no pyler, nor set vp any markstone in youre londe, to bowe youre selues therto. For I am the LORDE youre God. Kepe my Sabbathes, & stonde in awe of my Sanctuary. I am the LORDE.

Swete & louynge promyses of God for all suche as wyll kepe his cõmaundementes: Agayne. Maruelous sore plages are threatened vnto them, that wyl not harken to his worde.

Deu.28.a Yf ye wyll walke now in my statutes, and kepe my commaũdemẽtes and do them: then wyll I geue you rayne in due season, and the londe shall geue hir increase, and the trees of the felde shall brynge forth their frute. And the threshynge tyme shall reache vnto the wynharuest, and the wyneharuest shal reache vnto the sowynge tyme And ye shall eate youre bread in plenteousnes, and shall dwell safe in your lõde I wyll geue peace in youre londe, so that ye shall slepe: and no mã shall make you afrayed. I wyll ryd euill beastes out of youre londe, and there shall no swearde go thorow youre londe.

Ye shall chace youre enemyes, and they shall fall into the swearde before you. * Fyue of you shall chace an hundreth: and an hũdreth of you shall chace ten thousande. For youre enemies shall fall into the swearde before you. And I wyll turne me vnto you, and wyll cause you to growe and increase, and wyll set vp my couenaũt with you. And ye shall eate of the olde stoare, and shall let go the olde for plenteousnesse of the newe. * I wyll haue my dwellynge amonge you, and my soule shall not refuse you. And I wyll walke amonge you, & wyll be youre God, and ye shalbe my people. For I am the LORDE youre God, whiche brought you out of the londe of Egypte, that ye shuld not be their bõdmen. And I haue broken the cepter of youre yocke, and caused you to go vp righte.

* But yf ye wyll not harken vnto me, nor do all these commaundementes and will despise my statutes, & yf youre soules refuse my lawes, that ye wyl not do all my commaundementes, and shall let my couenaunt stond, then wyll I do this agayne vnto you: I wyl vyset you shortly with swellinges & feuers, which shall destroye ỹ eyes, & cõsume awaye ỹ harte. Ye shall sowe youre sede invayne and youre enemyes shall eate it vp.

And I wyl set my face agaynst you and ye shalbe slayne before youre enemyes. And they that hate you, shal haue dominion ouer you. * And ye shall flye whan no man chaseth you.

But yf ye wyll not herken vnto me for all this, thẽ wyll I make it yet seuen tymes more, to punysh you for youre synnes, that I maye breake ỹ pryde of youre strength, and wyll make youre heauen lyke yron, and youre earth as brasse: & youre trauayle and laboure shall be but loste, so that youre londe shall not geue hir increase, and the trees in the londe shall not brynge forth their frute.

Yf ye walke yet agaynst me, & wyll not harken vnto me, than wyll I make it yet seuen tymes more, to punyshe you because of youre synnes: and wyll sende wylde beastes amonge you, which shall robbe you, and destroye your catell, and make you fewer, and youre hyewayes shall become waist.

But yf ye will not yet be refourmed here withall, and wyll walke contrary vnto me, then wyll I walke contrary vnto you also, and wyll punyshe you, yet seuen tymes for your synnes. And I wyl brynge vpon you a swearde of vengeaunce, which shal auenge my Testamet And thoughe ye gather you together in to youre cyties, yet wyll I sende the pestilence amonge you, and wyll delyuer you into the handes of youre enemyes: for I wyll destroye youre prouysyon of bread, so that ten wemen shall bake your bread in one ouen, and your bread shalbe delyuered out by weyght. * And E whan ye eate, ye shall not haue ynough.

Yf ye wyll not yet for all this harke vnto me, and wyll walke contrarye vnto me, then wyll I also walke contrarye vnto you in wrathfull displeasure, and wyll punyshe you seuen folde because of youre synnes, * so that ye shall eate the fleshe of your sonnes and doughters. And I wyll destroye your hye altares, and rote out your ymages, and wyl cast your bodies vpon the bodyes of your Idols, & my soule shall abhorre you. And your cyties wyl I make waist, & brynge your churches to naught, and wyll not smell youre swete odoures.

Thus wyll I make the lande desolate, so that youre enemyes shall dwell therin, and make it waist: but you wyll I strater amonge the Heythen, & drawe out the swearde after you, so that youre F lãde shalbe waist, & your cytes desolate.

Then shall the lande reioyse in her Sabbathes, as longe as it lyeth wayst, and ye be in the enemyes lande. Yee thẽ shall the lande kepe holydaye, & reioyse in her rest, as longe as it lyeth waist, because it coulde not rest in your Sabbathes, whan ye dwelt therin.

And as for thẽ that remayne of you I wyll make them faynteharted in the lande of theyr enemyes, so that a shakynge leafe shall chace them. And they shall flye from it, as thoughe a swearde persecuted them, and shall fall nomã folowynge vpon them. And they shall fall one vpon another (as it were before the swearde) and noman yet chacynge them And ye shal not be so bold, as to ãstãde your enemyes, and shal peryshe amonge the Heythen, and the lande of your ene-G myes shall eate you vp.

And they that are lefte of you, shall pyne awaye in theyr mysdede, euen in thy enemyes londe, and in the mysdedes of theyr fathers shal they cõsume away Then shall they knowlege theyr mysdedes, & the mysdedes of theyr fathers in the trespace, wherwith they haue trespaced agaynst me, and walked contrarye vnto me. Therfore wyll I also walke cõtrary vnto them, & wyl brynge them into the enemyes lande.

Then shall theyr vncircũcysed harte G be tamed. And then shall they ende theyr mysdedes. * And I shall thynke vpon Deut.4.c my couenaunt with Isaac, and vpõ my couenaunt with Iacob, and vpõ my couenaũt with Abraham, and wyl thynke vpon the lande. As for the lande, whan it shalbe lefte of them, it shall reioyse in her Sabbathes, euen then, whan it lyeth waist, and they fylle it not. And they shall make attonement for theyr mysdedes, because they despysed my lawes, & theyr soules refused my statutes. Moreouer I haue not so refused them, ỹ they shulde be in the enemyes lande: nether haue I so vtterly abhorred them, that I wolde brynge them to naught, and breake my couenaunt with them: for I am the LORDE theyr God. And for theyr sake I wyll remembre * my fyrste Exo.19.a couenaunt, whan I brought them out of the lande of Egipte in the syght of the Heythẽ, that I myght be theyr God Euen I the LORDE.

These are the ordinaunces, statutes and lawes, whiche the LORDE made betwixte hym and the chyldren of Israel vpon mount Sinai, by the hande of Moses.

The.xxvii. Chapter.

Of vowes, and of the fre yeare. Of redemynge or lowsynge out agayne of catell or lande, that a man promyseth, voweth or dedicateth vnto the LORDE.

And the LORDE talked wt Moses, and sayd: Speak to A the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them: Yf any man make a special vowe vnto ỹ LORDE, so that he pryse a soule, thẽ shall this be the valuacyon: A man of twentye yeare olde vnto the thre score yere, shalt thou set at fyftye syluer Sycles, after the Sycle of the Sanctuary: But a woman at thyrtie Sycles. Yf it be fyue yeare olde vnto twentye yeare, thou shalt set it at twenty Sycles, whã it is a manchylde: but a woman, at ten Sycles. * Yf it be a moneth olde vnto Num.3.g fyue yeare, thou shalt set it at fyue Sycles of syluer, whã it is a mãchylde: but a womã at thre syluer Sycles. Yf he be thre score yeare olde & aboue, thẽ shalt ỹ set hym at fyftene sycles whã it is a mã a womā at te Sicles. Yf he be to poore so to be set, thē let him present hymself to the prest, & the prest shall value hym. Neuertheles he shall value hym, acordynge as ye hande of hym yt vowed, is B able to get. But yf it be a beast yt maye be offred vnto ye LORDE, all yt is offred vnto ye LORDE of such, is holy: it shall not be altered nor chaūged, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. Yf any mā chaūge it, one beast for another, thē shal they both be holy vnto ye LORDE. But yf ye beast be vncleane which maye not be offred vnto the LORDE thē shall it be set before ye prest, & the prest shall value it, whether it be good or bad, and it shal stonde at ye prestes valuinge. But yf any man wyll bye it out, he shal geue ye fifth parte more, to that it was set at.

Whan any man sanctifieth his house vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuary, ye prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as ye prest valueth it, so shal it stonde. But yf he that sāctified it, wyl redeme it he shal geue the fifth parte of syluer therto, aboue that it was set at: So shall it be his.

C Yf any man halowe a pece of londe of his heretage vnto the LORDE, it shalbe set acordynge to that it beareth. Yf it beare an Homer of barlye, it shalbe valued at fyftie Sycles of syluer. But yf he halowe his londe immediatly from the yeare of Iubilye forth, then shall it be set acordynge to ye value therof. Yf he haue halowed it after ye yeare of Iubilye, then shall the prest reken it, acordynge to the yeares that remayne vnto the yeare of Iubilye, and therafter shall he set it the lower.

But yf he that sanctified the londe wyll redeme it agayne, thē shall he geue the fyfth parte of syluer therto, aboue yt it was set at: So shall it be his. Yf he wyll not lowse it out, but selleth it vnto another, then shall he redeme it nomore; but the same londe whan it goeth out fre in the yeare of Iubilye, shall be holy vnto the LORDE, as a dedicated felde & shalbe the prestes inheritaunce.

D Yf eny mā halowe vnto the LORDE a felde, which he hath bought, & is not his inheritaunce, then shall the prest reken it, what it is worth vnto the yeare of Iubilye, and the same daye shall he geue the pryce that it is set at, vnto the LORDE for the Sanctuary. But in the yeare of Iubilye it shall returne vnto him that bought it, that it maye be his inheritaunce in the londe. All maner of pryfinge shalbe made acordynge to the Sycle of the Sanctuary * One Sycle maketh.xx.Geras.

‡ The firstborne amonge the catell (which belongeth vnto the LORDE) shall no man sanctifye vnto ye LORDE, whether it be oxe or shepe, for it is the LORDES all ready. But yf there be any vncleane thynge vpon the beast, then shall it be lowsed out therafter as it is worth, and the fyft parte shalbe geuen more therto, Yf he wyll not redeme it, thē let it be solde, as it is worth.

There shall no dāned thynge be solde nor bought out, that eny man damneth for the LORDE, of all that is his good, whether it be mē, catell, or londe. For euery damned thynge, is moost holy vnto the LORDE. There shall no dāned thynge of man be bought out * but shal dye the death. All the tythes in ye londe, both of the sede of the londe, and of the frutes of the trees, are the LORDES and shal be holy vnto the LORDE. But yf any man wyll redeme his tithes, he shall geue the fyft parte more therto. And all the tithes of oxen and the shepe, and that goeth vnder the rodde, ye same is an holy tythe vnto the LORDE. It shall not be axed whether it be good or bad, nether shal it be chaūged. But yf any man chaūge it, then both it and that it was chaunged withal, shal be holy, and not redemed.

These are the commaundemētes which the LORDE gaue Moses in charge vnto ye chyldrē of Israel vpon mount Synai.

The ende of the thyrde boke of Moses, called Leuiticus.

The fourth boke of Moses, called Numerus.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The chyldren of Israell are nōbred and mustered out, as many as are mete for the batayll: The captaynes are ordeyned, and Leui appoynted to the seruice of the Tabernacle.

A AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses in ÿ wyldernes of Sinai, in the Tabernacle of witnes the fyrste daye of ÿ seconde moneth in ÿ seconde yeare, whan they were gone out of the 20.b. lande of Egipte, and sayde: * Take 26.a the summe of the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell, after theyr kynredes and theyr fathers houses, with the nombre of the names, all that are males, heade by heade, from twenty yeare and aboue, as many as are able to go forth into the warre in Israell. And ye shall nombre thē accordynge to theyr armyes thou and Aaron, & of euery trybe ye shall take vnto you one captayne ouer his fathers house.

These are the names of the captaynes that shal stande with you. Of Rubē Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. Of Simeon, Selumiel the sonne of zuri Saddai. Of Juda, Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. Of Isachar, Nathaneel ÿ sōne of zuar. Of zabulon, Eliab the sonne of Helon. Amonge the chyldren of Joseph Of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Ammihud. Of Manasse, Gamaliel ÿ sōne of Pedazur. Of BenJamin, Abidam ÿ sonne of Gedeoni. Of Dan, Ahieser the sonne of Ammi Sadai. Of Aser, Pagiel the sonne of Ochran. Of Gad, Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. Of Nephthali, Ahira the sonne of Enan.

B These are the auncient men of the congregacyon, the captaynes amonge ÿ trybes of theyr fathers, which were heades and prynces in Israell.

And Moses and Aaron toke them (lyke as they are there named by name) and gathered the hole congregacyon together also, the fyrst daye of the seconde moneth, and rekened them after theyr byrth, accordynge to theyr kynredes & fathers houses by theyr names, frō twentye yeare and aboue, heade by heade, as the LORDE commaunded Moses, & nōbred thē in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

The chyldrē of Ruben Israels fyrst sonne, theyr kynredes and generacyons after theyr fathers houses, in the nombre of theyr names heade by heade, all ÿ were males, from twenty yeare & aboue and were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Ruben, syxe and fortye thousande, and fyue hundreth.

C The chyldren of Simeon theyr kynredes & generacyons after theyr fathers houses in the nōbre of the names heade by heade, all that were males frō twentye yere & aboue, and were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to ÿ trybe of Symeon, nyne and fyftye thousande, and thre hundreth.

The chyldrē of Gad theyr kynredes and generacyōs after theyr fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare and aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Gad, fyue & fortye thousande, sixe hundreth, & fyftie.

The chyldren of Juda theyr kynredes & generacyons after theyr fathers houses in the nombre of the names, frō twentye yeare & aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Juda, foure and seuentye thousandes, and sixe hundreth.

D The chyldren of Isachar theyr kynredes and generacyons, after theyr fathers houses in the nombre of ÿ names from twentye yeare & aboue, all ÿ were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Isachar, foure and fyftie thousande, & foure hundreth.

The chyldren of zabulō theyr kynredes and generacyons after theyr fathers houses in the nomber of the names from twenty yeare and aboue, all ÿ were able to go forth to ÿ warre, were nōbred to the trybe of zabulon, seuen & fyftye thousande and foure hundreth.

Josephs chyldren of Ephraim, their kynred and generacions after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeare & aboue all ÿ were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to ÿ trybe of Ephraim, fortye thousande, and fyue hundreth.

G The chyldren of Manasse their kynreds & generacions, after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names frō twentye yeare & aboue, all ÿ were able to go forth to the warre, were nōbred to the trybe of Manasse, two and thyrtye thousande & two hundreth.

The chyldren of Ben Jamin theyr kynreds and generacions, after their fathers houses, in the nōbre of the names from twentye yeare and aboue, all that were able to go forth to ÿ warre, were nōbred to the trybe of Ben Jamin, fyue and thirtie thousande & foure hūdreth.

The chyldre of Dā their kynreds & generacions after their fathers houses, in the nombre of the names, from twentye yeares and aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Dan, two and thre score thousande, and seuen hundreth.

F The chyldre of Asser their kynreds & generacions, after their fathers houses in the nombre of the names, frō twentye yeare and aboue, all that were able to go forth to the warre, were nombred to the trybe of Asser, one & fortye thousande and fyue hundreth.

The chyldre of Nephtali, their kynreds and generaciōs after their fathers houses in the nōbre of the names, from twentye yeare & aboue, all that were able to go forth vnto the warre, were nōbred to the trybe of Nephtali, thre and fiftye thousande and foure hundreth.

These are they whō Moses and Aaron nombred with the twolue prynces of Israell, whereof euery one was ouer the house of their fathers. * And ÿ summe of the chyldre of Israell after their fathers houses, from twentye yeare and aboue (whatsoeuer was able to go forth to the warre in Israel) was sixe. C. thousande, thre thousande, fyue. C. & fyftie. But the Leuites after the trybe of their fathers, were not nōbred amonge them.

G And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: The trybe of Leui shalt ÿ not nōbre, nor take the summe of thē amonge the chyldren of Israell: but shalt appoynte them to the habitaciō of witnesse, and to all the apparell therof, and to all that belongeth therto. * And they shall beare the Tabernacle & all the ordinaunce therof, and shall wayte vpon it, & shall pitch their tētes roūde aboute it. And whan men shall go on their iourney, the Leuites shall take downe ÿ Tabernacle. And whā the hoost pitch their tētes, they shall set vp the Tabernacle. And yf a straunger preasse nye vnto it, he shall dye. The chyldren of Israel shal pitch their tētes, euery one in his awne armye, and by the bāner of his owne cōpanye. But ÿ Leuites shal pitch roūde aboute the Tabernacle of wytnesse, ÿ there come no wrath vpon ÿ congregacyon of the chyldren of Israell: therfore shall the Leuites wayte vpon the habitacion of wytnesse. And the chyldren of Israel dyd all, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The. ii. Chapter.

The ordre & maner how the tentes were pitched, & how the chyldren of Israell laye aboute ÿ Tabernacle of wytnesse.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aarō, & sayde: The chyldre of Israell shall pitch rounde aboute the Tabernacle of wytnesse, euery one vnder his banner and tokens, after their fathers houses.

On the East syde shall Juda pitch with his banner & hoost, their captayne Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. And his armie in the summe, foure and seuentie thousande, & sixe hundreth. Nexte vnto him shall the trybe of Isachar pitch, their captayne Nathanael the sonne of Zuar: & his armye in the summe, foure and fiftye thousande, & foure hundreth. The trybe of Zabulon also, their captayne Eliab the sonne of Helon: his armye in the summe, seuen and fiftie thousande, and foure hundreth.

So ÿ all they which belonge to the hoost of Juda, be in ÿ summe an. C. thousande & foure score thousande, and foure hundreth belonginge to their armye, & they shall go before.

On the South syde shall lye ÿ pauilions ÿ bāner of Ruben with their hoost, their captayne Elizur the sonne of Sedeur: & his armie in the summe six and fortie thousande, and fyue. C. Nexte vnto hym shall the trybe of Simeon pitch, their captayne Selumiel ÿ sonne of Zuri Saddai: & his armye in ÿ summe, nyne and fiftie thousande, [illegible] trybe of Gad also, their captayne Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel; & his armye in the summe, fyue and fortye thousāde. sixe hundreth & fiftie. So that all they which belonge to the hoost of Rubē, be in the summe, an hūdreth, one and fiftie thousande, foure hundreth, & fyftye, be-longynge to their armye. And they shall be the seconde in the iourney.

C After that shall the Tabernacle of wytnesse go with the hoost of the Leui-tes euen in the myddes amonge ẏ hooste: & as they lye in their tentes, so shal they go forth also, euery one in his place vnder his bāner.
On the West syde shall lye ẏ pauy-lions & bāner of Ephraim wt their hoost: their captayne shalbe Elisama ẏ sonne of Amihud, and his armye in ẏ summe, fortye thousande, & fyue hūdreth. Nexte vnto him shal ẏ trybe of Manasse pitch their captayne Gamaliel ẏ sonne of Pe-dazur: his armye in the summe, two & thirtie thousande & two hūdreth. The trybe of BēIamin also, their captayne Abidā the sonne of Gedeoni: his armye in the summe, fyue & thirtie thousāde, & foure hundreth. So ẏ all they which belonge to the hoost of Ephraim, be in the summe, an hundreth thousāde, eight thousand, and an hundreth, belonginge to his armie. And they shall be ẏ thirde in the iourney.
On the North syde shall lye ẏ pauy-D lions and bāner of Dan wt their hoost: their captayne Ahieser the sonne of Ammi Sadai, his armye in summe, two & syxtye thousande and seuen hundreth.
Nexte vnto him shall the trybe of Asser pitche: their captayne Pagiel the sonne of Ochran, his army in the summe, one and fortye thousande, & fyue hundreth.
The trybe of Nephtali also, their captayne Ahira the sonne of Enan: his ar-mye in the summe, thre and fiftye thousande and foure hundreth. So that all they which belonge to the hoost of Dā, be in the summe, an hūdreth thousande, seuen and fiftye thousande, and syxe hundreth. And they shalbe the last in the iourney with their bāners.
This is the summe of the childrē of Israel, after their fathers houses & ar-myes wt their hoostes: euen sixe hūdreth thousande, and thre thousande, fyue hūdreth, & fiftye. But ẏ Leuites were not nombred in the summe amōge ẏ childrē of Israell, as the LORDE commaū-Num. 1.g. ded Moses. And the children of Israell dyd all as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And so they pitched vnder theyr bāners, & toke theyr iourney, euery one in his kynred, accordynge to the house of theyr fathers.

I the LORDE.
And the LORDE spake vnto Mo- C ses in the wyldernesse of Sinai, & sayd: Nombre the chyldrē of Leui after theyr fathers houses and kynredes, all that are males of a moneth olde and aboue.

So Moses nombred them accordyng to the worde of ye LORDE, as he had Exod.6.c commaunded. * And these were ye chyldren of Leui with theyr names: Gersō, Kahath, Merari. The names of ye chyl dren of Gerson in theyr kynredes, were:
Libni and Semei.
The chyldre of Kahath in theyr kyn-redes were, Amram, Jezehar, Hebron, and Usiell.
The chyldre of Merari in theyr kyn redes, were Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of Leui after theyr fathers houses.
D These are kynredes of Gerson: The Libnites and Semeites, the same was founde in nomber, seuen thousande and fyue hundreth, of all that were males of a moneth olde and aboue. And the same kynredes of the Gersonites shall pitch behynde the Habitacyō on the west syde Let Eliasaph the sonne of Lael be theyr ruler. And they shall wayte vpō the Tabernacle of witnesse, of the habitacyon, and of the tent, and couerynges therof, and the hangyng in the dore of the Ta bernacle of wytnes, the hangynge abou te the courte, and the hangyng in the court dore, which (court) goeth aboute the habitacyon and the altare, and the coardes of it, and all that belongeth to the seruyce therof.
These are the kynredes of Kahath:
The Amramites, the Jezeharites, ye He bronites, and Usielites, al that were ma les of a moneth olde and aboue, in nom bre eyght thousande and sixe hundreth, waytynge vpon the Tabernacle of the Sāctuary, and shall pitche on the south syde of the Habitacyon: Let Elisaphā E the sonne of Usiel be theyr ruler. And they shall kepe the Arke, the table, the cā dellstikes, the altare and all the vessels of the Sanctuary, to do seruice in, and the vayle, and all that belongeth to the ser-uyce therof. But the chefe of all the rulers of the Leuites, shalbe Eleasar the sonne of Aaron the prest, ouer them that are appoynted to kepe the watche of the Sanctuary.
These are the kynredes of Merari:
The Mahelites & Musites, which wer in nōbre sixe thousande, & two hundreth all that were males of a moneth olde & aboue: Lezuriel the sonne of Abihail be theyr ruler, and they shall pitche vpon the North syde of the Habitacyon.
And theyr office shalbe to kepe ye bordes, and barres, and pylers, and [illegible] the Habitacyon, & all the [illegible] of and that serueth therto: the [illegible] so aboute the courte, with the [illegible] and nayles and coardes.
But before the Habitacyon and before the Tabernacle on the East syde shall Moses and Aaron and his sonnes pytche, that they maye wayte vpon the Sāctuary, & the childre of Israel. * Y[illegible] any other meddle therto, he [illegible] ‡ All the Leuites in ye summe which Moses and Aaron nombred after their kynreds, accordyng to the worde of the LORD, all that were males, of a mo-neth olde and aboue, were two and twē tye thousande.
And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses nombre all the fyrstborne, that are males amonge the chyldren of Israell, of a moneth olde and aboue, and take the nombre of their names. * And the Leuites shalt thou take out vnto me ye LORDE, for all the fyrst borne of the chyldren of Israell: and the catell of the Leuites, for all the fyrstborne amonge ye catel of the children of Israel. And Moses nombred all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israell, as the LORD commaūded him. And in the nombre of the names of all ye fyrstborne, that were males of a moneth olde and aboue, in their summe, there were founde two & twentye thousande, two hundreth, and thre and seuentye.
And the LORDE spake vnto Mo ses, and sayde: Take the Leuites for all the fyrst borne amonge the chyldren of Israell: and ye catell of the Leuites, for their catell, that the Leuites maye be myne the LORDES. * But the re-dempcyon money of the two hundreth thre and seuentye that remayne of the fyrst borne of ye chyldren of Israel, aboue the nōbre of the Leuites, shalt thou take euen fyue Sycles of euery heade, after the Sycle of the Sanctuary * (one Sy cle is worth twentye Geras) and the mo ney ye remayneth ouer their nōbre, shalt thou geue vnto Aaron and his sonnes.
Then toke Moses the redempcyon money (that remayned ouer aboue the nombre of the Leuites) from the fyrst borne of the chyldren of Israell, euen a thousande, thre hundreth, and fyue and thre score Sycles, after the Sicle of the Sanctuary, & gaue it vnto Aaron & his sonnes, accordyng to ye worde of ye Lord as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

The.iiii. Chapter.

The office of the sonnes of Kahath, Gerson, & Merari.

A And the LORDE spake vn-
to Moses & Aaron, & sayd: Take the summe of the chil dren of Kahath frõ amõge ye childre of Leui, after their 4.a kynreds & fathers houses * frõ thirtie yeare and aboue vntyll fiftie yeare, all that are mete for the warre, that they maye do the worke in the Tabernacle of witnesse. This shall be the office of ye chyldren of Kahath in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, which is moost holy.
0.b * Whan the hoost breaketh vp, Aaron and his sonnes shall go in, and take downe the vayle, and couer the Arke of wytnesse therwith, and laye the couerin ge of doo skynnes vpon it, and sprede a whole yalowe clothe aboue therõ, and put his staues therin. And vpon the shewetable they shal sprede a yalowe cloth also, and set theron the disshes, spones, flatpeces and pottes to poure out and in, and the daylie bread shall lye vpon it, and they shall sprede a purple clo the therouer, and couer it with a coue-rynge of dooskynnes, and put the staues of it therin.
And they shall take a yalowe clothe, and couer the candelstycke of light ther-with, and his lampes, with his snoffers and and outquenchers, and all the oyle vessels that belonge to the seruyce, and aboute all this shal they put a couering of dooskynnes, and put it vpõ staues.
B So shal they sprede a yalowe cloth ouer the golden altare also, and couer the same with a couerynge of doo skynnes, and put it vpon staues. All the vessels that they occupye in the Sanctuary, shall they take, and put a yalowe cloth therouer, and couer them with a couerynge of dooskynnes, and put thẽ vpon staues. They shall swepe the asshes also from the altare, and sprede a clothe of scarlet ouer it, and set all his vessels theron, that they occupye vpon it: colepãnes, fleshokes, shouels, basens, with all the apparell of the altare, and they shal sprede a couerynge of doosskin nes theron, and put his staues therto.
Now whan Aaron and his sonnes haue done this, & haue couered ye Sanctuary & all the ornamentes therof, whã the hoost breaketh vp, then shall the chil m.7.b dren of Kahath go in * that they maye beare it, and the Sanctuary shall they not touche, * lest they dye. This is the 2 Reg.6.b charge of the chyldren of Kahath in the Tabernacle of wytnesse.
And Eleasar the sonne of Aaron the C prest, shall haue the office, to prepare the oyle for the lyght, and the spices for the incense, and the daylie meatofferynge, & the anoyntinge oyle, to order the whole habitacion, & all that theryn is, in the Sanctuary & the ornamentes therof.
And the LORDE spake vnto Mo ses and Aaron, & sayde: Ye shall not de-stroye the trybe of the kynred of the Ka hathites amonge the Leuites, but this shall ye do with them, that they maye lyue and not dye, yf they touche ye moost holy. Aaron and his sonnes shall go in, and appoynte euery one vnto his office and charge. But they shal not go in pre sumptuously to loke vpon the Sanctua ry, lest they die. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron and sayde: Take the summe of the chyldren of Ger son also, after their fathers house and kynred, * from thirtye yeare olde and a Num.8.b boue, vntyll fyftie yeare, and appoynte them all that are mete for the warre, to haue an office in the Tabernacle of wit nesse. D
This shalbe the office of the kinred of the Gersonites: euen to serue and to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the habitacion and of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and his couerynge and the couerynge of doo skynnes, that is aboue theron, & the hangynge in the dore of ye Tabernable of wytnesse, and the han-gynge aboute the courte, which goeth a boute the habitaciõ and the altare, and their coardes, and all the instrumẽtes yt serue for them, and al that belongeth to their occupyenge. Acordynge vnto the worde of Aaron and of his sonnes, shal all the office of ye chyldren of Gerson be done, whatsoeuer they shall beare & occupye. And ye shall se, that they wayte vpon all their charge. This shalbe ye office of the kynred of the chyldren of the Gersonites in the Tabernacle of wyt-nesse. And their waytinge shal be vnder the hande of Ithamar, the sonne of Aaron the prest.
The chyldren of Merari after their E kynred and fathers house, shalt thou ap poynte also, from thirtie yeare and aboue, vnto fyftie yeare, all that are mete for ye warre, yt they maye haue an office in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. But vpõ this charge shall they wayte accordynge to all theyr office in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that they beare the bordes of the Habitacyon, and the barres, and pilers, and sokettes: the pilers of the court also rounde aboute, and the sokettes, & nayles and cordes, with all theyr appa rell, accordynge to all theyr seruyce. And vnto euery one shal ye appoynte his por cyon of charge to wayte vpon the apparell. Let this be the office of the kynred of the chyldren of Merari, all that they shall do in the Tabernacle of witnesse vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the prest.

F And Moses and Aaron with ye captaynes of the congregacyon, nombred ye chyldren of the Kahathites, accordynge to theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers, from thyrty yere and aboue vntyll fyftye, al ye were mete for the warre to haue offyce in the Tabernacle of wit nesse And the sume was, two thousade, seuen hundreth, and fyftie. This is the summe of the kynred of ye Kahathites, (whiche all had seruice in the Taberna cle of witnesse) whom Moses and Aarõ nombred, accordynge to ye worde of the LORDE by Moses

The chyldren of Gerson were nom-bred also in theyr kynredes and fathers houses from thirtie yeare and aboue vn tyl fyftie, al that were mete for ye warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of wit nesse, and the sume was two thousãde, syxe hundreth, and thyrtye. This is the summe of the kynrede of the chyldre of Gerson, which all had to do in the Tabernacle of witnesse, whom Moses and Aaron nombred accordyng to the worde of the LORDE.

G The chyldren of Merari were nom bred also accordynge to theyr kynredes and fathers houses, from thyrtie yeare and aboue vntyll fyftie, all that were mete for the warre, to haue office in the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the summe was thre thousande, and two hundreth.
This is the summe of the kynred of the chyldren of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron nõbred, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The sume of all the Leuites, whom Moses and Aaron with the captaynes of Israell tolde, after theyr kynredes & fathers houses, from thyrtie yeare and aboue vntyll fyftie, all that wente in, to do euery one his office, and to beare the burthen in the Tabernacle of witnesse, was eyght thousande fyue hũdreth an foure score, whiche were nombred acc dynge to the worde of the LORD by Moses, euery one to his office an charge, as ye LORDE cõmaũded Mose

ses, & sayd: Speake to the chyldre of Is rael, and say vnto them: Whã any ma wyfe goeth asyde, & trespasseth agayn hym, and any mã lye with her fleshly, & ye thinge be yet hyd frõ his eyes, & is no vncleane, then shall he brynge her vnto the prest, and brynge an offerynge for her ene, ÿ tenth parte of an Epha of barlye meele, & shall poure no oyle theron, nor put frankencense vpon it: for it is an offerynge of gelousy, and an offerynge of remembraunce, that remembreth synne.

E ¶ Then shal the prest brynge her, and sette her before the LORDE, and take 9.b of the * holy water in an earthē vessel, and put of the dust that is on the floore of the habitacyon, in to the water. And he shall set the wyfe before the LORD and vncouer hir heade, and the offerynge of remembraunce which is an offerynge of gelousy, shall he laye vpon hir hādes.
And the prest shall haue in his hāde byt ter cursynge water, and shall coniure ÿ wyfe, and saye vnto her: Yf no mā haue lyen with the, and thou hast not gone asyde from thy husbande, to defyle thy selfe, then shall not these bytter cursyng waters hurt the. But yf thou hast gone asyde from thy husbande, so that thou art defyled, and some other man hath lyen with the besyde thy husbande then shall the prest cōiure the wife with this curse, & shall saye vnto her: The LOR DE set the to a curse and a coniuracyō amonge thy people, so that the LORD make thy thye rotte, and thy wombe to berst. So go this cursed water in to thy body, that thy wombe berste, and thy thye rotte. And the wyfe shall saye Amē Amen.

D So the preste shall wryte this curse in a byll, and washe it out with the water, and shall geue the wyfe of the bitter cursynge waters to drynke. And whan the cursynge water is gone in her, so that it is bytter vnto her then shall the prest take the gelousy offerynge out of the wyues hande, & waue it for a meatofferynge before the LORDE, and of fer it vpon the altare: namely he shall take an handfull of the meatofferynge for hir remembraunce, and burne it vpō the altare, and then geue the wyfe the water to drynke. And whā she hath drō ken the water, yf she be defyled & haue trespaced agaynst hir husband thē shall the cursynge water go into her, and be so bytter, that hir wombe shall berste, & hir thye shall rotte, and the wyfe shalbe a curse amonge hir people. But yf the same wyfe be not defyled, but is cleane: then shall it do her no harme, so that she maye be with chylde.

This is the lawe of gelousy, whan a wyfe goeth asyde from hir husbande and is defyled: Or whā the spirite of ge-nor drye grapes so lōge as his abstinēce endureth. Moreouer he shall eate no-thinge that is made of the vyne tre, frō the wyne cornels vnto the hulle.

As longe as the vowe of his abstynence endureth, there shall no rasoure come vpon his heade, tyll the tyme be out which he absteyneth vnto ÿ LOR-DE, for he is holy.

And he shall let the heer of his heade growe, and stonde bare openly. All the tyme ouer that he absteyneth vnto the LORD shall he go to no dead. Nether shall he defyle hym selfe at the death of his father, of his mother, of his brother or of his sister. For the abstinēce of his God is vpon his heade, and the whole tyme of his abstinēce shal he be holy vn-
to the LORDE.

And yf it chaunce any man to dye so B denly before him, then shall the heade of his abstinēce be defyled. Therfore shall he * shaue his heade in the daye of his Actu.21.d clēsynge, that is vpon the seuenth daye: and vpon the eight daye shall he brynge two turtyll doues, or two yonge pigeōs vnto the prest before the dore of the Ta-
make the one a synneofferynge, and the other a burntofferynge, and make an attonement for hym, because he defyled hymselfe vpon the heade, and so shall he halowe his heade the same daye, that he maye holde out the tyme of his abstynence vnto the LORDE, and he shall brynge a lambe of a yeare olde for a trespaceofferynge. But the dayes afore shall be but lost, because his abstinence was defyled.

C This is the lawe of the absteyner.
When the tyme of his abstinēce is out, he shalbe brought before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And he shall brynge his offerynge vnto the LORDE, even an helambe of a yeare olde with out blemysh for a burntofferynge, and a shelambe of a yeare olde without blemysh for a synofferynge, and a ramme without blemysh for a thankofferynge, and a maūde with vnleuended cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, & swete wafers anoynted with oyle, and theyr meatofferynges and drynkofferynges.

And the preste shall brynge it before the LORDE, and shall make his synofferynge and his burntofferynge, and the ramme shal he make a thankofferynge vnto the LORDE, with the maunde of the vnleuended breade. His meatofferynge and drynkofferynge shal he make also. And he shal shaue ẏ heade of the absteyners abstinence before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and shall take the heade heere of his abstinence, and caste it vpon the fyre that is vnder the thankofferynge.

D And the sodden shulder of the ramme shal he take, and an vnleuended cake out of the maunde, and a swete wafer, and laye them vpon the handes of the absteyner: (after ẏ he hath shauen of his abstinence) And he shall Waue them before the LORDE. This is holy for the prest with the Wauebrest, and Heueshulder. After that may the absteyner drynke wyne. This is ẏ law of ẏ absteyner which voweth his offerynge vnto ẏ LORDE for his abstynence, besydes that, which his hāde can get. As he hath vowed, so shall he do accordynge to the lawe of his abstinence.

The.vii. Chapter.

The offerynges of the Captaynes at the dedicacyon of the altare, after that the Tabernacle was set vp.

And whan Moses had set vp the Habitacyon and anoynted it, and sanctifyed it with all the apperell thereof, and had anoynted and halowed ẏ altare also with all his vessels, Then offered the captaynes of Israell, whiche were the rulers in their fathers houses.

For they were the captaines amonge the kynreds, and had the rule ouer them that were nombred. And they brought their offerynges before the LORDE, sixe couered charettes, and twolue oxen, for every two captaynes a charet, and an oxe for every one, and brought them before the Habitacyon.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Take it of them, that may serue for the ministracyon of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and geue it vnto the Leuytes, vnto every one accordynge to his office. Then toke Moses the charettes and oxen, and gaue them vnto the Leuites.

Two charettes & foure oxen gaue he vnto the chyldren of Gerson accordynge to their office: & foure charettes and eight oxen gaue he vnto the children of Merari accordynge to their office, vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the prest.

But vnto the chyldren of Kahath he gaue nothing, because * they had a holy office vpon them, and must beare it vpon their shulders. And the captaynes offred to the dedicacyon of the altare, in the daye whan it was anoynted, and offred their giftes before the altare.

And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Let every captayne brynge his offerynge vpon his daye to the dedicacion of the altare.

On the fyrst daye, Nahasson ẏ sonne of Aminadab, of ẏ trybe of Iuda, offred his gifte. And his gyfte was a syluer charger, worth an hundreth and thirty Sycles: A syluer boule, worth seuentye Sicles (after the Sicle of ẏ Sanctuary) both full of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge: And a golden spone, worth ten Sycles of golde, full of incense: A bullocke from amonge the great catell, a ramme, a lambe of a yeare olde for a burntofferynge, an he goate for a synneofferynge:

And for a thākofferynge two oxen, fyue rāmes, fyue he goates, and fyue lambes of a yeare olde. This is the gyfte of Na hasson the sonne of Aminadab.
C On the seconde daye offred Nathaneel the sonne of Zuar, ỷ captayne of I-sachar. His gyfte was a syluer charger worth an hundreth and thirtie Sycles: A syluer boule, worth seuentye Sycles (after the Sycle of the Sāctuary) both full of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferyng: And a golden spone worth ten Sycles of golde, full of incen

for a burntofferynge, an he goate for a synofferynge: And for an thankofferyng two oxen. fyue rammes, fyue he goates, and fyue lambes of a yeare olde. This is the gyfte of Nathanaell the sonne of Suar.
On the thirde daye the captayne of the childrē of Zabulon, Eliab the sonne of Helon. His gyfte was a syluer charger, worth an hundreth and thirtie Sy cles: A syluer boule, worth seuentye Sy cles (after the Sycle of the Sanctuary) both full of fyne floure myngled ẘ oyle D for a meatofferynge: And a goldē spone, worth ten Sycles of golde, full of incen se: A bullocke from amonge the greate catell, a ramme, a lambe of a yeare olde for a burntofferynge, an he goate for a synofferynge: And for an thankofferyng two oxen, fyue rammes, fyue goates, & fyue lābes of a yeare olde. This is the gifte of Eliab the sonne of Helon.
On the fourth daye, the captayne of the chyldren of Ruben, Elizur the sōne of Sedeur. His gyft was a syluer char ger, worth an hundreth and thirtie Sy-
cles (after the Sycle of the Sanctuary) both full of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge: And a golden spone, worth ten Sycles of golde, full of incense: A bullocke from amonge the a synofferyng. And for a thankofferyng two oxen, fyue rammes, fyue he goates,

and fyue lambes of a yeare olde. This is the gyfte of Elyzur the sonne of E Sedeur.
On the fyfthe daye, the captayne of the chyldren of Symeon, Selumiel the sonne of Sury Saday. His gyfte was

This is the dedicacyon of the altare, what tyme as it was anoynted, w to the which the captaynes of Israel offered these twolue siluer chargers, two ue syluer boules, twolue spones of go de: euery charger conteynynge an hū dreth and thirtie Sycles of syluer, an euery boule seuentye Sycles. So tha the summe of all the syluer in the vessels, was two thousande and foure hūdreth Sycles (after the Sycle of the Sanctuary). And the twolue spones o golde full of incense, cōteyned euery on ten Sycles, after the Sycle of the Sanctuary: So that the summe of y gold in the spones, was an hūdreth and twē-tye Sycles.

The summe of the catel for y burntofferynges, was twolue bullockes, twolue rammes, twolue lambes of a yeare olde with their meatofferynges: An twolue he goates for synofferynges.
And the summe of the catell for y thāofferynges, was foure and twentye oxthre score rammes, and thre score he goates, thre score lambes of a yeare olde.
This is the dedicacion of the altare, after that it was anoynted.

* And whan Moses wēte into the Tabernacle of wytnesse, that he myght be commoned withall, he herde y voyce speakynge vnto him from of the Mercy seate, which was vpon the Arke of wit-nesse betwixte the two Cherubins, from thence was he commoned withall.

The.viii.Chapter.

Of the candelstycke, offerynges, puryfienge, and altare of the Leuytes.

And y LORDE talked with Moses, & sayd: Speake vn
Aaron, and saye vnto hym * Whan thou settest vp the lampes, thou shalt set the that they maye all seuen geue lyght aboue vpō the candelstycke. And Aaro dyd so, and set the lampes vpon the can delsticke, as the LORDE cōmaūded Mo ses. The worke of the candelsticke was of beaten golde, both the shaft & floures therof: acordynge to the vysion that the LORDE had shewed Moses, euen so made he the candelstycke.

And ẏ LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Take the Leuites frō amōge the chyldren of Israell, and clense them But thus shalt thou do with them, that thou mayest clense thē. Thou shalt sprē kle purifienge water vpō them, and let a rasure go ouer their whole body, and washe their clothes, and then are they cleane. Then shall they take a yōge bullocke, and his meatofferynge of fyne floure myngled with oyle. And another yonge bullocke shalt thou take for a syn offerynge.

B And thou shalt brynge the Leuites before the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and gater together the whole congregacion of the chyldren of Israell, and brynge the Leuites before the LORDE. And the chyldren of Israell shall laye theyr handes vpon ẏ Leuites. And Aaron shal waue the Leuites before the LORDE for the chyldren of Israell, ẏ they maye mynistre in the seruyce of the LORD.

And the Leuyces shall laye their hādes vpon the heades of the bullockes, and the one shalbe made a synoffrynge, the other a burntoffrynge vnto ẏ LOR DE, to make an attonement for the Le uites. And thou shalt set the Leuites be fore Aaron and his sonnes, and waue them before the LORDE, and so shalt thou separate them from the chyldrē of Israell, that they maye be myne. Then shall they go in, that they maye do ser-uyce in ẏ Tabernacle of witnesse. Thus shalt thou clense thē, and waue them for they are my gifte of the chyldren of Is-...3.b. raell, * and I haue takē them vnto me for all that openeth the matrix, namely for the firstborne of all the chyldren of Israell.

C * For euery firstborne amonge the chil
...13.a dren of Israell is myne, both of men &
...2.d of catell, sens the tyme that I smote all the firstborne in the lande of Egipte, and sanctified them vnto my self, and toke the Leuites for all the firstborne amonge the chyldrē of Israell, and gaue them for a gifte vnto Aaron and his sōnes from amonge the chyldrē of Israel, that they shulde do the seruyce of ẏ chil dren of Israell in ẏ Tabernacle of wit-nesse, to make attonement for ẏ chyldrē of Israell, that there be not a plage amonge the chyldren of Israell, yf they wyll come nye the Sanctuary.

And Moses with Aarō & the whol cō gregaciō of ẏ chyldrē of Israell, dyd wt ẏ Leuites all as the LORDE hath cō maunded Moses. And they purifyed Le uites, and wasshed their clothes. And Aaron waued them before the LORD and made attonement for them, that they myght be cleane. D

After that wente they in, to do theyr office in the Tabernacle of witnesse before Aarō and his sonnes: as the LOR-DE commaunded Moses concernynge the Leuites, euen so dyd they with thē.

ses and sayde: This is it that belon- Nu.4.c twentye yeare and aboue shall they go in to the office of the Tabernacle of 1.Reg.1.d witnesse. * But from fyftie yeare forth they shall ceasse from waitynge of the seruice therof, & shall mynister nomore, but shall appoynte their brethren to wayte and to serue in the Tabernacle of witnesse: but the office shall not they execute. Thus shalt thou do with ẏ Le uites in their seruyces, that euery one maye wayte vpon his owne charge.

The.ix. Chapter.

Of the feast of Easter, and how the vncleane shulde kepe it. Of the cloude vpon the Tabernacle.

AND the LORDE spake A vnto Moses in the wyldernesse of Synai, in the fyrste moneth of the seconde yeare ẏ they were departed out of Exo.12.a ẏ lād of Egipte, & sayd: * Let ẏ chyldrē Leui.23.a of Israel kepe Easter in his season, euē Nu.28.c vpon the fourtēth daye of this moneth Deu.16.a at euen, in his season shall they kepe it, accordynge to all statutes and lawes therof. And Moses spake to the chyldrē of Israell that they shulde kepe Easter And they kept Easter vpon the fouretenth daye of the fyrst moneth at euē in the wyldernesse of Synay. Accordynge to all that the LORDE cōmaunded Mo ses, euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

Then were there certayne men defy led of a deadmā, so that they coulde not kepe Easter vpon that daye: these came before Moses and Aaron the same day and sayde vnto him: We are defyled of a deadman: wherfore shulde we be despysed, that we muste not brynge unto gyftes in his season amonge the chyldren of Israel: Moses sayde vnto them Stonde styll, I wyll heare what the LORDE commaundeth you.

B And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Speake vnto the childrẽ 2.par.30.a of Israell, and saye: * Whan any man is defyled of a deade coarse, or is gone farre frõ you ouer the felde, or is amõge youre kynsfolkes, yet shall he kepe Ea-maner of the Easter.

But he that is cleane, and not gone in a yourney, and is negligent to kepe ye Easter, the same soule shalbe roted out from amonge his people: because he brought not his gyfte to the LORDE in his season, he shall beare his synne.
And whan there dwelleth a straunger amonge you, he shall kepe Easter also vnto the LORDE, and shall holde it accordynge to the ordinaunce and lawe of the Easter. This statute shalbe alyke to the straunger, as vnto hym that is borne in the londe.

C * And the same daye that the Habi-Exo.40.c tacyon was set vp, a cloude couered it 3.Reg.8.b vpon the Tabernacle of witnesse, and Ezech.9.a at euen there was a similitude of fyre vpon the Habitacyon vntyll the mor-nynge. So came it to passe alwaye that the cloude couered it by daye, and the similituде of fyre by nyghte. And whan the cloude was taken vp from the Habitacyon, then the chyldren of Israell wente on theyre iourney. And loke in what place the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israel pitched their tentes.
Accordynge to the worde of the LOR-DE toke the chyldren of Israell their iourney, and accordynge to his worde pitched they their tentes. So longe as the cloude abode vpon the Habitacion, they laye styll. And whan the cloude ta-ryed many dayes vpon the Habitacion the chyldren of Israell wayted vpõ the LORDE, & wẽte not on their iourney

D And whan it chaũced that ye cloude abode vpon the Habitacyon any space of dayes, than pitched they accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, and after the worde of the LORDE wente they on theyr iourney. Whan the cloude was there from the euenynge vntyl the mornynge, and so was taken vp, [illegible] wente they on theyr iourney: and [illegible] ther it was takẽ vp by daye & by [illegible] they iourneyed. But whan it taried [illegible] pon the habitacyon two dayes, or a mo-neth, or a longe season, thẽ laye the chyldren of Israel, and iourneyed not [illegible] so whã it was taken vp, they wente [illegible] theyr iourney. For accordynge to the mouth of the LORDE they laye, and after the mouth of the LORDE they iourneyed, so that they kepte the LOR-DES watch, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses.

The.x.Chapter.

The vse of the syluer trompettes, [illegible] how the chyldren of Israell brake vp, & toke their iourney with Hobab Moses brother in lawe.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Make the two * trompettes of beaten syluer that thou mayest vse thẽ, to call the cõgregaci-on together, & whã ye hoost shall breake vp. Whan they blowe with both, then shall the whole cõgregacyon gather them selues together vnto the before ye [illegible] of ye Tabernacle of witnesse. Whã they blowe but with one, then the captaynes the rulers ouer ye thousandes in Israel shall gather them selues together vnto the. Whan ye trõpe, then shal ye hoostes that lye on the East syde, breake vp.
And whã ye trompe the seconde [illegible] the hoostes that lye on the South [illegible] shall breake vp. For ye shall trompe whan they shall take theire [illegible] * But whan the congregacion is to be gathered together, ye shall bla[st] & not trompe. This blowynge with the trompettes shall the sonnes of Aaron ye prest do. And it shalbe your lawe for euer amonge youre posterities.

Whan ye go to a battayll in youre londe agaynst youre enemyes that [illegible] you, ye shall trompe with the trõpettes, that ye maye be remembred before the LORDE youre God, and delyuered from youre enemyes.

Lykewyse whan ye are mery, and in youre feast dayes, and in youre [illegible] monethes, ye shall blowe with the trompettes ouer youre burntsacrifices and thankofferynges, that it maye be a remembraũce vnto you before your God.
I am the LORDE youre God.

Upon the twētye daye in the [illegible] moneth of the secõde yeare, arose the cloude from the habitacion of witnesse.

33.c *And the children of Israell wente on 1.d their iourney out of the wyldernesse of Sinai, and the cloude abode in the wyl dernesse of Paran. First brake vp (acor dynge to the worde of the LORDE by Moses) namely, the bãner of the hoost of Iuda wente forth first with their ar 2.d mies, *and ouer their hoost was Na hasson the sonne of Aminadab. And o uer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldrẽ of Isachar was Nathanael ye sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Sabulon was Eliab ye 4.d sonne of Elon. *And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the chyldren of Gerson, & Merari bare the habitacion, C After that wente the bãner of the hoost of Ruben with their armies, and ouer their hoost was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldrẽ of Simeon was Se lumiel the sonne of Suri Sadai. And Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldrẽ of Gad.
Then wente the Kahathites forwarde also and bare the Sanctuary, and cau sed the habitaciõ be set vp agaynst they came.
After that wente ye bãner of ye hoost of the chyldren of Ephraim with theyr armies, and ouer their hoost was Elisa ma the sonne of Amihud. And Gama liel the sonne of Pedazur ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Manasse.
And Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Ben Iamin.
After that wente the bãner of the hoost of the chyldren of Dan with their armyes, (and so were al the hoostes vp) and Ahieser the sonne of Ammi Sadai was ouer their hoost. And Pagiel the sonne of Ochran, ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Asser. And Ahi ra the sonne of Enan ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthali.
Thus the chyldrẽ of Israell wete forth with theyr armyes.
D And Moses spake vnto his brother in lawe, Hobab the sonne of Raguel of Madian: We go vnto the place, of the
which the LORDE sayde: I will geue it you: Come now with vs therfore, and we will do the best with ye, for ye LOR DE hath promysed good vnto Israel.
But he answered: I wyl not go with you, but wyll go in to myne awne londe vnto my kinred. He sayde: Oh nay, leaue vs not: for thou knowest where is best for vs to pitche in the wyldernesse, and thou shalt be oure eye. And yf thou goest with vs, loke what good the LORDE doth vnto vs, the same wyll we do vnto
the. So they departed from the mount of the LORDE thre dayes iourney, &
the Arke of the LORDES couenaũt wente before thẽ those thre dayes iour ney, to shewe thẽ where they shuld rest.
And the cloude of the LORDE was ouer them in the daye tyme, whan they wente out of the tentes.
And whan the Arke wete forth, Mo ses sayde: *Aryse LORDE, let thine Psa.67.a enemies be scatered, and let them that hate the, flye before the. And whan it rested, he sayd: Come agayne O LOR DE vnto the multitude of the thousan des of Israell.

The .xi. Chapter.

¶ The people are wery and vnpacient

I am the LORDE youre God.
Vpon the twētye dayes in the [illegible] moneth of the seconde yeare, arose the cloude from the habitacion of witnesse.

33.c * And the children of Israell wente on 1.d their iourney out of the wyldernesse of Sinai, and the cloude abode in the wyl
dernesse of Paran, First brake vp (acor dynge to the worde of the LORD by Moses) Namely, the bãner of the hoost
of Iuda wente forth first with their ar 2.a mies, * and ouer their hoost was Na hasson the sonne of Aminadab. And o
uer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldrẽ of Isachar was Nathanael ŷ sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Zabulon was Eliab ŷ 4.a sonne of Elon. * And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the chyldren of Gerson, & Merari bare the habitacion.
hoost of Ruben with their armies, and
Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel ouer the
hoost of the trybe of the chyldrẽ of Gad.
Then wente the Kahathites forwarde
also and bare the Sanctuary, and cau
came.
After that wente ŷ bãner of ŷ hoost
of the chyldren of Ephraim with theyr
armies, and ouer their hoost was Elisa
ma the sonne of Amihud. And Gama
liel the sonne of Pedazur ouer the hoost
of the trybe of the chyldren of Manasse
And Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni ouer
the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of BenJamin.
After that wente the bãner of the
hoost of the chyldren of Dan with their
armyes, (and so were al the hoostes vp)
and Ahieser the sonne of Ammi Sadai
sonne of Ochran, ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Aser. And Ahi ra the sonne of Enan ouer the hoost of
the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthali.
Thus the chyldrẽ of Israell wete forth
with theyr armyes.
D And Moses spake vnto his brother
in lawe, Hobab the sonne of Raguel of Madian: We go vnto the place, of the
which the LORDE sayde: I will geue
it you: Come now with vs therfore, and we will do the best with ŷ, for ŷ LOR DE hath promysed good vnto Israel.
But he answered: I wyl not go with
you, but wyll go in to myne awne londe
for vs to pitche in the wyldernesse, and thou shalt be our eye. And yf thou goest with vs, loke what good the LORD
the. So they departed from the mount
of the LORDE thre dayes iourney, &
the Arke of the LORDES couenaũt wente before the those thre dayes iour ney, to shewe thẽ where they shuld rest.
And the cloude of the LORDE was
ouer them in the daye tyme, whan they
wente out of the tentes.
And whan the Arke wete forth, Mo Psa.67.a ses sayde: * Aryse LORDE, let thine enemies be scatered, and let them that hate the, flye before the. And whan it
rested, he sayd: Come agayne O LOR DE vnto the multitude of the thousan
des of Israell.

The.xi. Chapter.

The people are werry and vnpacient by the waye, murmur agaynst Moses, desyre flesh, and abhorre ŷ Manna. The LORDE geueth them after their lust, but punisheth them sore.

AND * when the people wer A ed vnpacient, it displeased Exo.16.a.

And whan the LORDE herde it, his wrath waxed whote, and the fyre of ŷ LORD burnt amonge them, so ŷ it consumed the vt termost of the hoost. The cryed the peo ple vnto Moses. And Moses prayed vn to the LORD. So the fyre quenched.
And the place was called Tabera, be cause the fyre of the LORDE burnt a monge them.
Then the comõ sorte of people that was amonge them, fell a lustynge, & sat & wepte with the chyldren of Israell, & sayd: Who wyll geue vs flesh to eate?
We remẽbre ŷ fish, ŷ we dyd eat in E gipte for naught, and cucumbers, me louns, lekes, onyõs, & garleke: But now is oure soule dryed awaye, oure eyes se nothynge then the Manna.
* The Manna was like Coriander B sede, and to loke vpon, like Bedellion. Exo.16.a And the people ranne here and there, & gathered it, & grounde it in myllis, and bette it in morters, and baked it in pan nes, & made cakes of it, & it had a tast like an oyle cake. And whã ŷ dew fel vpõ ŷ tentes in ŷ nyght, ŷ Manna fell therwith.
Now whã Moses herde the people wepe amonge their kynredes, euery one in his tent dore, the the wrath of ŷ LOR DE waxed exceadynge whote. And it greued Moses also. And Moses sayde vnto the LORDE: Why vexest thou thy seruaunte? And why fynd not I fauoure C in thy sight, that thou layest the burthē of all this people vpō me? Haue I cō cōceaued all this people, or begotē thē, that thou shuldest saye vnto me: Cary thē in thyne armes (as a norse beareth a chylde) vnto the londe, that thou hast sworne vnto their fathers? Where shal I get flesh, to geue al this people? They wepe before me, and saye: Geue vs flesh, ŷ we maye eate. I am not able to beare all this people alone, for it is to heuy for me. And yf thou wylt deale thus with me: O kyll me then, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, that I se not my wretchednesse.

D And the LORDE sayd vnto Mo-Ezec.8.b. ses: Gather vnto me * seuentye men a monge the Elders of Israel, whō thou knowest that they are the Elders in the people and officers ouer them, & brynge them before the Tabernacle of witnesse, and set them there with the: then wyl I come downe, and talke with the euen there, and take of thy sprete that is vpō that thou beare not all alone.

And vnto the people thou shalt saye

But now shalt thou se, whether my wor

And Moses wente out, & tolde the people the wordes of the LORDE, and gathered the seuentye men amonge the Eldest of the people, & set them rounde aboute the Tabernacle. Then came the LORDE downe in a cloude, & spake vnto hym, and toke of the sprete ŷ was vpon hym, and put it vpon the seuentye Elders. And whan the sprete rested vpō them, they prophecied, and ceassed not.

F But in the hoost there remayned yet two men, of whom the one was called Eldad, ŷ other Medad, and the sprete rested vpon thē. For they were wrytten vp also, & yet were they not gone out vn to the Tabernacle, and they prophecied in the hoost. Then ran there a lad, and tolde Moses, & sayd: Eldad and Medad prophecie in the hoost. Then answered Josua ŷ sonne of Nun Moses seruaunt (whom he had chosen) and sayde: * My ŷ lorde Moses, forbyd thē. But Mo ses sayd vnto hym: Art thou gelous for my sake? * wolde God, that all ŷ people of the LORDE coulde prophecie, and that the LORDE wolde geue them his sprete. So Moses & the Elders of Israel gat them to the hoost.

G * Then wente out the wynde from the LORDE, & caused quayles to come from the see, and scatered them ouer the hoost, here a dayes iourney, there a da-yes iourney rounde aboute the hoost, two cubites hye aboue the earth. Then the people stode vp all that daye and all that nyght, & all the nexte daye, and gathered quayles: and he that gathered ŷ least, gathered ten homers, and they spre ed them rounde aboute the hoost.

* But whyle the flesh was yet be-twene their tethe, or euer it was vp, the wrath of the LORDE waxed whote amonge the people, * and slewe thē with an exceadynge greate slaughter. There fore is the same place called the graues of lust, because the lustynge people were buried there. * And fro the lustgraues toke the people their iourney vnto Ha-zeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

The.xii.Chapter.

Miriam and Aaron grudge a-gaynst Moses, and Miriam is smytten with leprosy.

And * Miriam & Aaron spake agaynst Moses because of his wyfe the Morian which he had take, because he had taken a Morian to wyfe, & they sayde: Doth the LORDE speake onely thorow Moses? Speaketh he not also by vs? And the LORDE herde Eccl. 45. a it. * But Moses was a very meke man, aboue all men vpon earth. And hastely spake the LORDE vnto Moses, and to Aaron, and to Miriam: Go out ye thre vnto the Tabernacle of witnesse. And they wente out all thre.

Exo. 33. b * Then came the LORDE downe Exo. 19. b in the cloudy pyler, and stode in the dore of the Tabernacle, and called Aaron & Miriam, and they both wente out. And he sayde: Heare my wordes: Yf any man be a prophet of the LORDE, vnto him wyll I shewe my selfe in a vision, or wyll speake vnto him in a dreame. But not so is my seruaunt Moses, * which is faithfull in all my house? Mouth to mouth speake I vnto hym, and he seyth the LORDE in his fashion, not the rowe by darke wordes or lyknesses: Wherfore were ye not afrayed then to speake agaynst my seruaunt Moses? And the D wrath of the LORDE waxed whote ouer them, and he turned hym awaye, and the cloude also departed from the tabernacle. * And beholde, then was Miriam become leperous, as it were snowe.
And Aaron turned hym vnto Miriam, and sawe that she was leperous, and sayde vnto Moses: Oh my Lorde, put not the synne vpon vs, whiche we haue folyshly committed and synned, that she be not as one that commeth dead out of his mothers wombe: It hath eaten vp halfe hir fleshe allready.

But Moses cryed vnto the LORDE, and sayde: Oh God, heale her. The LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Yf hir father had spytte in hir face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes? * Let her be shut out of the hoost seuen dayes, after y^t let her be receaued agayne. So Miriam was shut out of the hoost seuen dayes, and the people wente no farther Nu. 33. c tyll Miriam was receaued agayne. * Afterwarde departed the people from Ha-zeroth, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Paran.

The xiii. Chapter.

The spyes that were sent in to the londe of Canaan, come agayne, and put the people in feare.

A B And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde:
* Sende forth men to spye out the londe of Canaan, Deu. 1. b (which I wyll geue vnto y^e childre of Israel) of euery trybe of their fathers a man, and let the al be suche as are rulers amonge the. Moses sent the from the wyldernes of Paran, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE (which were all heades amonge the children of Israel), and these are their names:

Sammua the sonne of Zacur, of the trybe of Ruben. Saphat the sonne of Hori, of the trybe of Simeon. Caleb the sonne of Jephune, of the trybe of Juda.
Igeal the sonne of Joseph, of the trybe of Isachar. Hosea the sonne of Nun, of the trybe of Ephraim. Palti the sonne of Raphu, of y^e trybe of Ben Jamin. Gaddiel the sonne of Sodi, of the trybe of Zabulon. Gaddi the sonne of Susi, of y^e trybe of Joseph of Manasse. Ammiel the sonne of Gemalli, of y^e trybe of Dan.
Sethur the sonne of Michael, of the C trybe of Aser. Nahebi the sonne of Vaphsi, of the trybe of Nephtali. Guel the sonne of Machi, of the trybe of Gad.
These are the names of the men, whom Moses sent forth to spye out the londe.
As for Hosea the sonne of Nun, Moses called hym Josua.

B Now whan Moses sent them forth to spye out the londe of Canaan, he sayde vnto them: Go vp southwarde, and get you vp to the mountaynes, and loke vpon the londe how it is: and the people that dwel therin, whether they be strog or weake, fewe or many: and what maner of londe it is that they dwel in, whether it be good or bad: and what maner of cities they be that they dwell in, whether they be fenced with walles, or not:
and what maner of lond it is, whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therin, or not. Be of a good corage and brynge of the frutes of the lond. It was euen aboute the tyme that grapes are fyrst rype.

They wente vp, and spyed the lõde, from y^e wyldernes of Zin, vntyll Rehob, as men go vnto Hemath. They wente vp also toward the south, and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was, and Sesai and Thalmai, the childre of Enach.
(Hebron was buylded seuen yeare before Zoan in Egypte.)

C And they came to the ryuer of Escoll, Deu. 1. b and * there they cut downe a cluster of grapes, and caused two to beare it vpon a staffe, pomgranates also, & fygges.
The place is called the ryuer of Escol, bycause of y^e cluster of grapes which the chyldren of Israell cut downe there.

And when they hadde spyed out the londe, they turned backe agayne after fou-rtye dayes, and wente and came to Moses and Aaron, and to the hole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel vnto ỹ wyldernes of Pharan, euen vnto Cades, and brought them worde agayne, and to the hole congregacyon, how it stode, and let them se the frute of the londe, & tolde them, and sayde: We came into ỹ londe, whether ye sent vs, where it floweth wt mylke and hony, & this is the frute ther-of: sauynge that stronge people dwell therin, & the cyties are exceadynge stronge and greate. And we sawe the chyldrẽ of Enack there also. The Amalechites dwell in the south countre, the Hethites, & Iebusites, and Amorites dwell vpõ the mountaynes: but ỹ Cananites dwell by the see, and aboute Iordane.
D Howbeit Caleb styled the people ỹ was agaynst Moses, and sayde vnto the: Let vs go vp, and conquere the londe, for we are able to ouercome it. But the mẽ Nu.14.f that wente vp with hym, sayde: * We are not able to go vp agaynst ỹ people, for they are to stronge for vs. And of the londe ỹ they had searched, they brought vp an euell reporte amonge the chyldrẽ of Israell, and sayde: The londe that we haue gone thorow to spie out, eateth vp the indwellers therof: and all the people that we sawe therin, are men of greate stature. We sawe giauntes there also, yee giauntes as the chyldren of Enack: and we semed in oure syght as the greshoppers, and so dyd we in their syght.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

The people are vnpacient, wepe, and murmure agaynst Moses, Iosue and Caleb geue the londe a good worde, and conforte them. The LORDE is angry and punyssheth the people.

A Then the hole congregacyon Deu.1.a cryed out, and cryed, & ỹ peo-psal.105.g ple wept that nyght. And all the chyldren of Israell murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, and the hole congregacyon sayd vnto them: Oh that we had dyed in the londe of Egipte, or that we myght dye yet in this wyldernesse. Wherfore bryn-geth the LORDE vs into this londe, that oure wyues shulde fall thorow the swearde, and oure chyldren be a praye?
Is it not better, that we go agayne into Egipte? And they sayd one to another: Let vs make a captayne, and go into Egipte agayne.
But Moses and Aaron fell vpon theyr faces before the hole congregaciõ of the multitude of the chyldren of Israel. * And Iosua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Iephune (which also had spyed out the londe) rente theyr clothes, and spake to the hole congregaciõ of the chyldren of Israell: The londe ỹ we haue walked thorow to spye it out, is a very good londe. Yf the LORDE haue lust vnto vs, he shall brynge vs in to the same londe, and geue it vs, which is a londe that floweth with mylke and hony. But in eny wyse rebell not ye a-gaynst the LORDE, and * feare not the people of this londe, for we wyll eate them vp as bread. Their defence is departed from them, * but the LORDE is with vs, be not ye afrayed of them.
And al the people, bad stone them wt stones. Then appeared the glorie of the LORDE in ỹ Tabernacle of witnesse vnto all the chyldren of Israell, and the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: How longe shall this people blaspheme me? And how longe wyll it be, or they beleue me, for all the tokens that I haue shewed amonge them? * I wyl smyte them with pestilence and destroye them, and wyll make of the a greater and myghtier people then this is.
* But Moses sayd vnto ỹ LORDE: Then shall the Egipcyans heare it (for with the power hast thou brought this people from amonge them) so shall it be tolde the inhabiters of this londe also, which haue herde, that thou O LORDE art amonge this people, that thou art sene face to face, and that * thy cloude stondeth ouer the, and that thou goest before them in the cloudy piler on the daye tyme, and in the fyrie piler on ỹ nyght season. Yf thou shuldest now slay this people as one man, then the Hethē that haue herde so good reporte of the, shulde saye: * The LORDE was not able to brynge the people into the londe, that he sware vnto them, therfore hath he slayne them in the wyldernesse.
So let the power of the LORDE now be greate, acordynge as thou hast spoken and sayd: The LORDE is of longe sufferaunce & of great mercy, and forgeueth synne & trespace, and leaueth no man innocent, & vysiteth the mysdedes of the fathers vpon the chyldren in to the thirde and fourth generacion. O be gracyous now vnto the synne of this people accordynge to thy greate mercy, lyke as thou hast forborne this people also, euer from Egypte vnto this place. And the LORDE sayde: I haue forgeuen it, as thou hast sayde. But as truly as I lyue, all the worlde shall be full of my glory. * For of all ye men that haue sene my glory and my tokens, which I dyd in Egipte and in the wyldernesse, and tempted me now ten tymes, and haue not herkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the londe that I sware vnto their fathers: nether shall ony of them ye haue blasphemed me, se it. * But my seruaunt Caleb, because there is another maner sprete with hym, and because he hath folowed me, hym wyll I brynge in to the londe, whiche he hath gone thorow, and his sede shall conquere it, and the Amalechites also and the Cananites, that dwel in the lowe countrees. Tomorow turne you, and get you in ye wildernesse, in the waye towarde the reed see.

D And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: How longe shall this euell multitude murmure agaynst me? For I haue herde the murmurynge of the chyldren of Israel, that they haue murmured agaynst me. Tell them therfore: * As truly as I lyue (sayeth the LORDE) I wyll do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Youre carcases shall lye in this wyldernesse. And all ye that * were nombred from twentye yeare and aboue, whiche haue murmured agaynste me, shall not come in to the londe (concernynge the which I lyft vp my hande, that I wold let you dwell therin) saue Caleb ye sonne of Jephune, & Josua the sonne of Nun.

* Youre childrē, of whom ye sayde: They shalbe a spoyle, them wyll I brynge in, so that they shall knowe the londe, which ye haue refused. But ye & youre carcases shall lye in this wyldernesse: & youre chyldren shall wandre in this wyldernesse fortye yeares, and beare youre whordome, tyll youre carcases be wasted in the wyldernesse, according to the nombre of the fortye dayes, wherin ye spyed out ye londe. * A daye for a yeare,

E so ye fortye yeares ye shall beare youre mysdedes, that ye maye knowe what it is, whan I withdrawe my hande. euen I the LORDE haue sayd it, and wyll do it in dede vnto all this euell congregacyon, that haue lift vp them selues agaynst me. In this wyldernes shall they be consumed, and there shall they dye.

* So there dyed and were plaged before the LORDE all the men, whome Moses sent to spye out the londe, and came agayne, and made the whole congregacion to murmur against it, because they brought vp a myssereporte of ye londe that it was euell. But Josua the sonne of Nun, & Caleb the sonne of Jephune were left alyue, of the men that wente to spye out the lond. And Moses spake these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel. Then toke the people great sorowe. 1.Cor.10.b

F And they arose early in ye mornyng, and wente vp to the toppe of the mountayne, and sayde: * Lo, here are we, and wyll go vp to the place, wherof ye LORDE hath sayde: for we haue synned. Deu.1.f But Moses sayde: wherfore go ye on this maner beyonde the worde of the LORDE? It shall not prospere with you: go not vp (for the LORDE is not amonge you) that ye be not slayne before youre enemyes. For the Amalechites & Cananites are there before you, and ye shal fal thorow the swearde, because ye haue turned youre selues frō ye LORDE, and the LORDE shall not be with you.

But they were blynded to go vp to the toppe of the mountayne: neuertheles the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt and Moses came not out of the hooste. Then came downe the Amalechites & Cananites which dwelt vpō that mountayne, and smote them and hewed thē, euen vnto Horma.

The .xv. Chapter.

Of diuerse offerynges, and howe he was punyshed that gathered styckes vpon the Sabbath. The people are cōmaunded to make gardes of remembraunce vpon their garmentes, to thinke vpō ye cōmaundementes of the LORDE.

A AND the LORDE talked with Moses, & sayde: Speake to the chyldren of Israell, & say vnto thē: Whā ye come into the londe of your dwellynge, which I shall geue you, and wyll do sacrifice vnto the LORDE, whether it be a burntofferynge, or an offerynge for a specyall [illegible]owe, or a frewyll offerynge, or your [illegible]erynges, that ye maye make a s[illegible] sauoure vnto the LORDE, of oxen or of shepe.

Leui. 2. a and 6. b — ✽ He that wyll offre now his gyfte unto the LORDE, shall brynge for the of an Hin; and wyne for the drynkofferynge the fourth part of an Hin also: to ye burntofferynge, or any other offrynge, whan a lambe is offred. But whan there is a ramme offred, thou shalte make the meatofferynge two tenth deales of fyne floure myngled with oyle, of the thyrde part of an Hin, and the thyrde parte of an Hin of wyne also for a drynkoffesauour unto the LORDE.

But yf thou wylt offre an oxe for a burntofferynge, or for a specyall vowe offerynge, or for a thankofferynge unto the LORDE, thou shalt brynge to the oxe, the meatofferynge, euen thre tenthe deales of fyne floure myngled with half an Hin of oyle, & halfe an Hin of wyne for a drynkoff. ryng. This is an offryng of a swete sauoure unto the LORDE.
Thus shalt thou do with an oxe, with a ramme, with a lambe, & with a goate.
Accordynge as the nombre of the offerynges is, therafter shall the nombre of the meatofferynges and drynkofferynges be also.
He that is one of your selues, shall do this, that he maye offre a sacrifice of a swete sauoure unto the LORDE.
And yf there dwel a straunger with you, or is amonge your kynsfolkes, and wyl do an offerynge unto the LORDE for a swete sauoure, the same shall do as ye do. Let there be one statute for the hole congregacyon, both unto you and to the straungers. A perpetuall statute shall it be unto your posterites, that the straun ger be euen as ye before the LORDE.
One lawe, and one ordinaunce shalbe unto you and to the straunger that dwelleth with you.
And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayd: Speake to the chyldren of Exo. 23. c — Israel, and saye unto them: ✽ Whan ye Deu. 8. c — come into the londe, into the whiche I

And whan ye thorow ignoraunce o-uerse ony of these commaundementes, which — Leui. the LORDE hath commaunded you by Mo ses, & all that ye LORDE hath commaunded you by Moses, (from the daye that the LORDE began to commaunde for youre posterities) & the congregacyon do ought ignorauntly: then shall the whole congre gacyon offre a yonge bullocke from amonge the great catell to a burntofferynge, for a swete sauour unto ye LOR DE, with his meatofferynge and drynk offerynge as the maner is, & an hegoate for a synofferynge. And so shall the prest make an attonement for the whole congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel, and it shalbe forgeuen them: for it is an igno raunce. And they shal brynge these theyr gyftes for an offerynge unto ye LORD & theyr synofferynge before ye LORD for theyr ignoraunce, and it shalbe forgeuen the whole congregacyon of ye chyldren of Israell, and the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, for so muche as all the people is in suche ignoraunce. — Leui. 4 ✽ Yf one soule synne thorowe igno-raunce, the same shall brynge a shegoate of a yeare olde for a synofferynge. And the prest shall make an attonement for suche an ignoraunt soule with the synofferynge for the ignoraunce before the LORDE, that he may reconcyle hym, and it shalbe forgeuen hym. And it shall be one lawe, (that ye shall do for the ig-noraunce) both unto hym that is borne amonge the chyldren of Israell, and to the straunger ye dwelleth amonge you.
✽ But yf a soule do ought presumptu — Heb. ously, whether he be one of youre selues or a straunger, he hath despysed ye LOR DE: the same soule shalbe roted out fro amonge his people: because he hath des-pysed the worde of the LORDE, and hath lefte his commaundement undone: that soule shall utterly perysh, his synne shalbe upon hym.
Now whyle the chyldren of Israell were in the wyldernesse, they founde a — D man gatherynge stickes upon the Sab bath daye. And they that founde hym gatherynge stickes, brought hym unto Moses and Aaron, and before the hole congregacyon. ✽ And they put hym in — Leui. preson, for it was not declared what shulde be done unto hym. The LORD sayde unto Moses: The man shall dye the death, the whole congregatyon shall stone hym without the hoost.
Then the whole congregacion brought hym out of the hoost, & stoned him that he dyed, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

Deu. 22.b ✱ And the LORDE sayde vnto Moses: Speake to the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto them that they make them gardes vpō the quarters of their garmentes amonge all youre posterities and put yalowe rybandes vpon the gardes in the quarters. And ẏ gardes shall serue you, that ye maye loke vpon them and remembre all the cōmaundemētes of the LORDE, and do them: that ye order not youre selues after the meanynge of youre owne hart, nor go awhorynge after youre owne eyes. Therfore shall ye remembre and do all my cōmaūdementes, and be holy vnto youre God, which I am the LORDE youre God, which brought you out of the londe of Egipte to be youre God. Euen I the LORDE youre God.

The xvi. Chapter.

¶ Of the vproure, and insurreccyon of Corah, Dathan, Abyram, and their pu-nyshement. The people murmur. Fourtene thousande and seuen hundreth dye in the plage.

Eccl. 45.b AND ✱ Corah the sonne of Iezehar the sōne of Kahath the sonne of Leui, with Da-than, and Abiram the sōnes of Eliab, and On the sōne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben, stode vp agaynste Moses, with certayne men amonge the children of Israel, two hun-dreth and fyftie captaynes of the cōgregacyon, councelers, and famous men.
And they gathered them selues agaynst Moses & Aaron and sayde vnto them: Ye make to much adoo. ✱ For all the Nu. 39.a congregacyon is holy eueryone, and the LORDE is amonge them: Why lyft ye youre selues vp then aboue the cōgregacion of the LORDE?

When Moses herde that, he fell vppon his face, and sayde vnto Corah, & to all his company: Tomorow shall the LORDE shewe who is his, and who is holy to come vnto hym. Whome so euer he choseth, the same shall come vnto hym. This do: Take the censors, thou Corah and all thy cōpanye, and do fyre therin, and put incense theron tomorow before ẏ LORDE: the whō so euer the LORDE chuseth, ẏ same shalbe holy. Ye make to much a do, ye childrē of Leui.

B And Moses sayd vnto Corah: Heare ye children of Leui, Is it not ynough vnto you, ✱ that the God of Israell hath Num. 3.a separated you frō the multitude of Israell that ye shulde come nye hym, to do the seruyce of the dwellyng place of the LORDE, and stonde before the people to mynister vnto thē? He hath caused ẏ and thy brethrē ẏ children of Leui with the, to come nye vnto hym: and now seke ye ẏ preesthode also. Thou and all thy cōpany chyde agaynst the LORDE.
What is Aaron, that ye shuld murmur agaynst hym?

And Moses sent to call Dathan & Abiram ẏ sones of Eliab. But they sayde: We wyl not come vp. Is it to litle that thou hast brought vs out of the londe of Egypte (that floweth with mylke & hony) to kyll vs in the wyldernesse: but thou must raygne ouer vs also? Howe goodly, and well hast thou brought vs in to a londe, that floweth with mylke and hony, and geuen vs feldes and vyn-yardes in possessiō? Wilt thou put out ✱ these mēs eyes? We wyl not come vp. Nu. 13.b

C Then was Moses very wroth, and sayde vnto the LORDE: Turne the not vnto their meatofferynges. I haue not taken so much as an asse from thē, nether haue I hurt any of thē. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Tomorow be ẏ and all thy cōpanye before the LORDE thou, and they, & Aaron. And take euery one his censer, and put incense therin, & come before the LORDE euery one w his censer (that is two hundreth and fiftye censers) and both thou and Aaron take either his censer.

And euery one toke his censer, and put fyre therin, and layed incēse theron and came before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnes, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered the whole cōgregacyon agaynste thē before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse.

But the glory of the LORDE appeared before the whole congregacyon.
And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Separate youre selues frō this cōgregacion, that I may shortly consume them. And they fell vpon their faces, and sayde: O God, thou God of the spirites of all flesshe, yf one man haue synned, wylt thou therfore be wroth ouer the whole congregacyon?
And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: Come vp from the dwel-lynges of Corah, and Dathan, and Abiram.

D And Moses stode vp, & wente vnto Dathan & Abiram, and the Elders of Israel folowed hym, & he spake to the congregacion, & sayde: Departe frō the tentes of these vngodly men & touche no thynge ỹ is theirs, ỹ ye perysh not in ony of theyr synnes. And they gat them vp from the dwellynge of Corah, Da-than, and Abiram. But Dathan & Abiră came out, & stode in the dore of theyr tentes, with theyr wyues, and sonnes, and chyldren.
And Moses sayde: Hereby shall ye knowe that the LORDE hath sent me, to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of myne awne hart. Yf these men dye the comō death of all mē: or be vysited as all men are vysited the

And the earth closed vpō them, & so they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel ỹ were aboute thē, fled at ỹ crye of thē, for they sayde: That ỹ earth swalowe not vs also. Mo reouer the fyre came out frō ỹ LORD, and consumed the two hundreth & fiftye men, that offred the incense.
And the LORDE spake vnto Mo ses, & sayde: Speake to Eleasar ỹ sonne of Aaron the prest, that he take vp the censers out of the burnynge, and scater the fyre here & there (For the censers of these synners are halowed thorow their soules) that they maye be beaten in to thynne plates, and fastened vpon the al tare. For they are offred before ỹ LOR DE, and halowed: and they shalbe a token vnto the chyldren of Israel.
F And Eleasar the prest toke the bra-sen censers which they that were burnt, had offred, and bet them to plates, to fasten them vpō the altare for a remembraūce vnto ỹ chyldrē of Israel that no straunger (& he that is not of the sede of Aaron) come nye to offre incense before the LORDE, that it happē not vnto him as vnto Corah & his cōpanye, acor dynge as ỹ LORD sayde vnto him by Moses.
On the nexte morow murmured the whole congregaciō of the chyldrē of Israel agaynst Moses & Aaron, & sayde: Ye haue slayne the people of ỹ LOR-DE. And whā the congregacion was gathered agaynst Moses & Aaron, they turned thē towarde the Tabernacle of wytnesse And beholde, thē the cloude co uered the Tabernacle, & the glory of ỹ LORDE appeared. And Moses and Aaron wēte in before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses & sayde: Get you out of this congregacyon, I wyll shortly consume them. And they fell vpō their faces. And G Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Take the ce ser & put fyre theryn frō of the altare, & laye incense theron, and go soone to the congregaciō, & make an attonemēt for them. For the wrath is gone out from the LORDE, and the plage is begōne amonge the people.
And Aaron dyd as Moses sayde, & came in the myddest amōge the congre gacion. And beholde, the plage was begonne. And he burnt incense & made an attonement for the people, * and stode betwene the dead & the lyuynge, and ỹ plage ceassed. But there were fourtene thousande, and seuē hundreth dead in ỹ plage, besydes them that dyed aboute ỹ busynesse of Corah. And Aaron came a-gayne vnto Moses before the dore of ỹ Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the plage ceassed.

By ỹ florysshynge staf of Aaron, it is declared, ỹ the trybe of Leui & the prest hode of Aaron is chosen of God.

to Moses, & sayde: Speake to ỹ chyldrē of Israel, and take of thē twolue staues, of euery captayne of his fathers house one, and wryte euery mans name vpon his staffe. But Aarōs name shalt thou wryte vpon the staffe of Leui For euery heade of their fathers house shall haue a staffe. And laye them in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, before the wit nesse where I testifie vnto you. And lo he whom I shal chose, his staffe shal flo rishe, that I maye styll the grudgynges of the chyldren of Israel, which they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldre of Israel; and all their captaynes gaue him twolue staues, euery captaine a staf fe, after the house of theyr fathers. And Aarons staffe was amōge their staues also. And Moses layed ẏ staues before ẏ LORDE in ẏ Tabernacle of witnesse.

B ...45.c ...9.a *On ẏ morow whā Moses wēte in to ẏ Tabernacle of witnesse, he founde ẏ Aarons rodde of the house of Leui florished, & brought forth blossoms, and bare almondes. And Moses brought forth al the staues frō ẏ LORDE before all the chyldren of Israell ẏ they might se it. And they toke euery mā his staffe.

The LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Brynge Aarōs staffe agayne before the witnesse, ẏ it maye be kepte for a token to the chyldre of rebellyon, ẏ theyr murmurynges maye ceasse frō me, lest they dye.

Moses dyd as the LORDE cōmaunded him. And the chyldre of Israel sayd vnto Moses: Beholde, we consume awaye, we are destroyed, & perishe. Who so cometh nye the dwellynge place of ẏ LORDE, he dyeth. Shal we thē vtterly consume awaye?

The.xviii. Chapter.

The office and mynistracion of Aaron, of the prestes and Leuites, and their dewtye.

B And the LORDE sayd vnto Aarō: Thou and thy sonnes, & thy fathers house wt the shall beare the mysdede of the Sanctuary: and thou & thy sonnes wt the shall beare the mysdede of your presthode. ...1.a *But thy brethrē of the trybe of Leui thy father, shal come nye the, & be ioyned vnto the, that they maye mynistre vnto the. But thou & thy sōnes wt the, shall mynistre before the Tabernacle of witnesse. And they shal wayte vpō thy seruyce & vpō ẏ seruyce of the whole Tabernacle. But nye vnto the vessels of ẏ Sanctuary and to the altare, shal they not come, that both they and ye dye not: howbeit they shalbe ioyned vnto the, to wayte vpon the mynistracyon in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, in all the seruyce of the Tabernacle. And there shall no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therfore wayte now vpon the seruyce of the Sanctuary, and vpon the seruyce of the altare, that there come no more wrath vpō the chyldren of Israel, For lo, I haue taken youre brethren the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israell, to be youre gifte, for a presente vnto ẏ LORDE, to do ẏ seruice in ẏ Tabernacle of witnesse. As for the, & thy sonnes wt the, ye shall wayte vpon your prestes office, that ye maye mynistre in all maner busynes of the altare, & within the vayle: for your prestes office geue I vnto you for a gyfte to do seruice. Yf a straunger come nye, he shall dye. B

And the LORDE sayde vnto Aaron: beholde, I haue geuē the my Heueofferynges: And all that the chyldren of Israel halowe, haue I geuen vnto the, and to thy sonnes for a perpetuall dewtye. This shalt thou haue of the moost holy thinges that they offer. All their giftes with all their meatofferynges, & with all their synofferynges, and with all their trespaceofferynges, that they geue me, the same shalbe moost holy vnto the and thy sonnes. In ẏ moost holy place shalt thou eate it. All that are males shall eate therof: For it shalbe holy vnto the.

*The Heueofferynge of their gyftes in all the Waueofferynges of the chyldren of Israell, haue I geuen vnto the also, and to thy sonnes, and to thy doughters for a perpetuall dewtye. Who so is cleane in thy house, shall eate therof. All the fat of the oyle, and all the fat of thy wyne and corne of their firstlinges, that they geue vnto the LORDE haue I geuen vnto the. The first frutes of all that is in their londe, which they brynge vnto the LORDE, shall be thyne Who so euer is cleane in thyne house, shall eate therof. C Leui.7.d

All damned thinges in Israell shall be thyne. All that breaketh the matrix amonge all flesh which they brynge vnto the LORDE, whether it be man or beast, shalbe thyne. But so ẏ thou cause the fyrstborne of mā to be redemed, and that thou cause ẏ firstborne of vncleane beastes to be redemed also. (They shall redeme it whā it is a moneth olde, and shall geue it lowse for money, Euen for fyue Sycles, after the Sycle of the Sanctuary, *which Sycle is worth twentye Geras.) Exo.30.b Leui.27.d Eze.45.b

But the fyrste frutes of an oxe, or lambe, or goate shalt thou not cause to be redemed for they are holy. Their bloude shalt thou sprenkle vpon the altare, and their fat shalt thou burne for an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the LORDE. Their flesh shalbe thyne, like as the Wauebrest & the ryght shulder is thyne also. All the Heueofferinges that the chyldre of Israell halowe vnto the LORD, haue I geuẽ vnto the, & to thy sonnes, & to thy doughters with the for a perpetuall dewtye. This shalbe a salted couenaũt for euer before ỹ LORDE, vnto the and thy sede with the.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Aaron: * Thou shalt inherett nothynge in their lond, nor haue eny porcyon amõge them: for I am thy porcyon, and thyne enheritaunce amonge the chyldre of Israell. Unto the chyldre of Leui haue I

Deu.18.a. Eze.44.d

D geuen all the tithes in Israell to inheritaunce, for the seruyce which they do vnto me in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, ỹ from thẽce forth the chyldren of Israell come not nye ỹ Tabernacle of witnesse, to lade them selues with synne, and to dye: But the Leuites shall do ỹ seruyce in the Tabernacle of witnesse, and shall beare their synne, for a perpetuall lawe amõge youre posterities * And they shal inherett none inheritaunce amonge the chyldre of Israell. For the tithes of the chyldren of Israel, which they Heue vnto ỹ LORD, haue I geuen vnto ỹ Leuites for an heretage. Therfore haue I sayd vnto thẽ, that they shall inherett no inheritaũce amonge ỹ chyldre of Israel.

Iosu.13.b.

And the LORD talked ŵ Moses, and sayde: Speake to the Leuites, and saye vnto thẽ: Whan ye take of the chyldren of Israel ỹ tithes, that I haue geuen you of thẽ for your inherytaunce ye shall take an Heueofferynge of ỹ same vnto the LORD, euẽ the tenth of the tithe. And the same your Heueofferinge shall ye reken, as though ye gaue corne out of the barne, and fulnesse out of the wynepresse.

E Thus shall ye geue an Heueofferinge vnto the LORDE of all youre tithes, which ye take of the chyldre of Israel, ỹ ye maye geue the same Heueoffrynge of the LORD, vnto Aaron the prest. And all that ye geue of the tythes, & halowe vnto the LORDE for a gifte, the same shal be his of the best. And saye thou vnto them: Whan ye thus Heue vp ỹ fat therof, it shall be rekened vnto the Leuites as the increase of the wyne presse. And ye maye eate it in all places, ye, and your chyldren: for it is youre rewarde for youre seruyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: and ye shall not lade synne vpon you in the same, whan ye heue the fat therof, and vnhalowe not the halowed thynges of the chyldre of Israel, and ye shall not dye.

The.xix.Chapter.

Of the reed cowe that was brent, & how the sprynklynge water was made of the asshes of her.

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses & Aaron & sayde: This custome shal be a law, which the LORD hath cõmaunded, & sayde: Speake vnto ỹ chyldre of Israel, ỹ they bringe vnto the a reed cow ŵout spot, wherin is no blemysh, and vpõ whõ there came neuer yock: and ye shall geue her vnto Eleasar the prest, * which shall brynge her without the hoost, and cause her to be slayne there before hym.

And Eleasar the prest shall take of hir bloude with his fynger, and sprinkle it seuen tymes straight toward ỹ dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, * and cause the cow to be burnt before hym, both hir skynne & hir flesh, & hir bloude also with hir donge. And the prest shall take ceder wood, and ysope, and purple woll, and cast it vpõ the cow as she burneth, and he shal washe his clothes, and bathe his body with water, and thẽ go in to the hoost, and be vncleane vntyll the euen.

And he that burnt her, shal wash his clothes also with water, and bathe his body in water, & be vncleane vntyll the euen. And one that is cleane, shal gather vp the * asshes of the cow, & poure thẽ without the hoost in a cleane place, that they maye be kepte there, for sprenkling water to the congregaciõ of the chyldre of Israel, For it is a synofferynge. And he that gathered vp the asshes of the cow, shall wash his clothes, and be vncleane vntyl the euen. This shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto the chyldre of Israel, and to the straungers that dwel amõge you.

* Who so now toucheth a dead mã, shall be vncleane seuen dayes: the same shall purifye hymself here with, on the thirde daye, and on the seuenth daye: & then shal he be cleane. And yf he purifie not hymself on the thirde daye, & on the seuenth daye, thẽ shall he not be cleane. But whan eny mã toucheth a dead persone, and wyll not purifye hymself: he defyleth the dwellynge of the LORD, and the same soule shall be roted out of Israel, because the sprynklynge water is not sprenkled vpon him: and he is vncleane, as longe as he letteth not hymselfe be pourged therof.

C This is ÿ lawe. When a mā dyeth in the tente, whosoeuer goeth in to the tente, and all that is in the tente, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And euery open vessel that hath no lydde nor coueryng, is vncleane. And whosoeuer toucheth one that is slayne wt the swearde vpon the felde, or eny other dead, or a dead mans bone, or a graue, the same is vncleane seuen dayes.

So now for the vncleane persone, they shall take of ÿ asshes of this burnt synneofferynge, and put sprynginge water theron in to a vessell, and a cleane man shall take * ysope, & dyppe it in the water, and sprenkle it vpon the tente, and vpon all the vessels, and all the soules ÿ are therin. Likewyse also vpon hym, ÿ hath touched a dead mans bone, or a slayne psone, or a dead body, or a graue. ..se.a

And he that is cleane, shall sprenkle vpon the vncleane, the thyrde daye, and the seuenth daye, and purifye hym on the seuenth daye. And he shall wasshe his clothes, and bathe hymself with water, and so at euen he shalbe cleane.

D But he that is vncleane, and wil not purifye hymselfe, the same soule shalbe roted out of the congregacion. For he hath defyled the Sanctuary of ÿ LORDE, and is not sprenkled with sprenklynge water, therfore is he vncleane. And this shalbe a perpetuall lawe vnto them. And he ÿ sprenkled with the sprenklynge water, shall wash his clothes also. And whosoeuer toucheth the sprenklynge water, shall be vncleane vntil the euen. * And what so euer he toucheth, shalbe vncleane: and loke what soule he toucheth, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. ..ai.17.b

The.xx.Chapter.

C Miriam dyeth at Cades. The people chyde with Moses and Aaron for faute of water, the LORDE geueth it them out of the hard stonye rocke. Moses desyreth the kynge of Edom, to let them go thorow his londe. Aaron dyeth vpon mount Hor.

B And the chyldren of Israell came wt the whole congregacion in to the wyldernesse of Zin * in ÿ first moneth, & the people abode at Cades. And there dyed Miriam, and was buried there. And the congregacyon hadde no water, and they gathered them selues together agaynst Moses and Aaron and the people chode with Moses, and sayd: Wolde God that we had peryshed * when our brethren peryshed before ÿ LORDE. ‡ Wherfore haue ye brought the congregacyon of the LORDE into this wyldernesse, that we shuld dye here with our catell? And wherfore haue ye broughte vs out of Egipte in to this place, where men can not sowe, where are nether fygges, nor vynes, nor pomgranates, and where there is no water to drynke?

And Moses and Aaron went from the congregacyon vnto the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and fell vpon theyr faces. And the glory of ÿ LORDE appeared vnto them. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses: and sayd: * Take the staffe, and gather the congregacyon together, thou and thy brother Aaron, & speake vnto the rocke before theyr eyes, and it shall geue water. And thus shalt thou prouyde water out of the rocke, and geue the congregacyon drynke, and theyr catell also. Exo.17.b 1.Cor.10.a

B Then toke Moses the staffe before the LORDE, as he commaunded hym. And Moses and Aaron gathered the cōgregacyon together before the rocke, & sayd vnto them: Heare ye rebellious: Shal we prouyde you water out of this rocke? * And Moses lyfte vp his hāde, and smote the rocke with the staffe two tymes. Then came the water out abundauntly, so that the cōgregacyon dranke, and theyr catell also. Psal.77.b

But the LORDE sayd vnto Moses and Aarō: * Because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me before the chyldren of Israell, ye shall not brynge this congregacyon into ÿ lande that I shal geue them. This is the water of stryfe, where the chyldren of Israell stroue wt ÿ LORDE, & he was sanctified vpon them. Deu.1.f and.31.a

* And Moses sent messaungers fro Cades vnto the kynge of ÿ Edomites: This worde sendeth the thy * brother Israel: Thou knowest all the trauayle that happened vnto vs, how that oure fathers wente downe into Egipte, and how we haue dwelte in Egipte a longe tyme, and how the Egipcyans dealte euell with vs and our fathers. And we C cryed vnto the LORDE, which herde our voyce, and sent his angell, and hath brought vs out of Egipte: And beholde Iudic.11.c Gen.25.c we are at Cades in the cyte without ỹ Nu.27.c borders of thy londe. * O let vs go tho 1.Mac.5.e row thy lande, we wyll not go thorowe the feldes nor vynyardes, nor drynke ỹ water out of the fountaynes. We wyll go the hye strete, and turne nether to the ryght hande nor to the lefte, tyll we be come past the borders of thy countre.

Eze.35.a * But the Edomite answered hym: Abd.1.b Thou shalt not go by me, or I wyll come agaynst the with the swearde. The chyl Deu.2.a dren of Israel sayd vnto hym: * We wyl go the comen hye waye, and yf we, or oure catell drynke of thy water, we wyll paye for it: we wyll do nothynge, but passe thorow on fote onely. But he sayd: Thou shalt not go thorow. And ỹ Edomites came out agaynst them with a myghtie people and a stronge hande.
Thus the Edomites denied to graunte Israel passage thorow ỹ borders of the lande. And Israel turned awaye from them.

D And the chyldren of Israel brake Nu.33.d vp from Cades, * and came with ỹ hole congregation vnto mount Hor. And the LORDE spake vnto Moses and Aa ron at mount Hor harde vpon the con fyes of the lande of ỹ Edomites, & sayd: Let Aaron be gathered vnto his people: for he shall not come into the lande that I haue geuen vnto the chyldren of Is raell, because ye were disobedient vnto my mouth at the water of stryfe. Take Aaron and Eleasar and his sonne, and brynge them vp vnto mounte Hor, and strype Aaron out of his vestimentes, and put them vpon Eleasar his sonne, and there shall Aaron be gathered (vnto his people) and dye.

Then dyd Moses as the LORDE commaunded hym. And they went vp vn to mount Hor in the syghte of the hole congregacyon. And Moses toke Aarõs clothes, and put them vpon Eleasar his Deu.10.b sonne. * And Aaron dyed there, euen a and 32.g boue vpon the mount. And Moses and Eleasar came downe from the mounte.
And whan the hole congregacyon sawe that Aaron was awaye, they mourned for hym thirtie dayes thorowe out the hole house of Israell.

The.xxi. Chapter.

¶ The batayll betwene Israell and Arad the kynge of the Cananites. The people murmure, and are plaged with the serpentes. They wynne the victorye of Og and Sihon.

AND * when Arad ỹ kynge of the Cananites (which dwelt towarde the southe) herde, that Israel came in by the waye that the spyes had founde out, he fought agaynst Is rael, and toke some of them prisoners.
Then vowed Israell a vowe vnto the LORDE, and sayd: Yf thou wylt geue this people vnder my hande, I wyll vt terly destroye theyr cyties. And ỹ LOR DE herde the voyce of Israell and de lyuered them the Cananites, and they vtterly destroyed them with theyr cyties also. * And he called the place Horma.

¶ Then departed they from mounte Hor on the waye towarde the reed see, that they myght go aboute the lande of the Edomites. And the soules of ỹ peo ple faynted by the waye and they spake agaynst God and agaynst Moses:
* Wherfore hast thou brought vs out of the londe of Egipte, to slaye vs in the wyldernesse? For here is nether bread nor water, and oure soule lotheth this lyght meate.

* Then sent the LORDE fyrie ser pentes amonge the people, which bote the people, so that there dyed much peo ple in Israel. Then cam they vnto Mo ses, and sayd: We haue synned, because we haue spoken agaynst the LORDE and agaynst the. * Praye thou vnto the LORDE, that he take awaye ỹ serpentes frõ vs. And Moses prayed for ỹ people.

Then sayd the LORDE vnto Mo ses: Make the a brasen serpent, and set it vp for a token. Whosoeuer is bytten, and loketh vpon it, shall lyue. * Then made Moses a serpent of brasse, and set it vp for a token: and whã a serpẽt had bytten eny man, he behelde the brasen serpent, and recouered.

* And the chyldren of Israel depar ted, and pitched in Oboth. And frõ O both they went on, and pitched in Ijim by Abarim in the wyldernesse ouer a gaynst Moab, on the Eastsyde. From thence departed they, and pytched by ỹ ryuer of Sared. From thence departed they, & pitched on this syde Arnon, which is in ỹ wyldernesse, & cometh out of the costes of the Ammorites. For Arnon is the border betwixt Moab & the Ammo rites. Wherfore it is spoken in the boke of the warres of the LORDE: And ge n violẽce both on the ryuer of Arnõ, & on ỹ fountaine of ỹ ryuer, which boweth downwarde to dwell at Ar, & leaneth

Heron, to be the border of Moab.

And from thens they came to ỹ well. This is the well, wherof the LORDE spake vnto Moses: gather the people together, I wyl geue the water. Then sange Israel this songe, & they sange one after another ouer ỹ well: This is ỹ well, that the prynces dygged: the nobles amonge the people haue dygged it thorow the teacher and their staues.

And frō this wyldernesse they wente vnto Mathana, & from Mathana vnto Nahaliel, & frō Nahaliel to Bamoth, & from Bamoth vnto the valley ỹ lyeth in the felde of Moab at ỹ toppe of Pisga, & turneth towarde the wyldernesse.

And Israel sent messaungers vnto Sihon the kynge of ỹ Ammorites, & caused to saye vnto hym: * Let me go thorow thy lāde, we wyll not turne in to ỹ feldes nor in to the vynyardes: nether wyll we drynke the water of ỹ welles, the hye strete wyll we go, till we be past the borders of thy countre.

D * Howbeit Sihon wolde not geue ỹ chyldren of Israel licence to go thorow the coastes of his londe, but gathered al his people together, and wente out agaynst Israel in the wyldernesse. And whan he came to Jaheza, he fought agaynst Israel. * Neuerthelesse Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde, and conquered his londe from Arnō vnto Jabock, and vnto the chyldrē of Ammon. * For the borders of the chyldren of Ammon were stronge. Thus Israel toke these cities, and dwelt in all the cities of ỹ Ammorites, namely at Hesbō, & in the townes belongynge therto. For Hesbon the citie was Sihons the kynge of the Ammorites, & he had foughte before with the kynge of the Moabites, and conquered all his londe from hym vntyll Arnon.

Wherfore it is sayd in the prouerbe: Come vnto Hesbon, let vs buylde, and prepare the citie of Sihon. For there is a fyre gone out of Hesbon, and a flame from the citie of Sihon, which hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the citizens of the toppe of Arnon. Wo vnto the Moab: thou people of Camos E art vndone. His sonnes are put to flighte, and his doughters brought captyue vnto Sihon the kynge of ỹ Ammorites. Their glory is come to naught from Hesbon vnto Dibon: wasted are they vnto Nopha, which reacheth vnto Medba. Thus dwelt Israel in the londe of the Ammorites.

And Moses sent out spyes vnto Jaeser, and they toke the townes belongynge therto, and conquered the Ammorites that were therin. * And they turned, and wente vp the waye towarde Basan. Then Og the kynge of Basan wente out agaynste them with all his people to fight in Edrei. And the LORDE sayd vnto Moses: Feare him not, for I haue geuen hym with his londe & people in to thy honde, and thou shalt do with hym, as thou dyddest with Sihon the kynge of the Ammorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote hym, and his sonnes, and all his people (so that there remayned none) and conquered the londe. Afterwarde went the chyldren of Israel, & pitched in the felde of Moab beyonde Jordane by Jericho. Deu.3.a and.29.b

The.xxii.Chapter.

Of Balac the kynge of the Moabites and of Balaam the soythsayer.

AND * whā Balac the sonne of Zipor sawe all that Israel A Jos.24.b had done vnto ỹ Ammorites and that ỹ Moabites were sore afrayed of the people (that was so greate) and that the Moabites stode in feare of the chyldrē of Israel, he sayde vnto the elders of Madianites: Now shall this heape lycke vp all that is aboute vs, euē as an oxe lycketh vp the grasse in the felde. (And Balac the sonne of Zipor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.)

* And he sent out messaungers vnto Nu.23.b to ‡ Balaam the sonne of Beor, which Deu.23.a was an interpreter, (the same dwelt by ‡1.pet.2.d the water of the londe of the chyldren of his people) that they shulde call hym, & he caused to saye vnto hym: Beholde there is come out of Egypte, a people, which couereth the face of ỹ earth, and lyeth ouer agaynst me. Come now therfore, and curse me this people, for they are to myghtye for me, yf peraduenture I myghte be able to smyte them, and to dryue them out of the londe. For I wote that whom thou blessest, he is blessed: & whome thou cursest, he is cursed.

And the Elders of the Moabites B wente out with the Elders of the Madianites, & had the rewarde of the soythsayeng in their hādes, & they came vnto Balaam and tolde hym the wordes of Balaam. And he sayd vnto them: tarye here all nyght, and I wyll brynge you worde agayne, euen as the LORDE shall saye vnto me. So the prynces of the Moabites abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam, and sayde: What men are these, which are with the? Balaam sayd vnto God: Balac ŷ sonne of Ziphor the kynge of the Moabites hath sent vnto me: Beholde, there is a people come out of Egipte, and couereth the face of the earth, come now therfore, and curse me them, yf perad-uenture I maye be able to fyght with them, and to dryue them out. But God sayde vnto Balaam: Go not with them, and curse not ŷ people, for they are blessed.

C Then rose Balaam vp in the mor-nynge, and sayd vnto the prynces of Ba-lac: Get you vnto youre londe, for the LORDE wyl not suffer me to go wt you.
And the prynces of the Moabites gat them vp, came to Balac, and sayde: Balaam refuseth to come with vs. Th[en] sent Balac yet a greater company of prynces, and more honorable then they.
Whan they came to Balaam, they told hym: Balac the sonne of Ziphor sendeth the this worde: Oh refuse not to come vnto me, for I wyll promote the vnto hye honoure, and wyll do what so euer thou sayest vnto me. Come I praye the, curse me this people.

Balaam answered, and sayd vnto Nu. 24. c the seruauntes of Balac: * Yf Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer & golde, yet coulde I not go beyonde ŷ worde of ŷ LORDE my God, to do litle or great.
Neuertheles tary ye here this nyght, ŷ I maye wete, what the LORDE wyll saye more vnto me. Then came God to Balaam by nyght, and sayd vnto hym: Yf the men are come to call the, get the vp then, and go with them: but what I shall saye vnto the, that shalt thou do.

D Then rose Balaam vp in the mor-nynge, and sadled his asse, and went wt the prynces of the Moabites. But the wrath of God waxed whote, because he wente. And the angell of the LORDE stode in ŷ waye, to withstonde hym. But he rode vpon his asse, and two seruauntes with hym. And the asse sawe the angell of the LORDE stondynge in the waye, and his swearde drawen in his hande. And the asse turned asyde out of the waye, and wente in to the felde. But Balaam smote her, that she shulde go in the waye.

Then stode ŷ angell of the LORDE [illegible] in the pathe by the vyneyardes, where there were walles on both the sydes.
And when the asse sawe the angell of the LORDE, she thrusted her to the wall, and thrust Balaams fote vp to the wall. And he smote her agayne.
Then wente the angell of the LORDE further, & stode in a narow place, where there was no waye to turne, neyther to the right hande, nor to ŷ lefte. And whan the asse sawe the angell of the LORDE, she fell downe vnder Balaam. Then was Balaams wrath furious, & smote the asse with a staffe.

Then opened the LORDE the mouth of the asse, and she sayd vnto Balaam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou hast smytten me now thre tymes?
Balaam sayd vnto the asse: Because ŷ hast mocked me. Oh ŷ I had a swearde now in my hande, I wolde kyl the. The asse sayd vnto Balaam: Am not I thyne asse, which thou hast rydden vpon in thy tyme vnto this daye? Was I euer wonte to do so vnto the? He sayde: Na[y].

Then opened the LORDE ŷ eyes of Balaam, that he sawe the angell of ŷ LORDE stondynge in the waye, and a drawen swearde in his hande. And he enclyned hymselfe, and bowed downe w[t] his face. And the angell of the LORDE sayd vnto hym: Wherfore hast ŷ smytten thyne asse now thre tymes? Beholde, I am come out to resyste ŷ, for thy waye is frowarde, and cōtrarie vnto me. And the asse sawe me, & auoyded fro me thre tymes: or els yf she had not turned asyde fro me, I had slayne the, and saued the asse alyue.

Then sayde Balaam vnto ŷ angell of the LORDE: I haue synned, for I wyst not, that thou stodest in the waye agaynst me. And now yf it displease the,
I wyll turne agayne. The angell of the LORDE sayd vnto hym: Go with the men: but thou shalt speake nothynge els, then ŷ I shall saye vnto the. So Balaam wente forth with the prynces of Balac.
Whan Balac herde that Balaam came, he wente out to mete hym (in the cyte of the Moabites that lyeth on the coast of Arnon, which is on the vttermost border) & sayd vnto hym: Dyd not I sende for ŷ to call the? Wherfore camest thou not then vnto me? Thynkest thou that I am not able to promote the vnto ho-noure? Balaam answered hym: Lo, I am come vnto the, * But how [illegible] saye eny thynge els, then that God putteth in my mouthe, that I must speake.

So Balaam went with Balac, and they came vnto the cite on the vttermost border of his lande. And Balac slewe oxen and shepe, and sent for Balaam, & for the prynces that were with hym.

The.xxiii. Chapter.

Balaam is brought to curse the people of God.

And in the mornynge, Balac toke Balaã, and they wente vp to the hye place of Baal, that from thence he myghte se vnto the vttermost parte of the people. And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: Buylde me here seuen altares, & prouyde me here seuen bullockes, and seuen rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam sayd. And both Balac and Balaam offred, on euery altare a bullocke and a ramme. And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: Stande thou by thy burntofferynge, I wyll go, yf haply the LORDE wyll mete me, and call me, that I may tel ye, what so euer he sheweth me. And he wente his waye, as he sayd.

And the LORDE met Balaam. And Balaam sayde vnto hym: Seuen altares haue I prepared, and offred on euery altare a bullocke and a ramme. The LORDE put the wordes in Balaams mouth, and sayd: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on this wyse. And whã he came agayne vnto hym, beholde, he stode by his burntofferynge, with all ye prynces of the Moabites.

B Then toke he vp his parable, & sayde: * Balac the kynge of the Moabites hath caused me to fet me out of Syria from the mountaynes towarde the east, (and sayd:) Come, curse me Iacob: come, defye Israel. How shal I curse hym, whom God curseth not? How shal I defye hym, whom the LORDE defyeth not? For from the toppe of the stony rockes I se hym, and from the hilles I beholde hym. Beholde, the people shal dwell by them selues, and shal not be rekened amonge the Heythen. Who can tell the dust of Iacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel? My soule dye the death of the righteous, and my ende be as the ende of these.

C Then sayde Balac vnto Balaam: What doest ye vnto me? I caused the to be fet to curse myne enemyes, & beholde, thou blessest the. He answered & sayde: * Must I not kepe and speake that, which ye LORDE putteth in to my mouth? Balac sayd vnto hym: Come with me yet vnto another place, from whence thou mayest se the vttermost parte of them, & not se them all, and curse me the there. — Num.22.f

And he toke him vp to a fre place, euen vnto the toppe of Pisga, and buylded seuen altares, and offred on euery altare a bullocke and a ramme. And he sayd vnto Balac: Stonde so by thy burntofferynge, whyle I go yonder. And the LORDE met Balaam, & put ye worde in his mouth, and sayd: Go agayne vnto Balac, and saye on this wyse. And whan he came to hym agayne, beholde, he stode by his burntofferynge with the prynces of the Moabites. And Balac sayde vnto hym: What hath the LORDE sayde?

And he toke vp his parable, & sayd: Ryse vp Balac and heare, marke my testimony with thine eares thou sonne of Zipor. * God is not a man yt he shulde lye, nor a mans chylde that eny thynge shulde repente him. Shulde he saye and not do? Shulde he speake, & not make it good? Beholde, I am brought hither to blesse, I blesse, & can not go back therfro. There is no wekednesse seyne in Iacob, nether eny laboure in Israel. The LORDE his God is wt him, & the kynges trõpet is amonge thẽ. * God hath brought thẽ out of Egipte, his strength is as of an vnicorne. For there is no sorcerye in Iacob, and no soythsayer in Israel. Whan the tyme cometh, it shal be sayde vnto Iacob, & to Israel, what God hath done. Beholde, the people shal ryse vp as a lyonesse, & heue vp hymself as a lyon. He shall not lye downe, tyll he eate of the praye, and drynke the bloude of the slayne. — 1. Cor.1.d. and.10.b — D — Nu.24.b.

Then sayde Balac vnto Balaam: Thou shalt nether curse hym nor blesse hym. Balaam answered, and sayde vnto Balac: Haue I not tolde the: All that the LORDE speaketh, that must I do? Balac sayde vnto hym: Oh come, I wyll brynge the to another place, yf it maye happly please God, that thou mayest curse thẽ there. And he brought hym vp to the toppe of mount Peor, that lyeth towarde the wyldernes. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: Buylde me here seuen altares, and prouyde me seuen bullockes and seuen rammes. Balac dyd as Balaam fyre, and offred on every altare a bullocke, and a ramme.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ The LORDE turneth Balaams curse in to a blessynge and prayse.

NOW when Balaam sawe that it pleased the LORDE, that he shulde blesse Israel he wente not (as he dyd before) to seke witchcrafte, but set his face streight towarde the wyldernesse, lifte vp his eyes, and sawe Israel

Then was Balac furious in wrath agaynst Balaam, and smote his handes together, and sayde vnto hym: I haue called the, that thou shuldest curse myne enemyes, and beholde, thou hast blessed them now thre tymes: and now get the hence to thy place. I thought that I wolde promote the vnto honoure, but the LORDE hath kepte the backe fro that honoure.

* And he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Thus sayeth Balaam the sonne of Beor: Thus sayeth the man whose eyes are opened: Thus sayeth he which heareth the wordes of God, and that hath the knowlege of the hyest, and he that sawe the visio of the Almightie, & fel downe, and his eyes were opened: I shall se hym but not now: I shall beholde hym, but not nye at hande. There shall a * starre come out of Jacob, and a cepter shall come vp out of Israel, * and shall smyte the rulers of the Moabites, & ouercome all the chyldre of Seth.

* Edom shalbe his possession, and Seir shalbe his enemyes possession, but Israel shal do manfully. Out of Jacob shall come he that hath dominion, and shall destroye the remnaunt of the cities.

And whan he sawe the Amalechites, he toke vp his parable, & sayde: * Amalech the fyrst amonge the Heythen, & [illegible] at the last thou shalt perysshe vtterly. And whan he sawe the Kenites, he toke vp his parable, and sayde: Stronge is thy dwellinge, and on a rocke hast thou put thy nest, neuerthelesse thou shalt be a burnynge vnto Kain, tyll Assur take the prysoner.

And he toke vp his parable agayne and sayde: Alas, who shall lyue, whan God doth this? And shippes out of Cithim shall subdue Assur & Eber. He hymselfe also shall perysshe vtterly. And Balaam gat him vp, and departed, & came agayne vnto his place, and Balac went his waye also.

The .xxv. Chapter.

¶ The people fall to whoredome & Idolatrie with the women of Moab, & [illegible] the sakes to the seruyce of Baal [illegible] Foure and twentye thousande are [illegible] slayne. Phinees in his feruēt zele [illegible] eth a man and woman in their synne.

AND * Israel dwelt in Sittim, and the people begane to committe whoredome with the doughters of the Moabites, which called ye people vnto sacrifices of their goddes. * And the people dyd eate and worshipped their goddes, & and Israel submitted hym selfe vnto Baal Peor. Than the wrath of the LORDE waxed whote vpon [illegible]

Israel, and he sayd unto Moses: Take al the rulers of the people, & hange them up unto ye LORDE agaynst ye Sonne, that the terrible wrath of the LORDE may be turned awaye from Israel. And Moses sayd unto the iudges of Israel: [...32.f] * Every man slaye his captaynes, that haue submytted them selues unto Baal Peor.

B * And beholde, one of the chyldre of Israel went in agaynst his brethre, and ioyned hymselfe to a Madianitish woman, in the syght of Moses and of the whole congregacyon of the chyldre of Israel, which weped before the dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse. * When Phinees the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron the prest sawe that, he rose up out of the cogregacyon, & toke a swearde in his hande, and wente after the ma of Israel into the whorehouse, and thrust them thorow, both the man of Israel & the woman, euen thorow the bely of her. Then ceassed the plage from the chyldre of Israel, * and there were slayne in the plage foure and twentye thousande.

C And the LORDE spake unto Moses, and sayd: * Phinees the sonne of Eleasar the sone of Aaro the prest, hath turned my wrath awaye from the chyldren of Israell thorow his gelousy for my sake amonge them, that I shuld not consume the chyldre of Israel in my gelousye. Wherfore saye: beholde, I geue hym my * couenaunt of peace, & he shall haue it, & his sede after hym, euen ye couenaunt of an euerlastinge presthode, because he was gelous for his Gods sake, & made an atonemente for ye chyldre of Israel.

The man of Israel that was slayne with the Madianitish woman, was called Simri the sone of Salu, a captayne of the house of the father of the Simeonites. The Madianitish woman also ye was slayne, was called Cosbi, ye doughter of Zur, which was a ruler of ye people of a kynred amonge the Madianites.

And the LORDE spake unto Moses, and sayd: * Vexe the Madianites and smyte them, for they haue vexed you with theyr wyles, wherby they haue begyled you thorow Peor, & thorow theyr syster Cosbi the doughter of a captayne of the Madianites, which was slayne in the daye of the plage, for Peors sake, and the plage came after.

The people are nombred agayne & mustred.

A And when the plage was ended, ye LORDE sayd unto Moses and unto Eleasar the sonne of Aaron the prest: * Take the summe of the whole congregacyon of the chyldre of Israel from twentye yeare & aboue after theyr father houses, all that are able to go forth to ye warre in Israel. And Moses and Eleasar the prest spake unto them (in the felde of the Moabites besyde Iordane ouer agaynst Iericho) namely unto all them that were twentye yeare olde and aboue, as the LORDE commaunded Moses. And these are ye chyldre of Israel, ye came out of Egypte. Exo.30.b Num.1.a

* Ruben the fyrst borne sonne of Israel. The chyldren of Ruben were, Hanoch: of whom commeth the kynred of the Hanochites. Pallu: of whom commeth the kynred of the Palluites. Hezron: of whom commeth the kynred of the Hezronites. Carmi: of whom commeth the kynred of the Carmites. These are the kynredes of the Rubenites. And ye nombre of them was, thre and fortye thousande, seuen hundreth, and thyrtye. But the chyldren of Pallu were, Eliab. And the chyldren of Eliab, were Nemuel, & Dathan, and Abiram. The.xxx.Chapter.

Of vowes made by men or women.

A AND Moses spake vnto the rulers of the trybes of ye chil dren of Israell and sayde:
This is it that the LORD Deu. 23. d hath commaunded * Yf eny man make a vowe vnto the LORDE, or sweare an ooth, so that he bynde his soule, he shall not breake his worde, but do all yt is proceaded out of his mouth.

Yf a damsell make a vowe vnto the LORD, and bynde hirself, whyle she is in hir fathers house, and vnmaried, and hir vowe or bonde that she maketh ouer hir soule, commeth to hir fathers eares, and he holde his peace therto: thẽ all hir vowes and bondes that she hath bõde hirself withall ouer hir soule, shal stõde in effecte. But yf hir father forbyd her ye same daye that he heareth it, then shall no vowe nor bonde that she hath bounde hirself withall ouer hir soule, be of value. And the LORDE shalbe mercifull vnto her, for so much as hir father for-bad her.

B Yf she haue an husbande, & hath a vowe vpon her, or yf she haue letten go out of hir lyppes a bonde ouer hir soule and hir husbande heare it, & holdeth his peace therat, the same daye that he heareth it: then hir vowe & bonde wherwt she hath bounde hirself ouer hir soule, shall stonde in effecte. But yf hir husbãd forbyd her ye same daye that he heareth it: then is the vowe lowse that she hath vpon hir, & the bonde also that she hath lettẽ go out of hir lyppes ouer hir soule, and the LORDE shalbe gracious vnto her.

The vowe of a wydowe, & of her this is deuorced, all that she bindeth hir self withall ouer hir soule, shall stonde in effecte vpon her.

C Yf she vowe in hir husbãdes house, or bynde hirselfe with an ooth ouer hyr soule, & hir husbande heare it, and holde his peace therto, and forbyddeth it not: then shall all the same vowe, & all yt she hath bõude hirselfe withall ouer hir soule, stonde in effecte. But yf hir husbãde dis anulle it, ye samedaye that he heareth it: thẽ is it of no value yt is proceaded out of hir lyppes, which she hath vowed or bounde ouer hir soule: for hir husbande hath made it lowse & the LORD shal be gracious vnto her. And all vowes & oothes yt bynde to hũble ye soule, maye hir husbande stablysh or breake. Thus yf he holde his peace therto from one daye to another: then stablyssheth he al hir vowes and bondes, yt she hath vpon her, because he helde his peace, the same daye that he herde thẽ. But yf he disa-nulle thẽ after yt he hath herde thẽ, then shal he take awaye hir misdede.

These are the statutes yt the LOR DE commaunded Moses betwene a man and his wife, & betwene the father and his doughter, whyle she is yet a dã sell in hir fathers house.

men and catell, and brought them vnto Moses and to Eleasar the prest, and to the congregacyon of the chyldren of Israel (namely the prisoners, and the catel that were taken, and the good that was spoyled) into the hoost in the felde of the Moabites, which lyeth besyde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

And Moses and Eleasar the prest & all the captaynes of the congregacyon, Nu.14.c. * wente out of the hoost to mete them.
And Moses was angrye at the officers of ẏ hoost, which were captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes, that came from the battayl, and sayd vnto them: C Haue ye saued all the wemen alyue? Be Nu.25.a holde, * haue not they (thorowe Bala-Apo.2.c ams busynes) turned awaye the chyldrē of Israel to synne agaynst the LORD vpon Peor, and there cam a plage ouer the whole congregacyon of the LORD Jud.21.b * Now therfore slaye all the males amonge the chyldren, and kyll all the we-men that haue knowen men and lyen bi them. But all the wemen chyldren that haue knowen no men nor lyen with the kepe those alyue for youre selues. And Nu.19.b lodge ye without the hoost, * all ẏ haue slayne any man, or touched the slayne: ẏ on the thyrde and seuenth daye ye maye purifie youre selues, and those whom ye haue takē presoners. And all the clothes and all stuffe that is made of skynnes, and all maner furres, and all vessels of wood shall ye purifie.

And Eleasar the prest sayd vnto the D captaynes of the hoost, that went out to the battayll: This is the statute of the lawe, whiche the LORDE commaunded Moses: Golde, syluer, brasse, yron, tynne, and leed, and all that suffreth the fyre, shal ye cause to go thorow the fyre, and clense it, that it maye be purified in the sprenklynge water. As for all suche as suffreth not the fyre, ye shal cause it to go thorow the water, & shal washe youre clothes vpon the seuenth day, and then shall ye be cleane. After that shall ye come into the hoost.

ses, and sayd: * Take the summe of the Deu.20.b spoyle of those that are taken, bothe of and 22.b wemen and of catell, thou and Eleasar Jos.8.f the prest, and the chefe fathers of the cō 2.Mac.8.e gregacyō, and geue the halfe vnto those that toke the warre vpon them, & went out to the battaill, and the other halfe to the congregacyon: And of the men of E warre that went out to the battaill, thou shalt heue vnto the LORDE one soule of fyue hundreth, both of the wemen, ox en, asses, and shepe: Of theyr halfe parte shalt thou take it, and geue it vnto Elea sar the prest for an Heueofferynge vnto the LORDE. But of the chyldren of Israels halfe parte, thou shalt take one heade of fyftie, both of the wemen, oxen asses, and shepe, and of all the catell, and shalt geue them vnto the Leuites, that wayte vpon the habitacyon of the LORDE.

And Moses and Eleasar the preste dyd as the LORDE cōmaunded Moses. And the spoyle and praye which the men of warre had spoyled, was sixe hūdreth thousande, and fyue and seuentye thousande shepe, two and seuenty thou sande oxen, one and thre score thousand asses: and the wemen that had knowen no men nor lyen with them, were two & thyrty thousande soules.

And the halfe parte which belonged F vnto them that went to the warre, was in nombre thre hundreth thousande, and seuen and thyrtye thousande, and fyue hundreth shepe: of the which ẏ LORD had sixe hundreth, and fyue and seuentie tye shepe. Item sixe and thirtye thousãd oxen: wherof the LORDE had two & seuentye. Item thirtye thousande and fyue hundreth asses: wherof the LORDE had one and thre score. Itẽ sixtene thousande soules of wemen: wherof ẏ LORDE had two and thirtye. And Moses gaue this heaueofferynge of the LORDE vnto Eleasar the prest, as the LORDE commaunded hym.

G As for the other halfe which Moses deuyded vnto the childrẽ of Israell from the men of warre (namely ẏ halfe that fell to the congregacion) it was also thre hundreth thousande, and seuen & thyrtie thousande, and fyue hundreth shepe, sixe and thirtye thousande oxen, thyrtye thousande and fyue hundreth asses, and sixtene thousande wemen soules. And of this halfe of the chyldren of Israell, toke Moses one of euery fiftye, both of the catel and of the wemen, and gaue them vnto the Leuites, that wayted vpon the habitacion of the LORDE, as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

And the captaynes ouer the thousandes of the hoost, namely they that were ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds,

H came forth vnto Moses, and sayde vnto hym: Thy seruauntes haue taken the summe of the men of warre, that were vnder oure hande, and there lacked not one: therfore brynge we a presente vnto the LORDE, what euery one hath founde of iewels of golde, cheynes, bracheletes, rynges, earynges, and taches, that oure soules maye be reconcyled before the LORDE.

And Moses & Eleasar the prest toke of thẽ the golde of all maner ornamentes. And all the golde of the Heueofferynge that they Heued vnto the LORDE, was sixtene thousande, and seuen hundreth, and fyftye Sycles, of ẏ captaynes ouer thousandes and hundreds. For loke what euery one had spoyled, ẏ was his owne. And Moses with Eleasar the prest toke the golde of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundreds, and brought it in to the Tabernacle of wytnesse for a remembraunce of the children of Israell before the LORDE.

The xxxii. Chapter.

Ruben, Gad, and the half trybe of Manasse haue their inheritaũce appoynted them on this syde of Iordan.

The chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad had an exceadynge greate multitude of catell, and sawe that lõde of Iaeser and Gilead that it was a mete place for catell, and came & spake vnto Moses and to Eleasar the prest, and to the captaynes of the cõgregacion: The londe of Atroth, Dibon, Iaeser, Nimra, Hesbõ, Eleale, Seban, Nebo, and Beon, which the LORDE smote before the congregaciõ of Israel, is a mete lõde for catel, & thy seruaũtes haue many catell. And they sayd morouer: Yf we haue founde fauoure before ẏ, the geue thy seruauntes this londe in possessiõ, & we wyl not go ouer Iordan.

Moses sayd vnto them: Youre brethren shall go to the warre, and wyll ye tary here? Wherfore turne ye the hartes of the chyldren of Israell, that they shulde not go ouer in to the londe that the LORDE shal geue them? * Thus B dyd youre fathers also, whã I sent thẽ out frõ Cades Barnea, to spye out the londe And whan they were come vp to the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the londe, they turned the hartes of the chyldrẽ of Israel, so that they wolde not in to the londe which the LORDE wolde haue geuen them.

And the LORDE was wroth at ẏ same tyme, and sware, & sayd: * These men that are come out of Egipte, from twẽtye yeare olde & aboue, shall not se the lande which I sware vnto Abrahã, Isaac & Iacob, because they haue not wholy folowed me: saue Caleb ẏ sonne of Iephune the Kenisite, & Iosua the sonne of Nun: for they haue wholy folowed the LORDE. So the LORDE was wroth with Israell, and let them wander in the wyldernesse fortye yeares tyll all the generacion ẏ had done euell before the LORDE, was cõsumed.

C And beholde, ye are rysen vp in youre fathers steade, to increase the nõbre of synfull men, and to augmente yet the wrath & indignacion of the LORDE agaynst Israell. For yf ye turne you backe from folowynge hym, he shal yet leaue them more in the wyldernesse and so shall ye destroye all this people.

Then stepte they to hym, and sayde: We wyll but buylde shepefoldes here for oure shepe and catell, and cities for our chyldren: As for oure selues, we wyll go ready armed before the chyldren of Israell, tyll we haue brought them vnto their place: Oure chyldren shal remayne in the fenced cities, because of ẏ indwellers of the londe. We wyll not turne home agayne, tyll the chyldren of Israell haue taken euery one his inheritaunce in possession: for we wyll not inheret with them beyonde Iordane: for our inheritaunce shall fall vnto vs vpon this syde Iordane Eastwarde.

D Moses sayde vnto them: ✠ Yf ye wyl do this, that ye wyll harnesse youre selues to the warre before the LORDE, then go ouer ẏ Iordane before ẏ LORDE, who so euer is harnessed amonge you, tyll he haue dryue out his enemies before his face, and vntyll the londe be subdued before the LORDE, then shal ye returne, and be vngyltye before the LORD, and before Israell, & so shall ye haue this londe in possession before the LORD. But yf ye wyll not do so, beholde, ye shall offẽde agaynst ẏ LORDE, and be sure, that youre synne shall fynde you out. Buylde cyties now therfore for youre chyldren, and shepe foldes and stalles for youre shepe and catell, and do as ye haue spoken.

E The chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Ruben sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruauntes shall do as my lorde hath cõmaunded. Oure chyldren, wyues, substaunce, and all our catell, shalbe in the cities of Gilead. But we thy seruauntes wyll go all harnessed for the warre vnto battayl before the LORD, as my lorde hath sayde.

Then Moses commaunded Eleasar the prest & Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the chefe fathers of the trybes of ẏ chyldren of Israell, and sayde vnto them: ✠ Yf the chyldren of Gad, & the chyldren of Ruben go ouer Iordane wt you, all prepared to fight before the LORDE and whan ẏ londe is subdued vnto you, then geue them the londe of Gilead in possession. But yf they go not ouer with you in harnesse then shall they inheret with you in the londe of Canaã.

The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered & sayde: As ẏ LORD hath spoken vnto thy seruauntes, so wyll we do: we wyll go harnessed before the LORDE in to the londe of Canaan, and possesse oure enheritaunce on this syde Iordane.

✠ So Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and to the chyldren of Ruben, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse the sonne of Ioseph, the kyngdome of Sihon kynge of the Amorites, and ẏ kyngdome of Og the kynge of Basan, the londe with the cities therof in all ẏ coostes of the countre rounde aboute. Then the chyldren of Gad buylded Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Sophan, Iaeser, & Iegabeha, Bethnimra, & Betharan, stronge fenced cities, and shepe foldes. The chyldren of Ruben buylded Hesbõ, Eleale, Kiriathaim, Nebo, Baal Meon, & turned ẏ names, & Sibamas, & gaue names vnto ẏ cities which they buylded. And the chyldren of Machir ẏ sonne of Manasse wente in to Gilead, and conquered it, and droue out ẏ Amorites that were therin. Then Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse and he dwelt therin. Iair the sonne of Manasse wente and cõquered the vyllages therof, and called the Hauoth Iair. Nobah wente, and cõquered Kenath, with the townes belongynge therto, called it Nobah, after his awne name.

The.xxxiii.Chapter.

¶ The iourneys of the chyldren of Israell are nombred. The people are commaunded (whan they come in to ẏ lõde of Canaan) to destroye all vtterly.

These are the iourneys of ẏ chyldren of Israel, which wente out of the lõde of Egypte acordynge to their armyes, by Moses & Aaron. B And Moses wrote their goynge out as they iourneyed, after the commaundemet of the LORD. And these (namely) are ẏ iourneyes of their outgoynge. ✠ They departed frõ Raamses vpon the fyfteth daye of the first moneth (euen ẏ morow after the Easter) thorow an hye hande, so that all the Egipcians sawe, and buryed then their firstborne, whõ ẏ LORDE had slayne amonge them: for the LORDE executed iudgment also vpõ their goddes. Whan they were departed from Raemses, they pytched in Succoth. And from Succoth they departed ✠ and pitched their tentes in Etham, which lyeth in the edge of the wyldernesse. ✠ From Etham they departed, & abode in the valley of Hiroth (which lyeth towarde Baal Zephon) and pytched ouer agaynst Migdol. ✠ From Hyroth they departed, & wente thorow the myddes of the see in to the wyldernesse, & wente thre dayes iourney in the wyldernesse of Etham, and pytched in it come to passe, that I shal do vnto you euen as I thought to do vnto them.

The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

¶ The deuydinge of the londe of Ca-naā with the borders therof, and who they be that deuyde it.

AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayd: Cōmaūde the children of Israel, and saye vnto thē: Whan ye come in to the londe of Canaã: the londe that falleth to youre inheritaunce, shall haue his borders in the londe of Canaan. The southquarter shall begynne at the wyldernesse of zin by Edom, so that youre Southquarter be from the edge of the Salt see, which lyeth towarde the East: & that the same quarter set a compasse from the South vp to Acrabim, & go thorow zinna: & that his outgoinge be from the South vnto Cades Barnea, and reach vnto Hazor Adar, and go thorow Azmona, & stretch out frõ Azmona vnto the ryuer of Egipte, and that the ende therof be at the greate see.

But the west quarter shall be this: namely the greate see, let that be youre border towarde the West.

B The North quarter shalbe this: Ye shall compasse from the greate see vnto mount Hor, And fro mount Hor ye shal compasse tyll a man come vnto Hemath that the outgoynge therof be the coast of zedada, & that the border of the same go out vnto Siphron, and that the goyngeout of it be at Hazor Enan. Let this be youre Northquarter.

And youre East quarter shall ye cõpasse from Hazor Enan vnto Sepham and let the coast go downe frõ Sepham and Ribla on the East syde of Ain. Then let it go downe, and reache vnto ye syde of the see of Chinnereth Eastward, and come downe by Iordane, so that ye goynge out of it be the Salt see. Let this be youre londe with the borders therof rounde aboute.

C And Moses cõmaunded the childrẽ of Israel, and sayd: This is youre lõde that ye shall deuyde out amonge you by lotte, whiche the LORDE hath commaunded to geue vnto the nyne trybes, and to the halfe trybe. * For the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben after their fathers house, and the trybe of the childrẽ of Gad accordynge their fathers house, and the halfe trybe of Manasse haue receaued their porcyõ. Thus the two trybes and the halfe trybe haue their enheritaunce already on this syde Iordane ouer agaynst Iericho Eastwarde.

[illegible]14 a And the LORDE spake vnto Moses, and sayde: * These are the names of the men, which shall deuyde the londe amonge you. Eleasar the prest, and Iosua the sonne of Nun. And the captayn of euery trybe shall ye take, to deuyde the londe.

D And these are the names of the men: Caleb the sonne of Iephune of ye trybe of Iuda. Semuel the sonne of Ammihud of the trybe of Simeon. Elidad ye sonne of Chislon of the trybe of Ben Iamin. Buki the sonne of Iagli of ye tribe of the chyldren of Dan. Hanniel the sonne of Ephod, of the trybe of the children of Manasse amonge the chyldrẽ of Ioseph. Kemuel the sonne of Siphtan, of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim. Elizaphan the sonne of Parnach, of ye trybe of the chyldren of Zabulon. Palthiel the sonne of Asan, of the trybe of ye chyldrẽ of Isachar. Ahihud the sonne of Selomi, of the trybe of the chyldren of Asser. Pedahel ye sonne of Ammihud, of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephtali. These are they whom the LORDE commaunded, that they shulde deuide ye inheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israell in the londe of Canaan.

The.xxxv. Chapter.

The porcion of the Leuites. Fredom for such as commytte the slaughter vnwares. Dyuerse slaughters.

A AND the LORDE spake vnto Moses in the felde of the Moabites by Iordane ouer agaynst Iericho, and sayde: * Cõmaunde the chyldrẽ of Josu. 21.A Israel, that they geue vnto the Leuites of the inheritaunce of their possession, cities to dwell in. The suburbes also aboute the cities shal ye geue vnto the Leuites, that they maye dwel in the cities, and in the suburbes to haue their catel, and substaunce, and all their beastes.

The suburbes which ye geue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the citie outwarde, a M. cubytes rounde aboute. Thus ye shall measure without the citie on the Eastsyde, two thousande cubytes, and on the Southsyde, two thousande cubytes: & on the Westsyde, two thousande cubytes: and on ye North syde, two thousande cubites, so that the citie be in the myddes. This shalbe their suburbes.

B * And amonge the cities which ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, ye shal geue Josu. 20.A the syxe fre cities, that he which commytteth a slaughter, maye flye thither. Besydes the same ye shall geue the yet two and fortie cities: so ye all ye cities which ye geue vnto the Leuites, be eight and fortye with their suburbes. And of the same ye shall geue the more, from them that haue muche in possession amonge the children of Israell: and the lesse fro them, that haue litle in possessiō. Euery one (acordynge to his enheritaunce that is deuyded vnto hym) shall geue of his cities vnto the Leuites.

And the LORDE talked with Moses, and sayde: * Speake to the childrē of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whā ye come ouer Iordane in to the londe of Canaā, ye shal chose out cities to be fre cities, that who so cōmytteth slaughter vnwares, may flye thither. And such fre cities shalbe among you, because of the auenger of bloude, that he which hath cōmytted slaughter, dye not, tyll he stōd in iudgement before the congregacyon. And of these cities which ye shall geue, there shalbe sixe fre cities. Thre shall ye geue on this syde Iordane, and thre in the londe of Canaan.

Deu.19.a

These are the sixe fre cities, both for the children of Israel and for the straūgers, and for such as dwell among you, that who so euer hath slayne eny soule vnwares, may flye thither.

Exo.21.b.

* He ÿ smyteth eny mā with an yrō weapon, that he dye, the same is a murthurer, and shall dye ÿ death. Yf he cast at hym a stone (wherwith eny mā maye be slayne) that he dye therof, then is he a murthurer, and shall dye the death. Yf he smyte hym with an hand [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to death. Whā he fyndeth him he shal slaye hym. Yf he thrust at hym of hate, or caste ought at hym with layenge of wayte, or smyte him of enuye with his hande, ÿ he dye, then shall he that hath slayne hym, dye the death: for he is a murthurer. The auenger of bloude shall brynge hym to death, as soone as he fyndeth hym.

* But yf he thrust hym by chaunce and not of enuye: or hurle ought at him without eny layeng of wayte, or cast at hym with a stone (wherof a man maye dye, and sawe it not) so that he dye, and is not his enemye, nether thought hym eny euill, then shall the congregacyon iudge betwene him that hath cōmytted the slaughter, and the auenger of bloud in suche cases. And the congregacyon shall delyuer the dead slayer from the hande of the auenger of bloude, & shall let hym come agayne to the fre cite, whither he was fled: and ther shall he abyde vnto the death of the hye preste, which was anoynted with holy oyle. But yf ÿ deadslayer go out ÿ borders of his fre cite, that he was fled vnto, and the auenger of bloude fynde him without ÿ borders of his fre cite, and kyll him, he shal not be gyltie of bloude. For he shulde haue bydden in his fre cite vntyll the death of the hye prest, and after the hye prestes death to come agayne vnto the londe of his enheritaunce. This shalbe a statute of the lawe vnto you amonge your posterities in all your dwellinges.

The deadslayer shalbe slayne at the mouth of witnesses. * One witnes shal not answere ouer a soule to death. And ye shall receaue none attonement ouer the soule of the deadslayer (for he is gyltie of death) but he shall dye the death. And ye shall receaue none attonemēt of him, which is fled to the fre cite, that he shulde come agayne to dwell in the londe, tyll the hye preste dye. And defyle not ye the londe wherin ye dwell. For who so is gyltie of bloude, defyleth the londe: and the londe can not be reconcyled fro the bloude that is shed therin, but onely thorow the bloude of hym that shed it. Defyle not ye the lond that ye dwell in, wherin I dwel also: For I am ÿ LORDE, whiche dwell amonge the children of Israell.

The inheritaunce of the trybe maye not be mixte nor chaunged.

AND the chefe fathers of the kynred of the chyldren of Gilead the sonne of Machir (which was ÿ sonne of Manasse of the kynred of ÿ children of Ioseph) came forth, and spake before Moses, and before ÿ captaynes amonge the chefe fathers of the children of Israell, and sayde: Syr, the LORDE hath * commaunded, that ye shulde geue the londe by lotte vnto the children of Israell to inheret. * And thou my lorde hast cōmaūded thorow the LORDE, that ÿ enheritaunce of our brother Zelaphead shuld be geuē vnto his doughters. Now yf eny men out of the trybes of Israell take them to wyues, then shal oure fathers enheritaunce be lesse: and as muche as they haue, shall come to ÿ enheritaūce of the trybe that they come vnto. Thus shall the lotte of oure enheritaunce be mynished. So whā the yeare of Iubilye commeth vnto the children of Israell, then shall their enheritaunce come to the enheritaunce of the trybe, where they are. Thus shal oure fathers enheritaunce be mynished, as muche as they haue.

C Moses charged the chyldren of Israell (acordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE) and sayde: The trybe of the childre of Ioseph hath sayd right. This is it that the LORDE commaundeth the doughters of Zelaphead, & sayeth: Let them mary as they lyke best, onely that they mary in the kynred of the trybe of their father, that the enheritaunce of the childre of Israel fall not from one trybe to another. For euery one amonge the children of Israel shal cleue to the enheritaunce of the trybe of his father: & euery doughter that possesseth eny enheritaunce amonge the trybes of Israell, shalbe maried vnto one of the kynred of the trybe of hir father: that euery one amonge the childre of Israell maye enioye his fathers enheritaunce, and that the enheritaunce fall not from one trybe to another: but that euery one maye cleue to his owne enheritaūce amonge the trybes of y chyldre of Israel.

As the LORDE commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the doughters of Zelaphead, Mahela, Thirza, Hogla, Milca and Noa. And were maried vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynred of the children of Manasse the sonne of Ioseph. So their enheritaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes and lawes, which the LORDE commaunded by Moses vnto the children of Israell, in the felde of the Moabites by Iordane ouer agaynst Iericho.

C The ende of the fourth boke of Moses called Numerus.

C The fyfte boke of Moses, called Deuteronomion.

C Moses putteth y children of Israell in remembraunce of the great benefites that they haue receaued of God, and rebuketh them for their vnthankfulnesse & mysbeleue.

The fyrst Chapter.

These are y wordes that Moses spake vnto all Israel on y other syde Iordane in the wyldernesse, in y playne felde towarde the reed see, betwene Pharan, Thophel, Laban, Hazeroth, and Disahab, eleuen dayes iourney frō Horeb, by the way of mount Seir vnto Cades Bernea. And it fortuned the fyrst daye of the eleuenth moneth in the fortieth yeare, that Moses spake vnto the children of Israel acordynge vnto all as the LORDE commaunded hym, after he had smytten Sihon the kynge of the Amorites which dwelt at Hesbon, and Og the kynge of Basan that dwelt at Astaroth, and at Edrei. Nu.21.d

On the other syde Iordane in y londe of the Moabites began Moses to declare this lawe, and sayde: The LORDE oure God spake vnto vs vpon mount Horeb, and sayde: Ye haue bene lōge ynough vpon this mountayne, turne you and departed hence, that ye maye come to the mountaynes of the Amorites, & to al their neghbours in y felde, vpō mountaynes, & in the valleyes towarde the South, and towarde the see syde, of the londe of Canaan, & to mount Libanus, vnto y great water Euphrates. Beholde, I haue delyuered you y londe, go in & take it in possession, which y LORDE sware vnto youre fathers Abraham Isaac, Nu.10.b

Then sayde I vnto you at the same you? Prouyde here men of wysdome &

Then answered ye me: and sayde: It them ouer yo[illegible] heades, ouer thousandes, ouer h[illegible], ouer fyftie & ouer

The departed we from Horeb, and walked thorow the whole wyldernesse (which is great and terrible as ye haue sene) by the waye to the mountaynes of the Amorites, as the LORDE oure God commaunded vs, and came vnto Cades Bernea. Then sayd I vnto you: Ye are come to the mountaynes of the Amorites, which the LORDE oure God shall as the LORDE God of thy fathers

Then came ye al vnto me, and sayd D * Let vs sende men before vs, to spye Nu.13.a vs out the londe, & to brynge vs worde agayne, by what waye we shall go vp, and to what cities we shall come. That pleased me well, & I toke twolue mē forth amonge you, of euery trybe one. Which whā they were departed, & wēte vp the hye countre, & came to ye ryuer Escoll, they spyed it out, * & toke of ye frute of the londe with thē, & brought it down vnto vs, and brought vs worde agayne and sayde: It is a good londe, that the LORDE oure God hath geuen vs.
But ye wolde not go vp, and were disobediēt vnto the mouth of the LORDE youre God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: Because the LORDE hateth vs, therfore hath he brought vs out of the lond of Egipte, to delyuer vs in to the hondes of the Amorites, to destroye vs. Whither shall we go vp?
Oure brethren haue discoraged oure hertes: and sayde: * The people is greater and of hyer stature then we, the cities are great, and walled euen vp to heauē.
Moreouer we haue sene there the children of Enakim.
But I sayde vnto you: Feare not, and be not afrayed of them, for ye LORDE youre God goeth before you, and shall fighte for you, lyke as he dealte with you in Egipte before youre eyes, and in the wyldernesse: wher thou sawest, that the LORDE thy God bare the (euē as a man beareth his owne sonne) thorow out all the waye that ye haue walked, tyl ye came to his place. * And yet for all this ye haue not beleued vnto the LORDE youre God, which wente before you, to searche you out a place, where ye shulde pitch youre tentes: by night in the fyre (to shew you the waye, wherin ye shulde go) and on the daye tyme in the cloude.
When the LORDE herde the voyce of youre wordes, he was wroth, & sware and sayde: * There shall none of this euell generacyon se ye good londe which I sware to geue vnto youre fathers, excepte Caleb the sonne of Iephune, he shall se it. & And vnto hym wyll I geue the londe that he hath trodden vpon, and to his children, because he hath perfectly folowed the LORDE.
* The LORDE was angrie with me also for youre sakes, & sayde: Thou also shalt not go in thither. But Iosue the sonne of Nun, which stōdeth before the, he shall go in thither: Corage hym, for he shall deuyde the enheritaunce out vnto Israell. * And youre childre, of whome ye sayde they shulde be a pray, and your sonnes which this day vnderstonde nether good nor bad, they shall go in thither, vnto them wyll I geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne you, an take your iourney to the wyldernesse, euē the waye to ye reed see.

* Then answered ye, and sayde vnto me: We haue synned agaynste the LORDE, we wyll go vp, and fighte, acordynge to all that the LORDE hath commaunded vs. Now whã ye had prepared youre selues euery one in his harnesse, and were at the poynte to go vp to the moũtaynes, the LORDE sayd vnto me: Speake vnto the, ÿ they go not vp, & that they fighte not (for I am not amonge you) ÿ ye be not smytten before youre enemies. Whã I tolde you this, ye wold not hear, & were disobedient vnto ÿ wordes of the LORDE, and were presumptuous, & wente vp to the moũtaynes. Then the Amorites that dwelt vpon the moũtaynes, came agaynst you & chaced you, as bees do, & smote you at Seir, euen vnto Horma. Now whã ye came agayne, and wepte before the LORDE, he wolde not heare youre voyce and enclyned not his eares vnto you. * So ye abode in Cades a lõge season.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ They are commaunded not to fighte agaynste Seir, the Moabites and Ammonites. But Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, is delyuered vnto them.

B Then turned we vs, and toke oure iourney to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the reed see (as the LORDE sayd vnto me) and cõpassed mount Seir a lõge season. And ÿ LORDE sayde vnto me: Ye haue compassed this mountayne nowe longe ynough, turne you Northwarde, and commaunde the people, and saye: Ye shal go thorow the coastes of youre brethren the childrẽ of Esau, which dwell at Seir: and they shall be afrayed of you. But take diligẽte hede to youre selues, ÿ ye prouoke them not: for I wyll not geue you one fote bredeth of their londe. * For mount Seir haue I geuen to the children of Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for money, that ye maye eate. And water shall ye bye of them for money, that ye maye drynke. For ÿ LORDE thy God hath blessed the in all the worckes of thy hondes. He hath consydered thy iourneys thorow this great wyldernesse: and this fortye yeares hath the LORDE thy God bene with the, so that thou hast wanted nothinge.

C Now whã we were departed from oure brethren the children of Esau, that dwelt vpon mount Seir, by the waye of the felde frõ Elath & Ezeon Gaber we turned vs, and wente by the waye of the wyldernesse of the Moabites. Then sayde the LORDE vnto me: * Thou shalt not vexe the Moabites, nor prouoke them vnto battayll, for I wyll not geue the of their londe to possesse. For Ar haue I geuen vnto the chyldren of Lot in possession. * The Emims dwelt there before tyme, which were a greate strong people, and hye of stature, as the Enakims: and were taken for giauntes, lyke as the Enakims. And the Moabites called them Emims. * The Horites also dwelt in Seir afore tyme, and the children of Esau droue them out, & destroyed them before them, and dwelt in their steade, lyke as Israel dyd in the londe of his possession that the LORDE gaue them.

Get you vp now, and go ouer the ryuer Sared. And we wente ouer. The tyme that we were goinge from Cades Barnea, tyll we came ouer ÿ ryuer Sared, was eight and thirtie yeares, tyll al the men of warre were wasted out of the hoost, as the LORDE sware vnto them. The hande of the LORDE also was agaynste them, to destroye thẽ out of the hoost, tyl they were cõsumed.

And whã all the men of warre were cõsumed, so that they were dead amõge the people, the LORDE spake vnto me, and sayde: This daye shalt thou go thorow the coast of the Moabites by Ar, & shalt come nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, * whome thou shalt not vexe nor prouoke. For I wyll not geue the of the londe of the children of Ammon to possesse, for I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Lot in possession. It was taken for a londe of giauntes also, & giauntes dwelt therin afore tyme. And the Ammonites called thẽ Samsumims, whiche was a people that was greate, many, and of hye stature, as the Enakims.

D And these the LORDE destroyed before thẽ, & let thẽ possesse the same, so ÿ they dwelt in their steade. * Lyke as he dyd with the chyldrẽ of Esau, which dwelt vpõ mount Seir, whã he destroyed the Horites before them: & let thẽ possesse the same, so that they haue dwelt in their steade vnto this daye. And the Caphthorims came out of Caphthor, & destroyed the Auims (that dwelt at Hazarim euen vnto Gaza) and there dwelt they in their steade.

Get you vp now, and departe, and

* Then sent I messaungers from the wyldernesse of the East vnto Sihon the kynge at Hesbō & with peaseable wordes, and caused to say vnto hym: I wyl go but thorow thy londe, I wyl go a lōge by the hye way, I wyl nether turne to the righte honde nor to ỳ lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money, that I maye eate: and water shalt thou sell me for money, that I maye drynke. Only let me go thorow by fote, * as the chyldren of Esau (which dwell at Seir) dyd vnto me: and the Moabites that dwell at Ar: vntyll I be come ouer Iordane in to the londe which the LORDE oure God shall geue vnto vs.

Nu.20.f

But Sihon the kynge at Hesbon wold not let vs go by him: for ỳ LORDE thy God hardened his mynde, and made his hart tough that he myght delyuer him in to thy hādes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the LORDE sayde vnto me: Beholde, I haue begonne to delyuer Sihon with his londe before the: go to and conquere, and possesse his londe. * And Sihon came out with all his people to fight agaynst vs at Iahza. But ỳ LORDE oure God delyuered hym in to our hondes, so that we smote him with his children and all his people.

Deu.29.b

Then toke we all his cities at the same tyme, and destroyed vtterly all the cities, men, wemen, and children, and let none remayne: saue the catell, which we caught to oure selues, and the spoyle of the cities that we wanne from Aroer, which lyeth vpō the ryuer syde of Arnō, and from the citie on ỳ ryuer vnto Gilead. There was no citie that coulde defende it selfe from vs: the LORDE oure God delyuered vs them all before vs.

Nu.21.d
* But vnto the londe of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor to all that was on the ryuer Iabok, nor to the cities vpō the mountaynes, nor vnto what soeuer the LORDE our God forbad vs.

The.iii.Chapter.

Og the kynge of Basan is slayne, & londe taken in, and destroyed. Ruben, Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse haue their enheritaūce on this syde Iordane. Iosua is ordeyned in Moses steade.

And we turned vs, and went vp the waye vnto Basan. * And Og the kynge of Basan came out w all his people to fighte agaynste vs at Edrei. But the LORDE sayde vnto me: Be not afrayed of hym, for I haue delyuered hym and all his people with his londe in to thy hāde, and thou shalt do with hym, * as thou dyddest with Sihon kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. Thus the LORDE oure God delyuered Og the kynge of Basan in to oure hondes also with all his people: so ỳ we smote hym, tyll there was nothinge left ouer vnto hym.

Then wanne we at the same tyme all his cities, and there was not one citie that we toke not from hym, euen threscore cities, the whole region of Argob in the kyngdome of Og at Basan. All these cities were stronge with hye walles, gates, & barres, besyde many other vnwalled townes.

And we vtterly destroyed them, as we dyd with Sihon the kynge at Hesbon. * All the cities destroyed we vtterly, and the men, wemen & children. But all the catell & spoyle of ỳ cities caught we for oure selues.

Thus toke we at the same tyme the londe out of the honde of ỳ two kynges of the Amorites beyond Iordane, fro the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which the Sidons cal Sirion, but the Amorites call it Senir) all the cities vpon the playne, and all Gilead, and all Basan vnto Salcha and Edrei, the cities of the kyngdome of Og at Basan. For onely Og the kynge of Basan remayned ouer of the giauntes. Beholde, his yron bed is here at Rabath amonge the children of Ammon, nyne cubites longe, and foure cubites brode, after the cubite of a man.

This londe cōquered we at ỳ same tyme, from Aroer that lyeth on ỳ ryuer of Arnon. * And vnto the Rubenites & Gaddites I gaue halfe mount Gilead with the cities therof: but the remnaunt of Gilead, and al Basan the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse. The whole region of Argob al Basan was called ŷ gyauntes londe.

C Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gessuri and Maachati, and Basan cal led he Hauoth Jair after his owne name, vnto this daye. But vnto Machir I gaue Gilead. And vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites I gaue one parte of Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arno (at the myd des of the ryuer is the border) and vnto the ryuer Jabok, which is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: the felde also, & Jordane (which is the coast) from Cine-reth vnto the see in the felde, namely, the Salt see vnder mount Pisga, east-warde.
* And I commaunded you at the same tyme, and sayd: The LORDE youre God hath geuen you this londe to take possession of it. Go youre waye forth therfore harnessed before youre bre-thre the chyldre of Israel, all ye that be mete for the warre. As for youre wyues, D and chyldren, and catell (for I knowe ŷ ye haue much catel) let them remayne in youre cyties, which I haue geuen you, vntyll the LORDE youre God haue brought youre brethre to rest also as wel as you, that they also maye take possession of the londe, which the LORD youre God shall geue them beyonde Jordane: and then shall ye turne agayne to youre owne possession, which I haue geuen you.
* And I warned Josua at ŷ same tyme, and sayd: Thyne eyes haue sene al that the LORD youre God hath done vnto these two kynges: euen so shall the LORDE do also vnto all the kyng-domes whether thou goest. Feare them not, for the LORDE youre God shall fyght with you.
And I besoughte the LORDE at the same tyme, and sayd: O LORDE LORDE, thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse & thy myghty hande. For where is there a God in heauen and earth, that can do after thy workes and after thy power? O let me me go and se that good londe beyonde Jordane, that goodly hye countre, and Libanus.
C * But the LORDE was angrye with me for youre sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayd vnto me: Be content, speake nomore to me of this matter. * Get the vp to the toppe of mount Pisga, & lyfte vp thyne eyes towarde the west, and to-warde the north, and towarde the south, and towarde the east: and beholde it wt thyne eyes, for ŷ shalt not go ouer this Jordane. And geue Josua his charge, & corage hym, and bolde hym, for he shall go ouer Jordane before the people, and

The .x. Chapter.

The procedeth forth in tellynge them their wyckednes, & how they departed from Beroth.

AT the same tyme sayde the LORDE vnto me: * Hew ŷ two tables of stone like vnto the first, and come vp vnto me in to the mount, and make the an Arke of wood, and in the tables I wyll wryte the wordes, ŷ were in the first, * which thou brakest, and thou shalt laye thē in the arke. So I made an Arke of Fyrre tre, & hewed two tables of stone (like as ŷ first were) & wente vp into the mount, and ŷ two tables were in my hande.

Then wrote he in ŷ tables * (accordynge as the first wrytinge was) the ten verses, which the LORDE spake vnto you out of the fyre vpon the mountayne, at the tyme of the gatherynge together. And the LORDE gaue thē vnto me. And I turned me, & wente downe from the mount, and layed the tables in ŷ * Arke which I had made, that they myghte be there, as the LORDE cōmaunded me.

* And the chyldren of Israel departed from Beroth & Bene Iaekan vnto Moses (there * dyed Aaron, and there was he buryed: and Eleasar his sonne became preest in his steade.) From thēce they departed to Gadgad. From Gadgad to Iethbath, a londe of ryuers of water. * At the same season the LORDE separated out the trybe of Leui, to beare the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt, and to stonde before the LORDE, to mynister vnto hym, & to prayse his name vnto this daye. * Therfore shall the Leuites haue no porcyon nor enheritaunce with their brethren, for ŷ LORDE is their enheritaunce, as the LORDE thy God hath promysed them.

*But I taried vpon the mount (lyke as afore) euē fortye dayes & fortye nightes, and the LORDE herde me at that tyme also, and wolde not destroye the. But he sayde vnto me: Vp, and get the forth, that thou mayest go before ẏ people, that they may come in, and cōquere the londe, which I sware vnto theyr fathers to geue them.

C *Now Israel, what requyreth the LORDE thy God of ẏ, but that thou feare the LORDE thy God, and that thou walke in all his wayes, & loue him and serue the LORDE thy God with all thy hart, and with all thy soule: and that thou kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE, & his ordinaunces, which I commaunde the this daye, that thou mayest prospere? Beholde, * the heauē, and the heauen of all heauens and the earth, and al that is therin, is the LORDE thy God. * Yet hath he hadde a pleasure vnto thy fathers, to loue thē: & hath chosen theyr sede after them, namely you, aboue all nacyons, as it is come to passe this daye.

D *Circumcise therfore the foreskynne of youre hart, and be nomore styffnecked. For the LORDE youre God is God of all Goddes, and LORDE ouer all Lordes, a great God, myghtye & terryble, which regardeth no persone, & taketh no gyftes, and doth ryghte vnto the fatherlesse and wedowe, and loueth the straunger, to geue hym fode, and rayment. * Therfore shall ye loue a straunger, for ye youre selues also were straungers in the londe of Egipte.

* Thou shalt feare the LORDE thy God, hym onely shalt thou serue, vnto hym shalt thou cleue: * and sweare by his name. He is thy prayse & thy God, which hath done for ẏ these great & terryble thynges, ẏ thyne eyes haue sene. * Thy fathers wēte downe into Egipte with seuētye soules, but now hath ẏ LORDE thy God made ẏ * as the starres of heauen in multitude.

Consyderynge the multitude of the benefites of God ẏ they hadde receaued and the pleasure that they shulde receaue, he exorteth them agayne to kepe Gods commaundementes.

Therfore shalt thou loue ẏ LORDE thy God, and kepe his cōmaundementes, his ordinaunces, his lawes, & his preceptes all thy lyfe longe. And vnderstonde this daye, that which youre chyldren knowe not: Which haue not sene the nurtoure of the LORDE youre God, & his greatnesse, and his myghtye hande, and his stretchedout arme, and his tokens and actes which he dyd amonge the Egipcians, vnto Pharao the kynge of Egipte and to all his londe, and what he dyd to the power of the Egipcians, and vnto theyr horses and charettes, * when he brought ẏ waters of the reed see vpon them: as they folowed after you, & how the LORDE hath brought them to naught vnto this daye: and what he dyd vnto you in ẏ wyldernesse, vntyll ye came vnto this place: * What he dyd vnto Dathan and Abiram the chyldren of Eliab the sonne of Ruben, how the earth opened hir mouth and swalowed them with theyr housholdes, and tentes, and all theyr good that they had in ẏ myddes amonge all Israel. — Exo.14.f — Nu.16.e and 26.b

For youre eyes haue sene the greate workes of ẏ LORDE, which he hath done. Therfore shall ye kepe all the commaundementes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye may be stronge to come in, and to conquere the londe, whether ye go to possesse it, * and ẏ ye maye lyue longe in the londe, which the LORDE sware vnto youre fathers, to geue vnto them and to theyr sede, euen a londe that floweth with mylke & hony. * For the londe whyther thou commest in, to possesse it, is not as the londe of Egipte, whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy sede, and wateredst it at thy fote as a garden of herbes: but it hath hilles and valleys, which drynke water of the rayne of heauen, a londe that the LORDE thy God careth for. And the eyes of the LORDE thy God are allwayes therin from the begynnynge of ẏ yeare vnto the ende. — B. — Exo.13.b — Deu.8.b

Yf ye shall herken therfore vnto my commaundementes, which I cōmaunde you this daye, that ye loue the LORDE youre God, and serue hym with al youre hart and with all youre soule * then wyll I geue rayne vnto youre londe in due season, early and late, that ẏ mayest gather in thy corne, thy wyne and thyne oyle: and I wyll geue grasse vpon thy felde for thy catell, that ye may eate and be fylled. — Deu.28.b Joel.2.e Amos.4.b

The.xii. Chapter.

He describeth vnto them agayne the sta tutes and ordinaunces of the LORDE,

These are the ordinaunces and lawes whiche ye shall kepe, that ye do therafter in the lōde, which ÿ LOR DE God of thy fathers hath geuen the to possesse, as longe as ye lyue vpō earth. * Destroye al the pla ces, wherin the Heythen (whom ye shall cōquerre) haue serued their goddes, whe ther it be vpon hye mountaynes, vpon hilles, or amonge grene trees. And ouerthrowe their altares, and breake downe their pilers, & burne their groues with fyre, and hewe downe ÿ ymages of their goddes, and brynge the names of them to naughte, out of the same place. Ye shall not do so vnto the LORDE youre God: but the place, * which ÿ LORDE youre God shall chose out of all youre trybes (that he maye let his name dwell there) shal ye seke, and come thither, & t thither shall ye brynge youre burnt sacrifices, and your other offerynges, and youre tithes, and the Heueofferynges of youre handes, and your vowes, & your frewyll offerynges, and the firstborne of youre oxen and shepe: and there shall ye eate before the LORDE youre God, * and reioyse ouer all that ye, and your houses haue geuen with youre handes, because the LORDE thy God hath blessed the. * Ye shall do none of ÿ thin ges, that we do here this day, euery mā what semeth hym goode in his owne eyes. For ye are not yet come to rest, nor to the enheritaunce which the LORDE thy God shall geue the.
But ye shall go ouer Jordane, and dwell in the londe that the LORDE youre God shall deuyde out vnto you, and he shall geue you rest from all your enemies rounde aboute, & ye shall dwell safe. Now whan the LORDE thy God hath chosen a place, to make his name dwell there, ye shall brynge thither all ÿ

I haue commaunded you, namely, youre burntsacrifices, youre other offrynges, youre tythes, ẏ Heueofferynges of youre handes, and all youre fre vowes, which ye shall vowe vnto the LORDE: and there shall ye eate, and reioyse before the LORDE youre God, ye, and youre sonnes, and youre doughters, and your seruauntes, and youre maydes, and ẏ Leuites that are within youre gates, *for they haue no porcyon nor inheritaunce with you. 10.b

Take hede vnto thy selfe, that thou offer not thy burntofferynges in what so euer place thou seyst: but in the place which the LORDE shall haue chosen in one of thy trybes, there shalt thou offer thy burntofferynges and do all that I commaunde the. Notwithstondinge thou mayest kyll and eate flesh within all thy gates, after all the desyre of thy soule, acordynge to the blessynge of the LORDE thy God, which he hath geuen the: *both the cleane, and vncleane maye eate it, as of ẏ roo and harte, onely the bloude shalt ẏ not eate, but poure it out as water vpon the earth.

C *But within thy gates mayest ẏ not eate of ẏ tythes of thy corne, of thy wyne, & of thy oyle, nor of ẏ firstborne of thyne oxe, and of thy shepe, or of eny of thy vowes which thou hast vowed, or of thy frewyll offerynges, or Heueofferynges of thy handes: but before the LORDE thy God shalt thou eate the, in the place which the LORDE thy God choseth, thou, & thy sonne, & thy doughter, thy seruaunt, thy mayde, and ẏ Leuite that is within thy gates, and thou shalt reioyse before the LORDE thy God, ouer all ẏ thou puttest thyne hande vnto. *And beware that thou forsake not the Leuyte, as longe as thou lyuest vpon the earth.

But whan ẏ LORDE thy God shal enlarge the borders of thy londe (as he hath promysed the) and thou sayest: I wyll eate flesh (for so much as thy soule longeth to eate flesh) then eate flesh acordynge to all the desyre of thy soule. But yf the place that the LORDE thy God hath chosen (to let his name be there) be farre from the, then kyll of thy oxen and of thy shepe, which the LORDE hath geuen the, as he hath commaunded the, & eate it within thy gates acordynge to all the desyre of thy soule. *Euen as a roo or hart is eaten, mayest thou eate it: both the cleane and vncleane maye eate it indyfferently. *Onely beware, that thou eate not the bloude: for the bloude is the lyfe. Therfore shalt thou not eate the lyfe with the flesh, but shalt poure it oute like water vpō the earth, that thou mayest prospere, and thy chyldren after the, whan thou hast done that which is ryghte in the syghte of the LORDE. 1.Re.14.c D *But whan thou halowest oughte that is thyne, or makest a vowe, thou shalt take it, and brynge it vnto ẏ place, that the LORDE hath chosen, and do thy burntofferynges with the flesh and bloude vpon the altare of the LORDE thy God. The bloude of thyne offerings shalt thou poure vpon the altare of the LORDE thy God, and eate the flesh. Take hede, and heare all these wordes, which I commaunde the, that it maye go well with the, and thy chyldren after the for euer, whan thou hast done that which is ryghte and acceptable in the syghte of the LORDE thy God. Deu.14.c and.15.c

*When the LORDE thy God hath roted out the Heythen before the, whither thou commest in to conquere the, and whan thou hast conquered them, & dwellest in their londe: beware then ẏ thou fall not in the snare after thē, whā they are destroyed before the, and that thou axe not after their goddes, & saye: Like as these nacyōs haue serued their goddes, so wyl I do also. *Thou shalt not do so vnto the LORDE thy God. For all that is abhomynacion vnto the LORDE, and that he hateth, the same haue they done vnto their goddes. For they haue burnt euen their sonnes and their doughters with fyre vnto theyr goddes. Deu.8.a *For the LORDE youre God proueth you, to wete whether ye loue hym with all youre harte, and with al youre soule. For ye shall walke after ye LORDE youre God, and feare hym, & kepe his commaundementes, and herken vnto his voyce, & serue him, and cleue vnto hym.

Iere.28.c Deu.19.d *As for that prophet or dreamer, he shall dye: because he hath spokē to turne you awaye frō ye LORDE youre God (which brought you out of the lōde of Egipte, and delyuered you from the house of bondage) to thruste the out of the way, which the LORDE thy God commaunded the to walke in, and so shalt thou put awaye the euell from the.

Deu.17.b *Thyne eye also shall not pitie him, & thou shalt haue no cōpassion vpon hym, nor kepe hym secrete, but shalte cause hym to be slayne: thyne hande shalbe fyrst vpō him to cause hym to be slayne, and then the handes of all the people. He shalbe stoned to death, because he wente aboute to thrust the awaye from the LORDE thy God, which brought the out of the londe of Egipte from the house of bondage:

Deu.19.d *that all Israel maye heare and feare hym, and do nomore suche euell amonge you.

Yf thou hearest in eny cyte which ye LORDE thy God hath geuen the to dwell in, that it is sayde: There are certayne men, the chyldren of Belial, gone out from amonge you, and haue deceaued the inhabitours of their cyte, & sayde: let vs go, & serue other goddes, whome ye knowe not.

Deu.17.b *Then shalt thou seke, make search, and enquere diligently.

C And yf it be founde of a trueth, that it is so in dede, that suche abhominaciō is wrought amōge you, then shalt thou smyte the indwellers of the same cite & their catel, with the edge of the swearde, and damne the cite with all that is therin: & all the spoyle therof shalt thou gather together in the myddes of the strete of it, and burne with fyre, both the cite and all the spoyle therof together vnto the LORDE thy God, that it maye lye vpon a heape for euer, and neuer be buylded eny more. *And let nothing of the damned thinge cleue vnto thy hande, that the LORDE maye be turned frō the indignacyon of his wrath, & graūte the mercy, and haue compassion on the, and multiplie ye (as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers) because thou hast herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, to kepe all his cōmaundementes, which I commaunde the this daye, so that thou doest the thinge which is right in the sighte of the LORDE thy God.

The.xiiii.Chapter.

For so muche as they are a cleane people of God, they are cōmaunded to auoyde the costumes of the Heythen as in shauynge their heades, in cuttyng certayne membres.

YE are the chyldrē of ye LORDE youre God. *Cut not your selues therfore, & make you no baldnesse betwene youre eyes ouer eny deade. *For thou art an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God, & And the LORDE hath chosen the to be his owne peculier people, from amonge all the nacyons that are vpon the earth.

*Thou shalt eate no abhominaciō. These are ye beastes which ye shall eate: oxe, shepe, goates, hert, roo, bugle, wylde goate, vnicorne, origen, and camelion. And euery beast that deuydeth his clawe and cheweth cud, shall ye eate. Neuertheles these shall ye not eate of them that cheue cud, & deuyde not ye hofe in to two clawes: The camell, the hayre, & the conye, for though they chewe cud, yet deuyde they not ye hoffe, therfore shall they be vnclean vnto you. The swyn, though he deuyde the hoffe, yet cheweth he not cud, he shalbe vncleane vnto you: ye shal not eate of the flesh of them, and their dead carcases shall ye not touche.

*This is it that ye shall eate of all that is in the waters: All that hath fynnes and scales, shall ye eate. But what so euer hath no finnes nor scales, ye shal not eate, for it is vncleane vnto you.

Eate of all cleane foules. But these are they, wherof ye shall not eate: The aegle, the goshauke, the cormorante, the freion, the vulture, ye kyte with his kynde, and all rauens in their kynde, ye estriche, the night crowe, the cuckow, ye sparowhauke hauke with his kynde, the litle oule, the greate oule, the backe, the byttoure, the swanne, ye pellicane, the gyre, the storke, the heron, the haye with his kynde, the lapwynge, the swalowe: And al foules that crepe, shalbe vncleane vnto you, & ye shall not eate them, but euery cleane byrde shall ye eate.

Ye shal eate of nothinge that dyeth alone: thou mayst geue it vnto ye stranger within thy gates, that he eate it, or sell it to a straunger. For thou art an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God.
* Thou shalt not seeth a kydde whyle it yet sucketh his mother.

Thou shalt seperate out the tythe of all the encrease of thy sede, that commeth out of thy felde euery yeare, & shalt eate it before ye LORDE thy God (* in the place which he choseth, yt his name maye dwell there) namely of the tythes of thy corne, of thy wyne, of thy oyle, & the firstborne of thyne oxen, and of thy shepe, yt thou mayeste learne to feare ye LORDE thy God all thy lyfe longe.

B * But yf the waye be to muche for the, and the place, which the LORDE thy God hath chosen to sette his name there, be to farre frõ the: and thou canst not cary it, that the LORDE thy God hath blessed the with all: Then geue it for money, and take the money in thyne hande, and go vnto the place which the LORDE thy God hath chosen, and geue the money for all that thy soule de-syreth, whether it be oxen, shepe, wyne, stronge drynke, or for what soeuer thy soule desyreth, and eate there before the LORDE thy God, and be mery, thou and thyne housholde, & the Leuite that is within thy gates. Thou shalt not forsake hym, * for he hath no porcyon nor inheritaunce with the.

* In the thirde yeare shalt yu brynge forth all the tythes of thyne encrease of the same yeare, and shalt laye it within thy gates. Then shall the Leuite (which hath no porcyon nor enheritaunce with the) and the straunger, and the fatherles-lesse, and the wyddowe, which are within thy gates, come, & eate, and fyll theselues, that the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thy hãdes which thou doest.

O Bserue the moneth Abib, y thou offre * Easter vnto the LORDE thy God: for in the moneth Abib the LORDE thy God brought the out of Egipte by nyghte. And for the Easter vnto the Lorde thy God, thou shalt offre oxen and shepe, in the * place

Deu.12.a.
which the Lorde shal chose, that his name maye dwell there. Thou shalt eate no leuended bread in that feast. Seuen dayes shalte thou eate the vnleuended bread of thy tribulacyon: For with sorowfull hast camest thou out of y londe of Egipte, that thou mayest remembre the daye of thy departynge out of the londe of Egipte, all thy lyfe longe. In seuen dayes shall there no leuended bread be sene within all thy coastes: and of the fleshe that is offred the fyrst daye at euen, there shall nothynge be lefte ouer nyght vntyll the mornynge.

Thou mayest not offre Easter within eny of thy gates, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the: but * in the place whiche the LORDE thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there, there shalt thou offre this Easter, at euen whan the Sonne is gone downe, euen in the same season that thou camest out of Egipte: and thou shalt dyghte it, and eat it in the place that the LORDE thy God hath chosen, and then turne the on the morowe, and go home in to thy tentes. Sixe dayes shalt thou eat vnleuended bread, and on y seuenth daye is the gatherynge together of the LORDE thy God. Thou shalte do no worke therin.

* Seuen wekes shalt thou nombre vnto the, and begynne to nombre whan the sicle begynneth in the corne, & thou shalte kepe the * feast of wekes vnto the LORDE thy God, that thou geue a frewyloffervnge of thyne honde, acordynge as the LORDE thy God hath blessed the, and shalte reioyse before the Lorde thy God, thou and thy sonne, thy doughter, thy seruaunt, thy mayde, and the Leuite that is within thy gates, the straunger, the fatherlesse, & the wedowe that are amonge you, in the place which the LORDE thy God hath chosen, that his name maye dwell there. And remembre, that thou wast a seruaunte in Egipte, so that thou kepe and do these ordynaunces.

The feast of Tabernacles shalte thou kepe seuen dayes, whan thou hast gathered in the frutes of thy barne and of thy wynepresse, & thou shalte reioyse in thy feast, thou & thy sonne, thy doughter, thy seruaunt, thy mayde, the Leuite, the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe that are within thy gates. * Seuen dayes shalte thou kepe the feast vnto the LORDE thy God, in the place that he hath chosen. For the LORDE thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes and in all the workes of thyne handes. Therfore shalte thou be glad.

* Thre tymes in the yeare shall all thy males appeare before the LORDE thy God (in y place that he shall chose) namely, in the feast of vnleuended bread, in the feaste of wekes, and in the feaste of Tabernacles. He shall not appeare emptie before the LORDE, but euery one after the gyfte of his hande, acordynge to the blessynge that the LORDE thy God hath geuen the.

The xvij. Chapter.

¶ Certayne statutes. The office of kynges and iudges.

B IUdges & officers shalt thou ordeyne within al thy gates which the LORDE thy God geueth the amonge thy trybes, that they maye iudge y people in righteous iudgment. * Thou shalt not wreste the lawe. Thou shalt knowe no personne also, nor take gyftes. For y giftes blynde the eyes of the wyse, and peruerte y righteous causes. Loke what righte is, that shalt thou folowe, that thou mayest lyue and possesse the londe, which the LORDE thy God shall geue the.

Thou shalt plante no groue (of what soeuer trees it be) nye vnto the altare of the LORDE thy God, which thou makest the. * Thou shalt set the vp no piler, which the LORDE thy God hateth. Thou shalt offre vnto the LORDE thy God no oxe, or shepe, that hath a blemyshe or eny euell fauourednes on it: for that is abhominacion vnto y LORDE thy God.

C * Yf there be founde amonge you (within eny of the gates which the LORDE thy God shall geue the) a man or woman, that worketh wickednesse in the sighte of the LORDE thy God so that he transgresseth his couenaunte and goeth and serueth other goddes, & worshippeth them, whether it be Sonne, or Moone, or eny of the hoost of heauen, which I haue not commaunded, and it is tolde the, & thou hearest of it: * Then shalt thou make diligent search therfore. And yf y thou findest y it is so of a suerte, that soch abhominacion is done in Israel, then shalt thou brynge forth the same man or the same woman, which haue done soch euell, vnto thy gates, & shalt stone them to death. * At y mouth of two or thre witnesses shall he dye, y is worthy of death: At y mouth of one witnesse shal he not dye. * The handes of the witnesses shalbe the first to kyll him, & then the handes of all the people, that thou put awaye y euell from the.

D Yf a matter be to harde for the in iudgment betwixte bloude and bloude, betwixte plee and plee, betwixte stroke and stroke, and yf there be matters of stryfe within thy gates: then shalt thou ryse, and go vp vnto the place that the LORDE thy God hath chosen, & shalt come to the prestes the Leuites, and to the iudge which shalbe at that tyme, & shalt axe. * They shall shewe the how to iudge, and thou shalt do therafter, as they saye vnto the, in the place which the LORDE hath chosen: and thou shalt take hede that thou do acordynge vnto all that they teach the. Acordynge to the lawe that they teache the, and after the iudgment that they tell the, shalt thou do, so that thou turne not asyde from the same, nether to the righte hande ner to the lefte. Deut.21.f Eccl.45.d Eze.44.d Deut.5.g

And yf eny man wolde be presumptuous, so that he harkeneth not vnto the prest (which standeth to do seruice vnto the LORDE thy God) or to y iudge, the same shall dye, and thou shalt put awaye the euell from Israel, that all the people may heare, & feare, and be no more presumptuous.

When thou art come in to the londe which the the LORDE thy God shall geue the, and takest it in possession, and dwellest therin, & shalt saye: I wyll sett a kynge ouer me, as all the nacions haue aboute me: then shalt thou set him to be kynge ouer the, whom the LORDE thy God shall chose. 1.Re.8.a

D One of thy brethren shalt thou make to be kynge ouer the. Thou mayest not sette a straunger ouer the, which is not thy brother. Onely * let him not haue many horses, that he bringe not the peple agayne in to Egipte thorow y multitude of horses, for as moch as the LORDE hath sayde vnto you, y ye shall from hence forth come nomore agayne this waye. * He shal not haue many wyues also, that his hert be not turned awaye, & he shal gather him no syluer & golde to moch. 3.Re.4.d 2.par.9.d 3.Re.11.a Ec.47.d

And whan he is set vpon the seate of his kyngdome, he shal take of the prestes the Leuites this seconde lawe, and wryte it before him in a boke, and that shall be with him. * And he shall rede therin all the dayes of his life, that he maye lerne to feare the LORDE his God, to kepe all the wordes of this lawe and all these ordinaunces, y he do therafter. Josu.1.b

he shall not lifte vp his hart aboue his brethren, and shall not turne asyde from the commaundement, nether to the righte honde nor to the lefte, that he maye pro= longe his dayes in his kyngdome, he and his chyldren in Israel.

The xviii. Chapter.

The porcion of the Leuites. Of the prophet that is promysed vnto the peo ple, and how the false prophetes maye be knowne.

A The prestes, the Leuites, & Nu.18.c. all the trybe of Leui shall Deu.10.b haue no parte nor inheri-& 12.b.14.c taunce with Israel. The [illegible] offerynges of the LORDE & his inheritaunce shall they eate. Ther fore shall they haue no inheritaunce amonge their brethren, because the LOR DE is their inheritaunce, as he hath sayde vnto the. This shalbe the prestes dewty of the people, and of them that offre, whether it be oxe or shepe, so that they geue vnto the prest the shulder & both the chekes, and the mawe. And y^e fyrst frutes of thy corne, of thy wyne, & of thy oyle, & the fyrst of thy shepe shearyng. For Nu.3.b. the LORDE thy God hath chosen hym and.18.a out of all thy trybes, to stonde and minister in the name of the LORDE, he and his sonnes all y^e dayes of their lyfe.
Yf a Leuite come out of any of thy gates or out of any place of all Israel, where he is a gest, and commeth with all the desyre of his soule (vnto the place which the LORDE hath chosen) to ministre in the name of the LORDE his God, lyke as all his brethren the Leui-tes, which stonde there before the LOR-DE: then shall he haue lyke porcion of vitayle with y^e other, besydes that which he hath of y^e selle good of his fathers.
B When thou commest in to the londe Leui.18.a. which the LORDE thy God shal geue and.20.b. the, thou shalt not lerne to do the abho Deu.12.d. minacyons of these nacyons, that there and.17.b be not founde among you, that maketh 4.Re.21.a his sonne or doughter go thorowe the Iere.7.a fyre, or a prophecyer, or a chosser out of and.19.a dayes, or that regardeth the foules cryeenge, or a witch, or a charmer, or sothe sayer, or an expounder of tokens, or that aske of the dead.
For whosoeuer doth suche, is abho minacyon vnto the LORDE: and because of suche abhominacyons doth the LORDE thy God expell them out before y^e. But thou shalt be parfecte with the LORDE thy God: For these na-cions whom thou shalt conquere, when the LORDE thy God hath geuen the, herken to the chosers out of dayes, and to the sothsayers: but so shalt not thou do vnto the LORDE thy God.

A prophet lyke vnto me, shall the LORDE thy God rayse the vp euen out of the, and from among thy brethren, & vnto hym shall ye herken, accordyng as thou desyredest before the LORDE thy God in Horeb, (in the daye of the gatherynge together) and saydest: Let me heare the voyce of the Lorde my God no more, nor se no more this greate fyre, that I dye not. And the LORDE sayde vnto me: They haue well spoken. I wyll rayse them vp a prophet from amonge their brethren lyke vnto the, and wyll put my wordes in his mouth, and he shall speake vnto them all that I shall commaunde him.
And whosoeuer wyll not herken vnto my wordes, which he shall speake in my name, of hym wyll I requyre it.
But yf a prophet presume to speake ought in my name, whiche I haue not commaunded hym to speake: and he that speaketh in the name of other goddes, the same prophet shal dye. But yf y^e say in thyne hart: how can I knowe which worde the LORDE hath not spoken?
Euen when the prophet speaketh in the name of the LORDE, and the thynge foloweth not, and commeth not to passe: the same is the worde, that the LOR-DE hath not spoken. The prophet hath spoken it presumptuously, therfore be not afrayed of hym.

The xix. Chapter.

Of the fre cities for the dead slayer.
How many witnesses are to be admitted in a matter, and how y^e false wytnes is to be punysshed.

When the LORDE thy God shall haue roted out the na-cions, whose londe the LOR-DE thy God shall geue the, so that thou hast conquered them, and dwellest in their cities and houses, thou shalt appoynte the thre fre cities in the myddes of thy londe, which the LORDE thy God shall geue the to possesse. Thou shalt prepare the waye and parte the coostes of thy londe, which the LORDE thy God shall geue vnto the, into thre partes, that who so euer hath committed a slaughter, may flee thither. And this is the [illegible] that whosoeuer hath committed a slaughter, maye flye thyther, and lyue.

* Yf eny man smyte his neyghboure vnwarres, and hath not hated hym in tyme passed (as when a man goeth vnto the wood with his neyghboure to hewe downe tymber, and he fetcheth his hande with the axe to hewe downe the wood, and the yron slyppeth from the helue, & hytteth his neyghboure, that he dyeth) the same shall flye into one of these cyties, that he maye lyue, lest the auenger of bloude folowe after the deadslayer, whyle his herte is whote, and ouertake hym, where the waye is so longe, & slaye hym, where as yet no cause of death is in hym, for so moch as he hated hym not in tyme passed. Therfore commaunde I the, that thou appoynte out thre cyties.

And when the LORDE thy God enlargeth thy borders, as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers, & geueth the all the londe which he promysed thy fathers to geue (so that thou kepe all these commaundementes, and do that I commaunde the this daye, that thou loue the LORDE thy God, & walke in his wayes all thy life longe) thou shalt adde yet thre cyties vnto these thre, that innocent bloude be not shed in thy londe (which the LORDE thy God geueth the to enheritaunce) and so bloude come vpon the.

C But yf eny man beare hate agaynst his neyghboure, & layeth wayte for hym, and ryseth agaynst hym, & smyteth hym that he dye, and flyeth in to one of these cyties, then shall the Elders of the same cyte sende thither, and cause hym to be fetched from thence, and delyuer hym to the handes of the auenger of bloude, that he may dye. Thyne eye shal not pytie hym, and the gyltie bloude shalt thou put awaye from Israel, that thou mayest prospere.

* Thou shalt not remoue thy neyghbours marck, which they of olde tyme haue set in thyne enheritaunce, that thou enheritest in the londe, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the to possesse it.

* One wytnesse shall not aryse vp agaynst a man, ouer eny trespace or synne, what maner of synne so euer it be, that a man can do, but in the mouth of two or thre wytnesses shall euery matter be stablyshed.

D * But yf an vnrighteous wytnesse stonde vp agaynst eny man, to testifye eny trespace vpon hym, then shall both the men that stryue together, stonde before the LORDE, before the prestes & iudges which shalbe at the same tyme. * And the iudges shall make diligent inquisicion: and yf the wytnesse be founde false, & hath geuen false witnesse agaynst his brother, then shall ye do vnto hym euen as he thought to do vnto his brother, that thou mayest put awaye the euell from the. * that other maye heare and feare, and take no more vpon them to do such wicked poyntes amonge you. Thine eye shal not pitie him. * Soule for soule, eye for eye, toth for toth, hande for hande, fote for fote.

When thou goest out to warre agaynst thyne enemyes, and seyst horses and charettes of the people, more then thou, be not afrayed of them: for the LORDE thy God which brought the out of the londe of Egipte, is with the. Now when ye are come nye vnto the battayl, the prest shall steppe forth, and speake to the people, and saye vnto them: Heare Israel: Ye go this daye in to the battayl agaynst youre enemyes, let not youre hartes faynte. * Feare not, & be not afrayed, nor abashed of them: * For the LORDE youre God goeth with you, to fyght for you agaynst youre enemyes, that he may saue you.

But yf they wyll not deale peaceably with the, and wyll warre with the, then beseege it. And whan the LORDE thy God delyuereth it in to thy honde, thou shalt smyte all males that are therin with the edge of ŷ swerde:

And the catell, and all that is in ŷ cyte, & all the spoyle, thou shalt take them vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoyle of thyne enemyes, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the. Whan thou must lye a longe season before a cyte, agaynst the which thou makest warre to take it, thou shalt not destroye the trees therof that thou woldest hewe them downe with the axe, for ŷ mayest eat therof, and therfore shalt ŷ not hewe the downe. For it is but wood vpon the felde, and no man, and can not come and be bulworkes agaynst the. But the trees which thou knowest that men eate not of, them shalt thou destroye and rote out, and make bulworkes therof, agaynst the cyte that warreth with the, tyll thou hast ouercome it.

The xxi. Chapter.

What ought to be done, with men is founde slayne in the felde, and with the woman which is taken prysoner. Children that wyll not obey father & mother are to be stoned to death. The dead bodye may not hange styll vpon the tre.

When ther is one founde slayne in ŷ londe which the LORDE thy God shall geue the to possesse it, and lyeth in the felde, and it is not knowne who hath slayne him, then shall thy elders and Iudges go forth, and meete vnto the slayne vnto the cyties that lye rounde aboute. Loke which cyte is the nexte, the Elders of the same shall take a yonge cowe, which hath not bene laboured, nor hath drawen in the yocke, and they shal brynge her into a valley, where as is nether earynge nor sowynge, and stryke of her heade there in the valley.

Then shall the prestes the children of Leui come forth. (For the LORDE thy God hath chosen them, to serue him and to prayse his name: and at their mouth shall al plees & strypes be tryed.) And all the Elders of the same cyte shal come forth vnto the slayne, and wash their handes ouer ŷ yonge cowe, whose heade is stryken of in the valley, & shal answere and saye: Oure handes haue not shed this bloude, nether haue oure eyes sene it. Be mercyfull (O LORDE) vnto thy people of Israel, whom thou hast delyuered, & laye no innocent bloude vnto thy people of Israels charge: then shall they be excused from the bloude. Thus shalt thou put awaye the innocent bloude from the, in that thou doest the thinge which is right in the sight of the LORDE.

Whan thou goest forth to warre agaynst thyne enemyes, and the LORDE thy God delyuereth them in to thyne handes, so that thou carriest awaye their presoners, and seist amonge the captyues a bewtyfull woman, and hast a desyre vnto her to take her to thy wyfe, then brynge her home to thyne house, & let her shaue her heade, and pare her nayles, and put of her clothes that she was taken presoner in, and let her syt in thyne house, & mourne for her father and mother a moneth longe, after that lye with her, and mary her, and let her be thy wyfe. But yf thou haue no fauoure vnto her, then shalt thou let her go whither she wyll, and not to sell her, nor to make cheuesaunce of her, because thou hast dishonoured her.

Yf a man haue two wyues, one ŷ he loueth, and one that he hateth, and they beare him children, both the beloued and the hated, so that the firstborne be hers that is hated, and the tyme commeth that he dealeth out the enheritaunce vnto his children, then can he not make the sonne of the beloued firstborne before the firstborne sonne of the hated, but he shall knowe the sonne of the hated ed for the fyrste sonne, so that he geue hym double of all that is at hande: * for the same is ỹ begynnynge of his strēgth and the fyrst byrthryght is his.

D * Yf eny man haue a stubborne & dishobedient sōne, which herkeneth not vnto the voyce of his father, & mother, and whā they teach hym nurtoure, wyll not folowe them: then shall his father & mother take hym, and brynge hym to ỹ Elders of theyr cyte, and to the gate of the same place, and say vnto the Elders of the cyte: This our sōne is stubburne and dishobedient, and herkeneth not vn to oure voyce, and is a ryoter, and a drōkarde. Then shall all the men of ỹ same cyte stone hym to death: and thus shalte thou put awaye the euell from the, that all Israel maye heare and feare.
* Yf a man haue cōmytted a synne that is worthy of death, and is put to death, so that he is hanged on a tre, then shall not his body remayne all nyght on ỹ tre, but thou shalt burye him the same daye (* For cursed is he of God that is hanged) that thou defyle not thy londe, which the LORDE thy God geueth the to enheritaunce.

What they are, that maye not come in to the congregacyon of the LORD and other commaundementes.

A Leui.21.c Esa.56.a THere * shall none that hath his stones broken or that is gelded, come into the cõgregacion of the LORDE. Ther shal no whores chylde also come in to the congregacyon of the LORDE, no not after the tenth generacyon, but shall neuer come into the cõgregacyon of the LORDE. * The Am-

2.Esd.13.a monites and Moabites shall not come into the congregacyon of the LORD, no not after the tenth generacyon, but shal neuer come in, because they met you not with bread and water in the waye, when ye came out of Egipte. * And be-

Nu.22.a Josu.24.b sydes that, they hyred agaynst you Balaam the sonne of Beor, the interpreter out of Mesopotamia, to curse the. But the LORDE thy God wolde not heare Balaam, & turned the curse to blessynge vnto the: because the LORD thy God loued the. Thou shalt wyshe hym nether prosperite nor health all thy lyfe longe for euer. Thou shalt not abhorre an Edomite: * for he is thy brother.

An Egipcian shalt thou not abhorre: for thou wast a straunger in his londe. The chyldren whom they beget in the thyrde generacyon, shall come in to the congregacyon of the LORDE.

* Whan thou goest out to fyght agaynst thyne enemyes, kepe the from al wyckednesse.

Yf there be eny man amonge you which is vncleane, so that eny thynge is chaunced to hym by nyght, the same shal go out of ye hoost vntyll he haue bathed hymselfe with water before euen: & whã the Sonne is gone downe, he shal come in to the hoost agayne.

And without the hoost thou shalt haue a place to resorte vnto for necessite, & thou shalt haue a shouell vnder thy gyrdell: & whan thou wylt set ye downe without, thou shalte dygge therwith: & whan thou hast done thyne easement, thou shalt couer that which is departed from the. For ye LORDE thy God walketh in thyne hoost, to delyuer the, and to geue thyne enemyes before the. Therfore shal thy hoost be holy, yt he se no vncleane thynge in the, and so turne hymselfe from the.

C Thou shalt not delyuer vnto his master the seruaunt, which is escaped from hym vnto the, He shall dwell with the in the place that he choseth within one of thy gates, for his wealth, and thou shalt not vexe hym.

* There shalbe no whore amonge ye doughters of Israel, nether whorekeper amonge the sõnes of Israel. & Thou shalt not brynge ye hyre of an whore nor the pryce of a dogge in to the house of ye LORDE thy God for eny maner of vowe: for they both are abhominacyon vnto the LORDE thy God.

* Thou shalt occupye no vsury vnto thy brother, nether with money, nor with fode, nor with eny maner thynge yt vsury maye be vsed withall. (Vnto a straũger thou mayest lende vpon vsury, but not vnto thy brother) that ye LORDE thy God may blesse the in all that thou takest in hande, in the londe whether thou commest in to possesse it.

* Whan thou makest a vowe vnto the LORDE thy God, ȳ shalte not be slacke to performe it: for the LORDE thy God shall requyre it of the, & it shall be synne vnto the. Yf ȳ leaue vowynge, then is it no synne vnto the. But that whiche is proceaded out of thy lyppes shalt thou kepe, and do therafter, acordyng as thou hast vowed vnto ȳ LORDE of a fre wyll, which thou hast spoken with thy mouth.

When thou goest in to thy neyghbours vynyarde, thou mayest eate of ȳ grapes accordyng to thy desyre, tyl thou haue ynough. But thou shalte put none in to thy vessell.

* When thou goest in thy neyghbours cornefelde, thou mayst plucke the eares with thyne hande, but with a sycle mayest thou not reape therin.

The.xxiiii.Chapter.

Of devorcement, of the fredome of hym that is new maried, with other cōmaundementes cōcernynge loue towarde a mans neghboure.

When * a man taketh a wyfe, and marieth her, and she fyndeth no fauoure in his eyes because of ony vnclennesse, then shall he wryte a byll of devorcement, and geue it her in her hōde and sende her out of his house. Yf whā she is gone out of his house, she go, and be another mans wyfe, and the same seconde man hate her also, and wryte a byll of devorcement, and geue it her in her honde, and sende her out of his house: Or yf the same seconde man dye, which toke her to wyfe, then her fyrst husbande that put her awaye, maye not take her agayne to be his wyfe, in so much as she is defyled, for that is abhominacyon before the LORDE: that thou make not the lande to synne, which the LORDE thy God hath geuē the to enheritaūce.

* When a man hath newly taken a wyfe, he shal not go a warrefare, nether shall he be charged withall. He shalbe fre in his house one yeare longe, that he may be mery with his wyfe whiche he hath taken.

* Thou shalt not take ȳ nethermost & vppermost mylstone to pledge, for he hath set the his lyuynge to pledge.

* Yf ony man be founde that stealeth one of his brethren, from amonge ȳ chyldren of Israel, & setteth hym to pledge or selleth hym, suche theefe shal dye, ȳ thou mayest put awaye the euel frō the.

Kepe the from the plage of leprosye, that ȳ * obserue diligently and do accordynge vnto all ȳ the prestes, the Leuites teache the, as I haue cōmaunded them, that shall ye obserue & do therafter. Remember what the LORDE thy God dyd vnto * Miriam by the waye, whan ye were come out of Egipte. Leu.17.a Mat.3.a Nu.12.a

Yf thou lendest thy brother ony det, thou shalt not go into his house, & take a pledge, but shalt stonde without: and he, to whō thou lendest, shall brynge out his pledge vnto ȳ. But yf it be a poore body, thou shalt not lye downe to slepe with his pledge, but shalte delyuer hym his pledge agayne, whan the Sonne goeth downe, ȳ he maye slepe in his owne rayment, and blesse the, so shall ȳ same be rekened vnto the for ryghteousnes before the LORDE thy God. C

* Thou shalte not withdrawe the hyre of the nedye and poore amonge thy brethren, or straunger that is in thy lōde or within thy gates, but shalt geue hym his hyre the same daye, that the Sonne go not downe theron, for so much as he is nedy, and his lyfe susteyned therwith that he call not vpon the LORDE agaynst the, and it be synne vnto the. Leui.19.b Eccle.7.d Tob.4.c

* The fathers shall not dye for the chyldre, nor the chyldren for the fathers, but euery one shal dye for his owne syn. Iere.31.d. 4.Re.14.a 2.par.25.a Eze.18.c.

* Thou shalt not wrest the ryght of the straunger and of the fatherlesse. And the wedowes rayment shalte thou not take to pledge: For thou shalt remembre, that thou wast a seruaunt in Egipte, & how that the LORDE thy God delyuered the frō thence, therfore cōmaūde I the to do this. Deu.17.a and.27.c D

* When thou haste reaped downe thyne haruest in the felde, and hast forgotten a shefe in the felde, thou shalt not turne agayne to fetche it, but it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, that the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in al the workes of thy handes. Leui.19.b

When thou hast plucked thyne Olyue trees, thou shalt not pluck them vp cleane afterwarde: it shalbe for ȳ straūger, the fatherlesse, & the wedowe. Whā ȳ hast gathered thy vynyarde, ȳ shalte not gather it vp cleane afterwarde: it shal be for ȳ straūger, ȳ fatherlesse, & the wedowe. And ȳ shalt remembre, that thou wast a seruaunt in the lande of Egipte, therfore commaunde I the, to do this.

The. xxv. Chapter.

How the iudge ought to punyshe, & how one kynsman shulde rayse vp sede to another. Of true weyghtes and measures, and destroyenge of Amaleck.

A When there is a stryfe betwene men, they shalbe broughte before the lawe and iudged: and the iudges shall iustifye the ryghteous, & condemne the vngodly. And yf the vngodly haue deserued strypes, the iudge shall commaunde to take hym downe, and they shall beate hym before hym, acordynge to the measure and nombre of his trespace.

2.Cor.11.c * Whan they haue geuen hym fortye stripes, they shal beate hym nomore, lest (yf there be mo strypes geuen hym) he be beaten to much, and thy brother be horyble before thyne eyes.

1.Cor.9.b 1.Tim.5.c * Thou shalt not mosell the mouth of the oxe, that treadeth out the corne.

Mat.22.d Luc.20.d Ruth.4.b * Whan brethren dwell together, & one of them dye without chyldren, then shall not the wyfe of ye dead take a straunger without, but hir kynsman shall go in vnto her, and take hir to wyfe: and ye fyrst sonne that she beareth, shall he set vp after the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israell.

B But yf the man wyll not take his kynswoman, the shall his kynswoman go vp vnder the gate vnto the Elders, and saye: My kynsmā refuseth to stere vp a name vnto his brother in Israell, and wyll not mary me. Then shall the Elders of the cite call hym, and comen with hym. Yf he stonde then and saye: I wyll not take her, then shall his kynswoman steppe forth vnto hym before ye Elders, and lowse a shue from his fote, & spyt in his face, and shall answere, and saye: Thus shall it be done vnto euery man, that wyl not buylde his brothers house. And his name shall be called in Israell, the vnshodde house.

Yf two men stryue together, and the wyfe of the one comme to, to delyuer hir husbande from the hande of him yt smyteth hym, and put forth hir hāde, & take hym by the secrettes, then shalt thou cut of hir hande, and thyne eye shall not pety her.

C Leui.19.g. * Thou shalt not haue in thy bagge two maner of weyghtes, a greate and a small. Nether shalt thou haue in thyne house dyuerse measures, a greate and a small. Thou shalt haue a perfecte & iust weyght, & a pfect & iust measure, yt thy lyfe may be lōge in ye lōde, which ye Lord thy God shal geue the. For whosoeuer doth such (yee all they that do euell) are abhominacyon vnto the LORDE thy God.

* Remembre what ye Amalechites dyd vnto the by the waye, whan ye were departed out of Egipte, how they buckled wt the by the waye, and smote thy hyndmost, euen all yt were feble, which came after the whan thou wast werye and faynte, and they feared not God. Now whan the LORDE thy God bryngeth the to rest from all thyne enemyes rounde aboute in the londe which the LORDE thy God geueth the for inheritaunce to possesse, then shalt thou put out the remembraunce of the Amalechites from vnder heauen. Forget not this.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

Of the fyrst frutes and tythes, how they are to be broughte with prayse and thankesgeuynge vnto God.

When thou commest in to the londe that the LORDE thy God shall geue the to enheritaunce, and enioyest it, & dwellest therin, thou shalt take of all maner * fyrstfrutes of the londe, yt come out of thy grounde, which the LORDE thy God geueth the, and shalt put them in a maunde, and go vnto the place which the LORDE thy God shall chose (that his name maye dwell ther) and thou shalt come vnto the prest which shalbe at that tyme, and saye vnto hym: I knowlege this daye vnto the LORDE thy God, that I am come in to the londe, which the LORDE swore vnto oure fathers to geue vs. And the prest shall take the maunde out of thyne hande, and set it downe before the altare of the LORDE thy God.

B Then shalt thou answere and saye before the LORDE thy God: The Syrians wolde haue destroyed my father, * which wente downe in to Egipte, and was a straunger there with a small folke, and became there a mayne greate, myghtye, and full of people. * But the Egipcians entreated vs euel, & troubled vs, and layed a harde bondage vpō vs. Then cryed we vnto the LORDE ye God of oure fathers. And ye LORDE herde oure cryenge, and loked on oure aduersite, labour, and oppression, * and broughte vs out of Egipte with a myghtye hande, and a stretched out arme, and with greate terriblenesse thorow tokens and wonders, and hath brought vs vnto this place, & hath geuen vs this londe, that floweth with mylke & hony. Therfore brynge I now the fyrst frutes of ẏ londe, which the LORDE hath geuen vs. And thou shalt leaue them before ẏ LORDE thy God, and geue thankes before ẏ LORDE thy God, & reioyse ouer al the good, that the LORDE thy God hath geuen the, and thyne house: ẏ and the Leuite, and the straunger that is with the.

E * Whan thou hast brought together all ẏ tythes of thyne increase in ẏ thyrde yeare, whiche is a yeare of tythes, thou shalt geue it vnto the Leuite, to ẏ straunger, to the fatherlesse, and to the wedowe, that they maye eate within thy gates, & be fylled. And thou shalt saye before ẏ LORDE thy God: * I haue broughte that halowed is, out of my house, and haue geuen it vnto the Leuite, ẏ straunger, the fatherlesse, and the wedowe, acordynge to all thy commaundementes which thou hast commaunded me. I haue not transgressed thy commaundementes, nor forgotten them. I haue not eaten therof in my heuynesse, nor taken awaye therof in vnclennesse, I haue not geuen therof vnto the dead. I haue ben obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE my God, and haue done all as he hathe commaunded me. * Loke downe from thy holy habitacyon, from heauen, and blesse thy people of Israel, and ẏ londe that thou hast geuen vs, as thou sware vnto oure fathers, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony.

D In the daye whan the LORDE thy God commaunded the, to do acordynge vnto all these ordinaunces and lawes, that thou shuldest kepe them & do therafter with all thy hart and with all thy soule. * The same daye madest thou a promyse vnto the LORDE, that he shulde be thy God, and that thou woldest walke in all his wayes, and kepe his ordinaunces, his commaundementes, and his lawes, and to herken vnto his voyce. * And the LORDE promysed the vpon the same daye, that thou shuldest be his awne peculiar people, lyke as he hath sayde vnto the (so ẏ thou kepe all his commaundementes) & that he wolde make the hye in prayse, name, and honoure aboue all nacyons whiche he hath made * that thou mayest be an holy people vnto the LORDE thy God, as he hath sayd vnto the. Jere. 13. B.

Of the stones to be set vp beyonde Jordane, and the commaundementes of God to be wrytten theron. Of the blessynge and cursynge vpon the two mountaynes.

And Moses with the Elders of Israel, commaunded the people, and sayde: Kepe al the commaundementes whiche I commaunde you this daye. * And what tyme as ye go ouer Jordane, into the londe that the LORDE thy God shall geue the, thou shalt set vp great stones, & playster them with playster, and wryte vpon them all the wordes of this lawe (whan thou art come ouer) that thou mayest come in to the londe whiche the LORDE thy God shall geue ẏ, a londe that floweth with mylke and hony, as the LORDE God of thy fathers hath promysed the. Josu. 4. A

Now whan ye go ouer Jordane, ye shall set vp these stones (wherof I commaunde you this daye) vpon mount Eball, and playster them with playster: * and there shalt thou buylde vnto the LORDE thy God an altare of stone, wherupon thou shalt lyfte no yron. Josu. 8. B. * Of hole stones shalt thou buylde this altare vnto the LORDE thy God, and offre burntofferynges theron vnto the LORDE thy God: and thou shalt offre thankofferynges, and eat there, and reioyse before the LORDE thy God: and vpon the stones thou shalt wryte al the wordes of this lawe manyfestly and well. Exo. 20. D

D And Moses with ẏ prestes and Leuites spake vnto all Israell, and sayde: Take hede and heare O Israel. This daye art thou become the people of the LORDE thy God, that ẏ mayest be obedient vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, & do acordynge vnto all his commaundementes & ordinaunces which I commaunde the this daye.

tes which I commaunde ÿ this daye, then shall the LORDE thy God set the [illegible] hye aboue all nacions vpõ earth, and all these blessynges shal come vpon the, & ouertake the because thou hast bene obedient vnto the voyce of the LORD thy God. Blessed shalt ÿ be in the towne, and blessed in the felde.

Blessed shalbe the frute of thy body, the frute of thy grounde, & the frute of thy catell, and the frute of thyne oxen, and ÿ frute of thy shepe. Blessed shall be thy basket, & thy stoare. Blessed shalt thou be whã thou goest in, and blessed when thou goest out. * And thyne enemies ÿ ryse vp agaynst the, shall the LORD cause to be smytten before thy face: they shall come out agaynst the one waye, & flye before the seuen wayes.
The LORDE shall commaunde the blessynge to be with the in thy celers, & in all that thou takest in hande, & shall blesse the in the londe that the LORD thy God hath geuen the. The LORD shall set the vp to be an holy people vnto hymselfe (as he hath sworne vnto ÿ) yf thou kepe the commaundementes of the LORD thy God, so that all nacions vpon earth shall se, that thou art called after ÿ name of the Lorde: & they shalbe afrayed of you. And ÿ Lorde shal make fore, and not behynde: and ÿ shalt be aboue onely, & not beneth, yf thou be obedient vnto the commaundementes of ÿ LORD thy God, which I commaũde the this daye to kepe and to do them: & yf thou * bowe not asyde from eny of these wordes, which I commaunde the this daye, eyther to the ryght hande or to the left, that thou woldest walke after other goddes to serue them.

* But yf thou wylt not herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God, to kepe and to do all his commaundementes and ordinaunces, which I cõ-maunde the this daye, * then shall all these curses come vpon the, and ouertake the. Cursed shalt ÿ be in ÿ towne, and cursed in the felde: cursed shall thy basket be, and thy stoare. Cursed shalbe the frute of thy body, the frute of thy bodye, the frute of thyne erth, and the frute of thy shepe. Cursed shalt thou be whan thou goest in, and cursed whan thou goest out. The LORDE shall sende in to the, consumynge, and com-playnynge, and curssynge, in all that thou takest in hande to do, tyll he haue destroyed the and shortly brought the to naught because of thy wycked inuencions, in that thou hast forsaken me.

The LORDE shall make the pestilence to byde longe with the, tyl he haue consumed the out of the londe, in to the which thou commest to possesse it. The LORDE shal smyte the with swellinge, feuers, heate, burnynge, drouth, blastynge and palenesse, and shall persecute the, tyll he haue destroyed the. * The heauen that is ouer thy heade, shalbe of brasse: and the earth vnder the, of yron. The LORDE shall geue thy londe dust for rayne, and asshes from heauen vpon the, vntyll thou be brought to naught. The LORDE shall cause the to be slayne before thyne enemyes. Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst the, and seuen wayes shalt thou flye before them, and shalt be scatered amonge all the kyngdomes vpon earth.
Thy carcase shalbe meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and to all the beastes vpon earth, and there shalbe no man to fraye them awaye.

* The LORDE shall smyte the with the botches of Egipte, wyth the emerodes, with scalle, and maungynesse, that thou shalt not be healed therof. * The LORDE shal smyte the with madnesse, blyndnesse, and dasynge of hart. And thou shalt grope at the none daye, as the blynde gropeth in darcknesse, and shalt not prospere in thy wayes. And thou shalt suffre violence and wronge all thy life longe, and no man shall helpe the. * Thou shalt spouse a wyfe, but another shall lye wt her. * Thou shalt buylde an house, but another shall dwell therin. Thou shalt plante a vynyarde, but shalt not make it comon.

D Thyne oxe shalbe slayne before thy-ne eyes, but thou shalt not eate therof.
Thyne asse shalbe violently taken awaye (euen before thy face) and shall not be restored the agayne. Thy shepe shalbe geuen vnto thyne enemyes, and no man shal helpe the. Thy sonnes and thy doughters shalbe geuen vnto another people, and thyne eyes shall se it, and faile for them all the daye longe, and thy handes shall not be able to helpe them. The frute of thy londe and all thy laboure, shal a nacyon eate, which thou knowest not, and thou shalt but onely be he that shalbe oppressed and suffre wronge all the dayes of thy lyfe. And thou shalt be cleane besyde thy selfe for the syghte, which thyne eyes shal se.

a myschevous botch in the knees and legges, so that thou canst not be healed, eue from the sole of thy fote vnto the crow-ne of thy heade.

* The LORDE shall brynge the Deu.4.D and thy kynge (which thou hast set ouer 4.re.24.D the) vnto a nacion, whom thou knowest 2.Pa.33.C not, nether thy fathers: and there shalt Iere.24.A thou serue other goddes, eue wood and stone: and thou shalt go to waist, and become a byworde, and a laughynge stocke amonge all nacions, whyther the LOR-DE hath caryed the.

* Thou shalt cary out much sede in- Mich.6.C to the felde, and shalt gather but litle in:
for the greshoppers shall destroye it.
Thou shalt plante vynyardes and dresse the, but thou shalt nether drynke of the wyne, nor gather of the grapes: for the wormes shall consume it. Thou shalt haue olyue trees in all thy coostes, but shalt not be anoynted with the oyle: for thyne olyue trees shalbe roted out. Thou shalt get sonnes and doughters, and yet not haue them: for they shalbe caryed awaye captyue. All thy trees and frutes of thy londe shall be marred wyth blastynge.

The straunger that is wyth the, shall clymme vp ouer the, and be allwaye aboue: but thou shalt come beneth lower, and lye vnder beneth. He shall lend vnto the, but thou shalt not lende vnto hym. He shalbe the heade, but thou shalt be the tayle.

And all these curses shall come vpo G the, and folowe the, and ouertake the, tyll thou be destroyed, because thou her-kenest not vnto the voyce of the LORDE and thy God, to kepe his commaunde-mentes and ordinaunces, which he hath commaunded the. Therfore shall they be tokens and wonders vpon the, and vpon thy sede for euer, because thou hast not serued the LORDE thy God with ioyfull and good herte, whan thou haddest aboundaunce of al thin-ges. And therfore shalt thou serue thyne enemye which the LORDE shal sende vpo the, in hunger, & thyrst, in nakednesse, & in scarsnes of all thynge: and he shall put a yocke of yron vpon thy necke, vntyll he haue broughte the to naughte.

Jere.5.c Baru.4.c * The LORDE shall brynge a nacyon vpon the from farre, eue from the endes of the worlde, as a flyenge Aegle, a people, whose speach thou canst not vnderstonde, an harde fauoured people, which regarde not the personne of the olde, nor haue compassion on the yonge. And they shall eate vp the frute of thy catell, and the frute of thy londe, tyll they haue destroyed the, and shall leaue the nothynge in corne, wyne, oyle, in the frute of the oxen and shepe, vntyl they haue brought the to naughte: and shall laye sege vnto the within all thy gates, tyll they cast downe thy hye and stronge walles, wherin thou trustest thorow out all thy londe. And thou shalt be beseged within al thy gates, thorow out all thy londe which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the.

4.Re.6.f Tren.4.b Bar.2.a F * Thou shalt eat the frute of thine owne body, the flesh of thy sonnes and of thy doughters, which the LORDE thy God hath geuen the, in that straytnesse and sege, wherwith thyne enemye shall besege the: so that it shal greue the man that afore hath lyued tenderly and in voluptuousnes amonge you, to loke vpon his brother, and vpon his wyfe y lyeth in his bosome, & on the sonnes that are left ouer of his sonnes, lest he shulde geue eny of them of the flesh of his children that he eateth, in as moch as there is nothinge left hym in that straytnesse and sege, wherwith thyne enemye shall besege the within all thy gates. And the woman that afore hath lyued so tenderly and voluptuously amonge you, that she durst not sett the sole of her fote vpon the grounde for tendernesse and voluptuousnesse, shalbe greued to loke vpon hir husbande that lyeth in hir bosome, and on hir sonne, and on hir doughter, euē because of the doughters which she hath norished betwene hir legges in hir lappe, and because of hir sonnes that she hath borne. For she shall eate them secretly for very scarcenesse of all thinges, in y straytnesse & sege, wherwith thyne enemye shall besege y within thy gates.

Yf thou wylt not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe which are wrytē in this boke, y thou mayest feare this glorious and fearfull name, euen y LORDE thy God, the shal the LORDE entreate the wonderously, with plages vpon the and thy sede, yee with greate and continuall plages, with euell and continuall sicknesses, and shall brynge vpon the all the sycknesses of Egipte (wherof thou wast afrayed) & they shal cleue vnto the. G Therto all maner sicknesses and plages, which are not wrytē in the boke of this lawe, shal the LORDE thy God cause to come vpon the, vntyll he haue destroyed the. And there shall be lefte but a fewe people of you, * which afore were as the starres of heauen in multitude: because thou hast not herkened vnto the voyce of y LORDE thy God.

* And as the LORDE reioysed ouer you afore, to do you good, and to multiplye you: euen so shall he reioyse ouer you, to destroye you, and to brynge you to naughte, and ye shalbe wasted from of the londe, whither thou goest now to possesse it. For the LORDE shall scater the amonge all nacions, fro the one ende of the worlde vnto another, and there shalt thou serue other goddes whom thou knowest not, nor yet thy fathers, euen wood and stone.

And amonge those same nacions shalt thou haue no quyetnesse, nether shall the sole of thy fote haue eny rest: for the LORDE shall geue y there a fearfull harte, and dasynge of eyes, and a troubled soule, so that thy life shal hange before the. Nyght and daye shalt thou feare, and shalt haue no trust in thy life. In the mornynge thou shalt saye: Who shall geue me the euenynge? And at euen shalt thou saye: Who shall geue me the mornynge? For the very greate feare of thyne harte, which shall make the afrayed, & for the syghte of thyne eyes which thou shalt se.

And the LORDE shall brynge the agayne in to Egipte by shippes, euen thorow the waye wherof I sayde vnto the: * Thou shalt se it nomore. & there shall ye be solde vnto youre enemyes for bonde seruauntes and bonde maydens, and there shalbe noman to bye you.

The xxix. Chapter.

The couenaunt is renued in the londe of Moab. Moses putteth the in mynde of the receaued benefytes of God, that they maye be stedfast in the LORDE.

These are the wordes of the couenaunt, which the LORDE commaunded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the londe of the Moabites, besyde the couenaunt which he made with them in Horeb. And Moses called al Israel, and sayde unto thē: Ye haue sene all that the LORDE dyd before youre eyes in the londe of Egypte, unto Pharao with all his seruauntes, and all his londe, the greate tentacions whiche thyne eyes haue sene, that they were greate tokens & wonders: * And yet unto this daye hath not the LOR-DE geuen you an hart that underston-deth, eyes that se, and eares that heare.

* He hath caused you to walke fortye yeares in the wyldernesse. Youre clothes are not waxed olde upon you, nether is thy shue waxed olde on thy fote.
Ye haue eaten no bread, and dronke no wyne, nor stronge drynke, that ye might knowe, that he is the LORDE youre God.
B * And whē ye came unto this place Sihon the kynge of Hesbon, and Og ÿ kynge of Basan, came out agaynste vs unto battayll, and we smote them, and toke their londe, and gaue it to enheritaunce unto the Rubenites and Gaddites, and to the halfe trybe of the Ma-nassites. * Kepe now therfore ÿ wordes of this couenaunte, and do therafter, that ye maye haue understondynge in all that ye do.
Ye stonde this daye all before the LORDE youre God, the chefe rulers of youre trybes, youre elders, youre officers, euery man in Israel, youre chyldrē youre wyues, the straungers that are in thyne hoosste, * from the hewer of the wood unto the drawer of thy water: ÿ thou shuldest entre in to the couenaunt of the LORDE thy God, and in to the ooth which the LORDE thy God ma-keth with the this daye, that he might set the vp this daye to be a people unto himselfe, and that he might be thy God as he hath sayde unto the, * and as he sware unto thy fathers, Abrahā, Isaac and Iacob.
For I make not this couenaūt and this ooth wt you onely, but both with you that are here this daye, and stonde with vs before the LORDE oure God, and also with them that are not here wt vs this day. For ye knowe how we haue C dwelt in the londe of Egypte, and how we came thorow ÿ myddes of the Hey-then, whome ye passed by, & sawe theyr abhominacyons and their Idols, wood and stone, syluer and golde, which were with them. Lest there be amonge you man or woman, or an housholde, or a trybe, which turneth awaye his hart this day from the LORDE oure God, to go & to serue the goddes of these nacions: & lest there be amonge you some rote, that beareth gall, and wormwood: so that though he heare the wordes of this curse, he blesse hymselfe yet in his hart, and saye: * Tush, it shall not be so euell. I Jerem.5.d wyll walke after the ymagynacyons of Soph.1.c. myne awne hart, ÿ the dronken maye Deu.12.a perishe with the thyrstie.
* Then shall not the LORDE be mercyfull unto hym, but his wrath and gelousy shall smoke ouer such a man, & all the curses that are wrytten in this boke, shall lyght vpō hym, and ÿ LOR-DE shall put out his name from vnder heauen, & shall separate hym unto euill out of all the trybes of Israell, accordynge unto all the curses of the coue-naunt, that is wrytten in the boke of this lawe. D
So the posteritie of youre chyldrē which shall ryse vp after you, and the straungers that come out of farre coun-trees, shall saye (whan they se the plages of this londe, and the diseases wher with the LORDE hath smytten it) that he hath brent vp all their londe wyth brymstone and salt, so that it can not be sowne, nor is frutefull, nether groweth eny grasse theryn, * lyke as So- Gen.19.f dom, Gomor, Adama, and Zeboim are ouerthrowne, which the LORDE ouerthrewe in his wrath and angre.
Thē shal all nacions saye: * Wher- Jere.22.b fore hath the Lord done thus unto this 3.Reg.9.b londe? What greate wrothfull displeasure is this? Then shall it be sayde: Euē because they haue forsakē the couenaūt of the LORDE God of their fathers (which he made wyth them when he brought them out of the lāde of Egipte) and they wente, and serued other god-des, and worshipped them, euē such god-des as they knewe not, & whom he had not deuyded unto them. Therfore the wrath of the LORDE waxed whote ouer this londe, to brynge vpon it all ÿ curses that are wrytten in this boke.
And the LORDE thrust them out of theyr londe with greate wrath, indignacion, and displeasure, and hath cast thē in to another lōde, as it is come to passe this daye.
These are the * secretes of ÿ Lord 1.Cor.4.a oure God, which are opened unto vs & oure chyldren for euer, that we shulde do all the wordes of this lawe.

The.xxx.Chapter.

¶ Of the mercyfull kyndnesse of God, yf men wyll herken vnto his voyce, and conuerte from their owne euell wayes. Of his sore punyshement, yf they wyll not obeye.

3.Re.8.f
2.Pa.33.c
NOw whan all this cõmeth vpon the, * whether it be ẏ blessynge or the curse which I haue layed before the, and thou goest in thyne hart, beynge amonge the Heythen, whither the LORDE thy God hath thrust the, and thou turnest vnto the LORDE thy God so that thou herkenest vnto his voyce, thou and thy chyldren with all thy hart and with all thy soule, in all that I cõmaunde the this daye, Iere.32.e
* then shall the LORDE thy God turne thy captiuite and haue cõpassion vpon the, and shall gather thy congregacyon agayne from amonge all nacyons, whither ẏ LORDE thy God hath scatered the.

And though thou werest thrust out vnto the vttermost partes of the heauē, yet shall the LORDE thy God gather the from thence, and from thence shall he fetch the, and brynge the in to the lōde which thy fathers haue possessed, and ẏ shalt enioye it, and he shall do the good, and multiplye the aboue thy fathers.

Deu.10.d
* And the Lord thy God shall circūcyse thyne hart & the harte of thy sede, ẏ thou mayest loue ẏ LORDE thy God with all thy harte, & with all thy soule, that thou mayest lyue. But all these curses shall the LORDE thy God laye vpō thyne enemyes, and vpon thē that hate the & persecute ẏ. But thou shalt turne, and herken vnto the voyce of the LORDE, to do all his commaundementes, which I cōmaunde the this daye. And the LORDE thy God shall make the plenteous in al the workes of thyne hādes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catell, in the frute of thy londe to good.

* For the LORDE shall turne, to reioyse ouer the to good, as he reioysed ouer thy fathers, so that thou herkē vnto the voyce of the LORDE thy God (to kepe his cõmaundementes and ordinaunces, which are wrytten in the boke of this lawe) and turne vnto the LORDE thy God with all thy harte & with all thy soule.

Ro.10.a
* For the cõmaundement which I cõmaunde the this daye, is not to wonderfull for the, nether to farre, nor yet in heauen, that thou nedest to saye: Who wyll go vp for vs in to heauen, & brynge it vnto vs, that we may heare it and do it? Nether is it beyōde ẏ see, that thou nedest to say: Who wyll go ouer the se for vs, & fetch it vs, that we may heare it, and do it? For ẏ word is very nye vnto the, euen in thy mouth, and in thyne harte, that thou do it.

* Beholde, I haue layed before you this daye, lyfe & good, death & euel. For I commaunde the this daye, to loue the LORDE thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces, and lawes, that thou mayest lyue and multiplye, and that the LORDE thy God maye blesse the in the londe, whither ẏ goest to possesse it.

But yf thou turnest awaye thine harte, so that thou wilt not heare, but fall awaye, to worshippe other goddes and to serue them, I certifye you this daye, that ye shall perishe, and not lyue longe in the londe, whither thou goest ouer Iordane to possesse it.

* I take heauen & earth this daye to recorde ouer you: I haue layed before you lyfe and death, blessynge and cursynge, that thou mayest chose lyfe, and that thou and thy sede maye lyue, that ye maye loue the LORDE youre God and herken vnto his voyce and cleue vnto hym: (For he is thy lyfe, and thy longe age) that thou mayest dwell in the londe, which the LORDE sware vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Iacob, to geue them.

¶ Iosua is geuē vnto the people, to be their captayne in Moses steade. A prophecye that they wyll forsake the waye of God, and be punyshed therfore.

ANd Moses wente, and spake these wordes to all Israel, and sayde vnto them: I am this daye an hundreth and twentye yeare olde. I can no more go out and in: the LORDE also hath sayde vnto me: * Thou shalt not go ouer this Iordane. The LORDE thy God hymselfe shal go before ẏ ouer Iordane: and he hymselfe shall destroye these nacyons before the, that ẏ mayest cõquere them: and Iosua he shall go before the, * as the LORDE hath sayde. And the LORDE shall do vnto them as he dyd vnto Sihon and Og the kynges of the Amorites & vnto theyr ..11.d londe, * which he destroyed.

..m.7.a ¶ Now whan the LORDE shall
..w.1.c delyuer them before you, ye shall do vnto them acordyng vnto all the comman-dementes whiche I haue commaunded B you. Be manly and stronge, feare not, and be not afrayed of them. For the LORDE thy God hymselfe shall
..1.a go with the * & shall not fayle the nor
..1.a forsake the.
And Moses called Josua, and sayde
..1.b vnto hym before all Israel: * Be stronge
..1.a and bolde, for thou shalt bryng this peo ple in to the londe, whiche the LORD hath sworne vnto their fathers to geue them, and thou shalt parte it amonge the by lott. But the LORDE hym selfe that goeth before you, euen HE shalbe with the, and shall not fayle the: Feare not, & be not afrayed.
And Moses wrote this lawe and de lyuered it vnto the prestes the children ..3.4. of Leui (* whiche bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE) and vnto all the elders of Israell.
C And he commaunded them, & sayde:
..9.2.a * At the ende of seuen yeares, in ŷ tyme of the Fre yeare, in the feast of Tabernacles whan all Israell come to appeare before ŷ LORDE thy God, in the place that he shall chose, thou shalt cause this lawe to be proclamed before all Israell in their eares, namely before the congregacyon of the people, both of men, women, children and thy straungers which are within thy gates: that they maye heare and learne to feare the LORDE their God, and be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe: and that their chil dren also which knowe nothinge, maye heare, and learne to feare the LORDE your God, all youre lyue dayes whiche ye lyue in the londe, whither ye go ouer Jordane to possesse it.
D And the LORDE sayde vnto Mo ses: Beholde, thy tyme is come that thou muste dye, call Josua, and stonde in the Tabernacle of witnesse, that I may geue hym a charge. Moses wente with Josua, and stode in the Tabernacle of witnesse. And the LORDE appeared ..33.b in the Tabernacle in a cloudy pyler * & the same cloudy pyler stode in the dore of the Tabernacle.
And the LORDE sayde vnto Mo ses: Beholde, thou shalt slepe with thy fathers, & this people wyll ryse vp, and go a whorynge after the straunge god-des of the londe in to ŷ which they come * and wyll forsake me and breake the 1.Reg.8.b couenaunt which I haue made with the.
And then shall my wrath waxe whote agaynst them, at the same tyme, and I shall forsake them, & hyde my face from them, that they may be consumed. * And Jere.2.d so whan muche aduersite and trouble commeth vpon them, they shal saye: Is not all this euel come vpon me, because God is not with me? But I shall hyde my face at the same tyme because of all the euell that they haue done, in that they haue turned vnto other goddes. E Wryte ye now therfore this songe, and teach it the chyldren of Israel, and put it in their mouth, that this * songe Deu.32.a maye be a witnesse vnto me among the children of Israell. For I wyll bringe them in to the londe which I sware vn to their fathers, ŷ floweth with mylke and hony. * And whan they eate, and Deu.6.c are full and fatte, they shall turne vnto Pro.30.b other goddes, and serue them, and blaspheme me, and breake my couenaunt.
And so whan muche myschefe and tribulacyon is come vpon them, this songe shall answere before them for a witnesse. It shall not be forgotten out of the mouthe of their sede: for I knowe theyr ymaginacyon, that they go aboute euen now, before I bringe them in to the londe, which I sware vn to them. F So Moses wrote this songe at the same tyme, and taught it the chyldren of Israell. And the LORDE gaue Jo sua the sonne of Nun a charge, and Josue.1.b sayde: * Be stronge and bolde, for thou and.23.c shalt bringe the children of Israel in to 3.Re.2.a the londe, which I sware vnto the, and I wyll be with the.
Now whan Moses had written out all the wordes of this lawe in a boke, he commaunded the Leuites (which bare the Arke of the LORDES co uenaunt) and sayde: Take the boke of this lawe, * & laye it by the syde of the Deu.10.a Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE youre God, that it maye be there a wit- 4.re.17.c nesse agaynst the: * for I knowe thy Mala.3.b stubburnesse and thy harde necke. Be-holde, whyle I am yet alyue with you this daye, ye haue ben disobedient vnto the LORDE: how muche more after my death?
Gather now vnto me al the Elders G of youre trybes, and youre officers, that I maye speake these wordes in theyr

Deu 4.d eares, * and take heauen and earth to Ga.30.d recorde agaynst them. For I am sure y after my death ye shall marre youre selues, & turne asyde out of y way, which I haue comaunded you, & so shall myschefortune happen vnto you herafter, because ye haue done euell in the sighte of the LORDE, in prouokynge hym thorow the workes of youre handes.

So Moses spake out the wordes of this sõge euen to y ende, in the eares of all the congregacyon of Israel.

The.xxxii. Chapter.

¶ The songe of Moses, whiche goeth vp the mount, and seyth the lõde of promesse, but commeth not in to it.

HErken (O ye heauens) I wyl speake: & let the earth heare Esa.1.a the wordes of my mouth.
Mich.1.a & My doctrine droppe & Esa.55.c as doth the rayne, and my speache flowe as doth the dew.

Euen as the rayne vpon the grasse, and as the droppes vpon the herbe.

For I wyll call vpon the name of the LORDE, geue ye the glory vnto oure God.

Gen.1.d * Perfecte are the workes of the Eccl.42.d Stone, for all his wayes are righteous God is true, and no wickednesse is ther in hym, righteous and iust is he.

The frowarde and ouerthwarte generacyon hath marred them selues to hymwarde and are not his children, because of their deformyte.

Thankest thou the LORDE thy God so, thou folish and vnwise people?

Mal.1.a * Is not he thy father & thy LORDE?
& Ge.1.d & hath he not made the, and prepared the?

Remembre the dayes that are past, consydre the yeares of the generacyons afore tyme.

Job.8.a * Aske thy father, he shall shewe the: thyne elders, they shall tell the.

Gen.11.b * Whã the moost Hyest dyuyded Actu.17.d the nacyons & scatred the childrẽ of mẽ.

B Then set he the borders of the nacyons acordynge to the nombre of the chyldren of Israel.

Deu.4.c * For the LORDES parte is his folke, Jacob is the meetlyne of his enheritaunce.

He founde hym in the wyldernesse, euen in the drye deserte wher he roared

He led hym aboute, and gaue hym vnderstondynge: He kepte hym as the apple of his eye.

As an Aegle stretch vp hir nest, and floterth ouer hir yonge: Euen so stretched he out his fethers, and toke hym *and bare hym on his wynges.

The LORDE onely was his gyde and there was no straunge God w hym.

He caried him ouer y height of the earth, and fed hym with the increase of the felde.

*He caused hym sucke hony out of the rocke, & oyle out of the harde stone.

Buttur of the kyne, and mylke of y shepe, with the fat of the lambes, and rammes of the sõnes of Basan, and he goates with the fat of the kidneys, and wheate: And gaue him drynke of the bery bloude of grapes.

* And whan he was fat and had ynough, he waxed wanton.

He is fat, and thicke, and smothe, & hath letten God go, that made him, and despysed the rocke of his saluacyon.

He hath prouoked hym to indignacyon, thorow straunge goddes, and thorow abhominacis hath he angred him. C

* They offred vnto feldeuels, and not vnto their God.

Vnto goddes whom they knew not euen vnto new goddes, that came newly vp, whõ their fathers honoured not.

Thy rocke that begat the, hast thou despysed: and hast forgotten God that made the.

And whan the LORDE sawe it, he was moued vnto wrath ouer his sonnes and his doughters.

And he sayde: I wyll hyde my face from them. I wyll se what their ende shall be: for it is a froward generacyon they are children in whome is no faith.

They haue prouoked me in it that is not God: with their vanites haue they angred me.

* And I agayne wyll prouoke them by those that are no people: by a folyshe nacyon wyll I anger them.

For the fyre is kindled in my wrath & shall burne vnto y botom of hell, and shall consume the londe with the increase therof, and set the foundacyon of the mountaynes on fyre.

I wyll heape myscheues vpon the, D I wyll spende all myne arowes at the.

They shall pine awaye thorow honger, and be consumed of the feuers, & of bytter sycknesses.

* I wyll sende amonge the the teth of beastes, and furious serpentes.

Without shall the swearde robbe them, & feare in the chambers, both the yonge man, and yonge woman, the suckynge chyldren wyth the grayheaded man.

I wyll saye: Where are they? I shal make theyr remembraunce to ceasse frõ amonge men.

Yf the wrath of the enemyes were not gathered, lest their enemyes shulde be prounde, and myght saye: Oure hande is hye, and: The LORDE hath not done all this.

For it is a people, wherin is no counsell, and there is no vnderstondynge in them.

O that they were wyse and vnderstode this, & they wolde consydre what shulde happen vnto them herafter.

How commeth it, that one shall chace a thousande of thẽ, and that two shall put ten thousande to flyght?

Is it not so, euẽ because their rocke hath solde them, and because the LORDE hath geuen them ouer?

E For oure rocke is not as their rocke, * of this are oure enemies iudges thẽselues.

Their vyne is of the vyne of Sodõ, and of the feldes of Gomorra: their grapes are the grapes of gal, they haue bytter clusters.

Their wyne is the poyson of Dragons, and the furious gall of Adders.

Is not this hid with me, and sealed vp in my treasures?

* Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyl rewarde in due season, their fote shall slyde for the tyme of their destructiõ is at honde, and the thynge & it is to come vpon them, maketh haiste.

For the LORDE shall iudge his people, * and shall haue compassion on his seruauntes. For he shall consydre & their power is awaye: and that it is gone with them, which were shut vp & remayned ouer.

And he shal saye: * Where are their goddes, their rocke wherin they trusted?

Of whose sacrifices they dyd eat & fat, & dranke & wyne of their drynkofferynges? Let them ryse vp and helpe you, and be youre protectyon.

F Knowe that I I am, * and that there is none other God but I.

* I can kyl and make alyue: what I haue smytten, that can I heale: * and there is no man able to delyuer out of my hande.

For I wyl lifte vp my hãde to he-uen, and wyl saye: I lyue euer.

Yf I whet the edge of my swearde, and my hande take holde of iudgement, then wyll I auẽge me on myn enemies, and rewarde them that hate me.

I wyll make myne arowes dronken with bloude, and my swearde shall eate flesh ouer the bloude of the slayne, and ouer the captiuite, and in that enemyes heade shall be discouered.

* Reioyse ye Heythen with his people: for he wyll auenge the bloude of his seruauntes, and wyll auẽge hym on his enemyes, and wyll be mercyfull vnto & londe of his people. Rom.15.d

And Moses came and spake all & wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, he and Iosua the sõne of Nun. Now whan Moses had made an ende of speakynge all these wordes vnto all Israell, he sayde vnto them: * Take to hart all the wordes, which I testifye vnto you this daye, that ye commaunde youre chyldren, to obserue and do al the wordes of this lawe. For it is no vayne worde vnto you, but it is your lyfe: and this worde shall prolonge youre lyfe in the londe, whyther ye go ouer Iordane to conquere it. G Deu.6.b and 11.c

And the LORDE spake vnto Moses the same daye, and sayd: Get the vp to this mount Abarim, vpon mount Nebo, which lyeth in the londe of the Moabites ouer agaynst Iericho, & beholde the londe of Canaã, which I shall geue vnto the chyldren of Israel in possessiõ. And dye thou vpon the mount, whan & art come vp, and be gathered vnto thy people, * lyke as Aarõ thy brother dyed vpõ mount Hor, and was gathered vnto his people: Because ye trespaced agaynst me amonge the chyldren of Israell by the * water of stryfe at Cades in the wyldernesse of Sin, and sanctifyed me not amõge the chyldrẽ of Israel. For thou shalt se the lõde ouer against the, which I geue vnto the chyldren of Israell but thou shalt not come in to it. Nu.20.d Nu.20.b

A swete blessynge, wherwith Moses blesseth the people before his death.

This is the blessynge, wherwt Moses the mã of God blessed the children of Israel before his death, & sayd * The LORDE came from Sinai, * and rose vp vnto the from Seir. He appeared frõ mount Paran, and came A Exo.3.a Exo.19.d

Moses goeth vp to the mount, where he dyeth. The children of Israell make lamentacyon for hym.

And * Moses wente fro the felde of the Moabites vp vn to mount Nebo, vpon the toppe of mount Pisga, ouer agaynst Iericho. And the LORDE shewed hym all the lande of Gilead vnto Dan, and all Nephtali, and the londe of Ephraim & Manasse, and all the londe of Juda, vnto the vttermoost see, and towarde the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the cite of the palme trees euen vnto zoar. And the LORDE sayde vnto him. This is the londe that I sware vnto Abrahā Isaac & Jacob, and sayde: I wyll geue it vnto thy sede. Thou hast sene it with thine eyes, * but thou shalt not go ouer thither.

B So Moses ye seruaunt of the LORDE died there in the londe of the Moabites, accordynge vnto the worde of the LORDE. And he buried hym in a valley, in the londe of the Moabytes ouer agaynst the house of Peor. And no man knewe of his graue vnto this day. And Moses was an hundreth and twentye yeare olde whan he dyed: his eyes were not dymme, & his chekes were not fallen. And the chyldren of Israell, * wepyed for Moses in the felde of the Moabites thirtie dayes, and ye dayes of the weppynge and mournynge for Moses were fullfylled.

C And Josua the sonne of Nun was fylled with the sprete of wysdome (* for Moses had layed his hande vpon hym) and the chyldren of Israell herkened vnto hym and dyd as the LORDE commaunded Moses, And there arose no Prophete more in Israell, lyke vnto Moses, whome the LORDE knew face to face in all tokens and wōders (which the LORDE sent hym to do in the londe of Egipte, vnto Pharao, and to all his seruauntes, and his londe) and in all this mightie hand, and great visions which Moses dyd in the sight of all Israell. After the death of Moses, God commaundeth Iosua to get hym vp, and to go with the people ouer Iordane in to the londe of promesse.

A After the death of Moses ỹ seruaunt of ỹ Lord spake the LORDE vnto Iosua ỹ son of Nun Moses mynister: My seruaunt Moses is dead, vp now, and go ouer this Iordane, thou and all this people in to the londe that I haue geuẽ the chyldrẽ of Israel.
..11.d ✱ All the places that the soles of youre fete shall treade vpon, haue I geuen vnto you. As I sayd vnto Moses: From the wyldernesse and this Libanus vnto the great water Euphrates: All ỹ londe of the Hethites vnto the great see towarde the west, shalbe youre border. B ✱ Be stronge therfore & very bolde,

C wysely whether so euer thou goest.
..17.d. ✱ And let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouthe, but exercyse thy selfe therin daye and nyght, that thou mayest kepe and do euery thynge accordynge to it that is wrytten therin: Then shalt thou prospere in thy wayes and deale wysely. Lo, I haue commaunded the to be stronge and bolde. Feare not, and be not afrayed: for the LORDE thy God is with the, whether so euer ỹ goest.

Then commaunded Iosua the offycers of the people, and sayd: Go thorow the hoost, and charge the people, & saye: Prepare you vytayles: for ouer thre dayes shall ye go ouer this Iordane, that ye maye come in and take possession of the londe, which the LORDE youre God shall geue you.

And to the Rubenites, Gaddites, & C to the halfe trybe of Manasse, sayd Iosua: Thynke vpon ỹ worde, ✱ that Mo Nu.32.d

Let youre wyues, and chyldren, and catell remayne in ỹ londe, that Moses gaue you on this syde Iordane: But ye youre selues (as many as be fyghtynge mẽ) shal go forth before your brethren in harnesse, & helpe them, tyll the LORDE haue broughte youre brethrẽ to rest also as wel as you: that they also may take possession of the londe, whiche the LORDE your God shall geue them: Then shall ye turne agayne in to the londe of your possession that ye maye enioye it, whiche Moses ỹ seruaunt of the LORDE hath geuen you on this syde Iordane towardes the East. And they answered Iosua & sayd ✱ All that thou hast commaunded vs, Deu.5.d wyll we do: and whether so euer thou 1.Mac.2.d sendest vs, we wyll go thether. Lyke as Iere.42.a we haue obeyed Moses, so wyll we be obedient also vnto the: Onely that the LORDE thy God be with the, lyke as he was with Moses. Whosoeuer disobeyeth thy mouth, and herkeneth not vnto thy wordes in all that thou hast cõmaunded vs, shall dye: Onely be thou stronge and bolde.

The .ii. Chapter.

Two spyes are sent vnto Iericho, & Rahab lodgeth them.

Iosua the sõne of Nun sent A out two spyes preuely from Sethim, and sayd vnto them: Go youre waye, loke vpon the londe, and Iericho. &c.

Heb.11.e Jac.2.e They wente forth, *and came in to the house of an harlot, called Rahab, & laye there. Then was it tolde the kynge of Jericho: Lo, there are men come in this nyghte from the chyldren of Israell, to spye the londe. Then sent the kynge of Jericho vnto Rahab, sayenge: Delyuer the men forth that are come vnto the in to thy house, for they are come to spye out the whole londe. Now as for ye two men, the woman had hyd them, & sayd: There came mē in vnto me in dede, but I knewe not whence they were. And at the shuttynge in of the gate whan it was darcke, they wente out, so that I can not tell whether they be gone: fo-lowe soone after them, for ye shall ouertake them. But she had caused them to clymme vp vnto the house toppe, and hydde them vnder the stalkes of flaxe, that she had prepared her vpon ye toppe of the house. Howbeit the men folowed after thē in the waye towarde Jordane, euen vnto the ferye: and whan they that folowed vpon them were gone forth, ye gate was shut.

B And or euer the men layed them downe to slepe, she wente vp to them vn to the house toppe, and sayd vnto them: I knowe that the LORDE shall delyof the londe are discoraged at youre com

LORDE dryed vp the water in the reed see before you, whan ye departed Nu.21.e out of Egipte: *and what ye dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amorites, Sihon and Og beyonde Jordane, how ye roted them out, and destroyed them.
And sence we herde therof, oure hartes hath fayled vs, nether is there a good stomake more in ony man, by the reason of youre commynge. For the LOR DE youre God is both the God aboue in heauen, and beneth vpon earth.

C Sweare now thē vnto me *euen by Deu.10.d the LORDE (for so much as I haue dealte mercyfully with you) that ye wyl also shewe mercy vpō my fathers house and geue me a true token, that ye wyll let my father lyue, and my mother, my brethren, and my systers, and all ye they haue, and delyuer oure soules frō death.
The men sayd vnto her: *Yf we shewe Josu.6.d not mercy and faythfulnesse vpon the, whan the LORDE geueth vs ye londe: then let oure soule dye for you, so farre as thou betrayest not our waye. *Thē let she them downe thorow ye wyndowe by a coarde: for her house was in ye wall of the cyte, and in ye wall was her dwellynge. And she sayd vnto them: Go youre waye vp to the mountaynes, lest they mete you that folowe vpon you: & hyde youre selues there thre dayes, tyl they be come agayne that folowe after you: and then get you youre waye.

But the men sayd vnto her: As for this ooth that thou hast taken of vs, we wyll be discharged of it whan we come in to the londe, excepte thou knyttest in the wyndowe the lyne of this rosecoloured rope (that thou hast lette vs downe withal) and gatherest vnto the in to the house, thy father, thy mother, thy bre-thre and all thy fathers house. And who whosoeuer goeth out at the dore of thy house, his bloude be vpō his owne heed, and we gyltlesse. But of all those that are in thy house, yf a honde be layed vp-on them, theyr bloude shalbe vpon oure owne heade. And yf thou betrayest ou-of this deuyce of oures, then wyll we be discharged of the ooth that thou hast taken of vs. She sayd: Let it be so as ye saye, and she let them go. And they went theyr waye. And she knyt the rosecoloured lyne in the wyndowe.

They went on theyr waye, & came to the mountaynes and remayned there thre dayes: tyll they that folowed vpon them were come agayn: for they sought them thorow euery strete, and yet they founde them not. So the two men turned agayne, and departed from the moun-taynes, & passed ouer (Jordane) & came to Josua the sonne of Nun, & tolde him euery thynge, as they had founde it, and they sayd vnto Josua: The LORDE hath geuen vs all the londe in to our hon-des, and all they that dwell in the londe, are sore afrayed of vs.

The.iii.Chapter.

Josua goeth forth with the people vnto Jordane: The Leuites are ordeyned to go before with the Arke. The one parte of Jordane stondeth styll, ye other runneth downe, and the people go tho-row it drye shodde.

AND Josua rose vp early, & they departed from Setim, and came vnto Jordane, he and al the chyldrē of Israel, & remayned there al nyght afore they wente ouer. But after thre dayes wente ỷ officers thorowe ỷ hoost and commaunded the people, and sayd: Whan ye se the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE youre God, and ỷ prestes from amonge the Leuites bearynge it, departe ye then out of youre place, & folowe after (but so, ỷ there be rowme betwene you and it by two thousande cu bites, and that ye come not nye it) that ye maye knowe what way ye shulde go: for ye neuer wente that waye afore.

B And Josua sayde vnto the people:
.20.a *Halowe youre selues, for to morowe
.11.b shall the LORDE brynge wonde-
.16.a rous thynges to passe amonge you. And vnto the prestes he sayde: Beare ye the Arke of the couenaunt, and go before ỷ
.7.b people. Then * bare they the Arke, and wente before the people. And ỷ LORDE sayd vnto Josua: This daye wyll I be-gynne to make the great in the syght of all Israel, that they maye knowe, how that lyke as I was with Moses, so am I with the also. And commaunde thou the prestes that beare the Arke, and say: Whan ye come before the water of Jor dane, stonde styll.
C And Josua sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: Come hether, & heare the worde of the LORDE youre God. He sayde moreouer: By this shal ye perceaue, that the lyuynge God is amonge you, & that he shall dryue out before you the Cananites, Hethites, Heuites, Pherezites, Girgosites, Ammorites and Jebusites.
Beholde, the Arke of the couenaunt of hym that hath dominion ouer al londes, shall go before you in Jordane. Take now therfore twelue mē out of ỷ trybes of Israel, out of euery trybe one. And whan the soles of the fete of the prestes that beare the Arke of the LORDE ỷ gouernoure of all londes, are set in the water of Jordane, then shall the water of Jordane withdrawe it selfe from the water that floweth from aboue, that it maye stonde on an heape.
D Now whā the people departed out of theyr tentes, to go ouer Jordane, and the prestes bare the Arke of couenaunt before the people, & came in to Jordane, and dypte theyr fete before in the water (as for Jordane on all his banckes it was full of all maner waters * of the londe) then the water that came downe from aboue, stode streyght vp vpon one heape, very farre from the cyte of Adom that lyeth on the syde of zarthan: But the water that ranne downe to the see (euen to the salt see) fell awaye, and de creased.
*So the people wente thorow ouer Psa. 65. a agaynst Jericho. And the prestes that bare the Arke of the LORDES couenaūt, stode drye in the myddes of Jor dane, ready prepared: & all Israel wente thorow drye shodde, vntyll the hole people were all come ouer Jordane.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Twelue stones doth Josua cause to be taken out of Jordane, and setteth thē vp at Gilgall for a remembraunce.

A And the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: Take ye twelue men, out of euery trybe one, and commaunde them, and saye: * Take vp twelue sto- Deu. 27. a nes out of Jordane, frō the place where the fete of ỷ prestes stode in theyr aray: and carye them with you, that ye maye leaue thē in the lodgynge, where ye shall lodge this nyghte. Then Josua called twelue men which were prepared of ỷ chyldren of Israel, out of euery trybe one and sayd vnto them: Go youre waye ouer before the Arke of the LORDE youre God in the myddes of Jordane, & take euery man a stone vpon his shulder after the nombre of the trybes of ỷ chyl dren of Israel, that they maye be a tokē amonge you. And whan youre chyldren aske theyr fathers herafter, & say: What do these stones there? That ye may thē saye vnto them, how that the water of Jordane claue in sunder before the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt, whan it went thorow Jordane, and that these stones are set for a perpetuall remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israel.
B Then dyd the chyldren of Israel as Josua commaunded them, & bare twelue stones out of ỷ myddes of Jordane (as the LORDE had sayd vnto Josua) bes of the chyldren of Israel, & brought the same with them in to the lodgynge, and lefte them there. And Josua set vp twelue stones in the myddes of Jordane where the fete of the prestes stode, that bare the Arke of the couenaunt: & there they be yet vnto this daye. As for the prestes that bare the Arke, they stode in the myddes of Jordane, vntyll all was perfourmed that the LORDE charged

Deu,27.a Josua to saye vnto the people * acordynge as Moses gaue Josua in commaundemēt. The people also made haist, and wente ouer. Now whan all the people was gone ouer, the Arke of ÿ LORDE wente ouer also, and the prestes wente before the people.

C *And the Rubenites, & Gaddites, & the halfe trybe of Manasse wente harnessed before the chyldren of Israel, lyke as Moses had sayd vnto them: Aboute a fortye thousande men ready harnessed to the warre, went before the LORDE to the batayll, vpon the felde of Jericho

Nu.32.e Josu,1.c

Josu.3.b *In that daye the LORDE made Josua great in the syght of all Israell: and lyke as they feared Moses, so stode they in awe of hym, all his lyfe longe.

And the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: Commaunde the prestes which beare the Arke of witnesse, that they come vp out of Jordane. So Josua commaunded the prestes, & sayde: Come vp out of Jordane. And whan the prestes that bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE were come out of Jordane, and trode with the soles of theyr fete vpon the drye londe, the water of Jordane came agayne in to his place, and flowed (lyke as afore tyme) vpon all his bankes.

D It was the tenth day of the fyrst moneth, whā ÿ people came vp out of Jordane: and they pitched theyr tentes in Gilgall vpon the East syde of the cite of Jericho. And the twelue stones which they had taken out of Jordane, dyd Josua set vp at Gilgall, and sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel: *Whan youre chyldren axe theyr fathers herafter, and saye: What meane these stones? Ye shall tell them, and saye: Israel wente drye thorow Jordane, what tyme as the LORDE youre God dryed vp the water of Jordane before you, vntyll ye were ouer: lyke as the LORDE youre God dyd in the reed see, *which dryed vp before vs, that we myght go thorow: that al ÿ people vpon earth myght knowe ÿ hāde of the LORDE, how myghtye it is, to the intent that ye shulde alwaye feare ÿ LORDE youre God.

Exo.12.d Exo 14.c.

The. v. Chapter.

¶ The kynges beyonde Jordane are afrayed. The people in Gilgall are circumcysed. They eate the Passeouer and vnleuended bread.

NOw whan all the kynges of ÿ Ammorites that dwelt beyond Jordane westward, and all the kynges of the Cananites by the see syde herde how the LORDE had dryed vp ÿ water of Jordane before the chyldren of Israel, tyll they were come ouer * their harte fayled them, nether was there any more corage in them at the presence of the chyldren of Israel.

At the same tyme sayd the LORDE vnto Josua: Make ÿ knyues * of stone, and circumcyse the chyldren of Israel agayne the seconde tyme. Then Josua made hym knyues of stone, and circumcysed the chyldren of Israell vpon the toppe of the forskynnes. And the cause why Josua circumcysed al the males of the people that were come out of Egipte is this: for all the men of warre dyed in the wyldernesse by the waye, after they were departed out of Egipte: for all the people that came forth, were circumcysed.

B But all the people that were borne in the wyldernesse by ÿ waye (after they departed out of Egipte) were not circumcysed: for the chyldren of Israel walked fortye yeares in the wyldernesse, vntyll all the people of the men of warre that came out of Egipte, were consumed, because they herkened not vnto ÿ voyce of ÿ LORDE, lyke as the LORDE sware vnto them, *that they shulde not se the londe which the LORDE sware vnto theyr fathers to geue vnto vs, euen a londe that floweth with mylke and hony: theyr chyldren which were come vp in theyr steade: dyd Josua cyrcumcyse: for they had ÿ forskynne, and were not circumcysed by the waye.

C And whan all the people were circumcysed, they abode in theyr place, euen in the tentes, tyll they were whole. And the LORDE sayde vnto Josua: This daye haue I turned the shame of Egipte awaye from you, and the same place was called Gilgall vnto this daye. And whyle the chyldren of Israel laye thus at Gilgall, they kepte Easter * the fourtenth daye of the moneth at euen in the felde of Jericho. And they dyd eate of the corne of the londe the seconde daye of the Easter: namely, vnleuended bread and frumentye of that yeare, euen the same daye. And vpon the morowe, the * Manna fayled, whan they dyd eat of the corne of the londe, so that the chil-then of Israell had nomore Manna, but dyd eate of the corne ofthe londe of Canaan the same yeare.

D And it fortuned y when Josua was by Jericho, he lifte vp his eyes, and was ware, that there stode a man agaynst hym, and had a naked swearde in his hande. And Josua wente to hym, & sayd vnto hym: Art thou one of vs, or of oure a.10.b enemyes? He sayde: No, but I am * the prynce of the LORDES hoost, and now am I come: Thē fell Josua down to the earth vpon his face, and worship ped hym, and sayd vnto hym: What say eth my LORDE vnto his seruaunt?
And the prynce ouer y LORDS hoost sayde vnto him: * Put thy shues of thy
.3.a fete, for the place wherevpon thou ston-
.7.b dest, is holy. And Josua dyd so.

The.vi.Chapter.

How Jericho is wonne and taken.

A ND for Jericho, it was shut & kepte because of the chyldrē of Israell, so that no man might go out nor in. But the LORDE sayd vnto Josua: Beholde, I haue geuen Jericho with y kynge & men of warre therof, in to thy hande. Let all the men of warre go once rounde aboute the cyte, and do so sixe dayes. But vpon the seuenth daye let y prestes take the seuen trompettes of the yeare of Jubilie before the Arke, and go the same seuenth daye seuen tymes a-boute the cyte, and let the prestes blowe the trompettes. And whan the horne of the yeare of Jubilye bloweth and ma-keth a sounde, so that ye heare the trom pettes, all the people shal make a greate shoute, then shall the walles of the cyte fall downe, and the people shall fall in, euery one straight before hym.
B Then Josua the sonne of Nun called the prestes, and sayde vnto them: Beare ye the Arke of the couenaunt, & let seuen prestes take the seuen trompet tes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arke of the LORD. But vnto the people he sayde: Get you hence, & go rounde aboute the cite, and let hym that is harnessed, go before the Arke of the LOR-DE. Whan Josua had spoken this vn to the people, the seuen prestes bare the seuē trōpettes of the yeare of Jubylye before the Arke of the LORDE, and wēte and blew the trompettes, and the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt folowed after them: & who so was harnessed, wente before the prestes y blewe the trompettes, and the multitude fol-owed the Arke. And all was full of the noyse of the trompettes. But Josua cō maunded the people, and sayde: Ye shal make no shoute, nor let youre voyce be herde, nether shall ye geue one worde out of youre mouth, vntyl the daye that I saye vnto you: Make a shoute, then make a shoute.
So the Arke of the LORDE wēte C once rounde aboute the cyte, and came agayne in to the hoost, and remayned therin: for Josua vsed to ryse vp early in the mornynge. And the prestes bare the Arke of the LORDE: so dyd the se uen prestes beare the seuen trompettes of the yeare of Jubilye before the Arke of the LORDE, and wente and blewe the trompettes: and who so was harnes sed, wente before thē, but the multitude folowed the Arke of the LORDE.
And all was full of the noyse of the trō pettes.
The seconde daye wente they once aboute the cyte also, and came agayne in to the hoost. Thus dyd they sixe day-es. But vpon the seuenth daye whan the mornynge sprynge arose, they gat them vp early, and wēte after the same maner seuen tymes aboute the cite, so y vpon the same one seuenth daye they wente seuen tymes aboute the cite.
And at the seuenth tyme whan the D prestes blewe the trompettes, Josua sayde vnto the people: Make a shoute, for the LORDE hath delyuered you the cyte: Howbeit this cyte, and all that is therin, shalbe dāned vnto the LOR-DE: * onely the harlot Rahab shall ly- Josu.2.c ue, and al that are with her in the house, for she hyd the messaungers, whom we sent forth. * Onely beware of it that Josu.7.a is damned, lest ye damne youre selues (yf ye take ought of it which is damned) and make the hoost, of Israell to be damned, and brynge it in to mysfortune. But all the syluer and golde, with the ornamentes of brasse and yron, shal-be sanctifyed vnto the LORDE, that it maye come to the LORDES treasure.
Then made the people a greate shoute, and the prestes blewe the trompettes (for whan the people herde the noyse of the trompettes, they made a Heb.11.f greate shoute) * and the walles fell, & the people clymmed vp in to the cyte, euery one straight before hym. Thus Deu.20.c. they wanne the cyte, and * destroyed all that was in the cyte with the edge of ye swearde, both man and woman, yonge and olde, oxe, shepe, and asse.

E But Josua sayd vnto the two men which had spyed out the londe: Go into the house of the harlot, and brynge out the womā from thence with all that she hath, acordynge as ye haue sworne vnto her. Then the yonge men (the spyes) wente in, and brought forth Rahab & her father and mother, and brethren, & all that she had, and al her kynrede, and caused her to dwel without the hoost of Israel. As for ye cyte, they brente it with fyre, and all that was therin: onely the syluer and golde, and the ornamentes of brasse and yron put they vnto the treasure in the house of the LORDE: but Heb.11.e Josua let * ye harlot Rahab lyue, with Jaco.2.e her fathers house, and all that she had:
and she dwelt in Israel vnto this daye, because she had hyd ye messaungers whō Josua sent vnto Jericho to spye.
At the same tyme sware Josua, and 3.Re.16.d sayd: * Cursed be that man before the LORDE, which setteth vp this cyte of Jericho and buyldeth it: Whan he layeth the foundacyon therof, let it cost hym his fyrst sonne: And whā he setteth vp the gates of it, let it cost hym his yon gest sonne. Thus the LORDE was with Josua, so that he was spoken of in all londes.

The.vii.Chapter.

The Israelites are put to flyght before theyr enemyes, because one of them had stolen of it that shuld haue ben dāned, and vtterly destroyed. The trespa-cer is stoned vnto death.

Deu.7.e But * the chyldren of Israell Josu.6.d had commytted a synne in ye 2.Re.12.f thynge that was damned: for Achan the sōne of Char-mi the sonne of Sabdi the sonne of Sarah, of the trybe of Juda, toke some of it that was damned. Thē was the wrath of the LORDE fearce ouer the chyldren of Israel.
Now whan Josua sent out men frō Jericho vnto Hai, whiche lyeth besyde Bethauen on the east syde of Bethel, he sayd vnto them: Go vp, & spye ye londe.
And whan they had gone vp, and spyed out Hai, they came agayne to Josua, & sayd vnto hym: Let not al the people go vp, but vpon a two or thre thousande, ye they may go vp and smyte Hai, lest all the people werye them selues there, for they are but fewe.
So there wente vp, of the people vpon a thre thousande men, and they fled before the men of Hai, and they of Hai smote vpon a sixe and thyrtye men of them, and chaced them frō the porte vnto Sebarim, and smote them downe the waye. Then was the hart of the people discoraged, * and became lyke water.
As for Josua he rente his clothes, & fel vpon his face vnto the earth before the Arke of the LORDE, vntyl the euenynge, with the Elders of Israel, & cast dust vpon theyr heades.
And Josua sayd: * Oh LORDE B LORDE, wherfore hast thou brought this people ouer Jordane, to delyuer vs in to the hādes of the Ammorites to de-stroye vs? O that we had taried beyonde Jordane, as we begāne. O my LORDE what shall I saye, whyle Israel turneth his backe vpō his enemies? Whan the Cananites heare of this, they shall compasse vs rounde aboute, yee and rote out our names frō of the earth. What wylt thou do then vnto thy great name?
Then sayd the LORDE vnto Josua: Stonde vp, why lyest thou so vpon thy face? Israel hath offended, and transgressed ouer my couenaunt, which I cō-maunded them. They haue taken of of the thynge that was damned, and haue stolen, and dyssembled, and layed it amonge theyr ornamentes. The chyldren of Israel are not able to stonde before theyr aduersaries, but muste turne theyr backes vpon theyr enemyes: for they are acursed. I wyl nomore be with you from hence forth yf ye put not out the damned from amonge you.
* Stonde vp, and sanctifie the peo- C ple, and saye: Sanctifie your selues against tomorow, for thus sayth ye LORDE God of Israel: * There is a damned thynge in ye O Israel, therfore cāst thou not stonde before thyne enemyes, tyll ye put awaye the damned from amonge you. And ye shall ryse vp early, one trybe after another: and loke which trybe soeuer the LORDE taketh, ye same shal come forth, one kynred after another: and loke which kynred the LOR-DE taketh, the same shall come forth, one house after another. And loke which house the LORDE taketh, the same shall come forth, one housholder after another. And whosoeuer is founde in the curse, the same shalbe burnt in the fyre with al that hath: because he hath gone beyonde the couenaunt of the LORDE, and committed folye in Israell.

Then Josua gat hym vp by tymes in the mornynge, and brought forth Israell, one trybe after another, and the trybe of Juda was taken. And whã he had brought forth the kynreds in Juda, the kynred of the Serahites was takẽ.
And whan he had brought forth ye kyn red of the Serahites, one housholde after another, Sabdi was takẽ. And whã he had brought forth his house, one housholder after another, Achan the sonne of Charmi the sonne of Sabdi ye sonne of Serah, of ye trybe of Juda, was taken.
And Josua sayde vnto Achan: My sonne, geue the glory vnto the LORD the God of Israell, and geue him the prayse, and tel me, what thou hast done, D and hide nothynge from me.
Then answered Achan vnto Josua, and sayd: Verely I haue synned against the LORDE God of Israell, thus & thus haue I done: I sawe amonge the spoyles a costly Babylonysh garment, & two hũdreth Sycles of syluer & a tũge of gold, worth fiftye Sycles in weight, vnto which I had a lust, and toke it: & and beholde, it is hyd in the grounde in my tente, and the syluer vnder it.
Then Josua sent messaungers thy-ther, which ranne to the tente, and be-holde, it was hyd in his tente, and ye syl uer vnder it. And they toke it out of the tente, and broughte it vnto Josua, and to all the chyldren of Israel and poured it before the LORDE. Then Josua & all Israell with hym, toke Achan ye sõne of Serah with the syluer, the garment, and golden tunge, his sonnes and dough ters, his oxen and asses, and shepe, and all that he had, broughte they in to the valley of Achor.
And Josua sayde: For so much as ye hast troubled vs, the LORDE trouble the this daye. And all Israell stoned hym, and burned hym with fyre wyth all ye he had. And whã they had stoned him, they made ouer him a greate heape of stones, which remayneth vnto thys daye. (So the LORDE turned from the fyercenes of his wrath.) Therefore is the same place called the valley of Achor vnto this daye.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ The cite of Hai is wonne, the people slayne, the kynge taken alyue and hanged, the cite brent. Josua buyldeth an altare vnto the LORDE. The blessinges and curses are red.

A AND the LORDE sayde vn-
to Josua: *Feare not, and Deu.7.d be not afrayed. Take al the men of warre with the, and ryse, & get the vp vnto Hai.
Beholde, I haue geuen in to thy hande, the kynge of Hai, with his people in his cite and countre. And thou shalt do with Hai and the kynge of it, *as thou dyd- Josu.6.d dest with Jericho and the kynge therof, sauynge that ye shall deale amonge you theyr spoyle and catell: but set thou a *preuy watch behynde the cyte. Josu.8.a Then Josua arose, and all the men of warre, to go vp vnto Hai: and Josua chose thyrtie thousande fyghtynge men, and sent them out by nyght, and cõmaũded them, and sayde: Take hede, ye shal be the preuye watch behynde the cyte, but go not to farre from the cyte, and se that ye be redye altogether. As for me and all the people that is with me, we wyll gett vs to the cyte. And whã they come forth agaynst vs (*as afore) we Josu.7.a wyll flye before them, that they maye fo-lowe out after vs, tyll we haue prouoked them forth of the cite: for they shal thynke that we flye before them, lyke as at the fyrst. And whyle we flye before B them, ye shal gett you vp out of the pre-uy watch, and wynne the cyte. For the LORDE youre God shall delyuer it in to youre handes. But whan ye haue wonne the cite, set fyre vpon it, doynge *accordynge vnto ye worde of ye LOR- Deu.[illegible] DE. Beholde, I haue commaunded it you.
So Josua sent them awaye, & they wente vnto the place of ye preuy watch, and laye betwixte Bethel & Hai, on the westsyde of Hai. But Josua abode ye nyght amonge the people. And in ye mor-nynge he arose early, and set the people in order, and wente vp with the Elders of Israel before ye people towarde Hai.
& al the mẽ of warre ye were with him, wente vp, and gat them forth, & came ouer agaynst the cite, and pitched theyr tentes on the north syde of Hai, so that there was but a valley betwene hym & Hai.
C He had taken aboute a fyue thousande men, and set them in the hynder watch betwene Bethel and Hai, on the westsyde of the cite, and they ordred the people of the whole hoost that was on the north syde of the cite, so that the vttermoost of the people reached vnto the west ende of ye cite. So Josua wente the same nighte in to ye myddes of the valley.

But whan the kynge of Hai sawe that, he made hast, and gat him vp early, and the men out of the cite, to mete Israell to the battayll, with all his people, euẽ right before ye felde: for he wyst not that there was a preuy watch behynde hym on the back syde of the cite. But Josua and all Israell were feble before them, and fled by the waye to the wyldernesse. Then cried all the people

D in the cite, that they shulde folowe vpon them, and they folowed after Josua & euysshed out of the cite, so that there remayned not one man in Hai and Bethell, which wente not out to folowe vpon Israell, and they lefte the cite stondynge open, that they might persecute Israell.

Then sayde the LORDE vnto Josua: Reach out the speare that thou hast in thyne hande, toward Hai: for I wyll delyuer it in to thy hande. And whã Josua reached out the speare that was in his hande, towarde the cite, the hynder watch brake vp out of their place, and ranne (whan he had stretched out his hande) and came in to the cite & wanne it, & made hast, & set fyre vpon it. And the men of Hai turned them, and loked behynde them, and the smoke of the cite wente vp towarde heauẽ, and they had no place to flye vnto, nether hither nor thither; and the people that fled toward ye wyldernesse, turned aboute to folowe vpon them.

E And whan Josua and all Israell saw that the hynder watch had wonne the cite (for the smoke of the cite ascended) they turned agayne, and smote the men of Hai. And they in the cite came forth also agaynste them, so that they came in the myddes amonge Israell on both the sydes, and they slewe them, so that there was not one mã of them left ouer or escaped: and they toke the kyng of Hai alyue, and brought him vnto Josua. And whan Israel had slayne al the inhabiters of Hai, whiche had folowed vpon them in the felde and in the wyldernesse: and whan they were all fallen thorow the edge of the swearde, tyll they were destroyed, then turned all Israell vnto Hai, and smote it with the edge of the swearde. And of all them which fell that daye fro man vnto woman, there were twolue thousande, al men of Hai.

But Josua withdrue not his hande (wherewith he reached out the speare) tyll all the inhabiters of Hai were vtterly destroyed, * sauynge the catel and the spoyle of the cite, dyd Israell parte amonge them selues, accordynge vnto the worde of the LORDE, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua burned vp Hai, and made an heape therof foreuer, which is ther yet vnto this daye. And the kynge of Hai caused he to be hanged on a tre vntyll the euen.

* But whan the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to take his body from the tre, and to cast it vnder the gate of the cite, and made vpon hym a greate heape of stones, whiche is there yet vnto this daye.

Then buylded Josua an altare vnto the LORDE God of Israell vpon mount Ebal * accordynge as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE commaunded the children of Israell, as it is wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moses, euen an altare of whole stone, wherevpon there was no yron lifted: and he offred burntofferynges and thankofferynges, and there vpon the stones he wrote the seconde lawe of Moses, whiche he wrote before the chyldren of Israell.

And all Israell with their Elders and officers and iudges, stode on both the sydes of ye Arke, right ouer agaynst the prestes that bare the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE, the straunger as well as one of them selues, the one halfe besyde mounte Gerisim, and the other halfe besyde mounte Ebal, * as Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE commaunded afore, to blesse the people of Israel. Afterwarde caused he to proclame all the wordes of the lawe of the blessynge and cursynge, as it is written in the boke of the lawe. There was not one worde that Moses commaunded, but Josua caused it to be proclamed before all the congregacion of Israell, and before the wemen, and children, and straungers whiche walked amonge them.

The.ix.Chapter.

The Heythen kynges prepare them selues agaynst Israell. The Gabaonites saue their lyues by craft and subtiltie.

A NOW whan all the kynges that were beyonde Jordane vpon the mountaynes, and in the lowe countrees, & in all the hauens of the greate see, and besyde mounte Libanus, herde this (namely the Hethites, Ammorites, Cananites, Pheresites, Heuites and Jebusites) they gathered them selues together w one accorde, to fight agaynst Josua, and agaynst Israell.

11.a * But whan the inhabiters of Gibean herde, what Josua had done with Jericho and Hai, they dealte craftely, wente on their waye, & made a message and toke olde sackes vpon their asses, and olde rente wyne bottels, and olde mended shues vpon their fete, and put on olde and peced garmentes, and all the bread of their vitayles was harde and moulde, and they wente vnto Josua in to the hoost at Gilgall, and sayde vnto hym, and to euery man in Israell: We are come out of a farre countre, and therfore make now a couenaunt with vs. Then sayde euery man in Israell vnto the Heuytes: Peraduenture thou dwellest among vs, how can I then make a couenaunt with the?

B They sayde vnto Josua: We are thy seruauntes. Josua sayd vnto them: What are ye, & whence come ye? They sayde: Thy seruauntes are come out of a very farre countre, because of ŷ name of the LORDE thy God: for we haue herde the reporte of hym, and all that he dyd in Egipte, and all that he dyd vnto the two kynges of the Ammorites beyonde Jordane, Sihon ŷ kyng at Hesbon, and Og ŷ kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth. Therfore sayde oure Elders and all the inhabiters of oure countre: Take fode with you for youre iourney, & go mete them: and saye vnto them: We are youre: seruauntes, therfore make now a bonde with vs. This oure breade that we toke out of oure houses for oure foode, was new whan we toke oure iourney towarde you: but now, lo, it is harde and moulde. And these bottels fylled we newe, and lo, they are rente. And these oure clothes and shues are waxed olde, by the reason of the sore longe iourney.

C Then the captaynes toke their vitayles, and axed not the mouth of the LORDE.

11.a * And Josua made peace with thē, and set vp a couenaunt with them, that they shulde be saued alyue, & the rulers of the congregacyon sware vnto them. But thre dayes after that they had made a couenaunt with them, they herde that they were theyr neyghbours, and dwelt among them: For as the chyldren of Israel went forth on theyr iourney they came on the thyrde daye vnto theyr cyties, which are called Gibeon, Caphira, Beeroth, and Kiriath Jearim, and smote them not, because that the rulers of the congregacion had sworne vnto them by the name of the LORDE the God of Israel.

But whan all the congregacyō murmured agaynst the rulers, all the rulers sayde vnto the whole congregaciō: We haue sworne vnto them by the LORDE the God of Israell, therfore maye we not touch them. But this wyl we do vnto them: Let them lyue, ŷ there come no wrath vpon vs, because of the oth that we haue made vnto them.

And the rulers sayde vnto thē: Let them lyue, that they maye be * hewers D of wood and bearers of water for the whole congregacion, as the rulers haue sayde vnto them. Then Josua called them, and commened wyth them, and sayde: Wherfore haue ye deceaued vs, and sayd, that ye were farre from vs, where as ye dwell amonge vs? Therfore shall ye be cursed, so that of you there shall not ceasse seruauntes to hew wood and to beare water for the house of my God.

Deu. 29.b

They answered Josua, and sayde: It was tolde thy seruauntes, that the LORDE thy God commaunded Moses his seruaunt, that he shuld geue you the whole londe, and that he wolde destroye all the inhabiters of the londe before you: therfore were we sore afrayed of oure lyues before you, and thus haue we done. But now lo, we are in thy handes: loke what thou thynkest good and ryghte to do vnto vs, that do.

And he dyd euen so vnto them, and delyuered them from the chyldren of Israels hande, that they shulde not slaye them. So vpon the same daye Josua made them hewers of wood, and water bearers for the congregacyon, and for ŷ altare of the LORDE vnto this daye, in the place that he shall chose.

The .x. Chapter.

The Heythē laye sege to Gabaon, but Josua helpeth them, and wynneth

A ye sale felde cōmaundeth the Sonne to stonde styl, hangeth vp fyue kynges, and taketh the cities.

A WHan Adonisedech the kynge of Ierusalem herde, that Iosua had wonne Hai, and dāned it, and done vnto Hai & the kyng of it, lyke as he dyd vnto Iericho and to the kynge therof, * and that they of Gybeon had made peace with Israell, and were come vnder them, they were sore afrayed. For Gibeon was a great cite, lyke as one of the kynges cities, and greater then Hai and all the citesyns therof were men of armes. Therfore sent he vnto Hoham the kynge of Hebron, & to Pirea kynge of Iarmuth, and to Iaphia the kynge of Lachis, and to Debir the kynge of Eglon, and caused to saye vnto them: Come vp vnto me, and helpe me, that we maye smyte Gibeon, for they haue made peace with Iosua and the childre of Israell. Then came the fyue kynges of the Ammorites together, and wente vp: the kynge of Ierusalem, the kyng of Hebron, ẏ kynge of Iarmuth, ẏ kynge of Lachis the kynge of Eglon, with all theire armyes, and layed sege vnto Gibeon, and fought agaynste it.

B Howbeit they of Gibeon sent vnto Iosua to Gilgall, and caused to to saye vnto hym: Withdrawe not thine hande from thy seruauntes, come vp soone vnto vs: delyuer and helpe vs, for all the kynges of ẏ Ammorites that dwell vpon the mountaynes, are gathered together agaynst vs. Iosua wente vp from Gilgal, and al the warryers and all the men of armes with him. And the LORDE sayd vnto Iosua: * Feare thē not for I haue geuen them in to thy hande. There shall not one of them be able to stonde before the. So Iosua came sodē ly vpon them, for all that night wēte he vp from Gilgall. * And the LORDE discomfited thē before Israell, & smote them with a great slaughter at Gibeō: and they chaced them the way downe to Beth Horon, and smote them vnto Aseka and Makeda.

Iosu.8.a
Esa.28.d

C And whan they fled before Israell, the waye downe to Bethoron, ẏ LORDE causeth a greate hayle from heauē to fall vpon them, vnto Aseka, so that they dyed: and many mo of them dyed of the hayle, then the chyldren of Israel slewe with the swearde.

Then spake Iosua vnto the LORDE the same daye that the LORDE gaue ouer the Ammorites before ẏ children of Israel (and sayd in the presence of Israel: * Sonne, holde styl at Gibeon, and thou Moone in ẏ valley of Aialon.

Then the Sonne helde styll, and the Moone stode, vntyll the people had auenged them selues on their enemies. Is not this wrytten in the boke of the righteous? Thus the Sonne stode styll in the myddes of heauen, and differred to go downe for the space of a whole daye after. And there was no daye lyke vnto this (nether before nor after) whā the LORDE herkened vnto the voyce of one man: for the LORDE fought for Israel. And Iosua wente agayne to Gylgall in to the tentes, and all Israel with hym. As for the fyue kynges, they were fled, and had hyd them selues in the caue at Makeda.

...5.c

D Then was it tolde Iosua: We haue founde the fyue kynges hyd in the caue at Makeda. Iosua sayde: Walle greate stones then before the hole of the caue, and set men there to kepe them.

As for you, stonde not ye styll, but folowe after youre enemyes, and smyte them behynde, and let them not come in to their cities, for the LORDE youre God hath delyuered them in to youre hande. And whan Iosua and the children of Israel had ended the sore great slaughter vpon thē, so that they were brought to naught, the remnaunt of them came in to the stronge cities.

So all the people came agayne to the hoost vnto Iosua to Makeda in peace, and noman durst moue his tunge agaynste the children of Israel. Iosua sayde: Open the mouth of the caue, and brynge the fyue kynges forth vnto me. They dyd so, and broughte the kynges vnto hym out of the caue: the kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Iarmuth, the kyng of Lachis the kynge of Eglon.

E When these fyue kynges were brought forth vnto hym, Iosua called euery man of Israel, and sayd vnto the rulers of the men of warre that went with hym: Come forth and treade vpon the neckes of these kynges with youre fete. And they came forth and trod vpō their neckes w their fete, and Iosua sayd vnto them: Be not afrayed and feare not: be stronge and bolde, for thus shall the LORDE do vnto all youre enemyes, agaynst whome ye fight.

And Josua smote them afterwarde and put them to death, and hanged thē vpon fyue trees. And they hanged styll vpon ÿ trees vntyll the euenyng. * But whan the Sonne was gone downe, he commaunded to take them of from the trees: and they caste them in the caue, wherin they had hyd themselues, & before ÿ hole of the caue they layed greate stones, whiche are there yet vnto this daye. The same daye wāne Josua Makeda also, and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and the kynge therof, and * damned it, & all the soules that were therin, & letnone remayne escaped, and dyd vnto the kynge of Makeda * as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho.

Then Josua and all Israell with hym departed frō Makeda vnto Libna and fought agaynst it. (And the LORDE gaue it with the kynge therof into the hāde of Israel) and smote it and all the soules that were therin, with the edge of the swearde, and let not one remayne in it: and dyd vnto ÿ kynge therof as he had done vnto the kynge of Jericho.

F Afterwarde wente Josua and all Israell with him from Libna vnto Lachis, and layed sege vnto it, and fought agaynst it. And the LORDE delyuered Lachis also in to the hande of Israell, so that they wanne it vpon the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therin, acordynge to all as he had done vnto Libna. At the same tyme Horam the kynge of Gezer wente vp, to helpe Lachis. But Josua smote hym with all his people, tyll there remayned not one.

And Josua wente with all Israell from Lachis, vnto Eglon, and layed sege vnto it, and fought agaynst it, and wāne it the same daye, & smote it with the edge of the swearde, and damned al the soules that were therin the same day, acordyng vnto all as he had done vnto Lachis.

After that wēte Josua with all Israell from Eglon vnto Hebron, and fought agaynste it, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swearde and the kynge of it, & all the cities therof, and all the soules that were therin, and let not one remayne, acordynge vnto all as he had done vnto Eglon: and damned it, and all the soules that were therin.

G Then turned Josua againe with all Israell towarde Debir, and fought agaynst it, and wanne it, with the kynge of it, and al the cities therof, and smote them with the edge of the swearde, and damned all the soules that were therin and let not one remayne ouer. Euen as he had done vnto Hebron and Lybna with their kynges, so dyd he also vnto Debir, and the kynge therof.

Thus Josua smote all the londe vpon the mountaynes, & towarde ÿ south, and in the lowe countrees, and by the ryuers, & al their kynges, & let not one remayne ouer and damned all that had breth, * as the LORDE God of Israel had cōmaunded. And Josua smote thē from Cades Bernea vnto Gaza, and al the londe of Gosen vnto Gibeon, & toke all these kynges with their londe at one tyme: for the LORDE God of Israel fought for Israell. And Josua wente agayne with all Israel to the tentes vnto Gilgall. Deu. 20.

¶ The Heythen kynges gather them selues together agaynst Israel: but they are discomfited, and their cities wonne.

When Jabin the kynge of Asor herde this, he sent vnto Jabob the kyng of Madon & to the kynge of Simron, and to ÿ kynge of Achsaph, and to the kynges that dwelt towarde the north vpon the mountaynes, and in the playne on ÿ southsyde of Cineroth, and in the lowe countrees, and in the lordshippes of Dor by the see syde: and to the Cananites towarde the east and west, to the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, and Jebusites, vpon the mountaynes and to the Heuites, vnder mounte Hermon in the londe of Mispa. These wēte out with all their armies, a great people, as many as the sonde of the see, and exceadynge many horses and charettes. All these kynges gathered them selues, and came, and pitched together by the water of Merom, to fighte with Israell. A

And the LORDE sayde vnto Josua: Feare thē not, for to morow about this tyme wyll I delyuer thē all slayne, before the children of Israell: thou shalt lame their horses, and burne thir charettes with fyre. * And Josua came sodenly vpon them, and all the men of warre with hym by the water of Merom, and B Josu.10.

fell vpon them. And the LORDE delyuered them in to the handes of Israell, and they smote them, and chaced them vnto greate Sydon and to the warme water, and to the playne of Mispa towarde the east: and smote them, vntyll there remayneth not one.

Then dealte Josua with them as the LORDE had sayd vnto hym, and lamed their horses, and brent their charettes. And he turned backe at the same tyme, and wanne Hasor, and smote the kynge of it with the sweard (for Hasor was afore tyme ỹ heade cite of all these kyngdomes) and smote all the soules that were therin with the edge of the sweard, and damned it, and let nothing remayne that had breth, and damned Hasor with fyre. All the cities of these kyngdomes wanne Josua also, & smote them with the edge of the swearde, and

Deu. 20.c damned them, * acordynge as Moses the seruaũt of the LORD commaũded

C Howbeit the cities that stode vpon the hylles, dyd not the childrẽ of Israell burne with fyre: but Hasor onely dyd

Nu.31.d Josua burne. * And all the spoyles of these cities and the catell, dyd the children of Israell deale amonge them but smote all the men with the edge of the swearde, tyll they had destroyed them, and let nothing remayne that had breth As the LORDE commaunded his seruaunt Moses, and as Moses commaũded Josua euẽ so dyd Josua, so ỹ there was nothynge vndone of all that the LORDE commaunded Moses.

So Josua toke all this londe vpon the mountaynes, and all that lyeth towarde the south, and all the lõde of Gosen, and the lowe cõtre, and the playne felde, & the mountayne of Israell with the valley therof, from the mountayne that parteth ỹ londe vp towarde Seir vnto Baalgad, in the playne of mount Libanus beneth moũt Hermõ. All their kynges toke he, and smote them, & put

D Yet was there not one cite, that yelded it selfe peaceably vnto the chyldren

Josue.9.a of Israel *(excepte ỹ Heuithes, which dwelt at Gibeon) but they wanne them all with batayll. And this was done so of the LORDE, that their harte was so hardened, to come against the childrẽ of Israel with battayl, that they might be damned, and no fauour to be shewed

Deu. 20.c vnto them, but to be destroyed, * as the LORDE commaunded Moses.

At the same tyme came Josua, and roted out the Enakyms from the mountayne, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, from euery mountayne of Juda, and from euery mountayne of Israel, and damned thẽ with their cities, and let none of the Enakyms remayne in the londe of the chyldren of Israel, saue at Gasa, * at Gath, at Asdod, there remayned of them.

Thus Josua conquered all the londe acordyng vnto all as the LORD sayde vnto Moses, and gaue it vnto Israell to enheritaunce, * vnto euery trybe his porcyon, & the londe rested from warre.

The.xii.Chapter.

The names of the kinges whom Josua and the Israelites slewe, are here rehearsed, euen one and thirtie.

These are the kynges of the londe, whome the chyldrẽ of Israell smote, and conquered their londe, beyonde Jordane, eastwarde, frõ the water of Arnon, vnto mount Hermõ, and vnto all the playne felde towarde the east: * Sihon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon, and had dominion from Aroer that lyeth by the watersyde of Arnon, and vnto the myddes of ỹ water: and ouer halfe Gilead, vnto the water of Jabok, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: and ouer the playne felde, vnto ỹ see of Cenneroth eastwarde, and vnto the see of the playne felde, namely the Salt see towarde the east, the waye vnto Beth Jesimoth: and from the south beneth vnder the ryuers of mount Pisga.

* And the border of Og the kynge of Basan, which remayned yet of the Raphaims, & dwelt at Astaroth and Edrei, and had the dominion ouer mount Hermon, ouer Salcha, and ouer all Basan vnto the border of Gessuri and Maachaty, and of halfe Gilead, which was the border of Sihon the kynge at Hesbon, Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE and the chyldren of Israell smote them. * And Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue it vnto the Rubenites, Gaddites and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in possessyon.

These are ỹ kinges of the lõde, which Josua and the chyldrẽ of Israel smote on this syde Jordane westwarde, from Baalgad vpõ the playne of mount Lihamis, unto the mount that parteth the londe up towarde Seir, and that Josua gaue unto the trybes of Israell in possessiō, unto euery one his parte, what so euer was in the mou͠tayns, valleyes, playne feldes, by the ryuers, in the wyldernesses and towarde the south, the Hethites, Ammorites, Cananites, Pheresites, Heuytes, and Jebusites.

The.xiii.Chapter.

The remnaunt of the londe on this syde Jordane

A Now whan Josua was olde, and well stricken in age, the LORDE sayde unto hym: Thou art olde, & well aged, & there remayneth yet much of the londe to conquere, namely all Galile of the Philistynes, and all Gessuri, frō Sihor which floweth before Egipt, unto the border of Ekron, northwarde, which is rekened unto the Cananites: fyue lordes of the Philistynes, namely, the Gasites, the Asdodites, the Ascalonytes, the Gethites, the Ekronytes and the Auites. But from the south it is all the londe of the Cananites, and Maara of the Sidonians unto Aphek, euen unto the border of the Amorites. Moreouer the londe of ỹ Giblites & all Lybanus eastward, from Baalgad under mōte Hermon, tyll a mā come unto Hamath. Nu.26.f and.33.f * But by lot dyd they deuyde it out amonge them, accordynge as the LORDE commaunded Moses to geue vnto the nyne trybes and the halfe: for vnto the two trybes and the half dyd Moses geue enheritaunce beyonde Jordane.
Josu.13.b * But vnto the Leuites he gaue no enheritaunce amonge them.
‡ Ge.48.c ‡ For of the chyldren of Joseph there were two trybes, Manasses and Ephraim. Therfore gaue they the Leuites no porcyon in the londe, but cyties to dwell therin, and suburbes for their catell & goodes. * Euen as the LORDE commaunded Moses, so dyd the chyldren of Israell, and deuyded the londe.

Then came forth the chyldren of Juda to Josua at Gilgall: and Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite sayde vnto hym: Thou knowest what the LORDE * sayd vnto Moses the man of God, concernynge me, and the in Cades Bernea. I was fortye yeare olde, when Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE * sent me out from Cades Bernea to spye out the londe, and I brought hym worde agayne, euen as I had it in my harte. Howbeit my brethren that went vp with me, discouraged the harte of the people: but I folowed the LORDE my God vnto the vttermost.

Then sware Moses vnto me the same daye, and sayde: The londe wherupon thou hast trode with thy fete, shall be thyne enheritaunce and thy chyldrens for euer, because thou hast folowed the LORDE my God vnto the vttermost. And now hath the LORDE letten me lyue, * accordyng as he sayd. It is now fyue and fortye yeare sence the LORDE spake this vnto Moses, whan Israel walked in the wildernesse. And now lo, this day am I fyue & foure score yeare olde, * & am yet as strōge to daye, as I was in that daye whan Moses sent me out: euen as my strenght was thē, so is it now also to fight, and to go out & in.

Geue me now therfore this mountayne, wherof the LORDE spake in that day: and thou hardest it the same day. For now the Enakims dwell theron, and it hath great and stronge cities, yf happily the LORDE wyll be with me, that I maye dryue them out, as he hath sayde. Then Josua blessed hym, * and so gaue Hebron vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune. therfore was Hebron the enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite, vnto this daye, because he folowed the LORDE God of Israell vnto the vttermost. * But before tyme was Hebron called Kiriatharba, and great people were there amonge the Enakyms. And the londe ceassed from warre.

The.xvi.Chapter.

The lot of Ephraim.

A AND the lot fell vnto the chyldren of Ioseph frõ Iordane ouer agaynst Iericho, vnto the water on the East syde of Iericho, and the wyldernesse, that goeth vp frõ Iericho thorow the mountayne of Bethel, and commeth out from Bethel vnto Lus, and goeth thorow the coast of Archi Ataroth, and stretched downe westward vnto y coast of Iaphleti to the border of the lower Bethoron, and vnto Gaser: and y ende therof is by the great see. Thus the chyldren of Ioseph Manasses and Ephraim receaued to enheritaunce.

The border of the chyldrẽ of Ephraim amonge theyr kynredes of theyr enheritaunce from the the east, was Ataroth Adar vnto the vpper Bethoron, & goeth out westwarde by Michmethath that lyeth towarde the north, there fetcheth it a compasse towarde the eastsyde
B of the cyte Thaanath Silo, and goeth there thorowe from the east vnto Ianoha, and commeth downe from Ianoha vnto Ataroth and Naaratha, and bordereth on Iericho, and goeth out at Iordane. From Tapuah goeth it westwarde vnto Naalkana, and the outgoynge of it is at the see.

This is the enheritaunce of y trybe of the chyldrẽ of Ephraim among theyr kynreds. And al the borders, cyties with theyr vyllages of the chyldren of Ephraim laye scatered among the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Manasse. And they droue not out the Cananites, which dwelt at Gaser. So the Cananites remayned amõge Ephraim vnto this day and became tributaries.

The.xvii.Chapter.

The lot and porcyon of Manasse.

AND the lot fell vpon y trybe A of Manasse (for * he is Ioseph's fyrst sonne) and it fell vpon Machir the fyrst sõne of Manasse the father of Gilead: for he was a man of armes, therfore had he Gilead and Basan. It fell also vnto the other chyldren of Abieser, the chyldren of Helek, the chyldren of Asriel, the chyldren of Sechem, the chyldrẽ of Hepher, and the chyldren of Semida. These are the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Ioseph, males, amonge theyr kynredes.

* But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasse, had no sonnes, but doughters, and theyr names are these: Mahala, Noa, Hagla, Milca Tirza, and they cam before Eleasar the prest, and before Iosua the sõne of Nun and before the rulers, and sayde: The LORDE cõmaunded Moses, to geue vs enheritaunce amonge oure brethren. And so they had enheritaunce geuen the amonge theyr fathers brethren, accordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE.

There fell vpon Manasse ten B meteyardes without the londe of Gilead & Basan, which lyeth beyonde Iordan. For the doughters of Manasse receaued enheritaunce amonge his sonnes: but y other chyldren of Manasse had the londe of Gilead. And the border of Manasse was from Aser forth vnto Mich-methath, that lyeth before Sichem, and reacheth vnto the ryghte syde of them of En Tapuah: for the londe of Tapuah fell vnto Manasse, and yᵉ border of Manasse is vnto the chyldren of Ephraim. Then commeth it downe to Nahelkana towarde the south syde of the ryuer cities, which are Ephraims a monge the cyties of Manasse. But from the north is the border of Manasse by the ryuer, and goeth forth by the see, southward vnto Ephraim, and to Ma nasse northwardes, and the see is his coa ste. And it shal border on Asser from the north, and on Isachar from the easte.

C So (amõge Isachar and Asser) Ma nasse had Beth Sean and the townes therof, and Jeblaã and the townes ther of, and them of Dor and their townes, and them of En Dor and their townes and them of Taanach and their townes, & thẽ of Mageddo & their townes, & the thirde parte of (the cyte.) Nophet And the chyldren of Manasse could not dryue awaye the inhabiters of these cities but the Cananites begãne to dwell in the same londe. Howbeit whan the chyldren of Israel were able, they made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.
Then spake the chyldren of Joseph vnto Josua, and sayde: Wherfore hast thou geuen me but one porcion and one meetlyne of enheritaunce, and I am yet a greate people, as the LORDE hath blessed me so largely? Then sayde Josua vnto thẽ: For so much as thou art a greate people, go vp therfore in to the wood, and make thy selfe rowme there in the londe of the Pheresites and Ra-phaim, seynge mount Ephraim is to na rowe for the.
D Then sayde the chyldren of Joseph:
We shall not be able to attayne vnto yᵉ mountaynes, for there are yron charettes amõge all the Cananites, that dwel in the londe of Emek, by whom lyeth Beth Sean and the vyllages therof, & Israell in Emek. Josua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, euen to Ephraim and Manasses: Thou art a greate people, & for so much as thou art so greate, thou must not haue one lot, but the mõtayne where the wood is, shall be thyne: rote that out for the, so shall it be the outgoynge of thy porcyon, whan thou dryuest out the Cananites, which haue yrõ charettes, and are myghtie.

The.xviii.Chapter.

Men are sent out of the seuẽ trybes, to consyder the londe, & to deale it out, The porcion of Ben Jamin.

And all the multitude of the A chyldren of Israell gathered them selues together vn to Silo, and they set vp the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the londe was subdued vnto them.
But there were yet seuen trybes of the chyldren of Israell, vnto whom they had not deuyded their enheritaunce.
And Josua sayde vnto the chyldren of Israell: How longe are ye so slowe, to go and conquere the londe, which the LORDE God of youre fathers hath geuen you? Chose you thre men out of euery trybe, that I maye sende them, and that they maye get them vp and go thorow the londe, and descrybe it accor dynge to the enheritaunces therof, and come vnto me.
Deuyde the londe in seuen partes.
Judas shall remayne vpon his borders of the southsyde, and the house of Joseph shall remayne vpon his borders of the north parte: but descrybe ye the lõ-de in seuen partes, and brynge them vn to me, then shal I cast the lot for you be fore the LORDE oure God. * For the Jos. 13. D Leuites haue no porcyon amonge you, and. 14. A but the presthode of the LORDE is their enheritaunce. * As for Gad, and Josu. 12. A Rubẽ, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, they haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Jordane eastwarde, which Mo ses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue them.
Then the men gat vp, to go their B waye: And whan they were aboute to go for to the descrybe the londe, Josua commaunded them, and sayde: Go youre waye, and walke thorow the londe, and descrybe it, and come agayne vnto me, that I maye cast the lot for you before the LORDE at Silo. So the men departed, and wente thorow the lõde, and descrybed it in seuen partes vpon a letter accordinge to the cities, and came to Josua in to the hoost at Silo. Then Josua cast the lot ouer them at Silo be fore the LORDE, and there dystributed the londe amonge the chyldren of Is raell, vnto euery one his parte.
And the lot of the trybe of the chyldren of Ben Jamin fell accordynge to their kinreds, and the border of their lot wente out betwene the chyldren of Juda and the chyldrẽ of Joseph. And their border was on the north quarter of Jordane, and goeth vp frõ the northsyde of Jericho, and commeth vp to the mountayns westwarde, and goeth out by the wyldernesse of Bethauen, and goeth frõ thẽce towarde Lus, euen by the south syde of Lus (that is Bethel) and cõmeth downe vnto Atoroth Adar by the mountayne, which lyeth on the south syde of the lower Bethoron. Then boweth it downe, and fetcheth a compasse vnto ye southwest quarter from the mount that lyeth ouer agaynst Bethoron towarde the south, and goeth out vnto Kiriath Baal that is Kiriath Jearim, a cyte of the chyldren of Juda. This is the west border.

C But the south border is from Kiriath Jearim forth, & goeth out towarde the west, and commeth forth vnto the waterwell of Nephtoah: & goeth down by the edge of the mount, that lyeth before the valley of the sonne of Hinnam: and goeth downe thorow the valley of Hinnam on the southsyde of the Jebusites, & cõmeth downe to ye well of Rogell, & stretcheth from ye northwarde, & commeth out vnto En Semes, and cõmeth forth to the heapes that lye vp towarde Adumim, and commeth downe vnto the stone of Bohẽ the sonne of Ruben, and goeth along besyde the playne felde which lyeth northwarde, and commeth downe vnto the playne felde, and goeth besyde Beth Hagla that lyeth towarde the north, and his ende is at the north border of the Salt see, vnto the edge of Jordane southwarde. This is the south border.

D But Jordane shall be the ende of ye east quarter. This is the enheritaũce of the chyldren of Ben Jamin in their borders rounde aboute, amonge theyr kynreds.

The cyties of the trybe of the chyldren of Ben Jamin amonge their kynreds are these: Jericho, Beth Hagla, Emek, Keziz, Beth Araba, zemaraim, Bethel, Auim, Paphar, Aphra, Caphar, Amonai, Aphni, Gaba: these are twolue cityes and theyr vyllages.

Gibeon, Rama, Beeroth, Mispa, Caphira, Moza, Rekẽ, Jerpeel, Tharala, Sela, Eleph, and the Jebusites, that is Jerusalem, Gibeath, Kiriath: these are fourtene cyties and theyr vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Ben Jamin in theyr kynreds.

The.xix. Chapter.

The porcion of Simeon, zabulõ, Isachar, Aser, Nephtali, and Dan.

Then fell the seconde lot of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon accordinge to their kynreds, and their enheritaunce was amonge the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Juda.* And to their enheritaũce they had Beer, Seba, Molada, Hazar Sual, Baala, Azem, El Tholad, Bethul, Harma, ziklag, Betha, Markaboth, Hazar, Susa, Beth Lebaoth, and Saruhem these are thirtene cyties and their vyllages. Ain, Rimon, Ether, Asan: these are foure cities and their vyllages. And all the vyllages that lye aboute the cyties vnto Balath Beer Ramath towarde the south. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon in their kynreds: for the enheritaunce of ye chyldren of Simeon is vnder the porcion of the chyldrẽ of Juda. For so much as the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Juda was to greate for them, therfore inhereted the chyldren of Simeon amonge their enheritaunce. A 1.Par.4.

The thirde lot fell vpon the chyldren of zabulon after their kynreds. And the border of their enheritaunce was vnto Sarid, & goeth vp westwarde to Merala, and bordreth vpon Dabaseth, & reacheth vnto the ryuer that floweth ouer agaynst Jahneam: and turneth frõ Sarid eastwarde vnto the border of Cisloth Thabor, and commeth out vnto Dabrath, and reacheth vp to Japia, & from thẽce goeth it westwarde thorow Githa Hepher, and Itha Kazim, and cõmeth out towarde Rimon, Hamthoar Hanea, and fetcheth a cõpasse aboute from the north vnto Nathon, and the goynge out of it is in the valley Jephthah El, Katath, Nahalal, Simro, Jedeala, and Bethlehem: These are twolue cyties and theyr vyllages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of zabulon in their kynreds: these are their cyties and vyllages. B

The fourth lot fell vpon the chyldren of Isachar after their kynreds, & theyr border was Jesraela, Chesulloth, Sunẽ: Hapharaim, Siõ, Anaharath, Rab deth, Kison, Abez, Remeth, En Ganim, Enhada, Beth Pazez, and bordreth vpō Thabor, Sahazima, Beth Semes, and the outgoynge of it was at Iordane.

These are syxtene cyties and theyr villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldr of Isachar in theyr kynredes, cyties and villages.

The fyfth lot fell vpon the trybe of the chyldren of Asser, after theyr kynredes. And theyr border was Helkath, Ha li, Beten, Achsaph, Alamelech, Amead, Miseal, and bordereth on Carmel vnto the see, and on Sihor, and Libnath, and turneth towarde the east vnto Beth Da gon, and bordereth on zabulon, and on ŷ valey of Jephtael, and towarde ŷ north syde of Beth Emek and Negiel: and cō meth out vnto Cabull on the lefte syde C of Ebron, Rehob, Hamō and Cana, vn to great Sidon. And turneth towarde Rama, vnto the stronge cyte of zor, and turneth towarde Hossa, and goeth out vnto the see, after the meetlyne towarde Achsib, Uma, Aphek, Rehob.

These are two and twentye cyties and theyr villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of As ser in theyr kynredes cyties & villages.

The syxte lot fell vpō the chyldr of Nephtali in theyr kynredes. And theyr border was frō Heleph Elon thorowe zaanaim, Adai Nekeb, JabneEl vnto Lakum, and goeth out vnto Iordane, & turneth westwarde to Asnoth Thabor, and commeth out from thence vnto Hu kok, and bordreth on zabulon towarde the south, and on Asser toward the west and on Iuda by Iordane towarde the C east: and hath stronge cyties, zidimzer, Hamath, Rakath, Chinnareth, Adama: Rama, Hazor, Kedes, Edrei, En Hazor Jereon, Migdal Elharen, Beth Anath, Beth Sames. These are the nyentene cyties and theyr villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldr of Nephtali in theyr kynredes, cyties & villages.

D The seuenth lot fell vpon the trybe of the chyldren of Dan after theyr kyn-redes. And the border of theyr enheritaunce was zarea, Esthaol, Irsames, Saalabin, Aialon, Jethla, Elon, Thim nata, Ekron, Eltheke, Gibethon, Baa-lath, Jehud, Bnerbarak, Gat Rimon, Me Jarkon, Rakon with the border by Japho, and on the same goeth the border of the chyldren of Dan out. And the chyldren of Dan wente vp, and fought against Lesem, and wanne it, and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and toke it in possession, and dwelte therin, and *called it Dan, after the name of theyr Iud. 18. b. father. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan in theyr kynredes, cyties, and villages.

And whan the londe was all parted out with the borders therof, the chyldr of Israel gaue Iosua the sonne of Nun an enheritaunce amonge them, and (accordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE) they gaue hym the cyte that he requyred, namely, * Thimnath Se- Iosu. 24. f. rah, vpon mount Ephraim: there buyl-ded he the cyte, and dwelt therin.

*These are the enheritaūces which Nu. 34. d.
Eleasar the prest and Iosua the sonne of Nun, and the chefest of ŷ fathers amonge the trybes deuyded out by lotte vnto the chyldren of Israel at Silo before the LORDE, euen before ŷ dore of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and so they ended the deuydynge out of the londe.

The .xx. Chapter.

¶ The partynge out of fre cyties.

vnto Iosua, & sayd: Speake to the chyldren of Israel: Geue amonge you fre cyties * wherof I spake vnto you Exo. 21. b by Moses, that a deadsleper which sley Deu. 19. c eth a soule vnwares and vnwittyngly, maye flye thether, that they maye be fre amonge you from the auenger of bloud.
And he that flyeth to one of those cyties shall stonde without before the porte of the cyte, and shewe his cause before the Elders of the cyte, then shall they take hym to them into the cyte, and geue him place to dwell with them.

And yf the auenger of bloud folowe B vpon hym, they shall not delyuer ŷ dead slayer in to his handes, for so muche as he hath slaine his neghboure vnwares, and was not his enemye afore: but he shall dwell in the cyte, tyll he stonde before the congregacyon in iudgement, vn tyll the hye prest dye, whiche shalbe at ŷ tyme. Then shall the deadslayer returne, and go vnto his owne cyte, and vnto his house to the cyte, from whence he was fled.

Then appoynted they Kedes in Ga- C lile vpon mount Nephtali, and Se-chem vpon mount Ephraim, & Kiriat harba, that is Hebrō vpon mount Iuda

And beyonde Jordane on the east syde of Jericho, they gaue Beser in the wyldernesse vpon the playne, out of ye trybe of Ruben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basã out of the trybe of Manasse.

These were the cyties appoynted for all the chyldren of Israel, & for ye straungers which dwelt amonge them, ye who soeuer hadde slayne a soule vnwares, myght flye thither, that he shulde not be put to death by the auenger of bloude, tyll he had stonde before the congregacyon.

The .xxi. Chapter.

Of the cyties and suburbes of ye Leuites.

A Then the chefe fathers amõg the Leuites came forth vnto Eleasar the prest and to Josua the sonne of Nun, & to the auncient fathers amonge the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and spake vnto them at Silo in ye

Nu.35.a londe of Canaan, & sayd: *The LORDE commaunded by Moses, that we shulde haue cyties geuen vs to dwel in, and the suburbes of the same for our catell. Then the chyldren of Israel gaue of theyr enheritaunce these cyties & the suburbes therof, vnto the Leuites, acordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE.

And the lot fell vpon the kynred of the Kahathites, and the chyldren of Aaron the prest amonge the Leuites, had by the lot thyrtene cyties of the trybe of Juda, of the trybe of Simeon, and of ye trybe of Ben Jamin. The other chyldre of Kahath of the same kynred, had by ye lot ten cyties, of the tribe of Ephraim, of the trybe of Dan, & of the halfe trybe of Manasse.

B But the chyldren of Gerson of the same kynred had by the lot thyrtene cyties, of ye trybe of Isachar, of ye trybe of Asser, of the trybe of Nepthali, & of the halfe trybe of Manasse at Basan.

The chyldre of Merari of theyr kynred had twelfe cities, of the trybe of Ruben, of the trybe of Gad, & of ye trybe of Zabulon. So the children of Israel gaue these cyties and theyr suburbes vnto the Leuites by lot, as the LORDE cõmaũded by Moses.

Of the trybe of the chyldren of Juda, and of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon, they gaue these cyties (whiche they named by name) vnto the chyldren of Aaron of the kynred of the Kahathites amonge the chyldren of Leui: for the fyrst lot was theyrs.

So they gaue them Kiriatharba, which was the fathers of Enak, that is Hebron vpon the mount Juda, and the suburbes therof rounde aboute. *But the felde of the cytie & the villages ther- Josu.14. 1.Par.7. of, gaue they vnto Caleb the sõne of Jephune for his possession.

C Thus gaue they vnto the chyldren of Aaron the prest, the fre cyte of ye deadslayers, Hebron and the suburbes therof, Libna and the suburbes therof, Jethir and the suburbes therof. Esthemo and the suburbes therof, Holon and the suburbes therof, Debir and the suburbes therof, Ain and the suburbes therof Juta & the suburbes therof, Beth Semes and the suburbes therof, euen nyne cyties of these two trybes.

But of the trybe of Ben Jamin they gaue foure cytics, Gibeon and the suburbes therof, Gaba and the suburbes therof, Anathot and the suburbes therof, Almon and the suburbes therof: so ye all the cyties of the chyldren of Aaron ye prest were thyrtene with theyr suburbes.

The kynredes of the other chyldren of Kahath the Leuites, hadde by theyr lot foure cyties, of the tribe of Ephraim and they gaue them the fre cytie of the deadslayers, Sechem and the suburbes therof vpon mount Ephraim, Gaser & the suburbes therof, Kibzaim and ye suburbes therof, Bethoron and the suburbes therof,

D Of the trybe of Dan foure cyties, Eltheke and the suburbes therof, Gibthon and the suburbes therof, Aialon & the suburbes therof, Gath Rimon, and the suburbes therof. Of the halfe trybe of Manasses two cyties, Thaenach & the suburbes therof, Gath Rimon and the suburbes therof: so that all the cyties of the other chyldren of the kynred of Kahath, were ten with theyr suburbes.

But vnto the chyldren of Gerson amonge the kynreds of the Leuites were geuen. Of the halfe trybe of Manasse two cyties, the fre cytie for the deadslayer, Gola in Basan and the suburbes therof. Beasthra and the suburbes therof. Of the trybe of Isachar foure cyties, Kision and the suburbes therof, Dabrath and the suburbes therof, Jarmuth and the suburbes therof, Engannim and the suburbes therof. Of the trybe of Asser foure cities, Missal, Abdon, Helkath, and Rehob with the suburbes therof. Of the trybe of Nephtali thre cities, the fre cyte Kedes (for the deadsleper) in Galile, Hamoth, Dor, and Karthan with the suburbes therof: so that all the cyties of ye kynred of the Gersonites were thirtene with theyr suburbes.

E Unto the kynreds of Merari the other Leuites were geuen, Of the trybe of Zabulon foure cyties, Jakneā, Kartha, Dimna and Nahalal wt the suburbes therof. Of the trybe of Rubē foure cyties, Bezer, Jahza, Kedemoth & Mephaat with their suburbes. Of ye trybe of Gad foure cyties, the fre cite for the deadsleper, Ramoth in Gilead, Mahanaim, Hesbon, and Jaeser wyth theyr suburbes: so that all the cyties of ye chyldren of Merari amonge their kynreds of ye other Leuites, were twolue. Thus all the cyties of the Leuites amonge the possession of the chyldrē of Israel, were eyght and fortye with their suburbes. And these cyties were so dealte out, that euery one had their suburbes rounde aboute, the one as the other.

Thus the LORDE gaue the chyldren of Israell all the londe, which he had sworne vnto their fathers to geue: and they toke possession of it, and dwelt therin. And the LORDE gaue them rest before all those that were aboute them: * lyke as he sware vnto theyr fathers, and none of theyr enemyes stode agaynst them, but all their enemyes delyuered he in to theyr hande. And theyr mysse nothynge of all the good that ye LORDE had promysed vnto ye house of Israell, it came euery whyt. Gen.17.a

The .xxii. Chapter.

The two trybes and a halfe are sent home agayne, with a charge to be dilligent in keppynge Gods commaundemēts. Of the altare of wytnesse.

B Thē Josua called ye Rubenites & Gaddites, & the halfe trybe of Manasse, & sayd vnto thē, Ye haue kepte all * ye Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE cōmaunded you, & haue herkened vnto my voyce in all that I haue cōmaunded you. Ye haue not forsakē your brethrē a longe season, vnto this daye, Num.32.f Deu.3.b. Josu.12.a

and haue wayted vpon the cōmaundement of the LORDE youre God. For so much now as the LORDE youre God hath brought your brethrē to rest, as he promysed them, turne you now, and go youre waye to your tentes in to the londe of youre possession, which Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE gaue you beyonde Jordane.

But take dylygēt hede now, that ye do accordynge to the cōmaundement & lawe which Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE hath cōmaunded: * That ye loue ye LORDE your God, & walke in al his wayes, & kepe his cōmaundemētes, & cleue vnto hym, and serue hym wyth all youre hart and with all youre soule. So Josua blessed thē, and let them go. And they wente vnto theyr tentes. Deut.10.B

Unto the halfe trybe of Manasse had Moses geuen possession at Basan: vnto the other halfe gaue Josua amōge their brethrē on this syde Jordane westwarde. And whā he let them go to their tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them: Ye come home agayn with greate good vnto your tentes, with exceadinge much catell, syluer, gold, brasse, yron & rayment, * distribute therfore the spoyle of youre enemyes amonge youre brethren. Deu.20.B Nu.31.d Josu.8.f 1.Re.30.c

So the Rubenites, Gaddites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse returned, & wente from the chyldren of Israell out of Silo (which lyeth in the londe of Canaan, to go in to the countre of Gilead to the londe of their possessiō, that they myghte posse it, accordynge to the commaundement of the LORDE by Moses.

C And whan they came vnto the heapes by Jordane, which lye in the londe of Canaan, the same Rubenites, Gaddites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse buylded there besyde Jordane, a fayre greate altare. But whan the chyldren of Israell herde saye: Beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, the halfe trybe of Manasse haue buylded an altare ouer agaynst the londe of Canaan vpon the heapes by Jordane on this syde the chyldren of Israel, they gathered them selues together with the whole congregacyon at Silo, to go vp agaynst them with an armye. And (in the meane season) they sent to them in to the lōde of Gilead, Phineas ye sonne of Eleasar the prest, and wyth hym ten cheke prynces amonge the houses of theire fathers, out of euery trybe in Israell one. And they came to the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse in ye londe of Gilead, and sayde: D Thus sayeth the whole congrega-Iud. 20.b cyon of the LORDE vnto you: * What trespace is this, that ye haue trespaced agaynst the God of Israell, yt ye shulde turne backe fro the LORDE this daye, to buylde you an altare, for to fal awaye from the LORDE?

Num. 25.a * Haue we not ynough of the wickednesse of Peor, from the which we are not yet clensed this daye, and there came a plage amonge the congregaciō of the LORDE: and ye turne you backe this daye from the LORDE, and this daye are ye fallen awaye from the LORDE, that he maye be wroth to daye or tomorow at the whole congregacyon of the LORDE.
Yf the londe of youre possession be vncleane, then come ouer in to the londe that the LORDE possesseth, where the dwellynge of the LORDE is, and take possession amonge vs, and fall not awaye from the LORDE and from vs, to buylde you an altare without the Ios. 7.a altare of the LORDE oure God. * Dyd not Achan the sonne of Serah trespace in the thyng that was damned, and the wrath came ouer the whole congregacion of Israel and he wente not downe alone for his mysdede?
E Then answered the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, and sayde vnto the heades and prynces of Israel: The myghtie God the LORDE knoweth, and Israell knoweth also, Yf this be a transgressynge or trespassynge agaynst the LORDE, then let it not helpe vs this daye: Yf we haue buylded ye altare, because we wolde turned awaye backe from the LORDE, to offre burntofferynges or meatofferynges theron, or to make ony thankofferynges vpon it, then let the LORDE requyre it: And yf we haue not done it rather for very feare of this thynge, and sayde: To daye or tomorow myghte youre chyldrē saye vnto oure chyldren: What haue ye to do with ye LOR-DE the God of Israel? The LORDE hath set Iordane for a border betwene vs and you, ye chyldren of Ruben and Gad, ye haue no parte in the LOR-DE: By this shulde youre chyldrē make oure chyldren to turne awaye from the feare of the LORDE.
Therfore sayd we: Let vs make our F chyldren an altare, not for sacrifyce, nor for burntofferynge, * but that it maye Gen. 31. be a tokē betwene vs and you, and our Deu. 30. posterities, that we maye serue ye LOR Iosu. 24.
DE, in his sight wyth oure burntofferynges, thankofferynges, and other of-ferynges: and that youre chyldren to daye or tomorow nede not to saye vnto oure chyldren: Ye haue no parte in the LORDE.
And we sayde: But yf they shulde speake so vnto vs, or to our posterities to daye or to morow, thē maye we saye: Beholde the symilitude of ye altare of ye LORDE, which oure fathers made, not for sacryfice, nor for burntofferynge, but for a wytnesse betwene vs and you.
God forbidde, that we shulde fall awaye from the LORDE, to turne backe from him this daye, and to buylde an altare for sacrifyce, for burntofferynge, or for ony presente, wythout the altare of the LORDE oure God, that stondeth before his Habitacion.
But whan Phineas the prest, and G the chefe of the congregacion, the prynces of Israell which were wyth hym, herde these wordes, that the chyldren of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse had spokē, they pleased them well. And Phineas ye sonne of Eleasar the prest sayde vnto ye chyldren of Ruben, Gad, and Manasse: This daye we knowe, that the LOR-DE is amonge vs, in that ye haue not trespassed against the LORDE in this dede. Now haue ye delyuered the chyldren of Israell out of the hande of the LORDE.
Then Phineas the sonne of Eleasar the prest, and ye rulers returned out of the londe of Gilead from the chyldrē of Ruben, and Gad, vnto the londe of Canaan to the chyldren of Israell, and brought them worde agayne of the matter.
Then were the chyldren of Israell well cōtente with the thynge. And they praysed the God of Israell, and sayde nomore that they wolde go vp agaynst thē with an armye, to destroye the lōde that the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And the chyldren of Rubē and Gad called ye name of the altare: This altare be wytnesse betwene vs, that the LORDE is God.

The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Josua calleth the people together before his death, & exorteth them to cleue fast to ẏ commaundementes of ẏ LORDE.

A ND after a longe season, whan the LORDE had brought Israell to rest from all their enemyes rounde a-boute: and Josua was now olde and well stricken in age, he called all Israel and their Elders, heades, iudges, and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and well aged, and ye haue sene all that the LORDE youre God hath done vnto all these nacions in youre sight. For the LORDE youre God him self hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue parted amonge you the remnaunt of the nacions by lot, vnto euery trybe his enheritaunce from Jordane forth, and all the nacyons whom I haue roted out vnto the greate see westwarde.
And the LORDE youre God shal B thrust them out before you, and dryue them awaye from you, ẏ ye maye haue theyr londe in possession, as the LOR-DE youre God hath promysed you.
Be stronge now therfore, that ye maye obserue and do all that is wrytten in ẏ boke of the lawe of Moses: * so that Deu.4.a ye turne not asyde from it, nether to the ryght hande nor to the lefte: that ye come not amonge the remnaunt of these naci ons, which are with you: And se that ye Deu.10.d make no mencion nor * sweare by the names of their goddes nether serue them, nor bowe youre selues vnto them: But cleue vnto the LORDE youre God, as ye haue done vnto this daye: then shall the LORDE dryue awaye greate, and myghtie nacions before you, lyke as there hath no man bene able to stonde before you vnto this daye. * One of C you shall chace a thousande: for ẏ LOR DE youre God fyghteth for you, accor dynge as he promysed you. Take dily-gent hede therfore vnto youre soules, ẏ ye loue the LORDE youre God.
Deu.7.a * But yf ye turne backe, and cleue vnto these other nacions, and make ma ryages with them, so that ye come amon ge them, and they amonge you, be ye sure then, that the LORDE youre God shall nomore dryue out all these nacyons before you, * but they shall be vnto you a snare and net, and pryckes in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntyll he haue destroyed you from the good londe, whiche the LORDE youre God hath geuen you.
Beholde, * this daye do I go ẏ way of al the worlde, and ye shall knowe ene D from all your harte and from all youre 3.Reg.2.a soule, ẏ there hath not fayled one worde of all the good that the LORDE youre God promysed you. Now lyke as al the good is come that the LORDE youre God promysed you: * euen so shall the LORDE cause all euell to come vpon Deu.28.b you, tyll he haue destroyed you fro this good londe, which the LORDE youre God hath geuen you: yf ye transgresse ẏ couenaunt of the LORDE your God which he hath commaunded you. And yf ye go youre waye and serue other god D des, and worshippe them, then shall the wrath of the LORDE waxe whote ouer you, and shall shortly destroye you out of the good londe, that he hath geuen you.

The.xxiiii.Chapter.

¶ He calleth the people together in Si-chem, and rehearceth the benefites of God vnto them. The couenaunt with God is renewed. Josua dieth, & so doth Eleasar.

I Osua gathered al the trybes of Israel together vnto Si-chem, and called the Elders A of Israel, the heades, iudges and officers. And whan they were come before God, he sayd vnto all the people: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israell: * Youre fathers dwelt afore tyme beyonde the water, A- Gen.11.d braham and Nahor with Tarah theyr father and serued other goddes. * Tho toke I youre father Abraham beyonde Gen.12.a the water, and caused hym to walke in the londe of Canaan, and multiplied his sede, * and gaue hym Isaac, ‡ and vnto Isaac I gaue Jacob and Esau, * and Gen.21.a gaue Esau mount Seir to possesse. ‡ As ‡ Gen.25.c for Jacob and his children, they wente * Ge.32.a downe into Egipte. ‡ Ge.46.a Then sent I Moses & Aaron, * & plaged Egipte as I haue done amonge B them. After that ‡ brought I you and Exo.7.8. youre fathers out of Egipte. And whan 9.10.11. ye came to the see, and the Egipcyans fo- ‡ Exo.14.
lowed vpon youre fathers with charettes and horsemen vnto the reed see, then cryed they vnto the LORDE, whiche put a darcknesse betwene you and the Egipcyans, and broughte the see vpon them, and ouerwhelmed them: And youre eyes haue sene what I dyd to the Egyptians, and ye dwelt in the Nu.21.d wyldernesse a longe season. * And I broughte you in to the londe of the Amorites, which dwelt beyond Iordane: and whan they fought agaynste you, I delyuered them in to your handes, that ye might haue their countre in possessiō Nu.22.a and I destroyed thē before you. * Thē Deu.23.a Balaac the sonne of Ziphor the kynge of the Moabites gat him vp, & fought agaynst Israell: and he sente & had call Balaam the sōne of Beor, to curse you, neuertheles I wold not hearte hym, but I blessed you, and delyuered you out of his hande.

C And whan ye wente ouer Iordane, and came vnto Iericho, the citesyns of Iericho fought against you, the Ammo rites, Pheresites, Cananites, Hethites Girgosites, Heuites, and Iebusites: howbeit I delyuered them in to youre Exo.33.a hande. * And I sent hornettes before Deu.7.d you, which droue them out before you, namely the two kynges of the Ammori Deu.6.b tes: not thorow thy sweard, nor thorow thy bowe. * And I haue geuen you a londe wher vpō ye bestowed no labour, and cities which ye haue not buylded, that ye might dwell therin, and that ye might eate of the vynyardes and olyue v.Re.7.a trees, which ye haue not plāted. * Feare Tob.14.c the LORDE now therfore, and serue hym perfectly and in the trueth, and let go the goddes, whom youre fathers ser ued beyonde the water and in Egipte, and serue ye the LORDE.

D But yf ye lyke not to serue ye LOR DE, then chose you this daye whom ye wyll serue: the God whō youre fathers serued beyōde ye water, or the goddes of ye Amorites, in whose lōde ye dwell. As for me and my house, we wyll serue the LORDE. Then answered the people and sayde: God forbydde, that we shuld forsake the LORDE, and serue other goddes. For the LORDE oure God brought vs and oure fathers out of the londe of Egypte from the house of bon dage, and dyd such greate tokens befor oure eyes, and preserued vs all the way that we wente, and amonge all the na-cyons, whom we trauayled by. And the LORDE thruste out before vs all the people of the Ammorites that dwelt in the londe. Therfore wyll we also serue the LORDE, for he is oure God.

E Iosua sayde vnto the people: Ye cā not serue the LORDE: for he is an ho ly God, mightie, and gelous, which spa reth not youre transgressions & synnes.
But yf ye forsake the LORDE, and serue a straunge God, * then shall the LORDE turne him, and do you euell, & consume you, after that he hath done you good. The people sayde vnto Iosua: Not so, but we wyll serue ye LOR DE. Thē sayd Iosua vnto the people: Ye are witnesses ouer youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the LORDE, to serue hym. And they sayde: Yee. Then put awaye frō you (sayd he) the straūge goddes that are amonge you, & enclyne youre harte vnto the LORD the God of Israel. And the people sayd vnto Io sua: We wyll serue the LORDE our God, and be obedient vnto his voyce.
So Iosua * made a couenaunte with the people the same daye, and layed statutes and lawes before them at Sichē.

And Iosua wrote this acte in the boke of ye law of God * & toke a great stone, and set it vp there vnder an oke, which was in ye Sāctuary of the LOR DE, and sayde vnto all the people: Be holde, this stone shall be witnesse ouer you. For it hath herde all the wordes of the LORDE, which he hath spoken vn to vs, and shalbe a witnesse ouer you, that ye denye not your God. So Iosua let the people go euery one to his enheri taunce. * And it fortuned after these actes, that Iosua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the LORDE dyed, whan he was an hundreth and ten yeare olde, And was buried in the border * of his enheritaunce at Thimnath Serah, which lyeth on the mount Ephraim, on the north syde of mounte Gaas * And the chyldren of Israell serued the LOR DE as longe as Iosua lyued, and the Elders (that lyued longe after Iosua) which knewe al the workes of ye LOR DE, yt he had done vnto Israel. * The bones of Ioseph, whiche the children of Israell had brought out of Egipte, buryed they in Sichem, in the pece of ye londe, ye that Iacob bought of the chyl dren of Hemor the father of Sichē for and hundreth pens, and was the enheri taunce of the chyldren of Ioseph. Eleasar the sonne of Aaron dyed also, & they buried hym at Gibeath, whiche was Phineas his sonnes, that was geuen hym vpon mount Ephraim.

The ende of the boke of Iosua.

The boke of Judges, called Judicum.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Judas is made captayne of ẏ people Jerusalem. Israel roteth not out ẏ Ca-nanites as God cōmaunded them.

axed the
and sayd who shal

The LORDE sayd: Juda shall go vp. * Beholde, I haue delyuered the 3.B londe in to his hande. Then sayd Juda vnto his brother Simeon: Go vp with me in to my lot, & let vs fyght agaynst the Cananites, then wyll I go agayne with the in to thy lot: So Simeon went with hym.
Now whā Juda went vp ẏ LOR DE delyuered the Cananites and Phe resites in to theyr handes, & they slewe ten thousande men at Besek, and they foūde Adoni Besek at Besek, & fought agaynst hym, & slewe the Cananites, & Pheresites. But Adoni Besek fled, and they folowed after hym, and whan they had ouertaken hym, they cut of ẏ thombes of his handes and fete.
B Then sayd Adoni Besek: Thre score and ten kynges ẇ the thombes of theyr handes and fete cut of, gathered vp the meate that was lefte vnder my table.
24.D * Now as I haue done, so hath God re vnto Jerusalem, where he dyed,

But the chyldren of Israel fought agaynst Jerusalem, and wāne it, * and Deu. 20.C smote it with the edge of the swearde, and set fyre vpon the cyte. Then wente the chyldren of Israell downe, to fyght in the valleys * and Juda wēte agaynst Josu. 15.D the Cananites, which dwelt at Hebrō.

(As for Hebron, it was called Kiriatharba afore tyme) and they smote Sesai, & Achiman, and Thalmai.
And from thence he wente agaynst C ẏ inhabiters of Debir (but Debir was called Kiriath Sepher afore tyme) And Caleb sayd: * He that smyteth Kiriath Josu. 15.D Sepher, & wynneth it, I wyl geue hym 2. Pa. 12.A doughter Achsa to wyfe. And it fortuned that whan they wente in, she was counceled of hir husbande, to axe a pece of londe of hir father. And she fell from the asse. Then sayde Caleb vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: Geue me a blessynge, for ẏ hast geuen me a south and drye londe, geue me also a watery londe. Then gaue he her a londe that was watery aboue and beneth.

And the chyldren of the Kenyte Mo D and * called the name of the cite Hor- Nu. 21.A ma. ‡ Juda also wanne Gasa with the ‡ Jos. 15. G borders therof, and Ascalō with hir bor ders, and Accaron with the coastes ther of. And the LORDE was with Juda, so that he conquered the mountaynes: but them that dwelt in the valley could he not conquere, because they had yron charettes. And acordyng as Moses had sayde: * they gaue Hebrō vnto Caleb, Josu. 14.B which droue out ẏ thre sonnes of Enak * Howbeit the chyldren of BenJamin Josu. 15.G droue not out ẏ Jebusites which dwelt at Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwelt amonge the chyldren of BenJamin at Jerusalem vnto this daye.

* Lykewyse the chyldren of Joseph E wente vp also vnto Bethel, & the LOR Josu. 16.A DE was with them. And the house of Joseph spyed out Bethel (which afore tyme was called Lus) and ye watchmen sawe a man goinge out of the cite, and sayde vnto hym: Shewe vs where we Josu.2.c maye come in to the cite, * and we wyl shewe mercy vpon the. And whã he had shewed them where they might come in to the cite, they smote the cyte with the edge of the swearde: but they let the mã go and all his frendes.

Then wente the same man vp in to the countre of the Hethites, and buyl-ded a cite, and called it Lus, and so is the name of it yet vnto this daye. And Manesses * droue not out Beth Sean Nu.33.g with the vyllages therof, nor Thaenath Josu.17.c with the villages therof, nor the inhabi F ters of Dor with ye villages therof: nor the inhabiters of Jeblea̅m with the vil lages therof, nor the inhabiters of Ma geddo with the vyllages therof, & the Cananites begã̅ne to dwell in the same londe. But whan Israell was mightie, he made the Cananites tributaries, and droue them not out.

Josu.16.b * In lyke maner Ephraim droue not out the Cananites that dwelt at Ga ser, but ye Cananites dwelt amonge thẽ at Gaser.

Zabulon also droue not out the inhabiters of Kitrõ and Nahalol, but the Cananites dwelt amonge them, and were tributaries.

G Asser droue not out the inhabiters of Aco, and the inhabiters of Zidon, of Ahelab, of Achsib, of Helba, of Aphik and of Rehob, but the Asserites dwelt amõge the Cananites that dwelt in the londe, for they droue them not out.
Nephtali droue not out the inhabiters of Beth Semes, nor of Beth Anath, but dwelt amõge the Cananites which dwelt in the lõde: howbeit they of Beth Semes and of Beth Anath were tribu taries.

And the Ammorites subdued ye children of Dan vpon the mountayne, and suffred them not to come downe in to the valley. And the Ammorites beganne to dwell vpon mount Heres at Aialon and at Saalbim. Howbeit the hande of the house of Joseph was to sore for thẽ and they became tributaries. And the border of the Ammorites was, as a mã goeth vp towarde Acrabim, and frõ the rocke, and from the toppe.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ The angell of God rebuketh them, because they consente to their enemyes The children of Israel serue Baall, for the which cause God geueth them ouer in to captiuyte.

But there came vp a messaun-ger of the LORDE from Gilgall vnto Bochim, and sayde: I haue caried you vp hither out of Egypte, and brought you in to the lõde that I sware vnto youre fathers, & sayde: * I wyll Deu.7.a neuer breake my couenaunt with you, that ye shulde make no couenaunt with the indwellers of this londe, but breake downe their altares: Neuertheles ye haue not herkened vnto my voyce.
Wherfore haue ye done this? Thẽ sayd I moreouer: I wyll not driue them out before you, that they maye be a fall vn to you, and their goddes a snare. And whan the messaunger of the LORDE had spokẽ these wordes vnto al the chil dren of Israell the people lyfte vp their voyce, and wepte, and called the name of the place Bochim, & offred there vn
to the LORDE.

For whan Josua had sente awaye the people, & the children of Israel were gone, euery one to his enheritaunce, for to take possession of the lond, * the peo ple serued the LORDE as longe as Josua lyued and the Elders, which ly-ued longe after Josua, and that sawe all the greate workes of the LORDE which he dyd for Israel.

* Now whã Josua the sõne of Nun D the seruaunt of the LORD, was dead (whan he was an hundreth & ten yeare olde) they buried hym in the border of his enheritaunce at Timnath Heres vp pon mount Ephraim on ye north syde of mõut Gaas. And whã all ye same gene racyõ was gathered vnto their fathers there came vp after them another gene racyon, which knew not the LORDE nor the workes that he had done for Israell.

* Then wrought the chyldrẽ of Is raell euell before the LORD, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the LORDE the God of their fathers (whiche brought them out of the londe of Egipte) and fo lowed other goddes & ye goddes of the naciõs that dwelt rounde aboute thẽ, & worshipped them, & displeased ye LOR DE: for they forsoke the LORD euer more and more, and serued Baall and Astaroth.

Then the wrath of the LORDE waxed whote vpon Israel, and he deli-uered them in to the hãdes of those that spoyled thē, that they might spoyle thē and solde them in to the hādes of their enemyes rounde aboute, and they were not able to withstonde their enemyes eny more, but what waye soeuer they wolde out, the hande of the LOR-DE was agaynste them to their hurte (euen as the LORD sayde and sware vnto thē) and they were sore oppressed.

Now whan the LORDE raysed them vp iudges, which helped them out of the hāde of such as spoyled thē, they folowed not yͤ iudges nether, but wete awhorynge after other goddes, & worshipped them, and were soone gone out of the waye that their fathers walked in, to heare the cōmaundementes of the LORDE, and dyd not as they dyd.
But whā the LORDE raysed vp iudges vnto them, the LORDE was with the iudge, and helped them out of the hande of their enemyes, as longe as the iudge lyued. * For the LORDE had pitie of their cōplaynte, which they made ouer those that subdued thē and oppressed them.
D * Neuerthéles whā the iudge dyed, they turned backe, and marred all more then their fathers, so that they folowed other goddes to serue thē and to bowe them selues vnto them: they wolde not fall from their purposes, nor from their obstinate waye.
Therfore waxed the wrath of the LORD alwaye so whote ouer Israel, that he sayd: For so much as the people haue trāsgressed my couenaūt, which I cōmaunded their fathers, & folowe not my voyce, I wyll from hence forth dryu-e out none of the Heythen, whom Josua lefte behynde hym, whan he dyed, * that by them he maye proue Israell, whether they wyll kepe the waye of the LORDE, to walke therin, as their fathers dyd, or not. Thus the LORDE suffred all these nacyons, so that in a shorte tyme he droue them not out, whā he had not geuē ouer in to Josuas hāde.

The.iii.Chapter.

God punissheth Israell, and yet delyuereth them wonderously.

B These are the naciōs, whom the LORDE suffred to remayn, that by thē he might proue Israel, which had no vnderstondyng in the war-res of Canaan: only because that the trybes of the chyldren of Israell might knowe & learne to warre, which afore had no knowlege therof, namely: The fyue lordes of the Philistines, and all yͤ Cananites, and Sidonians, and the He-thites that dwelt vpō mount Libanus, fro mount Baal Hermon, vntyll a man come vnto Hemath. The same remayned, that Israell myght be proued by thē, that it myght be knowne whether they wolde herken to the commaunde-mentes of the LORDE which he com maunded their fathers by Moses.
Now whan the chyldren of Israell dwelt thus amonge the Cananites, He-thithes, Ammorites, Pheresites, Heui-tes & Iebusites, * they toke their dough Deu.7.a ters to wyues, and gaue their dough- and.12.a ters vnto their sonnes, and serued their goddes, and wrought wickednes before the LORDE, and forgat the LORD their God, and serued Baalim and As-taroth. Then the wrath of the LORD waxed whote ouer Israel, and he solde them vnder the hande of Cusan Risathaim kynge of Mesopotamia, and so yͤ chyldren of Israell serued Cusan Risathaim eyght yeares. D Then cryed the chyldren of Israell vnto the LORDE, and the LORDE raysed thē vp a sauioure which delyue-red thē, namely * Athniel yͤ sōne of Ke- Iud.1.b nas Calebs yōgest brother. And yͤ spirite of the LORDE cam vpon hym, and he was iudge in Israel, and wente out awarrefare. And the LORDE delyue red Cusan Risathaim the kynge of Me-sia in to his hōde, so that his hōde was to stronge for hym. * Then was yͤ lōde 2.Pa.15.b in rest fortye yeares. And Athniel yͤ sōne of Kenas dyed.
But the chyldren of Israel dyd yet more euel before the LORDE. Thē the LORDE strengthed Eglon the kynge of the Moabites agaynst yͤ chyldren of Israell, because they wrought wickednesse before the LORD. And he gathered vnto him yͤ chyldrē of Ammō, and the Amalechites, and went & smote Israel, and conquered the * cyte of the Deu.34.a palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon the kynge of the Moabites eyghtene yeare. Then cryed they vn to the LORDE. And the LORDE raised them vp a sauiour, namely Ehud the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini, whiche was a man that myghte do no-thynge with his ryght hande.
And whan the chyldren of Israell sent a present by hym vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, Ehud made him a twoedged dagger of a spãne lõge and gyrdeth it vnder his garment vpon his righte thye, and brought the present vnto Eglõ the kynge of the Moabites.

As for Eglon he was a very fat man.
C And whan he had delyuered the present, he let ẏ people go that had caried the present, & he hymselfe turned backe from the Idols at Gilgall, and caused to say thus (vnto the kyng:) I haue a secrete thinge to tell the O kynge. And he cõmaunded to kepe sylence, and all they that stode aboute hym, wente out from hym.

And Ehud came in vnto him. He sat in a syled sommer parler, which was for hymselfe alone. And Ehud sayde. * I Re.3.8 haue somwhat to saye vnto the of God Then rose he vp from his seate. But Ehud put forth his lefte hande, & toke the dagger from his right thye, & thrust it into his bely, so that the hefte wente in also after the blade, & the fatte closed the hefte: for he drue not the dagger out of his bely, and the fylthynes departed from him. But Ehud gat hym out at the backe dore and put to the dore after hym, and lokt it.

Now whan he was gone, his seruauntes came in, and saw that the dore of ẏ sommer parler was lokt, and they sayde: peraduenture he is gone to the preuye in the syled sommer parler.

D But whan [illegible] had wayted so lõge tyll they were [illegible]ed (for no man opened the parler dore) they toke the keye, and opened it. Beholde, then laye theyr lorde dead vpon the earth. As for Ehud he was gotten awaye, whyle they made so longe tariennge: and he wente ouer by the Idols, and cam vnto his waye vnto Seirath.

And whã he came in * he blewe the Nu.10.a. trompet vpon mount Ephraim, and the Iud.10.g children of Israell wente with hym frõ the mounte, and he before them, and he sayde vnto thẽ: folowe me, for ẏ LORDE hath delyuered the Moabites your enemyes in to your hande. And they folowed hym, and wãne the ferye of Jordane, that goeth towarde Moab, and suffred no mã to go ouer, & at the same tyme they smote of the Moabites vpon a ten thousande men, all nobles and mẽ of armes, so that there escaped not one.
Thus were the Moabites brought vnder the hande of the children of Israell at that tyme, and the londe was in reste foure score yeares.

Afterwarde was * Samgar the sonne of Anath, which slewe sixe hũdreth Philistynes with a coulters gadd, and delyuered Israell also.

The.iiii.Chapter.

Debbora the prophetisse with Barach ouercommeth Sissera, and delyuereth the people of the LORDE.

But the chyldren of Israell dyd yet more euell before the LORDE, when Ehud was dead. And the LORDE solde thẽ in to the hande of Iabin the kyng of ẏ Cananites, which dwelt at Hazor, and the chefe captayne of his hoost was Sissera, and he dwelt at Harosheth of ẏ Heythen. And the children of Israel cryed vnto the LORDE, for he had nyne hũdreth yron charettes, and subdued the chyldren of Israell by violence twentye yeare.

And the same tyme was Judge in Israell the prophetisse Debbora, the wyfe of Lapidoth, and she dwelt vnder the palme of Debbora betwene Rama and Bethell, vpon mounte Ephraim, & the children of Israel came vp vnto her to the lawe. She sent forth, * and called for Barak the sonne of Abi Noam of Kedes Nephtali, and sayd vnto him: Hath not the LORDE the God of Israell cõmaunded the: Go thy waye, and get the vp vnto mount Thabor, & take with the ten thousande men of the children of Nephtali and Zabulon: for I wyll make Sissera the chefe captayne of Jabins hoost to come to the vnto the * water of Cyson, with his charettes and with his multititude, and I wyll delyuer hym in to thy hande. Barak sayde vnto her: Yf thou wylt come with me, I wyll go: but yf thou wylt not come with me, I wyll not go.

She sayde: I wyll go with the: neuerthelesse the prayse shall not be thyne in this yourney that thou goest, but the LORDE shall delyuer Sissera into a womans hande. So Debbora gat her vp and wente with Barak vnto Kedes.
Then Barak called Zabulon & Nephtali vnto Kedes, and wẽte on fote with ten thousande men. And Debbora was with hym also. As for Heber the Kenite, he was departed from the Kenites from the childrẽ of * Hobab Moses brother in lawe, and had pitched his tent by the Oke of Zaanaim beside Kedes.

Then was it tolde Sissera, that Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, was gone vp vnto mout Thabor: and he gathered all his charettes together, nyne hundred yron charettes, and all the people that was with hym from Haroseth of ẏ Hethen, vnto the water Cyson. Debbora sayd vnto Barach: Vp, this is the daye wherin the LORDE hath delyuered Sissera in to thy hande: for the LORD shall go forth before the. So Barach went fro mount Thabor, & the ten thousande men after hym.

C But the LORD discomfited Sissera with all his charettes and hoost, & made them afrayed of the edge of the swearde before Barak, so that Sissera leapte of his charette, and fled on fote. Neuerthelesse Barak folowed vpon ẏ charettes and the hoost vnto Haroseth of the Heythen, and all Sisseras hoost fell thorow the edge of the swearde, so that not one escaped. As for Sissera, he fled on fote vnto the tente of Jael, the wyfe of Heber ẏ Kenite. For there was peace betwene kynge Jabin at Hasor, & the house of Heber the Kenite.

Jael wente forth to mete Sissera, & sayd vnto hym: Turne in my LORD, turne in to me, and be not afrayed. And he turned in vnto her into the tente, and she couered hym with a garment. He sayd vnto her: I praye ẏ geue me a lytle water to drynke, for I am athyrst. * Thē opened she a mylkpot, and gaue hym to drynke, and couered him. And he sayd vnto her: Stonde in the tente dore and yf one come and axe, is ther eny mā here? saye: Noman.

D Then Jael the wyfe of Heber toke a nayle of the tente, and an hammer in her hande, and wente in preuely vnto hym, and smote the nayle in thorow the temples of his heade, so that he sanke to the earth. As for hym he was fallen on a slomber, and weery and so he dyed.

But whan Barak folowed after Sissera, Jael wente for to mete hym, & sayde vnto hym: Come hyther, I wyll shewe the ẏ man, whō thou sekest. And whan he came in vnto her, he sawe Sissera dead, and the nayle stickyng in his temples. Thus God brought downe Jabin the kynge of the Cananites before the chyldren of Israell at that tyme, and the hande of the chyldren of Israel wente and subdued Jabin the kynge of the Cananites, tyl they hadde roted him out. Then Debbora and Barak the sonne of Abi Noam, songe at the same tyme, and sayde:

Thus all thyne enemyes muste perysshe O LORDE: but they that loue the, shalbe euen as the Sonne rysynge vp in his myghte.

And ÿ lõde had peace fortye yeares.

The.vi. Chapter.

C For their synnes God geueth them ouer in to the handes of the Madianites, from the whiche Gedeon delyuereth them.

And whan the children of Israell dyd euell in the sight of the LORDE, the LORDE delyuered thẽ vnder the hande of the Madianites vii. yeares. And whan the hande of the Madianites was to mightie ouer the children of Israell, the children of Israel made them clyftes in the mountaynes, caues & holdes, to defende them selues from the Madianites. And whan Israell sowed ony thynge, the Madianites and Amalechites, and the chyldren towarde the East came vp vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynst thẽ, and destroyed the encrease of the londe downe vnto Gasa, and left nothynge remaynynge of the beastes in Israell, nether shepe, nor oxen, nor asses. For they came vp with their cattell and tentes, as it had bene a greate multitude of greshoppers (so that nether they nor their camels might be nombred) & fell in to the londe that they might destroye it. Thus was Israel exceadinge small before the Madianites. Then cryed the children of Israell vnto the LORDE.

But whan they cryed vnto ÿ LORDE because of the Madianites, the LORDE sent them a prophet, which sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth ÿ LORDE the God of Israell: I caused you to come out of Egipte, and brought you out of the house of bõdage, and delyuered you from the hande of the Egipcians, and from the handes of all the that oppressed you, and I haue thrust them out before you, and geuen you their londe & sayde vnto you: I am the LORDE your stondeth by it, and buylde thou an altare vnto the LORDE thy God aboue vp on the toppe of this rocke, and make it fer a burntofferynge with the wood of the groue that thou hast hewen downe.

Then toke Gedeon ten men of his seruauntes, and dyd as the LORD sayde vnto him: but he was afrayed to do this by daye tyme, for his fathers house and the people in the cite, and so he dyd it by nyght.
Now whan the people in ÿ cyte rose F vp early in ÿ mornynge, beholde, Baals altare was broken, and the groue hewẽ downe by it, and the other bullocke a burntofferynge vpon ÿ altare that was buylded, and one sayd vnto another: Who hath done this? And whan they sought and made searche, it was sayde: Gedeon the sone of Joas hath done it.
Then sayde the people of the cyte vnto Joas: brynge forth thy sonne, he muste dye, because he hath broken Baals altare, and hewen downe the groue ther-by. But Joas sayd vnto all them that stode by hym: Wyll ye stryue for Baal?
Wyll ye delyuer hym? He that stryueth for hym, shall dye this mornynge. Yf he be God, let hym auenge hym selfe, be-that daye forth was he called Jerubaal

The .vii. Chapter.

How Gedeon parteth his hoost, and discomfiteth the Madianites.

A Then * Jerubaal (that is Ge Judi. 9. k deon) gat him vp early, & all the people that was ẇ hym, and pytched their tentes besyde the well of Harod, so that he had the hoost of the Madianytes on the northsyde behynde the hyll of More in the valley. But the LORDE sayde vnto Gedeon: The people that be with the are to many for me to delyuer Madian in to their hande, lest Israell boast them selues agaynst me, and saye: My hande hath delyuered me. Cause a proclamacyon now to be made in ẏ ea-

1 Mac. 3. g he feareth, and is afrayed, let him turne backe, and get hym sone fro mount Gilead. Then returned there of the people aboute a two and twenty thousande, so that there was left but then thousande.

B And the LORDE sayde vnto Ge-deō. The people are yet to many: brynge them downe to the water, there wyll I proue them for the: and of whom I say that he shall go with the, the same shall go with the: but of whom I saye that he shall not go with the, the same shall not go. And he brought the people vnto the water. And the LORDE sayde vn to Gedeon: Whosoeuer lycketh of the water with his tūge, as a dogg licketh, make hym stonde asyde: & lykewyse who soeuer falleth downe vpon his knees to drynke. Then was the nombre of them that had lycked out of the hande to the mouth, thre hundreth men. And ẏ LOR DE sayde vnto Gedeon: Thorow the thre hundreth which haue licked, wyl I delyuer you, and geue ouer the Madia-nytes in to thy hāde: As for the other peo ple, let thē go euery one vnto his place.

C And they toke vytayles wyth them for the people, and their trompettes: but the other Israelites let he go, euery one vnto his tente. And he strengthed hymselfe with the thre hundreth men, and ẏ Madianytes hoost laye before hym be-neth in the valley. And the same nyght sayd the LORDE vnto hym: Up, and go downe in to the hoost for I haue geuen them ouer in to thy hande. But yf thou be afrayed to go down, thē let thy seruaunt Pura go downe with the vnto ẏ hoost, that thou mayest heare what they saye after that shalt thou be bolde, and thy honde stronge, that thou mayest go downe in to the hoost.

D Than wente Gedeon downe wyth his seruaunt vnto the vttemost parte of the watchmen of armes that were in the hoost And ẏ Madianites and Ama lechites, and all the chyldren of the east, had layed them selues beneth in the val ley, as a multitude of greshoppers, and their camels were not to be nōbred for multitude, euen as the sonde on the see shore. Now whan Gedeō came, beholde, one tolde another his dreame, & sayde: Beholde, I haue dreamed a dreame: Me thought a baken barlye lofe came rollynge downe to the hoost of the Ma dianites: and whā it came to the tente, it smote it, and ouerthrewe it, & turned it vpsyde downe, so that the tente fell. The answered the other: That is nothynge els then the swearde of Gedeon ẏ sone of Joas the Israelite: God hath geuen ouer the Madianites wyth all ẏ hoost in to his hande.

E Whan Gedeon herde this dreame tolde, & the interpretacion of it, he wor shipped, & came agayne in to ẏ hoost of Israell, and sayde: Up, for the LOR DE hath delyuered the hoost of the Ma dianites in to youre hande. And he deuyded the thre hundreth men in to thre partes, and gaue euery one a trompet in his hande, & emptye pytchers, and lampes theryn, and sayde vnto them di.9.g. *Loke vnto me, and do ye euen so, and beholde, whan I come to the vttemost parte of the hoost, euen as I do, so do ye also. When I blowe the trompet, and all ẏ are with me, then shall ye blowe ẏ trompettes also rounde aboute all the hoost, and say: Here the LORDE and Gedeon. Thus came Gedeon and ẏ thre hundreth men with hym vnto the vttermost parte of the hoost (aboute ẏ tyme whan the mydwatch begynneth) & waked vp the watchmen, and blewe with the trompettes, and smote asonder the pitchers in theyr handes.

F So all the thre companies blewe & the trompettes, and brake the pitchers.
But the lampes helde they in theyr lefte hande, and ẏ trompettes in theyr ryghte hande, so that they blewe and cryed: Here the swearde of the LORDE and Gedeõ. And euery one stode in his place aboute the hoost. Thẽ ranne all ẏ hoost, and cryed and fled. And whyle the thre hundreth men blewe the trompettes, the LORDE brought it so to passe, that folowed vpon the Madianites.

And Gedeon sent messaũgers vp vn to all mount Ephraim, sayenge: Come downe agaynst ẏ Madianites, & stoppe the water from them vnto BethBara and Iordane. And then cryed all they ẏ were of Ephraim, and stopped the water frõ them vnto BethBara and Iordane, & toke two prynces of ẏ Madia-nites Oreb & zeb, & slewe Oreb vpon ẏ rocke of Oreb, & zeb in ẏ wynepresse of zeb, and folowed vpon the Madianites and brought the heades of Oreb & zeb, vnto Gedeon ouer Iordane.

The .viii. Chapter.

¶ Gedeon punisheth them at Suchoth dyeth, and is buried.

A AND ẏ men of Ephraim sayd vnto hym: Wherfore haste thou done this vnto vs, that thou hast not called vs, whã thou wentest forth to fyght agaynst the Madianites? and they chode sore with hym. But he sayd vnto them: What haue I done now that is lyke your acte? Is not ẏ aftergadderynge of Ephraim better thẽ ẏ whole haruest of Abieser? God hath delyuered the prin- Iudi.7.f ces of the Madianites Oreb and zeb in to your hande, how coulde I do that ye haue done? Whã he had sayd this, theyr blast was swaged from hym.

Now whan Gedeon came vnto Ior dane, he wente ouer with the thre hun-dreth men that were with him, and they were weery, & folowed vpõ theyr chace.
And he said vnto the men of Sucoth: I B praye you geue the people that are with me, some loaues of bread (for they are weery) that I maye folowe vpon zebea and Salmana the kynges of the Madi anites.

But the rulers of Sucoth sayd: Are the hãdes of zebea and Salmana in thy hãdes already, that we must geue bread vnto thy men of warre? Gedeon sayd: Well, whã the LORDE delyuereth zebea and Salmana into my hande, I wyll thresshe your fleshe with thornes of the wyldernesse and with breares. And from thence he went vp vnto Penuel, & spake euen so vnto them. And the men of Penuel gaue hym lyke answere as they of Sucoth. And he sayd also vnto the men of Penuel: Yf I come peaceably agayne, I wyll breake downe this tower.

As for zebea and Salmana, they C were at Karkar, and theyr hoost with them vpon a fyftene thousande, whiche were al that were lefte of ẏ whole hoost of the chyldrẽ of the East: for there were fallen an hundreth and twenty thousãde that coulde drawe the swearde.

And Gedeon wente vp by the waye, where they dwell in the tentes on ẏ east syde of Nobah and Iakbeha, & smote the hoost, for the hoost was carelesse, & mystrusted nothynge. And zebea & Sal-mana fled, but he folowed after them, & toke the two kynges of ẏ Madianites zebea and Salmana, and put al ẏ hoost in feare.

Now whan Gedeon the sonne of Io as came agayne from the battayl out of the east, he toke a lad of the men of Su-coth, and examined hym, whiche wrote hym vp the names of the rulers of Su-coth, and theyr elders, euen thre score & seuentene men.

And he came to the men of Sucoth, D & sayd: Beholde, here is zebea & Salma na, concernynge whom ye laughed me to scorne, and sayd: Are the handes of zebea and Salmana in thy handes all ready that we must geue breade vnto thy men which are werey? And he toke the Elders of the cite, and thornes out of the wildernesse, and breres, and caused the men of Sucoth to be torne therwith.

3.Re.12.d * And the tower of Penuell brake he downe, and slewe the men of the cite.

And he sayde vnto zebea and Sal-mana: What maner of men were they whom ye slew at Thabor? They sayde: They were euen lyke the, and goodly men, as yf they had bene a kynges chyldren. He sayd: They were my brethren, euē my mother sonnes: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf ye had letten them lyue, I wolde not slaye you.

E And he sayd vnto his fyrst borne sōne Iether: Stonde vp, and slaye thē. How beit the lad drue not out his swearde, for he was afrayed, for so muche as he was yet but a lad. Sebea & Salmana sayde: Stōde thou vp, and slaye vs, for as the man is, such is also his strength.
So Gedeon arose, & slewe Sebea, and Salmana, and toke the ornamētes that were aboute their camels neckes.

Then sayde certayne in Israell vnto Gedeō: Be thou lord ouer vs, thou & thy sōne & thy sōnes sonne, for so much as thou hast delyuered vs frō the hāde of the Madianites. Neuertheles Gedeon sayde vnto thē: I wyll not be lord ouer you, nether shall my sonne be lorde ouer you, but the LORDE shal be lorde ouer you.

Gedeon sayd vnto thē: One thynge F I desyre of you, Euery mā geue me the earyng that he hath spoyled. (For in so much as the men were Ismaelites, they had earynges.) They sayd: Them wyll we geue the. And they spred out a cloth and euery man cast the earynge theron that he had spoyled. And the golden ea-rynges which he requyred, had in weight, a thousande and seuen hūdreth Sycles of golde, besyde the spanges, & cheynes, scarlet rayment which the kynges of the Madianites dyd weare, and besyde the neckbandes of their camels.
And Gedeō made an ephod therof, and set it in his cite at Aphra. And all Is-Exo.16.d and.20.d rael wente there * a whorynge after it, and it turned to an occasion of fallynge vnto Gedeon and his house.

G Thus were ŷ Madianites brought downe before the childrē of Israel, and lifte vp their heade nomore: and the lōde was in reste fortye yeares, as longe as Gedeon lyued.

And Jerubaall the sonne of Joas wente and dwelt in his house, And Gedeon * had thre score and ten sonnes, 4.Re.10 which were come out of his thye: for he had many wyues. And his concubyne whiche he had at Sichem, bare hym a sonne also, whom he called Abimelech.
And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed in a good age, and was buryed at Aphra in the sepulcre of his father Joas the father of the Esrites.

But whan Gedeon was deade, the chyldren of Israel turned backe, & wēte a whorynge after Baalim, and made a couenaunt with Baall Berith, that he shulde be their God. And the chyldren of Israell thought not on the LORDE their God, whiche had delyuered them from the hāde of their enemyes rounde aboute: & they shewed not mercy vnto the house of Jerubaall Gedeon, accordynge to all the good that he had done vnto Israell.

The.ix.Chapter.

Abimelech seketh ŷ superioritie, slayeth his seuentye brethren, wynneth Si-chem and Thebes.

Abimelech the sonne of Jeru- B baall, wente vnto Sichem to his mothers brethren, and spake vnto them, and to all ŷ kynred of his mothers fathers house, & sayd: I praye you speake in the eares of all the men at Sichem: What is better for you, that thre score and ten men all chyldren of Jerubaall shulde be lordes ouer you, or that one man shulde be lorde ouer you? Remēbre also that I am youre bone and youre fleshe.

Then spake his mothers brethren all these wordes for him, in the eares of all the men at Sichem. And their hartes enclined to Abimelech, for they thought He is oure brother: and gaue hym thre score and ten syluerlynges out of the house of Baall Berith. And with them Abimelech hyred men that were vaga-bundes and of light condicions, which folowed hym. And he came to his fathers house vnto Aphra, * an slew his 4.Re.11 brethren the children of Jerubaal, euen thre score men and ten vpon one stone.
But Jotham the yongest sonne of Jerubaall remayned ouer for he was hyd.
And all the mē of Sichē, & all the house of Millo gathered thē selues together,

And wente and made Abimelech kynge by the Oke that stondeth at Sichem.
B When this was tolde Iotham, he 4.ry... wente, and stode vpō the toppe of mōūt Gerisim, and lyfte vp his voyce, cryed, & sayd: Heare me ye men of Sichem, that ...a.25.c God maye heare you also. * The trees
...d.4.b wente to anoynte a kynge ouer them, & sayd vnto the Olyue tre: Be thou oure kynge. But yͤ Olyue tre answered them: Shall I go and leaue my fatnesse (whiche both God and men commēde in me) and go to be puft vp aboue the trees?
Then sayd the trees vnto the fygge tre: Come thou and be kynge ouer vs. But the fygge tre sayd vnto them: Shall I leaue my swetnesse and my good frute, and go to be puft vp aboue the trees?
Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: Come thou and be oure kynge. But the vyne sayd vnto them: Shal I leaue my swete wyne, which reioyceth God & mē and go to be puft vp aboue the trees?
Then sayd all the trees vnto the thorne bushe: Come thou, & be kynge ouer vs.
And the thorne bushe sayd vnto yͤ trees: Yf it be true, that ye anoynte me to be kynge ouer you, thē come, and put youre trust vnder my shadowe. Yf no, then go fyre out of the thorne bushe, and cōsume the Ceder trees of Libanon.
Yf ye haue done ryghte now & iust-C ly that ye haue made Abimelech to be kynge: and yf ye haue done wel vnto Ierubaal & to his house, and haue done vnto hym as he deserued vnto you: Which (namely my father) fought for youre sakes, & ieoparded his lyfe, to delyuer you out of the Madianites hāde, euen you, whiche are rysen vp this daye agaynst my fathers house, and haue slayne his chyldren, thre score personnes and ten vpon one stone, and haue made you a kynge (euen Abimelech the sonne of his handmayde) ouer the men at Sichem, for so muche as he is youre brother.
Yf ye haue done ryght now & iustly to Ierubaal & his house this daye, then reioyce ouer Abimelech, and let hym re-ioyce ouer you. Yf no, then go fyre from Abimelech, and consume the men of Si-chem and the house of Millo: And fyre go out also from the men of Sichem, & from the house of Millo, and consume Abimelech. And Iotham (whan he had spokē this out) fled, and gat hym out of the waye, and wente vnto Ber, and dwelte there because of his brother Abimelech.

Now whan Abimelech had reygned D thre year ouer Israel, * God sent an euel Esa.45.a. mynde betwene Abimelech and the men of Sichē (for the men of Sichem despised Abimelech, & rehearced yͤ wronge done to the sonnes of Ierubaal, & theyr bloude, & layed it vpon Abimelech theyr brother which slewe them, and vpon the men of Sichem that strengthed his hāde therto, that he myghte slaye his brethrē.)
And the men of Sichem set an hyn-der watch vpon the toppes of the moūtaynes, and spoyled all them that walked nye them by the waye, and it was tolde Abimelech. But there came Gaal the sonne of Ebed and his brethren, and entred in to Sichem, and the mē of Si-chem put theyr truste in hym, and went out in to the felde, & gathered theyr vyn-yardes, and pressed them, and made a daunse, and went in to theyr gods house and dyd eate and drynke, and cursed Abimelech.
And Gaal the sonne of Ebed sayde: E Who is Abimelech? & what is Sichem that we shulde serue hym? Is he not the sonne of Ierubaal, and hath set Sebul his seruaunt ouer the men of * Hemor Ge.34.a. the father of Sichem? Wherfore shulde we serue hym? Wolde God the people were vnder my hande, that I myght put downe Abimelech.
And it was told Abimelech: Increace thyne hoost, and departe. For Sebul the chefe ruler of the cite, whan he herde the wordes of Gaal the sonne of Ebed, he was wrathfully displeased, & sent message secretly to Abimelech, and caused to saye vnto hym: Beholde, Gaal yͤ sōne of Ebed and his brethrē are come to Si-chem, and make the cyte to be agaynst the.
Aryse therfore by nyght, thou & thy people that is with the, and laye wayte for them in the felde: and tomorow whā the Sōne aryseth, get the vp soone, and fal vpon the cyte: and yf he and the people that is with hym come out vnto the then deale with hym, as thyne hande fyndeth.
Abimelech stode vp by nyght, and all F yͤ people that was with hym, and layed wayte for Sichem with foure companies of men of warre. And Gaal yͤ sōne of Ebed wente out and stode at yͤ dore of the gate of the cyte. But Abimelech gat hym vp out of the hynder watchs.

and the people that was with hym Now whan Gaall sawe the people, he sayd vnto Sebull: Beholde, there commeth a people downe from the toppe of the moũt. Sebul sayd vnto hym: Thou seist the shadowe of the mountaynes as though they were men. Gaal spake yet more and sayd: Beholde, there commeth a people downe from the myddes of the londe, and one bonde of men commeth by the waye to the witchoke. Then said Sebul: Where is now thy mouth that sayd: Who is Abimelech, that we shulde serue hym? Is not this the people, whõ thou hast refused? Go forth now, and fyght with hym.

Gaal wente forth before the cytesyns of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech But Abimelech chaced hym, so that he fled, and there fell many slayne euen vnto the gate of the cyte. And Abimelech abode at Aruma. But Sebul droue awaye Gaall and his brethren, so y they must not remayne at Sichem. Upon the morow wente the people forth in to the felde. Whan this was tolde Abimelech, he toke the people, and parted them into thre bondes of men, and wayted for thẽ in the felde. Now whan he sawe that y people wente out of the cyte, he rose a-gaynst them, and smote them.

G Abimelech and the company of men that was with hym, fell vpon them, and stepte vnto the dore of the porte: but the other two companies fell vpon all them that were in the felde, and slewe them.
Then fought Abimelech agaynst the cy-te all the same daye, and wanne it, and slewe the people that was therin, and brake downe the cyte, and sowed salt theron.

Whan all the men of the tower of Sichem herde this, they wente in to a stronge holde of the house of theyr God Berith. But whan Abimelech herde, that al the men of the tower of Sichem had gathered them selues together, he went vp vnto mount Zelmon, and al the people that was with hym, and toke an axe in his hande, and hewed downe a braunche of a tre, and toke it vp, & layed it vpon his shulder, and sayd vnto all y Judi. 7. c people that was with him: * As ye haue sene me do, make ye hast, and do eue so as I. Then all the people hewed downe euery one a braunche and folowed Abimelech: and they layed them to y holde, and set fyre vpon them agaynste them and the holde: and all the men of the tower of Sichem dyed thorow the smoke and fyre, vpon a thousande men and women.

As for Abimelech, he wente vnto H Thebetz, and layed sege vnto it, & wãne it. But in the myddes of the cyte, there was a stronge tower, vnto the which all the men and women, and all the cyte-syns of the cyte fled, and shut it after the and clymmed vp to the toppe of the tower. Then came Abimelech vnto the tower, and fought agaynst it, & came ne vnto the dore of y tower, that he myght burne it with fyre. * But a woman cast 2. Re. a pece of a mylstone vpon Abimeleches heade, and brake his brayne panne.
Then Abimelech in all the hast, called the seruaunt that bare his weapen, and sayd vnto hym: * drawe out thy swerde 1. Re. 31. and kyll me, that it be not sayd of me: 1. Pa. 10.
A woman hath slayne hym. Then his seruaũt thrust hym thorow, and he dyed Whan the Israelites which were with hym, sawe, that Abimelech was dead, they gat them away euery one vnto his owne place.

Thus God recompenced Abimelech the euell that he had done vnto his father, whan he slewe his thre score & ten brethren: lykewyse all the euell of the me of Sichem, dyd God rewarde them vppon theyr heade: and so the * curse of Judi. 9.
Jotham the sõne of Jerubaall came vp-on them.

The .x. Chapter.

Thola and Jair rule the people. The Israelites synne, and are punyshed.

After Abimelech ther rose vp A another sauioure in Israel, Thola a man of Isachar, ÿ the sonne of Pua, the sonne of Dodo. And he dwelte at Samir vpon the mount Ephraim, and iudged Israel thre and twentye yeare, and dyed, and was buryed at Samir.

After hym stode vp one Jair a Gileadite, and iudged Israel two and twen-tye yeare, and had thyrtye sonnes, * ry- Jud. 12. dynge vpon thyrty asses foales: and had thyrty cyties, whose names are Hauoth Jair (that is, y cyties of Jair) vnto this daye, and lye in Gilead. And Jair dyed and was buried at Camon.

But the chyldren of Israel wrought B wickednesse in the syght of the LORD and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddes of Siria, and the goddes of Sidon, and the goddes of Moab, and the goddes of the chyldren of Ammon, and the goddes of the Philistines and forsoke the LORDE, and serued hym not. Then was the wrath of the LORDE fearce vpon Israell, and he gaue them ouer vnder the hãde of the Philistines, and of the chyldren of Ammon. And they vexed and oppressed the chyldren of Israel eyghtene yeare longe, all the chyldren of Israell that were beyonde Jordane in the londe of ỹ Moabites, which lyeth in Gilead. The chyldren of Ammon also wente ouer Jordane, and fought agaynst Juda, Be Jamin, and agaynst the house of Ephraim so that Israell was very sore troubled.

C Then cryed the chyldren of Israell vnto the LORD, and sayde: We haue synned agaynst the, for we haue forsake oure God, and serued Baalim But the LORDE sayde vnto the chyldrẽ of Israell: Dyd not the Egipcians, ỹ Am-morites, the chyldren of Ammon, ỹ Phi listines, the Sidonians, the Amalechites, and Maonites oppresse you, and I helped you out of their hande, whan ye cryed vnto me? Yet haue ye forsakẽ me, and serued other goddes? Therfore wil Deu.32.e / Iere.2.d I helpe you nomore. * Go youre waye, and crye vpon the goddes whõ ye haue chosen, let them helpe you in the tyme of youre trouble.
D But the chyldren of Israel sayd vnto the LORD: We haue synned, do ỹ vnto vs what pleaseth the, onely dely-uer vs at this tyme. And they put the straunges goddes from thẽ, and serued the LORDE, And his soule had pytie on the mysery of Israell.
And the chyldren of Ammon called them selues together, and pitched in Gi lead: But the chyldren of Israel gathered them selues together also, and pyt-ched at Myspa. And the people of the chefest of Gilead sayde amõge them sel ues: Who so euer begynneth to fyght a gaynst the chyldren of Ammon, shalbe heade ouer all them that dwell in Gilead.

The.xi.Chapter.

Jephte is made ruler of the people, & ouercommeth Ammon in Maspha.

A IEphthae a Gileadite was a valeaunt man of armes, but an harlottes chylde. Gilead begat Jephthae. But whan the wyfe had borne chyldren vnto Gilead, and the same wyues chyldre were waxen greate, they thrust out Jephthae, and sayd vnto hym: Thou shalt not be heire in oure fathers house, for thou art another womans sonne.
Then fled he from his brethren, & dwelt in the londe of Tob. And there resorted vnto hym vakabundes, and wente out with hym. And after a certayne tyme fought the chyldren of Ammon with Is raell.
Now whan the chyldren of Ammõ fought thus wyth Israell, the Elders wente from Gilead to fetch Jephthae out of the londe of Tob, and sayd vnto hym: Come, and be oure captayne, and fyght agaynst the chyldren of Ammon.
But Jephthae sayde vnto the Elders of Gilead: Are not ye they that hate me & haue thrust me out of my fathers house, and now come ye to me whan ye are in trouble?
The Elders of Gilead sayde: Ther B fore come we now againe vnto the, that thou mayest go with vs, and fyght a-gaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and be oure captayne ouer all that dwell in Gi lead. Jephthae sayd vnto the Elders of Gilead: Yf ye fetch me agayne to fyght agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and ỹ LORDE delyuer them before me, shal I then be youre heade? The elders of Gilead sayd vnto Jephthae: The LOR DE be hearer betwene vs, yf we do not as thou hast sayde. So Jephthae wente with the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym heade and duke ouer thẽ.
And Jephthae spake all this before the LORDE at Mispa.
Then sente Jephthae messaungers to the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and caused to saye vnto hym: What hast thou to do with me, that thou commest vnto me to fyght agaynst my lõde?
The kynge of the chyldren of Ammon answered Jephthaes messaungers: Be cause that Israel toke awaye my londe (whã they departed out of Egipte) frõ Arnõ vnto Jabock, & vnto Jordane: ge-ue it me agayn now therfore peaceably.
But Jephthae sent yet mo messaun C gers to the kynge of the chyldren of Am mon, which sayde vnto hym: Thus say eth Jephthae: * Israell hath taken no Deu.2.a. londe, nether frõ the Moabites nor frõ the chyldren of Ammon: for when they departed out of Egipte, Israel walked thorowe the wyldernesse vnto the reed see, and came to Cades, and * sent mes Nu.20.b saungers to the kyng of the Edomites, & sayd: Let me go thorow thy lõde. But the kynge of the Edomytes wolde not heare the͂. They sent lykewyse vnto the kynge of the Moabites, which wolde not also. Thus Israel abode in Cades, and compassed the londe of the Edomytes and Moabites, and came on the east syde of the londe of the Moabites and pytched beyonde Arnon, and came not within the coaste of the Moabites.

Nu.21.c * For Arnon is the border of the Moabites.

Deu.2.d * And Israell sent messaungers vnto Sihon the kynge of the Ammorites at Hesbon, and caused to saye vnto hym: Let me go thorow thy londe vnto my place. Neuertheles Sihō wolde not trust Israell to go thorow the border of his londe, but gathered all his people, and pytched at Jahza, and fought with Israell. Howbeit the LORDE God of Israell gaue Sihon with all his people in to Israels hāde, so that they slewe the͂. Thus Israell conquered al the londe of the Ammorites that dwelt in the same countre. And they toke possession of all the borders of the Ammorites, from Arnon vnto Jabok, and from the wyldernesse vnto Jordane, So the LORDE God of Israel droue awaye the Ammorites before his people of Israell, and wylt thou conquere them? Is it not so, yf thy God Camos gaue the ought to possesse, woldest thou not possesse it? What so euer the LORDE oure God hath geue͂ vs before vs to possesse, that shall we conquere and take in possession

E Hast thou better right (thinkest ỹ)

Deu.23.a. the * Balac the sonne of ziphor, ỹ kyng of the Moabites? Dyd he euer go to law or fyght, agaynst Israel? Though Israell haue dwelt now vpon a thre hundreth yeare in Hesbon, and in ỹ vyllages therof, in Aroer and in the vyllages therof, & in all the cities that lye by Arnon. Why dyd not ye rescue it at the same tyme? I haue not offended the, & thou doest me euel to fyght agaynst me. The LORDE geue sente͂ce this daye betwene Israel & the chyldre͂ of Ammō.

Neuertheles the kynge of ỹ chyldre͂ of Ammon wolde not heare the wordes of Jephthae, which he sent vnto hym. Then came the spyrite of the LORDE vpon Jephthae, and he wente thorow Gilead and Manasse, and thorow Mispa which lyeth in Gilead, and fro mispa that lyeth in Gilead vnto the chyldren of Ammon.

F And Jephthae vowed a vowe vnto the LORDE, and sayde *: Yf thou wilt delyuer the chyldren of Ammon in to mi hande, what so euer commeth (fyrst) out at ỹ dore of my house in my waye, wha͂ I returne agayne peaceably frō ỹ chyldren of Ammon, ỹ same shalbe ỹ LORDES, and I wyll offre it for a burnt offerynge. Jud.

So Jephthae wente vpon the chyldren of Ammon, to fyght agaynst them. And the LORDE gaue them in to his hande, and he smote them from Aroer tyll thou comest vnto Minnith, euen twentye cyties, and vnto the playne of the vynyardes a very greate slaughter, & thus were ỹ chyldren of Ammon subdued before the chyldren of Israel.

Now whan Jephthae came to Mispa vnto his house, beholde, his doughter wente out to mete hym with tabrettes and daunces: and she was his onely childe, and he had els nether sonne nor doughter. And whā he sawe her, he rent his clothes, & sayde: Alas my doughter, thou makest my hart sorowfull, and discomfortest me: For I haue opened my mouth vnto the LORDE, and can not call it agayne.

G She sayd: My father, yf thou hast opened thy mouth vnto the LORDE, then do vnto me as it is proceaded out of thy mouth, acordynge as the LORD hath auenged the of thyne enemyes the chyldren of Ammon. And she sayd vnto hir father: Do this for me, geue me leue to go downe vpon the mountaynes two monethes, that I maye bewepe my virginite with my playfelowes. He sayde: Go thy waye. And he let her go two monethes. Then wēte she with her playfelowes, and bewayled hyr maydenheade vpon the mountaynes. And after two monethes she came agayne vnto hir father. And he dyd vnto her acordynge as he had vowed. And she had neuer bene in daunger of ony man. And it was a custome in Israel, that the doughters of Israel shulde go euery yeare, & mourne for the doughter of Jephthae the Gileadite, foure dayes in the yeare. Judi.

The.xii.Chapter.

¶ The Ephraites rise vp agaynst Jephthae, & there are slaine of them two and fortye thousande.

AND they of Ephraim made insurrectyō, and wente northwardes, & sayde vnto Jephthae: * Wherfore wentest thou to the battayl Jud.

agaynst the chyldren of Ammō, and hast not called vs, that we might go with ŷ? We wyl burne thy house, and the, with fyre. Jephthae sayd vnto them: I & my people had a great matter with the chyldren of Ammon, and I cryed vpon you but ye helped me not out of their hādes. Now whā I sawe there was no helper I put * my soule in my honde, & wente agaynst the chyldrē of Ammon, and the LORDE delyuered thē in to my hāde. Wherfore come ye vp to me to fight agaynst me?

B And Jephthae gathered all the men in Gilead, & fought agaynst Ephraim, and the men in Gilead smote Ephraim because they sayde: Ye Gileadites are as they that flye awaye before Ephraim (and dwell) amonge Ephraim and Manasse. And the Gileadites toke the ferye of Jordane from Ephraim. Now whā one of the fugityue Ephraites dyd saye: Let me go ouer, the mē of Gilead sayd: Art thou an Ephraite? yf he answered: No, they bad hym saye: Schiboleth, and he sayde: Siboleth, & coulde not speake it righte: then they toke hym, and slewe him at the ferye of Jordane, so that the same tyme there fell of Ephraim two & fortye M. Jephthae iudged Israel syxe yeares. And Jephthae ŷ Giliadite dyed and was buried in one of the cities of

C Gilead.

After hym iudged Israell one Ebzā of Bethleem, which had thirtie sonnes and as many doughters: and his thirtie doughters gaue he forth to mariage, & thirtie doughters toke he frō without for his sonnes, and iudged Israell seuen yeare, and dyed, and was buried at Bethleem.

After hym iudged Israell one Elon a zabulonite, and he iudged Israell ten yeare, and was buried at Aialon in the londe of zabulon.

After hym iudged Israel one Abdō a sōne of Hillel, a Pirgathonite, which had fortye sonnes, and thyrtie neuies (* which rode vpon seuenty asses foales) and he iudged Israell eyght yeare, and dyed, and was buryed at Pirgathon in the londe of Ephraim vpon the mount of the Amalechites.

The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ The byrth of Samson is shewed vnto his father and mother by an angell.

AND the chyldren of Israel wrought more euell before ŷ LORDE, * and ŷ LORDE gaue thē ouer in to the hādes of ŷ Philistynes fortye yeares. A

But ther was a man at zargā, of one of the kynreds of the Danites, named Manoah, and his wife was vnfrutefull and bare hym no chyldren. And the angell of the LORDE appeared vnto ŷ woman, and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art baren, & bearest not: but thou shalt conceaue, & beare a sonne. Take hede therfor, that thou drynke no wyne nor stronge drynke, and that thou eate no vncleane thynge, for thou shalt conceaue, and beare a sonne, * vpon whose heade there shall come no rasoure: for ŷ chylde shalbe a Nazare of God, euen frō his mothers wombe, and shall begynne to delyuer Israel out of ŷ hande of the Philistynes.

Then came the woman and tolde hir husbande, and sayde: There came a man of God vnto me, and his lyknesse was to loke vpon as an angel of God, very terryble, so that I axed hym not whence he came, and whither he wolde: nether tolde he me his name. But he sayde vnto me: beholde, thou shalt conceaue and beare a sōne: drynke no wyne therfore nor stronge drynke, and eate no vncleane thynge: * for the chylde shall be called a Nazare of God, euen from his mothers wombe vnto his death. B

Then Manoah prayed the LORD and sayde: Oh LORDE, let the mā of God whome thou hast sent, come to vs agayne, that he may enfourme vs what we shall do vnto the chylde which shall be borne. And God herde the voyce of Manoah, and the angell of God came to his wyfe agayne. But she sat in the felde, and hir husbande Manoah was not with her. Then ranne she in all the hast, and tolde hir husbande, and sayde vnto hym: beholde, the man hath appered vnto me, that came to me to daye.

Manoah gat him vp, and wente after his wyfe, and came to the man and sayde vnto hym: Art thou the man that spake to the woman? He sayde: Yee. And Manoah sayde: whan it commeth to passe that thou hast sayde, what shalbe the maner and worke of the chylde? The angell of the LORDE sayde vnto Manoah: He shall kepe hym from all that I tolde the woman: he shall not eate that whiche commeth of the vyne, C

Manoah and his wyfe sawe that, they fell downe to the earth vpō their faces.
And the angell of the LORDE appea red nomore vnto Manoah & his wyfe.
Then knewe Manoah, that it was an Exod.33.d angel of the LORDE, and he sayd vn Jud.6.e to his wyfe: * We must dye the death, because we haue sene God. But his wife answered him: Yf the LORDE wolde haue slayne vs, he had not receaued the burntofferynge and meatofferynge of oure handes: nether had he shewed vs al these thynges, nor lettē vs heare such as is now come to passe.
And the womā brought forth a sōne, and called his name Samson, And the chylde grewe, and the LORDE blessed hym. And the sprete of the LORDE be-ganne to be wyth hym in the tentes of Dan, betwene Sarga and Esthaol.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

Sāson taketh a wyfe in Timnath, renteth a yonge lyon in peces, and putteth forth a dark sentence vnto his companyons.

A Sampson wente downe vnto Timnath, & there he sawe a woman amonge the doughters of the Philistynes. And whan he came vp, he tolde his father and his mother and sayde: I haue sene a woman amonge the doughters of ẏ Philistines, I praye you geue me the same to wyfe. His father & his mother sayde vnto hym: * Is there not Deu.7 a woman amonge the doughters of thy brethren, and in all thy people, but thou must go & take a wyfe amonge the Phi listynes, which are vncircumcised?
Sāson sayde vnto his father: Geue me this woman, for she pleaseth myne eyes. But his father and his mother knewe not that it came of the LORDE, and that he sought an occasion agaynst the Philistynes. For the Philistynes reygned ouer Israell at the same tyme.
So Sāpson wēte downe wt his father & with his mother vnto Thimnath.
And whan they came to the vynyar B des of Thimnath, beholde, there came a yong roarynge lyon agaynst hym. And the sprete of the LORDE came vpon hym, and he rente hym in peces, euen as a kydde is parted asunder, & yet had he nothynge at all in his hande, & he tolde it not vnto his father & his mother.
Now whā he came down, he spake with the woman, and she pleased Sam psons eyes. And after certayne dayes he came agayn to receaue her, and wēte out of the waye, ẏ he might se the dead carcas of the lyon: and beholde, in the ly ons carcas ther was a swarme of byes, and hony: and he toke of it in his hande and dyd eate therof by the way: & wēte vnto his father and to his mother, and gaue them to eate also. But he told thē not, that he had taken the hony out of the lyons carcas.
And whan his father came downe to the woman, Sampson made a feaste C there, as the yonge mē vsed to do. And whan they sawe hym, they gaue hym thyrtie cōpanyons to be with hym. Sāson sayde vnto them: I wyll expresse a darke sentence vnto you, yf ye expounde me the same within these seuen dayes of the feast, I wyl geue you thirtye sher tes, and thirtie chaunge of rayment.
But yf ye can not expounde it, then shal ye geue me thirtie shertes, and thirtie chaunge of rayment. And they sayde vn to hym: Shewe forth thy ryddle, let vs heare it. He sayde vnto them: Meate wente out from the deuourer, and swetenesse from the mightie. And in thre da yes they coulde not expounde ẏ ryddle.
Upon the seuenth daye they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe: Perswade thy husbāde, that he tell vs what the ryddle meaneth, or els we shall burne the and thy fathers house with fire. Haue ye called vs hither, to brynge vs to pouertie? Thē wepte Samsons wyfe before him and sayde: Thou art displeased at me, and louest me not: thou hast expressed a darke sentence vnto the children of my people, and hast not tolde it me.

D But he sayde vnto her: Behold, *I haue not tolde it vnto my father & mother, & shuld I tell it the? And she wepte before him those seuē dayes, whyle they had the feaste. But on the seuenth daye he tolde it her, for she was so importune vpō him. And she expounded the darke sentence vnto the children of her people. Thē sayd the men of the cite vnto him vpon the seuēth daye or euer the Sōne wēte down: What is swetter thē hony? What is stronger then the lyon? But he sayde vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed with my calfe, ye shulde not haue founde out my ryddle. And the sprete of the LORDE came vpon hym, and he wente downe vnto Ascalon, and slewe thirtie men of them, and toke their spoyles, and gaue chaunge of rayment vnto thē, that had expounded the riddle. And he was wrothfully displeased, & wente vp vnto his fathers house. As for Samsons wyfe, she was geuen vnto one of his cōpanyōs, which belōged vnto him.

The.xv. Chapter.

How Samson hurteth the Philistynes with the foxes. He slayeth a thousande men with ẏ chekebone of an asse.

IT fortuned after certayne dayes aboute ẏ wheate haruest tyme, that Samson visited his wyfe with a kydde. And whā he thought, I wyl go to my wyfe in to the chamber, hir father wolde not let him in, and sayde: I thought thou wast displeased at her, & I gaue her to thy frende. But she hath a yonger syster which is more beutyful then she, let the same be thyne for her. Then sayde Sāson vnto them, I haue once gottē righte occasion agaynste the Philistines, I wyll do you displeasure. And Samson wente & catched thre hundreth foxes, and toke fyre brandes, and festened one tayle to another, and put euer a fyre brāde betwene two tayles, and kyndled ẏ same with fyre, and let thē go among the Philistynes corne & thus he brēt ẏ stoukes, & the stōdyng corne, ẏ the vynyardes, & the olyue trees.

Then sayde the Philistynes: Who hath done this? And they sayde: Samson ẏ husbāde of the Thimnites doughter, because he toke awaye his wyfe frō hym, & gaue hir vnto his frende. Then wente the Philistynes vp, and brent her and hir father also with fyre.

But Samson sayde vnto them: I can suffre you to do this, neuertheles I wyll be aueged vpon you my selfe, and then wyll I leaue of. And he smote thē sore both vpon the shulders and loynes and wente downe, and dwelt in ẏ stone clyffe at Etam. Then wente the Philistynes vp, and layed sege vnto Juda, and pitched at Lechi. But they of Juda sayd: Wherfore are ye come vp agaynst vs? They answered: we are come vp to bynde Samson, that we maye do vnto hym, as he hath done vnto vs.

C Then wente there thre .M. men of Juda down to the stone clyffe of Etam and sayd vnto Samson: Knowest thou not that ẏ Philistines raygne ouer vs? Wherfore hast thou done this then vnto vs? He sayde: As they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto them agayn. They sayde vnto hym: We are come downe to bynde the, and to delyuer ẏ in to the hande of the Philistynes. Sāson sayde vnto them: Then sweare and promyse me, that ye wyll not slaye me: They answered hym. We wyll not kyll the, we wyll but bynde the, and delyuer the into their hande, and wyll not slaye the. And they bounde hym with two newe coardes, and caried him from the stone. And whan he came vnto Lechi, ẏ Phylistynes shouted, and ranne vnto hym. But ẏ sprete of the Lord came vpō him and the coardes aboute his armes were lyke thredes burnt in ẏ fyre, so that the bondes were lowsed from his hondes.

D And he founde the chekebone of a dead asse: then put he forth his hande, and toke it, and slewe a thousande men therwith: And Samson sayd: With an olde asses cheke bone, yee euen with the cheke bone of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And whan he had sayd that, he caste the chekebone out of his hande, and called the place Ramath Lechy. But whan he was sore a thyrst, he called vpon the LORDE and sayde: Such greate health hast thou geuen by the hande of thy seruaunt, but now must I dye a thyrste, and fall in to the hande of the vncircumcysed. Then God opened a gometothe in the cheke bone, so that water wente out: and whã he dranke, his sprete came agayne, and he was refreshed. Therfore vnto this day it is yet called the well of the cheke bone of him that made intercessiõ. And he iudged Israell in ỹ tyme of the Phi listynes twentye yeare.

The.xvi. Chapter.

Sãson taketh the portes of the gate of the cite vpon his backe, and beareth them vp the mount. Dalila the harlot bryngeth hym in dotage, so that he telleth her his secretes, and is blynded of his enemyes.

A Samson wente vnto Gasa, and there he sawe an harlot and lay with her. Thẽ was it sayde vnto the Gasites: Sãson is come hither. And they compassed him aboute, and caused to laye wayte for him preuely, and watched all the night in the gate of the cite, and all that night they helde them styll, and sayde: Abyde, tomorow whan it is light, we wyll slaye hym. But Samson laye vnto midnight, then rose he at mid night, and toke holde on both the syde portes of the gate of the cite, with both the postes, and lifte them out with the barres, and layed thẽ vpõ his shulders, and bare them vp to the toppe of the mount ouer agaynst Hebron.

After this he fell in to the loue of a woman by the broke of Sorek, whose name was Dalila, vnto whom the prin B ces of the Philistynes came vp, & sayde vnto her: Persuade hym, and loke wher in he hath suche greate strength, & how we maye ouercome him, that we might bynde hym and subdue him, so wyll we geue the euery mã a M. and an C. syl-uerlynges. And Dalila sayde vnto Sãson: I praye ỹ tell me, wherin thy great strength is, and how thou mightest be bounde to be subdued. Samson sayde vnto her: Yf I were bounde with seuen roapes of fresh senowes, which are not yet dryed vp, I shulde be weake, and as another man. Then the prynces of the Philystines brought vp vnto her seuen new roapes, whiche were not yet dryed vp, And she bounde him therwith. (But there was wayte layed for hym besyde her in the chamber) and she sayde vnto hym: The Philistynes vpon the Samson. Neuertheles he brake the roapes asunder, euen as a twyned threde breaketh, when it hath catched the heate of the fyre. And it was not knowen wher his strength was.

Then sayde Dalila vnto Samson: C beholde, thou hast begyled me & dissembled with me: tell me yet, wherwithall mayst thou be bounde? He answered her: Yf they bounde me with new coardes, wherwith no labour hath bene done, I shulde be feble, & as another man. Then toke Dalila new coardes, and bounde hym withall, and sayde: The Philistines vpon the Samson (but there was wayte layed for hym in the chamber.) And he brake them frõ his armes, as as it had bene a threde.

Dalila sayde vnto hym: Yet hast thou begyled me & dissembled with me: O tell me yet, wherwithall mightest thou be bounde? He answered her: If thou playtest seuen hayrie lockes of my heade together in a fyllet, and fastenest thẽ in with a nayle (I shulde be weake) And she sayde vnto hym: The Philisty-nes vpon the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & drue out the playted hayrie lockes with ỹ nayle & the fyllet.

Then sayd she vnto hym: How cãst D thou saye that thou louest me, wheras thine hart is not yet wt me? Thre tymes hast ỹ deceaued me, & not tolde me whe rin thy greate strẽgth is. So when she was euery daye importune vpon hym wt her wordes, & wolde not let him haue rest, his soule was faynte euen vnto the death, & he shewed her his whole harte, and sayde vnto her: * There came neuer rasoure vpon my heade, for I am a Nazaré of God fro my mothers wõbe.
Yf I were shauen, my strength shulde departe fro me, so ỹ I shuld be weake, and as all other men. Now whan Dalila sawe that he had opened al his hart vnto her, she sent and called for the prin ces of the Philistynes, and sayd: Come yet once vp, for he hath opened his whole hart vnto me.

Then came the prynces of the Phi- E listines vp vnto her, & brought the money with them in their handes. And she made hym to slepe vpon hir lappe, and called one which shoue of the seuen hey rie lockes of his heade. And she began to vexe hym. Then was his strength de parted from hym. And she sayde vnto hym: The Philistynes vpon the Samson. Now whan he awoke out of his slepe, he thought: I wyll go forth as I haue done afore time, and ease my self, and knew not that the LORDE was departed from hym. But the Philisty-nes toke hym, and put out his eyes, and brought hym downe to Gasa, & bounde hym with fetters, and made hym to grynde in the preson. But ye heer of his heade beganne to growe agayne, wher it was shauen of.

When the prynces of the Philisty-F nes were gathered together, to make a greate sacrifice unto Dagon their god and to be ioyfull, they sayde: oure god hath delyuered Samson our enemye in to oure hande. Likewise whan the people sawe hym, they praysed their god, & sayde: Oure god hath delyuered in to oure hãdes oure enemye, that destroyed oure londe, and slew many of vs. Now whã their hart was ioyfull, they sayde: Let vs fetch Sãson, that he may make some pastyme before vs. Then fetched they Samson out of the preson, and he made pastyme before thẽ. And they set him betwene two pylers. But Samson sayde unto the lad that led hym by the honde: Let me touche the pylers where vpon the house stondeth, that I maye leane there unto. As for the house, it was full of men & wemen. All the pryn ces of the Philistynes were there also, and vpon the rofe were aboute a thre thousande men and wemen, whiche be-helde what pastyme Samson made.
But Sãson called vpon the LOR G DE, and sayd: O LORDE LORD thynke vpon me, and strength me but this once O God I beseke the, that for both myne eyes I maye auenge me on the Philistynes. And he toke holde of the two mydpylers, that ye house stode vpon and was holdẽ vp, the one in his right honde, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: My soule dye with the Phi listynes, and he bowed hym selfe migh-tely. Then fell the house vpon the pryn ces and vpon all the people that were therin, so that there were mo of the slayne which dyed in his death, then he slewe whyle he lyued. Then came his brethren downe & all his fathers house and toke hym, and caried hym vp, and buried hym in the graue of his father Manoah betwene zarga and Esthaoll, He iudged Israell twentye yeare.

The.xvii.Chapter.

Of Micha and his ymages. &c.

A There was a man vpon mounte Ephraim, named Micha, which sayde to his mother: The thou sande and hũdreth syluerlinges whiche ye hast taken unto the, & swores, & spokẽ of before myne eares: beholde, ye same money is be me, I haue takẽ it vn to me. Then sayd his mother: The blessynge of the LORDE haue thou my sonne. So he gaue his mother the thou sande and hũdreth syluerlynges agayne And his mother sayde: That money haue I sanctified unto the LORDE with my hande for my sonne, to make a molten ymage: therfore I geue it the a-gayne. Neuertheles he delyuered the mo ney agayne unto his mother.
Then toke his mother two hũdreth B syluerlynges, and put them forth to the goldsmyth, which made a moltẽ ymage that was afterwarde in Michas house And thus the man Micha had a gods house, and made an ouerbody cote, and Idols, and fylled the handes of one of his sonnes, that he myght be his prest.
* At that tyme was there no kynge in Judi. 18. a Israel, and euery man dyd the thynge ye and 21. d was ryght in his owne eyes. Ther was a yonge man of Bethlẽ Juda, amonge the kynredes of Juda, and he was a Le uite, and was a straunger there. The same went out of the cyte of Bethlem Juda, to walke whether he coulde.
And whã he came vp to mounte E- C phraim unto the house of Micha, to go on his iourney, Micha axed him: whece commest thou? He answered him: I am a Leuite of Bethlem Juda, & am walkynge where I can. Micha sayd unto hym: Tary with me, thou shalt be my fa ther and my prest, I wyll geue the euery yeare ten syluerlynges and thy appoynted rayment, and meat and drynke: and the Leuite went on. And the Leuite agreed to abyde with the man: & he held the yonge man, as one of his owne son-nes. And Micha fylled the Leuites hãdes that he myght be his prest, & so he was in Michas house. And Micha sayde: I am sure the LORDE wyl do me good now, that I haue a Leuite to my prest.

The.xviii.Chapter.

Dan sendeth out mẽ to spye ye londe whiche take Michas ymage, and carye awaye the prest.

At that tyme was there no A kynge in Israel. And the trybe of the Danites sought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, * for unto Jos. 19. d that daye there was no enheritaunce fallen unto them amonge the trybes of Israell. And the chyldren of Dan sent out of their kynreds fyue captaynes (whiche were men of armes) from zarga and Es taoll, to spye and searche out the londe.

And they sayd vnto thẽ: Go youre waye, and search out the lõde. And they came vp to mount Ephraim in to the house of Micha, and taried ther all night. And whyle they were there ĩ Michas hous-holde, they knew the voyce of the yonge man the Leuite, and sayde vnto hym, Who brought the hither? What makest thou here? & why woldest ŷ come hither?
B He answered them: Thus and thus hath Micha done vnto me, and hath hy red me to be his prest. They sayde vnto hym: O axe at God, that we maye per-ceaue, whether oure yourney which we go, shall prospere well or not. The prest answered thẽ: Go youre waye in peace, youre yourney that ye go, is before the LORDE. Then the fyue men wẽte their waye, & came vnto Lais, and sawe that the people which was therin, dwelt sure euen as the Sidonians, at rest, and care lesse, and that there was no lorde in the londe to vexe them, and were farre from the Sidonians, and had nothinge to do with eny man.
C And they came to their brethrẽ to zar ga and Esthaol. And their brethrẽ sayde vnto them: How is it with you? They sayde: Arise, let vs go vp vnto them, for we haue sene the londe: that it is very good lõde: make haist therfore & be not slacke to go, that ye maye come to take possession of the londe. Whan ye come, ye shall come to a carelesse people, and the londe is wyde: for God hath delyuered this place in to youre hande wher nothyng wãteth of al that is vpõ earth.
Thẽ wẽte ther thẽce out of ŷ kynreds of Dã from zarga and Esthoal, sixe hũ dreth mẽ ready wapened to the battayl, and wente vp, & pitched at Kiriath Jea rim in Juda: therfore called they ŷ same place, the hoost of Dan, vnto this daye, which is behynde Kiriath Jearim.
D And from thẽce they wente vp vnto mount Ephraim, and came to the house of Micha. Thẽ answered the fyue men that wente out to spye the londe of Lais and sayde vnto their brethrẽ: Knowe ye not that in these houses there is an ouer body cote, Idols, and molten ymages?
Now maye ye loke what ye haue to do.
They departed thence, and came to the house of the yõge man the Leuite in Mi chas house, and saluted him frendly. But the sixe hũdreth men, which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode ready harnessed before the gate. And the fyue men that were gone out to spye the londe, wente vp, and cam thither, and toke ŷ ymage, the ouerbody cote, and the molte Idols.
In the meane whyle stode the prest at the gate, with the sixe hundreth readye harnessed.
Now whan these were come in to E Michas house, and toke the ymage, the ouerbody cote, and the molten Idols, the prest sayd vnto them: What do ye?
They answered hym: Holde thy peace, and laye thyne hand vpon thy mouth, & go with vs, that thou mayest be oure fa ther and prest. Is it better for the to be prest in one mans house, then amonge a whole trybe & kynred in Israel? This pleased the prest well, and he toke both the ouerbody cote, and the Idols, and the ymage, and came in amonge the peo ple. And whã they turned thẽ and wẽte thence, they sent their children, and catell, and such precious thynges as they had, before them.
Whan they were come farre now F from the house of Micha, the men that were in Michas houses gathered them together by Michas house, & folowed the chyldren of Dan, and cryed vpõ the chyldren of Dan. They turned their fa ces aboute, & sayde vnto Micha: What ayleth the, that thou makest such a cry enge? He answered: Ye haue takẽ awaye my goddes, and the prest, & are goynge youre waye, and what haue I besyde?
What is her? And yet ye saye vnto me: What ayleth the? But the children of Dan sayd vnto hym: Let not thy voyce be herde amonge vs, that some wrath full men thrust not at the, & so thy soule and the soule of thy house be destroyed.
So the children of Dan wente on their waye. And Micha, whan he sawe that they were to stronge for hym, turned backe, and came agayne to his house.
But they toke that Micha had made, G and the prest whome he had, and came vnto Lais, to a quyete carelesse people, and slewe them with the edge of the swearde, & burnt the cite with fyre, and there was noman to delyuer them, for they laye farre from Sidon, and had to do with no man. and they lay in the val ley, which is besyde Beth Rehob. Then buylded they the cite, and dwelt therin, * & called it Dã, after ŷ name of their father Dan, whome Israel begat. But the cite was called Lais afore tyme.

And the children of Dan set vp the ymage for thẽ and Jonathan the sonne of Gerson the sonne of Manasse, & his sonnes were prestes amonge the trybe of the Danites, * vnto the tyme that they were led awaye captyue out of the londe. And thus they set amonge them ẏ ymage of Micha, which he had made as longe as the house of God was at Silo.

The.xix. Chapter.

¶ Howe shamefully the Gibeonites dealt with the Leuites wyfe.

A At the same tyme was there no kynge in Israel, & there was a man of Leui, whiche was a strauger besyde mount Ephraim, & had taken hym a cõcubine of Bethleem Juda to wyfe. And whan she had played the harlot besyde hym, she ranne from hym to hir fathers house vnto Bethleem Juda, and was ther foure monethes lõge. And hir husbande gat hym vp, and wente after her, to speake frendly with her, and to fetch her agayne, and had a seruaunt & and a couple of asses with him. And she led hym in hir fathers house. But whã the damsels father sawe hym, he was glad, and receaued hym: and his father in law the damsels father kepte him, so that he taried thre dayes with hym: thus they dyd eate and drynke and remayned there all night.

B But on the fourth daye he gat hym vp early, and wolde go his waye. Then sayde the damsels father vnto his sõne in law: * Refresh thyne hart first with a morsell of bread, and then shal ye go. And they sat them downe, and dyd eate and drynke both together: Then sayde the damsels father vnto the man: Oh tarye all night, that we maye refreshe thyne hart. But the man arose, & wolde nedes go. And his father in lawe constrayned hym to tarie all night. On the fifth daye in the mornynge he gat hym vp, and wolde be gone. Then sayde the damsels father: I praye the conforte thyne hart, and let vs tary tyll the daye be farther past: & so they dyd eate both together.

C And the man gat him vp, and wold go with his concubyne and with his seruaunt. But his father in lawe the damsels father, sayd vnto him agayne: Lo, the daye is spent, and it begynneth to be euen, tary all night, beholde, there is lodginge yet this daye, abyde here this night, it shall refreshe thyne harte: tomorowe by tymes get you vp, and go youre waye vnto thy tente. Neuertheles the mã wolde not tary, but gat hym vp, and wente his waye and came ouer agaynst Jebus (that is Jerusalem) and his copple of asses laden, and his concubyne wyth hym.

Now whã they they were come nye vnto Jebus, the daye fell fast awaye. And the seruaũt sayd vnto his master: I pray you go on, and let vs turne in to this cyte of the Jebusytes, & tarye therin all nyght. Notwythstondynge his D master sayd vnto him: I wyl not turne in to the cyte of the aleauntes, that are not of the chyldren of Israel, but I wyl go ouer vnto Gibea. And he sayde vnto his seruaũt: Go thou before, ẏ we maye come to some place, and tarye at Gibea or at Ramah all nyght. And they wẽte on and walked, & ẏ Sonne wẽte downe vpon thẽ harde by Gibea, which lyeth in the trybe of Ben Jamin: and they turned in there, that they myghte come in, and tarye at Gibea all nyght. But whã he came in, he sat hym downe in ẏ strete of the cyte: for there was noman that wolde lodge thẽ in his house that night. E

And beholde, thẽ came there an olde man from his worke out of the felde in the euenynge: and he was also of mount Ephraim, and a strauger at Gibea: but the men of that place were the chyldren of Jemini. And whan he lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe the straunger in ẏ strete he sayde vnto hym: Whyther wilt thou go? and whence commest thou? He answered hym: We are goynge on oure iourney from Bethlehem Juda, vntyll we come besyde mount Ephraim where I am, and wẽte vnto Bethlehem Juda, and now I go vnto ẏ house of ẏ LORDE and no man wyll harbarow me. We haue strawe and prouender for oure asses, and bread and wyne for me & thy handmayden, and for the yonge man which is with thy seruaunt, so that we wante nothynge.

F The olde man sayd: Peace be with the: what soeuer thou wantest, thou fyndest it with me, onely tarye not in the strete all night. And he brought him in to his house, & gaue the asses prouender and they washed their fete, & dyd eate and drynke. And whan their harte was now ioyfull, the men of the cite the children of Belial came, and compassed the house rounde aboute, and russhed at the dore, and sayde vnto the olde mã, which was the goodman of the house: Bringe out ẏ mã which is come in to thy house that we maye knowe hym.

Gene.19.b * But the good man of the house wente forth to them, and sayd vnto thẽ: Oh no my brethren, do not so wickedly, consyderinge this man is come in to my house: Oh do not such folye. Beholde, I haue a doughter yet a virgyn, and this man hath a concubyne, those wyll I bringe forth vnto you, that ye maye hũ ble them, and do wyth them as ye lyke: but do not such foly vnto this man. Ne uerthelesse the mẽ wolde not herken vn to hym. Then toke the man his concu-bine and brought her forth vnto them: and they knewe her, & dealt shamefully with her all that nyght vntyll the mor-nynge. And whan the mornynge brake an, they let her go.

G Then came the woman early in the mornynge, and fell downe at the dore of the mans house that her lorde was in, & laye there tyll it was lyght. Now whã hir lorde rose vp in the mornynge, and opened the dore of the house, and wente forth to go on his iourney, beholde, his concubyne laye at the dore of the house, and hir handes vpon the thresholde. He sayde vnto her: stonde vp, let vs go. Ne uerthelesse she gaue hym no answere.
Thẽ toke he her vp vpon his asse, gat hym vp, and wente vnto his place.

Now whan he came home, he toke a swearde, and helde his cõcubyne, and cut her with the bones and all in to twolue peces, and sent them in to all ẏ coastes of Israel. Who so euer sawe it, sayde: Such a thynge hath not bene done nor sene, sence the tyme that ẏ chil dren of Israel departed out of the londe of Egipte, vnto this daye. Now as con cernynge this, take your advysement, & geue your councell, and shew it forth.

The.xx. Chapter.

How the same synne is punysshed.

A Then wente the chyldren of Israell out and gathered a cõgregacyõ together as one man, frõ Dan vntyll Bersa ba, and from the londe of Gi lead vnto the LORDE to Mispa: and there came together of all the quarters of the people, and of all the trybes of Israell in to the congregacyon of ẏ peo ple of God, foure hundreth thousande fote men that drue out the swearde. But the chyldren of Ben Iamin herde, that that the chyldren of Israell were gone vp vnto Mispa. And the chyldren of Is raell sayd: Tell vs, how happened this euell?

Then answered the Leuite the hus bande of the woman that was slayne, and sayde: I came to Gibea in Ben Ia min wyth my concubyne, to tary there all nyght, then the cytesyns of Gibea gat them vp agaynst me, and compas sed me aboute in the house by nyght, & thought to slaye me, and defyled my con cubyne, so that she dyed: then toke I my concubyne, and cut her in peces, & sent the peces in to euery countre of the inhe ritaunce of Israell: for they haue done an abhominacion and folye in Israell.
Beholde, here are ye chyldren of Israel, adyyse you wel, and take this matter in hande.

So all ẏ people gat them vp as one man, and sayde: No man shall go in to his tente, nor departe to his house, but this wyll we do now agaynst Gibea: Let vs cast lot, and take ten men of an hundreth, and an hũdreth of a thousande, and a thousande of ten thousande, out of all the trybes of Israel, ẏ they maye take fode for the people, to come and do with Gibea Ben Iamin, accordynge to their folye which they haue done in Is raell. Thus all the mẽ of Israel beynge confederate, gathered them selues toge ther as one man vnto the cyte: and the trybe of Israell sent mẽ vnto all ẏ kyn reds of Ben Iamin, and caused to saye vnto thẽ: What maner of wyckednes is this, that is done amonge you? Dely uer here therfore the men the chyldren of Belial at Gibea, that we maye put them to death, and do awaye the euell out of Israel. Neuerthelesse the chyldren of Bẽ Iamin wolde not folowe ẏ voyce of their brethrẽ ẏ chyldrẽ of Israel, but gathered them selues out of the cities vnto Gibea, to go forth in battayl a gaynst the chyldrẽ of Israel.

And the same daye were there nom bred of the children of Ben Iamin out of the cities, sixe and twentye thousande men, that drue the swearde, besyde the citesyns of Gibea, of whom there were tolde seuen hundreth chosen men. And amonge al this people there were cho sen out seuen hũdreth men, which were not the right honde but the lefte, & yet with the slynge coulde they touche an heer, & not mysse. But the mẽ of Isra besyde them of BenJamin, were nombred foure hundreth thousande, whiche drue the swearde, and were al men of armes. And the chyldren of Israel arose, and went vp to ye house of God (in Silo) and axed at God, and sayd: Who shall go vp for vs to begynne the battayll with the chyldren of BenJamin?

The LORDE sayd Juda shall begyn.

So the chyldren of Israel gat them vp in the mornynge, and pitched ouer agaynst Gibea, and euery man of Israell went out to fyght with BenJamin, and set them selues in aray to fyght agaynst Gibea. The fell the chyldren of BenJamin out of Gibea, and slewe the same daye amonge Israel two and twentye thousande to the grounde.
D But the people of the men of Israel comforted them selues, and made them redy to fyght yet more in the same place after they had prepared them selues the daye afore. And the chyldren of Israell wente vp, and wepte before ye LORDE vntyll the euenynge, & axed at ye LORDE, and sayde: Shall we go eny more to fyght with oure brethren the chyldren of BenJamin? The LORDE sayde: Go vp vnto them. And whan the chyldren of Israel gat them vp to the chyldren of BenJamin on the nexte daye, ye BenJamites fell out of Gibea agaynst them the same daye, and slewe yet eyghtene thousande of the the chyldren of Israel to the grounde, whiche all drue the swearde.

Then wente all the chyldren of Israell vp, and all the people, and came to the house of God, and wept, and taried there before the LORDE, and fasted that daye vntyl the euen, & offred burnt offerynges and thankofferynges before the LORDE. And the chyldren of Israel axed at the LORDE (the Arke of the couenaűt of God was there at that tyme, and Phinees the sonne of Eleasar the sonne of Aaron stode before hym at the same tyme) and they sayd: Shall we go forth eny more to fighte with our brethren the chyldren of BenJamin, or shal we leaue of? The LORDE sayd: Go vp, to morow wyll I delyuer them into youre handes.
E And the chyldren of Israel set a preuy watch agaynst Gibea rounde aboute and so the chyldren of Israell wente vp to the chyldren of BenJamin on the thyrde daye, and set them selues in aray agaynst Gibea lyke as the other two tymes afore. Then came the chyldren of BenJamin out agaynst the people, and brake out of the cyte, & beganne to slaye certayne wounded of the people (lyke as the other two tymes afore) in the felde vpon two stretes: wherof one goeth towarde Bethel, the other vnto Gilead vpon a thyrtye men in Israel. Then thought the chyldren of BenJamin:
They are smytten before vs lyke as afore. But the chyldren of Israel sayd: Let vs flye, that we may prouoke them out of the cyte in to the hye stretes.

Then all the men of Israel gat the vp from theyr place, and prepared them selues vnto Baal Thamar. And ye hynder watche of Israel brake out of theyr place, from the caue of Gaba, and came vnto Gibea, twentye thousande chosen men out of all Israel, so ye it was a sore battayll: but they knewe not that ye euel shulde happen vnto them. Thus the LORDE smote BenJamin before the chyldren of Israell, so that the same day the chyldren of Israel destroyed fyue & twentye thousande and an hundreth men in BenJamin, whiche all drue the swearde.
For when the chyldren of BenJamin sawe that they were smytten, ye mē F of Israel gaue them rowme (to flye).
For they trusted to the watche, whiche they had set by Gibea. And the watche made haist also, & brake forth vnto Gibea, and wente vpon it, and smote all ye cyte with the edge of the swearde. They were appoynted betwene them selues ye men of Israell and the hynder watch, to fall vpon them with the swearde, whā the smoke of the cite arose. Now whan the men of Israel turned them in ye battayll, and BenJamin began to smyte the wounded in Israell vpon a thyrtye men, and thought, they are smytten before vs, lyk as in the battayll afore, then beganne there a piler of smoke to aryse vp frō the cyte. And BenJamin loked behynde them: and beholde, the flamme of the cyte wente vp vnto heauen. And the mē of Israel turned them, and were fearce vpon the men of BenJamin: for they sawe that the euell wolde happen vnto them.
And they turned them before ye men G of Israel in the way to the wyldernesse but the battayll folowed vpon them.
And them of the cyte destroyed they amonge them. And they compassed BenJamin rounde aboute, & folowed vpon them vnto Menuah, and trode the downe tyll afore Gibea eastwarde. And there fell of BenJamin eyghtene thousande mē, which were al men of armes.

Whan the remnaūt of BenJamin sawe that, they turned them, and fled to warde the wyldernesse vnto the stonye rocke of Rimon. But in the same strete they slewe fyue thousande men, and folowed vpon them vnto Gideon, & slewe two thousande of them: and so ther fell the same daye of BenJamin fyue and twentye thousande men which drue the swearde and were all men of armes.
Onely sixe hūdreth men turned backe, and fled towarde the wyldernesse vnto the stonye rocke of Rimon, and abode in the rocke of Rimon foure monethes.
And the men of Israel came agayne to the chyldren of BenJamin, and smote them that were in the cytē with ỷ edge of the swearde, both men and catell and all that was founde: and what soeuer was founde in the cytē, they cast it into the fyre.

The.xxi.Chapter.

The BenJamites optaine wyues in Israel, whom ỷ Israelites had sworne notto geue them.

A The mē of Israel had sworne at Mispa, and said: No man shall geue his doughter to ỷ BenJamites to wyfe. And the people came to the house of God (in Silo) and abode there before God vntyll the euenynge, and lyfte vp their voyce, and wept sore, and sayd: O LORDE God of Israel, wherfore is this come to passe in Israel this daye?
But on the morow the people gat them vp early, and buylded there an altare, & offred burntofferynges and thankoffe-rynges.
And the chyldren of Israel sayde: Where is there eny man of the trybes of Israel, that is not come vp with the congregacyon vnto the LORDE? For there was a great ooth made, that who so came not vp to Mispa vnto ỷ LOR-DE, shulde dye the death. And the chyl-drē of Israel were sory for BenJamin their brother, and sayde: This daye is there one trybe lesse in Israel. How wyl we do that the remnaunt may haue wy-ues? For we haue sworne by ỷ LOR-B DE, ỷ we wyll not geue them wyues of our doughters. And they sayd: Where is there eny mā of ỷ trybes of Israel, ỷ is not come vp to ỷ LORDE vnto Mis-pa? And beholde, there was not one of the cytesyns of Jabes in Gilead.
Then sent the congregacyon twelue thousande mē of armes thyther, and cō-maunded them, and sayd: Go youre way and smyte the cytesyns of Jabes in Gilead with the swearde, the women also and the chyldren, but so that ye do after this maner: * Se that ye damme all that Jud. that are males, and all the women that haue lyen with men. And amonge the cytesyns of Jabes in Gilead they founde foure hūdreth damsels, which were vir-gins, and had lyen with noman: those they brought in to the hoost vnto Silo, which lyeth in the londe of Canaan.
C Then sent the whole congregacion, & caused to talke with the childrē of Ben Jamin, * which were in the stonie roc- Jud. ke of Rimō, and called vnto them frend ly. So the children of BenJamin came agayne at the same tyme, and they gaue them women whiche they hadde of the wemen of Jabes in Gilead, and foūde no mō after that maner. Then were the people sory for BenJamin, that the LORDE had made a gappe in ỷ trybes of Israel. And the Elders of the congregacion sayde: What will we do, that ỷ remnaunt maye haue wyues also? for ỷ womē in BenJamin are destroied, and they saide: The enheritaunce of them of BenJamin that are escaped, must nedes remayne, that there be not a trybe destroyed out of Israel: & we can not geue them oure doughters to wiues. For the children of Israel haue sworne & sayde: Cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to the BenJamites.
And they sayd: Beholde there is a ye-rely feast of the LORDE at Silo, which lieth on the northsyde of the Gods hou-D se, and on the eastside of the strete as a man goeth from Bethel vnto Sichem, and lieth on the southside of Libona.
And they commaunded the chyldren of BenJamin, and sayd: Go youre waye, and wayte in the vyneyardes. And whan ye se that ỷ doughters of Silo go forth by companyes to daunse, get you out of the vyneyardes, and euery man take hym a wyfe of ỷ doughters of Silo, and get youre waye in to the londe of BenJamin. As for their fathers and brethren, whan they come to lawe with vs, we wyll saye vnto them: Be fauourable to them, for they haue not taken them in bataell: but ye gaue them not vnto them by tyme, and it is youre faute.

The chyldren of BenIamin did so, and accordyng to their nombre toke the wyues frõ the daũse, whõ they caught by violence, and wente their waye, & dwelt in their owne inheritaunce, and buylded cyties and dwelt theryn. The chyldren of Israell also gat thẽ vp frõ thence at the same tyme, every one to his trybe and to his kynred, and departed thence, every man to his owne inheritaunce. * At that tyme was there no kynge in Israel, & every mã dyd ỹ thinge that was ryght in his awne eyes.

¶ The ende of the boke of the Iudges, called Iudicum.

¶ The boke of Ruth.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Elimelech departeth from Bethleem with his wyfe and two sonnes in to ỹ londe of the Moabites, where ỹ father dyeth and both the sonnes. Ruth the wyfe of the one sonne goeth home with hir mother in lawe.

N the tyme whan the Iudges ruled ther was a derth in the londe And ther wente a mã from Bethleẽ Iuda to take hys iourney in to the londe of the Moabites with his wyfe & two sonnes, which man was called Eli Melech, and his wyfe Naemi, and his two sonnes, the one Mahelon, and the other Chilion: these were Ephrates of Bethleem Iuda. And whan they came in to the londe of the Moabites, they dwelt there. And Eli Melech Naemis husbande dyed, and she was left behinde ỹ hir two sonnes, which toke Moabitish wyues: the one was called Arpa, the other Ruth. And whã they had dwelt there ten yeare, they dyed both, Mahelõ & Chilion, so ỹ ỹ womã remayned desolate of both hir sõnes & hir husbãde.

Then gat she her vp wyth both hyr sonnes wyues, & wente agayne out of ỹ londe of ỹ Moabites (for she had herde in the londe of ỹ Moabites, ỹ the LORDE had vysited his people & geuen thẽ bread) & so she departed from the place where she was, & both hir sõnes wyues with her. B And as they wente by ỹ waye to come agayne in to the londe of Iuda, she sayde unto both hir sonnes wyues: Go your way, and turne backe ether of you to hir mothers house: the LORDE shewe mercy vpon you, as ye haue done on them that are dead, and on me. The LORDE graunte you, that ye maye fynde rest ether of you in hir husbandes house (whom ye shal get) and she kyssed them.

Then lyft they vp their voyce, and wepte, and sayde vnto her: We wyll go wt ỹ vnto thy people. But Naemi sayd: Turne agayne my doughters, why wolde ye go with me? How can I haue chyldren eny more in my body, to be youre husbandes? Turne agayne my doughters, and go youre waye, for I am now to olde the take an husbande. C

And though I shulde saye, I hope this nyght to take an husbande and to brynge forth chyldren, yet colde ye not tary tyll they were growne vp: for ye shulde be to olde, so that ye coulde haue no husbandes. No my doughters, therfore am I sory for you, for the hande of the LORDE is gone forth ouer me.

Then lyfte they vp their voyce, and wepte yet more, and Arpa kyssed hir mother in lawe (and turned backe agayne) but Ruth abode styll by her. Neverthelesse she sayde: Beholde, thy syster in law is turned backe vnto hir people and to hir god, turne ỹ agayne also after thy syster in lawe. Ruth answered: Speake not to me therof, that I shulde forsake the, and turne backe from the: whither so ever thou goest, thither wyl I go also: and loke where thou abydest, there wyll I abyde also: Thy people is my people, and thy God is my God. Loke wher ỹ dyest, ther wyl I dye, & euẽ there wyl I also be buried. The Lord do this & ỹ vnto me, death onely shal departe ỹ & me.

D Now whã she sawe, that she was stedfastly mynded to go wt her, she spake womore to her therof. So they wente on both together, tyll they came vnto Beth leem. And whan they were come in to Bethleem, the whole cite was moued ouer them, and sayde Is not this Naemi? Neuerthelesse she sayde vnto them: call me not Naemi, but Mara: for ẏ Al myghtye hath made me very sory. I departed full, but ẏ LORDE hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why call ye me then Naemi? whan the LORDE hath brought me lowe, and the Almygh tye hath made me sory?

It was aboute the tyme of the begyn-nynge of the barlye haruest, whan Nae mi and hir sonnes wyfe Ruth the Moa bitysse, came agayne from the londe of the Moabites vnto Bethleem. There was a kynsman also of ẏ kynred of Eli Melech Naemis husbande, whose name was Boos, which was an honest man.

The.ii. Chapter.

Ruth gathereth vp eares of corne in the felde of Boos hir husbandes kyns-man.

B And Ruth the Moabitisse sayde vnto Naemi: Let me go in to the felde, and gather eares of corne, after hym, in whose syght I shall fynde fauour. She sayde vnto her: Go thy waye my doughter. She wēte on, and came and gathered after the reapers in in the feld. And it fortuned that ẏ same felde was the enheritaunce of Boos, which was of the kynred of Elimelech, and beholde, Boos came from Bethlee, and sayde vnto the reapers: The LOR DE be with you. They answered: The LORDE blesse the. And Boos sayde vnto his yongman which had the ouer syght of the reapers: Whose damsell is this? The yōge man that was set ouer the reapers, answered and sayde: It is the dāsell the Moabitisse, whiche came agayne with Naemi from the londe of the Moabites. And she sayde: Let me C plucke vp and gather (I praye the) be-twene the sheues after the reapers: and thus is she come, and hath stonde here euer sence the mornynge, and wythin a lytle whyle she wolde haue bene gone home agayne.
Then sayde Boos vnto Ruth: He-rest thou my doughter? Thou shalt not come vpon a nother mans londe to gather, and go not awaye from hence, but tary with my damsels, and loke where they reape in the feld, go thou after the for I haue cōmaunded my seruauntes ẏ no man touch the. And yf thou be a thyrst, go thy waye to ẏ vessel & drynke, where my seruauntes drawe. Then fel she downe vpon hir face, and bowed hir self downe to the earth, and sayde vnto hym: How haue I founde this fauoure in thy syght, that thou woldest knowe me, which am yet a straunger?
Boos answered and sayd vnto her: C It is tolde me altogether, what ẏ hast done vnto thy mother in lawe after thy husbandes death, how ẏ thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and thy natiue countre, and art come to a people, whō thou hast not knowne afore. The LORDE recompence the thy doynge, & thy rewarde be parfecte wyth ẏ LOR-DE God of Israell, vnto whom thou art come to put thy trust vnder his wyn ges. She sayde: let me fynde fauoure (syr) before thyne eyes for thou hast cō-forted me, and spoken frendly vnto thy handmayden, where as I am not yet lyke one of thy handmaydens.
Boos sayde vnto her: When it is eatynge tyme, come hyther, and eate of the bread, and dyppe thy morsell in the vyneger. And she sat hir downe besyde the reapers. And he set parched corne be fore her, and she dyd eate, & was satisfy D ed, and lefte ouer. And whan she rose to gather, Boos commaunded his seruaun tes, and sayde: Let her gather betwene the sheues also, and do her no dyshones tye: and cast of the sheues vnto her, and let it lye that she maye gather it vp, and se that noman reproue her for it.
So she gathered in ẏ felde vntyll euē and she thresshed out what she had gathe red, and it was almost an Epha of bar-lye: & she toke it vp, & came in to ẏ cyte, & shewed hir mother in lawe what she had gathered. She toke forth also, and gaue her of that which was left, wher of she was satysfyed. Then sayde hir mo ther in lawe vnto her: Blessynge haue ẏ man ẏ hath knowne ẏ. where thou hast gathered and laboured this daye.
She tolde hir mother in lawe by E whom she had laboured, and sayd: The mans name, by whom I haue wrought to daye, is Boos. Naemi sayde vnto hir doughter in lawe: The blessynge of the LORDE haue he, for he hath not left of to be mercyfull vnto the lyuynge and to the death. And Naemi sayde vnto her: The same man belongeth vnto vs and is oure nye kynsman. Ruth the Mo abitisse sayd: He sayd morouer vnto me Thou shalt resorte vnto my seruauntes, tyl they haue made an ende of al my har uest. Naemi sayd vnto Ruth her dough ter in lawe: It is better my doughter y thou goo forth wyth his damsels, lest eny man withstonde the in another feld Thus she kepte her selfe with Boos dā sels, so that she gathered vntyll the bar ly haruest: and the wheat haruest was out, and came agayne to her mother in lawe.

The.iii. Chapter.

Ruth layeth her downe in the barne at Boos fete, and geueth her good wordes, and ladeth her with sixe measures of barlye.

A And Naemi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: My doughter, I wyll prouyde rest for the, that thou mayest prospere. Boos our kynsmā by whose damsels thou hast ben, casteth vp barlye now thys nyght in his barne Bathe thy selfe therfor, and * anoynt the and put on thy clothes, and go downe vnto the barne, so that noman knowe y tyll they haue all eaten and dronken.
When he layeth hym downe thē to slepe, marke the place where he lyeth downe, and come thou, and take vp the coueryng at his fete, & laye the downe, so shall he tell the what thou shalt do.
She sayd vnto her: whatsoeuer y sayest vnto me, I wyll do it.
B She went downe to the barne, & dyd all as her mother in lawe had cōmaun ded her. And whan Boos had eaten & dronken, his hart was mery, and he cam and layed hym downe behynde a heape of sheues. And she came secretly, & toke vp the coueryng at his fete, and layed her downe. Now whan it was myd nyght, the man was afrayed, and gro ped about hym, and beholde, a woman laye at his fete. And he sayd: Who arte thou? She answered: I am Ruth thy handmayden, sprede thy wynges ouer thy handmayden: for thou art the nexte kynsman.
C He sayd: The LORDES blessing haue y my doughter. Thou hast done a better mercy here after thē before, that thou art not gone after yonge men, ney ther ryche nor poore. Feare not now my doughter: All that thou hast sayd, wyl I do for the: for all the cytie of me people knoweth that thou art a vertuous wo man. Treuth it is now, that I am a nye kynsman, but there is one nyer then I.
Tarye thou all nyght. To morow yf he take the, well: yf he lyke not to take the, then wyll I take the my selfe, as truly as the LORDE lyueth. Slepe thou tyll the mornynge. And she slepte at his fete vntyll the morow. And she rose vp or e uer one coulde knowe another. And he D thought thus: That nomā knowe now that there hath come a woman in to the barne, and he sayd: Reache me y cloke that thou hast on the, and hold it forth: & she helde it forth. And he dyd meet her sixe measures of barlye, and layed it vp on her, and she went in to the cytie, and came to her mother in lawe, which sayd How is it with the my doughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done vnto her, and sayd: These sixe measures of barlye gaue he me, for he sayd: Thou shalt not come emptye to thy mother in lawe. She sayd: Abyde my doughter: tyl thou se what the matter wyll growe to:
for the mā wyll not ceasse, tyll he brynge it to an ende this daye.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Boos marieth Ruth, which beareth hym Obed Dauids graundfather.

Boos went vp to the gate, & sat hym downe there: and be A holde, whan the nye kynsmā went by, Boos spake vnto hym, and sayd: Come & set the downe here (and called hym by his name.) And he came & sat hym downe, and he toke ten mē of the Elders of the cytie, and sayd: Syt you downe here. And they sat them downe. Then sayd he to the nye kynsmā: Naemi which is come agayne from the londe of the Moabites
* offreth to sell y pece of londe, y was Leui. 25. d. our brothers Eli Melech, therfore thou Iere. 32. b. ght I to shewe it before thyne eares, & to tell the: Yf thou wylt redeme it, then bye it before the cytezyns and before the Elders of my people: but yf thou wylt not redeme it, then tell me, that I maye knowe: for there is no nye kynsman ex cepte thou, and I nexte after the.
He sayd: I wyl redeme it. Boos sayd: B In the daye that thou byest the londe out of y hāde of Naemi, thou must take Ruth also the Moabitisse the wyfe of the dead, that thou mayest rayse vp a name to the dead in his enheritaunce.
Then sayd he: I can not redeme it, lest I happlye destroye myne owne enheri taunce. Redeme thou that I shulde redeme, for I can not redeme it. But this was an olde costume in Israell concernynge the redemynge and chaunsynge, that all matters might be stable, the one put of his shue, and gaue it vnto the other: that was the testimony in Israel.

And the nye kynsman sayde vnto Boos: Bye thou it, & he put of his shue. And Boos sayde vnto the Elders and to all the people: Ye are wytnesses this daye, that I haue bought out of ẏ hãde of Naemi, all that belonged to Eli Melech and all that was Chilions and Mahelons: And Ruth the Moabitisse Mahelõs wyfe, take I to wife, * ẏ I maye

C rayse vp a name vnto the dead in his inheritaunce, and that his name be not roted out from amonge his brethren, and out of the gate of his place: Of this are ye wytnesses. And all the people that was in the gate with the Elders, sayde: We are wytnesses. The LORDE make the womã that cõmeth in to thy house, Ge.29,30. as Rachel and Lea (* which both haue buylded vp the house of Israel) that she maye be an ensãple of vertue in Ephrata, & haue an honorable name in Bethlehem. And thy house be as the house of

So Boos toke Ruth, & she became his wyfe. And whan he laye with her, ẏ LORDE graunted her that she cõceaued, and bare a sonne. Then sayde ẏ wemen vnto Naemi: Prayse be ẏ LORDE, which hath not suffred a kynsman D to ceasse from the at this tyme, that his name maye continue in Israell: he shall restore thy lyfe agayne, and prouyde for thyne age. For your sonnes wyfe which hath loued the, hath borne hym that is better vnto the, then seuen sonnes.

And Naemi toke the chylde, & layde it vpon hir lappe, and became the norse of it, & hyr neghboures gaue hym a name and sayde: There is a childe borne vnto Naemi, and they called his name Obed. The same is the father of Isai, which is the father of Dauid. This is the generacion of Phares * Phares begat Hesrom. Hesrom begat Aram. Aram begat Aminadab. Aminadab begat Naason. ¶ The ende of the boke of Ruth.

The fyrst boke of the kynges, otherwyse called the boke of Samuel.

The fyrst Chapter.

Of Elcana and his two wyues. Unto Anna geueth God Samuel, which is appropriated vnto the LORDE.

A There was a man of Ramathaim
Sophim
of mount
...er.7 b Ephraim
* whose name was Elcana
the son of Jeroham, ye sonne of Elihu, ye sonne of Tohu, the sonne of zuph, that was an Ephraite. And he had two wyues, the one was called Anna, the other Peninna. As for Peninna, she had chyldren, but Anna had no children. And the same man wente vp fro his cite * at his
...a.23.b tyme, to worshippe and to offer vnto ye ...n.16.a LORD zebaoth at Silo. There were ye prestes of ye LORD Ophni & Phinees, the two sones of Eli. Now whan it came vpon a daye ye Elcana offred, he gaue partes vnto his wyfe Peninna, & to all his sones & doughters. But vnto Anna he gaue one deale heuely, for he
...n.29.b loued Anna. Neuerthelesse * the LORD ...30.a had closed her wombe, & her aduersary caste her in the teth with her vnfrutfulnesse, because ye LORD had closed her wombe: thus dyd she euery yeare, whan they went vp to the house of ye LORD & thus she prouoked her. So she wepte & dyd eate nothynge. But Elcana her husbande sayd vnto her: Wherfore wepest thou? & why eatest thou not? And wherfore is thyne hart so greued? Am not I better vnto the then ten sonnes?
B Then stode Anna vp, whan she had eaten and dronken at Silo, But Eli ye prest sat vpon a stole by the post of the temple of the LORDE. And she was full of heuynes in her harte, and prayed vnto the LORDE, and wepte, and vowed a vowe, and sayd: O LORDE zebaoth, yf thou wylt loke vpon the aduersite of thy handmayden, and thynke vpon me, and not forget thy handmayde, and wylt geue thy handmayden a sone, I wyll geue hym vnto the LORDE al his lyfe longe, * & there shall no rasoure Judi.13.a come vpon his heade. Num.6.a And whan she had prayed longe before the LORD, Eli toke hede to her mouth, for Anna spake in her hart, her lippes onely moued, but her voyce was not herde. Then thought Eli she had ben dronken, and sayd vnto her: How longe wylt thou be dronken? Let come from ye the wyne that thou hast by the. Neuerthelesse Anna answered and sayd: No my lorde, I am a sorowful woma, wyne nor stronge drynke haue I not dronken * but haue poured out my harte before Psal.41.a the LORDE. Counte not thy handmayden a doughter of Belial: for out of my heuy thought and sorowe haue I spoke hetherto.
Eli answered her, and sayd: Go thy C waye in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt the thy peticyon that thou haste desyred of hym. She sayd: Let thy handmayden fynde fauoure in thy syght. So the woma wente her waye and dyd eat, and loked nomore so sorowfully, and on the morow they got them vp by tymes.
And whan they had worshipped before the LORDE, they returned, and came home vnto Ramatha.
And Elcana laye wt Anna his wyfe, and the LORDE remembred her. And after certayne dayes she conceaued and bare a sone, & called his name Samuel, for I haue desyred hym (sayd she) of the LORDE. And whan the man Elcana wente vp with all his housholde to offre sacrifice & his vowe vnto ye LORDE at suche tyme as the custome was, Anna wente not vp, but sayde vnto her husband: (I wyll not go vp) tyl ye chylde be weened: then wyll I brynge him: that he maye appeare before the LORDE, and continue there * for euer.
Elcana her husbande sayd vnto her: Num.8.b Then do as thou thynkest best, tary tyl D thou haue weened hym: but the LORDE performe that he hath spoken.
So the woman abode, and gaue her sonne sucke, tyll she weened hym. And whan she had weened hym, she brought hym vp with her, with thre bullockes, with an Epha of fyne floure, and a bot-tell of wyne, and brought hym in to the house of the LORDE at Silo.

Neuerthelesse ye chylde was yet but yonge. And they slewe a bullocke, and brought ye chylde vnto Eli. And she said: O my lorde, as truly as thy soule lyueth my lorde, I am the woman that stode here by the, and made intercession vnto the LORDE, whan I prayed for this chylde. Now hath the LORDE graūted me my peticyon, which I desyred of hym, therfore haue I geuē hym ouer vn to the LORDE, as longe as he is lent vnto the LORDE. And they worshypped the LORDE there.

The .ii. Chapter.

The thankfull songe of Anna. The sonnes of Eli do wyckedly, their father refourmeth them not, therfore is ye prest hode taken from hym and his sonnes.

A And Anna prayed & sayde:
My hart reioyseth in ye LORDE, and my horne is exalted in the LORDE.
My mouth is opened wyde vpon myne enemies, for I am glad of thy saluacyon.
There is no man holy as the LOR DE, for without the is nothynge, and there is no cōforte lyke vnto oure God.
Let go youre greate boastinge of hye thynges, let go out of youre mouth that olde byworde: for the LORD is a God that knoweth all thynges, and he hath set all workes in order.
The bowe of the mightye is broke, and the weake are gyrded aboute wyth strength.
They ye were fylled afore, are solde for bread: and they that were hongrye, are satisfyed: vntyl the baren bare seue, and tyll she that had many chyldren, was become weake.
B * The LORDE slayeth, & geueth Deut. 32.f lyfe: he ledeth vnto hell, & bryngeth out Sap. 16.c agayne.
Tob. 13.a The LORDE maketh poore and maketh ryche: he bryngeth lowe and ex alteth.
Psal. 112.a * He taketh vp the nedy out of the dust, and lyfteth vp the poore out of the myre, that he maye set them amōge the prynces, and to let thē inherete the seate of honoure. For the foundacions and cor ners of the world are the LORDES, & he hath set ye cōpasse of ye earth therō.
He shal preserue the fete of his sayn tes, but the vngodly shall be put to sy-lence in darkenesse. * For there is no mā that can do ought of his owne power.
The LORDES enemyes shall be put in feare before hym, he shall thunder vpon them in heauen.
The LORDE shall iudge the endes of the worlde, and shal geue strēgth vnto his kynge, and shall exalte ye horne of his anoynted.
Elcana wente his waye to Ramath C vnto his house. And the chylde became the LORDES mynyster before Eli ye prest. But Elis sonnes were the childrē of Belial, and knewe not the LORD, nor ye dewtye of the prestes vnto the peo ple: but whā eny mā wolde offre ought, the prestes boye came, whyle the flesh was seethinge, & had a thre forked flesh hoke in his hande, and thrust it in to the cauldron, or ketell, or panne, or pot: and loke what he drue forth wyth the flesh hoke, that toke the prest therof. Thus dyd they vnto al Israel, which came thi ther vnto Silo.
Lykewyse, or euer they burned the fatt, the prestes lad came, and sayde vnto hym ye brought the offrynge: Geue me the flesh, that I maye roste it for the prest, for he wyl receaue no sodden flesh of the, but rawe. Yf eny man sayde the D vnto hym: Let the fat burne as it ought to do this daye, & afterward take what thyne hart desyreth, then sayde he vnto hym: Thou shalt geue it me euen now yf no, I wyl take it from the by vyolēce Therfore was the synne of the chyldrē very greate before the LORDE, for ye people spake euell of the meatofferinge of the LORDE. But Samuel was a mynister before the LORDE, and the chylde was gyrded wyth an ouerbody cote of lynnen. His mother also made him a lytle cote of sylke, and brought it vp vnto hym at conuenient tymes, whā she wente vp wyth hir husbande to offer the offerynge in due season.
And Eli blessed Elcana & his wyfe, and sayde: The LORD geue ye sede of this womā, for this good that thou hast lent vnto the LORDE. And they wēte vnto their place. And the LORDE visyted Anna, so that she conceaued and bare thre sonnes and two doughters: but the chylde Samuel grewe vp with
the LORDE.

C Bu for Eli, he was very olde, & herde of all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israell, and how they laye with the wemē that serued God before the dore of ẏ tabernacle of wytnesse, and he sayde vnto them, wherfore do ye this? For I heare of youre euell conuersacyon of all this people. Not so my chyldren, this is no good reporte that I heare, ye cause the people of the LORDE to offēde. * Yf ony man synne agaynst a man, ẏ iudge can redresse it. But yf ony man synne agaynst the LORDE, who can redresse it? Neuertheles they herkened not vnto the voyce of their father, for the LORDES wyll was to slaye them. * But the chylde Samuel wente & grewe vp, & was accepted of the LORD and of men.

D There came a man of God to Eli, and sayde vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I shewed my selfe vnto thy fathers house, whan they were yet in Egipte vnder the house of Pharao, and chose hym there vnto my selfe before al the trybes of Israell, for the presthode, that he shulde offer vpon myne altare, & burne incense, and weare the ouerbody cote before me, * and vnto thy fathers house I gaue all the offerynges of the chyldren of Israell. Why layest thou thy selfe then agaynst my sacrifyces & meat offerynges, which I commaunded (to offer) in the habitacyō: and thou honourest thy sonnes more then me, that ye myght fede youre selues with the fyrstlynges of all the meatofferynges of my people of Israell?

Therfore sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: I haue spokē, that thy house and thy fathers house shulde walke before me for euer. But now sayth ẏ LORDE: That be farre fro me. But so euer

E honoureth me, hym wyl I honour also: as for those that despyse me, they shall not be regarded. Beholde, * the tyme shall come, that I wyll breake thyne arme in two, and the arme of thy fathers house, so that there shall no olde man be in thy house. And thou shalt se thyne aduersaries in the habitaciō, in all ẏ good of Israell, and there shall neuer be olde man in thy fathers house. Yet wyll I not rote out euery man of the fro myne altare, but that thyne eyes maye be consumed, & ẏ thy soule maye be sory: * & a greate multitude of thy house shal dye whan they are come to be men.

And this shalbe a token vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes Ophni & Phineas: * They shall both 1.Reg.4.c dye in one daye. ‡ But vnto my selfe I ‡ Jer.33.c wyll rayse vp a faithfull preste, which shall do acordynge as it is in my harte and in my soule: vnto hym wyl I buyld a sure house, that he may alway walke before myne anoynted. And whosoeuer remayneth of thy house, shall come and worshippe him for a syluer peny and for a pece of bread, and shall saye: I praye ẏ leaue me to one prestes parte, ẏ I maye eate a morsell of bread.

The.iii.Chapter.

C The reuelacion shewed vnto Samuel, and vnto Eli.

AND whā the chylde Samuel ministred vnto ẏ LORD A vnder Eli, the worde of the LORDE was deare at the same tyme, nether was there ony sure and manyfest vysiō. And it fortuned at the same tyme, that Eli laye in his place, * and his eyes beganne to be 1.Reg.4.c dymme, so that he could not se. And Samuel had layed hym downe in ẏ tēple of the LORDE (where the Arke of God was) before the lampe of God was put out. And the LORDE called Samuel: He answered: Beholde, here am I. And he ranne vnto Eli, and sayd: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. But he sayd: I haue not called the, go thy way agayne, and lay the downe to slepe. And he wente his waye, & layed hym downe to slepe.

The LORDE called agayne: Samuel. B And Samuell arose, and wente vnto Eli, and sayde: Beholde, here am I, thou hast called me. Neuerthelesse he sayd: My sonne, I haue not called the. Go thy waye agayne, & laye the downe to slepe. As for Samuel, he knewe not the LORDE as yet, and the worde of the LORDE was not yet shewed vnto hym. And the LORDE called Samuel the thirde tyme. And he arose, and wente vnto Eli, and sayde: Beholde, here am I thou haste called me. Then perceaued Eli that the LORDE called the chylde, and he sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye agayne, & laye the downe to slepe: and yf the LORDE call ony more, then saye: Speake LORDE, for thy seruaunte heareth. Samuell wente his waye, and layed hym downe in his place. Then came the LORDE and stode, and called lyke as afore: Samuell, Samuell. And Samuell sayde: Speake (LORDE) for thy seruaunt heareth. And the LORDE sayd vnto Samuell: Beholde, I do a thynge in Israel that whosoeuer shall heare it, both his eares shall glowe. In that daye wyll I 1.Reg.2.g rayse vp vpon Ely * all that I haue spoken concernynge his house. I wyll take it in hande, and perfourme it: for I haue tolde hym, that I wyll be iudge ouer his house foreuer, because of the wyckednes, that he knewe how shamefully his chyldren behaued them selues, and hath not once loked sowerly therto. Therfore haue I sworne vnto yͤ house of Eli, that this wickednesse of yͤ house of Eli shall not be reconcyled nether with sacrifice nor with meatofferynge foreuer. And Samuel laye vnto the morow, and opened the dores of the house of the LORDE.

D But Samuel was afrayed to tell yͤ vision vnto Eli, Then Ely called hym and sayd: Samuel my sonne. He answered: Beholde, here am I. He sayd: What is the worde that the LORDE hath spoken vnto yͤ? hyde it not fro me, God do this and that vnto the, yf thou hyde ought fro me, of all that he hath talked with the. Then Samuel tolde hym altogether, and hyd nothynge from hym. He sayde: It is the LORDE, let hym do what pleaseth hym.

Samuell grewe vp, and the LORDE was with him, and there fall none of all his wordes vpon the earth. And all Israell from Dan vnto Bersaba, knewe that Samuell was faithfull to be a prophet of the LORDE. And the LORD appeared agayne at Sylo: for the LORDE shewed hym selfe vnto Samuel at Silo, thorow the worde of the LORDE.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Israell fighteth agaynst the Philistynes, loseth the victory, and is smyttẽ yͤ secõde tyme. The Philistynes wynne the Arke of yͤ LORD: The two sõnes of Ely perysh, yͤ father falleth downe and breaketh his necke.

A AND all Israel spake of Samuel. And Israel wẽte forth to yͤ battayl agaynst yͤ Philistynes, and pitched, besyde 1.Reg.7.c the. * Helpe stone: As for the Philistines, they pitched at Aphek, and prepared them selues agaynst Israel.

And whã the battayll begãne, the hoost was deuyded, so that Israel was smytten before the enemies, and in the feelde in the felde they slewe aboute a foure thousande men. And whan the people came in to the hoost, the Elders of Israell sayd: Wherfore hath the LORD caused vs to be smytten this daye before the Philistynes? Let vs take vnto vs the Arke of the LORDES couenaunt from Silo, and let it come amonge vs, that it maye helpe vs from the hande of oure enemyes. And the people sent vnto Silo, and caused to fetch thence the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE zebaoth, that sytteth vpon the Cherubyns. And with the Arke of the couenaunt of God there were the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni & Phinees.

And whã the Arke of the couenaunt B of the LORDE came in to the hoost, all Israel shouted with a great shoute, so that the earth sounded withall. But whan the Philistynes herde the noyse of the shoute they sayde, what noyse is this of suche greate shoutynge in the tentes of the Hebrues? And whan they perceaued that the Arke of the LORD was come in to the hoost, they were afrayed and sayde: God is come into the hoost. And they sayde moreouer: Wo be to vs, for it hath not bene thus afore tyme. Wo vnto vs. Who wyll delyuer vs from the hãde of these hye goddes? These are the goddes that smote Egypte with all maner of plages in the wyldernesse. Be stronge now and manly ye Philistynes, that ye serue not the He- Iud. brues * as they haue serued you. Be manly and fight. C

Then fought the Philistynes, and Israel was smytten, and euery one fled vnto his tẽte, & there was a very great slaughter, so that there fell of Israel thirtie thousande fote men, And yͤ Arke 1.Re. of God was taken, * and the two sonnes of Eli, Ophni and Phineas dyed.

Then ranne there one of Ben Iamin out of the fore frõte of the battayll and came vnto Silo the same day, and had his clothes rente, and had earth vpon his heade. And whan he came in, Heli sat vpon the seate, that he might loke towarde yͤ way: for his harte was fearfull aboute the Arke of God. And whan the man come in to the cite, he tolde it forth: and all the cite cryed. And whã Eli herde the noyse of the cryenge he axed: What noyse of busynesse is

[Eli.] The man came haistly, and tolde [Eli.] As for Eli, he was fourescore and g.3.a [ei]ghtene yeare olde, * & his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not se.) The mã sayde vnto Eli: I come and am fled this daye out of the hoost. He sayde: How is it my sonne?

D Then answered the tydynge brynger, and sayde: Israell is fled before the Philistynes, & a greate slaughter hath there bene amonge the people, and thy two sonnes Ophni and Phineas are dead, ye and the Arke of God is taken awaye. Whan he had made mencion of the Arke of God, he fel down backwarde frõ the seate by the gate, and brake his neck, and deyd: for he was olde, and an heuy man. He iudged Israel fortye yeares. The wyfe of his sonne Phineas was wt chylde, & shulde shortly haue bẽ delyuered, whan she herde the tydynges that the Arke of God was taken, & that hir brother in lawe and hir husbãd were dead, she bowed hir selfe and trauayled: for hir payne came vpon her. And whan she was now at the poynte of death, the wemen that stode by her, sayde: Feare not, thou hast a yonge sonne. But she gaue no answere, nether regarded it, and she called the chylde Icabod, and sayde: The glory is gone from Israell, because the Arke of God was taken awaye, and hir brother in lawe & hir husbande. And she sayde moreouer: The glory is gone from Israell, for the Arke of God is taken awaye.

The.v.Chapter.

The Philistynes brynge the Arke of the LORDE in to the temple of Dagon, which falleth downe before it.

A As for the Arke of God, the Philistynes toke it & brought it frõ the stone of helpe vnto Asdod in to the house of Dagon, and set it besyde Dagon. And whan they of Asdod rose vp early on the morowe, they foũde Dagon lyeng on his face vpon the earth, before the Arke of the LORDE. But they toke vp Dagon, and set hym agayne in his place. Neuertheles whan they rose vp early on ye nexte morowe, they foũde Dagon leynge on his face agayne vpon the earth before the Arke of the LORDE: but his heade and both his handes hewen of vpon the thresholde, so that the block laye there onely. Therfore the prestes of Dagon, and all they that go in to his house, treade not vpon the tresholde of Dagon at Asdod vnto this daye.

B But the hande of the LORDE was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and destroyed them, and smote Asdod and all the borders therof in secrete places. Whan the men of Asdod sawe that they were so plaged, they sayde: * Let not ye Arke of the God of Israell tary wyth vs, for his hande is to harde vpon vs and vpõ oure God Dagon. And they sent forth & gathered all the prynces of the Philistynes vnto them, and sayde: What shall we do with the Arke of the God of Israel? Then answered they of Geth: Let the Arke of the God of Israell be borne aboute. And they caried the Arke of the God Israell rounde aboute. Deu. 32.d

C But whã they bare it aboute, there was a very greate rumoure in the cyte thorow the hande of the LORDE, & smote the people of the cyte, from the smalest vnto the greatest, and destroyed thẽ in the secrete places. Thẽ sent they the Arke of the LORDE vnto Ekron. But whan the Arke of the LORDE came vnto Ekron, they of Ekron criede: They haue caried the Arke of God aboute vnto me, to slaye me and my people.

D Then sente they forth, and gathered all the prynces of the Philistynes together, and sayde: Sende awaye the Arke of the God of Israell agayne vnto hir place, that it slaye not me and my people: for there is a very greate rumoure with the dead in all the cyte, and ye hãde of God is there. And the people yt dyed not, were smytten in secrete places, so that the noyse of the cyte wente vp vnto heauen.

The.vi.Chapter.

The Philistynes sende the Arke agayne vnto the people of God, with certayne gyftes and offerynges.

A Thus was the Arke of the LORDE in the londe of the Philistynes seuen monethes. And ye Philistynes called their prestes & soythsayers, and sayde: What shall we do wt the Arke of the LORDE? Shewe vs, wherwt shal we sende it vnto hir place? They sayde: Yf ye wyll sende awaye ye Arke of the God of Israell, [...] it not alwaye emptye, but geue a trespace off-rynge:so shall ye be made whole,and ye shall knowe, why his hande departeth not from you.

They sayde: What is the trespace offerynge that we shal geue him? They answered: Fyue mans hynder partes of golde, and fyue golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of the fyue prynn-ces of the Philistynes. For there hath bene one maner of plage vpon you all, and vpon youre prynces. Therfore must ye make youre hynder partes of one fashyon and youre myce, whiche haue destroyed youre londe, that ye maye geue the God of Israell the ho-noure:peraduenture his hande shalbe the lighter vpon you and vpon youre God, and vpon youre londe. Why harden ye B youre hartes as the Egipcyans & Pharao hardened their hartes? When he she-Exo.10.c wed hymselfe vpon the * dyd not they let them departe to go their waye?

Go to now therfore, and make a new cart,and take two mylke kyne, vp pon the which there neuer came yocke, and yocke the to the carte, and let theyr calues tary behynde them at home: and take ye the Arke of the LORDE and laye it vpon the cart:and the Iewels of golde that ye geue him for a trespaceofferynge put in a coffer besyde it, & sende it awaye and let it go. And loke well:yf it go the waye of his owne coaste Beth Semes, then hath he done vs all this greate euell: Yf no:then shall ye knowe that his hande hath not touched vs,but that it is happened vnto vs by chaunce

The men dyd so, and toke two yong mylke kyne,and yocked them to a cart, and helde their calues at home, & layed the Arke of the LORD vpon the cart, and the coffer with the golden myce, and C with the ymages of their disease. And the kyne wente straight waye vnto Beth Semes vpon one hye strete, and wente on bleatynge, and turned nether to the righte honde nor to ẏ left. And the princes of the Philistynes wente after the vnto the coast of Beth Semes.

The Beth Semites were euen reapynge downe their wheate haruest in the valley, and lyfte vp their eyes, and sawe the Arke,& reioysed to se it. The carte came in to the felde of Iosua the Beth Semite,& there it stode styll. And there was a great stone, and they claue the tymber of the carte, & offred ẏ kyne vnto the LORD for a burntofferinge.

But the Leuites toke downe ẏ of the LORD,and the coffer that by it,wherin the Iewels of golde and set them vpon the great stone. men of Beth Semes offred burntofferynges, and other offerynges also vnto the LORDE the same daye. And whan the fyue prynces of the Philistynes had sene it, they departed agayne the same daye towarde Ekron.

These are the golden diseases, that the Philistynes offred for a trespaceof- D ferynge vnto the LORDE: Asdod one, Gasa one:Ascalon one,Gath one, and Ekron one:and golden myce,accordynge to the nombre of all the cities of the Philistynes amonge the fyue prynces,from the walled cite vnto the village,and vn to the greate playne felde, wherevpon they set the Arke of the LORD(which was) vnto this daye vpon the felde of Iosua the Bethsemite.

And certayne of Beth Semes were slayne because they had sene the Arke of the LORD,and he slewe fyftye thousande and seuentye men of the people.
Then mourned the people, because the LORDE had done so great a slaughter in the people. And the men at Beth Semes sayde: Who may stonde before the LORDE so holy a God? And to whome shall he go from vs? And they sent messaungers to the inhabiters of Kyriath Iearim,sayenge: The Phili-stynes haue broughte the Arke of God agayne, come downe, and fetche it vp vnto you.

The.vii.Chapter.

The Arke is brought in to Amina-dabs house. Samuel exhorteth the people to amendment.

SO the men of Kiriath Iearim came down,and fetched vp the Arke of the LORD, and brought it in to the house of * Aminadab at Gibea and they consecrated Eleasar his sonne that he might kepe the Arke. And from that daye that the Arke of the LORD abode at Kiriath Iearim, the tyme extendeth forth so longe tyll it came to twentye yeares:and all the house of Israel wept after the LORDE.

But Samuel sayd vnto all ẏ house of Israel: *yf ye turne ẏ all youre herte vnto the LORDE, then put awaye from you the straunge goddes and Asta-roth, and directe youre herte vnto the LORDE and * serue hym onely, so shal he delyuer you out of the hande of the Philistynes. Then the chyldren of Israel put awaye Baalim and Astaroth from them, & serued the LORDE onely.

B Samuel sayd: Gather all Israell together vnto Mispa, that I maye praye for you vnto the LORDE. And they came together vnto Mispa, & drue water, and poured it out before ŷ LORDE, and fasted the same day, and there they sayde: We haue synned vnto ŷ LOR-DE. So Samuel iudged the chyldren of Israel at Mispa.
But whan the Philistynes herde ŷ the chyldren of Israell were come together vnto Mispa, the prynces of ŷ Philistynes wente vp agaynst Israel. Whā the chyldren of Israell herde that, they were afrayed of the Philistynes, & sayd vnto Samuel: Ceasse not to crye vnto the LORDE oure God for vs, that he maye helpe vs out of the hande of the Philistines. * Samuel toke a fat lābe, and offred an whole burntofferynge vnto the LORDE, & cryed vnto ŷ LOR-DE for Israell, and the LORDE herde C hym. And whyle Samuel was offerynge the burntsacrifice, ŷ Philistynes came to fyght agaynst Israell. But ŷ LOR-DE thondred a thonder vpon the Philistynes the same daye, and disconfyted thē, so that they were smyttē before Israel. Thē wēte the men of Israel forth and chaced the Philistynes, & smote thē tyll vnder BethCar. Then toke Samuel a stone, and set it vp betwene Mis-pa and Sen, & called it the * Help stone and sayde: Hitherto hath the LORDE helped vs. Thus were the Philistynes brought downe, and came nomore with in the border of Israel. And the hande of the LORDE was agaynst the Philistynes, as longe as Samuel lyued.
D So Israell gat the cyties agayne, ŷ the Philistynes had conquered, from Ekron vnto Gath, with ŷ borders ther-of, those dyd Israell rescue out of the handes of the Philistynes: and Israell had peace with the Amorites. Samuel iudged Israel as longe as he lyued, & wente aboute euery yeare vnto Bethel, & Gilgal, & Mispa: & whā he had iudged Israell in all these places, he came agayn vnto Ramath for there was his house, and there he iudged Israel, and buylded an altare ther vnto ŷ LORDE.

The .viii. Chapter.

Samuels sonnes rule not well. The people desyre to haue a kynge.

But whan Samuell waxed A olde, he set his sonnes to be iudges ouer Israell. His firstborne sonne was called Joel and the seconde Abia, and they were iudges at Bersaba. Ne-uertheles his sonnes walked not in his wayes, but enclyned vnto couetousnes, Deu. 17. d

Thē all the Elders in Israel gathered themselues together, and came to Ra-math vnto Samuel, & sayde vnto him: Beholde thou art waxen olde, and thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes, * set 1. Re. 12. c as all the Heythē haue. Then was Sa- Actu. 13. b muel displeased whan they sayd: Geue vs a kynge, to iudge vs. And Samuell prayed before the LORDE.

The LORDE sayde vnto Samuel: B Herken vnto the voyce of the people in all that they haue sayd vnto thē. * For 1. Re. 10. b they haue not refused thē, but me, that I shulde not be kynge ouer them. They do vnto ŷ as they haue done euer, sence the day that I brought them out of the

And Samuell tolde all the wordes of the LORDE vnto the people, that required a kynge of hym. This shalbe the lawe of the kynge that shall raigne ouer you: * Youre sonnes shall he take 3. Re. 9. b ters, he shal take thē, to be apotecaries, cokes, & bakers. Your best lōde & * vyn- 3. Re. 21. a yardes, & olyuegardēs shall he take, and geue vnto his seruaūtes: Of your sedes also & vinyardes shall he take ŷ tithes, & geue vnto his chāberlaynes & seruaūtes. And your seruaūtes & your maydes & your best yonge mē, & your asses shall he take, & do his busynes withall. Of your flockes shal he take the tithes, & ye shalbe his seruaūtes. Whā ye shall crye thē at the same tyme ouer youre kynge, whō ye haue chosen you, the LORDE shall not heare you at the same tyme.

Neuerthelesse the people refused to heare the voyce of Samuel, and sayde, D

Not so, but there shall be a kynge ouer vs, that we maye be as all other Hey-then, that oure kynge maye iudge vs, & go forth before vs, & gouerne oure war res. Then herkened Samuel vnto all that the people sayde, and tolde it befor the eares of the LORDE. The LOR-DE sayde vnto hym: Herken thou vn to their voyce, and make them a kynge And Samuel sayd vnto the men of Israell: Go youre waye euery one vnto his cite.

The.ix.Chapter.

Saull seketh his fathers asses, and commeth vnto Samuell.

A There was a man of Ben-1.Par.9.a iamin named * Cis, the 1.re.14.g sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeor, the sõne of Bethorah, the sonne of Aphiah, the sonne of a man of Iemini, a valeaunt man, which had a sonne named Saul, which was so goodly a yõge man, that there was not a goodlyer amonge the children of Israell, hyer by the heade then all the people. Cis the father of Saul had lost his asses, and he sayd vn to Saul his sõne: Take one of the children with the, get the vp, go thy waye, and seke the asses. And he wente his waye thorow mount Ephraim, and tho-rowe the londe of Salisa, and founde them not. They wente thorowe the londe of Saalim, and there they were not. They passed thorowe the londe of Iemini and foūde them not. But whā they came in to the londe of Zuph, Saul sayde vnto the chylde that was with hym: Come, let vs go home agayne, lest my father let go the asses, and take care for vs. He sayde: Beholde, here is an ho norable mā of God in this cite, all that he sayeth, commeth to passe. Let vs go thither now, peraduēture he maye shewe vs oure waye which we go. But Saul sayd vnto his childe: Though we shuld go, what brynge we the man? For the bread is gone out of our wallet, and we haue no gyfte to brynge the man of God, what haue we? The child answered agayne, and sayde: Beholde, I haue the fourth part of a syluer Sycle by me the same wyll we geue the man of God that he maye shewe vs oure waye.
B (Afore tyme in Israell, whan a mā wente to axe counsell at the LORDE, he sayde: Come, let vs go to the Seyer: for they that now are called prophetes, were called Seyers afore tyme). Saul sayde vnto his chylde: Thou hast wel spoken, come let vs go. And whan they wente vnto the cite where the man of God was, & came vp vnto the cite, they founde damsels which were gone forth to drawe water, vnto them they sayde: Is ŷ Seyer here? They answered the and sayde: Yee. Beholde, he is there, make haist: for he came in to ŷ cite this day, because ŷ people haue a sacrifice to do to day in ŷ hye place. Whā ye come in the cite, ye shall fynde hym, afore he go vp to ŷ hye place for to eate: for the people wyll not eate tyll he come. For he shall blesse the offerynge, then shall they eate that are called. Therfore go youre way vp, for euē now shal ye fynde him.
And whan they came vp to the cite, C and were euē in the myddes of the cite, beholde Samuell came forth in their way, and wolde go vp to the hye place.
(* But the LORDE had opened Samuels eare the day afore, or euer Saul came, and sayd: Tomorow aboute this tyme wyll I sende a man vnto the out of the londe of BenJamin, hym shalt thou anoynte to be prynce ouer my peo people of Israell, that he maye delyuer my people from the hande of the Philistynes: for I haue loked vpon my peo ple, and their crye is come before me.) Now whan Samuell behelde Saul, the LORDE answered him: lo, that is the man of whome I tolde the that he shulde raygne ouer my people.
Then came Saul vnto Samuel vnder the gate, and sayde: tell me (I praye the) where is the Seyers house? Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the Seyer. Go vp before me vnto the hye place: for ye shall eate with me to daye, to morow wyll I lete the go, and all that is in thyne hart, wyll I tell the.
And as for ŷ asses which were lost thre dayes agoo, care not thou for them, for they are founde. And to whom shall be longe all that is pleasaunt in Israell?
Shall it not belonge vnto the, and vnto all thy fathers house? Saul answered Am not I a sonne of Iemini, & one of the smallest trybe, and my kynred the leest amonge all the kynredes of the trybes of BenJamin? Why speakest thou so to me? Samuell toke Saul and his D childe and broughte them in to the par-ler where they shulde eate, and gaue them a rowme aboue those that were called, of whom there were aboute a thyrtie

And Samuel sayd unto the coke: Geue me the porcyon that I gaue the, & bad the kepe it by the. Then the coke toke up a shulder, and bare it forth, and set it before Saul. And (Samuel) sayd: Beholde, this is left, laye it before the, and eate: for it was kepte for the agaynst this tyme, whan I called the people. Thus dyd Saul eate wyth Samuel ẏ same daye.

And whan they were gone downe from the hye place unto the cyte, he talked w̃ Saul in the chamber. And they rose up early on the morow. And whan ẏ mornyng sprynge arose, Samuel called Saul in the chamber, and sayde: Up, that I maye sende the thy waye. And Saul gat hym up: and they both wente forth together, he and Samuell. And whan they came downe to the ende of ẏ cyte, Samuel sayde unto Saul: Speake unto the chylde, that he go on forth before us, but stonde thou styll now, that I maye shewe the what God hath sayd.

The. x. Chapter.

¶ Samuell at the commaundement of the LORDE anoynteth Saul kynge, and sheweth hym unto the people.

B Then toke Samuel a glasse of oyle, & poured it upon his heade, and kyssed hym, and sayde: Seyst thou that the LORDE hath anoynted the, to be the prince ouer * his enheritaunce? Whan thou goest now fro me, thou shalt fynde two men besyde * Rachels graue in the coast of BenJamin at Selzah, which shal saye unto the: The asses are founde, whom thou wentest to seke: and beholde, thy father hath put ẏ asses out of his mynde, and taketh thought for the, and sayeth: What shall I do for my sonne?

And whan thou goest on forth from thence: thou shalt come to the Oke of Thabor, there shall thre men fynde the, which go up unto God towarde Bethel: one beareth thre kyddes, another thre loaues of bread the thyrde a bottel wyth wyne: and they shall salute the, &
C geue the two loaues, whiche thou shalt take of their hãde. After ẏ shalt thou come to the hyll of God * where ẏ Philistynes watch is: and whan thou commest there in to the cyte, there shal mete the a company of prophethes commynge downe from the hye place, and before them a Psaltery, and tabret, & pype and a harpe, and they them selues prophecyenge. And the spirite of the LORDE shall come upon the, and thou shalt prophecye with thẽ, and shalt be chaunged in to another man.

Whan these tokẽs now come unto the, * then do what soeuer commeth under thyne hande: for God is with the. 2.Re.7.a 1.par.18.a Thou shalt go downe before me unto Gilgall: Beholde, thither wyll I come downe unto the, that thou mayest offre burntofferynges and thankofferynges. 1.Re.13.b
* Seuẽ dayes shalt thou tarye tyll I come to the, and shewe the what thou shuldest do. And whã he turned his shulder to go from Samuell, God chaunged hym another hart, and all these tokens came the same daye.

C And whan they came unto the hyll, beholde, there mett hym a company of prophethes, * & the sprete of God came upon hym, so that he prophecyed amõg them. 1.Re.11.b
But whan they which knew him before, sawe hym that he prophecied with the prophetes, they sayd all amõg them selues: What is happened unto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amõge the prophetes? And one that was there answered and sayde: Who is their father? * Here of came the prouerbe: Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And whan he had lefte of prophecyenge, he came up to the hyll. 1.Re.19.d

Sauls uncle sayd unto hym and to his chylde: Whether wente ye? They answered: To seke the asses. And whã we sawe that they were awaye, we came unto Samuell. Then sayde Sauls uncle: Tell me, what sayde Samuel unto you? Saul answered his uncle: He told us, that the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome he tolde hym nothinge what Samuell had sayde.

D Samuell called the people together unto the LORDE to Mispa, & spake unto the children of Israel: Thus sayeth the LORDE the God of Israell: I brought Israell out of Egipte, and delyuered you from the hande of the Egipcyans, and frõ the hande of all ẏ kyngdomes that oppressed you. * But now haue ye refused youre God, which hath helped you out of all youre sorowes and troubles, and ye haue sayde unto hym: Set a kynge ouer us. Well, stonde ye now before the LORDE accordinge to youre trybes and kynreds. 1.Re.8.b

Now whan Samuell had brought forth all the trybes of Israell, the trybe of BenJamin was taken. And whã he had brought forth the trybe of Ben Jamin with his kynreds, ÿ kynred of Ma-tri was taken, and Saul the sonne of Cis was taken. And they sought hym, but they founde hym not.

C They axed they further at the LOR DE, whether he was for to come thither. The LORDE answered: Beholde, he hath hyd hym selfe amonge the vessels. Then ranne they thither, and fetched hym. And when he stode amonge the people, he was hygher by the heade then all the people. And Samuel sayde vnto all the people: There se ye hym whome the LORDE hath chosen, for in all the people there is none lyke hym.
Then gaue all the people a shoute, and 1.Reg.1.d sayde: * God saue the new kynge.
Deu.17.d Samuell tolde the people all ÿ the lawe of the kyngdome, & wrote it in a boke, and layed it before the LORDE.
And Samuel let all the people go, euery one to his owne house. And Saul wente home also vnto Gibea, and there wente with hym one parte of the hoost, whose hartes God had touched. But the chyldren of Belial sayde: What shall this felowe helpe vs, * and despysed hym, Jud.2.b and brought hym no presente. But he made hym as though he herde it not.

The.xi. Chapter.

Saul defendeth Jabes fro Nahas the Ammonite.

B NAhas the Ammonite wente vp and layed sege vnto Jabes in Gilead. And all the men of Jabes sayde vnto Nahas: Be at one with vs and we wyll serue the. But Nahas the Ammonite answered the: I wyll make a couenaunt with you, of this condicio C that I maye thrust out all youre righte eyes, and put you to shame amonge all Israel. The sayde all the Elders of Jabes vnto him: Geue vs seue dayes respyte, that we maye sende messaungers vnto all the coastes of Israell: Yf there be then no sauioure, we wyll go forth vnto the.
D So the messaungers came vnto Gi-bea of Saul, and spake this before the eares of the people. Then all the people lyfte vp their voyces, and wepte. And be-holde, Saul came after the oxen out of the felde, and sayde: What ayleth the people that they wepe? So they tolde hym the tydinges of the men of Jabes.
1.Re.10.f Then came the sprete of God, vpon hym, when he had herde these [illegible] the men, that we maye put the to [illegible] But Saull sayde: There shall [illegible] dye this daye, for to daye hath ÿ LOR DE geuen helth in Israell. Sam[illegible] sayde vnto the people: Come, let vs g[illegible] vnto Gilgall, and renue the kyngd[illegible] there. Then wente all the people [illegible] Gilgall, & there they made Saul kyn[illegible] before the LORDE at Gilgal, and [illegible] fred thankofferynges before the LOR DE. And Saul with all the men of Israel reioysed there greatly.

The.xii. Chapter.

Samuel sheweth his innocency [illegible] secretly, I wyll restore it you agayne.

They sayd: Thou hast done vs neither violence nor wronge, nether oppressed ny taken ought of eny mans hande.
He sayd: The LORDE be witnesse a-gaynst you, and so be his anoynted this daye, that ye haue founde nothynge in my hande. They sayde: Yee they shalbe witnesses. And Samuel sayd vnto the D people: The LORD which made Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers out of the londe of Egipte (is here pre-gipte, youre fathers cryed vnto ye LOR DE. * And he sent Moses and Aaron to brynge youre fathers out of Egipte, & to make them for to dwell in this place.

* But when they forgat the LOR-DE theyr God, he solde them vnder the power of Sissera, the captayne at Hazor, and vnder the power of the Philis-tynes, and vnder the power of ye kynge of the Moabites, which fought against them. But they cryed vnto the LORD, and sayd: We haue synned, in that we haue forsaken the LORDE, & serued Baalim, and Astaroth. But now delyuer vs from the hande of our enemyes, and we wyll serue the. * Then ye LOR DE sent Ierubaal, * Bedan, * Iephte, * and Samuel, and delyuered you from your enemyes rounde aboute and caused you to dwell safe.

But whan ye sawe that Nahas, the E kynge of the children of Ammon came a-gaynst you, ye sayd vnto me: Not thou but a kynge shall raigne ouer vs, where as notwithstondynge your God was your kynge. Now, there haue ye your kynge, whom ye haue chosen and desyred: for lo the LORDE hath set a kynge ouer you.
Yf ye shall feare the LORDE now, & serue hym, and herken vnto his voyce, and not be disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORDE, then shall both ye and youre kynge that raygneth ouer you, fo-lowe the LORDE youre God. But yf ye herken not vnto the voyce of ye LOR DE, but be disobedient vnto his mouth, then shall the hande of the LORDE be agaynst you, and agaynst your fathers.

Stonde forth now also, and beholde this great thynge, that the LORDE shall do before youre eyes. Is not now the wheat haruest? Yet wyll I cal vpon the LORDE, so that he shal cause it to thonder and rayne, that ye shall knowe F and se ye great euell, which ye haue done in the syght of the LORDE, in that ye haue desyred to haue a kynge.

And when Samuel called vpon the LORDE, the LORDE caused it to thonder and rayne the same daye.

Then al the people feared the LOR G DE greatly and Samuel, and they sayd all vnto Samuel: Praye thou vnto the LORDE thy God for thy seruauntes, that we dye not: for besyde our synnes we haue done this euell also, yt we haue desyred vnto vs a kynge. Samuel sayd vnto the people: Feare not, ye haue done all this euel in dede. Neuertheles depart not backe fro the LORDE, but serue the LORDE with all youre herte, and go not asyde after vanyte, for it profy-teth you nothyng, & ca not delyuer you, in so muche as it is but a vayne thynge.
* For the LORDE shall not forsake Exo.34.B his people because of his great names Deu.9.e sake: for the LORDE hath begonne to Iosu.7.b. make you a people vnto hym selfe. But God forbyd that I shulde synne so vnto the LORD, to ceasse from prayenge for you, and fro teachynge you the good and ryghteous waye. Feare ye ye LOR DE therfore, and serue hym faythfully with al your hart: for ye haue sene, how great thynges he doth vnto you. But yf ye do wyckedly, both ye and your kynge shall perishe.

The xiii. Chapter.

The Philistynes gather them selues agaynst Israel. Saul is disobedient vnto the LORDE. Samuel reproueth hym.

Saul had ben kyng one yeare, and whan he had raygned o- A uer Israel two yeares, he chose hym thre thousande men out of Israel: two thousande were with Saul at Michmas vpô the mount of Bethel, & one thousande with Ionathas at Gibea of Ben Iamin. As for the other people, he let them go euer-ry one vnto his tente. But Ionathas smote the Philistynes in theyr stronge 1.Re.10.b watch, which was at Gibea. That came to ÿ Philistynes eares. And Saul caused to blowe the trompes in all the londe, and to saye: Let the Hebrues heare.

And all Israel herde saye: Saul hath smytten the Philistynes watch, for Israel stancke before the Philistynes. And all the people cryed after Saul vnto Gilgall.

B Then the Philistynes gathered the selues together to fyght with Israel, thyrtye thousande charettes, sixe thousande horsmen, and other people besyde, in nombre as the sonde by the see shore, and went vp, and pitched at Mich C mas on the eastsyde of Bethauen. Whe the men of Israel sawe that myssfortune laye vpon the neckes of them (for ÿ peo ple was come therto) they crepe in to ca ues and dennes, in to rockes, and holes, and welles. But the Hebrues went ouer Iordane in to the londe of Gad and Gi lead. As for Saul he was yet at Gilgal and all the people were faynteharted af-1.Re.10.b ter hym. * Then taryed he seuen dayes acordynge to the tyme appoynted of Sa muel. And whā Samuel came not vnto Gilgal, the people were scatered abrode from hym. Then sayd Saul: Brynge me hether a burntofferynge, and thankoffe-rynges. And he offred a burntofferynge.
But whan he had made an ende of the burntofferynge, beholde, Samuel came Then wente Saul forth to mete hym, ÿ D he myghte salute hym.

But Samuel sayd: What hast thou done? Saul answered: I sawe that the people was scatered abrode fro me, and thou camest not in due season: and the Philistynes were gathered together at Michmas. Then sayd I: Now shall ÿ Philistynes come down to me vnto Gil-gall, and I haue not besought the face of the LORDE: and so I boldened my selfe, and offred a burntofferynge.

Samuel sayd vnto Saul: Thou hast done folyshly, and not kepte the cōmaūdement of the LORDE thy God, which he cōmaūded the. For (yf ÿ haddest not done this) he had prospered thy kingdom vpon Israel for euer: but now shall not 1.Re.16.c. thy kyngdome contynue. * The LOR-DE hath sought hym out a man after his owne hart: hym hath the LORDE commaunded to be prynce ouer his people, for ÿ hast not kept ÿ the LORDE cō maūded the. And Samuel arose, & went vp frō Gilgal vnto Gibea BenIamin.

And Saul nombred the people that was founde by hym, vpō a sixe hundreth men. Saul and his sonne Ionathas, & the people that was with them, abode at Gibea BenIamin: but the Philistines had pitched theyr tentes at Mich mas. And out of the hoost of the Phili-stynes there wente thre bandes of men to destroye: one turned the waye towarde Ophra in to the londe of Sual, another turned towarde the waye of Bethoron, the thyrde turned towarde the waye, ÿ reacheth to the valley of Zeboim vnto ÿ wyldernesse.

But there was not a smyth founde in all the londe of Israel: for the Phili-stynes thought: The Hebrues myght happily make swerdes and speares.
And all Israel were fayne to go downe to the Philistynes, whan one was to a plowshare, a mattocke, an axe, or sythe to sharpe: and the edges of ÿ plow shares, and mattockes, and sythes, and axes, were labboured, & the poyntes blūt.
Now whan the daye of the batayl cam there was nether swerde nor speare founde in the hāde of all the people, that was with Saul and Ionathas: but by Saul & Ionathas his sonne there was somwhat founde. And the Philistynes watch went out by Michmas.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

Ionathas discomfiteth the enemyes by sotyltye, Saul helpeth hym, the father wolde slaye the sonne, the people de-lyuer hym.

It fortuned at ÿ same tyme, that Ionathas sayde vnto his lad which was his weapenbearer: Come, let vs go ouer the Philistynes watch that lyeth aboue, and he tolde not his father. Saul dwelte at the ende of Gibea vnder a Pomgranate tre, which was in the suburbes. * And the people ÿ was by hym, were vpon a sixe hundreth mē.
And Ahia the sonne of Ahitob the brother of Icabod, the sonne of Phinees, the sonne of Eli the prest of the LORDE at Silo, dyd weare ÿ ouerbody cote. And the people knewe not that Ionathas was gone.

Betwene the passages where Iona-thas sought to go ouer vnto the Philistynes watche, there were two sharpe rockes, the one on the one syde, the other on the other, the one was called Bozez the other Senne. And the one laye on ÿ north syde towarde Michmas, and the other on the southsyde towarde Gaba.

And Jonathas sayde vnto his wapen bearer: Come, let vs go ouer to ÿ watch of these vncircumcysed, peraduenture ÿ ...14.c LORDE shall worke with vs, * For it is no harde matter for the LORDE to helpe by many or by fewe. Then answered hym his wapenbearer: Do all that is in thyne hart, go in thy waye, be holde, I am with the, euen as thyne hart wyll.
B Jonathas sayd: Well than, When we are gone ouer to the men, and come within the syght of them, yf they saye: stonde styll, tyll we come to you, the wyll we stonde styl in our place & not go vp to the, but yf they say, come vp to vs, we wyl go vp to them: the hath ÿ LORDE delyuered them in to oure hande, & this shalbe a token for vs. Now whan they came both in the syght of the Philisty-...14.b nes watch, the Philistynes sayde: Se, * the Hebrues are gone out of their ho les that they were crepte in to. And the men in the watch answered Jonathas and his wapenbearer, and sayde: Come vp to vs, and we wyll teach you what ÿ matter is. Then sayde Jonathas to ...14.d his wapenbearer. * Come vp after me, the LORD hath delyuered the in to Israels hande. And Jonathas clame vp wyth handes and fete, and his wapenbearer after hym. And Jonathas smote them downe before hym, and his wapen bearer slewe behynde hym, so ÿ the first slaughter that Jonathas & his wapenbearer dyd, was vpo a twentye men, within the length of halue an akre of londe, which a payre of oxen maye tyll in one daye.
C * And there came a fearfulnesse and ...16.b fyght in the hoost vpon the felde, and a monge all the people of the watch: and ...13.d vpon the * destroyers there came a fear fulnesse also and fryght, so that the londe ...10.b was in a rumoure, and * there came a ...4.c fryght thorow God, and Sauls watch men at Gibea BenJamin sawe, that the multitude gat them awaye, & came to and fro.
Saul sayde vnto ÿ people that was wyth hym: Tell and se which of vs is gone awaye. And whan they nombred, E beholde, Jonathas and his wapenbea-rer was not there. Then sayde Saul vnto Ahia: Brynge hyther the Arke of God (for at that tyme was the Arke of God with the chyldren of Israel.) And whyle Saul was yet speakynge to the prest, the multitude in the Philistynes hoost gat vp, ranne, and was greate.

And Saul sayde vnto the prest: With-drawe thyne hande. And Saul cryed, and all the people that was wyth hym, and came to the battayll. And beholde, * euery mans swearde was agaynst a- Jud.7.f nother, and there was a very greate ru- 2 par.20.d moure.
The Hebrues also that were wyth the Philistynes afore, and had gone vp with the in the hoost on euery syde,roy-ned the selues vnto Israell which were with Saul and Jonathas. And all the men of Israel which * had hyd them sel 1.Re.13.b ues vpon mount Ephraim, whan they herde that the Philistynes fled, folo-wed after them in the battayll. Thus the LORDE helped Israell at that tyme, and the battayl lasted vnto Bethauen.
And whan the men of Israell came D forth, Saul charged all the people the same daye, and sayde: Cursed be euery man, which eateth bread vntyll euen, ÿ I maye auenge me on myne enemyes.
Then all the people tasted no bread.
And all the people of the londe came in to the wood. But there laye hony vpon the felde: and whan the people came in to the wood, beholde, the hony flowed, but no man put of it to his mouth with his hande: for the people were afrayed because of the ooth. As for Jonathas he had not herde, that his father had charged the people, and he put forth his staf that he had in his hande, and dypped ÿ ende of it in the hony combe, and turned his hande to his mouth, and his eyes were lyghtned.
Than answered one of [illegible] and sayd: Thy father hath c[illegible] people, and sayd: Cursed be [illegible] that eateth ought this daye. [illegible] les the people were faynte. Then sayde Jonathas: My father hath troubled ÿ londe: Se how lyght myne eyes are become, because I haue tasted a lytle of this hony. Yf the people this daye had eaten of the spoyle of their enemies that they founde, the slaughter shulde haue D bene greater agaynst ÿ Philistines. Yet smote they the Philistynes ÿ same day fro Michmas vnto Aialon, and the peo ple were very werye.
And the people turned to ÿ spoyle, E and toke shepe and oxe, and calues, and Leui.7.c and 19.f slewe the vpon the earth, * and dyd eate them with the bloude. Then was it tolde Saul: Beholde, ẏ people synne agaynst the LORDE, in that they eate bloude. He sayde: Ye haue done euell: roll vnto me now a greate stone. And Saul sayde moreouer: Go abrode amonge the people, and saye vnto them, ẏ euery one brynge me his oxe and his shepe, and slaye them here, that ye maye eate, and not to synne agaynst the LORDE with eatynge of bloude. Then brought all the people euery one his oxe wᵗ his hāde ẏ same night, and slewe them there. And Saul buylded an altare vnto the LORDE. This is the fyrst altare that he buylded vnto the LORDE.

And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistynes, by nyghte, and spoyle them tyll it be cleare mornynge, ẏ we let none escape. They answered: Do what so euer pleaseth the. But the prest sayde: Let vs go nye here vnto God. And Saul axed at God: Shall I go downe here after the Philistines? and wylt thou delyuer them in to Israels hande? Neuerthelesse he answered hym not at that tyme.

F Then sayde Saul: Let all the armyes of the people come hyther, and make search and se, in whom is this synne at this tyme. For as truly as God the sauioure of Israell lyueth, and though it be in my sonne Jonathas, he shall dye. And no man answered hym of all the people. And he sayd vnto all Israel: Be ye on the one syde, I and my sonne Jonathas wyll be on this syde. The people sayde vnto Saul: Do as it pleaseth the. And Saul sayde vnto the LORDE the God of Israell: Do thou that ryght is. Then was Jonathas and Saul taken, but ẏ people were forth fre. Saul sayd: Cast the lot ouer me and my sonne Jonathas. So Jonathas was taken. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas: Tell me, what hast ẏ done? Jonathas tolde hym, and sayde: I tasted a lytle hony wyth the staff that I had in my hande, and beholde, must I dye therfore? Then sayde Saul: God do this and that vnto me, Jonathas thou must dye the death.

G But the people sayde vnto Saul: Shulde Jonathas dye, that hath done so greate health in Israell this daye? 2.Re.14.b God forbyd. * As truly as the LORDE lyueth, there shall not one heere of D his heade fall vpon the earth: for wyth God hath he wrought at this tyme. So the people delyuered Jonathas, ẏ he dyed not. Then wente Saul vp fro the Philistynes: and the Philistynes wente vnto their place.

But whan Saul had conquered ẏ kyngdome ouer Israell, he fought agaynst all his enemyes rounde aboute: agaynst the Moabites, agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, agaynst the Edomites, agaynst the kynge of Zoba, agaynst the Philistynes: and whither so euer he turned hym, he gat ẏ victory. And he made an hoost, and smote the * Amalechites, and delyuered Israel from the hande of all those that spoyled them.

Saul had these sonnes: Jonathas, Isui, and Malchisua. And these were ẏ names of his two doughters: the fyrst borne Merob, and the yongest Michol. And Sauls wyfe was called Ahinoam ẏ doughter of Ahimaas. And his chefe captaynes name was Abner, the sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle. * Cis was the father of Saul. But Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel.

There was a myghtye sore warre agaynst the Philistynes, as longe as Saul lyued. And where Saul sawe a man that was strōge and mete for ẏ warre, he toke him to him.

The.xv. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth. Nabal despiseth Dauid. Abigaill pacifieth hym.

Samuel sayde vnto Saul: * The LORDE sent me to anoynte the for to be kynge ouer his people of Israel: heare now therfore ẏ voyce of ẏ wordes of ẏ LORD. Thus sayth ẏ LORDE Zebaoth: I haue considered what Amalech dyd vnto Israel, * and how he layed wayte for hym in ẏ waye whā he wēt out of Egipt: Go thy waye now therfore, & smyte the Amalechites, & banne them with all that they haue, and spare him not: but slaye both man and woman, chyldren & sucklynges, oxen and shepe, camels and asses. Saul commaunded the people the same, and nombred them at Telaim two hundreth thousande fote men, and ten thousande men of Juda.

And whan Saul came to the cite of the Amalechites, he set an hynder watch by the ryuer, and sayde vnto the Kenites: Get you hence, departe, and downe from the Amalechites, ẏ I smyte Nu.10.d you not with them, * for ye shewed mer cy vnto all the chyldren of Israel, whan they departed out of Egipte. So the Ke nites gat them awaye from amonge the Amalechites.

Then smote Saul the Amalechites from Heuila vnto Sur (which lyeth ouer agaynst Egipte) and toke Agag ẏ kynge of the Amalechites alyue, & damned all the people with the edge of the swearde. Neuerthelesse Saul and the people spared Agag, and the shepe & oxē that were good and fatte, and ẏ lambes, & al that was good, & wolde not damne them: but loke what was foule and no-thynge worth, that they damned.

E Then came the worde of ẏ LORDE vnto Samuel, and sayd: It repenteth me that I made Saul kyng, for he hath turned hym selfe backe from me, & not confirmed my wordes. Therfore was Samuel angrye, & cryed vnto ẏ LOR-DE all that nyght. And Samuel gat hym vp early, that he might mete Saul in the mornynge. And it was tolde hym, that Saul was come vnto Carmel, * & set hym vp a piler, and was gone about and came downe to Gilgall.

Now whan Samuel came to Saul Saul sayd vnto hym: Blessed be thou vnto ẏ LORDE, I haue perfourmed the worde of the LORDE. Samuel an swered: What crye is this thē of shepe in myne eares, and ẏ crye of oxē which I heare?

D Saul sayd: They haue brought thē frō the Amalechites: for the people spared the best shepe and oxen for the offe-rynge of the LORDE thy God, the other haue we damned. Neuertheles Sa muel answered Saul: Let me tell the what the LORDE hath sayd vnto me this nyght. He sayd: Saye on. Samuel sayd: * Whan thou wast but small in thyne awne eyes, wast thou not ẏ heade amonge the trybes of Israel? and the LORDE anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel, and the LORDE sent the in to the waye, and sayd: Go thy waye and damne the synners the Amalechites, & fyght agaynst them, tyll thou haue vtter ly destroyed them? Wherfore hast thou not herkened vnto ẏ voice of ẏ LORDE but hast turned thy selfe to the spoyle, & done euel in the syght of the LORDE.

E Saul answered Samuel: Yee I haue herkened vnto the voyce of the LORDE and haue gone the way that ẏ LORDE sent me, and brought Agag the kynge of the Amalechites, and damned the Amalechites: but the people haue taken of ẏ spoyle, shepe and oxen, ẏ the best among the damned, to offer vnto the LORDE thy God in Gilgal. Samuel sayd: Hath the LORDE pleasure in sacrifices and burntofferynges, as in obeynge ẏ voyce of the LORDE? Beholde, * obedience Eccle.4.d is better then offerynge, and to herken is better then the fat of rammes. For disobedience is as the synne of * witch- Exo.22.c craft, and rebellion is as the blasphemy Deu.18.b of Idolatrye. In so much now as thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE he hath refused the also, that thou shuldest not be kynge.

Then sayd Saul vnto Samuel: I F haue synned, that I haue transgressed ẏ commaundement of the LORDE, and thy worde: for I was afrayed of ẏ people, and herkened vnto theyr voyce. And now forgeue me my synne, and returne with me, ẏ I may worshippe the LOR DE. Samuel sayd vnto Saul: I wyll not turne backe with the, for thou hast refused the worde of the LORDE, and the LORDE hath refused the also, ẏ thou shuldest not be kynge in Israel.
And whan Samuel turned hym backe to go his waye, he gat hym by the edge of his garment, and rente it. Then sayd Samuel vnto hym: The LORDE hath rente the kyngdome of Israel frō the this daye, and geuē it vnto thy negh boure, which is better then thou. The ouerwynner in Israel also shall not lye, nether shall he repente: for he is no man that he shulde repente.

He sayd: I haue synned, yet honoure G me now before the Elders of my people and before Israel, and turne back with me, that I maye worshippe the LORD thy God. So Samuel turned agayne after Saul, that Saul myght worshippe the LORD. But Samuel sayd: brynge me hether Agag the kynge of the Amalechites. And Agag wente vnto hym ten derly. And Agag sayd: Thus departeth the bytternesse of death. Samuel sayd:
* Like as thy swearde hath made wemē Exo.17.c chyldlesse: so shall thy mother also be w^t^ Nu.14.g out chyldren amonge women. So Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the LORDE in Gilgall.

* And Samuel departed vnto Ra- 1.Re.7.d math. But Saul wente vp to his house at Gibea Saul. And Samuel sawe Saul nomore vnto ẏ daye of his death.

Nevertheles Samuel mourned for Saul, because it repented the LORD that he had made Saul kynge over Israel.

The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Dauid is anoynted kynge. The euel spzete vexeth Saul, Dauid easeth hym with playenge at the harpe.

A And the LORD sayde vnto Samuel: How longe mour-nest thou for Saul, whõ I haue refused, that he shulde not be kynge over Israel?
Fyll thyne horne with oyle, go thy way I wyll sende the to Isai ẏ Bethleemite: for amonge his sonnes haue I prouyded me a kynge. But Samuel sayd: How shall I go? Saul shall perceaue it, and shall slaye me. The LORD sayd. Take the a calfe from the drove, and saye: I am come to do sacryfice vnto ẏ LOR-DE. And thou shalt cal Isai to ẏ sacrifice, so shall I tell the what thou shalte do, that thou mayest anoynte my hym, whom I shall shewe the. Samuel dyd as the LORDE sayd, & came to Beth leem. Then were the Elders of the cyte 3.Re.2.b astonyed, and wente forth to mete hym and said: * Is thy commyng peaceable?
Nu.11.d He sayd: Yee, I am come to do sacrifice Josu.3.b vnto the LORDE. ‡ Sanctifie youre and 7.c selues, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Isai and his son-B nes, and called them to the sacrifice.
Now whã they came in, he behelde Eliab, and thought, whether he shulde be his anoynted before the LORDE.
But the LORDE said vnto Samuel: loke not vpon his countenaunce, nor vp põ the talnesse of his personne. For I iudge not after the syght of man. A mã hath respecte vnto the thynge that is be fore his eyes, but the LORDE loketh vpon the harte. Then Isai called Abina dab, and brought hym before Samuel.
And he sayd: This hath not the LOR-DE chosen. Then Isai brought Sam ma. But he sayd: This also hath not ẏ LORDE chosen. Then brought Isai his seuen sõnes before Samuel. Neuer-thelesse Samuel sayd vnto Isai: The C LORDE hath chosen none of these.
And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: Are here all the chyldren? He sayd: There is yet one the leest of all, and beholde he ke peth the shepe. Then sayd Samuel vnto Isai: Sende and cause hym to be fetched, for we wyl not syt downe at ẏ table, vntyll he come. Then sent he, & caused hym be brought. And he was well coloured with fayre eyes and of a beuty-full countenaunce. And the LORDE sayd. Aryse, and anoynte hym, ẏ is he.
Then toke Samuel his oyle horne, and anoynted hym amonge his brethre.
And the spzete of the LORDE came vpon Dauid from that daye forth. As for Samuel, he gat hym vp, and wente vnto Ramath.
But the spzete of the LORDE departed from Saul, and an euel spzete from the LORDE vexed hym. Then sayd Sauls seruauntes vnto hym: Be-holde, an euel spzete from God vexeth ẏ.
Let oure lorde saye to his seruauntes which stonde before hym, that they seke a man which can playe vpon the harpe, and instrumẽt, that whã the euel spzete of God cõmeth vpon ẏ, he may playe w his hande, to ease the withall. The sayd Saul vnto his seruaũtes: Prouyde me a man, that can playe well vpon the instrument, and brynge hym vnto me.
D Then answered one of the chyldre, and sayde: Beholde, I sawe a sonne of Isai the Bethleemite, which can playe vpon the instrumente, an honest and valeaunt man, and one that hath vnderstã dynge in matters, and is welfauoured.
Then Saul sende messaungers vnto Isai, sayeng: Sende me Dauid thy sonne, which is with the shepe. Then toke Isai an asse with bread, & a bottell with wyne, and a kyd, and sent it vnto Saul by Dauid his sonne. So Dauid came to Saul, and stode before hym, and he loued hym well, and he became his wea penbearer. And Saul sent vnto Isai, sayeng: Let Dauid remayne before me, for he hath founde fauoure in my syght.
Now whã ẏ euel spzete of god came vp

The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ Dauid destroyeth Goliath ẏ giaunt.
The Phillistynes flye.

The Phillistynes gathered theyr hoost to the battayll, & came together to Socho in Juda, and pitched theyr ten tes betwene Socho and Aseka, at the syde of Damin. But Saul and the men of Israel came together, & pitched in ẏ Oke valley, & prepared the selues to the battayll agaynst the Philistynes. And the Philistynes stode vpõ a hyll on the one syde, and the Israelites vpon a hyl on the other syde, so that there was a valley betwene them.

Then stept there forth from amõge the Philistynes a stoute bolde man, na-Pa.11.d med Goliath of * Gath, sixe cubytes & an hande brede hye, and had an helmet of stele on his heade, and a fast habergi on vpon hym, and the weight of his ha bergion was fyue thousande Sicles of stele, and harnesse of stele had he vpon his legges, and a shylde of stele vpõ his shulders: and ye shaft of his speare was lyke a weuers loume, and the yron of his speare had sixe hundreth Sicles of yron, and his wapenbearer wente before hym.
B And he stode & called vnto ye hoost of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore are ye come forth to prepare youre selues to the battayl? Am not I a Philistyne, and ye the seruauntes of Saul?
Chose one amonge you to come downe vnto me: yf he can fyght against me and slaye me, then wyll we be youre seruaũ-tes: but yf I can ouercome hym & slaye hym, then shal ye be oure seruauntes, to do vs seruyce. And the Philistyne sayd: I haue spokẽ disdanously vnto ye hoost of Israel this daye. Geue me one, and let vs fyght together. Whan Saul and al Israel herde these wordes of ye Phili-styne, they were astonied, & sore afrayed But Dauid was the sonne of a mã of Ephrata of Bethleem Juda, whose name was Isai, which had eyght son-nes, and was an olde man in Sauls tyme, and was well strycken in age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Isai were gone with Saul to ye battayll. And theyr names were these: Eliab the first borne, Abinadab the secõde, and Samma the thirde. But Dauid was the yongest of all. So whan ye thre eldest were gone with Saul to the bat-tayl, Dauid wente agayne from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethleem.
But the Philistyne stept forth early in the mornynge and at euen, & stode there fortye dayes.
C Isai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: Take this Epha of frymentye for thy brethren, and these ten loaues of bread (and rũne to the hoost vnto thy brethrẽ) and these ten new cheses, & brynge the to the captayne, and loke how thy brethren do whether it go well with them or no, and take what they byd the. But Saul and they, and all the men of Isra ell were in the Oke valley, and fought agaynst the Philystynes.
Then Dauid gat hym vp early in ye mornynge, and commytted the shepe to the keper, and toke his burthen, wente his waye, as Isai commaunded hym, & came to the tent. And ye hoost was gone forth, and had prepared them selues, & cryed in the battayl: For Israell had set them selues in araye, and the Philisty-nes were agaynst their hoost in their a-raye also.
Then lefte Dauid the vessell that he bare, with the keper of the stuffe, & rãne to the hoost, and wente in, and salutred his brethren. And whyle he was yet tal-kynge with them, beholde, thẽ came vp the stoute bolde man, whose name was Goliath, the Philistyne of Gath, out of the Philistynes hoost, & spake lyke as afore, and Dauid herde it. But euery man of Israell whan he sawe the man, fled from hym, and was sore afrayed of him.
And euery mã in Israell sayd: Haue ye sene the man commynge vp hyther?
For he is come vp hither, to speake disdaynously vnto Israell. * And who so Jos.15.d. euer smyteth hym, hym wyll the kynge 1.Re.18.d make ryche, and geue him his doughter, & make his fathers house fre in Israel.
Then sayde Dauid vnto the men yt D stode by hym: What shalbe done to the man, that smyteth this Philistyne, and turneth this shame away from Israel?
For what is he this Philistyne, this vn circũcysed, that defyeth the hoost of the lyuynge God? Then the people tolde him as afore. Thus shall it be done vnto the man that smyteth hym. And Eliab his greatre brother herde hym talke wyth the men, and was very wroth a-gaynst Dauid, and sayd: Wherfore art thou come downe? and why hast thou left a fewe shepe in the wyldernesse? I knowe thy presumptuousnesse well ynough, and ye wickednesse of thine hart: for thou art come downe to se ye battayl Dauid answered: What haue I done now? Is there not an occasyon? And he turned hym selfe from him vnto another, & spak [illegible] acordynge as he had sayd before. Then the people answered hym lyke as afore.
And whan they herde the wordes which Dauid sayde, they tolde them in the [illegible] of Saul, & he caused hym be fetched. And Dauid said vnto Saul: Let no mās hart be discoraged because of hym. Thy seruaunt shall go, & fyght wyth ÿ Phylistyne. Neuertheles Saul sayde vnto Dauid: Thou art not able to go agaynst this Phylistyne to fyght with hym, for thou art but a chylde: but this is a man of warre from his youth vp.

E Dauid sayde vnto Saul: Thy seruaūt kepte his fathers shepe, and there came a lyō and a bere, and caried away a shepe from the flocke, then wente I forth after hym, and smote hym, and de lyuered it out of his mouth. * And whā Iud.14.b. he wolde haue bene vpō me, I toke him Heb.11.f by his beerde, and smote him, and slewe hym. So thy seruaunt smote both the lyon and the bere. Therfore shall this Philistyne, this vncircumcysed be euen as one of them: for he hath defyed the hoost of the lyuynge God. And Dauid sayde: The LORDE that delyuered me from the lyon and beer, shall delyuer me also from this Philistyne.

And Saul sayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, the LORDE be wyth the.
And Saul clothed Dauid wyth his clo thes, and set an helmet of stele vpō his heade, and put an habergion vpō hym.
And Dauid gyrded his swearde aboue his clothes, and beganne to go, for he had neuer bene vsed to it afore. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go thus, for I haue not bene vsed to it, and so he layed it from hym, & toke his staff in his hande, and chose fyue slyght stones out of the ryuer, and put them in ÿ shepherdes bagge which he had by him, and toke a slinge in his hande, and gatt hym to the Philistyne. And the Phili-styne wente forth, and gatt him to Da-uid, and his wapenbearer before hym.

F Now whan the Philistyne loked & sawe Dauid, he thought scorne of hym for he was but a chylde, well colou red, and beutyfull to loke vpon. And the Philistyne sayde vnto Dauid: Am I a dogge then, that thou commest vnto me with a staffe? And he cursed Dauid by his God, and sayd vnto Dauid: Come hyther to me, I wyll geue thy flesh to ÿ foules vnder the heauen, and to the bea stes in the felde. Neuerthelës Dauid sayde vnto the Philistyne: Thou commest vnto me with swearde, speare, and shylde. But I come vnto the in the name of the LORD zebaoth the God of the hoost of Israel, whom thou hast despysed. This daye shall the LOR DE delyuer the in to my hande, that I maye smyte the, and take thy heade fro the, and geue the bodyes of the hoost of the Philistynes this daye vnto the fow les vnder the heauen, and to the wylde beastes vpon the earth, that all the worl maye knowe that Israell hath a God.
And all this congregacyon shal knowe, that the LORDE saueth nether tho row swearde, nor speare: for the battai is the LORDES, and he shal delyuer you in to oure handes.

Now whan the Philistyne gatt hym vp, and wente forth and drue nye vnto Dauid, Dauid made hayst, and ranne from the hoost vnto the Phyli-styne. And Dauid put his hande in his bagge and toke out a stone, and thre[illegible] it wyth the slynge, * and hytt the Phili [illegible] styne euen in the forheade, so that the stone stacke in his forheade, and he fell downe to the grounde vpon his face.

G So Dauid ouercame the Philistyne wyth the slynge and with the stone, and smote hym, and slewe hym. And for so much as Dauid had no swearde in his hande, he ranne and stode ouer the Phy listyne, * & toke his swearde, and drue [illegible] it out of the sheeth, and slewe hym, and smote of his heade withall. When the Philistynes sawe that the strongest of them was dead, * they fled. And the me [illegible] of Israell and Iuda gat the vp, & crye[illegible] and folowed vpon the Philistynes, tyll they came vnto the valley, and to ÿ por tes of Ekron. And the Philistynes fell down slayne vnto Gath and to Ekron.
And the chyldren of Israell turned a-gayne from chasynge of the Philisty-nes, and spoyled their tentes. But Da-uid toke the heade of the Philistyne, and brought it vnto Ierusalem. But hys armoure, he layed it in his tente.

When Saul sawe Dauid go forth agaynst the Phylistyne, he sayde vnto * Abner his chefe captayne: Abner, who se sonne is the chylde? Abner sayde: As truly as thy soule lyueth O kynge, I wote not. The kynge sayde: Then [illegible] whose sonne the yongeman is. Now whan Dauid came agayne from the slaughter of the Phylistyne, Abner to ke hym, and brought hym before Saul, and he had the Phylistynes heade in his hande. And Saul sayd vnto him: Whose sonne art thou, thou yonge ma[illegible]

The .xviii. Chapter.

¶ Jonathas and Dauid are sworne louers. Dauid behaueth himselfe wysely in all thynges. The people loue him. Saul geueth hym his doughter of purpose, that the Philistynes myghte destroye hym.

A AND whan he had made an ende of talkynge with Saul, the soule of Jonathas was bounde with the soule of Dauid. And Jonathas loued hym as his owne soule. And Saul toke him the same daye, and let him not go agayne to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid made a couenaunt together, for he loued hym as his owne soule. And Jonathas put of hys owne cote that he had vpon hym, and gaue it vnto Dauid: yee and his cloke, his swearde, his bowe, and his gyrdel. (Ge. 41.) And Dauid wente forth whyther so euer Saul sent hym, and, behaued hym selfe wysely. And Saul sent hym ouer the men of warre, and he pleased all the people well, and all the seruauntes of Saul.

B It fortuned, that whā Dauid was come agayne from the slaughter of the Philistynes, the wemen wente out of all the cyties of Israel with songes and daunses, to mete kynge Saul, with timbrels, with myrth, and wyth fyddels. And the wemen sange one to another, and played and sayde: * Saul hath smytten his thousande: but Dauid his ten thousande. (1. Re. 21. b / 29. b)

Then was Saul very wroth, and the worde displeased hym sore, and he sayde: They haue ascrybed ten thousande vnto Dauid, and but one thousande vnto me: what shal he haue more but the kyngdome? And from that daye forth Saul, loked sowerly vpō Dauid.

C The nexte daye after came the euell spirite of God vpon Saul, & prophecyed in the myddes of the house. But Dauid played on the instrumēt with his hāde, as he was wont dayly. And Saul hadde a iauelynge in his hande, and cast it, and thoughte: I wyll stycke Dauid fast to ÿ wall. Neuertheles Dauid turned hymselfe twyse away from hym And Saul was afrayed of Dauid: for the LORDE was ŵ hym, and departed from Saul. Then Saul put hym from hym, and set hym to be prynce ouer a thousande men, and he wente out and in before the people. And Dauid behaued hymselfe wysely in all his doynges, and the LORDE was wyth hym.

D Now whā Saul sawe that he was so exceadynge wyse, he stode in feare of hym. But all Israell and Juda loued Dauid, for he wente out and in before them. And Saul said vnto Dauid: Beholde, my greatest doughter Merob * wyll I geue the to wyfe: be stronge now, and gouerne the warres of the LORDE. For Saul thought: my hāde shall not be vpon hym, but the hande of the Phylistynes. Neuertheles Dauid answered Saul: Who am I? and what is my lyfe and the kynred of my father in Israell, that I shulde mary the kynges doughter? (1. Re. 17. d)

E But whan the tyme came, that Merob the doughter of Saul shulde haue bene geuen vnto Dauid, she was geuen vnto Adriel ÿ Meholathite to wyfe. Neuertheles Michol Sauls doughter loued Dauid. Whan this was tolde Saul, the matter pleased hym well, and he sayde: I wyll geue hym her, that she maye be a snare vnto hym, and that the handes of the Philistynes maye come vpon hym, and he sayde vnto Dauid: This daye shalt thou be my doughters husbande the seconde tyme. And Saull spake vnto his seruauntes: Talke with Dauid secretly and saye: Beholde, the kynge hath pleasure in the, and all his seruauntes loue the, mary thou therfore the kynges doughter.

F And Sauls seruaūtes spake these wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid sayde: thynke ye it but a small matter, to mary the kynges doughter? As for me, I am but a pore symple mā. And Sauls seruaūtes tolde him agayn, and sayde: Such wordes hath Dauid spoken. Saul sayde, Then saye ye vnto Dauid: The kynge desyreth no dowry, but onely an hundreth foreskynnes of the Philistynes, that vengeaunce maye be taken of the kynges enemyes. Howbeit Saull thought to cause Dauid be slayne by the handes of the Philistynes. Then his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes, and Dauid was content with the matter, to mary the kynges doughter.

G And after a fewe dayes Dauid gat hym vp, and wente with his men, and smote two hundreth men amonge the Philistynes. And Dauid brought their forskynnes, and made their nombre sufficient unto the kynge, that he might ma ry the kynges doughter. Then Saull

D And Saul sawe & perceaued, that the LORDE was with Dauid. And Mi was Saul the more afrayed, & became his enemye as longe as he lyued. And whan the prynces of the Philystines wente forth, Dauid behaued hym selfe more wysely then all the seruauntes of Saul in their outgoenge: so that his name was in greate reputacyon.

The.xix.Chapter.

¶ Saul commaundeth to kyll Dauid. Jonathas geueth hym warnynge. Dauid flyeth his waye. His wyfe delyuereth hym.

besyde my father in ẏ felde where thou art, and wyll speake of the unto my fa-

And Jonathas reported the best of Dauid unto Saul his father, and sayd unto hym: Oh let not the kynge synne agaynste his seruaunt, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and his doenge is Jud.12.a very necessary for the, * he put his lyfe psal.118.c in his honde also, and smote the Philistyne, and the LORDE dyd a greate health unto all Israell: this hast thou thou offende agaynste innocent bloude, that thou woldest kyll Dauid without a cause? Then herkened Saul unto the voyce of Jonathas, and sware: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, he shall not dye. The Jonathas called Dauid, and tolde him al these wordes, and brought hym to Saul, so that he was in presence D lyke as afore tyme.

But there arose a battayll agayne, and Dauid wente forth, and fought a-gaynst the Philistynes, & smote a great slaughter, so that they fled before hym.

Neuertheles the euel spyrete of ẏ LOR DE came upon Saul, and he sat in his house, & had a iauelynge in his hande.
But Dauid played upon the instrument with his hande. And Saul thought with the iauelynge to stycke Dauid fast to the wall. Howbeit, he went asyde from Saul, and the iauelynge smote in the wal. And Dauid fled, & escaped ẏ night.
C Not withstondynge Saull sent his messangers to Dauids house, that they shulde laye wayte for him, and kyll him in the mornyng. Michol Dauids wyfe tolde him this, and sayde: Yf thou saue not thy soule this night, thou shalt dye tomorow. * The Michol let him down thorowe the wyndow, so that he wente his way, fled, and escaped. And Michol toke an ymage, and layed it in the bed, and layed a goates skynne at the heade of it, and couered it with clothes. Then Saul sent messaungers, to fetch Da-uid. But she sayde: He is sycke. Neuer-thelesse Saull sent messaungers to se Dauid, and sayde: Brynge hym up to me with the bed, that he may be slayne.
Now whan the messaungers came beholde, the ymage laye in the bed, and a goateskynne at the heade of it. Then sayde Saul unto Michol: Why hast thou begyled me, and let myne enemye go, that he might escape? Michell sayde unto Saull: He sayde unto me, let me go, or I wyll kyll the. As for Dauid, he fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel unto Ramath, and tolde hym all that Saul had done unto hym. And he went with Samuel, & they abode at Naioth. D And it was tolde Saull: Beholde, Dauid, is at Naioth in Ramath. The Saul sende messaungers to fetch Da-uid. And they sawe a company of prophetes prophecyenge, and Samuel had the ouersight of them. Then came the spyrete of God upon the messaungers of Saull, so that they prophecyed also.
Whā this was tolde Saul, he sent other messaungers, which prophecyed lykewyse. The sent he messaungers the thirde tyme, & they in lyke maner pro-phecied. Then wente he himselfe also unto Ramath, & whā he cam to ẏ great well which is at Secho, he axed & sayd: Where is Samuel and Dauid? Then was it tolde hym: beholde, at Naioth in Ramath. And he went thec, euen unto Naioth in Ramath. And the spyrete of God came upon hym also, and he wente and prophecied tyll he came vnto Naioth in Ramath. And he put of his clothes, & prophecied lykewyse before Samuel, and fell downe naked al that day

The.xx.Chapter.

¶ Dauid auoydeth from the kynges displasure. Jonathas warneth hym.

A Dauid fled fro Naioth in Ramath, and cam, and spake before Jonathas: What haue I done? What trespace haue I made? What haue I synned in the syght of thy father, that he seketh to kyl me? He sayd vnto hym: God forbyd, thou shalt not dye. Beholde, my father doth nothynge, nether great nor small, but he sheweth it before myne eares. Wherfore shulde my father then hyde this fro me? It shall not be so. Then sware Dauid agayne, and sayd: Thy father knoweth well, that I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, therfore shall he thynke: Jonathas shall not knowe of this, lest it greue hym. Verely, as truely as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but one steppe betwene me and death: Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: I wyll do for the what so euer thy hart desyreth. Dauid sayd vnto hym: Beholde, to morow is the new Mone, that I shulde syt at the table wt the kynge. Let me hyde my selfe therfore in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen.
B Yf thy father then axe after me, saye: Dauid prayed me, that he myght runne to Bethleem vnto his cyte, for all his kynred haue there a yearly sacrifice. Yf he saye then: It is good, then stondeth it well with thy seruaunt. But yf he be wroth, thou shalt perceaue that he intendeth euell. Do mercy therfore vpon thy 1.18.a seruaunt: * for with me thy seruaunt hast 23.d thou made a couenaunt in the LORDE. But yf there be ony trespace in me, then slaye me thy selfe, for why woldest thou brynge me vnto thy father?

Jonathas sayd: That be farre fro the, that I shulde perceaue my father to intende ony euell agaynst the, and shulde not tel the. Dauid sayde: Who shall brynge me worde, yf thy father geue ŷ an harde answere? Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: Come, let vs go forth in to ŷ felde. And they wente out both in to the felde. And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: LORDE God of Israel, yf I perceaue by my father tomorow or on the thyrde daye, that it goeth well with Dauid, and sende not vnto the, and shewe the before thyne eares, then let ŷ LORDE do this and that vnto Jonathas.
C But yf my father delyte in euel agaynst the, I wyll shewe it before thyne eares also, and let the go, that thou mayest departe in peace.

And the LORDE be with the, as he hath bene with my father. Yf I do it not, then do thou no mercy of ŷ LORDE on me, whyle I lyue, no not whan I dye, & plucke thy mercy fro my house for euer. And whan the LORDE roteth out the enemyes of Dauid, euery one of the londe, then let Dauid rote out Jonathas also with his house, & ŷ LORDE requyre it of the handes of Dauids enemyes.

And Jonathas procraded further, and sware vnto Dauid (he loued hym so well: for he loued hym as his owne soule) and Jonathas sayde vnto hym: Tomorow is the new Mone, and thou shalt be axed after: for thou shalt be wanted where thou wast wonte to sit. But on the thyrde daye come downe soone, and go in to the place where thou hyddest the on the worckday, & set ŷ downe by the stone of Asel: then wyll I shute
D thre arowes on that syde, as though I wolde shute at a marcke: and beholde, I wyll sende the boye, and saye vnto him, Go seke the arowes. Yf I saye now vnto the lad: Lo, ŷ arowes lye hitherward behynde the, fetch them, then come thou for it is peace, and there is no parell, as truly as the LORDE lyueth. But yf I saye vnto the lad: beholde, the arowes lye yonderward before ŷ, then go ŷ thy waye, for the LORDE hath let the go. * As for that which thou and I haue spoken together, the LORDE is betwene me and the for euer. 1.Re.20.b.

Dauid hid hymself in the felde. And whan the new Mone came, the kynge sat hym downe at ŷ table to eate. Whan the kynge had set him downe in his place as he was wonte, by the wall, Jonathas stode vp, but Abner sat hym downe besyde Saul. And Dauid was myssed in his place. And Saul spake nothynge that daye, for he thought: There is somwhat happened vnto hym, that he is not cleane. On the seconde daye of the new Mone, whan Dauid was myssed in his place, Saul sayd vnto Jonathas his sonne: Wherfore is not the sonne of Isai come to the table nether yesterdaye nor to daye?

e Jonathas answered Saul: He prayed me that he might go vnto Bethlehem & sayde: Let me go, for our kynred hath a sacrifice to do in the cite, & my brother hath sente for me hymselfe: yf I haue founde fauoure now in thy syght, I wyll go, and se my brethren: therfore is he not come to the kynges table. Then was the kynge wroth at Jonathas, & sayde vnto hym: Thou wycked and vnthriftie, I knowe how that thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai, to the shame of thy selfe, & of thy shamefull mother. For as longe as the sonne of Isai lyueth vpon earth nether thou nor thy kyngdom shal prospere. Sende now therfore, & cause hym p.Re. 26.c to be fetched vnto me * for he is a childe of death.

Jonathas answered his father Saul and sayde vnto hym: Wherfore shall he dye? what hath he done? Then shot Saul the iaueling at hym, ye he might smyte hym. Then perceaued Jonathas that his father was vtterly determined to kyll Dauid, and he rose vp from the table in a wrothfull displeasure, & dyd eate no bread that same second daye of the new Mone: for he was vexed because of Dauid, ye his father had done hym such dishonoure.

f On the morowe wente Jonathas forth in to the felde, at the tyme appoynted of Dauid, and a lytle boy with hym and sayd vnto the boy: Runne and seke me the arowes whiche I shute. Whan the boye ranne, he shote an arowe ouer him. And whan the boy came to the place whither Jonathas had shot ye arowe Jonathas cryed after hym, and sayde: The arowe lyeth yonderwarde before the. And he cryed after hym agayne: hast the, and stonde not styll. Then the boye gathered vp Jonathas arowes, and brought them to his lorde. And the boy knewe nothinge, onely Jonathas and Dauid knewe of the matter.

Then Jonathas gaue his boye his weapens, and sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye, and cary them in to the cite. And when the boy was gone, Dauid arose from the place towarde the south, & fell vpon his face to the grounde, and worshipped thre tymes, and they kyssed one another, and wepte together, but Dauid moost specialy. And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: Go thy waye in peace. * What so euer we both haue sworne and spoken together in the name of the LORDE, the LORDE be witnesse betwene me and the, betwene my sede and thy sede for euer. And Jonathas gat hym vp, and came in to the cite.

The .xxi. Chapter.

¶ Dauid fleeth vnto Noba to the prest Abimelech, and eateth of ye shewbread.

DAuid came to Nobe to the prest Abimelech. And Abimelech was astonyed, when he sawe Dauid comynge, and sayde vnto hym: Why commest thou alone, and noman is with the? Dauid sayd vnto * Abimelech ye prest: The kynge hath commytted a matter vnto me, and sayd: Let noman knowe wherfore I haue sent the, and what I haue commaunded the: for I haue appoynted my seruauntes to mete me here & there. * Yf thou haue now ought vnder thy hande, a loafe of breade or fyue, geue it me, the same in my honde, or whatsoeuer thou fyndest.

The preste answered Dauid, and sayde: I haue no comen breade vnder my honde, but the holy breade: yf the yonge men haue onely refrayned them selues from wemen. Dauid answered the prest, and sayde vnto hym: The women were kepte thre dayes fro vs whan we departed forth, and the yonge mens vessels were holy. But this waye is vnholy, neuerthelesse it shalbe sanctifyed to day in ye instrumentes. * Then the prest gaue him of ye holy, in so much as there was none other breade but ye shewbreades, whiche were taken vp before the LORDE, that there might be set fresh breades, set therin the daye whan he toke them awaye.

But the same daye was there a man shutte in before the LORDE, one of Sauls seruauntes, named Doeg an Edomite, the mightiest amonge Sauls hyrdmen. And Dauid sayde vnto Abimelech: is ther not a speare or a swearde here vnder thyne honde? I haue not taken my swearde and weapens with me, for the kynges matter requyred haste. The prest sayde: The swearde of Goliath the Philistyne * whom thou slewest in the Oke valley, is here wrapped in a cloth behynd the ouerbody cote. Yf thou wylt haue it, take it, for here is els none but it. Dauid sayde: there is not such another, geue me it.

D And Dauid gat hym vp, & fled from Saul, and came to Achis the kynge of Gath. But Achis seruauntes sayd vnto hym: This is Dauid the kynge of the londe, of whom they songe in the daunse, ...18.b & sayde: * Saul hath smytten his thou
...19.b sande, but Dauid his ten thousande.
And Dauid toke these wordes to hart, and was sore afrayed of Achis ÿ kynge of Gath, and altered his countenaunce before them, and shewed hymselfe as he had ben madde in theyr hádes, and stackered towarde the dores of the gate, and his slauerynges ranne downe his berde Then sayd Achis vnto his seruauntes: Beholde, ye se that the man is out of his wytte, why haue ye brought hym vnto me? Haue I to fewe madmen, that ye haue brought this hether to be madde before me? Shulde he come in to my house?

The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ Dauids frendes helpe hym. Doeg the Edomite slayeth Ahimelech & the other prestes of the LORDE.

A Dauid wente from thence and fled vnto the caue of Adullá Whan his brethren & al his fathers house herd that, they cam down thether vnto him And there gathered vnto hym all men ÿ were in trouble and det, & sorye of hart, and he became theyr heade, so that there were with hym vpon a foure hundreth men.

And Dauid went from thence to-warde Mispa in the londe of the Moa bites, and said vnto the kynge of ÿ Mo abites: Let my father & my mother go out and in amonge you, tyll I se what God wyll do with me. And he left them before the kynge of the Moabites, so ÿ they remayned by hym, as longe as Da uid was in the castell. Neuertheles the prophet Gad sayd vnto Dauid: Abyde not in the castell, but go thy waye, and come in to the londe of Iuda. Then departed Dauid, and came in to ÿ wood of Hareth. And Saul herd that Dauid and the mé which were with hym, were come forth.

Now whyle Saul dwelt at Gibea B vnder a groue in Rama, he had a iauelynge in his hande, and all his seruauntes stode by hym, then sayd Saul vnto his seruauntes that stode by hym: Heare ye children of Iemini: Shall the sóne of Isai geue londes and vyneyardes vnto you all, & make you all captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, that ye haue all cóspyred agaynst me, and there is noman that sheweth it before myne eares, * for so muche as my sonne also 1.Re.18.D hath made a couenaunt with the sonne 20 b.23.D of Isai? There is no man amonge you that letteth it for my sake, or that openeth it vnto myne eares: for my sonne hath stered vp my seruauntes agaynste me, that he maye laye wayte for me, as it is manifest.

Thé answered Doeg the Edomite which stode besyde Sauls seruauntes, and sayde: * I sawe the sonne of Isai, 1.Re.21.B that he came vnto Nobe, to Ahimelech the sonne of Achitob, which axed coun-cell at the LORDE for him, and gaue him fode, and the swearde of Goliath the Philistyne.

Then sent the kynge, and caused to C call Ahimelech the prest the sonne of Achitob, & all his fathers house, the prestes that were at Nobe, and they came all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: Heare thou sóne of Achitob. He sayd: Here am I my lorde. And Saul sayd vnto hym: Wherfore haue ye cóspyred agaynst me thou and the sonne of Isai, that thou hast geuen hym breade and a swearde, and axed councell at God for hym to stere hym vp, that he might lay wayte for me, as it is manifeste?

Ahimelech answered the kynge & sayde: And who is amonge all thy seruauntes lyke Dauid, which is faithfull, and hath maried the kynges doughter, and goeth in thyne obedience, and is honorably taken in thyne house? Haue I begonne then fyrst this daye to axe coun-cell at God for hym? That be farre fro me. Let not the kynge laye suche to his seruauntes charge in all my fathers house for thy seruaunt knewe not of all these thynges nether small nor greate.
Neuertheles the kynge sayde: Ahimelech thou must dye the death, thou and all thy fathers house. And the kynge sayde to his fote men that stode by him Turne you, and slaye the prestes of the Lorde for their hande is wt Dauid also.

Not withstondynge the kynges ser- D uauntes wolde not laye their hádes vppon the prestes of the LORD, to slaye them. Thé sayd the kynge vnto Doeg: Turne the, and slaye ÿ prestes. * Doeg 1.Reg.2.G the Edomite turned him, and slewe the 2.Re. 21.A prestes, so that the same day there dyed fyue & fourescore mé, which dyd weare ouerbody cotes of lynnen. And Nob the cite of the prestes smote he with the edge of the swearde both men and wemen, chyldren an suckynges, oxen and asses, and shepe.

Neuerthelesse there escaped a sonne of Ahimelech (the sonne of Achitob) who se name was Abiathar, and fled after Dauid, and tolde hym, that Saul had slayne the prestes of the LORDE. Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I knewe wel the same daye that Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. I am gyltye of the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde thou with me, and feare not. He that layeth wayte for my lyfe, shall lay wayte for thyne also, and thou shalt be preserued with me.

Saull layeth wayte for Dauid. He getteth hym out of the waye, and the LORDE defendeth hym.

And it was tolde Dauid: Beholde, the Phylistynes fight agaynst Cegyla, and spoyle the barnes. Then Dauid * axed at the LORD, and 2.Re.2.a and.5.c sayde: Shall I go, and smyte these Philistynes? And the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go thy waye, thou shalt smyte the Philistynes, and delyuer Cegyla. But the men that were with Dauid, sayde vnto hem: Beholde, we are here in feare in Iewry, and shal we go to Cegyla vnto the hoost of the Philistynes? Then Dauid axed at the LORDE agayne. And the LORD answered hym and sayde: Up, get the downe to Cegyla, for I wyll delyuer thy Philistynes in to thy honde.

So Dauid wente with his men vnto Cegila, and fought agaynst the Philistynes, and droue awaye their catell, & smote them with a greate slaughter. Thus Dauid delyuered the of Cegyla. For whan Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled vnto Dauid at Cegyla he bare downe ẏ ouerbody cote with him.

Then was it tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Cegila, and he sayde: God hath delyuered him in to my hōde for he is shut fast in, now ẏ he is come in to a cite which is kepte with gates & barres. And Saul caused for to call all the people downe vnto the battayll vnto Cegila, that they might besege Dauid and his men. But whan Dauid perceaued that Saul imagined euell agaynst hym, he sayde vnto Abiathar the prest:

* Brynge me hyther the ouerbody cote. [illegible]
And Dauid sayde: O LORDE God of Israel, thy seruaunt hath herde that Saull goeth aboute to come for to destroye the cite of Cegyla for my sake. Shall ẏ citesyns of Cegyla delyuer me ouer in to his hande? And shall Saul come down, as thy seruaūt hath herde? Tell thy seruaunt this: O LORDE God of Israel. And the LORD sayde: He shall come downe.

Dauid sayde: Shall the citesyns of Cegyla delyuer me and my men in to Sauls honde? The LORD sayde: Y[illegible]
Then Dauid gat hym vp with his [illegible] of whome there were vpon a sixe hundreth, and walked whither they coulde. Now whā it was tolde Saul that Dauid was escaped frō Cegila, he let his iourney stonde. As for Dauid, he remayned in the wyldernesse in the castell, and abode vpon the mounte in the wyldernesse of Siph. But Saul sought him as longe as he lyued. Neuerthelesse God gaue hym not in to his hādes. And Dauid sawe, that Saul was gone forth to a seke after his lyfe. But Dauid was in the wyldernesse of Siph, in the wood.

Then Ionathas the sonne of Saul gat him vp, & wēte vnto Dauid in to ẏ wood, and strēgthed his hande in God, and sayde vnto hym: Feare not, My father Sauls hande shall not fynde the: and thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, so wyll I be the nexte vnto the. And that my father knoweth right well. * And they made a couenaunt bothe together before the LORDE. And Dauid remayned in the wood. As for Ionathas, he wente home agayne. D 1.Re.[illegible]

But the * Siphites wente vp to Saul vnto Gibeath, and sayde: Is not Dauid hyd with vs in the castell in the wood, vpon mount Hachila, which lyeth on the right hande of the wyldernesse? Let ẏ kynge come downe now therfore according to all the desyre of his hert, and we wyll delyuer hym in to the kynges hāde. The sayd Saul: Blessed be ye of the LORD, that ye haue had pytie vpon me: Go your waye now therfore and be sure, that ye maye knowe and se in what place his fete haue bene, & who hath sene hym there: for it is tolde me, that he is full of sotiltie. Loke well and spye out al the places, where he hydeth hym, and come agayne to me, when ye are sure, and I wyll go with you. Yf he be in the lōde, I wyll enquere after hym amonge all the thousandes in Juda.

C Then gat they them vp, and wente their way vnto Siph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wylder nesse of Maon, euen in the felde of the righte hande of the wyldernesse. Now whan Saul wente thither with his mē to seke hym, it was tolde Dauid and he gat hym downe to the rocke, and abode in the wyldernesse of Mahon. Whan Saul herde that, he folowed after Da-uid in the wyldernesse of Mahon. And Saul with his men wente on the one syde of the hyl. Dauid with his men on the other syde of the hyll. But whā Da uid made haiste to escape from Saull, Saul with his men compassed aboute Dauid and his men, that he might take Re.17.b them. * Neuertheles there came a messanger vnto Saul, and sayde: Make haist and come, for the Philistynes are fallen in to the londe. Then Saul turned hym from chacynge of Dauid, & wente agaynst the Philistynes. Therhelkoth. And Dauid wente vp frō thēce and abode in the castell at EnGaddi.

The .xxiiii. Chapter.

C Saul commeth in to Dauids hande which wyll not slaye hym, but cutteth of a pece of his garment. &c.

Now whan Saull came a-gayne from the Philistynes it was tolde hym: Beholde, Dauid is in ẏ wyldernesse of EnGaddi. And Saul toke thre thousaande chosen men out of all Israell, and wente to seke Dauid with his men vpon the stony rockes of the wylde goates. And whā he came to the shepe foldes by the waye, there was To couer his fete: that is to do his ne-cessary cas-ement. a caue, and Saul went in ☞ to couer his fete. But Dauid and his men sat behynde within the caue.
Then sayd Dauids men vnto him:
Lo, this is the daye, where of ẏ LOR-DE thy God hath sayde vnto the: Be-holde, I wyll delyuer thyne enemye in to thy hande, that thou mayest do with hym what it pleaseth the. And Dauid stode vp, and cut of the typpe of Sauls garment quyetly. Neuertheles it smote hym afterwarde in his hart, because he had cut of the typpe of Sauls garmēt, B and sayde vnto his men: The LORDE let that be farre fro me, that I shuld do it, & lay my hāde vpō my lorde the Lor des anoynted for he is ẏ anoynted of the LORDE. And Dauid withhelde his seruauntes with wordes, & suffred them not to ryse vp agaynst Saul.
But whan Saul gat hym out of ẏ caue, and was goynge his waye, Dauid rose vp also after hym, and went out of the caue, and cryed behynde Saul, and sayd: My LORDE the kynge. And Saul loked behynde hym. And Dauid bowed downe his face to the earth, and worshipped, and said vnto Saul: Why herknest thou vnto the wordes of men, that say: Dauid seketh thy misfortune?
Beholde, thyne eyes se this daye that ẏ LORDE gaue the in to my hande in the caue, and I was councelled to slaye the: Neuerthelesse thou wast fauoured, C for I sayd: I wyl not laye my hande vp on my lorde, for he is the LORDES a noynted. Beholde my father the typpe of thy garment in my hande, ẏ I wolde not slaye the, whan I cut of the typpe of thy garment. Knowe and se, that there is no euel nor trespace in my hande: ney ther haue I offended the, and thou folowest after my soule, to take it awaye.
The LORDE shalbe iudge betwene me and the, and auenge me on the, but my hande shal not be vpō the, accordyng as it is sayd after the olde prouerbe: Un godlynesse commeth of the vngodly: but my hande shal not be vpon the. Whome persecutest ẏ O kynge of Israel, whom persecutest thou? a dead dogge? a flee?
The LORDE be iudge, and geue sentence betwene me and the, and consyder it, and defende my cause, and delyuer me from thy hande.
Now whan Dauid had spoken out D these wordes vnto Saul, Saul sayd:
* Is not this the voyce of my sōne Da 1.Re.26.b uid? And Saul lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte, and sayd vnto Dauid: Thou art more ryghteous then I: for thou hast re compensed me good, but I haue rewarded the euell. And this day hast thou she wed me how thou hast done me good, for so much as the LORDE hath delyuered me in to thy hande, and thou ne uerthelesse hast not slayne me. What is he, which yf he fynde his enemye, wyl let hym go in a good waye? The LORDE rewarde the good for ẏ thou hast done vnto my this daye? Beholde now, I knowe that thou shalt be kynge, and ẏ kyngdome of Israel stondeth in thy hād Sweare now therfore vnto me by the LORDE, that ẏ shalt not rote out my sede after me, nether destroye my name out of my fathers house. And Dauid sware vnto Saul. Then wente Saull home, but Dauid gat hym vp with his men vnto the castell.

The.xxv. Chapter.

Samuell dyeth. Naball displeaseth Dauid. Abigail pacifieth hym.

And Samuell dyed, and all Israell gathered thēselues A together, mourned for hym, and buried him in his house at Ramath. As for Dauid, he rose, and wente downe in to the wyl dernesse of Paran. And there was a mā at Maon, and his possession at Carmel and the man was of greate power, and had thre thousande shepe, and a thou sande goates. And it fortuned that he clipped his shepe at Carmell, and his name was Nabal, but his wyues name was Abigall, and she was a woman of good vnderstondynge, and bewtyfull of face. But the man was harde, & wicked in his doynges, and was one of Caleb.

Now whā Dauid herde in the wyl dernesse that Naball clipped his shepe: he sent out ten yonge men, and sayd vn to them: Go vp vnto Carmell, and whā ye come to Naball, salute hym frendly on my behalfe, and say: Good lucke, pea ce be with the, and thyne house, & with all that thou hast. I haue herde say that thou hast shepe clippers. Now thy shep B herdes whom thou hast, haue ben with vs, we haue done them no dishonoure, and they wanted nothynge of their nō bre, as longe as they were at Carmell: Are thy yonge men, they shall tell the. & let thy yonge men fynde fauoure in thy sighte: for we are come in a good daye, Rut.2.b * geue thy seruauntes and thy sonne Dauid what thy hande fyndeth.

And whā Dauids yonge men came and spake all these wordes on Dauids behalfe vnto Nabal, they lefte of. But Naball answered his seruauntes, and sayde: What is he that Dauid? & who is the sonne of Isai? There are many seruaūtes now that runne awaye from their masters. Shulde I take my bread water, and flesh, that I haue slayne for my clyppers, and geue it vnto men whō I knowe not whence they are?

Then Dauids yonge men turned their waye agayne. And whā they came agayne vnto him, they tolde him all the se wordes. The sayde Dauid vnto his men: Euery man gyrde his swearde a boute him. And euery one gyrde his sweard aboute him: & Dauid gyrded his sweard aboute hym also, & there wēte vp after him vpon a foure hundreth m[illegible] but two hundreth remayned with the stuffe.

C Neuerthelesse one of the yonge men tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, and sayde: Beholde, Dauid sent messaungers out of the wyldernesse to blesse oure lorde.
Notwithstandynge he was fearce vp[illegible] them, and yet haue they bene very p[illegible] table mē vnto vs, and haue done vs no dishonoure, and we wanted none of the nombre as longe as we walked w[illegible] them, when we were in the felde: but they haue ben oure wall daye & night, as lōge as we kepte the shepe by the[illegible] hede now therfore, and loke well w[illegible] thou doest, for there is surely a myschi[illegible] one at hande agaynste oure lorde, and agaynst all his house. And he is a man of Beliall, to whome no man dar[illegible] saye ony thynge. Then Abigall ma[illegible] haist, and toke two hundreth loaues of bread, and two bottels of wyne, & fyue shepe ready dighte, and fyue measures of firmentye, and an hundreth [illegible] of raysens, and two hūdreth frayles of fygges, and layed them vpon asses, and sayde to hyr yonge men: Go ye before waye before me, beholde, I wyll come after. And she tolde Naball hir [illegible] bande nothynge therof. And as she ro[illegible] vpon the asse, and wente downe in the shadowe of the hyll, beholde, Dauid [illegible] his men met hir down, so that she ca[illegible] vpon them.

But Dauid sayde: Well, all that [illegible] this man had in the wyldernesse, [illegible] I kepte for naught, so that there [illegible] ted nothynge of all that he had, and [illegible] rewardeth me euell for good. God [illegible] this and yet more vnto the enemyes of Dauid, yf vntyll tomorow in the [illegible] nynge I leaue this man (of all that he hath) so much as one that maketh [illegible] ter agaynst the wall. Now when [illegible] gaill sawe Dauid, she light downe [illegible] the asse in all the haist, and fell vpō h[illegible] face before Dauid, & worshipped [illegible] to the grounde, and fell at his fete, [illegible] sayde: Oh my lorde, let this trespace [illegible] myne, and let thy handmayde speake [illegible] fore thyne eares, and heare the wordes of thy handmayden: Let not my lorde set his hart agaynst this Nabal the [illegible] of Beliall, for he is a foole, acco[illegible] as his name is called: his name is [illegible] and folishnesse is with hym. [illegible] thy handmayde, I sawe not my lordes yonge men, whom thou dyddest sent e.

But now my lorde, as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truely as thy soule lyueth, the LORDE hath kepte thy backe, that thou shuldest not come agaynst bloud, & he hath delyuered thyn hande.
Thyne enemyes be now as Nabal, E and so be they that wolde my lorde euel.
Here is the blessynge, yͤ thy handmayde hath brought my lorde, take it, and geue it vnto the yonge men, that walke vnder my lorde. For a sure house shall yͤ LOR DE make my lorde, which fyghteth the fyght of the LORDE, and no euel shal be founde in the all thy lyfe longe. And yf eny man ryse vp to persecute the, and to laye wayte for thy soule, then shall yͤ soule of my lorde be bounde in the bundell of the lyuynge, euen with the LOR DE thy God. But the soule of thyne e-nemyes shalbe turned back wt the slynge Whan the LORDE therfore doth all this good for my lorde (whiche he hath promysed the) and commaundeth the to be his Duke ouer Israel, then shal it be no stõblynge blocke nor occasyon of fallyng vnto my lordes hart, that thou hast not shed bloude without a cause, and auenged thy selfe, then shall the LORD do good vnto my lorde, and thou shalte thynke vpon thy handmayden.
F Then sayd Dauid vnto Abigall: Blessed be the LORDE God of Israel, which hath sent yͤ to mete me this daye: and blessed be thy speach, & blessed be thou, which hast kepte me backe this daye, that I am not come agaynst bloud to auenge me with myne owne hande.
Verely (as truely as the LORDE the God of Israel lyueth, which hath hyn-dred me that I shulde do no euell.) Yf yͤ haddest not mette me in al the haist, Na ball shulde not haue had lefte hym vntyl the lyght mornyng, so much as one that maketh water agaynst the wal. So Da uid toke of her hãde what she had brought hym, and sayde vnto her: Go vp in peace vnto thy house: Beholde, I haue herkened vnto thy voyce, and accepted thy persone.
But whan Abigall came to Nabal, beholde, he hadde prepared a feast in his house lyke a kynges feast, and his harte was mery, for he was very dronken.
And she tolde hym nothyng, nether smal nor great vntyll the cleare mornynge.
But whã it was daye, & the wyne was gone from Na ball, his wyfe tolde hym these thynges.
Then was his hert dead in his body G so that he became euen as a stone: and ouer ten dayes the LORD smote hym, so that he dyed. Whã Dauid herde that Naball was dead, he sayd: Blessed be yͤ LORDE whiche hath auenged my rebuke on Nabal, and preserued his ser-uaunt from euell. And the LORD hath rewarded Naball that euell vpon his heade.
And Dauid sent, and caused to talke with Abigall, that he myght take her to wyfe. And whã Dauids seruauntes cam to Abigall vnto Carmel, they spake vnto her, and sayd: Dauid hath sent vs vn to the, that he may take the to wyfe.
She rose vp, and worshipped vpon her face vnto the earth, & sayd: beholde, here is thy handmayde, that she maye do ser-uyce vnto the seruauntes of my lorde, & to wasshe theyr fete. And Abigall made haist, and gat her vp, and rode vpon an asse, and fyue maydens that were vnder her, & went after Dauids messaungers, and became his wyfe. Dauid toke Ahi-noam of Iesrael also, and they both became his wyues. But Saul gaue Michol his doughter yͤ wyfe of Dauid vnto Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallim.

The.xxvi.Chapter.

¶ Dauid fyndeth Saul slepynge, and where as Abisai wold slaye hym, he wyl not suffer hym, but taketh awaye his speare and the cuppe of water.

They of Siph came to Saul A vnto Gibeath, & sayd: * Is 1.Re,23,d. not Dauid hyd vpon the hill of Hachila, which lyeth ouer agaynst the wyldernesse?
Then Saul got hym vp, & went downe to the wyldernesse of Siph, & thre thou sande men of Israel with hym, to seke Dauid in the wyldernesse of Siph, and pytched vpon the hyl of Hachila, which

But Dauid remayned in yͤ wyldernesse, and whan he sawe that Saul came after hym in to the wyldernes, he sent out spyes, and knewe of a suertie, yͤ he was come in dede.
And Dauid gat hym vp, and came to the place wher Saul had pitched his tente, and sawe the place where Saull and the hoost aboute hym. Then answe red Dauid, and sayd unto Ahimelech ye Hethite, and to Abisai the sonne of Je-ru Ja the brother of Joab: Who wyll go downe wt me to Saul in to ye hoost?

Abisai sayd: I wyl go downe with the.
B So Dauid and Abisai came to the people in the nyght season, and beholde, Saul laye and slepte in the tent, and his speare stacke in the grounde at his heade But Abner and the people laye rounde aboute hym. Then sayd Abisai vnto Da uid: God hath closed thyne enemye in thyne hande this daye. Therfore wyl I now thrust hym thorow once with the speare euen into the grounde, that he shal haue ynough of it. Neuerthelesse Dauid sayd vnto Abisai: Destroye hym not, for who wyl laye hande vpon the anoynted of the LORDE, and remayne vngylty Dauid sayd moreouer: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, yf the LORDE hym selfe smyte hym not, or excepte his tyme come that he dye, or that he go into the battayll and perysshe, the LORDE let it be farre from me, that I shulde lay my hande on the LORDES anoynted. Take ye speare now therfore at his head, and the cuppe of water: and let vs go. So Dauid toke the speare and the cuppe of water at Sauls heade, & they went theyr waye. And there was no mã that sawe it, & perceaued it, nether awa ked, but they slepte euery one, for there was a depe slepe fallen vpon them from
the LORDE.
C Now whan Dauid was come ouer on the other syde, he stode vpon ye toppe of the mount a farre of (so yt there was a wyde space betwene them) and cryed vpon the people, and vpon Abner ye sõne of Ner, and sayd: Hearest thou not Abner? And Abner answered & sayd: Who art thou that cryest so, and disesest the kynge? And Dauid sayd vnto Abner: Art thou not a man? And where is there such one as thou in Israel? Why hast thou not thẽ kepte thy lorde the kynge? for there is one of the people come in to destroye thy lorde the kynge. It is not well that thou hast done. As truely as ye

Then knewe Saul the voyce of Da 1.Re.24.d uid, and sayd: * Is not that thy voyce my sonne Dauid? Dauid sayd: It is my voyce my lorde the kynge. And he sayde moreouer: Why doth my lorde so persecute his seruaunt? What haue I done? and what euell is there in my hande?
Yet let my lorde the kynge hear but the D wordes of his seruaunt? Yf the LOR-DE prouoke the agaynst me, let ther be smelled a meatofferynge: but yf the chyldren of men do it, cursed be they before the LORDE, because they haue thrust me out this daye (that I shuld not dwel in the LORDES inheritaunce) & saye Go thy waye, and serue other goddes.
So fall not now my bloude vpõ ye earth from the face of the LORDE. For the kynge of Israel is gone forth to seke a flee, as a partryche is folowed on vpon the mountaynes.
And Saull sayde: I haue synned: Come agayne Dauid my sonne, I wyll do the nomore hurte, because my soule hath bene deare in thy syght this daye.
Beholde, I haue done folysshly and very vnwysely. Dauid answered and sayd: Beholde, here is the kynges speare, let one of the yonge mẽ come ouer here and fetch it. But the LORDE shal reward euery one accordynge to his ryghteousnes and fayth, for the LORDE delyue-red the this daye in to my hande: neuer-theles I wolde not laye my hande vpon the LORDES anoynted. And as thy soule hathe bene greatly reputed in my syght this daye, so let the LORDE repute my soule in his syght, and delyuer my from all trouble. Saul sayd vnto Dauid: Blessed be thou Dauid my sõne, thou shalt do it, and be able. But Dauid went his waye, & Saull turned agayne vnto his place.

The.xxvii. Chapter.

David flyeth vnto Achis the kynge at Geth.

DAuid thought in his harte:
One of these dayes shall I fall in to the hãdes of Saul It is better that I get me my waye into the londe of ye Philistynes, that Saull maye leaue of from sekynge me in all the coastes of Israel, so shall I escape his handes. And he gat hym vp, and went ouer (with ye sixe hundreth men that were with him) vnto Achis the sonne of Maoch kynge of Gath. So Dauid remayned by Achis at Gath, with his men, euery one with his housholde, and Dauid with his two wyues, Ahinoam the Israelitisse, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel.

And whan worde came to Saull that Dauid was fled vnto Gath, he sought hym nomore.
And Dauid sayde vnto Achis: Yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, thẽ let there be geuen me a place in one of the cyties of the londe, that I maye dwell theryn. Wherfore shulde thy seruaunt me to Achis. So whã Achis spake. Whi ther fell ye in to daye? Dauid sayde: To ward ẏ south part of Iuda: toward the south syde of ẏ Ierahimelites, & toward the south parte of the Kenites. But Da uid let nether man nor woman come lyuynge vnto Gath, and thought: They myght peraducture speake and reporte agaynst vs: thus dyd Dauid, and this was his maner as longe as, he dwelt in ẏ londe of ẏ Phylistynes. Therfore Achis gaue credence vnto Dauid, and thought: he hath made him selfe stynke before his people of Israel, therfore shal he be my seruaunt for euer.

the londe. Now whan the Philistynes gathered themselues together, cãme & pitched their tentes at Sunem. Saull gathered all the people together, & they pitched at Gilboa. But whan Saull sawe the hooste of the Philistynes, he was afrayd, and his hart was discoraged, and he axed councell at the LOR-

Then sayde Saul vnto his seruaũ B ged his clothes, and put on other, and wente his waye and two mẽ with him and came by night vnto the woman, & sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, there shall no harme happen vnto the for this. Then sayde the woman: Whõ Brynge me vp Samuel.

Now whan the woman sawe Sa- C

Saul: Wherfor hast thou begyled me?
Thou art Saul. And the kynge sayde vnto her: Feare not, what seiste thou?
The womã sayde vnto Saul: I se god sayde: How is he shapened? She sayde: There cõmeth vp an olde man, & is clo thed with a longe garment. Then perceaued Saul that it was Samuel, and bowed hym selfe downe with his face to the grounde, and worshipped hym.

Samuell sayde vnto Saull: Why hast thou disquyeted me, to cause me be brought vp? Saul sayd: I am sore trou bled, the Philistynes fight against me, and God is departed fro me, & geueth me no answere, nether by prophetes nor by dreames: therfore haue I called the, that thou myghtes shewe me, what I of the Philistynes. Then fell Saull im-mediatly vnto the earth, for he coulde not stonde, & was sore afrayed at these wordes of Samuell, so that there was nomore strength in hym: for he had eate no bread all that daye and all that nyght.

E And the woman wente in to Saul, and sawe that he was sore vexed, and fore the to eate, that thou mayest come to thy strength, and go thy waye. But he refused, and sayde: I wyll not eate.

Then his seruauntes and the woman compelled hym, so that he herkened vnto their voyce.
And he rose vp from the grounde, & sat vpon the bed. The woman had a fat calfe at home, so she made hast, and kyl-led it, and toke meel and dyd kneed it, & baked swete cakes, and brought them forth before Saull, and before his seruauntes. And whan they had eate, they stode vp, and wente their waye that

The Philistynes are not contente, that Dauid shulde be their captayne. The kynge sendeth hym home agayne.

B The Philistynes gathered all their armyes together at A-Ain in Jesraell. And the princes of the Philistines wente forth with hundreds and with thousandes, but Dauid and his men wente bepleasest not the prynces. Returne now therfore, and go thy waye in peace, that thou do no euell in the syght of the princes of the Phylistynes.

Dauid sayde: what haue I done, & C what hast thou marked in thy seruaunt, sence the tyme that I haue bene in thy presence vnto this daye, that I shulde not come and fyght agaynst the enemy-es of my lorde the kynge? Achis answered and sayde vnto Dauid: I knowe well that thou pleasest myne eyes euen as an angel of God. But the prynces of the Philistynes haue sayd: Let hym not go therfore tomorow by tymes and thy lor-des seruauntes which are come wyth the.

And whan ye haue gotten you vp early in the mornynge, whan it is lyght, go youre waye. So Dauid and his men gat them vp early to go their waye in the mor-nynge, & to come agayne in to the londe of the Philistynes. But the Philistines wente vp towarde Jesrael.

The .xxx. Chapter.

The Amalechites fall vpon Ziclag.
Dauid foloweth vpon them, and reco-uereth the spoyle agayne.

A Now whan Dauid came to Siclag on the thyrde day & his mē, the Amalechites had fallen in on the south parte and at Siclag, & had smytten Siclag, and burned it with fyre, & had caried awaye the wemen out of it, both smal and great. Neuerthelesse they [Pa.n.] had slayne noman, but dryuen thē thēce, and were goynge on theyr waye. Now whan Dauid with his men came to the cyte, and sawe that it was brent with [Re.17.] fyre, and that theyr wyues, sonnes, and doughters were led awaye captyue Da-uid and the people that was with hym lyfte vp theyr voyce, and wepte so longe tyll they coulde wepe nomore. For Da-uids two wyues also were caried awaye captyue, Ahinoam the Israelitishe, and [Re.2 / Re.2] Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel. And Dauid was very sorowfull, for the peo ple wolde haue stoned hym: for the soule of all the people was in great heuynesse, euery one ouer his sonnes and doughters.
B Neuerthelesse Dauid strēgthed him selfe in the LORDE his God, & sayde vnto Abiathar the prest the sonne of A-[.Re.23. b] himelech: *Brynge me hether the ouerbody cote. And whā Abiathar had brought the ouerbody cote vnto Dauid, Da uid axed at the LORDE, & sayd: Shal I folowe vpon the men of warre, and shall I ouertake them? He sayd: Yee, fo-lowe vpō them, thou shalt ouertake thē, and shalt rescue the praye. Then wente Dauid his waye, and the sixe hundreth men that were with hym. And whā they came to the ryuer of Besor, some stode styll. But Dauid and the foure hūdreth men folowed after: As for the two hun-dreth men that stode styll, they had ben slowe to go ouer the ryuer of Besor.
And they founde a man of Egipte vpon the felde, hym they brought vnto [Ju.15.d.] Dauid, *and gaue hym bread to eat, & water to drynke, and gaue hym a quantite of fygges, and two quantities of ra syns. And whan he had eaten, his sprete came to hym agayne: for in thre dayes & thre nyghtes he had eaten no bread, and dronken no water.
C Dauid sayd vnto hym: Whose art thou? He sayd: I am a chylde of Egipt, an Amalechites seruaunt, and my mayster hath forsaken me, because I was syke thre dayes ago. We fell herin to-warde the south syde of Crethus, and vpon Juda, and towarde y south parte of Caleb, and haue burned Siclag with fyre.
Dauid sayd vnto hym: Wylt thou brynge me downe to these mē of warre?
He said: Sweare vnto me by God, that thou shalt not slaye me, nor delyuer me in to my maysters hande, and I wyll brynge the downe to these mē of warre.
And he brought them downe, & beholde they were scatred vpon all the grounde, eatynge and drynkynge, and kepynge ho ly daye, and were makynge mery chere, because of al the great spoyles that they had taken out of the londe of the Phy-listynes and of Juda.
And Dauid smote them from the D morowe tyll the euen, agaynst the nexte daye, so that there escaped none, excepte foure hundreth yonge men, which rode vpon camels, and fled. So Dauid rescued all that the Amalechites had taken and his two wyues, and there myssed no thynge, nether small nor great, nether sō nes nor doughters, nor spoyles: & what so euer they had taken, Dauid brought all agayne. And Dauid toke the shepe and oxen, and droue the cattell before hym. And they sayd: This is Dauids spoyle.
And whan Dauid came to the two hundreth men, whiche had ben slowe to folowe after Dauid, and abode at the ryuer of Besor, they went forth to mete Dauid, and the people that was w hym And Dauid came to the people, and saluted them frendly.
Then answered suche men as were E euell and Belials men (amonge them y had gone with Dauid) & sayd: Seynge they went not with vs, they shall haue none of y spoyles that we haue rescued but let euery mā take his wyfe and chyl dren and be goynge.
Then sayd Dauid: Ye shall not do so (my brethren) with y which y LOR-DE hath geuen vs, and hath preserued vs, and delyuered these men of warre (which were come agaynst vs) in to our handes. Who shulde consente vnto you herin? lyke as the porcyon is of thē that wente downe to the batayll, so shall the porcyon be of them also that abode with the stuffe, and shalbe deuyded a

From that tyme forth hath this ben F an ordynaunce and lawe in Israel vnthis day. And whā Dauid came to Siclag, he sent of y spoyle vnto the Elders in Juda his neghbours, and sayd: Be-holde, there haue ye the blessynge out of the spoyle of the enemyes of the LORDE, namely vnto them of Bethel, vnto them at Ramath in the south, vnto thē at Jathir, vnto them at Aroer, vnto thē at Siphamoth, vnto thē at Esthemoa, vnto them at Rachal, vnto them in the cyties of ẏ Jerahmielites, vnto them in the cyties of the Kenites, vnto them at Horma, vnto them at Borasā, vnto thē at Athach, vnto them at Hebron, and vnto all the places where Dauid had walked with his men.

And ẏ Philistynes preassed vpon Saul and his sonnes, and slewe Jonathas, & Abinadab and Malchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the battayl was sore against Saul, and the archers fell vpon hym & Saul, and the archers fell vpon hym of the bowes, and he was sore wounded of the archers.

Then sayd Saul vnto his weapenbearer: Drawe out thy swearde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircū-cysed come not and slaye me, and make a laughyng stocke of me. Neuerthelesse his weapēbearer wolde not, for he was B sore afrayed. Thē toke Saul ẏ swearde and fell theron. Now whan his wapenbearer sawe that Saull was deade, he fell also vpon his swearde, and dyed with hym. Thus dyed Saull, and his thre sonnes, and his wapenbearer, and all his men together the same daye.

Whā the mē of Israel which were beyonde the valley, and beyonde Jordane, sawe that the men of Israel were fled, and that Saul and his sonne were dead, they lefte the cities, and fled also.
Then came the Philistynes, and dwelt therin.

* On the nexte daye came the Phi- 1.par.11.

Saul and his thre sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gilboa, and smote of his heade, and toke of his harnesse, and sent it in to the londe of the Phylistines rounde C aboute, to shewe it in the house of their Idols, and amonge the people, & layed his harnesse in ẏ house of Astaroth: but his body hanged they vp vpon the wall of Bethsan.

Whan they of Jabes in Gylead herde, what the Philistynes had done se called the fyrst boke of Samuel.

The second boke of the kynges, otherwyse, called the seconde boke of Samuel.

The death of Saul is shewed vnto Dauid, wich mourneth for hym.

The fyrste Chapter.

After the death of Saul whan Dauid was come agayne fro the * slaughter of the Amalechites, & had remained two dayes at Siclag, beholde, on the thirde daye there came a man out of Sauls hoost, with his clothes rente, and earth vpon his heade. (1.Re.30.b)
And whan he came vnto Dauid, he fell downe to the grounde, and worshipped.
Dauid sayde vnto hym: Whence commest thou? He sayde vnto hym: Out of the hoost of Israell am I fled. Dauid sayde vnto hym: Tell me, what is the matter? He sayde: the people is fled from the battayl, and many of the people are fallen: Yee and Saull also is dead and his sonne Jonathas. Dauid sayd vnto the yonge man that brought hym this worde: How knowest thou that Saull and Jonathas his sonne are dead? The yonge man that tolde him this, sayde: I came by chaunce vnto mount Gelboa, & beholde, Saul leaned vpon his speare and the charettes, and horsmen folowed harde after him: & he turned him about, and sawe me, & called me. And I sayde: Here am I: And he sayde to me: What art thou? I sayde vnto hym: I am an Amalechyte. And he sayd vnto me: Come to me, and kyll me, for anguysh hath gotten holde of me: for my lyfe is yet whole within me. Then stepte I to him and slewe hym, for I knowe well that he coulde not lyue after his fall. And I toke the crowne from his head, and the armelet from his arme, & haue brought it here vnto the my lorde. Then toke Dauid holde of his clothes, * and rente them, and so dyd all the men that were with hym, and mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntyll the euen, ouer Saul & Jonathas his sonne, and ouer the people of the LORDE, and ouer the house of Israell, because they were fallen thorowe the swearde. (2.Rey.3.f and.13.f)

And Dauid sayde to the yonge man that brought hym worde: What arte thou? He sayd: I am the sonne of a straunger an Amalechite. Dauid sayde: How happened it that thou wast not afrayed to laye thyne hande vpon the LORDES anoynted to destroye hym? And Dauid sayd vnto one of his yonge men: Come hither, & slay him. And he smote hym that he dyed. Then sayde Dauid vnto hym: Thy bloude be vpon thyne owne heade. * For thy mouth hath spoken agaynst thy selfe and sayde: I haue slayne the anoynted of the LORDE. (Mat.12.d Luce.19.b) And Dauid mourned this lamentacyon ouer Saul, and Jonathas his sonne, & commaunded to teache the children of Juda ☞ the bowe. Beholde, it is written in the boke of the righteous.

The Eldest in Israel are slayne vpon the height of the. How are the Worthies fallen? (☞ The bow. The song or lamentacyon was called the bowe.)

* Tell it not at Gath: speake not of it in the stretes at Ascalon: lest the doughters of the Phylistines reioyse, lest the doughters of the vncircumcysed triumphe. (*Mic.1.b)

Ye mountaynes of Gelboa, nether dew nor rayne come vpon you, nether londe be whereof commeth Heueofferynges: for there is the shylde of the Worthies smytten downe: the shylde of Saul as though he had not bene anoynted with oyle.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ Dauid is anoynted kynge of the mē of Juda. Abner goeth aboute to make Isboseth Sauls sonne kynge of Israel.

A After these actes Dauid * 1.Re.23.a asked at the LORDE, and 2.Reg.5.c sayde: Shall I go vp in to one of the cyties of Juda?
And the LORDE sayde vnto hym: Go vp. Dauid sayde: Whyther?
He sayde: Unto Hebron. So Dauid wente thither with his two wyues, Ahi noam the Iesraelitisse, and Abigail Na bals wyfe of Carmel. And Dauid brou ght vp the men that were wyth hym al so, euery one wyth his housholde, and they dwelt in the cyties of Hebron. And the men of Juda came, and there they a noynted Dauid kynge ouer the house of Juda.
And whā it was tolde Dauid,* y 1.Re.31.c they of Jabes in Gilead had buried Sa LORDE therfore shewe mercy now and faithfulnes vpon you. And because ye haue done this, I also wyl do you good Let youre hande now therfore be cōfor ted, and be ye stronge: for though Saull youre lorde be dead, yet hath the house of Juda anoynted me to be kynge ouer them.

B But Abner the sōne of Ner, which was Sauls chefe captayne, toke Isbo seth the sonne of Saul, & brought hym thorow the hoost, and made hym kynge ouer Gilead, Assuri, Jesrael, Ephraim, Ben Jamin and ouer all Israel. And Is boseth the sonne of Saul was fourtye yeare olde, whan he was made kynge of Israell, and he raygned two yeares.
But the house of Juda helde with Da

And Abner the sonne of Ner wēte forth wyth seruauntes of Isboseth the sonne of Saull, out of y hoost vnto Gi beon. And Joab the sonne of Seru Ja wente forth with Dauids seruauntes, and they met together by the pole at Gi beon, and these laye on the one syde of the pole: the other, on the other syde.
And Abner sayd vnto Joab: Let y yōge men get them vp, and playe before vs.
Joab sayd: Let them aryse. Then gat they them vp, & wente in nōbre twolue of Ben Jamin on Isboseth Sauls son nes syde, and twolue of Dauids seruaū tes. And euery one gat another by the heade, & thrust his swearde in his syde, and fell together: therfore is the place called Helkath hazurim (that is, y felde of the Worthies) which is at Gibeon.
And there arose a sore harde bat C tayll the same daye. But Abner and the men of Israell were put to flyght of Dauids seruauntes. Thre sōnes of Seru Ja were there, Joab, Abisai, & Asahel, as for Asahel he was lyght of fete as a roo in y felde, & folowed after Abner, & turned not asyde nether to y ryght hād nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Ab ner turned hym aboute, and sayde: Art thou Asahel? He sayde: Yee. Abner said vnto hym: Go thy way ether to y ryght hande or to the lefte, and get the one of the yonge men, & take his harnesse frō hym. Neuertheles Asahel wolde not leaue of from hym. Then sayde Abner agayne to Asahel: Get the away frō me, why wilt thou that I smyte the to the grounde? and how darre I lyfte vp my face before thy brother Joab? Howbeit he wolde not go his waye.
Thē Abner thrust him in wt a speare in to his bely, so that the speare wente out behynde hym. And there he fell and dyed before him: and who so came to y place where Asahel laye dead, stode styl there. But Joab & Abisai folowed vp pon Abner, tyll the sonne wente downe.
And whan they came to the hyll of Am ma, which lyeth before Giah, by y waye to the wyldernesse of Gibeon, the chyl dren of Ben Jamin gathered them sel ues together behynde Abner, and were to a multitude, and stode vpon y toppe of an hyll.
And Abner called vnto Joab, and D sayde, Shall the swearde then deuoure without ende? Knowest thou not, that it wyll be bytter at the last? How longe wyl it be or thou sete vnto the people, y they leaue of from their brethren? Joab said: As truly as God lyueth, if thou haddest sayde thus to daye in the mor nynge, the people had ceassed euery one from his brother. And Joab blewe the trompet, and all the people stode styll, & folowed nomore vpon Israel, nether fought they eny more.

Abner and his men went all ẏ same nyght ouer the playne felde, and passed ouer Jordan, and walked thorow al Bi thron, and came to the tentes. Joab tur ned him from Abner, and gathered all ẏ people together. And of Dauids seruaũ tes there mysseds nynetene men, and Asa hel. But Dauids seruauntes had smyt ten so amonge BenJamin and the men of Abner, that thre hundreth & thre score mẽ were dead. And they toke vp Asahel, and buried hym in his fathers graue at Bethleem. And Joab with his mẽ went L all that nyght: and at the breake of the daye they came vnto Hebron.

The .iii. Chapter.

Discorde betwixte the house of Da uid and Saul. Abner lyeth with Sauls concubyne, is reproued therfore, and fal leth vnto Dauid. Joab stycketh Abner.

A And there was a great bat tayll betwene the house of Saul and the house of Da uid. But Dauid wente and increased, and the house of Saul wente & mynished. And vnto Da uid were chyldren borne at Hebron.
1.Par.3.a * His fyrst borne sonne Ammon of Ahi Gessur: the fourth Adonia the sonne of Hagith: the fyfth Saphatia the sõne of Abitall: the sixte Jethream of Egla Da uid at Hebron.

Now whan it was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of Da uid, Abner strengthed Sauls house.
And Saul had had a concubyne, whose name was Rispa the doughter of Aia.
And Isboseth sayd vnto Abner: Wher fore lyest thou with my fathers concu byne?
B Then was Abner very wroth at these wordes of Isboseth, and sayd: Am I a dogges heade then, that I agaynst Juda do mercy vnto the house of Saull C thy father, and vnto his brethren and kynsfolkes? and haue not delyuered the in to the hande of Dauid, and thou lay est a trespace to my charge this day for a womans sake? God do Abner this & that, yf I do not * as the LORDE hath 1.Re.15.f sworne vnto Dauid, that the kyngdom and.16.a maye be taken from the house of Saul and the seate of Dauid set vp ouer Is raell and Juda, from Dan vnto Berse ba. Tho coulde he not answere him one worde agayne, he feared hym so.
And Abner sente messaungers vnto Dauid, sayenge: Whose is the londe?
And sayde: Make thy couenaunt with me. Beholde, my hande shalbe with the to turne all Israell vnto the.
He sayd: Well, I wyll make a coue C of the, that thou se not my face, excepte thou brynge my fyrste Michol Sauls doughter, whan thou commest to se my fa ce. Dauid sent messaungers also vnto Isboseth the sonne of Saull, sayenge:

* Geue me my wyfe Michol, whome 1.Re.18.d husbande went with her, and wepte be hynde her vnto Bahurym. Then sayde Abner vnto hym: Turne backe agayne and go thy waye. And he turned backe agayne.

And Abner talked with the Elders in Israell, & sayde: Your myndes haue ben set afore tyme and longe a goo vp pon Dauid, that he myghte be kynge ouer you, do it now therfore, for the LORDE hath sayd of Dauid: I wyll 2.[illegible] delyuer my people of Israel by the hãd of Dauid my seruaunt, from the hande of the Philistynes, and from the hande of their enemyes.
Abner spake also before the eares of D BenJamin, and wente to speake before the eares of Dauid at Hebron all that Israell and the whole house of BenJa min was contente withall. Now whã Abner came to Hebron vnto Dauid, & twentye men with hym, Dauid made them a feaste. And Abner sayde vnto Dauid: I wyll get me vp, and go ga ther all Israel together to my lorde the kynge, and that they maye make a coue naunt with the, that thou mayeste be kynge, at thy soules desyre.
So Dauid let Abner go from him in peace. And Beholde, Dauids seruaun tes & Joab came fro the mẽ of warre and brought a great spoyle with them.

And Abner was not now wt Dauid at Hebron: for he had sēt hym frō hym, so ẏ he was gone his waye in peace.
E But whan Ioab and all the hoost with hym was come, it was tolde hym that Abner ẏ sonne of Ner came to the kynge, and how he had sent hym from hym, so that he was gone his waye in peace. Then went Ioab in to the kynge, & sayd: What hast thou done? Beholde, Abner came to the, why hast thou sent hym from the, that he is gone his waye?
Knowest thou not Abner the sonne of Ner? For he came to the to deceaue the, that he myght knowe thy outgoynge, & D ingoynge, & to spye out all that ẏ doest.
And whā Ioab went out from Dauid, he sent messangers after Abner, to fetch hym agayne from Bohor Sira, and Da-uid knewe not therof. Now whan Abner came agayne vnto Hebron, Ioab brought hym in to ẏ myddes vnder the gate, to talke wt hym secretly, & * thrust Iudi.3.c hym there in to the bely that he dyed, because of his brother Asahels bloude.
F Whā Dauid knewe of it therafter, he sayd: I am vngylty, & so is my kyngdome for euer before the LORDE concernynge the bloude of Abner the sonne of Ner: but vpon the head of Ioab fall it, and vpon al his fathers house, and in the, in the house of Ioab ther ceasse not one to haue a rennynge issue and a leprosy, and to go vpon a staffe, and fall tho-row the sweard, and to haue scarsenesse of bread. Thus Ioab and his brother Abisai slewe Abner, * because he hadde 2.Re.2.d slayne theyr brother Asahel in ẏ battayl at Gibeon.
Dauid sayd vnto Ioab and to all ẏ people that was with hym: Rent youre clothes, and gyrde sackcloth about you, and make lamentacyon for Abner. And the kynge went after the bear. And whā they buried Abner at Hebron, the kynge lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte besyde Ab-ners graue, and al the people wept also.
And the kynge mourned for Abner, G and sayd: Abner is not dead as a foole dyeth. Thy handes were not boūde, thy fete were not vexed wt fetters, thou arte fallen as a mā falleth before wycked vnthriftes. Then all the people bewayled hym yet more.
Now whā all the people came in to eate with Dauid whyle it was yet hye daye, Dauid sware, and sayde: God do this and that vnto me, yf I taist eyther bread or ought els afore the Sonne go downe. And all the people knewe it, and it pleased them well all that the kynge dyd in the syght of all the people. And al the people and all Israell perceaued the same daye, that it came not of ẏ kynge, that Abner the sōne of Ner was slayne.
And the kynge sayd vnto his seruauntes: Knowe ye not that this daye a prynce & a great man is fallen in Israel? As for me, I am yet but tender and anoynted kynge. But the men the chyldren of Zeru Ia are to harde for me. The LORDE recompence hym that doth euell, accordynge to his wyckednesse.

The.iiii. Chapter.

Isboseth is slayne of traytours whō the Dauid putteth to death.

When Sauls sonne herde that A Abner was dead at Hebron, his hādes were feble, and all Israel was sory. But there were two men captaynes ouer the souldyers vnder ẏ sōne of Saul, the one was called Baena, the other Rehob, sonnes of Rimon the Berothite, of the chyldren of Ben Iamin: for Beroth was counted also in Ben Iamin. And ẏ Berothites were fled vnto Gethaim, & were straungers there vnto this daye.
Ionathas also the sonne of Saul had a sonne which was lame on his fete, and was fyue yeare olde whan the rumoure of Saul and Ionathas came from Israel. And his norse toke hym, and fled.
And whyle she made haist & fled, he fel & was lame: And his name was Mephiboseth.
Then wente the sonnes of Rimon ẏ B the Berothite, Rehob and Baheno, and came to the house of Isboseth, in ẏ heat of the daye, and he laye vpon his bed at the noone daye. And they came in to the house to fetch wheate, and thrust hym in the bely, and gat them awaye. For whan they came in to the house, he laye vpon his bed in his chamber, and they styked hym to death, and smote of his heade, & toke his heade, and departed by ẏ waye of the playne felde all that nyght, and brought the heade of Isboseth to Da-uid vnto Hebrō, and sayd vnto ẏ kynge: Beholde, there is the heade of Isboseth the sonne of Saul thyne enemye, which layed wayte for thy soule. This day hath the LORDE auenged my lorde the kynge of Saul and his sede.
Thē answered Dauid vnto Rehob & C and Baena his brother, the sonnes of Rimon the Berothite, and sayde: As the Philistines? and wilt thou delyuer them in to my hande? The LORDE sayde vnto Dauid: Go vp, I wyll dely uer the Philistynes in to thy hande. D And Dauid came vnto Baal Pra= zym, and smote thē there, and sayd: The LORDE hath deuyded myne enemies, euen as the waters parte a sunder: ther= fore is the same place called Baal Pra zim. And they lefte their ymages there, but Dauid and his men caried them a=

Arke of the LORDE come vnto me?
And he wolde not let it be brought to hym in to the cite of Dauid, but caused it be brought in to the house of Obed Edom the Gathite. And whan the Arke of the LORDE had continued thre and fetched vp the Arke of God out of the house of Obed Edom in to the cite of Dauid with ioye. And whan they were gone sixe steppes in with the Arke of the LORDE, they offered an oxe & a fatte shepe. And Dauid daunsed with all his might before the LORDE, and was gyrded with an ouerbody cote of lynnen. And Dauid with all Israel brought vp the Arke of the LORDE with trumpettes, and trumpettes.

And whan the Arke of the LOR- D chol the doughter of Saul loked out at a wyndow, and sawe kynge Dauid leapynge, sprynginge, and daunsynge, before the LORDE, and despysed hym in hir hart. But whan they brought in the Arke of the LORDE, they set it in hir place in the myddes of the Tabernacle, which Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offred burntoff-rynges and thankofferynges before the LORDE. And whā Dauid had made an ende of offerynge ẏ burntofferynges and thankofferynges, he blessed the people in the name of the LORDE zebaoth, and dealte out vnto all the people, and to the multitude of Israel, both to man and womā, vnto euery one a cake of bread, and a pece of fleshe, & a meace of potage. Then wente all the people their waye, euery one vnto his house.

Whā Dauid came agayne to blesse E his house, Michol ẏ doughter of Saul wente forth to mete him, & sayde: How glorious hath the kynge of Israel bene to day, which hath vncouered himselfe before the maydens of his seruauntes, lyke as the rascal people discouer them selues. But Dauid sayd vnto Michol: I wyll playe before the LORDE, which hath chosen me afore thy father, and afore all his house, because he hath com-maūded me to be a prynce ouer the people of the LORDE, euen ouer Israel, and yet wyll I be vyler thē so, and wyl be lowe in myne owne sight: and with the maydens wherof thou hast spoken, wyll I be honoured. As for Michol the doughter of Saul, she had no childe vn to the daye of hir death.

The .vii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid is forbydden to buylde an

of the LORDE vnto Nathan, & sayd: Go and speake to my seruaunt Dauid: Thus sayeth ÿ LORDE: Shalt thou buylde me an house to dwell in? I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I brought the chyldren of Israel out of E-B So shalt thou speake now vnto my seruaunt Dauid: Thus sayeth ÿ LOR DE zebaoth: *I toke the fro ÿ pasture (...a.16.c.) whan thou wentest behynde the shepe, that thou shuldest be the prynce ouer my people of Israel, and haue ben with the whether so euer thou wentest, and roted out all thyne enemyes before the, & haue made the a great name, acordynge to ÿ name of the great men vpon earth. And for my people of Israel I wyll appoynt a place, and wyll plante them, that they maye remayne there, nomore to be remo ued, and that the chyldren of wyckednes oppresse them nomore, lyke as afore, and sence the tyme that I ordeyned Judges ouer me people of Israel. And I wyll geue the rest from all thyne enemyes.

And the LORDE sheweth the, that ÿ LORDE wyll make the a house.

C *Now whan the tyme is fulfylled (...es.a) that thou shalt slepe with thy fathers, I (...e.8.c) wyll after the rayse vp thy syde, which (...a.131.b) shall come of thy bodye: his kyngdome wyll I stablyshe, he shall buyld an house (...r.33.c) for my name, *and I wyl stablyshe the (...a.1.b.) seate of his kyngdome for euer. *I wyll be his father, and he shalbe my sonne.
(...a.11.c.) *Whan he doth a trespace, I wyll (...9.b.) reproue hym with the rodde of men and with the plages of the chyldren of men: But my mercy shall not be withdrawen from hym, as I haue withdrawe it fro Saul, whom I haue taken awaye before the. As for thy house and thy kyngdome, it shalbe stablyshed for euer befor the, and thy seate shall endure fast for euermore.

When Nathan had tolde all these wordes and al this vysion vnto Dauid: Kynge Dauid came and sat hym downe before the LORDE and sayd: O LOR-DE God, who am I? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus farre? This O LORDE God hast ÿ thought to lytle also, but hast spoken of the house of thy seruaunt yet longe for to come: O LORDE God, is ÿ the lawe of men?

D And what shall Dauid speake vnto the? thou knowest thy seruaunt O LOR DE God, for thy wordes sake & acordyng to thy hart hast thou done al these great thynges, ÿ thou myghtest shewe them vnto thy seruaunt. Therfore art ÿ greatly magnyfyed O LORDE God *for there is none lyke the, and there is Deu.32.f no God but thou, acordynge vnto all ÿ we haue herde with oure eares. *For Deu.4.e where is there a people vpon earth as thy people of Israel? For whose sake went God to delyuer hym a people, and to make hym selfe a name, and to do the suche great and terrible thynges in thy londe before thy people, *whome thou Exo.14.d hast delyuered vnto thy selfe fro Egipte from the people, and from theyr goddes And thy people of Israel hast thou prepared ÿ to be a people vnto thyne owne selfe for euer, and thou O LORDE arte become theyr God.

E Stablyshe now the worde therfore for euer (O LORDE God) which thou hast spoken ouer thy seruaunt and ouer his house, and do acordynge as ÿ hast sayd. So shal thy name be great for euer so that it shalbe sayd: The LORDE zebaoth is ÿ God of Israel, & the house of thy seruaunt Dauid shalbe made sure before the. For thou LORDE zebaoth thou God of Israel hast opened ÿ eare of thy seruaunt, and sayd: I wyll buylde the an house. Therfore hath thy seruaunt founde his hart, to praye this prayer vn to the. *Now LORDE God thou Deu.32.a thy selfe art God, and thy wordes shall be the trueth. Thou hast spoken suche good ouer thy seruaunt. Begynne now therfore, and blesse thy seruauntes house, that it maye be before the for euer, for ÿ LORDE God thine owne selfe hast spoken it: and with thy blessynge shall thy seruauntes house be blessed for euer.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ Dauid subdueth the Philistynes & other mo aboute hym.

AND it fortuned after this, ÿ *Da A uid smote ÿ Philistines, & discomfi ted them, & toke the brydell of bon 1.Pa.19.b dageout of the Philistynes hande, Nu.24.d * He smote the Moabites also to the grounde, so that he brought two partes of them to death, and let one parte lyue.

Thus the Moabites were subdued vn to Dauid, so that they brought hym gyf tes.
Dauid smote Hadad Eser also the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zoba, whan he wente to fetch his power agayne at the water Euphrates. And of the toke Dauid a thousande and seuen hundreth horsmen, and twenty thousande fote men, and lamed all the charettes, saue an hundreth which he kepte behynde.
But the Sirians came from Damasco to helpe Hadad Eser kyng of Zoba. And Dauid smote two and and twentye thou sande men of the Syrians, and layed people vnto Damascus in Syria.
Thus was Syria subdued vnto Da uid, so ye they brought hym gyftes: for the LORDE helped Dauid whither so euer he wente. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde, which Hadad Esers seruauntes had, and brought them to Je rusalem. But from Bethah and Bero thai the cytie of Hadad Eser toke Da uid very much brasse.
B * Whan Thoi the kynge of Hemath 1.Pa.19.b herde, that Dauid had smytten all ye po wer of Hadad Eser, he sent his sonne Joram vnto Dauid to salute him frend ly, & to blesse hym, because he had fough te with Hadad Eser and smytten him (for Thoi had warre wyth Hadad E ser) and had yewels with him of siluer, of golde, and of brasse: which kynge Da uid halowed also vnto the LORDE, with the syluer and golde which he san ctifyed vnto the LORDE from all the Heythen, whom he subdued, from Si ria, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Phylystynes, from Amalek, from the spoyle of Hadad Eser the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zoba.
C Dauid gat hymselfe a name also whã 1.Pa.19.c he came, * and smote eyghtene thou sande of ye Sirians in the Salt valley.
Gene.25.c And he layed people in all Edomea, * & Nu.24.d all Edom was subdued vnto Dauid: for the LORD helped Dauid, whither so euer he wente. Thus was Dauid kynge ouer all Israel. And he executed iudgemente and ryghteousnes vnto all 2.Re.20.d the people. * Joab the sonne of Seru ia was captayne ouer the hoost. Josa phat the sonne of Ahilud was Chaũce ler. Sadok the sonne of Achitob, & Ahi melech the sonne of Abiathar were pre stes. Seraia was Scrybe. Benaia the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Crethi ans and Plethians. And the sonnes of Dauid were ☞ prestes.

The.ix. Chapter.

David shewed fauoure to Sauls hi red, and doth them good for Jonathas sake.

And Dauid sayde: Remay A neth there yet ony man of Sauls house, that I maye do mercy vpon hym for Jo nathas sake? There was a seruaunt of Sauls house, named * Si ba, whom they called vnto Dauid, and the kynge sayde vnto hym: Art thou Si ba? he sayde: Yee thy seruaunt. The kynge sayd: Is there yet ony mã of Sa uls house, that I maye do the mercy of God vpon hym? Siba sayde vnto the kynge: * There is yet a sonne of Jona thas, lame on his fete. The kynge sayd vnto hym: Where is he? Siba sayd vn to the kynge: Beholde, he is at Lodober in the house of * Machir the sonne of Ammiel. Thẽ sent kyng Dauid thither, and caused for to fetch hym from Lode ber out of the house of Machir ye sonne of Ammiel.
Now whan Mephiboseth the sonne B of Jonathas the sonne of Saul came vnto Dauid, he fell vpon his face, and worshiped hym. Dauid sayde: Mephibo seth. He sayde: Here am I thy seruaunt.
Dauid sayde vnto him: Feare not, for I wyll do mercy vpon the for thy father Jonathas sake, and wyl restore vnto ye all the londe of thy father Saul: but ye shalt eate bread daylie at my table. He worshiped and sayde: Who am I thy seruaunt, that thou turnest ye to a dead dogge as I am?
Then the kynge called Siba ye ser uaunt of Saul, and sayde vnto hym: Al ye hath belongeth vnto Saul and to all his house, haue I geuẽ to thy lordes so C ne. Tyll his londe for hym therfore, y a thy chyldrẽ & seruauntes, & brynge it in, ye it may be bread for thy lordes sonne, and that he maye enioye it: But Mephi boseth thy lordes sonne shall eate bread daylie at my table. Siba had fyftene so nes & twentye seruauntes. And Siba sayd vnto the kynge: Acordynge vnto all as my lorde the kynge hath commaunded his seruaunt, so shall his seruaunt do.
And let Mephiboseth (sayd Dauid) eate at my table, as one of the kynges owne children. And Mephiboseth had a yonge sonne, whose name was Mi-cha. But all that dwelt in the house of Siba, serued Mephiboseth. As for Mephiboseth hym selfe, he dwelt at Je rusalē: for he dyd eate daylie at the kyn Re.4.a ges table * and was lame on both his fete.

The.x.Chapter.

¶ Dauid sendeth messaungers to the kyng of the Ammonites, which putteth thē to shame: wherfor he goeth agaynst them, and wynneth the victory of them two tymes.

A AND * it fortuned after this par.20.a that the kyng of the chyldrē of Ammon dyed, & his sōne Hanun was kynge in his steade. Then sayde Dauid:
I wyll do mercy vpon Hanun the sōne Re.22.a of Nahas * as his father dyd mercy vpō me. And so he sent, & cōforted hym by his seruaūtes ouer his fathers death Now whan Dauids seruauntes came in to the londe of the chyldrē of Ammō, the mightie men of the chyldren of Ammon sayde vnto Hanun theire lorde: Thynkest thou it is for the honoure of thy father in thy sighte, that Dauid hath sent comforters vnto the? Hath he not sent his seruaūtes vnto the (thin kest thou) to spye & searche out the cit and to ouerthrowe it?
B Then toke Hanun the seruauntes of Dauid, and shoue of the one halue of their beerdes, and cut of ye halfe of their garmentes euen by the gyrdell, and so let them go. Whan this was tolde Da uid he sent to mete thē: for the mē were put to greate shame. And the kynge cau sed to say vnto them: Abyde at Jericho tyll youre beerders be growne, and thē come agayne.
Whan the chyldrē of Ammon sawe that they stynked in the sight of Dauid they sent and hyred the Sirians of the house of Rehob, and the Sirians of zo ba euen twentye thousande fote men, and from the kynge of Maacha a thou sande mē, and from Jstob twolue thou sande men. Whā Dauid herde that, he sent Joab with all the hoost of the men of warre. And the chyldren of Ammon wente forth, and prepared them selues to the battayll before the intraunce of the gate. But the Sirians of Soba, of Rehob, of Jstob and of Maacha were alone in the felde.
C Now whan Joab sawe that the battayll was set vpon hym before and behynde, he chose of all the beste yonge men in Jsrael, and prepared them selfe agaynst the Siriās. And the residue of the people put he vnder the hāde of his brother Abisay that he mighte prepare hym agaynste the chyldren of Ammon.
And sayde: Yf the Sirians be to migh tie for me helpe thou me: but yf the chyl dren of Ammon be to mightie for the.
I shall helpe the. Take a good corage vnto the, and let vs be stronge for oure people, and for the cite of oure God: ne uerthelesse the LORDE do what plea seth hym.
And Joab gatt hym forth with the people that was with hym to fighte a-gaynst the Siriās: and they fled before hym. And whan the chyldren of Ammō sawe that the Sirians fled, they fled also before Abisai, and wente in to the cite. So Joab turned agayne from the children of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem. And whā the Sirians sawe that they were smytten before Jsraell, they came together.
And Hadad Eser sent and brought D out the Siriās beyonde the water, and conueyed their power in, and Sobath the chefe captayn of Hadad Eser wēte before them. Whan this was tolde Da uid, he gathered all Jsraell together, & wente ouer Jordane, & came to Helam, and the Sirians prepared them selues agaynst Dauid to fight with him, how beit the Siriās fled before Jsrael. And Dauid slewe of the Sirians seuen hun dreth charettes, and fortye thousande horsmē, and Sobath the chefe captayn smote he also, so yt he dyed there. Whā ye kinges which were vnder Hadad E-ser, sawe, that they were smytē before Jsraell, they made peace with Jsraell, and were subdued vnto them. And the Sirians were afrayed to helpe the chyl dren of Ammon ony more.

The.xi.Chapter.

¶ Dauid committeth aduoutry with Bethseba, and causeth hir husbande be slayne.

AND whan the yeare came A aboute what tyme as kynges vse to go forth * Da- 1.par.21.a uid sent Joab and his seruauntes with hym, and all Jsrael, to destroye the children of Ammon, and to laye sege vnto Rabba: but Dauid abode at Jeru salem.
And aboute the euētyde it fortuned that Dauid arose frō his restyng place and wēte vp to the toppe of the kynges palace, and frō the toppe he sawe a wo-Exo.20.b. man * washynge hir selfe, and the wo-Susan.c mā was of a very fayre bewty. And Da uid sent, and caused to axe what womā it was, and sayde: Is not that Bethsa-ba the doughter of Eliam, the wyfe of Urias the Hethite? And Dauid sente messaūgers, and caused for to fetch her.

And whan she was come in vnto hym, he laye with her. [illegible] she halo wed hir selfe from [illegible], and turned agayne vnto hir house. And the woman was with chylde, and sent, and caused to tell Dauid & saye: I am with chylde. Dauid sent vnto Joab (sayeng) Sende me Urias the Hethite. And Joab sent Urias vnto Dauid. And whan Urias came to him, Dauid axed him yf it stode well with Joab, and with the people and with the battayll.
B And Dauid sayde vnto Urias: Go downe in to thy house, & wash thy fete.
And whan Urias wente out of the kyn ges palace, the kynges gyfte folowed hym. And Urias layed hym downe to C slepe before ỹ kynges palace gate, wher all his lordes seruauntes lay, and wēte not downe in to his house. Whā worde cam to Dauid: Urias is not gone down in to his house. Dauid sayde vnto hym: Camest thou not ouer the felde? Why wētest thou not downe into thy house?
Urias sayde vnto Dauid: The Arke, and Israel, and Juda abyde in ỹ tētes: And Joab my lorde and my lordes seruauntes lye in the felde, and shall I go to my house to eate and drynke, and to lye with my wyfe? As truly as thou ly-uest, and as truly as thy soule lyueth: I wyl not do this thynge. Dauid sayd to Urias: Abyde here then to daye, tomorow wyl I let the go. So Urias abode at Jerusalē the same day, and the nexte also. And Dauid called him to eate and drynke before hym, and made hym dron ken. And at euen he wente to lye hym downe for to slepe vpon his couche w his lordes seruauntes, and wente not downe in to his house.
C On the morow wrote Dauid a letter vnto Joab, and sent it by Urias. Af ter this maner wrote he in ỹ letter: Set Urias in the forest parte of the battayl & turne you behynde hym, that he maye be slayne. Now whan Joab layed sege to the cite, he set Urias in the place, where he knewe that the mightiest men of armes were. And whā the men of the cyte fell out and fought agaynst Joab, there fell certayne of the people of Da uids seruaūtes. And Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then sent Joab, and caused to tell the kynge all the matter cōcernynge the battayl, and commaunded the messen ger, and sayde: Whan thou hast tolde the kynge all the matter concernynge the battayll, and seist that he is wroth, and yf the kynge saye vnto the: Wherfore came ye so nye the cite with ỹ bat tayll? Knowe ye not how they vse to shute frō the walle? * Who smote Abi- Jud.9. melech the sonne of Jerubaal? dyd not a woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpō hym from the wall, so that he dyed at Thebez? Why came ye so nye the walle?
Then shalt thou saye: Thy seruaunt Urias the Hethyte is dead also.

The messaunger wente his waye, & D came and tolde Dauid all together, wher fore Joab had sent hym. And ỹ messāger sayd vnto Dauid: The men preuay led agaynst vs, and fell out vnto vs in to the felde: and we were vpon the [illegible] at the dore of ỹ porte. And the archers shot from the wall vpon thy seruauntes, and slewe certayne of the kynges seruauntes: and thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dead also.

Dauid sayde vnto the messaunger: Thus shalt thou saye vnto Joab: Let not that vexe the, for the swearde consu meth now one, now another. Go forth with the battayll agaynst the cite, that thou mayest destroye it, and cōforte the men. And whā Urias wyfe herde that Urias was dead, she mourned for hir husbande. But whan she had made an ende of mournyng, Dauid sent, and cau sed hir be fetched vnto his palace, and she became his wyfe, and bare him a sonne. Neuertheles this dede that Da-uid dyd: displeased the LORDE.

The.xii. Chapter.

The prophet Nathan rebuketh Da uid, which knowlegeth his synne, and requyreth mercy. His sonne dyeth.

AND the LORDE sent Na than vnto Dauid. Whā he came to hym, he tolde hym: There were two men in one cite, the one ryche, the other poore. The ryche man had very many shepe & oxen: but the poore man had nothynge saue one lytle shepe, which he had bought, and norysshed it, so that it geve vp with hym and his chyldren to gether. It dyd eate of his bread, & dranke of his cuppe, and slepte in his lappe, and he helde it as a doughter. But whā ther came a straunger vnto the riche man, he spared to take of his owne shepe & oxen (to prepare ought for the straunger that was come vnto hym) and toke the poore mans shepe, and prepared it for the man that was come vnto hym.

B Thē was Dauid wroth with great displeasure agaynst that man, and sayd vnto Nathan: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, the man that hath done this, is ...22.a the chylde of death. * The shepe also shall he make good foure folde, because he hath done such a thynge, and not spa red it.

Then sayd Nathan vnto Dauid:
Thou art euen the man. Thus sayth ŷ ...16.c LORDE the God of Israel: * I haue anoynted the to be kynge ouer Israel, & delyuered the out of the hande of Saul, and haue geuen the thy lordes house, & his wyues into thy lappe, and the house of Israel and Iuda haue I geuen the: & yf that be to lytle, I wyll yet do this and that for the also. Wherfore hast thou thē despysed the worde of the LORDE, to do such euell in his syght? Vrias the He thite hast thou slayne with the swearde: his wyfe hast thou take to be thy wyfe but hym hast thou slayne with ŷ swearde of the chyldren of Ammon.

C Now therfore shall not the swearde departe from thy house for euer, because thou hast despysed me, and take ŷ wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe.
Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde,
...18.c * I wyll rayse vp euell of thyne owne
...16.b house, and wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and wyll geue them vnto thy neghboure, so that he shall lye with thy wyues by Sonne lyght. For thou hast done it secretlye, but I wyll do this in the syght of all Israel, and by Sonne lyght.

Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan
...47.c * I haue synned vnto the LORDE.
...30.a Nathan sayd vnto Dauid: So hath ŷ LORDE also taken awaye thy synne, thou shalt not dye. But for so much as thou thorow this dede hast caused the enemyes of the LORDE to blaspheme, the sonne that is borne vnto the shal dye the death. And Nathan wente home.
As for the chylde which Urias wyfe bare vnto Dauid, the LORDE smote it, so that it was dead sycke.

And Dauid besought God for the D chylde, and fasted, and wente in, and laye all nyght vpon the earth. Then rose the Elders of his house, and wolde haue ta ken hym vp from the grounde: neuerthe lesse he wolde not, nether dyd he eat with them. Upon the seuenth daye the chylde dyed. And Dauids seruauntes durst not tell hym that the chylde was dead.
For they thought: Beholde, whan the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym and he herkened not vnto oure voyce, how muche more [illegible] hym, yf we say: The chylde is dead? And Dauid sawe that his seruauntes made a whispe rynge together, and perceaued that the chylde was dead, and sayd vnto his ser uauntes: Is the chylde dead? They sayde: Yee. Then rose Dauid vp from ŷ earth, and wasshed hym selfe, & anoyn ted hym, and put on other garmentes, & wente in to the house of the LORDE,
and worshipped.

And whan he came agayne, he com E maunded to set bread before hym, and dyd eate. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto hym: What maner of thynge is this that thou doest? Whan the chylde was alyue, thou fastedest and weptest: but now that it is dead, thou stondest vp and eatest? He sayd: I fasted and wept for the chylde whan it was yet alyue, for I thought: Who knoweth, perad uenture the LORDE maye be gra cyous vnto me, that the chylde maye lyue. * But now that it is dead, wher Eccl.38.c fore shulde I fast? Can I fetche it a gayne? I shall go vnto it, but it shall not come agayne vnto me. And whan Dauid hadde comforted Bethseba his wyfe, he wente in vnto her, & laye with her. * And she bare a sonne, whome 1.Pa.3.a he called Salomon. And the LOR Mat.1.a DE loued hym. And he put hym vn der the hande of Nathan the prophete, which called him Iedidia because of the LORDE.

So Ioab fought against Rabba F of the chyldren of Ammon, and wanne the kynges cyte, and sent messaungers vnto Dauid, and caused to saye vnto hym: * I haue fought agaynst Rabba, 1.Pa.20.a and haue wonne the water cyte also.
Gather thou therfore the resydue of the people together, and laye sege to ŷ cyte, and wynne it, that I wynne it not, and haue the name therof. So Dauid gathe red all the people together, and wente fought agaynst Rabba, and wanne it, and toke theyr kynges crowne from his heade (which in weyght had a talente of golde, and precyous stones) and was set vpon Dauids heade, and very muche spoyle caryed he out of the cytie. As for the people that was therin, he brought them forth, and layed them vnder yron sawes and hokes and wedges of yron, and borned them in tyle ouens. Thus dyd he vnto all the cyties of the chyldrē of Ammon. Then returned Dauid and all the people vnto Ierusalem agayne.

The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ Ammon defyleth Thamar, therfore Absalon slayeth hym.

A And it fortuned after this, ẏ Absalon the sonne of Dauid had a fayre syster, whose name was Thamar, and Ammon the sonne of Dauid loued her. And Ammon was in great com braunce, in so muche that he was euen sycke, because of Thamar his syster.
For she was a virgin, and Ammō thought it shulde be harde for hym to do ony thynge vnto her. But Ammon hadde a frende, whose name was Ionadab the sonne of Simea Dauids brother. And the same Ionadab was a very wyse mā which sayd vnto hym: Why art thou so leane (thou kynges sonne) from daye to daye? Mayest thou not tell me? Then sayd Ammō vnto hym: I loue Thamar my brother Absalōs syster exceadyngly.
B Ionadab sayde vnto hym: laye the downe vpon thy bedde, and make thy sycke. And whan thy father commeth to loke how thou doest, saye vnto hym: Oh let my syster Thamar come, ẏ she may fede me, and make a meate of meat before me, that I maye se it, and eat of her hande. So Ammon layed hym downe, and made hym sicke. Now whā the kynge came in to loke how he dyd, Ammon sayd vnto the kynge: Oh let my syster Thamar come, & make me a syp-pynge or two, and that I maye eat it of her hande. Then sent Dauid for Tha-mar in to the house, and sayd vnto her: Go thy waye to thy brother Ammons house, and make hym a messe of meate.
Thamar wente vnto her brother Ammons house, but he laye in his bedde.
And she toke floure, & mixte it, & dyghte it before his eyes, and made hym a syp-pynge. And she toke the messe of meate & poured it out before hym: but he wold not eate.
C And Ammon sayd: Put forth euery man fro me. And euery man wente forth from hym. Then sayde Ammon vnto Thamar: Bryng me that messe of meat into the chamber, that I may eate it of thy hande. Then toke Thamar the syp-pyng ẏ she had made, & brought it vnto Ammom her brother in to the chamber.
And whan she brought it vnto hym that he myght eate, he toke holde of her, and sayd vnto her: Come my syster, lye with me. Neuerthelesse she sayde: Oh no my brother, force me not:
for so do they not in Israel, do not thou suche foly. Whether shall I go with my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the vnwyse in Israel. But speake vnto the kynge, he shal not witholde me from the.

her exceadyngly, so ẏ the hate was greater then the loue was before. And Ammon sayd vnto her: Up, & get the hence.
She sayd vnto hym: This euel that thou thrustest me out, is greater thē the other, that thou hast done vnto me. Ne-uertheles he herkened not vnto her, but called his boye that serued hym, & sayd: Put awaye this woman fro me, & locke the dore after her. And she had a party garmēt on: for such garmētes ware ẏ kynges doughters whyle they were vir-gins.
And whan his seruaunt had put her forth, and locke the dore after her, Tha-mar strowed asshes vpon her head, and rente the partye garment which she had vpon her and layed her hande vpon her heade, and wente on and cryed. And her brother Absalon sayd vnto her: Hath thy brother Ammō ben with the? Now holde thy peace my syster, it is thy brother, and take not the matter so to hart.
E So Thamar remayned a wydowe in her brother Absalons house. And whan kynge Dauid herde of all this, he was very sorye: As for Absalon: he spake nether euel nor good to Ammon but Absalon hated Ammon, because he had forced his syster Thamar.
After two yeares hadde Absalon shepe clyppers at Baal Hasor, which lyeth by Ephraim. And Absalon called all the kynges chyldren, and came to the kynge, and sayde: Beholde, thy seruaunt hath shepe clippers, let it please ẏ kynge with his seruauntes to go with his sermaunte. But the kynge said unto Absalon: No my sonne, let vs no all go, lest we be to chargeable vnto the.

And he wolde nedes haue had hym to go, howbeit he wolde not, but blessed hym. Absalon sayde: Shall my brother Ammon go with vs then? The kynge sayde vnto hym: Wherfore shall he go with the? Then was Absalon so importune vpon hym, that he let Ammon and all the kynges chyldren go with hym.

F But Absalon commaunded his yonge men, and sayde: Take hede whã Ammon is mery with wyne (and I saye vnto you: Smyte Ammon, and slaye hym) that ye be not afrayed: for I haue commaunded you, be stronge, and plage the men. So Absalons yonge men dyd vnto Ammon, as Absalon had commaũded them. Thẽ stode all the kynges chyldren vp, and euery one gat hym vp vpõ his mule, and fled. And whyle they were yet on their waye, the rumoure came to kynge Dauid, that Absalon had slayne all the kynges chyldren, so that not one of them was lefte.

Then stode the kynge vp, and rente his clothes, and layed hym downe vpõ the earth, and all his seruauntes that stode aboute hym, rente their clothes. Then answered Ionadab the sonne of Simea Dauids brother, and sayde: Let not my lorde thynke that all the yonge men the kynges chyldren are dead, but that Ammon is dead onely: for Absalon hath kepte it in hymselfe sence the daye that he forced his syster Thamar. Therfore let not my lorde the kinge take it so to hart, that all the kynges chyldren shulde be dead, but that Ammon is dead onely.

G As for Absalon, he fled. As the yõge man that kepte the watch, lyfte vp his eyes, and loked, and beholde, a greate people came in the waye one after another by the hyll syde. Then sayde Ionadab vnto the kynge: Beholde, the kynges chyldren come. Euen as thy seruaũt sayde, so is it happened. And whan he had ended his talkynge, the kynges chyldren came, and lyfte vp their voyces, and wepte.

The kynge and all his seruauntes wept also very sore. But Absalon fled, and wente vnto Thalmai the sonne of Ammihud kynge of Gesur. As for Dauid, he mourned for his sõne euery day. Whan Absalon was fled and gone vnto Gesur, he was there thre yeare. And kynge Dauid ceassed from goynge out agaynst Absalon, for he had comforted hym selfe ouer Ammon that he was dead.

The.xiiii.Chapter.

Ioab reconcyleth Absalon vnto his father with subtyltye. Absalon sendeth for Ioab, and because he commeth not to hym, he burneth vp his corne.

A Ioab the sonne of Seru Ja perceaued that the kynges hart was agaynst Absalon, and sent vnto Thecoa, and caused to fetch frõ thence a prudent woman and said vnto her: Make lamentacion, and weare mournynge garmentes, and anoynte the not with oyle: but fayne thy selfe as a woman whych hath mourned longe ouer a dead, and thou shalt go in to the kynge, and speake so and so vnto hym. And Ioab tolde her what she shulde saye.

And whã the womã of Thecoa wolde speake with the kynge, she fell vpon hyr face to the grounde, and worshipped, and sayde: Helpe me O kynge. The kynge sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde: I am a wedowe, a woman that mourneth, and my husbande is dead. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, which stroue together in the felde, and whyle there was noman to parte them asunder, the one smote the other, and slewe hym.

B The kynge sayde vnto the woman, go thy waye home, I wyll geue a commaundement for the. And the woman of Thecoa sayde vnto the kynge: The trespace be vpon me (my lord the kinge) and vpon my fathers house: but the kynge and his seate be vngyltye. The kynge sayde: He that speaketh agaynst the brynge hym vnto me, so shall he touch the nomore. The kynge answered and sayde vn

I shuld turne this matter of this fasshi on, this hath Joab thy seruaunt done.
But my lorde is wyse, as the wysdome of an angel of God, so that he knoweth all thynges vpon earth.

Then sayde the kynge vnto Joab: Beholde, I haue done this: go thy way therfore and brynge the chylde Absalom agayne.

Then fell Joab vpon his face vn= to the grounde, and worshipped, and thanked the kynge, and sayde: This daye doth thy seruaunt perceaue, that I haue founde grace in thy syght my gat hym vp and wente vnto Gesur, and brought Absalon to Jerusalem. But the kynge sayde: Let hym go agayne in to his house, and not se my face. Then Absalon came agayne to his house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so fayre, and so maruelous goodly a man, as Absalon. From the sole of his fote vnto the toppe of his heade there was not one blemysh in hym. And whan his heade was rounded (that was comonly euery yeare, for it was to heuy for hym, so that it must nedes haue bene rounded) the heer of his heade weyed two hun dreth Sycles after the kynges weyght.
And vnto Absalõ there were borne thre sonnes and one doughter, whose name was Thamar, & she was a woman of a fayre bewtye: So Absalon abode two yeare at Jerusalem, and sawe not the kynges face.

And Absalon sent for Joab, that C he myght sende hym to the kynge.
And he wolde not come to hym. But he sent the secõde tyme, yet wolde he not come. Then sayde he vnto his seruaun tes: Ye knowe Joabs pece of londe that lyeth by myne, & he hath barlye therin go youre waye therfore and set fyre vp pon it. So Absalons seruauntes set fyre vpon Joabs pece of londe.

Then Joab gat hym vp, and came to Absalon in to the house, and sayde vn to hym: Wherfore haue thy seruauntes set fyre vpon my pece of londe? Absalõ sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, I sent for ẏ and caused to saye vnto the: Come hy ther, that I maye sende the to the kynge, and to saye: Wherfore came I from Ge sur? It were better for me that I were there yet. Let me therfore se the kynges face. But yf there be eny trespace in me then put me to death. And Joab went in to the kynge, and tolde hym. And he called Absalon to come in to the kynge, and he worshipped vpon his face to the grounde before the kynge. And the kyn ge kyssed Absalon.

The .xv. Chapter.

A And after this it fortunned ÿ Absalon caused to prepare hymselfe charettes, and hor then sayd Absolon vnto hym: Beholde, thy matter is ryght and playne: but ther

And Absalon sayd: O who setteth me to be iudge in the londe, that euery myght helpe hym to ryght. And whan eny man came to hym to do worshippe

After this maner dyd Absalon vnto all people came together, and multiplyed with Absalon.

Then came one which tolde Dauid

Dauid sayde vnto Ithai: Then E

F But Dauid wente vp to mount Oliuete and wepte, and his heade was couered. And all the people that was wt hym, had euery man his heade couered and wente on and wepte. And whan it was tolde Dauid, that Achitophel was in the cōfederacy with Absalon, he sayd LORDE turne thou Achitophels coūcell to folishnes.

The.xvi. Chapter.

Chusai sayde vnto Absalon: Not so, but loke whom the LORDE choseth, and this people, & all the men in Israel, his wyll I be, and byde w hym. Secondly, whom shuld I serue? Shulde I not do seruice before his sonne? Lyke as I haue serued in the presence of thy father, so wyll I do seruice before the also.

And Absalo sayde vnto Achitophel: Geue vs youre councell what we shall do: Achitophel sayd vnto Absalo: * Go lye with thy fathers cocubynes, whom he hath left to kepe the house, so shal all Israell heare that thou haste made thy father to stynke, and the handes of all the that are with the, shalbe y bolder. The.xvii. Chapter.

The LORDE turneth the councell of Achitophell. The councell of Chusai goeth forth.

A And Achitophell sayde vnto Absalon: I wyll chose out twolue thousande men and wyll get me vp, and persue Dauid by nighte, and fall vpon hym whan he is feble and weery: When I vexe hym then, so that all the people which is by hym, flyeth, I wyll smyte the kynge onely, and brynge all the people vnto the agayne. So whan euery man is brought vnto the as thou desyrest, the shall all y peole be in peace. Absalon thought that good, and so dyd all the Elders in Israell. But Absalon sayde: I praye you call Chusai the Arachite also, and let vs heare what he sayeth therto. And whan Chusai cam in to Absalom, Absalon sayde vnto hym: Thus hath Achitophell spoken, Saye thou now, shall we do it or not.

Then sayde Chusai vnto Absalon: It is no good councell that Achitophel hath geuen at this tyme, And Chusai sayde morouer: Thou knowest thy father well and his men, that they are stronge and of a wrothful stomach, eue * as a bere that is robbed of hir yonge ones in the felde. Then sayde Absalon and euery ma in Israel. The cousel of Chusai y Arachite is better the Achitophels councel.

Absalon is slayne. Dauid his father is sorowfull.

2.Re.11.c dreds, * And sent out of the people one thirde parte vnder Ioab, & one thirde parte vnder Abisai the sonne of Zeru Ja Ioabs brother, & one thirde parte vnder * Ithai the Gethite. And ÿ kynge sayde vnto the people: I wyll go 3.Re.11 forth with you also. Neuertheles ÿ peo ple sayde: Thou shalt not go forth w vs, for though we flye, or dye half of vs they shall not regarde vs. For thou art as ten thousand of vs. Therfore is this better that thou mayest helpe vs out of the cyte. The kynge sayde vnto them: Loke what ye are content withall, that wyll I do. And the kynge stode in the gate, and all the people wente forth by hundreds and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Ioab and Abisai, and Ithai, and sayde: Intreate me the yonge man Absalon gently. And all the people herde it, whan the kynge commaunded all the captaynes concernyng B Absalon. And whan the people were come forth in to the felde agaynst Israell, the battayll beganne in the wood of Ephraym. And the people of Israell were smytten there before Dauids seruauntes, so that there was a greate slaughter the same daye, of twentye thousāde men. And the battayll was scatred abrode there in all the londe. And ÿ wood consumed much more people the same daye, then the swearde consumed.
And Absalon met Dauids seruaun tes, and rode vpon a mule. And whan the mule came vnder a greate thicke oketre, his heade toke holde on the oke, and so hanged he betwene heauen and earth, but the mule ranne awaye frō vn der hym. Whan a certayne man sawe that, he tolde Ioab, and sayde: Beholde, I sawe Absalon hange vpon an oke tre And Ioab sayd vnto the mā that tolde it hym: Beholde, sawest thou that, why smotest thou hym not there to ÿ groūde so wolde I haue geuē the of myne own behalfe ten syluerlynges and a gyrdel.
The man sayd vnto Ioab: Yf thou C haddest weyed me a thousande syluerlynges in my handes, yet wolde I not haue layed my handes on the kynges sonne. For the kynge commaunded the and Abisai and Ithai befor oure eares, and sayd: kepe me the yonge man Absa lon. Or yf I had dyssembled vpon the loperdy of myne own soule (for so much as nothing shulde be hyd from ÿ kinge) thou thy selfe shuldest haue stonde a-gaynst me. Ioab sayde: Not so, I wyl vpon hym before thy face.

Then toke Joab thre speares in his hande, and thrust Absalon thorow the hart, whyle he was yet alyue vpon the oke. And ten yonge men Joabs weapēbearers came aboute hym, and smote hym to death. Then blewe Joab the trompe, and brought the people agayn, that they shulde folowe nomore vpon Israell. For Joab wolde fauoure ẏ people. And they toke Absalō, and cast him in the wood in to a grate pyt, and layed a great heape of stones vpon hym. And all Israell fled, euery one vnto his tēte.

D Absalō had set him vp a pyler while he was yet alyue, which stode in ẏ kynges valley, for he sayd: I haue no sōne, therfore shall this be a remembraunce of my name: and he called the piler after his owne name. And vnto this daye it is yet called Absalons place.

Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc sayd: Let me runne now, and brynge ẏ kynge worde, that the LORDE hath gotten him right from the hande of his enemyes. But Joab sayde vnto hym: Thou shalt brynge no good tydynges to daye, another daye shalt ẏ brynge him worde, and not to daye, for the kynges sonne is dead But vnto Chusi sayde Joab: Go thou thy waye, and tell the kynge what thou hast sene. And Chusi dyd his obeysaunce vnto Joab, and ranne. Ahimaas the sonne of Sadoc sayde agayne vnto Joab: What and I ranne also? Joab sayde: What wilt thou runne my sōne? Come hither, thou shalt brynge no good tydynges. (He answered:) What and I ranne yet. He sayde vnto hym: Runne on thy waye then. So Ahimaas ranne the straight waye, and came before Chusy.

E As for Dauid, he sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman went vp to the toppe of the porte vpon the wall, and lyfte vp his eyes, and sawe a man runnyng alone, and cryed, and tolde the kynge. The kynge sayde: Yf he be alone then is there good tydynges in his mouth, And as the same went and came forth, the watchman sawe another mā runnynge, and cryed in the porte and sayde: Beholde, there runneth a man alone. The kynge sayde: The same is a good messaunger also. The watchman sayde: I se the runnyng of the first as it were the runnynge of Ahimaas ẏ sōne of Sadoc. And ẏ kyng sayd: He is a good mā, & bringeth good tidinges Ahimaas cryed, and said vnto ẏ kynge: Peace, and worshipped before ẏ kynge vpon his face to the grounde, and sayde: Praysed be the LORDE thy God, which hath geuen ouer the men ẏ lyfte vp theyr handes agaynst my lorde the kynge.

The kynge sayde: Goeth it well wt the yonge man Absalon? Ahimaas sayd: I sawe a great vproure, whan Joab ẏ kynges seruaunt sent me thy seruaunt, & I wote not what it was. The kynge sayd: Go about, and stonde here. And he wente aboute and stode there, Beholde, then came Chusi & sayd: I brynge good tydynges my lorde ẏ kynge: The LORDE hath executed ryght for ẏ this daye from the hande of all them that rose vp agaynst the. But the kynge sayd vnto Chusi: Goeth it wel with the yonge mā Absalon? Chusi sayd: Euen so go it wt all the enemyes of my lorde the kynge, and with all them that ryse vp agaynst the to do euell, as it goeth with ẏ yonge man. Then was the kynge sorowfull, and wente vp in to the parler vpon the gate, and wepte, and as he went he sayd thus: O my sonne Absalon, my sonne, my sonne Absalon, wolde God that I shulde dye for the, O Absalon my sōne, my sonne.

The.xix.Chapter.

Joab rebuketh the kynge for his mournynge, Israel flyeth in to theyr tentes. Juda cleueth vnto Dauid. Semei and Mephiboseth optayne fauoure. Barsillai sheweth ẏ kynge great frendshippe.

A And it was tolde Joab: Beholde the kynge wepeth and mourneth for Absalon. And so out of the victory of that daye there came a mournyng amonge all the people. For the people had herde the same daye, that the kynge toke on heuely because of his sōne. And the people stale awaye the same daye, so that they came not into ẏ cyte, as a people that is put to shame, pycheth themselues awaye, whan they are fled in a battayll. As for the kynge, he had couered his face, and cryed loude, and sayde: Oh my sonne Absalon, Absalō my sōne my sonne.

But Joab came to the kynge in to the house, and sayde: This daye hast thou shamed all thy seruauntes (which haue delyuered thy soule this daye, and ẏ soules of thy sōnes, of thy doughters of thy wyues, and of thy concubynes) in that thou louest them that hate the, and hatest those that loue the. For to daye thou shewest thy selfe, that thou ca rest not for the captaynes and seruauntes: For I perceaue this daye, that yf Absalon onely were alyue, and we all dead this daye, thou woldest thynke it wery well.

B Get the vp now therfore, and go forth, and speake louyngly vnto thy ser uauntes. For I sweare vnto the by the LORDE, yf thou go not forth, there shal not be lefte the one man this night: this shalbe worse vnto the, then all the euell that happened the sence thy youth vp hither to. Then the kynge gat hym vp, and sat in the gate. And it was sayd vnto all the people: beholde, the kynge sytteth in the gate. Then came al ye people before the kynge. But Israel was fled euery one vnto his tent.
And all the people stroue in all ye try bes, of Israell, and sayd: The kynge de lyuered vs from the hande of oure ene-myes. and saued vs from the hande of the Phylistines, and was fayne to flye out of the londe for Absalom. So Absa-lon whom we had anoynted ouer vs, is dead in the battayl. Why are ye so styll now that ye fetch not the kyng agayne?
C The kynge sent vnto Sadoc & Abia thar the prestes, and caused to say vnto the: Speake to the Elders of Juda, and saye: Why wyll ye be the last to fetch ye kynge agayne vnto his house? (for the sayenge of all Israell was come before the kynge in to his house) ye are my bre thren, my bone, and my flesh. Wherfore wyl ye then be the last to brynge ye kyng agayne? And saye vnto Amasa: Art not thou my bone & my flesh? God do this and that vnto me, yf thou shalt not be ye chefe captayne before me in Joabs stea-de, as longe as thou lyuest.
And he bowed the hart of all the mê of Juda as of one man. And they sent vnto the kynge: Come agayne, thou & all thy seruauntes: So the kynge came agayne. And when he came vnto Jordane, the men of Juda were come to Gil gal, for to go downe to mete the kynge, that they myght brynge the kynge ouer Jordane. And Semei the sonne of Ge-ra the sonne of Jemini, which dwelt at Bahurim, made hayst, and wête down with the men of Juda to mete kynge Dauid, & there were with hym a thou-.Re.16.a sande men of BenJamin, * Siba also the seruaunt of the house of Saul with his fyftene sonnes and twenty seruaun tes, and gat them thorow Jordane before the kynge, and passed ouer the fery, that they myghte brynge ouer the kynges housholde, and to do hym pleasure.
But Semei the sonne of Gera fell D downe before the kynge, when he passed ouer Jordane, & sayd vnto ye kynge: O my lorde, laye not the trespace vnto my charge, and thynke not vpon it that thy seruaunt vexed the, * in the daye 2.Re.16.b whan my lorde the kynge went out of Jerusalem: and let not the kynge take it to hart, for thy seruaunt knoweth that he hath synned. And beholde, this daye am I come the first amonge all ye house of Joseph, for to go downe to mete my lorde the kynge.
Neuertheles Abisai the sonne of Ze-ru Ja answered and sayde: And shulde not Semei dye therfor, seynge he hathe cursed the anoynted of the LORDE?
But Dauid sayde: * What haue I to 2.Re.16. do with you ye chyldrê of Zeru Ja, that Mat.16 ye wyll become Sathan vnto me this daye? Shulde eny man dye this day in Israell? Thynkest thou that I knowe not, that I am become kynge ouer Israell this daye? And the kynge sayd vnto Semei: Thou shalt not dye: And the kynge sware vnto hym.
Mephiboseth ye sône of Saul came downe also to mete the kynge. And he had not made cleane his fete, nor côbed his beerde, nether had he wasshed his clo thes from the daye that the kynge was gone awaye, vntyll the day that he came agayne in peace. Now whâ he came to Jerusalê for to mete the kyng, ye kynge sayde vnto hym: Mephiboseth, wherfore wentest thou not with me? And he sayde: My lorde O kynge, my seruaunt hath deale vnryghteously with me: for thy seruaunt thought: I wyll saddel an asse and ryde theron, and go vnto the kynge: for thy seruaunt is lame, and he hath accused thy seruaunt before my lorde the kynge. * But my lorde ye kyng Gen.33 is an angel of God, and thou mayest do 2.Re.14 what pleaseth the. For all my fathers Act.15 house was nothing, but people of death before my lorde the kynge. * And yet 2.Re.9 hast thou set thy seruaunt amonge the that eate at thy table. What other righ teousnes haue I, that I shulde crye eny more vnto the kynge? The kynge sayde vnto hym: What speakest ye yet more of thy matter? I haue sayde: Thou and Siba parte the londe betwene you. Mephiboseth sayd vnto the kynge: Let him take it all, in as much as my lorde the kynge is come home in peace.

And Barsillay the Gileadite came downe from Rogilim, and brought the kynge ouer Iordane, that he myght conueye him in Iordan. And Barsillay was very olde, so good as foure score yeare 2.Re.17.e olde,* the same had prouided y kynge of foode whyle he was at Mahanaim, for he was a very noble man. And the kynge sayd vnto Barsillay: Thou shalt go ouer with me, I wyll take care for y with myne owne selfe at Ierusalem.

But Barsillay sayde vnto the kynge: What haue I yet to lyue, that I shulde go vp to Ierusalem with the kynge? This daye am I foure score yeare olde. How shulde I knowe what is good or euell, or tast what I eate or drynke, or heare what the musicians do synge? Why shuld thy seruaũt be chargeable hẽsforth vnto my lord the kyng? thy seruaunt shal go a lytle with the kynge ouer Iordane. Why wyll the kynge recõpence me after this maner? Let thy seruaunt turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in my cyte besyde my father & my mothers graue. Beholde, there is thy seruaunt Chimeam, let hym go ouer w my lorde the kynge, and do vnto hym what pleaseth the.

C The kynge sayd, Chimeam shal go ouer with me, and I wyll do for hym what lyketh the: and what so euer thou desyrest of me, that wyll I do for the also. And whan all the people was gone ouer Iordane and the kynge likewyse, the kynge kyssed Barsillay and blessed hym, and he turned vnto his place. And the kynge passed ouer vnto Gilgal, and Chimeam wente with hym. And all the people of Iuda brought the kyng ouer: howbeit there was but halfe of the peo of Israel there.

And beholde, thẽ came all the men of Israel vnto the kynge, and sayde vnto hym: Why haue oure brethren y men of Iuda stolen the awaye, and haue conueyed the kynge and his housholde ouer Iordane, & all Dauids men with him? Then answered they of Iuda vnto thẽ of Israel: The kynge is of oure nye kinred, why are ye angrye therfore? Thynke ye that we haue receaued eny foode or gyftes of the kynge? Then answered they of Israell vnto them of Iuda, and sayde: We haue ten tymes more with y kyng and with Dauid, then thou, wh hast thou regarded me thẽ so lyghtly, y oures were not the first to fetch oure kynge agayne? But they of Iuda spake harder then they of Israel.

The.xx.Chapter.

Seba maketh an vproure, and deuideth Israell frõ Dauid. Ioab sticketh Amasa, foloweth vpõ Seba, and layeth sege vnto hym in Abela.

There was a famous mã of Belial there, whose name was Seba the sonne of Bichri, a mã of Iemini, which blewe the trompe, & sayde: A
* We haue no porcyon in Dauid, nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai: let euery one get hym to his tent, O Israel. 2.Re.12.?
Then fell euery man in Israell frõ Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Iuda claued vnto their kynge from Iordane vnto Ierusalem. Whan Dauid came home to Ierusalem, he toke the ten concubynes (* whom he had lefte to kepe y house) 2.Re.15.d and put them in a holde to be kepte, and made prouysiõ for them: but he laye not with them, and so were they shut vp vnto their death, and lyued wedowes.

And y kynge sayd vnto Amasa: Call me all the men of Iuda togethr against the thyrde daye, and be thou here presẽt also. And Amasa wente to call Iuda together. And was slacke to come att the tyme which he had apoynted hym. And Dauid sayde vnto Abisai: Nowe shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs more harme then Absolõ: Take thou thy lordes seruauntes, and folowe vpõ him, y B he fynde not some strõge cities for him, and so escape out of oure syght. Then wente Ioabs mẽ forth after hym, and the Crethians and Plethians, and all the myghtye men: and they wente out of Ierusalem to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Bichri.

But whan they were by the greate stone at Gibeon, Amasa came before thẽ. As for Ioab, he was gyrded aboue his garment which he had on, and vpõ it he had a swearde gyrded, whych hanged by his thye in the sheeth, and wente easely out an in, and fell from hym. And Ioab sayde vnto Amasa: Peace be w the my brother. And Ioab toke Amasa by the beerde with his ryghte hande, to kysse hym. And Amasa toke no hede

Jud. 3.c and. 2.e

vnto the swearde in Joabs hande, * & he thrust hym therwith in to the bely, that his bowels ráne out vpon ÿ earth, and he thrust at hym nomore. And so he dyed.

Joab and his brother Abisai folowed vpon Seba the sonne of Bichry. And one of Joabs seruauntes stod e by hym, and sayde: What is he this that wolde be agaynste Joab to please Dauid, and to be with Dauid in Joabs steade? As for Amasa, he laye rolled in the bloude in the myddes of the strete. But whan one sawe that all the people

C stode there styll, he remoued Amasa fró the strete to ÿ felde, & cast a cloth vpó hym, for somuch as he sawe, that whosoeuer came by hym, stode styll. Now whan he was put out of the waye euery man wére after Joab, to folowe vpon Seba the sonne of Bichri.

And wente thorow all the trybes of Israell vnto Abell Beth Maacha, and all the best chosen men gathered thēselues together, and folowed after hym, & came and beseged hym at Abell Beth Maacha, and made a banke aboute the cite harde vnto ÿ wall. And all ÿ people that was with Joab, layed to their ordinaunce, and wolde haue cast downe the wall.

Then cryed there a wyse woman out of the cite: Heare, heare, saye vnto Joab that he come hither, I wyl speak with hym. And whā he came to her, the womā sayde: Art thou Joab? He sayde: Yee. She sayde vnto hym: Heare the wordes of thy handmayden. He sayde: I heare. She sayde: The comon sayēge was somtyme: Whoso wyl axe, let him axe at Abell, and so came it to a good

D ende. This is ÿ noble and faithfull cite in Israell, and wylt thou destroye ÿ cite and the mother in Israell? Why wylt thou swalowe vp the enheritaunce of the LORDE?

Joab answered and sayd: That be farre, that be farre fro me, that I shulde swalowe vp and destroye. The matter is not so, but a certayne man of mount Ephraim named Seba the sonne of Bichry, hath lyfte vp hym selfe agaynste kynge Dauid, delyuer him onely and I wyll departe from the cite. The womā sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heade shalbe cast vnto the ouer the wall. And the woman came in to al ÿ people with hir wysdom. And they smote of ÿ heade of Seba the sonne of Bichry, & caste it vnto Joab. Then blewe he the trompe, and they departed from the cite, euery one vnto his tente. But Joab came agayne to Jerusalem vnto the kynge.

* Joab was captayn ouer al ÿ hoost of Israel: Benaia the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Chretians and Plethites: Adoram was rentegatherer: Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was Chaunceler: Seia was the scrybe: Sadoc and Abiathar were the prestes: Ira also the Jairite was Dauids prest. 2.Re. 8.

The.xxi. Chapter.

A great honger. Sauls children are geuē vnto the Gibeonites. Dauid fighteth agaynst the Philistynes.

There was a dearth also in Dauids tyme thre yeares together. And Dauid sought the face of the LORDE. And the LORDE sayde: Because of Saull and because of that bloudy housholde * that he slewe ÿ Gibeonites. Then the kynge caused for to call the Gibeonites, and spake vnto the (As for the Gibeonites, they were not of the chyldrē of Israel, but a remnaūt of the Amorites: howbeit * the chyldren of Israell had sworne vnto them, and Saull sought for to smyte them in his gelousy: for the chyldren of Israell and Juda). Then sayde Dauid to the Gibeonites: What shall I do vnto you And where with shall I make the attonement, that ye maye blesse the enheritaunce of the LORDE? The Gibeonites sayd vnto hym: It is not for golde & syluer that we haue to do with Saul and his house, nether haue we aught to do for to slaye ony man in Israell.

B He sayde: What saye then, that I shal do vnto you? They sayde vnto the kynge: The mā that hath destroyed vs and brought vs the naught, shulde we destroye, that nothynge be left hym in all the coastes of Israell. Let there be geuen vs seuen men of his sonnes that we maye hange thē vp vnto the LORDE at Gibea of Saull ÿ chosen of the LORD. The kynge sayde: I wyl geue them. Howbeit the kynge spared Mephiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saull, because of the ooth of the LORDE that was betwene thē * namely, betwene Dauid and Jonathas the sonne of Saull. But the two sonnes of Rispa the doughter of Aia, whome she had borne vnto Saull, Armony and Mephiboseth, And the fyue sonnes of Michol the doughter of Saul, whom she bare vnto Adriel y^e sonne of Barsillai the Mahalothite, dyd the kynge take, and gaue them in to the han des of the Gibronites, which hāged thē vp vpon the mount before the LORD.

C . So these seuen fell at one tyme, and dyed in the tyme of y^e first haruest, whē the barly haruest begynneth. Then toke Rispa the doughter of Aia a sackcloth, and spred it vpon the rock in the begyn nynge of the haruest, tyll the water frō the heauen dropped vpon them, and suf fred not the foules of the heauen to rest on them on y^e daye tyme, nether the wyl de beastes of the felde on the nyght season. And it was tolde Dauid what Ris pa the doughter of Aia Sauls concu-byne had done.

And Dauid went and toke the bones of Saul and y^e bones of Jonathas his sonne from the citesens at Jabes in ...ii.31.e Gilead (which they * had stollen from the strete at Bethsan, where the Philystynes had hanged thē, what tyme as y^e Philystynes had smytten Saull vpon mount Gilboa) and brought them vp D from thence, and gathered them together with the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul & his sonne Jonathas buryed they in y^e londe of Ben Jamin, besyde the graue of his father Cis. And they dyd all that the kynge had commaunded. So after this was God at one with the londe.

But there arose warre agayne of y^e Phylystines agaynst Israel. And Da-uid went down & his seruauntes with hym, and fought agaynst the Phylistynes. And Dauid was werry, and Jesbi of Nob (which was one of the chyldren of Rapha, and the weight of his speare was thre. C. weyght of brasse, and had a new harnesse vpon hym) thought to smyte Dauid. Neuerthelesse Abisai the sonne of Seru Ja helped hym & smote the Phylystyne to death. Then sware ...a.18.a Dauids men vnto him, & sayd: * Thou shalt nomore go forth with vs vnto the warre, that the lanterne in Israell be not put out.

E * Afterwarde there arose yet
...1.21.a warre at Nob with the Philistynes.
Then Sibechai the Husathyte smote Saph, which also was one of the chyldren of Rapha.

And there arose yet warre at Gob with the Phylystynes, Then Elhanan the sonne of Jaare Orgim a Bethlee-mite smote Goliath the Gethite, which had a speare, whose shaft was like a we uers lome.

And there arose yet warre at Gath where there was a contencious man, which had sixe fyngers on his handes, and sixe toes on his fete, that is foure and twenty in the nombre and he was borne also of Rapha. And whan he spake despitefully vnto Israell, Jonathas the sonne of Si-mea Dauids brother smote him. These foure were borne vn
to Ra pha at Ge
th, and fel tho row the hande of Dauid and of his seruauntes.

The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid prayseth the LORDE with a songe of thankesgeuynge, because he delyuered hym out of y^e hande of Saul and other enemyes.

AND Dauid spake the wor- A des of this songe before the LORDE, what tyme as y^e LORD had delyuered him from the hande of all his ene myes, and from the hande of Saul, and he sayde.

The LORDE is my stony rocke, and my castell, and my delyuerer.

God is my strength, in hym wyll I put my truste: my shylde and the horne of my saluacyon, my defence and my refuge, my Sauioure, thou shalt helpe me from violent wronge.

* I wyll call vpon the LORD with psal. 17.a prayse, so shal I be delyuered fro myne enemies.

For the sorowes of death cōpassed me, and the brokes of Beliall made me afrayed.

The paynes of hell came aboute me, & the snares of death hadde ouertaken me.

When I was in trouble, I cal- B led vpon the LORDE, yee euen my God called I vpon, and so he herde my voyce from his holy temple, and my complaynte (came) in to his eares.

The earth trembled and quaked, the foundacions of the heauen shoke and moued because he was wroth.

Smoke went vp from his nose, and cōsumynge fyre out of his mouth, coles were kyndled therof.

He bowed the heauens and came down, and it was darke vnder his fete.

He sat vpō Cherub and dyd flye, & appeared vpō the fethers of the wynde.

He made darknesse his pauylion roundeaboute hym, thicke water in the cloudes of the ayre.

At the bryghtnesse of hym were the fyre coles kyndled.

The LORDE thondered frō heauen and the hyest put forth his voyce.

He shot his arowes, & scatered thē: he lightened, and disconfited them.

The pourynges out of ẏ See were C sene, and the foundacyons of the earth were discouered, at the chydinge of the LORDE, and at the breth of the spret of his wrath.

He sent downe from aboue, & receaued me, & drue me out of many waters.

He delyuered me fro my stronge enemye, from them that hated me, for they were to myghte for me.

They ouertoke me in ẏ tyme of my trouble, but the LORD was my succoure.

He brought me forth in to lybertye he delyuered me, because he had a fauoure vnto me.

Ro.2.a. *The LORDE shall rewarde me after my righteousnes, and accordynge to the clennesse of my handes shall he recompence me.

For I haue kepte the waye of the LORDE, and haue not bene vngodly agaynst my God.

For I haue an eye vnto all his la-D wes, and haue not put his ordinaunces fro me.

Therfore wyll I be perfecte vnto hym, & wyll eschewe myne owne wyckednes.

So shal the LORDE rewarde me after my righteousnes, accordynge to ẏ clennesse of my handes in his eye sight.

With the holy shalt thou be holy, & with the perfecte shalt thou be perfecte

With the cleane thou shalt be cleane, and with the frowarde thou shalte be frowarde.

For thou shalt saue the poore oppressed people, and shalt set thyne eyes agaynst ẏ proude to brynge thē downe.

For thou O LORDE art my lanterne. The LORDE shall lighte my darknesse.

For in the I shall discōfite an hoost of men, and in my God shall I leape ouer the wall.

The waye of God is perfecte: the E wordes of the LORDE are tryed in the fyre: he is a shylde for all them that put their thrust in hym.

For where is there a God, excepte the LORDE? Or who hath any strength without oure God.

God hath strengthed me with power, and made playne a perfecte waye for me.

He hath made my fete lyke hertes fete, and hath set me vpon hye.

*He teacheth my handes to fight, Psal.17. and bendeth the stele bowe with myne armes.

And thou hast geuen me the shylde of thy health, and with thy louynge correction shalt thou multiplie me.

Thou haste enlarged my goynge vnder me, and myne ankles haue not slyded.

I wyll folowe vpon myne enemyes and destroye them, and wyll not turne backe agayne, tyll I haue brought them to naught.

I wyl consume them and thrust the F thorow, that they come not vp: they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast girdeth my with strength to the battayl, and hast subdued the vnder me that rose vp agaynst me.

Thou hast made myne enemyes to turne their backes vpon me, ẏ I might destroye them that hate me.

They shall crye, but there shalbe no Sauioure: ye euen vnto the LORDE but he answereth them not.

I wyll beate them as small as the dust vp the earth: euen as the claye of ẏ stretes wyll I make them thynne, and sprede them out abrode.

But me shalt thou delyuer from the stryuynges of the people, and shalt kepe me to be the heade of the Heythen: a people whom I haue not knowne, shal serue me.

The straunge chyldren haue dyssembled me: at the hearynge of the eare shal they herken vnto me.

The straunge chyldren are waxen olde, and are shut vp in theyr presons.

The LORDE lyueth, and blessed be my God, & magnifyed be the strength of my health.

God geueth that I be auenged, & subdueth the people vnto me.

He bryngeth me out frō myne enemyes: and frō thē that ryse vp agaynste me, shalt thou exalte me, and from the cruell man shalt thou delyuer me.
...15.a *For this cause wyll I geue thākes vnto the amonge the Heythen, & synge prayses vnto thy name.
Whiche doth greate health for his kynge, and sheweth mercy vnto Dauid his anoynted, and to his sede for euermore.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

The last wordes of Dauid. The names of the worthies are rehearsed.

a These are the laste wordes of Dauid: Dauid the sonne of Isay sayde. The man that was set vp to be anoynted of the God of Iacob, and a pleasaunt dyter of songes of Israell, sayd: The spirite of the LORDE hath spokē by me, and the vtteraunce therof is done thorow my tūge. He sayd: The God of Israell hath spoken vnto me, the strength of Israell, the gouernoure amonge men, the righteous gouernour in the feare of God. As the light is in the mornynge whan the Sonne aryseth, so that for the bryghtnesse therof no cloude remayneth: and as the grasse loketh vpon the earth thorowe ye rayne

After hym was Eleasar the sonne of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi amōge the thre worthies with Dauid, whan they spake despytefully to the Philistynes, and were gathered together to the battayl, and the men of Israell wente vp. Then stode he vp and smote the Philistynes, tyll his hāde was so weery that it crompled with the swearde. And the LORDE gaue a greate victory at the same tyme, so that the people turned after hym to spoyle. After hym was Samma the sonne of Age the Hararite Whā the Philistynes had gathered thē selues in a cōpanye, and in ye same place there was a pece of londe full of small corne, and the people fled before the Philistynes, then stode he in the myddes of the pece of londe and delyuered it, and smote the Philistynes. And God gaue a greate victorye.
C *And these thre principal amōg thyrty, came downe in the haruest vnto Dauid 1.Pa.12.b

And Dauid was desyrous, and sayd: Wolde God ye some mā wolde fetch me a drynke of water out of the well at Bethleem vnder ye gate. Then brake the thre worthies into the hoost of the Philistynes, and drewe of the water out of the wel at Bethleem vnder ye gate, & caried it and brought it vnto Dauid: neuerthelesse he wolde not drynke it, but offred it vnto ye LORDE and sayd: The LORDE let this be farre fro me, that I shulde do it. But he went downe to hym with a staffe, and toke the speare out of the Egipcyans hande by violence, and slewe hym with his owne speare. This dyd Benaia the sōne of Ioiada, & was a famous man amonge thre worthies, and more honorable then the thyrty, but he came not vnto the thre. And Dauid made hym of his secrete councell.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid nombreth ẏ people, and dis= pleaseth the LORDE, which plageth his londe with the pestilence.

A AND * the LORDE was Chro.22.a wrothfully displeased of a new agaynst Israel, and mo ued Dauid amonge them, because he sayde: Go nõbre Israell and Juda. And the kynge sayde vnto Joab the chefe captayne of his hoost: Go aboute in all the trybes of Is= rael, from Dan vnto Berseba, and nõ= bre the people, that I may knowe how many they be. Joab sayd vnto ẏ kynge: The LORD thy God adde vnto this people an hundreth tymes as muche as it is now, ẏ the lorde the kynge maye se his eyes lust theron. But why hath my lorde the kynge a desyre to this thynge?
Neuertheles the kynges worde preuay led agaynst Joab and the captaynes of the hoost.

So Joab and the captaynes of the hoost wente forth from the kynge, to noumbre the people of Israel, and passed ouer Jordane, and pitched at Aroer, at the righte hande of the cite which lyeth in the ryuer of Gad, and at Jaseer, and B came to Gilead, and in the lowe coun= tre of Hadsy, & came [illegible] Dan Jaan, and aboute Sidon, & ca[illegible] the stronge cite of Tyrus, and all the cities of the Heuites and Cananites, & came forth to the south parte of Juda vnto Berse ba, and wente rounde aboute that coun tre, and after nyne monethes and twen ty dayes they came to Jerusalem. And Joab delyuered vnto ẏ kynge the sum me of the people that was nõbred. And in Israell there were eight C. thousande stronge men, that drue out the swerde: and in Juda fyue hundreth thousande men. And after that the people was nõ bred, Dauids harte smote hym selfe.
And Dauid sayde vnto the LORDE: I haue synned sore, that I haue done this. And now LORDE take awaye the trespace of thy seruaũt. For I haue done very vnwysely.

And whan Dauid rose vp in the C mornynge, the worde of the LORDE came vnto the Prophet Gad, Dauids Seer, and sayde: Go and speake vnto Dauid. Thus sayeth the LORDE: I brynge the thre thynges, chose the one of thẽ, that I maye do it vnto the. Gad came vnto Dauid, and tolde hym, and sayde vnto hym: Wilt thou that seuen yeare derth shal come in to thy londe? Or that thou be fayne to flye for thyne ad= uersaries thre monethes, & they to perse cute the? Or that there be pestilence thre dayes in the londe? Take aduysement therfore and se, what answere I shall brynge agayne vnto hym that sent me.

Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in ex treme trouble. * Neuertheles (yf it may be) let me rather fall in to the handes of the LORD (for his mercy is great) I wyll not fall in to the hondes of men.

So the LORDE sent pestilence in D to Israell from ẏ morow vnto the tyme appoynted, so that there dyed of ẏ peo ple from Dan vnto Berseba, thre score and ten thousande men. And whan the angell stretched his hande ouer Jerusa lem to destroye it, the LORDE repen ted ouer ẏ euel & sayd vnto ẏ angel: It is ynough, holde now thy hãde. The an gel of ẏ LORD was besyde ẏ barne of Arafna ẏ Jebusite. But whan Dauid sawe ẏ angel ẏ smote ẏ people he sayde vnto the LORD: beholde, It is I that haue synned, I haue done the trespace.
As for these shepe, what haue they done?
Oh let thy hande be agaynst me and a= gaynst my fathers house.

And God came to Dauid at the same tyme, and sayde vnto hym: Go vp and set vp an altare vnto the LORD in ẏ barne of Arafna the Jebusite. So Dauid wente vp as Gad sayde, and as the LORDE had commaunded. And whã Arafna loked aboute hym, he sawe the kynge with his seruauntes goynge vnto hym, and he worshipped vpon his face to the grounde, and sayd: Wherfore commeth my lorde the kynge vnto his seruaũt? Dauid sayd: To bye the barne of the, and to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE, that the plage maye ceasse from the people.

But Arafna sayd vnto Dauid: Let my lorde the kynge take it, & offre what pleaseth hym. Beholde, there is an oxe for a burntofferynge, and sleddes, & vessels of oxen to the wood. All this gaue Arafna vnto ye kynge. And Arafna sayd vnto the kynge: The LORDE thy God make ye accepted vnto hym. Neuertheles ye kynge sayd vnto Arafna: Not so, but I wyll bye it of the for as much as it is worth. For I wyll no offre burntofferynges vnto the LORDE, of that whiche I haue for naught. So Dauid bought the barne and the oxe for fyftye sycles of syluer, and buylded an altare there vnto the LORDE, and offred burntofferynges and thãk offeringes. And ye LORDE was mercyfull vnto the londe, & ye plage ceassed frõ ye people of Israel.

The ende of the seconde boke of the kynges, otherwyse called the seconde boke of Samuell.

The thyrde boke of the kynges.

The fyrst Chapter.

Adonias seketh his fathers kyngdom Salomon is ordeyned kynge.

AND whã kyng Dauid was olde & well strycken in age, he could not be warme though he was couered with clothes. Then sayd his seruaũtes vnto hym: Let vs seke a yonge damsel a virgin for our lorde the kynge, to stonde before the kynge, and to norysshe hym, & to slepe in his armes, and to warme our lorde the kynge. And they sought a fayre damsell in all the coastes of Israell, and founde Abisag of Sunem, and brought her vnto the kynge. And she was a very fayre damsell, and norysshed the kynge, & serued hym. Howbeit the kynge knewe her not.

Adonias the sone of Hagith lyft vp hym selfe, and sayd: I wyll be kynge. And he prepared hym charettes & horsemen, and fyftye men to be rẽners on fote before hym. And his father reproued hym not therfore, so muche as to saye: Wherfore doest thou so? And he was a mã of a very fayre bewtye, and had begotten hym nexte after Absalõ. And his matter stode by Ioab the sonne of Zeruia & by Abiathar the prest, whiche helped Adonias. But Sadoc ye prest & Benaia the sone of Ioiada, & Nathan the prophet, & Semei, and Rei, & Dauids worthies were not with Adonias. 2. Re. 3. a

And whan Adonias offred shepe & oxen, & fat catell besyde ye stone of Zoheleth, which lyeth by the well of Rogell, he called all his brethrẽ the kynges sones, & all the men of Iuda the kynges seruaũtes. But ye prophet Nathã & Benaia, and the worthies, and his brother Iosu. 15. b and. 18. c

Salomon called he not. Then sayd Nathan vnto Bethseba Salomōs mother: Hast ỹ not herde that Adonias is kynge and oure lorde Dauid knoweth not therof? Come now therfore, I wyll geue the councell, that ỹ mayest delyuer thy soule and the soule of thy sonne Salomon. Come now and go in to the kynge Dauid & saye vnto hym: Hast not thou my lorde the kynge sworne and sayde vnto thy handmayden: Salomon thy sonne shalbe kynge after me, and he shall syt vpon my seat? Why is then Adonias made kynge? Beholde, whyle thou art yet there, and talkest with the kynge, I wyll come in after the, and tell forth thy tale. And Bethseba wente in to ỹ kynge to the chamber: and the kynge was very olde. And Abisag of Sunem serued the kynge. And Bethseba bowed her

C selfe and worshipped the kynge.

The kynge sayd: What wylt thou? She sayd vnto hym: My lorde, Thou hast sworne vnto thy handmayde by the LORDE thy God: Thy sonne Salomon shalbe kynge after me and syt vpō my seate. But now lo, Adonias is kynge and my lorde the kynge knoweth it not. He hath offred oxen and fat cattel, and many shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, and Abiathar the prest, and Ioab ỹ chefe captayne. But thy seruaūt Salomon hath he not bydden. Neuertheles thou my lorde art kynge, the eyes of all Israel loke vpon the, that ỹ shuldest shewe them who shall syt vpon the seate of my lorde the kynge after the. And whan my lorde the kynge slepeth with his fathers then shall I & my sōne Salomon be fayne to be synners.

But whyle she yet spake to ỹ kynge, the prophete Nathan came, and she told the kynge: beholde, there is the prophete Nathan. And whan he came in before ỹ kynge, he worshipped the kynge vpō his face to the grounde, and sayd: My lorde O kynge, hast thou sayd: Adonias shall be kynge after me, and syt vpō my seat? For he is gone down this day, & hath offred oxē, & fat catel, & many shepe, & hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes, and the prest Abiathar. And be-

D holde they eat and drynke before hym, & saye: God saue the kynge Adonias. But me thy seruaunt, and Sadoc the prest, & Benaia the sōne of Ioiada, and thy seruaunt Salomon hath he not called. Hath my lorde the kynge commaunded this, and not certified his seruauntes who shall syt vpon the seate of my lorde the kynge after hym?

The kynge answered and sayd: Cal Bethseba vnto me. And she came in before the kynge. And whan she stode before the kynge, the kynge sware & sayd: As truly as the LORD lyueth (which hath delyuered my soule out of trouble) I wyll do vnto the this daye, euen as I sware vnto thy by the LORD ỹ God of Israel, so that Salomon thy sonne shalbe kynge after me, and he shal syt vpon my seate in my steade.

Then Bethseba bowed her selfe to her face to the grounde, and thanked the kynge, and sayde: God saue my lorde kynge Dauid for euermore. And ỹ kyng sayd: Cal me ỹ prest Sadoc & ỹ prophet Nathan, & Benaia the sonne of Ioiada.

And whan they came in before the kynge, the kynge sayd vnto them: Take E youre lordes seruauntes with you, and set my sonne Salomon vpon my mule, and carye hym downe to Gihon: and let Sadoc the prest and the prophete Nathan, anoynte hym there to be kynge ouer Israell, and blowe the trompe, and say: God saue kynge Salomon, and go ye vp after hym: and whē he cōmeth, he shall syt vpon my seate, and be kynge in my steade: for I haue ordeyned hym to be prynce ouer Israel and Iuda. Then answered Benaia the sonne of Ioiada vnto the kynge, and sayd: Amen. The LORD God of my lorde ỹ kynge saye thus also. As the LORDE hath bene with my lorde the kynge, so be he with Salomon also, that his seate may be greater thē the seat of my lorde kynge Dauid.

Then wente they downe, the prest Sadoc, and the prophete Nathan, and Benaia the sōne of Ioiada, and ỹ Chrethians, and Plethians, and set Salomō vpon kynge Dauids mule, and brought hym to Gihon. And Sadoc ỹ prest toke the oyle horne out of the Tabernacle, & anoynted Salomon. And they blewe ỹ trompe: And all the people sayde: God saue kynge Salomon.

And all the people wente vp after F hym, and the people pyped with pypes, & was very ioyfull, so ỹ the earth range at the noyse of them. And Adonias herd it, & all they whom he had called, which were with hym, and they had now eaten. And whan Ioab herde the noyse of the trompe, he sayde: What meaneth this noyse of the cite and this busynesse

But whyle he yet spake, beholde, Jonathas ÿ sonne of Abiathar ÿ prest came. And Adonias sayd: Come in, for ÿ art a valeaunt man, and bryngest good tydynges. Jonathas answered & sayde vnto Adonias: Alas, our lorde kinge Dauid hath made Salomon kynge, & hath sent with him Sadoc the prest, and the prophet Nathan, and Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and the Chrethyans and Plethians, and they haue set hym vpon the kynges mule: and Sadoc the prest with the prophet Nathan hath anoynted hym kynge at Gihon, and frō thence are they gone vp wyth ioye, that the cyte range with all: that is the noyse that ye haue herde.

C Salomon also sytteth vpon the kynges seate, and ÿ kynges seruauntes are gone in to wysh good lucke vnto oure lorde kyng Dauid, and haue sayd: Thy God make Salomon a better name thē thy name is, and make his seate greater then thy seate. And they haue wysshed the kynge good lucke vpon the bed. Moreouer the kynge hath sayde thus: Praysed be ÿ LORDE God of Israel, which this daye hath made one to syt vpō my seate, that myne eyes haue sene it.

Then were they afrayed, and gatt thē vp all that were called by Adonias, and so they departed euery mā his way. But Adonias was afrayed of Salomō and gat hym vp, and wente his waye, & toke holde of the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde Salomon: beholde, Adonias feareth kynge Salomon, and beholde, he taketh holde of ÿ hornes of the altare and sayeth: Let kynge Salomon sweare vnto me this daye, that he shal not slaie his seruaūt wᵗ the swearde. Salomon sayd: Yf he wyl be an honest man, there shall not one heer fall from hym vpon the earth but yf there be euel founde in hym, he shall dye. And kynge Salomon sent, and caused him to be fet thed * frō the altare. And whā he came, he fell downe before kynge Salomon. But Salomon sayde vnto him: Go thy waye in to thy house.

Then sent Salomon Benaia ye sone of Ioiada, and sayd: Go slaye him. And whan Benaia came to the Tabernacle of the LORDE, he sayde vnto hym: Thus sayeth the kynge: Come forth.
He sayde: no, I wyll dye here. And Be the kynge: This is a good meanynge, as my lorde the kynge hath sayd, so shal thy seruaunt do. So Semei dwelt at Ierusalē a longe season. But after thre yeare it fortuned that two seruauntes [illegible].9.a ranne awaye from Semei vnto Achis the sonne of Maecha kynge of Gath.

And it was tolde Semei: beholde, thy seruauntes are at Gath. Then Semei gat hym vp, sad led his asse, and wente vnto Gath to Achis, for to seke his ser-brought his seruauntes from Gath.

G And it was tolde Salomon, that Semei wente from Ierusalem vnto Gath, and was come agayne. Then sent the kynge, and caused for to call Semei, & sayd vnto hym: Sware not I to the by the LORDE, and assured the, and sayd: Loke what day soeuer thou depar-

And the kynge cōmaunded Benaia the sonne of Ioiada, which went forth, and smote hym that he dyed. And the kyngdome was stablysshed by Salomōs hāde.

and in a true hart with the, & this great mercy hast thou layed vp for hym, & ge-

This pleased the LORDE well, y Salomon axed suche a peticyon. And God sayd vnto hym: For so moche as & made a great feast vnto his seruauntes.

At the same tyme came ther two har lottes vnto the kynge, and stode before hym. And the one woman sayd: Oh my lorde, I and this woman dwelt in one house, and I was delyuered of a chylde in the house with her: and on the thyrde daye after y I was delyuered, she was delyuered of a chylde also. And we were together, so that there was no straūger with vs in the house, but we two: and this womans sonne dyed in the nyghte (for she smothered hym in the slepe) and she rose vp in the nyght, and toke my sonne fro my syde (wher thy handmayde slept) and layed it in her arme, & her dead sōne layed she in myne arme. And whan I rose vp in the mornyng to geue my sōne sucke, beholde, he was dead. But in the mornynge I loked well, and beholde it was not my sonne, whom I had borne.

D The other woman sayd: Not so, my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is dead. But she sayd: Not so, thy sonne is dead and my sonne lyueth. And thus spake they before the kynge. And the kynge sayd: This woman sayeth: my sonne lyueth and thy sonne is dead: Yonder woman sayeth: Not so, thy sonne is dead, & my sonne lyueth. And the kynge sayde: Fetche me a swearde. And whan the swearde was brought before the kynge, the kynge sayd: Part the lyuynge chylde in two partes, & geue this womā ỹ one halfe, & yonder woman the other halfe.

Then sayd the woman whose sōne lyued, vnto the kynge: (for her motherly hart was kyndled with petye ouer her sonne) Oh my lorde, geue her the chylde alyue, and kyll it not. But the other said Let it nether be myne nor thyne, but let it be parted. Then answered the kynge, and sayd: Geue this womā the lyuynge chylde, and slaye it not, for she is his mother. And all Israel herde of this iudgement that the kynge had geuen: & they feared the kynge, for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in hym to kepe iudgement.

A Thus was Salomon kynge ouer all Israel. And these ware his prynces: Asaria ỹ sonne of Sadoc the prest: Elihoreph, & Ahi Ia ỹ sonnes of Sisa, were prestes: Iosaphat the sōne of Ahilud was chaūceler: Benaia the sonne of Ioiada was the chefe captaine: Sadoc and Abiathar were prestes: Asaria ỹ sonne of Nathan was ouer the officers: Sabud the sōne of Nathan the prest was the kynges frende: Ahisar was stewarde: Adoniram the sōne of Abda was rentgatherer.

And Salomon had twelse officers ouer all Israel, which made prouysion of food for ỹ kyng & his house: One had a moneth longe in the yeare to make prouysion: And these were theyr names: The sonne of Hur vpon mount Ephraim. The sonne of Deker at Makaz and at Saalbaim, and at Bethsames, & at Elon, and BethHanan. The sonne of Hased at Aruboth, and had therto Socho & all the londe of Hepher. The sōne of Abinadab all the lordshyppe at Dor and had Taphat Salomons doughter to wyfe. Baena the sonne of Ahilud at Thaenach & at Magiddo, and ouer all BethSeā, which lyeth besyde zarthana vnder Iesrael from BethSean vnto ỹ playne of Mehelo, tyll the other syde of Jakmeam. B The sōnes of Geber at Ramoth in Gilead: he had the townes of Iair the sonne of Manasse in Gilead, & had the coastes of Argob which lyeth in Basan, euen thre score great walled cyties, & with brasen barres. Ahinadab ỹ sonne of Iddo at Mahanaim. Ahimoas in Nephtali: & he also toke Basmath Salomons doughter to wyfe. Baena ỹ sonne of Husai in Asser and at Aloth. Iosaphat the sonne of Paruha in Isachar. Semei the sonne of Ela in BenIamin. Geber the sonne of Vri in the londe of Gilead, in the londe of Sihon kynge of the Amorites, and of Og the kynge in Basan. One officer was in the same londe. As for Iuda and Israel, they were in nombre as the sonde of the see, and ate dyd and drynke, and were mery. * Thus was Salomon lorde ouer all the kyngdomes (from the water of the londe of the Philistynes, vnto ỹ border of Egipt) which brought hym gyftes, and serued him as longe as he lyued.

For he had the lordshippe of all the londe on this syde the water, from Tiphsa vnto Gasa, and ouer all the kynges on this syde the water: and had peace of all his subiectes rounde aboute, so ỹ Iuda and Israel wente safe, euery one vnder his vyne, & vnder his figge tre, frō Dan vnto Bersaba, as longe as Salomō lyued.

C And Salomō had fortye thousande carthorses, & twelfe thousande horsemē. And the officers prouided the kynge Salomon with vitaples: and what soeuer belonged to the kynges table, that brought euery man in his moneth, and missed not: Barlye also and strawe for the horses and coursers, and brought them vnto the place where the kynge was.

¶ The descripcyon of the tyme whan Salomon beganne to build the temple, and how it was buylded.

Israell out of the londe of Egipte, in the fourth yeare

Zyiii. of the raygne of Salomon ouer Israel, in the moneth Sif (that is the seconde moneth) was the house bulded vnto ÿ LORDE. This house that kynge Salomon buylded vnto the LORD, was thre score cubytes longe, twenty cubytes brode, and thirtye cubytes hye.

Joh.10.c Actu.3.b and.5.b And he buylded a * Porche before the temple of twentye cubytes longe after the bredeth of the house, and ten cubytes brode before the house. And in the house he made wyndowes, which myght be opened and shut with lyddes.

And rounde aboute by the wall of ÿ house he buylded a compasse, so that it wente both aboute the temple and the quere, and made his outwarde wal round about. The nethermost stació was fyue cubites wyde, and the myddest sixe cubites wyde, and the thyrde seuen cubytes wyde. For he layed balkes round about the house, that they touched not ÿ wall of the house.

B And whan the house was buylded, it was buylded of whole and vnbroken stones, so that there was herde nether hamer nor axe, nor ony other instrumét of yron, whan ÿ house was abuldinge.

But on the ryght syde of ÿ myddes of the house there was a dore, so that they myght go vp to the myddest stacyon by a turne grese, and from the myddest stació vnto ÿ thirde. Thus buylded he the house, and fynished it, and syled the house both about and by the walles with Ceder wood. He buylded a galery also aboute vpon the whole house fyue cubytes hye, & couered the house wyth Ceder tymber.

And the worde of the LORD came vnto Salomon, and sayd: Let this be ÿ house that thou buyldest. Yf thou shalt walke in myne ordinaunces, and do acordinge to my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke therin, then 2.Re.7.b wyl I stablishe my worde with ÿ (* as I sayd vnto Dauid thy father) & wyll dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel, & wyll not forsake my people of Israel.

C Thus Salomon buylded the house, and fynished it, and buylded the walles on the insyde with Ceder tymber, from the grounde of the house vnto the rofe, and syled it with tymbre on the ynsyde, and ouerlayed ÿ floore of the house with bordes of Pyne tre.

And beyonde in the house he buylded a wall of Ceder tymber twentye cubites longe, from the floore vnto ÿ rofe, and there on the ynsyde buylded he the quere for the moost holy, but ÿ house of the temple before the quere was fortye cubytes lóge: on ÿ ynsyde was ÿ whole house of Ceder with wrythen knoppes & floures, so ÿ there was no stone sene. As for ÿ quere, he prepared it on the ynsyde of the house, that the arke of the couenaunt of the LORD myght be set therin. And before ÿ quere (which was twentye cubytes longe, twentye cubytes brode, and twentye cubytes hye, and ouerlayed with pure golde) he syled the altare with Ceder.

D And Salomon ouerlayed the house on the ynsyde with pure golde, and shot barres of golde before the quere, which he had ouerlayed with golde, so that ÿ whole house was layed ouer with golde. And all the altare also before the quere ouerlayed he with golde.

Exo.25.d * He made also in the quere two Cherubyns ten cubytes hye of Olyue tre. One winge of ether of the Cerubins had fyue cubytes, so that from the edge of his one wynge to ÿ edge of his other wynge there were ten cubytes. Euen so had the other Cherub té cubites also, & both the Cherubs were of one measure and of one quantitie, so that ether Cherub was ten cubytes hye. And he put ÿ Cherubins within in the house. And ÿ Cherubyns spred forth their wynges, so that the wynge of the one touched the one wall: & ÿ other Cherubs winge touched ÿ other wall. But in ÿ myddes of the house ÿ one wynge touched another And he ouerlayed ÿ Cherubins with golde.

E And on all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he caused to make carued worke, wyth carued Cherubyns, palme trees, and floures. And the pauement of the house ouerlayed he also with golde plates. And at the intraunce of ÿ quere he made two dores of olyue tre with fyuesquared postes, & caused carued worke to be made therof with Cherubins, palme trees, and floures, & ouerlayed them with plates of golde. So made he also at the intraunce of ÿ téple, foure squared postes of Olyue tree, and two dores of Pyne tre (so ÿ ether dore had two syde dores one hangynge to another) and made carued worke therof, palme trees & floures, ryght as it was appoynted.

And he buylded a courte also within with thre rowes of fre stone, & with one rowe of plaine Ceder tymber.

In the fourth yeare in the moneth, Sif, was the foundacyon of the LORDES house layed, and in the eleuenth yeare in the moneth Bull (that is the eyght moneth) was the house fynished as it shulde be, so that they were seuen yeare a buyldynge of it.

The .vii. Chapter

Salomon buyldeth hym selfe an house of the tymber of mount Libanus.

A But Salomon was a buyldynge his awne house thirtene yeare, and fynished it, namely, he buylded an house of the wood of Libanus, an hundreth cubites longe, fiftye cubytes wyde, and thirtye cubites hye, foure squared with rowes of pilers, & with carued Ceders. And the rofe aboue syled he also with Ceder wood vpon the fyue & fortye pylers, for one rowe had fyftene pilers so that there stode euer thre pylers one ryght ouer agaynst another: so that euery space betwixte ÿ pylers was one ouer against another, foure squared with the pilers.

And he made a porche with pilers which was fyftye cubites longe, & thyrtye cubytes brode, and yet a porche before it wt pilers and with a greate poste. He made a porche also vnto the kynges seate (wheryn the iudgemēt was kepte) & made it to be the porche of iudgemēt, & syled it wt ceder frō the pauement vnto ÿ pauemēt agayne, & his own house wherin he dwelt, in ÿ back courte made betwene the house and ÿ porche lyke ÿ

B other. And lyke vnto the porche made he a house for Pharaos doughter, * whō Salomon had taken to wyfe.

All these were costly stone hewen after the measure, cut with sawes on euery syde, from the ground vnto the rofe: and without the greate courte also. As for the foundacyons, they were costly & greate stones, tē & eighte cubites greate and costly fre stones theron accordynge to the measure, and Ceders. But the greate courte rounde aboute had thre rowes of fre stone, & one rowe of plaine Ceders: Euen so also the courte by the house of the LORDE within, and the porch by the house.

And kynge Salomon sent to fetch one, * Hyrā of Tyre a wedowes sōne of the trybe of Nephtali, and his father had bene a man of Tyre, * which was a cōnynge mā in metal, ful of wisdom, vnderstōdyng & knowlege to worke all maner of metall worke. When he came to kynge Salomon, he made al his worke, * and made two brasen pilers, Jere.52.b / 1.Pa.19.b / 4.Re.25.b ether of them eyghtene cubites hye: and a threde of .xii. cubites was the measure aboute both the pilers: and he made two knoppes of brasse molte, to set aboue vpon the pilers: & euery knoppe was fyue

C cubytes hye: and on euery knoppe aboue vpon the pylers seuen wrythen roapes lyke chaynes. And vpon euery knoppe he made two rowes of pomgranates roūd about on the rope, wherwith ÿ knoppe was couered. And ÿ knoppes were lyke roses befor ÿ porche foure cubytes great And the pōgranates in the rowes rounde aboute were two hundreth aboue & beneth vpon the rope, which went rounde aboute the thycknes of the knoppe, on euery knoppe vpon both the pilers. And set vp the pilers before the porche of the temple. And that whiche he set on the ryght hande, called he Jachin: & that which he set on the lefte hande, called he Boos. And so stode it aboue vpon the pilers euen lyke roses. Thus was the worke of the pilers fynysshed.

D And he made a molten lauer ten cubytes wyde from the one syde to other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hye, & a threde of thyrty cubytes long was the measure rounde aboute: and aboute the same lauer that was ten cubytes wyde, there went knoppes on the edge therof rounde about the lauer. Two rowes were there of the knoppes molten with the lauer.

And it stode vpon twelfe bullockes, wherof thre were turned towarde the north, thre towarde ÿ west, thre toward the south, and thre towarde the east, and the the lauer aboue theron, so ÿ all theyr hynder partes were within vnder the lauer: wherof the thycknesse was an handbreth: and the edge of it was lyke the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose, and it contayned two thousande * Battes. *A Bat, was a certayne measure of licquore.

And he made ten brasē seates, euery one foure cubites longe and brode, and thre cubytes hye. The seate was made so, that it had sydes betwene the ledges. And on the sydes betwene the ledges there were lyons: bullockes, and Cherubyns. And on the ledges whiche were aboue and beneth the lyons & bullockes were the sydes made, that they were set downwardes. And euery stole hadde foure brasen wheles with brasen axeltrees. And vpon the foure corners there were proppes molten, euery one ouer a-gaynst another vnderset vnto ẏ kettell.

And the soket vpon the stole was a cubyte hye and rounde, a cubyte and an halfe wyde: and on the soket there were knoppes in foldes, whiche were foure squared and not round. The foure wheles stode beneth by the sydes, and the ax-altrees of the wheles were harde on the seate. Euery whele was a cubyte and a halfe hye, & they were wheles like carte wheles. And their axeltrees, spokes, nay-les, and the nauelstockes were all molten. And the foure proppes vpon ẏ four corners of euery seate were harde on the seate.
And on the soket aboue vpon the seate a cubyte & an halfe rou͂de aboute there where ledges and sydes harde on the seate. And on the place of the same sydes & ledges, he caused to carue Cherubyns, lyons, and palme trees, one by another rou͂de aboute theron. After this maner made he ten molten seates, one maner of measure & wydnes was in all F And he made ten copper kettels, so that one kettell co͂teyned fortye Battes, and was foure cubytes greate, and vpo͂ euery seate was a kettell. And fyue seates set he on the right syde of the house and the other fyue on the left syde. But the lauer set he before on the righthọ͂de towarde the south.
And Hiram made pottes also and shouels and basens, and so fynysshed he all the worke, that kynge Salomo͂ caused to be made in ẏ house of the LOR-DE: namely the two pilers, and rounde knoppes aboue vpon the two pylers, & the two wrythen ropes to couer ẏ two rounde knoppes vpon the pylers. And the foure hu͂dreth pomgranates on the two wrythen ropes, euer two rowes of pomgranates vnto euery rope, to couer the two rounde knoppes vpon the py-lers. And the ten seates, and ten kettels theron, and the lauer, and twolue bullockes vnder the lauer. And the pottes, shouels, and basens. And al the orname͂- tes which Hiram made vnto kinge Sa-G lomon for the house of the LORDE were of pure metall. In the countre by Jordane, caused the kynge them to be molten in thicke earth, betwene Sucoth and zarthan. And Salomon let all the apparell be vnweyed, because the me-tall was so muche.

Moreouer Salomo͂ made all the apparel that belonged vnto ẏ house of the LORDE: namely a golde͂ altare, a golde͂ table that the shewbread laye on, fyue candelstyckes on the ryght honde, and fyue candelstyckes on the lefte (before ẏ quere) of pure golde, with floures, lam-pes and snoffers of golde, therto flat pe-ces, chargers, basens, spones and cen-sours of pure golde. And the hokes of the dores on the insyde of the house in the moost holy, and in the dores of the house of the temple of the LORDE were of golde, Thus all the worke that kynge Salomon made in the house of the LOR-DE, was fynysshed. * And Salomon brought in that his father Dauid had sanctified, of syluer and golde and orna-mentes, & layed it among the treasures of the house of the LORDE.

The.viii. Chapter.

The Arke of the LORDE is brought into Salomons temple. The thankes-geuynge and prayer of Salomon.

THen gathered kynge Salo- A lomon all the Elders in Israell together, all the rulers of the trybes and prynces of the fathers amonge the children of Israel, vnto Jerusale͂, to brynge vp the Arke of the couenau͂t of ẏ LOR-DE, * out of the cite of Dauid, that is Sion. And there resorted vnto kynge Salomon all the men of Israell, in the feast in the moneth Ethanim, that is ẏ seuenth moneth. And wha͂ all the elders of Israell came, the prestes toke the Arke of the LORDE, and brought it vp, and the Tabernacle of witnesse, & all the ornamentes of the Sanctuary that were in the Tabernacle. This dyd the prestes and the Leuites. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacyon of Israell that were gathered vnto hym, wente with hym before the Arke, and offred shepe & bullockes, so many, that they coulde not be nombred nor tolde.
So the prestes brought the Arke of the LORDES couenau͂t vnto hir place euen in to the Quere of the house in the moost holy vnder the wynges of the Cherubyns, for the Cherubyns spred out their wynges in the place where the Arke stode, & couered the Arke and the staues therof from aboue. And the staues were so longe that the knoppes of them were sene from the Sanctuary before the quere, but on ẏ out syde were they not sene, and they were there vnto this daye.

B And in the Arke there was nothing 10.a but onely ẏ two tables of stone, * whiche Moses had layed therin at Horeb, whan the LORDE made a couenaũt with the chyldren of Israel, what tyme as they were departed out of the londe of Egipte.
But whan the prestes wente out of the sanctuary, a cloude fylled the house of the LORD, so that ẏ prestes coulde not stonde and execute the office for the cloude: for the glory of the LORD fylled the LORDES house. Then sayd 2.Pa.6.a Salomon: * The LORD sayde, that he wolde dwel in a darke cloud. I haue bu ylded an house, to be an habitacyon vnto the: a seate, that thou mayest dwel there for euer. And the kynge turned his face, and blessed all the congregacyon of Israel. And all the congregacion of Israel stode, and he sayde: Praysed be the LORDE God of Israell, which promysed by his mouth vnto my father Dauid, and by his hãde 17.a hath fulfylled it, and sayde: * Hence ẏ

6.a raell out of Egipte, haue I chosen no cyte amonge all the trybes of Israel, to bu ylde me an house, ẏ my name myght 16.a be there. * But Dauid haue I chosen, to be ouer my people of Israell.
C And in dede my father Dauid was mynded to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE God of Israell: Neuertheles the LORDE sayde vnto my father Dauid: Where as thou wast mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou hast done well, that thou art so aduysed (Howbeit thou shalt not buyl-de the house, but thy sonne which shall come out of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. And the LOR-DE hath perfourmed his worde that he spake: For I am come vp in my father Dauids steade, and syt vpon the seate of Israell, as the LORDE sayd: and haue buylded an house vnto ẏ name of the LORDE God of Israel: and there haue I ordeyned a place for ẏ Arke, wherin is the LORDES coue-naũt, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the londe of Egipte.
And Salomon stode before the altare of the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacyon of Israel, and helde out his handes towarde heauen, and sayd: * O LORD God of Israel, 2.Pa.6.a there is no god lyke the, nether aboue in heauẽ, nor beneth vpon earth, ẏ that kepest couenaunt and mercy for all thy seruauntes that walke before the with all

With thy mouth thou saydest it, & with D thy hande hast thou fulfylled it, as it is come to passe this daye. Now LORD God of Israel make good vnto my father Dauid thy seruaunt, that whiche ẏ hast promysed him, and sayd: * Thou 2.Re.7.a kepe theyr waye, so that they walke before me as thou hast walked before me.

* And whā Salomō had ended all this prayer & peticiō before ẏ LORD, he rose vp frō ẏ altare of the LORD, and lefte of from knelynge and holding out of his hādes toward the heauen, & stode and blessed all the congregacyon of Israel with loude voyce, and sayde: Praysed be the LORDE which hath geuen rest vnto his people, accordynge as he said. Ther hath not one fayled of al his good wordes, which he spake by his seruaūt Moses. The Lord our god be ẇ vs, as he hath ben ẇ our fathers, & forsake vs not, nether withdraw his hā frō vs, but bowe oure hartes vnto him that we maye walke in all his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordy-ordinaunces and lawes, which he cōmaunded our fathers. And these wordes wherwith I haue made my peticyon before the LORDE, come nye vnto the LORDE oure God daye and nyght, that he maye execute iudgement for his seruaūt and for his people of Israell, euery one at his tyme: that all nacions vpon earth D maye knowe, that the LORDE is God, and that there is none other. And let youre hart be perfecte with the LORDE oure God, to walke in his statutes, and to kepe his commaundementes, as it is this daye.

And the kynge with all Israell his people offred sacrifice before the LORDE And Salomō offred thākofferinges (which he offred vnto the LORDE) two and twenty thousande oxen, and an hundreth & twenty thousande shepe. So the kynge and all the chyldren of Israell dedicated the house of the LORDE. The same daye dyd the kynge dedicate ẏ myddelmost courte, which was before the house of the LORDE: that he myght there perfourme the burntofferynges, meatofferynges, and the fatt of the thankofferynges: for the brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, was to lytle for the burntofferynges, meatofferynges, and for the fat of the thankofferynges.

And at the same tyme made Salomon a solempne feast, and all Israell a greate congregacion with hym, from the border of Hemath vnto the ryuer of Egipte, before the LORDE oure God, seuen dayes, and yet seuen dayes, that were fourtene dayes. And on the eight daye he let the people go And they blessed the kynge, and wente vnto their tentes reioysinge and with a mery hart, because of all the good that the LORDE had done vnto Dauid his seruaunt, & to his people of Israell.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The LORDE appeareth vnto Salomon, which geueth Hiram twenty cyties. &c.

B And ✱ when Salomon had fynyshed the buyldynge of ẏ house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and all ẏ his desyre and pleasure was to make, the LORDE appeared vnto hym the seconde tyme, ✱ euen as he appeared vnto hym at Gibeon. And the LORDE sayde vnto hym: I haue herde thy prayer and peticyon, that thou hast made before me, & haue sanctified this house which thou hast buylded that I maye set my name there for euer: and myne eyes and my hart shalbe there alway. And yf thou walke before me (as thy father Dauid walked) with a perfecte and a true harte, so that thou do al that I haue commaunded the, and kepe myne ordynaunces and lawes: then wyl I stablyshe the seate of thy kyngdome ouer Israel for euer, accordyng as I promysed thy father Dauid, and sayde:
✱ Thou shalt not want a man from the seate of Israel. 3.Re.2.a

B But yf ye turne backe from me, ye & youre chyldren, and kepe not my cōmaūdementes and ordynaūces which I haue layed before you, but go and serue other goddes, and worshippe them, then wyll I rote Israell out of the londe that I haue geuē them. ✱ And the house that I haue halowed vnto my name, wyl I put awaye fro my face. And Israell shall become a bywordе and fabell amonge all nacyons, and so shall this hye house: so that euery one ẏ goeth by, shalbe astonyed, and make an hyssynge and saye: ✱ Wherfore hath the LORDE done thus vnto this londe and to this house? Then shal it be answered: Because they forsoke the LORDE theyr God, (which brought theyr fathers out of the londe of Egipte) and haue receaued other goddes, and worshipped them, and serued thē. Therfore hath the LORDE brought all this euell vpon them.

C ✱ Now whā the twentye yeares were ended, wherin Salomon buylded ẏ two houses, the LORDES house & the kinges house, ✱ where vnto Hiram ẏ kynge of Tyre brought Salomon Ceder trees & Pyne trees, & golde after al his desyre then gaue kynge Salomon vnto Hirā twentye cyties in the coūtre of Galile. And Hiram departed frō Tyre to vyset the cyties which Salomō had geuē him & they pleased hym not, & he sayd: what maner of cytics are these (my brother) ẏ thou hast geuen me? And he called them the londe of Cabul vnto this daye. And Hiram sent vnto ẏ kynge, syxe score hūdreth weyght of golde. And the same is the sūme of the taxe, that kynge Salomon raysed to the buyldynge of ẏ house of the LORDE, and his owne house and Millo, and the walles of Jerusalē, and Hasor, and Megiddo, and Gaser.

A ANd * whan kynge Salo-

Mat.12.d the LORDE came to the eares of the Quene of riche Arabia, she came to proue hym with darke sentēces. And she cam to Jerusalē with a marueilous great trayn with camels which bare spyces, & much golde, and precious stones. And whan she came in to kynge Salomō, she spake vnto hym all ÿ was in her hert. And Sa lomon tolde her euery thynge, and the kynge hadde nothynge in secrete, but he tolde it her. But whan the Quene of ryche Arabia sawe all the wysedome of Salomon, and the house that he hadde buylded, and the meates of his table, & the dwellynges of his seruauntes, & the offices of his ministers, and theyr gar mentes, and his butlers and the burntof ferynges which he offred in the house of the LORDE, she wōdred exceadyngly, and coulde no longer refrayne, but sayd vnto the kynge: It is true that I haue herde in my londe of thy behauour and of thy wysedome. And I wolde not beleue it, tyll I came & sawe it with myne eyes: and beholde, the halfe hath not ben tolde me.

Thou hast more wysedome & good, then the fame is that I haue herde.
Happye are thy people and thy seruauntes, that alwaye stonde before the, and heare thy wysedome. Prayled be the LORDE thy God, whiche had suche a pleasure vnto the, that he set the vpon ÿ seate of Israel: because he hath alwaye loued Israel, & hath set the to be kynge, that thou shuldest mantayne iustyce and equyte.

And she gaue the kynge sixe score hūdreth weyght of golde and very muche spyce, & precyous stones. Ther came neuer so muche spyce thyther, as ÿ Quene of ryche Arabia gaue vnto kynge Salo mon. And Hirams shippes, * which caried golde out of Ophir, brought mar-uelous muche costly tymber and precyous stones from Ophir. And of that costly tymber the kynge caused to make pilers in the house of the LORDE, & in the kynges house, and harpes & psal teries for the musicians. There came nomore such costly tymber, nether was it sene vnto this daye. And kynge Salo mon gaue the quene of ryche Arabia, all that she desyred and axed, besydes that whiche he gaue her of a fre hande. And she returned, and departed into her londe with her seruauntes.

The golde that came to Salomon in one year, was in waight sixe hundreth and sixe and threscore talentes, besydes that which came of chapmen, [illegible] tes, and apotecaries, and of the nexte kynges, and of the mightie men in the londe. And kynge Salomon caused to make two hundreth speares of beaten golde, sixe hundreth peces of golde put he to euery speare: & thre hundreth shyldes of the best golde, euē thre pounde of golde vpon euery shylde. And the kynge

...7.a put them in the * house of the wood of Libanus.
D And the kynge made a greate seate of yuery, and ouerlayed it with ẏ moost precious golde. And the seate had sixe steppes, and the heade of the seate was rounde behynd. And there were two po stes to leane vpon on both the sydes of the seate, and two lyons stode vpon the leanynge postes, and twolue lyons stode vpon the sixe steppes on both the sydes. Suche one hath not bene made in ony kyngdome. All kynge Salomons drynkyng vessels were of golde, and all the vessels in the house of the wood of Libanus were of pure golde also, for syluer was not regarded in Salomons tyme. For the kynges seeshippe that say led vpon the see with the shippe of Hiram, came once in thre yeare, & brought golde, syluer, yuory, apes, & pecockes.
E * Thus was kynge Salomon grea 3.Re.9.d ter in rychesse and wysdome, then all the kynges vpon earth: And all the worlde desyred to see Salomō, that they might heare the wysdome whiche God gaue hym in his hart. And they brought him yearly euery man his present, vessels of syluer and golde, raymēt and harnesse spyces, horses, and mules. And Salomon broughte charrettes and horsmen together, so that he hadde a thousande and foure hundreth charettes, & twolue thousande horsmen: and those he put in the charretcities, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.
F And the kynge brought it to passe, that there was as muche syluer at Jerusalē as stones: and as many Ceders as there were wylde fyggetrees in the valleys, And Salomons horses were brought out of Egipte, and from Keua: for the kynges marchaūtes fetched thē frō Keua for money. And a charet came vp out of Egipt for sixe hūdreth Sycles of Syluer, and an horse for an hūdreth dreth wemen to wyues, and thre hun-dreth concubynes, and his wyues turned his harte asyde. And whan he was now olde, his wyues bowed his harte after straunge goddes, so that his hart was not whole with the LORDE his God, as was the harte of Dauid his father.

So Salomon walked after Asta-roth the God of the Sidonians, and after Malcom the abhominacyon of the Ammonites. And Salomon dyd that which displeased the LORDE and fo lowed not the LORDE to the vtte-most as dyd his father Dauid. Then buylded Salomon an hye place vnto Chamos ẏ abhominacion of the Moabites (vpon the mount that lyeth before B Jerusalē) and vnto Moloch the abhominacyon of the Ammonites.
Thus dyd Salomon for all his out landishe wyues, which brent incense, & offred vnto their goddes. But ẏ LOR-DE was wroth at Salomon, because his harte was turned asyde from the LORD God of Israell, * which had 3.Re.3.b two tymes appeared vnto hym, and cō and,9.a maunded hym, that he shuld not walke after other goddes: and yet kepte he not that the LORDE, commaunded hym.
Therfore sayd the LORDE vnto Sa lamon: For so muche as this is done with the, and hast not kepte my couenaūt and myne ordinaunces, whiche I commaunded the, therfore wyll I also plucke thy kyngdome from the, & geue it vnto thy seruaūt: Neuertheles in thy tyme wyl I not do it, for thy father Da uids sake, but frō the hande of thy sōne wyll I plucke it. Howbeit I wyll not plucke the kyngdome cleane awaye, One trybe wyll I geue vnto thy sonne, for Dauid my seruaūtes sake & for Je-rusalems sake which I haue chosen.

C And the LORDE raysed vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, euen Hadad the Edomite of the kynges sede, which was in Edom. For whan Dauid was in Edom, And Joab the cheke captayne wente vp to bury the slayne, he smote all the males in Edom. (For Joab re= mayned there sixe monethes and all Js= rael, tyll he had roted out all the males that were in Edom.) Then fled Hadad and certayne mẽ of the Edomites with hym, of his fathers seruauntes. As for Hadad, he was a yonge man.
And they gat them vp frõ Madian, & came vnto Parã, & toke mẽ with thẽ out of Parã, & came into Egipte vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte: which gaue him an house & certayn vitayles appoynted, & gaue hym a countre. And Hadad foũde great fauour in the sight of Pharao, so ÿ he gaue hym to wyfe euen the syster of his owne wyfe Tha phenes the Quene. And Thaphenes syster bare hym Genubath his sonne, & Thaphenes norysshed hym vp in Pha= raos house, in so much that Genubath was in Pharaos house amonge Pha= raos chyldren.
D Now whã Hadad herde in Egipte that Dauid was fallẽ on slepe with his fathers, and that Joab the chefe cap= tayne was dead, he sayd vnto Pharao: Let me go in to my countre. Pharao sayde vnto him: What lackest thou w me, that thou wylt go in to thy coũtre?
He sayde: Nothynge, but yet let me go.
God raysed hym vp an other ad= uersary also, one Reson the sonne of El Jada, which fled from his lord Hadad Eser kynge of zoba, and gathered men agaynst hym, and was a captayne of the men of warre whan Dauid slewe thẽ: & they wẽte to Damascus & dwelt there & he was Israels aduersary as lõg as Salomõ lyued. This is ÿ harm that Hadad suffred: therfore had he euel wyll at Israell, and was kynge ouer Siria.
E Moreouer Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephraite of Sareda Salo= mons seruaũt (and his mothers name was zeruga, a wedowe) lift vp his hãde also agaynst the kynge. And this is the cause wherfore he lyft vp his hande a= gaynst the kynge: Whan Salomõ buyl ded Millo, he shut vp a gappe in ÿ cite of Dauid his father. And Jeroboam was a man of armes. And whan Salo mon saw that it was a mete yonge mã, he set set hym ouer all the burthens of the house of Joseph.
But at the same tyme it fortuned, that Jeroboam wente out from Jeru salem, and the prophete Ahias of Silo founde hym by the waye, and he had a new cloke vpon hym, & they two were alone in the felde. And Ahia toke holde of the new cloke that he had on, & rent the same in to twolue peces, and sayde vnto Jeroboam: Take thou ten peces vnto the.
For thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: Beholde, euen thus wyll I rente the kyngdome from the hande of Salomon, and wyll geue the ten trybes One trybe shall he haue for my seruaũt Dauids sake, and because of the cite of Jerusalem, * which I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: for they haue forsaken me, and worshipped Astaroth the God of the Sidoniãs, Chamos the god of the Moabites, & Malcõ the god of the childrẽ of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to fulfyll my ple dyd Dauid his father.

to kyl Jeroboam. Then Jeroboam [illegible] hym vp, and fled in to Egipte to [illegible] the kynge of Egypte, and remay[illegible] Salomō. The tyme that Salomō was kynge at Jerusalem ouer all Israel, is fortye yeare. And Salomon fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buried in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xii. Chapter.

Roboam foloweth yonge councell, & maketh the people to cleue to Jeroboā, which setteth vp Idolatry with the two golden calues.

A 3.Pa.10.a AND * Roboam went vnto Sichem, for all Israell was come to Sichē to make hym kynge. And whan Jeroboā the sone of Nebat herd that 3.Re.11.f whyle he was yet in Egipte * (whether he was fledde for Salomon) he came a-gayne out of Egipte. And they sent for hym, and called hym. And Jeroboā with all the congregacyon of Israel came and spake to Roboam, and sayd: Thy father made oure yocke to harde: therfore make thou now the harde bondage & the sore yocke lyghter, that he layed vpon vs, & we wyll submytte our selues vnto the.
He sayd vnto them: Go your waye vnto the thyrde daye, and then come to me a-gayne. And the people went theyr waye.
And Roboam the kynge helde a cō cell with ŷ Elders that stode before Sa lomon his father whyle he lyued, and he sayde: What is youre councell, that we may geue this people an answere? They sayd vnto hym: Yf thou do this people a pleasure to day, & folowe theyr mynde, and heare them, & geue them good wor-des, thē shall they be obediēt vnto the as longe as thou lyuest. Neuertheles he for soke the councell that the Elders had ge uen hym, and axed councell at the yonge men which were growen vp with hym, and stode before hym.
B And he sayde vnto them: What is your coūcell ŷ we may answere this peo ple which haue said vnto me: Make the yocke lyghter that thy father hath layed vpon vs. And the yonge men that were growen vp with hym, sayd vnto hym: Where as the people haue sayd vnto ŷ: Thy father hath made our yock to sore, make thou it easyer for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My lytle fynger shalbe thicker then my fathers loynes.
Now, my father layed a sore yocke vp-on you, but I wyll yet laye more theron: My father correcte you with scourges, but I wyll nourtoure you w̄ scorpions.
So vpon the thyrde daye came Jeroboam with all the people vnto Roboam, as the kynge had appoynted & said, come to me agayne on the thyrde daye.
And the kynge gaue the people an harde roughe answere, and forsoke the councell that the Elders had geuen hym, and talked with them after the councell of the yonge men, and sayd: My father made youre yocke sore, but I wyll make it yet sorer vpon you. My father correct you with scourges, but I wyl nourtoure you with scorpions. Thus the kynge fo lowed not the peoples mynde, for he was turned so from the LORDE, that he myght stablyshe his worde * whiche he 3.Re.11.f spake by Ahias of Silo vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.
But when all Israell sawe that the C kynge wolde not heare them, the people gaue the kynge an answere, and sayd:
* What porcyon haue we then in Da- 2.Re.20.a uid or inheritaūce in the sonne of Isai?
Get the to thy tentes O Israell. Loke thou now to thy house thou Dauid. So Israel wente vnto theyr tentes. As for Roboam, he raygned but ouer the chyldren of Israel, which dwelt in the cyties of Juda. And kynge Roboam sente the-ther Adoram the rentgatherer, al Israel stoned hym to death. But kynge Roboam strengthed hymselfe, and gat him vp in to a charet, to flye vnto Jerusalem.
Thus departed Israel from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.
Now whā all Israel herde, that Je roboam was come agayne, they sent for to call hym to the whole congregacyon, and made hym kynge ouer all Israel.
And no man folowed the house of Da-uid, saue onely the tribe of Juda. * And 2.Pa.11.a whan Roboam came to Jerusalem, all the house of Juda and the trybe of Ben Jamin (euen an hūdreth and foure score thousande chosen men of armes) gathered thē selues together to fyght agaynst the house of Israell, and to brynge the kyngdome agayne vnto Roboam the sonne of Salomon.
But the worde of God came to Se- D meia the man of God, and said: Speake thou to Roboam the sōne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and to all the house of Juda and BenJamin, and to all the other people, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Ye shall not go vp and fyght agaynst youre brethren the chyldren of Israell. Let euery man go home agayne, for this is my dede. And they her kened vnto the worde of the LORDE, and turned backe, to go theyr waye, as the LORD sayd. But Roboam buyl-ded Sichem vpon mount Ephraim, and dwelt therin, and departed thẽce, & buyl Jeroboam thought in his hart: The kyngdome shall fall agayne now vnto ẏ he ordeyned the preestes of the hye places that he had made, and offred vpon ẏ altare (which he had made) at Bethell, the he inuented of his owne hart. And he made the chyldren of Israel an holy day, and wente vp to the altare to burne incense.

The.xiii.Chapter.

Jeroboam despiseth the prophet of ẏ LORDE, is punysshed, and restored to grace agayne. A Lyon slayeth the disobedient prophete.

A AND beholde, there came a mã of God from Juda, (thorow the worde of LORDE) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stode by the altare to burne incẽse.
And he cryed agaynst the altare thorow the worde of the LORDE, and sayde:

And he gaue a wõder token ẏ same day, and sayde: This is the token, that the LORDE hath spoken it, beholde, the altare shall ryue, and the asshes, that are theron, shalbe poured out.
But whan the kynge herde ẏ worde of the mã of God, that cryed agaynst ẏ altar at Bethel, he stretched out his hãde by the altare, and sayd: Laye hondes on hym. And his hãde that he stretched out agaynst hym, wythered, & he coulde not drawe it vnto hym agayne. And the altare dyd ryue, and the asshes were poured out from ẏ altare, accordynge to the wonder token that the man of God had geuen by the worde of the LORDE.
And the kynge answerd, and sayde ẏ the man of God: * O praye the face [illegible] of the LORDE thy God, and make in [illegible] tercession for me, that my hande may be [illegible] restored vnto my agayne. Then prayed [illegible] the mã of God vnto the face of ẏ LOR-DE. And the kynges hande was restored hym agayne, and became as it was afore. And the kynge sayd vnto the man of God: Come home with me, and dyne and I wyll geue the a rewarde.
But the man of God sayde vnto the kynge: Yf thou geuest me halfe thy house, I wyll not come with the: for in this place wyl I nether eat bread, nor drynke water. For thus am I commanded, and thus is it sayd vnto me by the worde of the LORDE: Thou shalt eate no bread, & drynke no water, nether returne the waye that thou wentest.
And he departed another waye, and C returned not agayne the waye that he came to Bethell. But at Bethell there dwelt an olde prophete vnto whom his sonnes came, and tolde hym all the wor kes that the man of God had done that daye at Bethel, and the wordes that he had spoken vnto the kynge. And theyr father sayd vnto them: Which waye is he gone? And his sõnes shewed hym the waye that the man of God was gone: which came from Juda. He sayd vnto his sõnes: Sadle me the asse. And whan they had sadled hym ẏ asse, he rode ther on, and went after the man of God, and founde hym syttynge vnder an Oke tre, and sayd vnto him: Art thou the man of God that came from Juda? He sayde: Yee.
He said vnto hym: Come home with D me, and eate bread. He sayd: I maye not turne backe with ẏ, ne come with the,

Nether wyll I eate bread, nor drynke water with ye in this place: for it is spoken vnto me by the worde of ye LORDE Thou shalt nether eate bread there, nor agayne by the waye which thou wen-prophet as well as thou, and an angell hath spoken with me by the worde of the LORDE, and sayde: Brynge hym agayne with the, yt he maye eate bread, and drynke water. But he lyed vnto him, and brought hym agayne, so that he dyd eate bread, and dranke water in his house.

And whan they sat at the table, the worde of the LORDE came to ye prophet that had brought hym agayne, & cryed vnto the mã which was come frõ Juda, and sayde: Thus sayeth ye LOR

And whan he had eaten bread and dronkẽ, the asse was sadled vnto ye pro phet whom he had brought agayne.
3.Re.20.f. * And whan he was gone, a lyon foũde him by the waye, and slewe hym, & his body was cast in the waye. And the asse stode by him, and the lyon stode by the body. And whã men wete by, they sawe the body cast in the waye, and the lyon stondynge besyde the body, & they came and tolde it in the cyte, where the olde F prophet dwelt.

Whã ye prophet which had brought hym agayne, herde that, he sayde: It is the man of God, that hath bene disobedient vnto the mouth of the LORD, therfore hath the LORDE delyuered hym vnto the Lyon, which hath rente hym, and slayne hym, acoordynge to the worde that the LORDE spake vnto him. And he sayd vnto his sonnes: Sad del me the asse. And whan they had sad-led it, he wente, and found his body cast in the way and the asse and the lyon stõ-dynge besyde the body. The lyon had eaten nothynge of the body, nether had he torne the asse. Then toke the prophet the dead coarse of the man of God, and layed it vpon the asse, and brought it a-gayne in to the cyte of the olde prophet, to mourne, and to burye hym.

And he layed the coarse in his owne G graue, and they mourned for him: Alas my brother. And whan they had buryed hym, he sayde vnto his sonnes: Whan I dye, burye me in the graue where the man of God is buried, and laye my bones besyde his bones. * For it shal come 4.Re.23.c to passe, that he cried (thorow the worde of the LORDE) agaynst the alter att Bethel, and agaynst all the houses of ye hye places, which are in the cyties of Samaria,

Howbeit after this acte dyd not Jeroboam turne from his euell waye, but was peruerted, and made prestes of the hye places, euen of the smallest of ye peo places. And this turned to synne vnto ye house of Jeroboam, to destroye hym, and to brynge hym to naught, from of the earth.

¶ Jeroboam dyeth, his sonne Nadab wyfe dyd so, and gat hir vp, and wente vnto Silo, and came in to the house of Ahias. But Ahias coulde not se, for his eyes were dimme for age. Neuerthelesse the LORDE sayde vnto Ahias: Be-

C Get the vp therfore, and go home, & whan thy fete entre in to the cyte, the shall rayse him vp a kynge ouer Israell which shall rote out the house of Jero-

Abia raygneth in Juda, after hi raig-neth Asa, which hadde warre wt Baasa the kyng of Israel. After hym raygneth Josaphat: and Baesa dyeth.

IN the * eyghtenth yeare of 2.Pa kynge Jeroboam ŷ sõne of Nebat, was Abia kynge in Juda, & reigned thre yeare at Jerusalẽ. His mothers name was * Maecha, ŷ doughter of Abisa 2.Pa and he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before hym, & his hart was not perfect wt the LORD his god, as was the harte of Dauid his 3.Re.11.f father. * For because of Dauids sake dyd the LORDE his God geue hym a lanterne at Ierusalem, so that he raysed his sōne after hym, and mantayned him at Ierusalem, because Dauid dyd the thynge that was ryght in the syght of the LORD, and departed not from all that he cōmaūded hym as long as he ly-2.Re.11.a. ued (sauynge in ye matter with * Urias the Hethite). But there was warre be-twene Roboam and Ieroboā, as longe as he lyued.

What more there is to saye of Abia and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wryttē in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda, There was warre also betwene Abia & Ieroboam. And Abia slepte with his fa thers, and they buried hym in the cyte of B Dauid. And Asa his sonne was kynge 2.Pa.14.a in his steade. * In the twentieth yeare of kynge Ieroboā ouer Israel, was Asa kynge in Iuda, and raygned one & fortye yeare at Ierusalem. His graundmo thers name was Maecha the doughter of Abisalom. And Asa dyd that whiche was ryght in the syght of ye LORDE, as dyd his father Dauid. And he remo-3.Re.22.g ued the * whoremōgers out of ye londe, and put downe all the Idols that his fa 2.Pa.15.d thers had made. * And put his mother also from the mynistracion, that she had made vnto Miplezeth in the groue. And Asa roted out her Miplezeth, and brent it in the broke Cedrō, but the hye places put he not downe. Yet was the hart of Asa perfecte with the LORD as longe as he lyued. And the syluer & golde, and vessels that his father had halowed, & suche as was sanctified vnto the house of the LORDE, that brought he in.
And there was warre betwene Asa and Baesa the kynge of Israel, as longe as they lyued.

C * Baesa the kynge of Israell wente 2.Pa.16.a vp agaynst Iuda, and buylded Rama, that nomā shulde go out and in of Asas syde to ye kynge of Iuda. Thē toke Asa all the syluer and golde that was lefte in the treasure of the house of the LORD and in the treasure of the kinges house, and delyuered it in to his seruauntes hā 3.Re.20.a des, and sent it vnto * Benadad the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne of Hesion kynge of Siria, whiche dwelt at Da-mascon, and let saye vnto hym: There is a couenaunt betwene me and the, and betwene my father and thy father: therfore sende I the a present of syluer and golde, that thou shuldest breake the coue naunt which thou hast with Baesa the kynge of Israel, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadad agreed vnto kynge Asa, & sent his captaynes agaynst the cyties of Israel, and smote Ion, and Dan, and Abel Beth Maecha, and all Cineroth with the whole lōde of Nephtali. Whē Baesa herde that, he lefte of from buyldynge Rama, and wente agayne vnto Thirza.

Kynge Asa caused it be proclamed in D all Iuda: Here be no man excepted. And they toke awaye the stones & tymber frō Rama, wherwith Baesa had buylded.
And kynge Asa buylded Geba BenJamin, and Mispa therwith.

What more there is to saye of Asa, and of all his power, and al that he dyd, and of the cyties which he buylded, be-holde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda: sauynge that in his olde age he was diseased in his fete.
And Asa slepte with his fathers, & was buried with his fathers in ye cyte of Da uid his father. * And Iosaphat his sōne 2.Pa.17.a was kynge in his steade.

But Nadab the sonne of Ieroboā E was kynge of Israel in the secōde yeare of Asa kynge of Iuda, & raygned ouer Israel two yeare, & dyd euell in ye syght of the LORDE, & walked in the waye of his father, and in his synnes, wherwith he made Israel to synne. Howbeit Baesa the sonne of Ahia of the house of Isachar cōspired agaynst hym, & smote hym at Gibbethon, which was the Phi listynes: for Nadab and al Israel layed sege to Gibbethon. So Baesa slewe hym in the thyrde yeare of Asa kynge of Iuda, and was kynge in his steade.
* Now when he was kynge, he smote 3.Re.14.c all the house of Ieroboam, and let no-thynge of Ieroboam remayne that had breth, tyll he had destroyed it, accordyng to the worde of the LORDE, which he spake by his seruaunt Ahia of Silo, because of Ieroboās synnes which he dyd and made Israel synne withall: euen w the prouokynge wherwith he displeased the LORDE God of Israel.

What more there is to saye of Na- F dab, and all yt he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in ye Cronicles of the kynges of Israel, & there was warre betwene Asa & Baesa the kynge of Israell, as longe as they lyued.

The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Ella reygneth in steade of his father Baesa. Simri slayeth hym, and taketh the kyngdome. The people are deuyded. Achab is kynge.

A IN ý sixe & twentyeth yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, was Ella ý sōne of Baesa kynge ouer Israel at Thirza two yeare. Neuerthelesse his ser-uaunt Simri, the pryncypall man ouer the halfe of the charettes conspyred against him. As for Ella, he was at Thir za, drāke & was dronkē in ý house of Arza the ruler of Thirza. And Simri came in, & slewe hym in the seuen & twentieth 3.Re.14.b yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, & was kyng and.21.d in his steade. * And whā he was kynge and sat vpon his seate, he smote all the house of Baesa, and left not so much as one to make water agaynst the wal: his bloude auenger also and his frendes.
* Thus dyd Simri destroy al the house 3.Re.x[illegible] of Baesa, accordynge to the worde of ý LORDE, which he spake ouer Baesa by the prophete Jehu, because of all the synnes of Baesa and of Ella his sonne, which they dyd, and made Israell for to synne, to prouoke the LORDE God of Israel vnto wrath thorow theyr vanities. What more there is to saye of Ella, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.
In the seuen and twentieth yeare of B Asa kynge of Juda, was Simri kynge vii. dayes at Thirza, & ý people laye before Gibbethon of the Philistines. But whan the people in the hoost herde saye that Simri had conspired and slayne ý kynge, then all Israell ý same day made Amri the chefe captayne kynge ouer all in the hoost. And Amri wente vp and al Israel with hym from Gibbethon, and layed sege vnto Thirza. * But whan 4.Re.[illegible] Simri sawe that ý cyte shulde be wōne he wente in to the palace in the kynges house, & brent it with the kynges house, and dyed because of his synnes whiche he had commytted, in that he dyd euel in the syght of the LORDE, and walked in the waye of Jeroboam, & in his syn-nes whiche he dyd, wherwith he made Israel to synne.
What more there is to saye of Sim ri, and how he conspyred, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. At the same tyme were ý people deuyded in two partes: the one part helde with Thibni the sōne of Ginath that they might make hym kynge: the o- C ther halfe helde with Amri. But the peo ple that held with Amri, were myghtier then the people which helde with Thib ni the sonne of Ginath. And Thibni dyed, and Amri was kynge.
In the one & thyrtieth yeare of Asa kynge of Juda, was Amri kynge ouer Israell twelfe yeares, and raygned at Thirza sixe yeares. He bought the mount of Samaria of Semer for two hundreth weyght of syluer, and buylded vpon the mount, & called the cyte which he buylded, after ý name of Semer the owner of the mount of Samaria. And Amri dyd ý which was euel in the syght of the LORDE, and was worse then all they that were before hym, and walked in all the wayes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & in his synnes, wher-wt he made Israel to synne, so yt they pro ked the LORDE of Israell vnto wrath in their vanities. What more there is to saye of Amri, and all that he dyd, & his power that he exercysed, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronycles of the kynges of Israell. And Amri slepte with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, and Achab his sōne was kyng in his steade.

D In the eyght and thirtieth yeare of Asa kyng of Juda, was Achab the sōne of Amri kynge ouer Israel, and raigned ouer Israel at Samaria two and twen tye yeare, and dyd euell in the syght of ye LORDE, more thē all they that were before hym. And he thought it but a smal matter to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat: * & toke Jesabel ye doughter of Eth Baal kinge of Sidon to wyfe, and wente and ser-ued Baal, and worshipped him. And vn to Baal he set vp an altare in Baals house, which he buylded hym in Sama ria and made a groue: so that Achab dyd more to prouoke the God of Israell vnto wrath, then all the kynges yt were before hym in Israell.
At the same tyme dyd Hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho: * It cost hym his first sonne Abiram, that he layed ye foun dacion: and his yongest sonne Segub, that he set vp the portes: Accordynge to the worde of ye LORDE, which he spake by Josua the sonne of Nun.

The.xvii.Chapter.

A greate drouth and derth in Elias tyme the LORDE fedeth him thorow ye rauens, and by the wedowe at Sa-repta.

B AND Elias the Thesbite one of the inhabiters of Gilead, sayde vnto Achab: * As tru ly as the LORDE God of Israel liueth, whose seruaūt I am, there shall nether rayne nor dew come this yeare, except I speake it.

3.Re.18.f 4.Re.3.c Jacob.5.c Luc.4.c

And the worde of the LORDE came vnto hym, and sayde: Get the hence, and turne the towarde the east, and hyde the by ye ryuer Crith, which is ouer against Jordane, and thou shalt drynke of the ryuer: and I haue commaunded the rauens, that they shal fede the there. He de parted, and dyd accordynge to ye worde of the LORDE, & wente his waye, & sat him down by the ryuer Crith, which is ouer agaynst Jordane. And the rauēs broughte him bread and flesh in the mor-nynge, and in the euenynge, & he dranke of the ryuer.
And it fortuned after certaine dayes, that the ryuer was dryed vp: for there was no rayne in the londe. Then came the worde of the LORDE vnto hym, and sayde: * Get the vp, and go vnto Luc.4.d Sarepta, which lyeth by Sidō: for there haue I cōmaunded a wedowe to make prouysion for the.
And he gat hym vp, and wente vnto Sarepta. And whan he came to ye gate B of the cyte, beholde, the wedowe was there, and gathered stickes. And he called her, and sayd: Fetch me a litle water in a vessel, that I maye drynke. And as she was goinge to fetch it, he cryed vnto her, and sayde: Brynge me a morsell of bread also in thyne hande. She sayde: As truly as the LORDE thy God lyueth, I haue no bread, but an handfull of floure in a pytcher, and a curtesy oyle in a cruse: and beholde, I haue gathered vp one or two stickes, & wyll go and pre pare it for me and my sonne, that we maye eate and dye.
Elias sayde vnto her: Feare not, go thy way, and do as thou hast sayde: yet make me fyrst a morsel of bread therof, and brynge it me forth: and afterwarde shalt thou make it for the, and thy sōne.
For thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israel: The meel in the pitcher shal not be spent, and the oyle in the cruse shall not fayll, vntyll the daye that ye LOR-DE shal cause it for to rayne vpō earth She wente and dyd as Elias sayd. And he dyd eate, and she also, and hir house a certayne season. The meel in the pytcher was not mynished, and the oyle in the cruse fayled not, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE which he spake by Elias.
✠ And after these actes the sonne of C the wyfe of ye house was sicke: and his syknes was so exceadynge sore, yt there remayned no breth in hym. And she said vnto Elias: What haue I to do wt the, thou man of God? Art thou come in vn to me, yt my synne shulde be kepte in re membraunce, & that my sonne shulde be slayne? He sayd vnto her: Geue me thy sonne. And he toke him from hir lappe, & caried him vp in to ye chāber where he himselfe dwelt, & layed hym vpon his bed, & called vpõ ÿ LORDE, & sayde: O LORDE my god hast ÿ dealt so euel w ÿ wedow w whõ I dwel, ÿ thou woldest Ecc.48.a. slaye hir sonne? And * he stretched out him selfe ouer the chylde thre tymes. & called vpon the LORDE, & sayde: O LORDE my God, let the soule of of this chylde come agayne in to hym.

And ÿ LORDE herde ÿ voyce of Elias.
And the soule of the chyld, came againe to him & he reuiued. And Elias toke ÿ child, brought hym down frõ ÿ chãber in to the house, and delyuered him vnto his mother, and sayd: Beholde thy sõne lyueth. And the woman sayd vnto Elias: Now knowe I, that thou art a mã of God, and that the worde of ÿ LOR-DE is in thy mouth of a truth.

The.xviii.Chapter.

Elias commeth agayne vnto Achab All Baals prestes are slayne.

A AND after a lõge seasõ came the worde of ÿ LORDE vnto Elias in ÿ thyrd yeare Jacob.5.c and sayde: * Go thy waye and shewe thy selfe vnto Achab, ÿ I maye cause it for to rayne vpon earth. And Elias wente to shewe hymselfe vnto Achab. But there was a greate derth in Samaria. And Achab called Abdia his chefe officer: (As for Ab-dia, he feared the LORDE greatly: for whan Jesabel roted out the prophetes of the LORDE, Abdia toke an. C. prophetes, and hyd them in caues, here fyftye, and there fyftye, and prouided for thẽ with bread and water.) Achab now sayd vnto Abdia: Go thorow the londe vnto al the welles of water & ryuers, yf happlye we maye fynde hay, to saue the horses and mules, ÿ all the catell perishe not. And they parted them selues in to the londe, to go thorow it. Achab departed the one waye alone, and Abdia the other waye alone.

Now whã Abdia was on the way, C Elias met him. And whã he knewe him he fell downe vpon his face, and sayde: Art not thou my lorde Elias? He sayde: yee, go thy waye, and tell thy lorde: be-holde, Elias is here. But he sayd: What haue I offended, that thou wilt delyuer thy seruaunt in to the handes of Achab, that he maye slaye me? As truly as the LORDE thy God lyueth, there is no B people nor kyngdom, but my lord hath sent thither to seke the. And whan they sayde: He is not here, he toke an ooth of the same kyngdome and nacyon, that they had not founde the. And now thou sayest: Go tell thy LORDE: beholde, Elias is here. Now yf I were gone frõ the, the sprete of the LORDE shulde take the awaye, I can not tell whither: & yf I then came and tolde Achab, and founde the not, he shulde slaye me: But thy seruaunt feareth the LORDE from his youth vp. Hath it not bene tolde my lorde what I dyd, whan Jesabel slewe the prophetes of the LORDE, how ÿ I hyd an hundreth of the LORDES prophetes, here fyftye, and there fiftye in the caues, and prouided for thẽ with bread and water? And thou sayest now, Go thy waye, tel thy lord Elias is here that he maye slaye me. Elias sayde: As truly as the LORDE zebaoth lyueth, before whom I stonde, I wyl shewe my selfe vnto hym this daye. Then wente Abdia to mete Achab, and tolde hym.
Achab wente for to mete Elias.

And whã Achab sawe Elias, Achab sayde vnto hym: Art thou he that troublest Israel? He sayde I trouble not Ifrael * but it is thou and thy fathers Jere.6.a house, because ye haue forsaken the cõmaundementes of the LORDE, and walke after Baal. Go to, sende forth C now, and gather me all Israel together vnto mount Carmell, and the foure hũ-dreth and fyftye prophetes of Baal, and the foure hũdreth prophetes of ÿ groue, which eate of Jesabels table. So Achab sent vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and gathered the prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

Thẽ stepte Elias vnto al the people, and sayde: How longe halte ye on both the sydes? Yf the LORDE be God, thẽ walke after hym: but yf Baal be he, thẽ folowe hym. Thẽ sayde Elias vnto the people: I onely am left a prophet of the LORDE: but Baals prophetes are foure. C. and fyftye men. Geue vs now two bullockes, and let them chose one bullocke, and hewe him in peces, & laye him vpon the wood, and put no fyre theron: so wyll I take the other bullock, & laye hym vpon the wood, & put no fyre theron also: call ye then vpon the name of your God, and I wyll call vpon the name of the LORDE: Loke which God now answereth with fyre, let the same be God. And all the people answered & sayde: That is ryght. And Elias sayde vnto Baals prophetes: Chose ye one bullock, and do ye it fyrst (for ye are many) & call ye vpon the name of your god, and laye no fyre theron.

D And they toke the bullocke which he gaue them, and prepared it, and called vpon the name of Baall from the mor= nynge vnto the noone daye, and sayde: O Baall heare vs. But there was ne= ther voyce nor answere. And they hop= ped aboute the altare, as their vse was to do. Now whan it was noone daye, Elias mocked them, and sayde: Crye loude, for he is a god, peradueuture he is musynge, or hath somwhat to do, or is gone some iourney, or happlye he sle= peth, so yͭ he wolde be waked vp. And they cryed loude, and prouoked them sel ues with knyues, and botkẽs, (as theyr maner was) tyll yͤ bloude folowed. But whan the none daye was past, they pro phecied vntyll the tyme that the meate offerynge shulde be offered, and there was nether voyce, nor answere, nor one to regarde them.
Then sayde Elias vnto all the peo= ple: Come hither all ye people vnto me.
And whan all the people came to hym, Ex.14.c he repayred * the altare of the LOR= Iud.6.b DE that was broken, & toke twolue stones accordynge of the nombre of the trybes of the chyldren of Iacob (vnto Gen.32.c whom the worde of the LORDE spake Gen.35.b and sayde: * Thy name shalbe Israel) and of the stones he buylded an altare in the name of the LORDE, & made a pytrounde aboute the altare, lyke two forowes in the corne londe, and prepa= red the woode, and hewed the bullocke in peces, and layed hym vpon the wood E and sayde: Fetch foure pitchers full of water, and poure it vpon the burntoffe= ryng, and vpon the wood. And he sayde: Do it the thirde tyme. And they dyd it the thirde tyme. And the water ranne aboute altare, and the pytt was full of water also.
And whan the tyme was to offere the meatofferynge, Elias stepte forth, and sayde: O LORDE God of Abra= ham, of Isaac, and of Israell, let it be knowne this daye, that thou art God in Israell, and I thy seruaunte, and that I haue done all this accordynge vnto thy worde. Heare me O LORD, O hear me, that this people may know how that thou art the LORDE God, that thou mayest afterward turne their Iud.6.b hartes. * Then fell downe the fyre of Gen.4.a the LORDE, and consumed the burnt 2.Par.7.b offeryng, yͤ wood, the stones & the earth & lycked vp yͤ water that was in yͤ pyt.
Whan al the people sawe that, they fel vpon their faces, and sayde: The LOR DE is God, the LORDE is God.
Elias sayde vnto thẽ *: Laye handes Deu.13.b vpõ Baals prophetes, that none of thẽ Deu.17.b escape. And they toke them. And Elias brought them downe vnto the broke Cy son, and slewe thẽ there.
And Elias sayd vnto Achab: Go vp, F eate & drynke, for it soundeth as though it wolde rayne sore. And whan Achab wente vp to eate and drynke. Elias as= cended vp to the toppe of Carmel, and bowed hymselfe downe to the earth, & put his heade betwene his knees: & sayd vnto his lad: Go vp, and loke towarde the see. He wente vp and loked, & sayde: There is nothynge. He sayd: Go agayne seuen tymes. And at the seuenth tyme he sayde, Beholde, there goeth vp a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke a mans hãde.
He sayde: Go vp, and saye vnto Achab: Bynde thy charret, and go downe, that the rayne ouertake the not. And or a mã coulde turne hym, the heauẽ was blacke with cloudes and wynde, & there came a greate rayne. But Achab rode his way, and departed vnto Iesrael. And the hande of the LORDE came vpon Eli as, and he gyrde his loynes, and ranne before Achab, tyl he came vnto Iesrael.

Iesabel threatneth Elias, he flyeth

Horeb Eliseus is called.

A AND Achab tolde Iesabel all that Elias had done, & how he had slayne all Baals pro phetes with the swearde.
Then sent Iesabel a messaun ger vnto Elias, sayenge, The goddes do this and that vnto me, yf I tomorowe aboute his tyme, make not thy soule as one of these. Then was he afrayed, and gat hym vp, and wente where he wolde * and came vnto Bersaba in Iuda, & lefte his lad there. But he hymselfe wente a dayes iourney into the wylder= nes, and came in, and sat him downe vn der a Iuniper tree, & wysshed vnto his soule that he myght dye, and sayd: It is now ynough LORD, take my soule, for I am no better thẽ my fathers. And he layed him down & slepte vnder the Iu=

And beholde, the angel touched him and sayd vnto him, Stande vp, & eate.
And he loked aboute him, & beholde at his heade there was a breade baken on the coles, and a cruse with water. And whan he had eaten and dronken, he lay ed hym downe agayne to slepe.

B And the angell of the LORDE, came agayne the seconde tyme, and tou ched hym, and sayde: Stonde vp, & eate for thou hast a greate waye to go. And he arose, and dyd eate and drynke, and wente on thorow the strength of that teth agaynste Samaria and Israell, is ouercome and discomfited.

of Siria gathered al his po 3. Re. 15 wer, and there were two & thirtie kynges with hym, and horses and charettes, and he wente vp, and layed sege vnto Samaria, and fought agaynste it. And he sent messaūgers vnto Achab ye kyng of Israel in to the cite, & caused to saye vnto hym: Thus saieth Benadad: Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and thy wyues and thy beste chyldren are myne also. The kynge of Israell answered, & sayde: My lord O kynge, euen as thou hast sayde, I am thyne, and all that I haue.
And the messaungers came agayne, and sayde: Thus sayeth Benadad: For so muche as I haue sent vnto the, say-enge: Thy syluer and thy golde, thy wy ues and thy chyldrē shalt thou geue me, tomorow aboute this tyme wyl I sende my seruauntes vnto the, that they may searche thyne house, and the houses of thy subiectes: and loke what pleasaunt thynge thou hast, that shall they take in their handes, and cary it away. So the B kynge of Israel called all the Elders of the londe, and sayd: Marke wel and se, what myschefe this mā seketh: he sent vnto me for my wyues, and chyldrē: for syluer and golde, and I haue not sayde hym nay. The sayde all the Elders and all the people vnto him: Thou shalt not cōsente nor agree vnto hym, & he spake vnto Benadads messaungers, Say vnto my lorde the kynge: All the thynges wherfore ỹ dyddest sende vnto me thy seruaũt at the fyrst, wold I haue done: but this can I not do. And the messaũ-gers wēte, & tolde this agayn. Thē sent Benadad vnto hym sayenge: The god-des do this & that vnto me, yf the dust of Samaria shalbe ynough, for euery one of my people to brynge me an hand full therof. But the kynge of Israel an swered, & sayde: Tell hym. Let not hym ỹ putteth on ỹ harnes, make his boast lyke hym that hath put it of. Whā Be-nadad herde that (euen as he was dryn kynge with the kinges in the paulyon) he sayd vnto his seruauntes: Set youre selues in araye. And they sett thē selues in araye agaynst the cite.

And beholde, there came a prophet vnto Achab the kynge of Israell, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Hast thou sene all this greate multitude: Be-holde, this daye wyll I delyuer them in to thy hande, so that thou shalt knowe, how that I am the LORDE. Achab C sayde: By whome? He sayd: Thus say eth the LORDE: Euen by the yonge men of the rulers of the lōde. He sayde: Who shall order the battayll? He sayd: Thou. Thē mustered he ỹ yonge mē of the rulers of the londe, and there were two hundreth and two and thirtie of them: and after them mustered he of the whole people of all the childrē of Israel seuen thousande men, and they wente out in the noone daye. As for Benadad, he dranke and was dronken in the pauylion with the two and thirtie kynges which were come to helpe hym. And the yonge men of the rulers of the londe wente forth fyrst.

Benadad sent forth, & they brought hym worde and sayde: There come mē out of Samaria. He sayde: Take them alyue, whether they be come forth for peace, or for warre. But whan the lōde rulers yonge men were gone forth, and the hoost behynd them, euery one smote hym that came in his way. And ỹ Siri ans fled, and Israell folowed after thē.
And Benadad the kynge of Siria esca ped with horses and horsmen. And the kynge of Israel wente forth, and smote horses and charettes, and dyd a greate slaughter on the Sirians.

D Thē came there a prophet vnto the kynge of Israel, and sayd vnto him: Go thy waye and strength the, and take hede and loke well what thou doest: for whā the yeare is aboute, the kynge of Siria shall come vp agaynst the. For ỹ kynge of ỹ Syrians seruaũtes said vnto him: Theyr goddes are goddes of the moun taynes, therfore haue they gotten the victory.

But let vs fyght with them on the playne, and thou shalt se that we shal o-uercome them. Do thus, put awaye the kynges euery one from his place, & set dukes in theyr steades, and appoynt the an hoost as was that whiche thou hast lost, and horses and charettes as the other were, and let vs fyght agaynst thē in the playne, and thou shalt se that we shall haue the victory. He consented vnto theyr voyce, and dyd so.

Now whan the yeare was gone a-boute, Benadad appoynted the Syriās and went vp towarde Aphek, to fyghte agaynst Israel, and the chyldren of Israel mustered, and prouyded thē selues with vytayles, and went to mete them, & pitched theyr tentes ouer agaynst thē, lyke two lytle flockes of goates but the londe was full of the Syrians.

And there came a man of God, and E sayd vnto the kynge of Israel: Thus sayeth the LORDE: because the Syrians haue sayd, that the LORDE is a God of the mountaynes & not a God of the valleys, therfore haue I geuen al this great heape in to thy handes, that ye may knowe how that I am ỹ LOR DE. And they pitched theyr tētes ryght ouer agaynst them seuen dayes. But vp pon the the seuenth daye they wente together in the battayll: and the chyldren of Israel smote of the Syrians an hun dreth thousande fote men in one daye, & the remnaunt fled to Aphek in to the cy te, and the wal fell vpon the other seuen and twenty thousande men. And Bena dad fled also vnto the cyte in to a lytle chamber.

Then sayd his seruaũtes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herde that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kyn ges, Let vs therfore put sakcloth about our loynes, and halters about oure nec-kes, and go forth to the kynge of Israel peraduenture he shall let thy soule lyue.

And they put sakcloth aboute theyr F loynes, and halters aboute theyr neckes and came to the kynge of Israel, & sayd: Benadad thy seruaunt sayeth vnto the:

O let my soule lyue. He sayde: yf he be yet alyue, he is my brother. And the men toke hym shortly at his worde, and ex= pounded it for them selues and sayde: Yee Benedad is thy brother. He sayde: Come and brynge hym. The wente Be nadad forth vnto hym, & he caused him to syt vpon the charet, and sayde vnto him: The cities that my father toke fro thy father wyll I geue the agayne. And make thou streetes for thy selfe at Da= mascon, as my father dyd at Samaria, so wyll I lete the go with a bonde of peace. And he made a couenaunt with hym, and let hym go.

Then spake there a man amōge the chyldren of the prophetes vnto his negh boure by the worde of the LORDE: I pray the smyte me. But he refused to smyte hym. Then sayde he vnto hym, because thou hast not herkened vnto ye voyce of the LORDE, beholde, there= 3.Re.13.e fore shall there a lyon smyte the, whan thou goest fro me. *And whan he wēte C frō hym, a lyon foūde hym, & slew him.

And he founde another mā, & sayde: I pray ye smyte me. And the man smote hym, and wounded hym. Then wente the prophet and stepte vnto the kynge by the waye syde, and altered his face with asshes. And whan the kynge wente by, he cryed vpon the kynge, and sayde: Thy seruaunt wēte forth in to the bat= tayll, and behold, there wente one asyde and brought a man vnto me, and sayd: Kepe this mā: yf he be myssed, thy soul shalbe in steade of his soule, or els thou shalt weye downe an hundreth weight of syluer. And whyle thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was awaye. The kynge of Israel sayde vnto hym: It is thyne owne iudgement, thou hast geuen it thy selfe.

Then put he the asshes from his fa= ce in all the hayst. And the kynge of Is= raell knewe hym, that he was one of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Because thou hast let the damned man go, ther= fore shall thy soule be for his soule, and thy people for his people. And the kyng of Israel departed vnto his house, be= ynge troubled in his mynde and full of indignacyon, and came to Samaria.

The .xxi. Chapter.

Achab oppresseth Naboth for his vynyarde. Elias rebuketh hym.

The .xxi. Chapter.

After these actes it fortuned A that Naboth the Israelite had a vynyarde at Iesraell besyde the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And A= chab spake to Naboth, and sayde: Geue me thy vynyarde, I wyll make me an herbgarden therof, because it is so nye my house: I wyll geue the a better vyn yarde for it: or yf it pleaset the, I wyll geue the syluer for it, as muche as it is worth But Naboth sayde vnto Achab:
*The LORDE let that be farre fro me, Leui. 2 that I shulde geue the my fathers heri= Nu. 36 tage. Then came Achab home, beynge moued and ful of indignacyon, because of ye worde that Naboth the Iesraelite had spoken vnto hym, and sayde: I wyll not geue the my fathers inheritaunce, And he layed hym down vpon his bed, and turned his face asyde, and dyd eate no bread. Then Iesabell his wyfe came in to hym and sayde vnto hym: What is the matter, that thy sprete is so com= bred, and that thou eatest no bread? He sayde vnto her: I haue spoken vnto Na both the Iesraelite, and sayde: Geue me thy vynyarde for money: or yf it please the, I wyll geue the another for it. But he sayde: I wyll not geue the my vyn= yarde.

Then sayde Iesabel his wyfe vnto B hym: what were the kyngdome in Is= raell, yf thou dyddest it? Stōde vp, and eate breade, I wyll get the the vynyard of Naboth the Israelite. And she wrote a letter vnder Achabs name, and sealed it with his signet, and sent it vnto the Elders and rulers in his cite, which dwelt aboute Naboth, and wrote thus in ye letter: Proclame a fast, and set Na both aboue in the people, and set two men of Belial before hym, to testifye & saye: Thou hast blasphemed God and the kynge. And brynge hym forth, and stone hym to death.

And the Elders and rulers of his cyte, which dwelt in his cite, dyd as Ie= sabell had cōmaunded them, accordynge as she had wrytten in the letter that she sent vnto them & they proclamed a fast, & caused Naboth to syt aboue amonge the people. Then came the two men of Belial, and stode before hym, and testi= fyed agaynst Naboth in the presence of the people, & sayde: Naboth hath blas= phemed God and the kynge.

Then brought they hym out of the cite, and stoned hym to death. And they sent Iesabel wordes, sayenge: Naboth is stoned and put to death. Whan Iesa bell herde that Naboth was stoned and dead, she sayde vnto Achab: Up, and C take possession of the vynyarde of Na-both the Iesraelite, whiche he denyed to geue the for money: for Naboth lyueth nomore but is dead. And whan Achab herde that Naboth was dead, he rose to go downe vnto the vynyarde of Naboth the Iesraelite, and to take possession of it.

But the worde of the LORDE came to Elias the Thesbite, and sayd: Get the vp, & go downe to mete Achab the kynge of Israel, which is at Sama ria: beholde, he is in Naboths vynyard in to y which he is gone downe to take possessiō of it, and talke thou with him and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou hast slayne, and taken in possession. And thou shalt talke morouer vnto him, and say: Thus sayeth the LORDE

The.xxii.Chapter.

Iosaphat and Achab helpe one ano ther to fighte. The prophet Micheas warneth them.

A Nd there passed ouer thre A yeares, that there was no warre betwene the Sirians and Israell. * But in the 2.Par.18.a thirde yeare wente Iosaphat the kynge of Iuda downe to the kynge of Israell. And the kynge of Israell sayde vnto his seruauntes: Knowe ye not that Ramoth in Gilead is oures? and we sytt styll, and take it not out of the hande of the kynge of Siria. And he sayde vnto Iosaphat: Wilt thou go with me to the battayll vnto Ramoth in Gilead? Iosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: I wyll be as thou, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. And Iosaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israell: * Axe this 1.Re.23.a the kynge of Israell: gathered the pro- and.21.a and sayde vnto them: Shall I go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fight, or shall I let it alone? They sayde: Go vp, The LORDE shall delyuer it in to y kynges hande. But Iosaphat sayd: Is ther not one prophet here more of the LOR DE, that we maye axe at hym?

The kynge of Israel sayd vnto Io B saphat: There is yet a man, one Micheas the sonne of Iemla, at whome we may axe of the LORDE: but I hate hym, for he prophecyeth me no good, but euel.
Iosaphat sayd: Let not the kynge saye so. Then called the kynge of Israell a chamberlayn, and sayde: Brynge hither soone Micheas the sōne of Iela. As for the kynge of Israel & Iosaphat y kyng of Iuda they sat eyther of thē vpō his seat, arayed in their garmētes in the pla ce at y dore of the porte of Samaria, & all the prophetes prophecied before thē.
And Zedekias y sonne of Cnaena had made him hornes of yron, and sayde:

Thus sayeth the LORDE: With these shalt thou pushe at the Syriãs, tyll thou brynge them to naughte. And all the prophetes prophecied lykewyse, and sayde: Go vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead, thou shalt prospere right well, and the LORDE shall delyuer it in to the kynges hande. And the messaunger that wente to call Micheas sayd vnto him: C Beholde, The wordes of the prophetes are with one accorde good before the kynge, let thy worde therfore be as their worde, and speke thou good also.
Micheas sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, loke what the LOR-DE sayeth vnto me, that wyl I speak.
And whã he came to the kynge, ŷ kynge sayde vnto hym: Micheas shall we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to fighte or shall we let it alone? He sayd vnto him: Yee, go vp, thou shalt prospere righte well, the LORDE shall geue it in to the kynges hande. But the kynge sayde vnto hym agayne: I charge the that thou saye no other thynge vnto me but the trueth, in the name of the LORD, He sayde: I sawe all Israell scatred as-brode vpon ŷ mountaynes, as the shepe that haue no shepherde. And the LOR-DE sayd, Haue these no lorde? Let eue-D ry one turne hom agayne in peace. Thẽ 2.Par.18.c sayde the kynge of Israell vnto Josa-phat: Tolde not I the that he wolde prophecye me no good, but euell?
He sayde: Heare now therfore the worde of the LORDE: * I sawe the LORDE syt vpõ his seate, and all the hoost of heauẽ stondynge by hym at his right hãde and at his left, And ŷ LOR-DE sayde: Who wyll deceaue Achab to go vp, & fall at Ramoth in Gilead.
And one sayde this, another that. Thẽ wente there forth a sprete, and stode before the LORDE, and sayde: I wyll deceaue hym. The LORD sayde vnto hym: Wherwith? He sayde vnto hym: Eze.14.b I wyll go forth, and be a false sprete in the mouth of al his prophetes. He sayd: Thou shalt deceaue hym, and shalt be able: go forth and do so. Beholde now, * the LORD hath geuen a false spret in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and the LORD hath spoken euell ouer the. Then stepte forth Zedechias the sonne of Cnaena, and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayde: What? is the sprete of the LORDE departed frõ me, to speake with the? Micheas sayde Beholde, thou shalt se it in that daye, whan thou shalt go from one chamber to another to hyde the.
The kynge of Israell sayde: Take Micheas, and let hym remayne with Amon the ruler of the cite, and with Jo-as the kynges sonne, and saye: Thus sayeth the kynge: Put this man in pri- E son, and fede hym with brade and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Micheas sayde: Yf thou commest agayne in peace, then hath not ŷ LOR-DE spoken thorow me. And he sayde: herken to all ye people.
So the kynge of Israell and Josa-phat the kynge of Juda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes, and come in to the battayll in thyne araye. The kynge of Israell chaunged his clothes also, and wẽte in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria commaunded ŷ rulers of his charettes (of whõ there were two & thirtie) and sayde: Ye shall fight nether agaynst small nor greate, but onely agaynst the kynge of Israell. And whan the rulers of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they thought it had ben the kynge of Israel, and fell vpon him with fightynge. But Josaphat cried. So whã the rulers of ŷ charettes saw that it was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe from hym.
A certayne man bended his bowe harde, and shot the kynge of Israell be- F twene the mawe and the longes. And he sayde vnto his charettman: Turne thyne hande, & cary me out of the hoost for I am wounded. And the battayll was sore the same daye. And the kynge stode vpõ the charret, agaynst the Syrians and dyed in the euenynge, and the bloud ranne from the wounde in to the myddes of the charret. And whan the Sonne wente downe there was a proclamacion made in the hoost, and sayde: Euery one gett hym in to his cite, and to his countre. Thus the kynge dyed, & was brought vnto Samaria: & they buryed hym in Samaria. And whan they washed the charret in ŷ pole of Sa-

What more ther is to say of Achab and all that he dyd, & of ŷ Yuery house which he buylded, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of ŷ kynges of Israel.
So Achab slept ŵ his fathers, and his sonne Ahasia was kynge in his steade.

they were broken at Gezeon Gaber.
At that tyme sayd * Ahasia the sonne of

The fourth boke of the kynges.

The first Chapter.

¶ Of the reigne of Ochosias (otherwyse called Ahasia) and of Joram his brother and how the fyre consumed the two captaynes with their men.

Ahasia the sonne of Achab was kynge ouer Israel at Samaria in the seuenteth yeare of Josaphat kynge of Juda, & reigned ouer A Israel two yeares, and dyd that whych was euell in the syght of the LORD, and walked in the waye of his father and of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israell for to synne. And serued Baal: and worshipped him, and displesed the LORDE God of Israell, euen as his father dyd. The Moabites also fell awaye from Israell, whan Achab was dead.
And Ahasia fel thorow the grate in his chamber att Samaria, and was dead sycke, and sent messaungers, and sayde vnto them: Go youre waye, and axe councell at Beelzebub the god of Ekron, whether I shall recouer from this sycknesse. But the angell of the LOR- B DE sayde vnto Elias the Thesbite: Up, and go mete the messaungers of ye kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto the:
Is there no God in Israell, that ye go to axe councell at the god of Ekron?
Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE: Thou shalt not come fro the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye the death.
And Elias wente his waye. And whan the messaungers came to * Ocho Ahasia sias agayne, he sayde vnto them: Why come ye agayne? They sayde vnto him:

there came vp a man in oure way, and sayde vnto vs: Go agayne to the kynge that hath sent you, and saye vnto him: Thus sayeth the LORD: Is there no God in Israel, that thou sendest to axe councell at Beelzebub the god of Ekrō: Therfore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou lyest, but shalt dye the death. He sayde vnto them: What maner of man was it that met you, & sayd this vnto you? They sayd vnto him: He Math.3.a had a * rough skynne vpon him, and a letheren gyrdel aboute his loynes. He sayde: It is Elias the Thesbyte.
C And he sent vnto him a captayne ouer fiftye, with the same fyftye. And whan he came vnto hym, beholde, he sat aboue vpon the mount. He sayde vnto hym: Thou man of God, the kynge say eth: Thou shalt come downe. Elias answered the captayne ouer fyftye, & sayd vnto hym: Yf I be a man of God, the Luce.9.f fyre fall downe then from the heauen, & consume the and thy fyftye. * Tho fell there fyre from heauen, and consumed him and his fyftye. And agayne he sent another captayne ouer fyftye vnto him, with his fiftye, which answered, & sayd vnto hym: Thou man of God, thus say eth the kynge: Come downe in all the hayst. Elias answered, and sayde: Yf I be a man of God, ŷ fyre fall downe frō heauen, and consume the and thy fyftye.
Then fell the fyre of God from heauen, and consumed hym, & his fiftye. Again, he sent vnto hym the thirde captayne ouer fyftie, with his fyftye.
D Now whā he came to hym, he kne-led to Elias, and besought hym, & sayd vnto hym: Thou man of God, let my soule and the soules of thy seruauntes these fyftye, be somwhat worth in thy syght. Beholde, the fyre fell downe frō heauen, and hath cōsumed the fyrst two captaynes ouer fyftie with their fyfties.
But now let my soule be sōwhat worth in thy syght. Then sayde the angell of the LORDE vnto Elias: Go downe with hym, and feare hym not. And he gat hym vp, & wente downe with hym vnto the kynge.
And he sayd vnto him, Thus sayeth ŷ LORD, Because thou hast sent forth messaungers, and caused to axe councell at Beelzebub ŷ god of Ekrō, as though there were no God in Israel to axe coū cell at his worde, therfore shalt thou not come from the bed wheron thou hast layed the, but shalt dye the death.

So he dyed, acordynge to the worde of the LORDE which Elias sayde. And Joram (his brother) was kynge in his steade in the seconde yeare of Joram the sonne of Josaphat kynge of Juda: for he had no sonne.
What more there is to saye of Oc-hosias, what he dyd, beholde it is wrytten in ŷ cronicles of ŷ kynges of Israel.

The.ii.Chapter.

Elias is taken vp in a fyrie charet.
Eliseus receaueth the sprete of Elias, maketh ŷ bytter water swete, & curseth the mysnourtoured chyldren.

When the LORD was minded to take vp Elias in ŷ tempest, Elias & Eliseus wente from Gilgal. And Elias sayde to Eliseus: Tary thou here (I praye the) for the LORD hath sent me vnto Bethel. But Eliseus sayde: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And whan they came downe vnto Bethel, the prophetes chyldrē that were at Bethel, went forth to Eliseus, and sayd vnto hym: Knowest thou not, that the LORDE wyll take thy lorde awaye from thy heade this daye? He sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye youre peace.
And Elias sayde vnto hym: Eliseus tary ŷ here (I pray the,) for the LORD hath sent me vnto Jericho. Neuerthelesse he sayd: as truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the.
And whan they came vnto Jericho, E the prophetes chyldre which were at Jericho, stepte forth to Eliseus and sayde vnto hym: Knowest thou not that the LORDE wyll take thy lorde awaye from thy heade this daye? He sayde: I knowe it well, holde ye youre peace. And Elias sayd vnto hym: I praye the tary here, for the LORDE hath sent me vn to Jordane. But he sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not forsake the. And they went both together. But fyftye men of the prophetes chyldren went forth, & stode ouer agaynst them afarre of: but they both stode by Jordane. Then toke Elias his cloke, & wrapped it together, and smote the water, which deuyded it selfe on both ŷ sydes, so that they wente drye shod thorow it. And whā they were come ouer, Elias sayd vnto Eliseus:

what I shall do for the, afore I be take awaye from the. Eliseus sayd: That thy sprete maye be vpon me to speake twyse as muche.

C He sayd: thou hast desyred an harde thynge: neuerthelesse yf thou shalt se me whan I am taken awaye from the, it shalbe so: Yf no, then shall it not be. And as they were goynge together, & he talked, there came a fyrie charret with horses of fyre, and parted them both asun-Eccl.48.a der. * And so wente Elyas vp to heauē in the storme. But Eliseus sawe it, and cryed: My father, my father, the charret man of Israel and his horsemen. And he sawe hym nomore.

And toke holde of his clothes, and rente them in two peces, and toke vp Elyas cloke that was fallen from hym, & turned backe, and stode by the shore of Jordane, and toke the same cloke of Elias which was fallen from hym, & smote it in the water, and sayd: Where is now the LORDE God of Elias? And he smot it in to the water, & then parted it asun der on both the sydes, and Eliseus went thorow.

D And whā ye prophetes chyldrē which were at Jericho ouer agaynst hym, sawe hym, they sayd: The sprete of Elias resteth vpon Eliseus, and so they wente forth to mete hym, and worshipped hym to the grounde, and sayd vnto hym: Be-holde there are fyftye valeaunt men amonge thy seruauntes, let them go and seke thy lorde, peraducture the spret of ye LORDE hath takē hym & cast hym vpō some moūtayne or in some valley. But he sayd: Sēde thē not. Neuertheles they constrayned hym, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: Let them go. And they sent fyf tye men, which sought hym thre dayes: but they founde hym not, & came agayne vnto hym. And he abode at Jericho, and sayd vnto them: Tolde not I you that ye shulde not go? And the men of ye cyte sayd vnto Eliseus: Beholde, there is good dwellynge in this cyte, as my lorde seyth, but the water is euell, and ye londe vnfrutefull.

E He sayde: Brynge me hether a new vessell, & put salt in it. And they brought it hym. Then wente he forth vnto ye wel of water, and caste the salt therin, and sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: I haue healed this water: frō hence forth shall there no dead nor vnfrutfulnes come of it. So the water was healed vnto this daye, accordynge to the wordes of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he wente vp towarde Bethel.
And as he was goynge vp by the waye, there came lytle boyes out of the cyte, & mocked hym, and sayd: Come vp here thou balde heade. Come vp here thou balde heade. And he turned hym aboute And whā he sawe them, he cursed them in the name of the LORDE. Thē came there two Beres out of the wood, and rente two & fortye of the chyldrē. From thence went he vp vnto mount Carmel, & from it turned he backe to Samaria.

The.iii. Chapter.

Of Joram and Josaphat, and of theyr warres, and what Eliseus sayd vn to them.

A JOram the sonne of Achab was kynge ouer Israell at Samaria in the eyghtenth yeare of Josaphat kynge of Juda, & raygned.xii. yeares & dyd that which was euell in the syght of the LORDE, but not as his father & mother: for he put away ye pilers of Ba-al, which his father caused to make. Ne uertheles he cleued vnto ye synnes of Je roboā ye sōne of Nebat, which made Is rael for to synne, & departed not therfrō.

Mesa the kynge of ye Moabites had many shepe, and payed trybute vnto the kynge of Israel with the woll of an hūdreth thousande lambes, and of an hun-dreth thousande rammes. * But whan 4.Re.1.a Achab was dead, ye kynge of the Moabites fell away frō the kynge of Israel.
At ye same tyme went kynge Joram frō Samaria, and mustered all Israell, and sent vnto Josaphat kynge of Juda, say enge: The kynge of the Moabites is fal len away fro me, come thou with me to fyght agaynst the Moabites. He sayde: I wyll come vp, * I am euen as thou, 3.Re.22.a and my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses. And sayd moreouer Which waye shall we go vp? He sayde: by the waye in the wyldernesse of Edō.

B So the kynge of Israel, the kynge of Juda, & the kynge of Edom went forth And whan they had gone aboute seuen dayes iourney, the hoost & the cattel that were amonge them had no water. Then sayde the kynge of Israel: Alas, ye LOR DE hath called these thre kynges, to de-lyuer them in to the hande of the Moabi tes. But Josaphat sayde: * is here no 3.Re.22.a prophet of the LORDE that we maye axe councell att the LORDE by hym?
Thē answered one of ye kyng of Israels seruauntes, & sayd: Here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water vpon Elias handes. Iosaphat sayde: The worde of the LORDE is with him. So the kyng of Israel & Iosaphat, and ye kynge of Edõ wente down vnto hym.

C But Eliseus sayd vnto the kynge of Israel: What hast thou to do with me? go to the prophetes of thy father and to thy mothers prophetes. The kynge of Israel sayd vnto hym: No, for ye LORDE hath called these thre kynges, to delyuer them in to the handes of the Moabites. Eliseus sayd: As truely as the LORDE zebaoth lyueth, before whom I stonde, yf I regarded not Iosaphat ye kynge of Iuda, I wolde not regarde ye, nor set ought by the. So brynge me now a mynstrell. And whã ye mynstrel played vpon the instrumẽt, the hande of LORDE came vpõ hym. And he sayd: Thus sayeth the LORDE: make pittes by this broke, for thus sayeth ye Lord Ye shal se nether wynde nor rayne, yet shal ye broke be full of water, that ye & your housholdes, and your catel maye drynke. Yee & that is but a small thynge in the syghte

D of the LORDE. And the Moabites shall he delyuer in to youre handes, so ye ye shall smyte all the stronge cyties, and

Deu.20.c. all the chosen cyties * & shall fell downe all the good trees, and stoppe al the welles of water and all the good feldes shal ye make waist with stones.

On the morow, whan the meatofferynge is offred, beholde, there came water the waye from Edom, and fylled the londe with water. But whan the Moabites herde, that ye kinges came to fyght agaynst thẽ, they called al the harnessed men, and theyr rulers, and stode on the border. And whan they rose yearly in ye mornynge, and the Sonne went vp vpon the water, the Moabites thought ye water ouer agaynst them to be euen as reed as bloude, & they sayd: It is bloude the kynges haue destroyed them selues with the swearde, & one hath smitten an other. Now Moab get the vp to ye spoyles. But whan they came to the tentes of Israel, the Israelites gat vp, & smote the Moabites, and they fledde before them.

E Neuerthelesse they came in, & smote Moab, and brake downe the cyties, and euery one cast his stone vpon all ye good feldes, and made them full, and stopped al the welles of water, and felled downe all the good trees, tyll there remayned but the stones in the brykwall, and they compassed them about with slynges, & smote them.

But whan the kynge of the Moabites sawe ye the battayll was to stronge for hym, he toke to hym seuen hundreth men, which drewe the swearde, to fal vpon ye kynge of Edom: neuertheles they were not able. Then toke he his fyrste sonne, which shulde haue bene kynge in his steade, and offred hym for a burntofferynge vpon the wal. Then came there a great wrath ouer Israel, that they departed from hym, and turned agayne to to theyr londe.

The.iiii.Chapter.

C Eliseus helpeth the womã that was in dette, and for another woman which hadde no chyldren, he optayneth one of God: which chylde beynge dead, he rayseth vp agayne.

AND there cried a womã amonge ye wiues of ye pphetes chil- A dren vnto Eliseus, & said: Thy seruaũt my husband is dead and thou knowest that thy seruaunt feared the LORDE. Now commeth the mã that he was detter vnto, and wyll take awaye both my chyldren to be bonde seruauntes. Eliseus sayd vnto her: What shall I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in the house? She sayd: Thy handmayden hath nothynge in the house but a pitcher with oyle. He sayd: Go thy waye, borow without of all thy neghbours empty vessels, and that not a fewe, and go in and shut the dore behynde the with thy sonnes, & poure of it into all ye vessels: and whã ye hast fylled them, delyuer them forth.

She wente, and shute the dore vnto her with her sonnes, which brought her the vessels, & so she poured in. And whã the vessels were full, she sayde vnto her sõne: Brynge me yet one vessell. He sayd vnto her: There is not one vessell more here. Then stode the oyle styll. And she sent, and tolde the man of God. He said Go thy waye, sell the oyle, and paye the creditour: but lyue thou and thy sonnes of the resydue.

And it fortuned at the same tyme, ye B Eliseus wente vnto Sunem. And there was a ryche womã, which helde hym to eate with her: and as he passed oft thorowe that waye, he wente in vnto her, & dyd eat with her. And she sayd vnto her husbande: Behold, I perceaue y this is an holy man of God, whiche goeth euer thorow this waye, let vs make hym a lytle chamber of bordes, and set a bed, a table, a stole and a candelsticke therin, y whan he commeth vnto vs, he maye re-sorte thyther.

And it fortuned vpon a tyme, that he came in, and layed hym downe in the chã ber, and slepte therin. And he sayd vnto Gehasi his chylde: Call this woman of Sunem. And whã he had called her, she stode before hym He sayd vnto hym: Speake y vnto her, beholde, thou hast mynistred vnto vs in all these thynges, what shall I do for the? Hast thou eny matter to be spokenfor to the kynge, or to the chefe captayne of the hoost? She said: I dwel amõge my people. He said: What hast thou thẽ to do? Gehasi sayd Alas, she hath no sonne, and her husbãde is olde. He sayd: Call her. And whan he had called her, she stode at the dore. And Gen.18.b. he sayd: * Aboute this tyme yf the frute can lyue, thou shalt enbrace a sõne. She said: Alas, no my lorde, thou mã of God, lye not vnto thy handmayden. And the woman conceaued, and bare a sonne a-boute the same tyme, whã y frute coulde lyue, accordynge as Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

C But whan the chylde was growen, it fortuned, that he went forth to his father vnto the reapers, and said vnto his father: Oh my heade, my heade. He said vnto his seruaunt: Brynge hym to his mother. And he toke hym, and brought hym to his mother: and she set hym vpõ hyr lappe vntyll the noone daye, and thẽ he dyed. And she went vp, and layed him vpon the bed of the man of God, & shut the dore, and wente forth, and called her husbande, and sayd vnto hym: Sende me one of the seruauntes, and an asse, I wyll go quykly vnto the man of God, and come agayne. He sayd: Why wylt thou go vnto hym? To daye is it nether new moone nor Sabbath. She sayde: Well. And she sadled the asse, and sayde to the yonge man: Dryue forth, and kepe me not back with rydynge, and do as I byd the.

So she wente, and came to the man of God vnto mount Carmell. Whã the mã of God sawe her ouer agaynst hym, he sayd vnto his chylde Gehasi: Behold the Sunamitisse is there, runne now & mete her, and axe her yf it go well with her, and hyr husbande and hyr sonne.
She sayd: Well. But whan she came to the man of God vpon y mount, she helde hym by his fete. And Gehasi stepte to her, to put her awaye. But y man of God sayd: Let her alone, for her soule is in he uynesse, and the LORDE hath hyd it fro me, and not shewed it me. She sayd Whan I desyred a sonne of my lorde?
Sayd I not, y thou shuldest not mocke me?

He sayd vnto Gehasi: Girde vp thy D loynes, and take my staffe in thy hande, and go thy waye. * Yf eny man mete y, Luc.10.a salute hym not: & yf eny man salute the, thanke hym not: and laye thou my staffe vpon the chyldes face. But the chyldes mother sayd: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the. Then gat he vp, & wente after her. As for Gehasi, he went before them, and layed the staffe vpõ the chyldes face, but there was neither voyce nor felynge. And he went agayn to mete hym, and shewed hym and sayde: The chylde is not rysen vp.

And whan Eliseus came in to the house, beholde, the chylde laye dead vpõ his bed. And he went in, & shut the dore on them both, and made his prayer vnto the LORDE, and wente vp, & layed hym selfe vpon the chylde. and layed his mouth vpon the chyldes mouth, and his eyes vpon his eyes, and his handes vp-on his handes, and so stretched hymselfe forth vpõ hym, so that the chyldes body was warme. And he rose vp, and wente in to the house once hether and thyther, and went vp, and layed hymselfe a lõge vpon hym. Then nysed the chylde seuen tymes, and afterwarde the chylde opened his eyes. And he cryed vpon Gehasi & sayd: Call the Sunamitisse. And whã he had called her, she came in vnto hym.
He sayd: take there thy sonne. Thẽ cam she, and fell at his fete, and worshipped vnto the grounde, and toke hir sonne, & wente forth.

But whan Eliseus came agayne vnto Gilgal, there was a derth in y londe, and the prophetes chyldren dwelte before hym, and he sayd vnto his seruaunt Set on a great pot, and make potage for the chyldren of the prophetes. Then wente there one in to the felde, to gather herbes, and founde a cucumbers stalke, and gathered wylde cucumbers thereof his cotefull. And whan he came, he chapped it small for potage to the potte, for they knewe it not. And whan they poured it forth for the men to eate, & they dyd eat of ŷ potage, they cryed & sayde: O thou man of God, death is in the pot: for they myghte not eate it. Neverthelesse he sayde: Brynge meel hither. And he put it in the pot, & sayd: Poure it out for ŷ people, that they maye eate. And then was it not bytter in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Salissa, and brought the man of God bread of the fyrst frutes, namely twentye barlye loaues, and new corne in his garmēt But he sayd: Geue it vnto the people, ŷ they maye eate. His mynister sayde:
Joh. 6. a * How shall I geue an hundreth men of this? He sayde: Geue it vnto the people, that they may eate. For thus sayeth the LORDE: They shall eate, & there shall be lefte ouer. And he set it before thē, so that they dyd eate, & they lefte ouer accordynge to the worde of the LORDE.

The .v. Chapter.

¶ Naaman the chefe captayne of Syria is clensed from his leprosy, and Gehasi Eliseus seruaūt is made leprous.

B NAaman the chefe captayne of the kynge of Syria. was an excellent man in the sighte of his lorde, and much set by (for thorow hym the LORDE gaue health vnto Syria) and he was a myghtye man, but a leper. And there had men of warre fallē out of Syria, and caried awaye a lytle damsell out of the londe of Israel: the same was in seruyce with Naamens wyfe, & sayde vnto hir mastresse: O that my master were with the prophet at Samaria, he wolde heale him from his leprosy.

Then wente he in to his lorde, and tolde hym, and sayde: Thus and thus hath the damsell of the londe of Israel spoken. The kynge of Syria sayde: Go thy waye then, and I wyll wryte a letter vnto the kynge of Israel.

And he wente, and toke with hym ten hundreth weighte of syluer, and sixe thousande guldens, and ten chaunge of rayment, and brought the letter vnto ŷ kynge of Israel, with these wordes:

Whan this letter commeth vnto ŷ, beholde, thou shalt vnderstonde that I haue sent my seruaūt Naeman vnto ŷ ŷ thou mayest heale him of his leprosy.

And whan the kynge of Israel red the letter, he rente his clothes, & sayde: Am I God thē, that I can kyll and quycken agayne, ŷ he sendeth vnto me, to heale the man from his leprosye? Consydre and se, how he seketh an occasion vnto me.

Whā Eliseus ŷ man of God herde, that the kynge of Israell had rente his clothes, he sēt vnto hym, sayenge: Why hast ŷ rente thy clothes? Let him come to me, that he maye knowe, that there is a prophet in Israell.

C So Naamā came with horses & charettes, and stode styll at the dore of Eliseus house. Then sent Eliseus a messanger vnto hym, sayenge: Go thy waye, & wasshe the seuen tymes in Jordane, so shall thy flesh be restored the agayne, & be clensed. Then was Naaman wroth, and wente his waye, & sayd: I thought he shulde haue come forth vnto me, and to haue stonde here and to haue called vpon the name of the LORDE his God, and to haue touched the place ŷ his hande, and so to haue put awaye the leprosy. Are not the waters of Amana and Pharphar at Damascon better thē all the waters in Israell, that I might wasshe me therin and be clensed? & he turned hym, and wente his waye in displeasure. Then his seruauntes gat thē to hym, and sayde: Father, yf the prophet had commaunded the eny greate thynge, shuldest thou not haue done it? much more thē yf he saye vnto ŷ: Wasshe the, and thou shalt be cleane. Then wente he downe, and wasshed him selfe in Jordane seuen tymes (as the man of God sayd) & his flesh was restored hi agayne, euē as the flesh of a yōge chylde Luc. 4. c * and he was clensed.

D And he turned agayne to the man of God with all his armye. And whan he came in, he stode before hym, and sayde: Beholde, I knowe that in all londes there is no God, but in Israell. Take now therfore this blessynge I praye the of thy seruaunt. Neuertheles he sayde:
* As truly as the LORDE lyueth, before whom I stonde, I wyl not take it. And he wolde nedes haue hym to take it, but he wolde not. Then sayde Naaman: Mighte there not a burthē of this earth be geuen vnto thy seruaunt, as much as two mules maye beare? For thy seruaunt wyll nomore do sacrifice and offer burntofferynges vnto other goddes, but vnto the LORDE. That the LORDE maye be gracious vnto thy seruaunt, yf I worshippe in the house of Rimmon, whan my lorde goeth there in to the house of Rimmon to wor shippe, and leaneth vpon my hande. He sayd vnto hym: Go thy waye in peace.

And as he was gone fro hym a felde bredth in the londe, Gehasi the seruaunt of Eliseus the man of God thought: be holde, my lorde hath spared Naaman the Syrian, so that he hath not take fro hym that which he brought: As truly as the LORDE lyueth, I wyll rūne after hym, and take somthynge of hym.
So Gehasi folowed Naaman: And G when Naaman sawe that he ranne after hym, he lyght downe from the charet ett to mete hym, and sayd: Are all thyn-ges well? He sayd: Yee. But my lorde hath sent me, and caused to saye vnto þ: Beholde, there are now come to me fro mount Ephraim two yonge men of the prophetes chyldren, geue them a talent of syluer (I praye the) and two chaunge of rayment. Naaman sayd: Go to, take two talentes. And he compelled hym, and bounde two talentes in two bagges, and two chaunge of rayment, and delyuered it vnto two of his seruauntes, which bare it before hym. And when he came to the darcke, he toke it from theyr han-des, and layed it asyde in the house, & let the men go.
And when they were gone theyr waye he came before his lorde. And Eliseus sayd vnto hym: Whence commest thou Gehasi? He sayd: Thy seruaunt wente nether hether nor thether. But he sayde vnto hym: Wente not my hart with the,

The.vi. Chapter.

The yron swymmeth in the water.
The kynge of Syria fygheth agaynst Israel. His seruauntes which go about to take Eliseus, are smytte with blynd nes. A great honger in Samaria.

A THe chyldren of the prophetes sayd vnto Eliseus: Beholde, the place where we dwel before the, is to narow for vs, let vs go vnto Iordane, and euery one fetch tymbre there, þ we maye there buylde vs a place to dwell in. He sayd: Go youre waye. And one sayd: Go thou with vs, & come with thy seruauntes. He sayd: I wyll go with you. And he wente with them. And whan they came to Ior dane, they hewed downe tymber. And as one was fellynge downe a tre, þ yron fell into the water, and he cryed & sayd: Alas my lorde, and it is borowed. But þ man of God sayd: Where fell it in? And whan he had shewed hym the place, he cut downe a stycke, and thrust it in there.
Then swamme the yron. And he sayd: Take it vp. So he put forth his hande, and toke it.
And the kynge of Syria warred a- B gaynst Israel, and toke councell at his seruauntes, and sayde: There and there wyll we lye. But the man of God sent to the kynge of Israel, sayenge: Beware þ thou go not vnto that place, for the Syrians rest there. So the kynge of Israel sent vnto the place wherof the man of God tolde hym, and kepte it, and helde watche there, and dyd that not once or twyse only.
Then was þ kynge of Syrias hart C vexed therfore, and called his seruauntes, and sayd vnto them: Wyl ye not tel me, which of our men is fled vnto þ kynge of Israel? Then sayd one of his seruauntes Not so my lorde O kynge, but Eliseus the prophete in Israel telleth the kynge of Israel all that þ speakest in thy cham ber where thou lyest. He sayd: Go youre waye then and loke where he is, that I may sende, and cause hym be fetched.
And they shewed hym and sayd: Beholde he is at Dothan. Then sent he thyther horses and charettes, and a great power.
And when they came thyther by nyght, they compassed the cyte aboute. And the mynister of the man of God arose early to get him vp. And as he went forth, be-holde, there laye an hoost of men aboute the cyte with horses and charettes.
Then sayde his chylde vnto hym: A- D las syr, how wyll we now do? He sayd:
* Feare not, for there are mo of them 2.Par.32.b that are with vs, then of those that are with them. And Eliseus prayed & sayde: LORDE open his eyes, that he maye se. Then the LORDE opened the chyl des eyes, that he sawe, and beholde, the mounte was full of fyrie horses and cha-rettes rounde aboute Eliseus. And whā they came downe vnto hym. Eliseus made his prayer, and sayde: LORDE smyte this people wyth blyndnes.
* And he smote them wyth blyndnes Gen.19.b accordynge to the worde of Eliseus.
And Eliseus sayd vnto thē: This is not the waye nor the cyte, folowe me. I wyll brynge you to the man whom ye seke.

And he brought them unto Samaria.
G And whan they came to Samaria, Eliseus sayd: LORDE ope these mēs eyes, that they may se. And the LORD opened theyr eyes, that they sawe, & be-holde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And whan the kynge of Israel sawe them, he said unto Eliseus: My father, shal I smyte them? He sayd: Thou shalt not smyte them: loke whō thou ta-kest with thy swearde and bowe, smyte those. Set bread and water before them that they maye eate and drynke, and let them departe unto theyr lorde. Then was theyr a great dyner prepared. And whan they had eaten and dronken, he let them go to departe unto theyr lorde.
From that tyme forth came the men of warre of the Syrians nomore in to the londe of Israel.
After this it fortuned, that Benadad F the kynge of Syria gathered all his hoost, and wente up and layed sege unto Samaria: and there was a great derth at Samaria. But they layed sege to the cyte so longe, tyll an asses heade was worth foure score sylver pens, and LORDE helpe the not, wherwith shal I helpe the? with the barne or with the wyne presse? And ỹ kynge said unto her: What ayleth the? She sayd: This woman sayd unto me: Geue us thy sonne, that we may eate hym, to morow wyll and haue eaten hym, and I sayde unto her on the next daye: Geue us thy sōne & let us eate hym, but she had hyd hī awaye.

Whan the kynge herde the womās G wordes, he rente his clothes, whyle he was goynge to the wall. Then sawe all the people, that he had a sackcloth under 3.Re.19.a upon his body. And he sayd: * God do and 26.d this and that unto me, yf the head of E-liseus the sōne of Saphat shal this daye stonde upon hym. As for Eliseus, he sat in his house, and the elders sat by hym.
And he sent a man before hym, but or e-uer the messaunger came to hym, he sayd unto the Elders: Haue ye not sene how this chyld of murthure hath sent hyther to take awaye my head? Take hede, whā the messaūger commeth, that ye shut the dore and holde hym at the dore. Beholde ỹ noyse of his lordes fete foloweth hym.
Whyle he was thus talkynge wt them, beholde, the messaunger came to hym, & sayd: Beholde, this euell commeth of the LORDE, and what more shall I loke for of the LORDE?

The.vii.Chapter.

Of the foure lepers whiche came in to the tentes of ỹ Syrians, and how vytayles beganne to be good chepe.

Eliseus sayd: Heare ỹ worde A of the LORD. Thus sayth the LORD: * To morow 4.Re.7.a aboute this tyme shal a bus-shell of fyne meele be solde for one sycle, and two busshels of barlye for one sycle under the porte of Samaria. Then a knyght (upon whose hande the kynge leaned) answered the man of God, and sayd: And though the LORD made wyndowes in heauen, how coulde suche a thynge come to passe? He sayde: Behold, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes and shalt not eate therof.
And there were foure leprous men at the dore before the port, and one sayd unto another: Why tary we here whyle we dye? Though we thought to come into the cyte, yet is there derth in the cyte, & there shulde we be fayne to dye. And yf we tary here, we muste dye also. Let us go now, and flye unto the hoost of ỹ Syrians. Yf they let us lyue, we shall lyue: yf they slaye us, then are we dead. And so they gat them up early, to come unto the hoost of the Syrians. And whā they came to the uttermost ende of the tentes beholde, there was no body.
* For the LORDE had made the B up, and fled early in the twylight, & left theyr bouthes, & horses and asses in the tentes as they stode, and fled euery man where he myght saue his lyfe.

Now whan the lepers came to the place of the tentes, they went in to ỹ ten-tes, dyd eate and drynke, and toke sylver golde and rayment, and went & hyd it: and came agayne & entred in to another tente, and toke therout, and went and hyd it. But one of them sayde vnto another: Let vs not do thus, this daye is a daye of good tydinges. Yf we kepe this secrete and hyde tyl the lighte mornyng, oure trespace wyl be founde out. Let vs go now therfore, that we maye come, & tell the kynges house.

C And whan they came, they cryed at the porte of the cyte, and tolde them, & sayde: We came to the tentes of the Syrians, and beholde, there is no mã there, nether yet ony mans voyce, but horses and asses bounde, and the bouthes as they stonde. Then cryed the porters and tolde it within in the kynges house.
And the kynge arose in the nyghte, and sayde vnto his seruauntes: I wyll tell you how the Sirians deale wyth vs: they knowe that we suffer honger, and are gone out of the tentes, to hyde them selues in the felde, & thynke thus: whan they go out of the cyte, we wyll take thẽ alyue, and come in to the cyte. Then answered one of his seruauntes, and sayd: Let vs take yͤ fyue horses that remayne which yet are lefte in the cyte (beholde, these are left therin for all yͤ multitude in Israel, which is destroyed) let vs sẽde these and se. Then toke they two chã-rettes with the horses. And the kynge sent them vnto the tẽtes of the Syriãs, and sayde: Go youre waye and se.
D And whã they wente after them vnto Jordane, beholde, the waye laye full of garmẽtes and vessels, which the Syrians had cast frõ thẽ, whyle they made haist. And whan the messaungers came agayne, and tolde the kynge, the people wente forth, an spoyled the tentes of the Syriãs. And a busshel of fyne meel was solde for a Sycle, and two busshels of the kynge appoynted the knyghte (vpõ whose hande he leaned) to be at yͤ gate, and the people trode vpon hym, so that he dyed, euen as the man of God sayde, whan the kynge came down vnto him.

And it came to passe euen as the mã of God tolde the kynge, whan he sayd: To morow aboute this tyme shall two busshels of barlye be solde for one Sycle, & a busshel of fyne meel for one Sycle vnder the gate at Samaria. And yͤ knyght answered the man of God, and sayde:

But whan the seuẽ yeares were ended, the woman came agayne out of yͤ Phylistines londe, and wente forth to crye vpon the kynge for hir house and londe.
The kynge spake vnto Gehasi the ser-uaunt of the man of God, and sayde: Tell me all the greate actes that Elise-us hath done. And whyle he was tellinge the kynge how he had made one that was dead, to lyue agayne, beholde, the woman whose sonne he had caused to reuyue, came euen in the meane season, and cryed vnto the kynge for hir house and londe. Then sayd Gehasi: My lord O kynge, this same is the woman, and this is hyr sonne, whom Eliseus restored vnto lyfe agayne. And the kyng axed the woman, and she tolde hym. Then yͤ kynge delyuered her a chamberlayne, and sayde: Restore her agayne al that is

The man of God is come hither. Then sayde the kynge vnto Hasael: take gyf-tes with the, & go mete the man of God, and axe councell at the LORD by him, and saye: Maye I recouer frõ this sicke-nesse? Hasael wente for to mete him, & toke rewardes with him, and of al the goodes at Damascon, as much as fortye Camels myghte beare. And whan he came he stode before hym, and sayde: Thy sonne Benadad the kynge of Syria hath sent me vnto yͤ, sayenge, Maye I recouer from this sicknes?

Eliseus sayde vnto hym: Go thy

But the LORDE hath shewed me, that he shall dye the death. And the man of God loked earnestly, and made a troublous countenaunce, and wepte. Then sayd Hasael: Wherfore wepeth my lorde?
He sayd: I knowe what euel thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt burne their stronge cyties with fyre, and slaye their yonge men with ye swearde, and kyll their yonge chyldren, & ryppe vp their wemen with chylde.
C Hasael sayd: How so, is thy seruaunt ram had gone thorow Seira, and all ye charettes with hym, & had gotten hym D vp by nyghte, and smytten the Edomites that were aboute hym, and ye rulers ouer the charettes, so yt the people fled vnto their tentes. Therfore fell the Edomites awaye from Iuda vnto this daye.

At the same tyme fell Libna awaye also.
What more there is to saye of Io-ram, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Ioram fell on slepe wyth his fathers, and was buryed wyth his Ochosias the sonne of Ioram kynge in Iuda. Two and twentye yeare olde was Ochosias whan he was made king, and reigned one yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Atalia the doughe-ter of Amri kynge of Israel, and he walked in the waye of the house of Achab, and dyd that which was euel in ye syght of the LORD, euen as dyd the house of Achab: for he was sonne in lawe in the house of Achab. And he wente with Io-ram the sonne of Achab in to ye batayl ter vnto them with these wordes: Yf ye be myne, and herken vnto my voyce, thē take the heades of the men youre lordes sonnes, and brynge me them tomorow by this tyme vnto Iesrael.

The kynges sonnes were thre score B men and ten, and the chefe men of the cite brought them vp. Now whan this letter came they toke the kynges sōnes, and slewe them euē thre score men and ten, & layed theyr heades in baskettes, and sent them to him vnto Iesrael. And whan the messaunger came, and tolde hym, and sayde: They haue brought the heades of the kynges chyldren, he sayde Lay them vpon two heapes at the dore of the porte tyll tomorow.
And on the morow whan he wente forth, he stode, & sayde vnto all the people: Are ye righteous? Beholde, I haue made an appoyntemēt agaynst my lord & slayne hym, who hath slayne all these then? Vnderstonde ye now therfore, that there is not fallen vpon the earth one worde of the LORDE, which he spake agaynst the house of Achab: and the LORDE hath done, euen * as he 3.Re.21. sayde by his seruaunt Elias. So Iehu smote all the remnaunt of the house of Achab at Iesraell, all his greate men, his kynssfolkes, & his prestes, tyll there was not one lefte ouer, and he gat hym vp, wēte his way, & came to Samaria.
By the waye there was a shepher- C des house, where Iehu founde the brethren of Ochosias kynge of Iuda, and sayde: Whence are ye? They sayd: We are Ochosias brethren, and are goynge downe to salute the kynges chyldren, and the quenes chyldrē. He sayd: Take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slew them by the welles syde at the shepherdes house, euen two and fourtye men, and let not one of them remayne.
And whan he wente from thence, he founde Ionadab ye sonne of * Rechab, Iere.35. which met hym, and saluted hym. And he sayd vnto hym: Is thyne hart right, as myne hert is with thyne harte? Ionadab sayde: Yee. Yf it be so (sayde he) then geue me thy hande. And he gaue hym his hande. And so he caused hym to syt besyde him in the charet, & sayde Come with me, and se my zele for the LORDE. And they carryed hym with hym vpō his charet. And whan he came to Samaria, he smote all that remayned of Achab at Samaria, tyll he had destroyed hym, accordynge to the worde 3.Re.21. of the LORD, * whiche he spake vnto Elias.
And Iehu gathered all the people D together, and sayd vnto them: * Achab 3.Re.16. did Baall but lytle seruyce, Iehu wyll serue hym better. Call vnto me now therfore all Baals prophetes, all his seruauntes and all his prestes, that there be none wantynge, for I haue a greate sacrifice to do vnto Baal. Who so euer is wanting, shall not lyue. But Iehu dyd subtylly, that he might destroye all the ministers of Baall. And Jehu sayde: Sanctifie the feast vnto Baall, and proclame it. And Jehu sent in to all Israel, and caused all Baals ministers to come so that there was noman left behynde, whiche came not. And they came in to Baals house: so that ye house of Baall was full from one corner to another.

Then sayde he vnto hym that had the rule of the vestrye: Bryng forth raymet for all Baals ministers. And he brought forth the rayment. And Jehu wente in to Baals house with Jonadab the sonne of Rechab, and sayde vnto Baals ministers: Searche & se that there be not here amonge you eny minister of the LORDE, but onely Baals ministers.

And whan they came in to offre sacrifices and burntofferynges, Jehu appoynted hym foure score men without,
C and sayde: Yf eny of these men escape whome I delyuer vnder youre handes then shall the same mans soule be for his soule. Now whan he had made an ende of the burntofferynge. Jehu sayde vnto the fotemen and knyghtes: Go in, and smyte euery man, let nomā go forth. And they smote them with the edge of the swearde. And the fote men and knyghtes threw them awaye and wente vnto ye cite of Baals house, & brought forth the pyler in the house of Baall, and brent it, & brake downe Baals pyler with the house of Baall, and made a preuy house therof vnto this daye. Thus Jehu destroyed Baall out of Israel. But Jehu left not of frō the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabath (which caused Israel to synne) namely, from the golden calues at Bethell and at Dan. And the LORDE sayd vnto Jehu: Because thou hast ben wyllynge to do that whiche was right in my sight, and hast done vnto Achabs house all that was in my harte, * therfore shall thy chyldren syt vpon the seat

Neuerthelesse Jehu was not diligēt

What more there is to say of Jehu, and all that he dyd, and all his power, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jehu fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buried hym in Samaria. And Joahas his sonne was kynge in his steade. The tyme that Jehu reigned ouer Israell, is eyght and twentye yeares at Samaria.

The.xi. Chapter.

Atalia destroyeth al the kynges sede, saue Joas which escapeth, and is made kynge by Joiada the prest.

Athalia * the mother of Ochosias, whā she sawe that hir sonne was dead, gat her vp, and destroyed all ye kynges sede. But Joseba kyng Jorams doughter the syster of Ochosias, toke Joas the sonne of Ochosias & stale hym awaye with his norse in the chamber from amonge the kynges chyldrē which were slayne, and she hyd him frō Athalia, so that he was not slayne. And he was hyd with her in the house of the LORDE sixe yeares. But Athalia was quene in the londe.

2.Pa.23.a

* Neuertheles in the seuenth yeare sent Joiada, and toke the rulers ouer hundreds with the captaynes and fote men, and caused thē to come to hym in to the house of the LORDE, & made a couenaunt with them, and toke an ooth of them in the house of the LORDE, and shewed them the kynges sōne, and commaūded them, and sayd: This is it that ye shall do: One thirde parte of you which entre on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in ye kynges house, and one thirde parte shal be at the porte of Sur, and one thyrde parte shall be at the porte which is behynde the fote mē, and ye shall kepe the watch at ye house C of Massa. But two partes of you all ye go of on the Sabbath, shall kepe the watch in the house of the LORDE aboute the kynge, and ye shall get you rounde aboute the kynge and euery one with his weapen in his hande: & who soeuer commeth within the wall, let hym dye, so that ye be with the kynge, whan he goeth out and in.

* And the rulers ouer the hundreds were glad, and blewe with trompettes.

But Athalia rente hir clothes, & sayde Vproure, vproure. Neuertheles Ioiada the preste commaunded the rulers ouer hundreds, which were appoynted ouer the hoost, and sayd vnto them: Brynge her without the wall, and whosoeuer foloweth her, let hym dye wt the swearde (for the prest had sayde, that she shulde not dye in the house of the LORDE.) And they layde handes vpon her, & she wente in by the waye where the horses go in to the kynges house, & there was she slayne.
D * Then made Ioiada a couenaunt be wente all the people of the londe in to the house of Baal, and brake downe al the altares, and destroyed his ymages Baall slewe they before the altare. And the prest appoynted the officers in the house of the LORDE, and toke the ru lers ouer hundreds, and the captaynes, and the fote men, and all the people of the londe, & brought the kynge downe from the house of the LORDE, & came the way from the porte of the fote men vnto the kynges house, and he sat vpõ the kynges seate. And all the people of the londe were glad, & the cite was at rest. As for Athalia, they slew her with the swearde in the kynges house. And Ioas was seuen yeare olde, whan he was made kynge.

The.xii. Chapter.

Ioas ruleth well whyle Ioiada is a lyue, but euell after his death.

IN * the seuenth yeare of A Iehu, was Ioas made kyng 1.Par.24 and rayned fortye yeare at 2 Par.24 Ierusalē, his mothers name was zibea of Bersaba. And Ioas dyd that whiche was right in the sight of the LORDE, as longe as Io iada the prest taught him. But they put not downe the hye places: for the people offred and brent incense yet vpon the hye places.
And Ioas sayde vnto the prestes:
All the money that is sanctified to be be stowed vpon the house of the LORDE, namely the money that euery man ge ueth vnto the treasury, and the money that euery one geueth for his soule, and all the money that euery man geueth of a fre harte, to be bestowed on the house of the LORDE, let the prestes take it vn to them, euery one his porcion: with that shall they repayre the decaye in ẏ house of the LORDE where they fynde that there is eny decaye.
But whan the prestes repayred not the decaye in the house vnto ẏ thre and twentieth yeare of kynge Ioas, Ioas the kynge called Ioiada the prest with the other prestes, and sayde vnto them: Wherfore do ye not repayre the decaye in the house?
Therfore shall ye not take ẏ money B vnto you now euery one his porcion, but shall geue it to the decaye of the house.
And ẏ prestes agreed to take no money of the people, and to repayre the decaye of the house. * Then Ioiada the prest Par.24 toke a cheste, and bored an hole aboue therin, and set it on the righthande be syde the altare, at the entrynge in to the house of the LORDE. And the prestes that kepte the tresholde, put all the mo ney therin that was brought vnto the house of the LORDE. Whan they sawe then that there was much money in the chest, * ẏ kynges scrybe came vp with 4.R.22 the hye prest, and bounde the money to gether, and tolde it as muche as was founde in the house of the LORDE.
And so the redy money was geuen vn to them that wrought and were appoyn ted to the house of the LORDE, and they gaue it forth to the carpenters and to them that buylded and wrought in C the house of the LORDE, namely, to the dawbers and masons, and to them that boughte tymber and fre stone, to repayre the decaye in the house of the LORDE and all that they founde to haue nede of reparynge in the house.

Howbeit there were no syluer chargers, flat peces, basens, trompettes, nor any other vessell of golde & syluer made in the house of the LORDE, of ye mo ney that was broughte vnto the LOR DES house: but it was geuen vnto ye workmen to repayre the decaye in the house of the LORDE therwith. The men also that the money was delyuered vnto, for to geue ye workmē, neded not to make any acomptes, but dyd theire bu synes vpon credence. But the money of trespace offerynges and synne offeryn ges was not broughte vnto the house of the LORD: for it was the prestes.

D At the same tyme wente Hasael the kynge of Syria vp, and fought against Gath, and wanne it. And whan Hasael set his face to go vp to Jerusalem, king Joas toke all ye was sanctifyed, which his fathers Josaphat, Joram, and O chosias the kynges of Juda had halo wed, and what he hymselfe had sancty fyed, and all the golde that was founde in the treasures of the house of ye LOR DE, and in the kynges house, and sent it vnto Hasael the kynge of Syria. And so he departed from Jerusalem.

What more there is to say of Joas, and all that he dyd, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And his seruauntes made insurrection and conspyred, and smote hym in the house of Millo, at the goynge down vnto Sil la. For Josebar the sonne of Simeath, and Josabad the sonne of Somer his seruauntes smote him to death: and he was buried with his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And Amasias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Of the kynges Joachas, Joas, and Jeroboā, and how the dead that was layed in Eliseus graue, reuiued.

A IN the.xxiii. yeare of Joas ye sonne of Ochosias kynge of Juda, was Joahas the sōne of Jehu kynge ouer Israell at Samaria, seuētene yeare: and dyd that whych was euell in the syghte of the LORDE, and walked after the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (whiche caused Israell to synne) and left not of frō them. And the wrath of the LORDE waxed whote vpon Israel, and he delyuered thē ouer vnder the hande of Hasaell kynge of Syria, and vnder the hande of Bena dad the sonne of Hasaell, as longe as they lyued.

And Joahas besoughte the face of the LORDE. And the LORD herde hym, for he consydered the myserie of Israell, howe the kynge of Syria op pressed them. And the LORDE gaue Israel a sauioure, which broughte them out of ye power of the Sirians, so ye the chyldren of Israel dwelt in theyr tentes, lyke as afore tyme.

Yet lefte they not of frō the synnes B of the house of Jeroboam, whiche cau sed Israel to synne, but walked in thē.
The groue at Samaria stode styll also.
For of the people of Joahas there were no mo left, but fyftye horsmen, ten char 4.Re.8.b rettes, and ten thousande fote mē: * for the kynge of Siria had destroyed them and made them as the duste in the barne.

What more there is to saye of Joa has, & al that he dyd, and his power, be holde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Joahas fell on slepe with his fathers, and was bu ryed in Samaria, and Joas his sonne
was kynge in his steade.

In ye seuē & thirtieth yeare of Joas C kynge of Juda, was Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge ouer Israell at Sama ria sixtene year. And he dyd that which was euell in the syght of the LORDE and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, whiche made Israell for to synne, but walked in them. What more there is to saye of Joas, and what he dyd, and his power how he fought with Amasias kynge of Juda, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cro nicles of the kynges of Israel. And Jo as fell on slepe with his fathers, and Je roboam sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buryed in Samaria by the kynges of Israell.

As for Eliseus, he fell in to a sicknes wherof he dyed. And Joas the kynge of Israel came downe vnto hym, & wepte for hym, and sayde: * My father, my 4.Re.2.b father, ye charret mā of Israel, and his horsmē. Eliseus sayd vnto hym: Take the bowe and the arowes. And whā he D had taken the bowe and the arowes, he sayde vnto the kynge of Israell: Bende the bowe with thyne hãde. And he bent it with his hãde. And Eliseus layed his hande vpõ the kynges hande, and sayd: Open that wyndowe towarde the East.

And he opened it. And Elizeus sayde: Shute. And he shot. He sayde: one arowe of the saluacyon of the LORD one arowe of saluacyõ agaynst the Si-rians: & thou shalt smyte ỹ Sirians at Aphek, tyll they be brought to naught.
And he sayde: Take ỹ arowes. And whan he had taken them, he sayde vnto the kynge of Israell: Smyte the earth.
And he smote thre tymes and stode styl.
Then was the man of God wroth at hym, and sayde: Yf thou haddest smytten fyue or sixe tymes, ỹ shuldest haue smytten the Sirians, tyll thou haddest vtterly brought them to naught. But now shalt thou smyte them thre tymes.
E When Elizeus was dead & buryed the men of warre of the Moabytes fell in to the londe the same yeare. And it fortuned that they buryed a certayne man. But whan they sawe the men of warre, they cast the man in to Elizeus Eccl.48.c grave. * And whã he was therin, & tou ched Eliseus bones, he reuyued, & stode vpon his fete.
So Hasael ỹ kynge of Siria oppres sed Israel, as longe as Joahas lyued.
But ỹ LORDE was gracious vnto thẽ, and had mercy vpon them and turned hym to them for his couenauntes sake with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and 4.Re.14.c wolde not destroye them * nether dyd he cast them out from his presence vnto this houre.
And Hasael ỹ kynge of Siria dyed and Benadad his sonne was kynge in his steade. But Joas turned backe, and toke out of the hande of Benadad the sonne of Hasael the cities which he had takẽ in battayll out of the hande of his father Joahas: Thre tymes dyd Joas smyte hym, and broughte the cities of Israel agayne.

The.xiiii.Chapter.

Of Joas, Amasias, Jeroboam, and Azarias.

A IN the seconde yeare of Jo-as ỹ sonne of Joahas kyng Dauid, but euẽ as his father Joas dyd so dyd he also: for the hye places were not put downe, but the people offred ỹ brent incense yet vpon the hye places.

Now whan he had gotten the power of the kyngdome, he smote his seruaun tes * which had smyttẽ the kynge his 4.Re.12 father: but the chyldren of the deadslayers slewe he not, accordynge to ỹ which shall not dye for the fathers: but euery Eze.18 one shall dye for his owne synne.

Ten thousande of the Edomites B smote he also in the Salt valley, and wãne Sela in battayll, and called it Ja tehel vnto this daye. * Then sent Ama 2.Pa.25 sias messaungers vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehu kynge of one another. But Joas ỹ kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasias the kyng of Ju da, sayenge. * The hawthorne that is Judi.9 in Libanus, sent to the ceder tre in Li-banus, sayenge: Geue thy doughter vn to my sonne to wife. But a wylde beast of the felde in Libanus came ouer the hawthorne, and trode it downe. Thou hast smytten the Edomytes, and therfore is thyne hart waxen proude: Take the prayse, and byde at home: why prouest ỹ for mysfortune, that thou mayest fall, and Juda with ỹ? Howbeit Ama sias consented not.

Then wente Joas the kynge of Is- C rael vp, and they sawe one another, he & Amasias the kynge of Juda at Beth Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Ju da was smytten before Israell, so that euery one fled in to his tente. And Jo as the kynge of Israell toke Amasias the kynge of Juda, the sonne of Joas the sonne of Ochosias at Beth Semes and came to Jerusalẽ, and brake down the wal of Jerusalem from the porte of Ephraym vnto the corner porte, euen foure hundreth cubites longe: and toke all the golde and syluer, and ornamentes that were founde in ỹ house of the LOR DE, and in the treasures of the kynges house, and the chyldren also to pledge, and departed agayne to Samaria.

What more there is to saye of Jo-as what he dyd , and of his power, and how he foughte wyth Amasyas the kynge of Juda , beholde , it is boa his sonne was kynge in his steade.

D But Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, lyued after the death of Joas the sonne of Joahas kynge of Is raell, fyftene yeare. What more there is to saye of Amasias, is it wrytten in ẏ Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And they cōspyred against hi at Jerusalē, but he fled vnto Lachis. And they sent after hym vnto Lachis, and slewe him there, And they brought him vpon horses, and he was buryed at Jerusalem wyth his 2.pa.26.a fathers in the cite of Dauid. * And all the people of Juda toke Asarias in his sixtenth yeare, and made hym kynge in steade of Amasias his father. He buyl-2.pa.26.a ded * Eloth, and brought it agayne vn to Juda , after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers.

In the fyftenth yeare of Amasias ẏ sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, was Jeroboam the sonne of Joas kynge ouer Israel at Samaria, one & fortye yeare.
And he dyd that which was euell in the syghte of the LORDE, & depated not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israell for to synne.

E But the borders of Israell broughte he agayne from Hemath vnto the see ẏ the worde of the LORDE God of Is raell , which he spake by his seruaunt Jona.1.a * Jonas the sonne of Amithai the pro-phete, which was of * Gath Epher.

For the LORDE considered the mise rable affliccoin of Israell, how that eue they which were shut vp and desolate, were away, and that there was no helper in Israell. * And the LORD sayde not that he wolde destroye the name of Israell from vnder heauen. And he helped them by Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

What more there is to saye of Jero boam, and all that he dyd, and of his po wer, how he fought, & how he broughte Damascon and Hemath agayne vnto Juda in Israell, beholde , it is wrytten in the Cronicles of ẏ kynges of Israel.
And Jeroboam fell on slepe with his fa thers, with the kynges of Israell. And zacharias his sonne was kynge in his Juda: & * was sixtene yeare 2.pa.26.a olde whan he was made kynge, & reyg-ned two and fiftye yeare at Jerusalem.

His mothers name was Jechalia of Je rusalem. And he dyd ryghte in the sight of the LORDE , accordynge to all as dyd Amasias his father , sauynge that they put not downe the hye places. For the people dyd sacryfice and brent incense yet vpon the hye places. Howbe it the LORD smote the kynge, so that he was leper vnto his death, * & dwelt Leuit.13.f in a fre house. But Jotham the kynges sonne ruled the house , and iudged the people in the londe.

Sellum the sonne of Jabes reigned Some in the nyne and thirtieth yeare of * Asa reade rias kynge of Juda , and reygned one * Usia moneth at Samaria. For Menahē the sonne of Gadi wente vp from Thirza, and came to Samaria, and smote Sellum the sonne of Jabes at Samaria, & slewe hym, and was kynge in his steade.

What more there is to saye of Sellum, and his sedicion which he stered vp, beholde, it is wrytten in the Croni-cles of ye kynges of Israel. At the same tyme dyd Manahem smyte Tipsa, and all that were therin, and the coastes ther of from Thirza, because they wolde not let hym in, and smote all their women with childe, and rypte them vp.
D In the nyne and thirtieth yeare of Asarias the kyng of Juda, begāne Ma nahem the sōne of Gadi to reygne ouer Israell ten yeares at Samaria, & dyd that was euell in the sight of the LOR DE. As longe as he lyued, departed he not from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, which caused Israell for to synne. And Phul the kynge of Assyria came in to the londe. And Manahem gaue vnto Phul a thousande talētes of syluer to holde with hym, and to confirme hym in ye kyngdom. And Manahem raysed vp a taxe in Israell vpō the ryches, fyftye Sycles of syluer vpō euery man, to geue vnto the kynge of Assiria. So the kynge of Assyria wente home agayne, and taried not in the lōde.
What more there is to saye of Manahem, and all that he dyd, behold, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell. And Manahem fell on slepe with his fathers. And Pecahia his sōne was kynge in his steade.
E In the fyftieth yeare of Asarias kynge of Juda, beganne Pecahia the sonne of Manahem to raygne ouer Israel at Samaria two yeare, & dyd that which was euell in the sight of ye LOR DE: for he departed not from the syn-nes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which caused Israel for the synne. And Peach the sōne of Romelia his knight conspyred agaynst hym, and smote hym at Samaria in ye palace of the kynges house with Argob and Ariah, and fiftie men with hym, of the chyldren of Gilead, & slewe hym, & was kynge in his steade. What more there is to saye of Pecahia, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of ye kynges of Israell.
In the two and fyftieth yeare of Asarias kynge of Juda, beganne Pecah the sōne of Romelia to raygne ouer Israell at Samaria, twentye yeare, & dyd that which was euell in the sight of the LORDE: for he departed not frō the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Na-bat, whiche caused Israell for to synne.
In the tyme of Pecah the kynge of F Israell, came Teglatphalasser the kyng of Assiria, and toke Eion, Abell Beth Maecha, Janoha, Kedes, Hasor, Gilead, Galile, and all the londe of Neph-taly, & caried them awaye into Assiria.
And Osea the sonne of Ela conspy-red agaynst Pecah the sonne of Rome-lia, and slewe hym, & was kynge in his steade in the twentyeth yeare of Jotha the sonne of * Osias. What more there is to saye of Pecah, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israell.
In the seconde yeare of Pecah the G sōne of Romelia kynge of Israel, was Jotham the sonne of Osias kynge of Juda, and was fyue and twentye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, & reyg-ned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa the doughter of Sadok. And he dyd that which was righte in the sight of the LORDE, accordynge vnto all as dyd Osias his father, sauyng that he put not downe the hye places: for the people offred & burnt incense yet vpon the hye places. He buyl ded ye hye porte of the house of ye LOR DE. What more there is to saye of Jotham, and all that he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda.
At the same tyme begāne ye LORDE to sende Rezin the kyng of Siria, & Pecah the sonne of Romelia in to Juda.
And Jotham fell on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed with his fathers in the citie of Dauid his father. And A-chas his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Of Achas, Resin, and Ezechias.

IN the seuenth yeare of Pe- A cah the sonne of Romelia, * was Achas the sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda.
Twentye yeare olde was A-chas whan he was made kynge, & reyg-ned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was right in the sight of the LORDE his God, as dyd Da-uid his father: for he walked in ye way of the kynges of Israel, * Yee and caused his sonne to go thorow the fyre, after the maner of the abhominacions of the Heythen, whom the LORDE drone awaye before the chyldren of Israell.

And he dyd sacrifice, and brent incense vpon the hye places, and vpõ all hylles, & amonge all grene trees. *Then went Esa.7.a Rezin ỹ kinge of Syria, and Pekah the sonne of Romelia kynge of Israell vp to Ierusalẽ to fyght agaynst it, & layed sege to Achas: but they could not wynne it. At the same tyme dyd Rezin ỹ kynge 4.Re.14.d of Syria, brynge *Eloth agayne vnto Syria, & thrust the Iewes out of Eloth But the Syrians came and dwelt therin vnto this daye.

B Neuertheles Achas sent messãgers vnto Teglatphalasser the kynge of Assyria, sayenge: I am thy seruaunt and thy sonne, come vp and helpe me out of the hande of the kynge of Syria, and of the kynge of Israel, which are rysen vp agaynst me. And Achas toke the syluer and golde that was founde in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house, and sent a presente Am.1.a to the kynge of Assyria. *And the kynge of Assyria consented vnto hym, & wente vp to Damascon, and wãne it, & caried them awaye vnto Cira, and slewe Rezin. And kynge Achas went to Damas-con for to mete Teglatphalasser ỹ kyng of Assyria. And when he sawe an altare that was at Damascon, kynge Achas sent a Patron and similitude of ỹ same altare vnto the prest Vrias, euen as it was made. And Vrias the prest buylded an altare, and made it accordynge as kynge Achas had sent vnto him frõ Da mascon, tyll Achas the kynge came frõ Damascon.

C And whã ỹ kynge cam frõ Damascõ & saw ỹ altare, he offered theron & kynd led his burntofferynges and meatofferyn ges vpõ it, & poured his drynkofferyn-ges theron, & caused ỹ bloude of ỹ thank-offerynges which he offred, to be sprenk led vpon the altare. But the brasen altare that stode before the LORDE, put he awaye, so that it stode not betwene the altare and the house of the LORD, but set it in the corner on the northsyde of the altare.

And Achas the kynge commaunded Vrias the prest, and sayde: Vpon the great altare shalte thou kyndle ỹ burnt offerynge in the mornynge, and ỹ meatofferynge in the euenynge, and the kynges burntofferyng & his meatofferynge, and the burntofferynge of all the people in the londe, with theyr meatofferynge and drynkofferynge. And all the bloude of the burntofferynges, and all ỹ bloude of the other offerynges shalt ỹ sprenkle theron: but with the brasen altare wyll I deuyse what I can. Vrias the prest dyd all accordynge as Achas the kynge commaunded hym.

*And kynge Achas brake downe ỹ 3.Re.7.e.B sydes of the seates, and put awaye the kettel from aboue, and toke ỹ lauer frõ the brasen bullockes that were there vn der, & set it vpon the pauement of stone And the pulpyt for the Sabbath which they had buylded in the house, and ỹ en-trye of the kinges house turned he vnto the house of the LORDE, for ỹ kynge of Assyrias sake.

What more there is to say of Achas what he dyd, beholde, it is wrytten in ỹ Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And Achas fel on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in ỹ cyte of Dauid. And Ezechias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xvii.Chapter.

Of Osea, how Salmanasar came vpon hym, and conquered, and caryed ỹ people awaye captiue. And how God punyshed those that came after in theyr steade.

In the twelfth yeare of Achas A the kynge of Iuda, beganne Oseas the sonne of Ela to reygne ouer Israell at Samaria nyne yeare, and dyd ỹ which was euel in the syght of ỹ LOR-DE, but not as the kynges of Israell ỹ were before hym. Agaynst him dyd Sal manasar the kynge of Assyria come vp.
And Oseas was subiecte vnto hym, & gaue hym trybutes. But whan ỹ kynge of Assyria perceaued that Oseas had cõ spyred and sent messaungers to Sua ỹ kynge of Egipte, and payed not trybute yearly to the kynge of the Assyrians, he beseged hym and put him preson. *And 4.Re 18.b the kynge of Assyria went vp into al the londe and to Samaria, and layed sege vnto it thre yeare. *And in the nyenth Esa.8.a yeare of Oseas dyd ỹ kynge of Assyria wynne Samaria, *and caryed Israell 4.Es.13.c awaye in to Assyria, and set them at Ha lah and at Habor by the water Gosan, and in the cyties of the Meders.

For whan the chyldre of Israell syn ned agaynst the LORDE theyr God (that broughte them out of the londe of Egipte, from the hāde of Pharao kinge of Egipte) and serued other goddes: and walked after the costumes of the Hey-then, whom the LORDE had dryuen out before the chyldren of Israell, & dyd as the kynges of Israell, and prouoked the LORDE theyr God, and dyd secretly the thinges that were not ryghte in the sighte of the LORD theyr God: namely in that they buylded them hye places in all cyties, both in castels and strōge cities, and set vp pylers & groues vpon all hye hylles, and amōge all grene trees, and brent incense there in all the hye places, euen as dyd the Heythē, whō the LORDE had cast out before them, and wroughte wycked thynges, wher with they prouoked the LORDE vnto wrath, and serued the Idols, wherof Deut, 4. c the LORDE sayde vnto thē*: Ye shal not do such a thynge.

C And whan the LORDE testified in Israell and Juda by al the prophetes Iere. 25. a and Seyers, sayenge: *O turne agayne from youre euell wayes, and kepe my cō maundementes and ordinaunces, accordynge to all the law which I gaue vnto youre fathers, and that I sent vnto you by my seruauntes the prophetes: they Deut. 31. f wolde not herken, *but hardened their Mala. 3. b neckes, accordynge to the hardnecke of of their fathers, whyche beleued not on the LORDE their God. Yee they despysed his ordinaunces & his cōuenaūt which he made wyth theyr fathers, and his testymonies whych he witnessed amonge them, and walked in their own vanities, and became vayne, folowynge the Heythen, which dwelt rounde about them, concernynge whom the LORDE had commaunded them, that they shulde not do as they dyd. Neuerteles they forsoke all the commaundementes of the 3 Reg. 12. d LORDE their God * and made them two molten calues and groues, & worshipped al the hoost of heauē, and serued Deu. 18. b Baal, and * caused their sōnes & dough ters to go thorowe the fyre, and medled with soithsayers and witches, and gaue them selues ouer to do that which was euell in the syghte of the LORDE, to prouoke hym vnto wrath.
D Then was the LORD very wroth at Israell, and put thē awaye from his presence so that there remayned nono 3. Reg. 12. c *but onely the trybe of Juda. Nether dyd Juda kepe the commaundementes of the LORDE their God, but walked after the customes of Israel, which they dyd. Therfore dyd the LORDE cast away all the sede of Israel, and troubled them, and delyuered them in to the han-des of the spoylers, tyll he had cast them out of his presence: for Israell was deuy ded from the house of Dauid. And they made them a kynge, one Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, whych turned Israell back from the LORDE, and caused thē to synne so sore. Thus walked the chyldren of Israell in all the synnes of Jeroboam, which he had done, and departed not from them, vntyll the LORD put Israell out of his presence, accordynge as he had spoken by all his seruauntes E the prophetes. * So Israell was caried Jer. [illegible] away out of their owne londe to Assiria vnto this daye.
The kynge of Assiria caused men to come from Babylon, from Cutha, from Aua, from Hemath and Sepharuaim, and caused thē to inhabite the cyties in Samaria in steade of the chyldren of Is raell. And they toke possession of Sama ria, and dwelt in the same cities. But whan they begame to dwell there, and feared not the LORDE, the LORD sent lyons amonge thē, which slewe thē.
And they caused it be sayde vnto ẏ kyng of Assiria: The Heythē whom thou hast brought hither, and caused them to in-habite the cities of Samaria, know not the lawe of the God of the londe. Therfore hath he sent lyons amonge them, & beholde, they slaye them, because they know not the ordinaunce of the God of the londe.
The kynge of Assiria commaunded F and sayde: Brynge thyther one of the prestes that were caried away frō thens and let hym go thyther, and dwell there, and teach them the ordinaunce of ẏ God of the londe. Then came one of ẏ prestes which were caried awaye from Samaria, and dwelt at Bethel, and taught thē how they shulde feare the LORD. But euery people made thē goddes, and put them in the houses vpon the hye places, which the Samaritanes had made, eue-ry people in theyr cyties wheryn they dwelt. They of Babilon made Sochoth Benoth. They of Chut made Nergel.
They of Hemath made Asima. They of Aua made Nibehas & Tharthak. They of Sepharuaim burnt their sonnes vnto Adramelech and Anamelech the god-des of thē of Sepharuaim.

G And whyle they feared the LORDE, they made prestes in the hye places of ÿ lowest amonge them, & put them in the houses of ÿ hye places: thus they feared the LORDE, and serued the goddes also, accordynge to the costume of euery nacion, from whence they were brought And vnto this day do they after ÿ olde fashion, so ÿ they nother feare the LORDE, nor yet kepe theyr owne ordinaunces and lawes, after the law and cōmaundement that the LORDE cōmaunded Gen.32.e the chyldren of Jacob, * vnto whom he gaue the name of Israell, and made a cōuenaunt with them, and commaunded Judi.6.b them, and sayde: * Feare none other god Jer.10.a. des, and worshippe them not, and serue them not, and offer not vnto them: but the LORDE whych broughte you out of the londe of Egipte, with greate power & outstretched arme, hym feare, hym worshippe, and vnto him do sacryfice: and the statutes, ordinaunces, lawe and commaundement which he hath caused to be wrytten vnto you, those se that ye kepe, that ye alwaye do therafter, and feare none other goddes. And forget not the cōuenaūt whych he hath made with you, lest ye feare other goddes. But feare the LORDE youre God, he shall delyuer you from all youre enemyes. Neuertheles they wolde not herken, but dyd after their olde costume.

Thus these Heythen feared ÿ LORDE, and serued their Idols also, and so dyd their chyldren and chylders chyldrē lykewyse. Euen as their fathers haue done before them, so do they vnto thys daye.

The.xviii.Chapter.

Of the good kynge Ezechias, & how Sennacherib troubleth him.

2.Pa.29.a IN the thirde yeare of * Oseas the sonne of Ela kynge of Israell, reygned Ezechias ÿ sonne of Achas kynge of Juda. And he was fyue & twentye yeare olde whan he was made kinge and reygned nyne and twentye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abi ÿ doughter of zachary. And he dyd that A which was righte in ÿ sight of ÿ LORDE, accordinge vnto all as dyd Dauid Deu.7.a his father. * He put awaye the hye places, 4.Re.23.a and brake down the pylers, and roted out the groues, and brake the brasen serpente * which Moses had made. Num.21.a.
For vnto that tyme had the chyldren of Israel brent incense vnto it. And it was called Nehusthan. He put his trust in ÿ LORDE God of Israell, so that after hym there was not his lyke amonge all the kynges of Juda nether had bene before him. He cleued vnto the LORDE, departed not backe from hym, and kepte his cōmaundementes, which the LORDE had commaunded Moses. And the LORDE was with him. And whyther so euer he wente forth, he behaued hymselfe wysely. B He resysted the kynge of Assiria, and was not subdued vnto him. Esai.14.e
* He smote the Phylystines also vnto Gasa. and their borders, from ÿ castels vnto the stronge cities.

* In the fourth yeare of Ezechias 4.reg.17.a kynge of Juda (that was the seuenth yeare of Oseas the sonne of Ela kynge of Israell) came Salmanasar the kynge of Assiria vp agaynst Samaria, and layed sege vnto it, and wanne it after thre yeares in the sixte yeare of Ezechias, ÿ is in the nyenth yeare of Oseas kyng of Israel, thē was Samaria wonne & the kynge of Assiria caried Israell away vnto Assiria, and set them at Halah & Habor by the water Gosan, and in the cities of ÿ Meedes. And all because they herkened not vnto ÿ voyce of ÿ LORDE theyr God, and had trāsgressed his cōuenaūt: And as for all that Moses the seruaunt of the LORDE had commaunded thē, they had nother herkened vnto ony of those, nor done them.

* In the fourtenth yeare of kynge C Ezechias dyd Sennacherib the kinge of 2.Pa.32.a Assiria come vp agaynst all the stronge Eccli.48.c cyties of Juda, and conquered them. Esai.36.a Then sent Ezechias the kynge of Juda to the kynge of Assiria vnto Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended, turne back from me: loke what thou layest vnto me, I wyll beare it. Thē ÿ kyng of Assiria layed vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda, thre hundreth talentes of syluer, and thyrtye talentes of golde. * So Ezechias 4 Re.12.d gaue all the syluer that was founde in the house of the LORDE, and in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same tyme brake Ezechias the kynge of Juda the dores of the temple of ÿ LORDE, and the plates of golde which he himselfe had caused to laye ouer them, and gaue thē vnto the kynge of Assiria.
* And the kynge of Assiria sent Thar 2.Pa.32.e tan, and the chefe chamberlaine, and the chefe butler from Lachis to kynge Ezechias with a great power vnto Ierusa lem. And they wente vp: and whan they came there, they stode styll at the cōdyte by the ouer pole, which lyeth in ẏ waye vpon the fullers londe, and called vnto the kynge. Then came there forth vnto them Eliachim ẏ sonne of Helchias the steward, and Sobna the scrybe, & Ioah the sonne of Assaph the Secretary.

D And the chefe butler sayd vnto thē: Tell kynge Ezechias: Thus sayeth the great kynge, euen the kynge of Assyria: What presumpcyon is this that thou trustest vnto? Thynkest thou, that thou hast yet councell and power to fyght?
Wher vnto trustest thou then, that thou art fallen of fro me? Beholde, puttest ẏ Esa.36.a thy trust in this * broken staffe of rede, Ezec.29.a in Egipte? which who so leaneth vpon it shall go in to his hande, and pearse it thorow. Euen so is Pharao the kynge of Egipte vnto all them that put theyr trust in hym. But yf ye wolde saye vnto me: We put our trust in the LORDE our God. Is not that he, whose hye pla ces & altares Ezechias hath takē down and said vnto Iuda and Ierusalem: Be fore this altare which is at Ierusalem, shall ye worshippe?
Make a multytude therfore vnto my lorde the kynge of Assyria, and I wyll geue the two thousande horses, let se yf thou be able to man thē: how wylt thou thē endure before the smallest prynce of my lordes subiectes? And trustest thou vnto Egipte because of the charrettes and horsemen? But thynkest thou that I came vp hether without the LORD to destroye these cyties? The LORD hath commaunded me: Go vp in to that londe and destroye it.
E Then sayde Eliachim the sonne of Helchia and Sobna and Ioah vnto the chefe butler: Speake to thy seruauntes in the Syrians language, for we vnder stonde it, and speake not vnto vs in the Iewes speache before the eares of the people that are vpon the wall. Neuer-theles the chefe butler sayd vnto them: Hath my lorde then sent me vnto thy lorde, or to the, to speake these wordes?
Yee euen vnto the men, which syt vpon the wall, that they maye eat theyr awne donge and drynke theyr owne stale with you. So the chefe butler stode and cryed with loude voyce in the Iewes lāguage and sayd: Heare the worde of the great kynge, the kynge of Assyria. Thus sayth ẏ kynge: Let not Ezechias deceaue you, for he is not able to delyuer you fro my hande: and let not Ezechias make you to trust in the LORDE, sayenge: The LORDE shall delyuer vs, & this cyte shall not be geuen in to ẏ handes of the kynge of Assyria. Folowe not ye Ezechi as, for thus sayeth the kynge of Assiria.
Do me this blessyng, & come forth vn F to me, so shall euery mā eate of his vyne & of his fygge tre, & drynke of his well, tyll I come my selfe and fetche you into a londe, which is lyke your owne londe, wherin is corne, wyne, bread, vynyardes oyle trees, oyle and hony, so shall ye lyue & not dye. Folowe not ye Ezechias, for he deceaueth you, whan he sayeth: The LORDE shall delyuer vs. * Haue the goddes of the Heythen delyuered euery Esa.36.d one his londe from the hand of ẏ kynge of Assiria? Where are the goddes of Hemath and Arphad? Where are the goddes of Sepharuaim Hena and Iua? Haue they delyuerd Samaria fro my hande? Where is there one God a monge the goddes of all londes, whiche hath delyuered his londe fro my hande? that the LORDE shulde delyuer Ieru salem fro my hande.
As for the people, they helde theyr peace, and gaue hym no answere: for the kynge had commaunded and sayd: Answere hym nothynge. Thē came Eli achim the sonne of Helchia ẏ stewarde, and Sobna the scrybe, and Ioah the sonne of Assaph the Secretarye vnto Ezechias with rente clothes, and tolde hym the wordes of the chefe butler.

The.xix.Chapter.

Ezechias sendeth vnto Esay, which comforteth hym. God defendeth Ezechi as, and delyuereth hym.

When Ezechias ẏ kynge herd A this, he rente his clothes, & Esa.37.a put on a sackcloth, & wente in to the house of ẏ LOR-DE, and sent Eliachim the stewarde, and Sobna the Scrybe with the Eldest prestes, clothed in sackcloth, vnto the prophet Esay ẏ sōne of Amos, & they sayd vnto hym: Thus sayth Eze chias: This is a day of trouble, & of respyte and blasphemy. The chyldren are come to the byrth, & there is no strength to be delyuered of them. Yf happly the LORDE thy God wyll heare all the wordes of the chefe butler, whome his lorde the kynge of Assyria hath sent, to blaspheme the lyuynge God, and to defye hym with suche wordes as the LORD thy God hath herde, therfore lyfte thou vp thy prayer for the remnaunt, whiche are yet lefte behynde.

B And whan kynge Ezechias seruaun tes came to Esay, Esay sayde vnto thē: Speak thꝰ vnto your lorde thus sayeth ẏ LORD: Feare not ẏ the wordes that ẏ hast herd wherwith ẏ king of Assirias seruauntes haue blasphemed me. Behold, I wyl put hym in another mynde, so ẏ he shal heare tydinges, & go agayn in to his Esa.37.a owne countre, * and in his owne londe [illegible] wyll I cause hym to fall thorowe the swearde
And whan the chefe butlar came a-gayne, he founde the kynge of Assyria fyghtyng agaynst Lybna: for he had herd that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde of Taracha ẏ kynge of the Mo rians: Beholde, he is gone forth to fight with the. Then turned he back, & sente messaungers to Ezechias, and caused to saye vnto hym: Saye thus vnto Ezechi-as the kynge of Iuda: Let not thy God deceaue the, on whom thou trustest and sayest: Ierusalem shall not be geuē in to the hande of ẏ kynge of Assiria. Behold, thou hast herde what the kynges of Assi rya haue done vnto all londes, and how they damned them, and shalt thou be delyuered? Haue the goddes of the Heythē delyuered them, whome my fathers destroyed, as Gosan, Haran, Reseph, and the chyldren of Edē which were at Tha lassar? Where is the kynge of Hemath the kynge of Arphad, and the kynge of ẏ cyte Sepharuaim, Hena, and Iua?
C And whan Ezechias had receaued ẏ letters of the messaungers and had red them, he wente vp vnto the house of the LORDE, and layed thē abrode before the LORDE, and made his prayer before the LORDE, and sayde O LOR DE God of Israel, thou that syttest vp pon the Cherubins, thou onely art God amonge all the kyngdomes of the earth, thou hast made heauen and earth. Encly ne thyne eare: O LORDE, and heare: open thyne eyes, and beholde, and heare the wordes of Senacherib, whiche hath sent hither to blaspheme the lyuynge God. It is true (O LORDE) that the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed ẏ Hey then and theyr londe with the swearde, and haue cast theyr goddes in ẏ fyre: for they were not goddes, but the worke of mens handes, wood and stone, therfore haue they destroyed them. But now O LORD helpe thou vs out of his hande that all the kyngdomes vpon earth may knowe, that thou LORDE art God alone. D
Then sent Esay the sonne of Amos vnto Ezechias, sayenge: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: Where as thou haste made thy prayer vnto me concernynge Senacherib the kynge of Assyria, I haue herde it. This is it that the LORDE hath spokē agaynst hym: He hath despysed ẏ, and mocked the O virgyn thou doughter Syō: he hath sha ken his heade at the O doughter Ieru-salem. * Whom hast thou despysed and Zacha.2.b blasphemed? Ouer whom hast thou lyft Mat.23.d vp thy voyce? Euē agaynst the holy one Actu.9.a in Israell hast thou lyfte vp thyne eyes: thou hast blasphemed the LORDE by thy messaungers, and sayde: Thorow ẏ multitude of my charettes haue I gone vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, vp pon the sydes of Lybanus. I haue hewē downe his hye Ceders and his chosen Pynetrees, and am come to ẏ vttermost habitacyon of the wood of Carmel that belongeth vnto it. I haue dygged and dronke vp the straūge waters, and with the soles of my fete haue I dryed vp the See.
But hast thou not herde how that I E haue done this longe ago, and haue prepared it from the begynnynge? Nowe haue I caused it for to come, that contencyous stronge cityes myght fall in to a wayst heape of stones, and they that dwell therin, shall be faynte, and fearful and ashamed, * and shal be as the grasse Psal.36.a vpon the felde, and as the grene herbe, and haye vpon the housetoppes, that withereth afor it be growne vp. I know thy habitacyon, thy out and ingoynge, and that thou ragest agaynst me. For so much then as thou ragest agaynste me, and thynge thy presumpcyon is come vp to myne eares, therfore wyll I putte a rynge in thy nose, and a brydle byt in thy lyppes, and wyll brynge the agayne, euē the same waye thou camest.
And let this be a token vnto the O F Ezechias. In this yeare eate that which is fallen. In the seconde yeare suche as growweth of it selfe: In the thyrde yeare sowe and reape, and plante vynyardes, and eate the frute therof. And the doughter Juda which is escaped and remayneth, shall from henceforth take rote beneth, and bear frute aboue. For the remnaunt shall go forth from Jerusalem, & they that are escaped, shall go out fro mount Syon. The gelousy of ỹ LORDE Sebaoth shall brynge this to passe

Therfore thus sayeth the LORDE concernynge the kynge of the Assirians: He shall not come in to this cyte, & shall shute no arowe therin, nother shall there come ony shylde before it, nother shal he dygge ony banke about it, but shall go agayne the waye ỹ he came, ād shall not come in to this cyte, sayeth the LORDE: & I wyll defend this cyte, to helpe it for myne owne sake, and for my seruaunt Duids sake.

And in the same nyght went the an-G gell of the LORDE, and smote in the hoost of the Assirians, an hundreth and fyue and foure score thousande men.
And when they gat them vp in the mor-nynge, beholde, all laye full of dead coarses. *So Senacherib the kynge of As-Tobi.1.d syria brake vp, and departed, and returned, and abode at Niniue. And as he worshipped in the house of Nesrach his God, his owne sonnes Adramalech, and Sarazer smote hym with ỹ sweard and fled in to the londe of Ararat. And Asarhadon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xx. Chapter

Ezechias is dead sycke, but Esay at the commaundement of the LORDE, promyseth hym to lyue yet fyftē yeares.

A At that tyme * was Ezechias 2.Pa.32.c dead sycke And the prophet Esa.38.a Esay the sonne of Amos, came to hym, and sayd vnto hym: Thus sayeth ỹ LORDE: Set thyne house in ordre for thou shalt dye & not lyue. And he turned his face to the wall, and prayed vnto the LORDE, and sayd: Remembre (O LORDE) that I haue walked faythfully before ỹ, and with a perfecte hart, & haue done that which is good in thy syght. And Ezechias wepte sore. But when Esay was not gone out of halfe the cyte, the worde of the LORDE came to hym, and sayd: Turne backe, & tel Ezechias the prynce of my people: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of thy father Dauid: I haue herde thy prayer, & sene thy teares. Beholde, I wyll heale the, on the thyrde daye shalt thou go vp in to ỹ house of the LORDE, and fyftene yeres wyll I adde vnto thy lyfe, and wyll delyuer the and this cyte frō the kynge of Assyria, & this cyte wyl I defende for myne owne sake, & for my seruaunt Dauids sake. And Esay sayd: Brynge hyther a quantite of fygges. And when they brought them, they layed them vpon the sore, and it was healed.

Ezechias sayd vnto Esay: Which is B 2.Pa.32.f the token, that the LORDE wyll heale me, and that I shall go vp in to ỹ house of the LORDE on the thyrde daye? Esay sayde: This token shalte thou haue of the LORDE, that the LORDE shall do accordynge as he hath sayd. Shall the shadowe go ten degrees B forwarde, or shall it turne ten degrees 2.Pa.33.a backward? Ezechias said: It is an easy thynge for ỹ shadowe to go ten degrees downewarde that is not my mynde: but that it go ten degres backwarde. Then cryed the prophet Esay vnto ỹ LORDE *and the shadowe wente backe ten de- Eccli.48 grees in Achas dyall, which he was descended afore. 4.Re.18.a

*At the same tyme Merodach Ba- Esa.39.a ladan the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babylon, sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he had herde that Ezechias had ben sycke. And Ezechias reioyced with them, and shewed them all the house of cotes, the syluer, golde, spyces, and the best oyle, and the house of ordynaunce, and all that was founde in his treasures. There was nothynge in his house and in all his domynion, but Ezechias shewed it them.

Deu.18.b
Then came Esay the prophete vnto C 4.Re.16.a kynge Ezechias, and sayd vnto hym: What haue these men sayd? & whence came they vnto the? Ezechias sayde: They came to me out of a farre countre, euen frō Babilon. He sayd: What haue B they sene in thy house? Ezechyas sayd: They haue sene all that is in my house, and there is nothynge in my treasures but I haue shewed it them. Then sayde 1.Re.9.a Esay vnto Ezechyas: Heare the worde of the LORDE: Beholde, *the tyme 4.Re.24 commeth, that it shall be caryed awaye and 25 vnto Babilon, and what soeuer thy fa- Iere.20 thers haue layed vp vnto this daye, and LORDE. *Yee & the chyldren which Dan.1.a come of the, whō thou shalt beget, shall be taken awaye, to be chamberlaynes in the kynge of Babilōs palace. Ezechias sayd vnto Esay: It is good ẏ ẏ LOR-DE hath spokē. And he sayd moreouer: Let there be peace yet and faythfulnesse in my tyme.

What more there is to saye of Ezechias, and all his power, & what he dyd and of the pole and water cōduite, wher by he conueyed water in to the cyte, be-holde, it is wrytten in the Cronicles of 2.Pa.32.d the kynges of Juda. * And Ezechias fell on slepe with his fathers, and Ma-nasses his sōne was kynge in his steade.

The.xxi.Chapter.

Of the reygne of the vngodly kynge Manasses, how he lyued, and how he dyed. Of his sonne Amon.

2.Pa.33.a Manasses * was twelfe yeare olde, when he was made kynge, and reigned fyue and fyfty yeare at Jerusalē. His mothers name was Heph-ziba. And he dyd that which was euell in the syght of the LORDE (euen after the abhominacyons of the Heythen, whom ẏ LORDE expelled before the 4.Re.18.a chyldren of Israel) and waxed froward and buylded vp the hye places * whiche his father Ezechias had destroyed, and set vp Baals altares, and made groues (as Achab the kynge of Israell dyd) & worshipped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. And buylded altares in the LORDES house, wherof the LOR-DE sayd: I wyll set my name at Jerusalem. And in both the courtes of the house of the LORDE buylded he al-Le.20.b tares vnto all the hoost of heauen. And Deu.18.b * caused his sonne to go thorow ẏ fyre, 4.Re.16.a and regarded byrdes cryenge & tokēs, and maynteyned sothsayers, and expoū-ders of tokens, and so muche dyd he of this which was euell in the syght of the LORDE that he prouoked hym vnto B wrath.

A groue Idoll also which he hadde made, set he in the house, wherof the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid and to 3.Re.9.a Salomon his sonne: In this house, and at Jerusalem (* whiche I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israell) wyll I set my name for euer, and wyl not cause the fote of Israell to be remoued eny more from the londe, which I gaue vnto theyr fathers, yee so that they obserue and do accordynge vnto al that I haue charged them, and after all the law that my seruaunt Moses cōmaunded them.
Neuertheles they wolde not herken, but Manasses deceaued them, so that they dyd worse then the Heythen, whom the LORDE expelled before the chyldren
of Israell.

Then spake the LORDE by his seruauntes the prophetes, and sayd: Because that Manasse the kynge of Juda hath done these abhominacyons, which are worse then all the abhominacyons that ẏ Amorites haue done which were before them, and hath caused Juda also to synne agaynste theyr God, therfore thus sayeth the LORDE God of Is- C rael: * Beholde, I wyll brynge suche a Jere.19.a plage vpon Jerusalem and Juda, that who soeuer heareth it, both his eares shall glowe, and ouer Jerusalem wyll I stretch forth the lyne of Samaria, and the weyght of the house of Achab, and wyll wype out Jerusalem, euen as one wypeth a platter, and I wyl ouerthrow it. And the remnaunt of myne enheritaunce wyl I cast out, and scatter them abrode, and wyll delyuer them in to the handes of theyr enemyes, to be spoyled and rent of theyr enemyes: because they haue done ẏ which is euell in my syght, and haue prouoked me vnto wrath, sence the daye that I broughte theyr fathers D out of Egipte, vnto this daye. Manasses also shed exceadynge much innocent bloude, so longe tyll Jerusalem was ful on euery syde, besyde the synnes where with he caused Juda for to synne, so ẏ they dyd that whiche was euell in the syght of the LORDE.

What more there is to saye of Ma-nasses, and all that he dyd, and his syn-nes which he commytted, beholde it is wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in the garden besyde his house, namely, in the garden of Vsa: and Amon his sōne 2.Pa.33.d
was kynge in his steade.

* Two and twenty yeare olde was Amon when he was made kynge, and he reygned two yeare at Jerusalem.
His mothers name was Mesumelech, the doughter of Harus of Jatba, and he dyd euell in the syght of the LORDE, E as Manasses his father had done, and walked in al the waye which his father walked, and serued ẏ Idols whiche his father had serued, & worshipped them, and forsoke the LORDE the God of his father, and walked not in the waye of

the LORDE.

And his seruauntes conspyred against Amon, and slewe the kynge in his house.
But the people of the londe slewe al thē that had conspyred agaynst kynge Amō.
And the people of the lōde made Iosias his sonne kynge in his steade. As for other thynges that Amon dyd, beholde, they are wrytten in the Cronicles of the kynges of Iuda. And he was buried in his graue in Vsas garden. And Iosias his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The .xxii. Chapter.

Of the reygne of that noble and ver-tuous kynge Iosias, and of his goodly actes.

A Iosias * was eyght yeare 4.Pa.34.a olde whā he was made king, and reygned one and thirtye yeare at Ierusalem. His mothers name was Iedida the doughter of Adaia of Bascath, & he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of ye LORDE, and walked in al the way of Dauid his father, and turned not asyde, nother to the ryghthonde nor to the left.
2.Pa.34.b * And in ye eyghteenth yeare of kinge Iosias, the kynge sent Saphan ye sonne of Asalia the sonne of Mesulam ye scribe in to the house of the LORDE, & sayd: 4.Re.12.b * Go vp to Helchias ye hye prest, that the money that is brought vnto the house of the LORDE (whych the tresholde kepers haue gathered of ye people) maye be delyuered vnto them, that they maye geue it to the workmen whych are ap-poynted in the house of the LORDE, and to geue it vnto the labourers in the house (that they maye repayre the decaye of ye house) namely, vnto the carpēters, and buylders, & masons, and to thē that hye timber & fre stone for the repairinge of the house: but so that there be no ac-comptes taken of them concernynge the money, that is vnder theyr hande, but ye they deale withall vpon credence.
B And Helchias the hye prest sayde vn-2.Pa.34.c to Saphā the scrybe: * I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the LORDE. And Helchias gaue the boke vnto Saphan, that he myghte reade it.
And Saphan the scrybe bare it vnto the kynge, and brought hym worde agayne, and sayde: Thy seruauntes haue gathered together the money that was foūde in the house, and haue delyuered it vnto the workmen, which are appoynted in ye house of the LORDE. And Saphan ye scrybe tolde the kynge and sayde: Helchias ye hye prest hath delyuered me a boke, and Saphan red it before the kynge.

But whan the kynge herde the wor-des of the boke of ye law, he rente his clothes. And the kynge commaunded Helchias the prest, and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Achbor the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan the scrybe, and Asa-ia the kynges seruaunt, and sayde: * Go Iere.[illegible] your waye and axe councel at the LOR-DE for me, for the people, and for al Iu-da, concernynge the wordes of this boke C that is founde: for greate is the wrath of the LORDE that is kyndled ouer vs, because oure fathers haue not herkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do all ye is wrytten vnto vs theryn.

Then wente Helchias the hye prest, and Ahicā, Achbor, Saphan, and Asaia vnto Hulda, the prophetisse, the wyfe of Sellum, the sonne of Thecua, the sonne of Harram the keper of the clothes, & she dwelt at Ierusalem in the seconde porte, and they spake vnto her. And she sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell: Tell the man that sent you vnto me, Thus sayeth the LORDE: Beholde, I wyll brynge euil vpon this place, and the inhabiters therof, euen all the wordes of the lawe which the kynge hath caused to be red, because they haue forsaken me, & brent incense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me vnto wrath with all the workes of their handes. Therfore is my wrath kindled agaynst this cyte, & shall not be quenched.

But tell this vnto the kynge of Iu- D da, which hath sent you to axe councell at the LORDE: Thus sayeth ye LOR-DE God of Israel: Because thine hart is not departed from the wordes which thou hast herde, and hast hūbled thyselfe before the LORDE, to heare what I haue spoken agaynst this place and ye inhabiters therof (how that they shall become a very desolacion and curse) & hast rente thy clothes, & wepte before me, I 4.Re.[illegible] haue herde it, sayeth the LORDE: therfore wyll I gather the vnto thy fathers, so that thou shalt be put in to thy graue in peace, and thyne eyes shal not se all the euell that I wyll brynge vpon this place. And they brought the kynge worde
agayne.

The.xxiii.Chapter.

¶ How Nabuchodonosor cōmeth vpō kynge Joachim, and caryeth awaye Joachym his sonne vnto Babylon.

I ...ar.34.f AND * the kynge sent forth, and all the Elders in Juda and Jerusalem resorted vnto hym, and the kynge went vp in to ẏ house of ẏ LORDE, and all the mē of Juda, and all the inhabiters of Jerusalem with hym, the prestes and prophetes, and all the people both small and great, * and all the wordes of the boke of the cōuenaunt þ was foūde in the house of the LORDE, were red in theyr eares. And the kynge stode vpon a pyler, & * made a couenaunt before the LORDE, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, and to kepe his cōmaundementes, witnesses and ordinaunces with all their hart and with all their soule, that they shulde set vp the wordes of this cōuenaunt, which are writen in in this boke. And all the people entred in to the cōuenaunt.

And the kyng cōmaunded Helchias the hye prest, and the prestes of ẏ seconde course, and the kepers of the tresholde, þ they shulde put out of the temple all the vessels which were made for Baall, and for the groue, and for al the hoost of heauen, and he brent them without Jerusalem in the valleye of Cedron, and ẏ dust of them was caryed vnto Bethell.

And he put downe the * Kemurims whome the kynges of Juda had founded, to burne incense vpō the hye places, in the cities of Juda, and aboute Jerusalem. He put downe also thē that brent incense vnto Baall, to the Sonne, and ẏ Mone, and the twolue tokens, and to al the hoost of heauen. And the groue caused he to be caryed from the house of the LORDE out of Jerusalem in to ẏ valley of Cedron, and brent it in the valley of Cedron, and made it to dust, and cast the duste vpon ẏ graues of the cōmune people. And he brake downe the whorekepers houses which were by the house of the LORDE, wherin the wemē made mansyons for the groue.

And he caused all the prestes for to come out of the cities of Juda, and suspeded the hye places, where the prestes brent incense, from Geba and Berseba. And brake down the hye places in ẏ portes, that were at the dore of the gate of Josua the shreue of the cite, at the lefte hāde as one goeth to the cyte porte. Yet had not the prestes of the hye places offred vpon the altare of the LORDE at Jerusalē, but dyd eate vnleuēded breade amonge their brethrē.

He suspended * Tophet also in the valeye of the chyldren of Ennon, that no mā shulde cause his sōne or his doughter to go thorow the fyre vnto Moloch. And he put downe the horses, which the kynges of Juda had set vnto the Sōne, at the entrynge in to ẏ house of ẏ LORDE, besyde ẏ chest of Netham Melech the chamberlayne which was at Paruarym, & the charrettes of the Sonne brēt he with fyre, and the altares vpon the rofe of Achabs parler, which ẏ kynges of Juda had made. And ẏ altares * which Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the LORDE, dyd the kynge breake downe. And ranne from thēce, and cast the dust of them in to the broke Cedron. C / Jere.7.d / 4.Re.21.a

And the hye places that were before Jerusalem on the ryght hande of mount Mashith * which Salomon the kynge of Israell had bulyded vnto Astaroth ẏ abhominacyon of Sydō, and to Camos the abhominaciō of Moab, and to Malcom the abhominacyon of the chyldren of Ammon, those dydde the kynge suspende, and brake ẏ pylers, and roted out the groues, and fylled theyr places with mens bones. 3.Re.11.a

And * the altare at Bethell, and the hye place that Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat made, whiche caused Israell to synne, the same altare brake he downe, and the hye place, and brent ẏ hye place, and made it to dust, and brēt vp ẏ groue. And Josias turned hym aboute, & sawe the graues that were vpon the mounte, and caused ẏ bones to be fetched out of the graues, and brent them vpon the altare, and suspended it, accordynge to the worde of the LORDE, * which ẏ mā of God cryed out, that tolde this before. D / 3.Re.13.a / 3.Re.13.a

And he sayde: What tytell is this, that I se here? And the men of the cyte sayde vnto hym: It is the graue of ẏ mā of God, which came from Juda, & cryed out this that thou hast done agaynst the altar of Bethel. And he sayd: Let him lye no mā touche his bones. Thus were his bones delyuered with the bones of the proph ete that came from Samaria.

He put awaye also all the houses of the hye places in the cities of Samaria, (which the kynges of Israell had made E to prouoke the LORDE vnto wrath) and dyd with them accordynge to all as he had done at Bethell. And all the prestes of the hye places that were there, ofworde of the LORDE, that he wolde put them awaye from his presence, because of the synnes of Manasses which he dyde: and because of the innocent bloude that he shed. And he fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, therfore wolde not ye LORD be reconcyled. b What more there is to saye of Joachim, & all that he dyd behold, it is written in ye Cronicles of ye kynges of Juda

And Joachim fell on slepe with his fa-Jer.36.d thers. And * Joachim his sonne was kynge in his steade. And the kynge of Egipte came nomore out of his londe: for the kynge of Babylon had cōquered all that was the kynge of Egiptes, frō the ryuer of Egipte vnto ỹ water Euphrates. Eyghtene yeare olde was Joachim whan he was made kynge, & reyg ned thre monethes at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Nehusthe ỹ dough ter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd euell in the syght of the LORDE, euen as his father had done.

Jere.22 C At the same tyme went the seruaūtes of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylō vp to Jerusalem, and came vpon the cy te with ordinaūce of warre. And whan Nabuchodonosor & his seruaūtes cam to the cyte they layed sege vnto it. But Joachim the kynge of Juda went forth to the kynge of Babylon with his mother, with his seruauntes, with his rulers and chamberlaynes. And the kynge of Babilon receaued hym in the eyghte yeare of hys raygne.

4.Re.20.c Esa.39.b * And he toke forth from thence all the treasure in the house of the LOR-DE, and in the kynges house, & brake all the golden vessell that Salomon the kynge of Jsraell had made in the house of the LORDE (accordynge as the LORDE had sayd) and caryed awaye all Jerusalem, all the rulers, all ỹ myghty tye men, euen ten thousande presoners, and all the carpenters, and all the smythes, and left none behynde but ỹ poore people of the londe.

Jere.37.a Jere.24.a * And he caryed Joachim awaye vn to Babilon, and the kynges mother, the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes: and the myghtye men of the londe led he awaye presoners also from Jerusalem vnto Babilon, and seuen thousand of ỹ best men, and a thousande carpenters and smythes, and all the stronge men of warre. And ỹ kynge of Babilō brought them awaye captyue vnto Babylon.

Jere.37.a * And the kynge of Babilon made Ma tania his vncle kynge in his steade, and turned his name Sedechias.

Jere.52.a * One and twentye yeare olde was Sedechias, whan he was made kynge, and reygned eleuen yeare at Jerusalem His mothers name was Amithall the doughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of the LORDE, euen as Joachim dyd: for thus fortuned it vnto Jerusalem and Juda thorowe the wrath of the LORDE, tyll he had cast them out from his presence. And Sedechias fell awaye from the kynge of Babilon.

The.xxv. Chapter.

C Nabuchodonosor layeth sege to Jerusalē, wynneth it, setteth fyre on it, & caryeth away the kynge and the people presoners vnto Babilon.

A And it fortuned, that * in the A nyenth yeare of his reygne, Jere.39.a. vpon the tenth daye of the and.52.a tenth moneth, Nabuchodo-nosor the kynge of Babilon came with all his power agaynst Jerusalem. And they layed sege vnto it, and buylded stronge holdes rounde about it.
Thus was the cyte beseged vnto the eleueth yeare of kinge Sedechias. * But Ezech.4.c on the nyenth day of the fourth moneth and.3.d was the honger so stronge in the cyte, ỹ the people of the londe had nothynge to eate. And the cyte was brokē vp, and all the men of warre fled in ỹ nyght by the waye of the porte betwene the two wal les, which goeth to the kynges garden.
But the Caldees laye aboute the cyte.
And Sedechias fled by the waye to the playne felde. Neuertheles the power of the Caldees folowed after the kynge, & toke hym in ỹ playne felde of Jericho: & all the mē of warre that were with him were scatered abrode from hym. And they toke the kynge, and led hym vp to the kynge of Babilon vnto Reblatha. Some rea

B Upon the seuenth daye of the fyfthe moneth, that is the nyneteuth yeare of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, came Nabusaradan the chefe captayne the kynge of Babilons seruaunt, vnto Jerusalem, and brent the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, and the houses at Jerusalem, and al ỹ great houses brent he with fyre. And al the power of ỹ Caldees which was with the chefe captayne, brake downe ỹ walles rounde aboute Jerusalem. As for the other people that yet were left in the cyte and were fallen vnto the kynge of Ba-bilon, and the other commune people, Na busaradā the chefe captayne caryed thē awaye. And of ỹ poorest people dyd the chefe captayne leaue in the londe to be wynegardeners and plowmen.

But the brasen pylers in the house of the LORDE, and the seates, and the brasen lauer that was in the house of ye LORDE, dyd the Caldees breake down, and caryed the metall vnto Babylon. And the pottes, shouels, fleshokes, spones, and all the brasen vessel that was occupied in the seruice, caried thē away. And the chefe captayne toke awaye the censors and basens, that were of golde and syluer, two pylers, one lauer, and the seates that Salomon had made for the house of the LORDE. The metall of all these ornamētes coulde not be weyed.
3.Reg.7.b * Eyghtene cubites hye was one pyler, and the knoppe theron was of brasse also, and thre cubites hye: and the rope and the pomgranates vpon the knoppe rounde aboute, were all of brasse. After the same maner was the other pyler also with the rope.

C And the chefe captayne toke Seraya the prest of the first course, & Sophony the prest of the seconde course, and thre dorekepers, and one chamberlayne out of the cyte, whych was appoynted ouer the men of warre: and fyue men yt were euer before the kynge, which were foūde in the cyte: and Sophar the captayne, which taught the people of the londe to fight: and thre score men of the people of the londe, that were founde in the cyte: these dyd Nabusaradan the chefe captayne take, and brought thē to the kinge of Babilon vnto Reblatha. And the kynge of Babilon slewe them at Reblatha in the londe of Hemath. Thus was Juda caried away out of his owne lōde.
Jer 40.a b * But ouer the remnaunt of the people in the londe of Juda, whom Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon lefte behynde, he set Godolias the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan. Now whan al the captaynes of the souldiers, and yt men herde, that the kynge of Babylon had made Godolias gouernoure, they came to Godolias vnto ☞ Mispa, namely, Ismaell ye sonne of Nathanias, & Johanna ye sonne of Carea, and Seraia the sonne of Tanhometh the Netophatite, and Jesanias the sonne of Maechati with theyr men. And Godolias sware vnto them and to theyr men, and sayde Otherwyse called Masphat.

Jere.40.c. vnto them: * Feare not ye the officers of the Caldees, tary in the londe, and submytte youre selues vnto the kynge of Babylon, and ye shall prospere.
Jere.41.a D * But in the seuenth moneth came Ismaell the sonne of Nathanias the sonne of Elisama (of the kynges kynred) and ten men wyth hym, and slewe Godolias, and the Jewes and Caldees that were with him at Mispa. Then all the people gat them vp, both small and greate, and the captaynes of the hoost, and came in to Egipte, for they were afrayed of the Caldees.

Howbeit in the seuen and thyrtyeth yeare after that Joachym the kynge of Juda was caried awaye on the seuen & twentye daye of the twelfth moneth, Euilmerodach the kynge of Babylon in the fyrst yeare of his reigne, toke vp the heade of Joachim ye kyng of Juda out of preson, and spake louingly vnto him, & set his trone aboue the trones of the kynges that wer with him at Babylon, and chaūged ye clothes of his captyuite. And he dyd eate alwaye before him as lōge as he lyued. And he appoynted hym his porcyon, whych was euer geuen hym dayly of the kynge, as longe as he lyued.

The chyldrẽ of Ruben ŷ fyrst sonne of Israel: for he was the fyrst sõne, but because he defyled his fathers bed, therfore was his fyrst byrthryght geuen vnto the chyldrẽ of Joseph the sonne of Israel, and he was not rekened to the fyrst byrthryght: for Juda which was myghtye amonge his brethren, was geuen the principalitie before hym, and the fyrst byrthryght vnto Joseph. The chyldren now of Ruben ŷ fyrst sonne of Israel are these: Hanoch, Pallu, Hesron and Charmi.

The chyldrẽ of Johel were, Semaia, whose sõne was Gog, whose sõne was Semei, whose sõne was Micha, whose sõne was Reaia, whose sõne was Baal, whose sonne was Beera, * whom Teglatphalasser the kynge of Assyria caryed awaye presoner. He was a prynce amonge the Rubenites. But his brethren amonge his kynredes (whan they were rekened amonge theyr generacyon) had Jeiel and Zacharia to theyr heades.

And Bela the sonne of Asan ŷ sonne of Sema, the sonne of Joel, * dwelt at Aroer, and vntyll Nebo & Baal Meon. And dwelte towarde the East, as cometh to the wyldernes by the water Euphrates: * for theyr cattell were ma ny in the londe of Gilead.

B And in ỳ tyme of Saul they fought agaynst the Agarites, which fel thorow theyr hande, and they dwelt in theyr ten tes towardes all the East parte of Gilead.

But the chyldrē of Gad dwelt ouer agaynst them in the countre of Basan, vntyll Salcha. Joel the chefest, & Sa-pham the seconde, Jaenai and Saphat at Basan. And theyr brethrē of ỳ house of theyr fathers were, Michael, Mesul lam, Seba, Jorai, Jaecan, Sia and Eber, these seuen.

These are ỳ chyldren of Abihail the sonne of Huri, the sonne of Jaroah, the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Michael, the sonne of Jesisai, the sonns of Jah-do, the sonne of Bus. Ahi the sonne of Abdiel, the sonne of Guni was a ruler in the house of theyr fathers, and they dwelt at Gilead in Basā, and in ỳ vyllages therof, and in all the suburbes of Saron, vnto the vttemost partes ther-of. All these were rekened in the tyme of Jotham the kynge of Juda, and of Jeroboam the kynge of Israell.
C The chyldren of Ruben, the Gaddi tes and the halfe trybe of Manasses (of suche as were fyghtynge men, whiche wayre shylde and swearde, and coulde bende the bowe, and were mē of armes) were foure and fortye thousande & seue hundreth and thre score, that went forth to the warre.
And whan they fought agaynst ỳ Aga-rites, Jetur, Naphes and Nodab helped them, and delyuered the Agarites in to theyr handes, and all that was with them: for they cryed vnto God in ỳ bat tayll. And he herde them, because they put theyr trust in hym: And they caryed awaye theyr cattell, fyue thousande Ca mels, two hundreth and fyftye thousād shepe, two thousande Asses, and an hūdreth thousand soules of men. For ther were many wounded, for why? the battayll was of God. And they dwelte in theyr steade, vntyll the tyme that they were caried awaye presoners.
D The chyldren of the halfe trybe of Manasses dwelt in ỳ lōde * frō Basan forth vntyll Baall Hermon and Senir, and mount Hermon: for they were many. And these were the heades of the house of theyr fathers, Epher, Jesei, Eliel, Asriel, Jeremia, Hodauia, Jahdiel myghty valeaūt men, and awncient hea des in the house of theyre fathers.
* And whan they synned agaynst ỳ 4.Re.15.b God of theyr fathers, and went a whorynge after the Goddes of the people of the lōde, (whom God had destroyed before them) the God of Israell stered vp the sprete of Phul the kynge of Assiria, and the sprete of Teglatphalassar the kynge of Assyria, and led awaye the Ru benites, Gaddites, & the halfe trybe of Manasses, and brought them vnto Ha lah, and Habor, and Hara, and to ỳ wa ter of Golan vnto this daye.

The chyldren of Leui are these: Ger son, Kahath and Merari. These are thē names of the chyldren of Gerson, Libni and Semei. The names of the chyldrē of Kahat are these: Amrā, Jezehar, Hebron and Usiel. The names of the chyldren of Merari are: Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of the Leui-tes amonge theyr housholdes.

Gersons sonne was Libni, whose B sonne was Jahath, whose sonne was Sima, whose sonne was Joah, whose sonne was Iddo, whose sonne was Serah, whose sonne was Jeathrai. Ka-hats sonne was Aminadab, whose sōne was Corah, whose sonne was Assir, whose sonne was Elcana, whose sonne was Abiasaph, whose sonne was Assir, whose sõne was Thahath, whose sõne was Uriel, whose sonne was Usia, whose sonne was Saul.

The chyldren of Elcana were, Amasai and Ahimoth, whose sonne was Elcana, whose sonne was Elcana of zuph whose sonne was Nahath, whose sõne was Eliab, whose sonne was Jeroham whose sonne was Elcana, whose sonne was Samuel Whose fyrst borne sõnes were Seni and Abia.

Meraris sonne was Maheli, whose sonne was Libni, whose sonne was Semei, whose sonne was Usa, whose sõne was Simea, whose sonne was Haggia. whose sonne was Asaia.

These are they whõ Dauid appointed to synge in the house of the LORDE where the Arke rested, & they mynystred before the habitacyon of the Tabernacle of witnes with syngynge, untyll Salomõ had buylded the house of ỹ LORDE at Jerusalem, and they stode after theyr maner in theyr office. And these are they that stode and theyr chyldren. Of the chyldrẽ of Kahath was Heman the synger, the sõne of Joel, the sõne of Samuel, the sonne of Elcana, the sonne of Jeroham, the sonne of Eliel, the sonne of Thoah, the sonne of zuph, the sonne of Elcana, the sonne of Mahath, ỹ sõne of Amasai, the sonne of Elcana, ỹ sõne of Johel, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Sophonias, the sonne of Thahath, the sonne of Assir, ỹ sonne of Abiasaph the sonne of Corah, the sõne of Jezehar, the sonne of Kahath, the sonne of Leui, and sonne of Israell.

C And his brother Asaph stode at his ryght hande, and Asaph was the sonne of Barachia, the sonne of Simea, the sonne of Michael, the sõne of Maaseia, the sõne of Malchia, the sõne of Athni the sonne of Serah, the sonne of Adaia, the sonne of Ethan, the sonne of Sima the sonne of Simei, the sonne of Jahath, the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Leui.

Theyr brethren the chyldren of Merari, stode on the lefte hande, namely, Ethan the sonne of Kusi, the sonne of Abdi, the sonne of Malluch, the sonne of Hasauia, the sonne of Amazia, the sonne of Helchia, the sonne of Amzi, the sonne of Bani, the sonne of Samer, the sonne of Maheli, the sonne of Musi, the sonne of Merari, the sonne of Leui,

As for theyr brethren ỹ Leuites, they were geuen to all the offices in the habitacyon of the house of the LORDE: but the office of Aaron and his sonnes was to kyndle the fyre upon the altare of burntofferynges, and upon the altare of incense, and to all the busynes in the moost holy, and to make attonement for Israel, accordynge as Moses the seruaunt of God commaunded.

These are the chyldren of Aaron: Eleasar his sõne, whose sõne was Phineas, whose sonne was Abisua, whose sonne was Buki, whose sõne was Usi, whose sonne was Serahia, whose sõne was Meraioth, whose sonne was Amaria, whose sõne was Achitob, whose sonne was Sadoc, whose sonne was Ahimaas.

And this is theyr habitacyon and towne in theyr borders, namely of Aarons chyldren of the kynred of the Kahathites: for this lot fell unto them. D

* And they gaue them Hebron in ỹ lande of Juda, and the suburbes of the same rounde aboute. But the felde of the cytie and the vyllages therof, gaue they unto Caleb the sonne of Jephune. Thus gaue they unto the chyldren of Aaron these fre cyties, Hebrõ and Libna with theyr suburbes, Jather, and Esthemoa, Silen, Debir, Asan, and Bethsemes, with theyr suburbes. And out of the trybe of Ben Jamin, Geba, Alemeth, and Anathot with theyr suburbes, so that all the cyties in theyr kynred were thyrtene. The other chyldren of Kahath of theyr kynred, had out ỹ half trybe of Manasses, ten cyties by lot. The chyldren of Gerson of theyr kynred, had out of the trybe of Isachar, and out of the trybe of Aser, and out of the trybe of Nephtali, and out of the trybe of Manasses, in Basan, thyrtene cyties. The chyldren of Merari of theyr kynrede, had by lot out of ỹ trybe of Ruben, and out of the trybe of Gad, and out of the trybe of zabulon, twelue cyties. Iosu. xxi.

And unto the Leuites gaue the chyldren of Israell cyties with theyr suburbes, namely by lot, out of the trybe of the chyldren of Juda, and out of ỹ trybe of the chyldren of Simeon, and out of the trybe of the chyldren of Ben Jamin, euen those cyties, which they appointed E by name. * But the kynredes of the chyldren of Kahath had the cytes of theyr Iosu. borders out of the trybe of Ephraim.

So gaue they now vnto them (namely vnto the kynred of the chyldren of Kahath) the fre cyties, Sichem vppon mount Ephraim, Geser, Jakmeam, Bethoron, Ajalon, and Gath Rimon with theyr suburbes. And out of the halfe trybe of Manasses, Aner and Bileam with theyr suburbes. But vnto the chyldren of Gerson they gaue out of the kynred of the halfe trybe of Manasses, Golam in Basã and Astharoth with theyr suburbes. Out of the trybe of Isachar: Kedes, Dabrath, Ramoth, and Anem with theyr suburbes. Out of the trybe of Aser, Masal, Abdon, Hukoth and Rehob, with theyr suburbes. Out of the trybe of Nepthali, Kedes in Galile, Hammon and Kiriathaim with theyr suburbes. Unto the other chyldren of Merari gaue they out of the trybe of zabulon, Rimano and Thabor with theyr suburbes. And beyonde Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde besyde Jordane out of the trybe of Ruben, Bezer in the wyldernesse, Jahza, Kedemoth & Mepaath with theyr suburbes. Out of the trybe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead, Mahanaim, Hesbon and Jaeser with theyr suburbes.

The.xi. Chapter.

The battaille of the Philistynes abattayl Saul and his sõnes were slayne vpon mount Gelboa.

1.Re.31.a The * Philistynes foughte agaynst Israel. And they of Israel fled before the Philistynes, and the wounded fell vpon mount Gelboa.
And the Philistynes folowed vpõ Saul and his sonnes, and smote Jonathas, Abinadab and Malchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the battayl was sore against Saul. And the Archers came vpon hym so that he was wounded of the archers.
Then sayde Saul vnto his weapenbearer: Drawe out thy swearde, and thrust it thorow me, that these vncircumcysed come not, and deale shamefully with me.
Neverthelesse his weapenbearer wolde not, for he was sore afrayed. Then toke Saul his sweard, and fell theron. Whã his weapenbearer sawe that Saul was dead, he fell vpon his swearde also, and dyed.
Thus dyed Saull and his thre son-nes, and all his housholde together. And whan the men of Israell which were in the valley, sawe, that Saul and his son-nes were dead, they lefte their cyties and fled: and the Philistynes came & dwelte therin.
* On the morowe came ye Philistynes B to spoyle the slayne, and founde Saull 1.Re.31. and his sonnes lyenge vpon mount Gel-boa, and stryped hym out, and toke his heade, and his harnesse, and sent it about in to the londe of the Philistynes, & caused it to be shewed before theire Idoles and the people. And his weapens layed they in ye house of their god, and stacke vp his heade vpon the house of Dagon.
But whan all they of Jabes in Gilead herde of euery thynge, that the Phi listynes had done vnto Saull, they gat them vp (as many as were men of armes) and toke the body of Saull and of his sonnes, and broughte them vnto Jabes, and buryed theyr bones vnder the Oke at Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.
Thus dyed Saul in his trespace which he commytted agaynste the LORDE, because * he kepte not the worde of the 1.Re.15 at the soythsayer, and axed not at the LORDE, therfore slewe he hym, and turned the kyngdome vnto Dauid.

The.xii. Chapter.

How Dauid was anoynted kynge, and of his kyngdome, and of ye thre worthies whiche dyd fetch hym water vnder the gate at Bethleem.

AND all Israell resorted to Dauid vnto Hebron, & sayde * Beholde, we are thy bone and thy flesh. And afore tyme whan Saull reygned, thou leddest Israel out & in. So the LORDE thy God hath sayd vnto the: Thou shalt kepe my people of Israel, & thou shalt be ye prynce ouer my people of Israell. And al ye Elders of Israel came to the kynge vnto Hebron. And Dauid made a coue-naunt with them at Hebron before the LORDE. And they anoynted Dauid to be kynge ouer Israell * acordynge 1.Re.16 to the worde of the LORDE by Samuell.
And Dauid and all Israel wente vnto Jerusalem, that is Jebus: for the Jebusites dwelt in the londe. And the citisyns of Jebus sayd vnto Dauid: Thou shalt not come in hither. How be it Da-uid wãne the castell of Sion which is the cyte of Dauid. And Dauid sayd: * who so euer smyteth the Jebusites fyrst, shall be a prynce and captayne. Then Joab the sonnes of Zeruia clymmed vp fyrst, and was made captayne. So Dauid dwelt in the castell, therfore was it called the cyte of Dauid. And he buylded the cite rounde aboute, fro Millo forth on euery syde. As for the remnaunt of the cite, Joab buylded it, and repayred it. And Dauid wente forth and grewe, and ẏ LORDE Zebaoth was with hym.

These are the chefe amonge ẏ myghtye mẽ of Dauid, which dealt valeauntly with hym in his kyngdome with all Israel, to make hym kynge, accordinge to the worde of the LORDE ouer Israel. And this is the nombre of Dauids myghtye men: Iesabeam the sonne of Hachmoni the chefest amonge thirtye. He lifte vp his speare, and smote thre C. at one tyme.

After hym was Eleasar the sonne of Dodo the Ahohite, and he was amonge the thre myghtye. This man was with Dauid whan they blasphemed, and the Philistynes gathered them selues there to the battayll. And euẽ there was there a pece of londe full of barly, and the people fled before the Philistynes. And they stode in the myddes of the londe, and rescued it, and smote the Philistynes. And the LORDE gaue a greate health.

C 2.Re.23.c *And thre of the chefest thirtye wente downe to ẏ rocke vnto Dauid in to the caue of Adullam. But the Philistynes hoost laye in the valley of Rephaim. As for Dauid, he was in the castell. And the Philistynes people were then at Bethleem. And Dauid was desyrous, & sayd: O that some wolde geue me to drynke of the water out of ẏ well at Bethleem vnder the gate. Then brake those thre in to the Philistynes hoost, and drue of the water out of the well at Bethleem vnder the gate, and caryed it, and brought it vnto Dauid. Neuertheles he wolde not drynke it, but powred it vnto the LORDE, and sayde: God let this be farre fro me, that I shulde do it, & drynke the bloude of these men in the parell of theyre lyfe: for with the parell of theyre lyfe haue they brought it: therfore wolde he not drynke it. This dyd the thre Worthies.

Abisai the brother of Joab, he was the chefest amonge thre. And he lyfte vp his speare and smote thre hundreth. And he was famous amonge thre, and before the thirde, more honorable then the two, yet came he not vnto the thre.

D 2.Re.23.d *Benaia the sonne of Joiada the sonne of Ishail of Cabzeell, was a man of greate actes. He smote two lyons of the Moabites. And he wente downe, and smote a lyon in the myddes of a wel in the tyme of snowe. He smote a man of Egipte also, which was fyue cubites greate of stature, and hadde in his hande a speare lyke a weuers lome. Yet wente he downe to hym with a staffe, & toke the speare out of his hande & slewe him with his owne speare. This did Benaia the sonne of Joiada, and was a famous man amonge thre Worthies, and most awncient amonge thirtye. But vnto the thre came he not. How beit Dauid made hym of his secrete councell.

The valeaunt Worthies are these: Asahell the brother of Joab, Elhanan his vncles sonne of Bethleem, Samoth the Harodite, Helez the Pelonite, Ira the sonne of Ekes the Thecoite. Abiaser the Anathothite, Sibechai the Husathite, Ilai the Ahohite, Matherai ẏ Netophatite: Heled the sonne of Baena ẏ Netophatite, Jthai the sonne of Ribai of Gibeath of the chyldren of Ben Jamin, Benaia the Pirgathonite, Hurai of the broke of Gaas. Abiell the Arbathite, Asmaueth the Baherumite, Eliahba the Saalbonite. The chyldren of Hasem the Gisonite, Jonathas the sonne of Sage the Hararite, Ahiam the sonne of Sachar the Hararite, Eliphall the sonne of Vr, Hepher the Macherathite, Ahia the Pelonite, Hezro of Carmel, Naerai the sonne of Asbai, Joel the brother of Na= E than, Mibehar the sonne of Hagri, Zeleg the Ammonite, Naherai the Berothite the weapenbearer of Joab the sonne of Zeruia, Ira the Jethryte, Gareb the Jethrite, Vrias the Hethite, Sabad the sonne of Ahalai, Adina the sonne of Sisa the Rubenite, a captayne of the Rubenites, and there were thirtie vnder him: Hanan the sonne of Maecha, Josaphat the Mathonite, Vsia the Astharathite Sama and Jaiell: the sonnes of Hotha the Aroerite, Jedial the sonne of Simri Joha his brother the Thizite, Eliell ẏ Mahenite, Jeribai and Josua the sonnes of Elnaan, Jethma the Moabite, Eliel, Obed, Jaesiel of Mizobaia.

ouer a thousande. These are they which, in the fyrst moneth wente ouer Jordane whan it was full on both the shores, so that all the valleys were cast both to warde the East and towarde the West.
There came of the chyldren of Ben Jamin also and of Juda vnto the castel of Dauid. But Dauid went forth vnto them, and answered and sayde vnto thẽ: Yf ye come to me in peace, and to helpe me, my harte shalbe with you. But yf ye

Then Dauid receaued them, and made them captaynes ouer the men of warre.
And of Manasses there fel certayne for they were all valeaunt Worthies, and were the captaynes ouer the hoost.

And euery daye came there some to Da

1.Re.5.a * All these men of warre, ready har and with all the prynces and sayde vnto all the congrega= cyon of Israell: Yf it lyke you, and yf it be of the LORDE oure God, let vs sende forth on euery syde to oure other brethren in all the countrees of Israell, and to the prestes and Leuites in the ci= maye be gathered together vnto vs, and let vs set the Arke of oure God agayne vnto vs: for by Sauls tyme we axed af= ter it. Then sayde the whole congrega= cyon, that the same shulde be done, for it pleased all the people well.

C So Dauid gathered all Israell to= gether from Sihor of Egipte, tyll a mā come vnto Hemath, to fetch the Arke of God from Kyriath Iearim. And Dauid wente vp with all Israell to Kiriath Je arim, which lieth in Juda to brynge frō thence the Arke of God the LORDE, that sytteth vpon the Cherubins, where the name is named: and they caused the Arke of God to be caryed vpon a newe carte from the house of Abinadab.

B Vsa and his brethren droue the cart.
As for Dauid & all Israell, they played with all theyr strength before God, with songes, with harpes, with psalteries, with tabrettes, with Cymbales and trompes.

But whan they came to the barne floore of Chidon, Vsa stretched out his hande to holde the Arke: for the oxen wente out asyde. The waxed the wrath of the LORDE fearce ouer Vsa, and smote hym, because he stretched out his hande to the Arke, so that he dyed there before God. Then was Dauid sory, be= cause the LORDE had made suche a rente vpon Vsa, and called the place Pe rez Vsa, vnto this day. And Dauid stode in feare of God the same daye and sayd: How shal I brynge the Arke of God vn to me? Therfore wolde he not let the Arke of God be brought vnto hym in to the cite of Dauid, but caried it in to the house of Obed Edom the Gathite. So the Arke of God abode with Obed E= dom in his house thre monethes. And the LORDE blessed Obed Edoms house and all that he had.

The.xv.Chapter.

¶ Hiram sendeth tymber vnto Dauid, Of Dauids wyues. He ouercōmeth the Phylistines. Therfore was his name noysed out in all londes.

Dauid perceaued that the LORDE wylt thou delyuer them in to my hande?

The LORDE sayde vnto hym, Go vp,

I wyll delyuer them in to thy hãde. And whã they were gone vp to Baal prasym, Dauid smote thẽ there. And Dauid sayd Dauid dyd as God cõmaũded hym. And they smote ỹ hoost of ỹ Philistynes frõ Gibeon forth vnto Gaser. And Dauids name was noysed out in all londes. And the LORDE caused the feare of hym to

The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ Dauid appoynted the Leuites to bea re the Arke.

A AND he buylded hym houses in ỹ cite of Dauid, and made ready a place for the Arke of God, and pitched a Taberna cle for it. At that tyme sayde Dauid: The Arke of God is not to be Num.4.b borne, but onely of the Leuites: * for thẽ hath the LORDE chosen to beare the Arke of the LORDE, and to mynister vnto hym for euer. Therfore gathered Dauid all Israel together vnto Jerusa lem, to bringe vp the Arke of the LOR DE vnto the place which he hath prepa red for it.
And Dauid brought the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites together. Of the chyldrẽ of Kahath: Vriel the chefe with his brethren, an C. and twentye. Of the chyldrẽ of Merari: Asaia the chefe with his brethren, two C. and twẽtye, Of the chyldren of Gerson: Joel the chefe with his brethrẽ, an C. and thirtie. Of the chil dren of Elizaphan: Semaia the chefe wt his brethren, two hundreth. Of the chyldren of Hebron: Eliel the chefe, with his brethren, foure score. Of the chyldren of Vsiel: Aminadab the chefe, with his brethren, an hundreth and twolue.

And Dauid called Sadoc and Abia- B thar the prestes, and the Leuites, namely Vriel, Asaia, Joeli, Semaia, Eliel, Ami-nadab, and sayde vnto them: Ye are the heades of the fathers amonge the Leui-tes: sanctifye youre selues therfore and youre brethren, that ye maye brynge vp the Arke of the LORDE God of Isra ell, to the place ỹ I haue prepared for it.
* For afore whan ye were not there, the 1.Par.13 LORDE oure God made a rente amõge vs, because we soughte hym not, as we shulde haue done. So the prestes and the 2.Reg.6.d Leuites halowed them selues, that they myght brynge vp the Arke of the LOR DE God of Israel. And the chyldren of Leui bare the Arke of God the LORD vpõ theyr shulders with ỹ staues theron * as Moses cõmaunded accordynge to Exo.25 the worde of the LORDE.
And Dauid spake vnto the rulers of the Leuites, that they shuld ordeyne som B of theyr brethrẽ to be syngers with psal- 2.Reg.6.d teries, harpes and loude instrumentes, & Cymbales, to synge loude with ioye.
Then the Leuites appoynted Hemã C the sonne of Joell: and of his brethren Asaph the sonne of Barachias: and of the chyldren of Merari theire brethren, Ethã the sonne of Cusaia: and with the their brethrẽ of the seconde course, name ly zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Jehiell, Vnni, Eliab, Benaia, Maeseia Mathithia, Eliphreleia, Mikneia, O-but zacharias, Jaesiel, Semiramoth, Je hiel, Vnni, Eliab, Maeseia and Benaia with psalteries to Alamoth: Mathithia Eliphelia, Mikneia, Obed Edom, Jeiel and Asasia with harpes to synge aboue them on hye. Chenania the ruler of the Leuites was the master of Musicke to teach them for to synge, for he was a ma of vnderstondynge.

And Barachias and Elcana were ỹ B dorekepers of the Arke. But Sachania, Josaphat, Nathanaell, Amasai, zacha- Psal.104.a rias, Benaia, Elieser the prestes, blewe the trompettes before the Arke of God.
And Obed Edom and Jehaia were dore kepers of the Arke.
So Dauid and the Elders of Israel D & the captaynes ouer thousandes wente vp to fetch the Arke of the cõuenaunt of the LORDE out of the house of Obed Edom with ioye. And whã God had hel

And Dauid had a lynen garment vpon hym, And so had all ẏ Leuites that bare the Arke, and the syngers, and Chenania the master of Musicke with ẏ syngers.
Dauid had an ouerbody cote of lynē vp pon hym also.
Thus all Israel brought vp ẏ Arke of the cōuenaunt of the LORDE with myrth, with trōpettes, tabrettes, & loude Cymbales, with psalteries and harpes.
* Now whan the Arke of the cōuenaūt

Dauid, Micholl the doughter of Saull loked out of a wyndowe: and whan she

2.Reg.7.a

IT * fortuned whan Dauid dwelt in his house, he sayde vnto the Prophet Nathan. Beholde I dwell in a house of Ceder, and the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE is amōge the curtaynes.

Nathan sayde vnto Dauid: What soeuer is in thyne hart, that do: for God is with the. But ye same night came the worde of God vnto Nathan, and sayde Go and speake to Dauid my seruaunt: Thus sayeth the LORD: Thou shalt not buylde me an house to be an habitacyon For I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I brought forth the chyldren of Israell, vnto this day: But whan the Tabernacle & habitacion hath bene, there haue I bene, where soeuer I haue walked in all Israell. Spake I euer to ony of the iudges in Israell (whom I cōmaunded to kepe my people) and sayde: Wherfore do ye not buylde me an house of Cedre tymbre?

So shalt thou speake now vnto my B seruaunt Dauid: Thus sayeth ye LORDE zebaoth: I toke the frō the pasture behynde ye shepe, yt ye shuldest be ye ruler ouer my people: & haue bene wt the whither so euer ye wentest, & haue roted out all thyne enemyes before the, and haue made ye a name accordyng to ye name of the great men yt are vpon earth. And for my people of Israell, I wyll appoynte them a place, and wyll plāte them, that they maye dwell there, and nomore to be remoued. And the chyldrē of wyckednes shal oppresse them nomore, lyke as afore tyme, whan I commaunded the iudges ouer my people of Israell. And I wyll subdue al thyne enemyes, and do declare vnto the, that the LORD wyll buylde the an house.

Psal.

* But whan thy dayes are fulfylled that thou departest hence with thy fathers, I wyl after the rayse vp thy sede, which shalbe euen one of thy sonnes: his kyngdōe wyll I stablyshe, he shal buylde me an house, and I wyll make his seate sure for euer. I will be his father, and he shall be my sonne. And I wyll not withdrawe my mercy from hym, as I haue withdrawen it from hym that was before the: But I wyl set him in my house and in my kyngdom foreuer, so that his seate shalbe sure for euermore.

And whan Nathan had spokē vnto C Dauid accordynge to all these wordes and all this visyon kynge Dauid came and sat hym downe before the LORD, and sayde: O LORDE God, who am I, and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus farre? And this (O God) hast thou thought yet to lytle, but hast spoken of thy seruauntes house yet longe for to come. And thou LORD God hast loked downe vpon me from aboue, euen as one man loketh vpon another. What more shall Dauid saye vnto the, that thou bryngest thy seruaunt to such honoure? Thou knowest thy seruaunt O LORDE, for thy seruauntes sake & accordynge to thy harte hast thou done all these greate thynges, that thou myghtest shewe all greate thynges vnto

The.xix. Chapter.

Dauid subdueth the enemyes on eue ry syde. A rehersall of all the prynces and noble men of his court, & the ordynaūce of all theyr offyces.

Reg.8.a After this * smote Dauid ẏ Philistines, & subdued them and toke Gath and the vylla ges therof out of the hande of the Philystynes. He smot the Moabites lykewyse, so that the Mo abites were subdued vnto Dauid, and gaue hym trybute. He smote Hadad E-ser also ẏ kynge of zoba in Hemath, whā he wente to set vp his power by the wa ter Euphrates.

And Dauid toke from hym a thousande charettes, seuē thousāde horsmē, and twentye thousande fote men. And Dauid lamed all the charettes, & kepte. an hundreth charettes ouer. And ẏ Syrians came from Damascō, to helpe Ha dad Eser the kynge of zoba. How beit Dauid smote two and twētye thousāde of the same Syrians, and layed men of warre at Damascō in Syria, so that the Syriās were subdued vnto Dauid, and brought hym tribute. For the LORD helped Dauid, whether soeuer he went. B

And Dauid toke ẏ shyldes of golde that Hadad Esers seruauntes had, and brought them to Ierusalem. And out of Tibeh ath and Chun ẏ cities of Hadad Eser, toke Dauid very muche brasse, 3.Re.7.d.
* wherof Salomon made the brasen la uer, and pilers, and brasen vessels.

* And whā Thogu the kynge of He 2.Re.8.b math herde, that Dauid had smytten all the power of Hadad Eser, he sente his sonne Hadoram vnto kynge Dauid to salute hym, and to blesse hym, because he had foughten with Hadad Eser, and smytten hym (for Thogu had warre w Hadad Eser) and all the same vessels of golde, syluer, and of brasse, dyd kynge Dauid consecrate vnto the LORDE, with the syluer and golde that he had ta ken from the Heythen, namely from the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, Phi listynes, and Amelachites.

* And Abisai the sonne of zeru Ja C smote eyghtene thousande of the Edomi 2.Re.8.c tes in the Salt valleye, and layed mē of warre in Edomea, so that all the Edomites were subdued vnto Dauid: for ẏ LORDE helped Dauid, whether so e-uer he wente.

Thus Dauid reygned ouer all Israell, and executed iudgement and righte-ousnes vnto all his people. Ioab ẏ sōne of zeru Ja was captayne ouer the hoost.
Iosaphat the sōne of Ahilud was chaun celer. Sadoc the sonne of Achitob, and Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar, were prestes. Sauesa was Scrybe. Benaia the sonne of Ioiada was ouer the Cre-thians and Plethians. * And Dauids 2.Re.9.c sonnes were chefe at the kynges hande.

The.xx. Chapter.

Hanun the kynge of Ammon dealeth came to comforte hym.

And * after this dyed Na- A of Ammon, & his sonne was kynge in his steade. Then sayde Dauid: I wyll do mer cy vpon Hanun the sonne of Nahas, for his father dyd mercy vpon me: and so he sent messaūgers to cōforte hym ouer his father. And whā Dauids seruaūtes cam in to the londe of the chyldren of Ammō vnto Hanun to comforte hym, the pryn ces of the chyldren of Ammon sayd vnto Hanun: Thynkest thou that Dauid honoureth thy father in thy syght, that he hath sent comforters vnto thee? Yes his seruauntes ar come vnto ẏ, to search and to ouerthrowe, and to spye out the londe. Then toke Hanun the seruauntes of Dauid, and shoue them, and cut the halfe of theyr garmentes of, euen by the loynes, & so let them go. And they went theyr waye, and sent men to tell Dauid.

B Neuertheles he sent to mete them (for ẏ mē were put to great shame) & ẏ kynge sayd: Abyde at Jericho, tyll youre beer-des be growen, and then come agayne.
When the chyldren of Ammon saw that they stynked in the syght of Dauid both Hanun and the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talētes of syluer, to hyre charettes and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and out of Maecha & out of Zoba: and hyred two and thyrtye thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maecha with his people, which came & pitched their tentes before Medba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues together out of theyr cyties, and came to the battayll. Whā Dauid herde that, he sent Joab thyther with all the hoost of the men of armes. And the chyl dren of Ammon were gone forth, & prepared them selues to the battayll before the gate of ẏ cyte. But the kynges that were come, kepte them asyde in ẏ felde.
Now whan Joab saw that the bat C tayll was agaynst him both before & be hynde, he chose of al ẏ best yonge mē in Israell, and prepared hym selfe agaynst the Syrians. As for the residue of the people, he put them vnder the hande of Abisai his brother, that they shulde prepare them selues agaynst the chyldrē of Ammon, and he sayd: Yf the Syriās be to myghtie for me, helpe thou me: but yf the chyldren of Ammō be to stronge for the, I shal helpe the: take a good corage vnto the, & let vs quyte our selues māly for our people and for the cyties of oure God: neuertheles the LORDE do what pleaseth him. And Joab made him forth with the people that was with hym, to fyght agaynst the Syriās: and they fled before hym. And whan the chyldren of Ammon saw that the Syriās fled, they fled also before Abisai his brother, and wente in to the cyte. And Joab came to Jerusalem.
D But whan the Syrians sawe that they were smytten before Israel, they sent messaungers, and brought forth ẏ Syrians which were beyonde the water. And Sophach the chefe captayne of Hadad Eser wente before them. Whā this was tolde Dauid, he gathered all Israell together, & went ouer Jordane.
And whan he came at them, he set ẏ bat tayl in araye agaynst them. And Dauid prepared hymselfe to ẏ battayll agaynst the Syrians, and they fought with him but the Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid slewe of the Syriās seuen thou sande charettes, & fortye thousande fote men. And Sophach the chefe captayne slewe he also. And whan Hadad Esers seruauntes sawe that they were smytten before Israel, they made peace wt Da-uid and his seruauntes. And the Syriās wolde helpe the chyldren of Ammon no more.

The.xxi. Chapter.

¶ Of certayne battayls which Dauid wynneth with worshipe.

AND * whan the yeare came aboute, what tyme as ẏ kyn 2.Re.11 ges vse to go forth, Joab brought the power of the hoost and destroyed ẏ londe of the chyldren of Ammon, and came and layed sege vnto Rabba. But Da-uid abode at Jerusalem. * And Joab 2.Re.12 smote Rabba, and brake it downe. And Dauid toke theyr kynges crowne from his heade, and founde the weyghte of a talent of golde theron, and precyous sto nes. And it was set vpon Dauids head And very much spoyle caryed he out of the cyte. As for ẏ people that were therin he brought them forth, and parted them in sunder with sawes, and hokes & bey tels of yron. Thus dyd Dauid vnto al the cyties of the chyldren of Ammon.
And Dauid departed agayne, with the people vnto Jerusalem.
Afterward arose there warre at Ge B ser with the Philistynes. Then Sibe-chai the Husathite smote Sibai, which was one of the chyldren of Rephai, & he subdued hym. And there arose warre againe with the Philistines. Then Elha nan ẏ sonne of Jair smote Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gathite, whose speares staffe was lyke a weuers lome Afterward was there a battayl at Gath where there was a man of a great sta ture, that had sixe fyngers and sixe toes which make foure and twentye. And he was borne also of Rapha, & spake dis-pytefully vnto Israell. But Jonathas the sonne of Simea Dauids brother smote hym. These were the chyldren of Rapha at Gath, and fell thorow ye hãde of Dauid, and of his seruauntes.

The.xxii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid nombreth the people, and dis-pleaseth the LORDE, which punysheth the people for his sake.

A And Sathan stode agaynst 2.Reg.24.a Israel, and * entised Dauid to nombre Israel And Da-uid sayd vnto Joab and to the rulers of the people: Go youre waye, nombre Israel from Berse-ba vnto Dan, and brynge me the nombre of them, that I maye knowe it. Joab sayd: The LORDE make his people an hundreth tymes mo then they are now. But my lorde O kynge, are they not all my lordes seruaũtes? Why doth my lorde then axe therafter? Wherfore shall there a trespace come vpõ Israel?
Neuertheles the kynges worde preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab wente forth, and walked thorowe all Israel, & came to Jerusalem, and delyuered vnto Dauid the nombre of the people yt was tolde. And of al Israel ther were a thou sande tymes a thousande, and an hun-dreth thousande men, that drue out the sweard: & of Juda foure hundreth thou sande & seuentye thousande men, which drue out the swearde. As for Leui and BenJamin, he nombred thẽ not amõge these: for the kynges worde was abho-B minable vnto Joab.
But this displeased God ryght sore for he smote Israel. And Dauid sayd vnto God: I haue synned greuously, yt I haue done this. But now take awaye the trespace of thy seruaunt: for I haue done very vnwysely. And the LORDE spake vnto Gad Dauids seer, & sayd: C Go speake to Dauid, and saye: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Thre thynges laye I before the, chose the one of them, that I maye do it vnto the. And whan Gad came to Dauid, he spake vnto hym: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Chose the ether thre yeare derth, or thre monethes to flye before thyn aduersaries, & before the swearde of thyne enemyes, that it may ouertake ye: or thre dayes ye sweard of the LORDE, and pestilence in ye londe that the angell of the LORDE maye destroye in all the coastes of Israel, Loke now what answere I shall geue vnto hym that sẽt me. Dauid sayd vnto Gad: * I am in great trouble: yet wyll Sussãne. b I rather fall in to the hande of ye LOR DE, for his mercy is exceadynge great, and I wyll not fall in to the handes of men.
Then dyd the LORDE cause pe- C stilence to come in to Israel, so yt there fell of Israel thre score and ten thousãd men. And God sent the angell to Jerusalem for to destroye it. And euen in the destruccyon the LORDE consydered, and he repented of the euel, and sayd vn to the angel the destroyer: It is ynough holde now thy hande.
The angell of the LORDE stode besyde the barne of Arnan the Jebusite And Dauid lyfted vp his eyes, & sawe the angell of the LORDE stondynge betwene heauen and earth, and a naked sweard in his honde stretched out ouer Jerusalem. Thẽ Dauid and the elders beynge clothed with sackcloth, fel vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God Am not I he that caused the people to be nombred? I am he that hath synned and done euell: as for these shepe, what haue they done? LORDE my God, let thyne hande be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house, and not agaynst thy people to plage them.
And the Angell sayd vnto Gad, that D he shulde speake vnto Dauid, that Da-uid shulde go vp, and set vp an altare in the barne of Arnan the Jebusyte. So Dauid went vp accordynge to ye worde of God, whiche he spake in the name of the LORDE. But whã Arnan turned hym, and sawe the angel (and his foure sonnes with hym) they hyd them selues for Arnan thresshed wheate.
Now whan Dauid cam to Arnan, Arnan loked and was aware of Dauid and went forth out of the barne, & worshipped Dauid wt his face to ye grounde And Dauid sayd vnto Arnan: Geue me rowme in the barne, to buylde an altare vnto the LORDE therin: for the full money shalt yu geue it me, that ye plage maye ceasse from the people.
But Arnã sayd vnto Dauid: Take it vnto the, and let my lorde the kynge do as it pleaseth hym. Beholde, that oxe geue I for a burntofferyng, & those vessels to the oxe, and wheat for ye meat offerynge, I geue it all. Neuertheles the kynge sayd vnto Arnan: Not so, but for the full money wyl I bye it: for yt which is thyne wyl not I take for the LORD and offre a burntofferynge for noughte.

E So Dauid gaue Arnā for ÿ rowme sixe hundreth Sycles of golde in weight And there buylded Dauid an altare vnto the LORDE, and offred burntofferynges and thankofferynges. And whā he called vpon the LORDE, he herde hym thorow the fyre from heauen vpon the altare of the burntofferyng. And the LORDE sayde vnto the angell that he shulde put his swearde in to his sheeth.
At the same tyme whan Dauid saw that the LORDE had herde hym vpō the corne floore of Arnan the Iebusite, he dyd sacrifice there. For the habitaciō of the LORD which Moses had made in the wyldernesse, & the altare of burnt offerynges, was at that tyme in the hye place at Gibeon. But Dauid coulde not go thither to seke God before it, for he feared the swearde of the LORDES 1.Par.3.a angell. And Dauid sayde: * Here shalbe the house of God the LORDE, and this the altare of burntofferynges for Israell.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Dauid prepareth tymber and stone, golde and syluer for the buyldyng of the temple.

A AND Dauid cōmaunded to gather together the straun-gers that were in the londe of Israell, and appoynted masons to hew stone for the buyldynge of the house of God. And Da uid prepared muche yron for nayles in the dores of ÿ portes, and for such thyn ges as were to be nayled together, and so muche brasse, that it was not to be weyed: and Cedre trees innumerable: for they of zydō and Tyre broughte Dauid much Cedre tymbre: for Dauid thought Salomon my sonne is but a chylde and tender: But the house that shall be buyl-ded vnto the LORDE, shalbe greate, that his name and prayse maye be exalted in al londes, therfore wyl I prouyde for hym. So Dauid made greate prouissyon before his death.
And he called Salomon his sonne, and cōmaundnd him to buylde the house B of the LORDE God of Israell, and sayd vnto hym: My sōne, * I was mynd ded to buylde an house vnto the name 2.Re.7.a of the LORDE my God, but ÿ worde of the LORDE came vnto me, and sayde:
* Thou hast shed much bloud, & stryke 3.Reg.5.a many battayls, therfore shalt thou not buylde an house vnto my name, for as much as thou hast shed so muche bloude vpon the earth before me. Beholde, the sonne which shall be borne vnto the, shal be a quyete man: and I wyll cause hym to be in rest from all his enemyes on eue ry syde, for his name shalbe Salomō: for I wyll geue peace and rest vpon Israell as longe as he lyueth. He shal buylde an house vnto my name. He shalbe my sonne and I wyll be his father. And I wyll sta blyshe the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israell for euer.
Now my sonne, the LORDE shal be with the, and thou shalt prospere, that C thou mayest buylde an house vnto the LORD thy God, accordyng as he hath spoken of the. * The LORD also shal geue the wysedom and vnderstondynge 3.Re. and shall cōmytte Israell vnto the, that thou mayst kepe the lawe of the LOR-DE thy God. But then shalt thou pros pere, yf thou take hede to do after the or dinaunces and lawes which the LOR-DE cōmaunded Moses vnto Israell.
Be stronge, and take good corage vnto the, feare not, & be not faynt harted. Be holde, I haue in my pouerte prepared for the house of the LORDE an hun dreth thousande talentes of golde, and a thousande tymes a thousand talentes of syluer and brasse and yron without nōbre: for there is so muche of it.
And tymbre and stone haue I prepa red, thou mayest get more therof. There hast many workmen also, masons and carpenters in stone and tymber, and al maner of men that haue vnderstondyng in all worke of golde, syluer, brasse, and yron without nombre. Yet get the vp, and be doynge, and the LORDE shal be with the.
And Dauid commaunded all the ru D lers of Israell, to helpe Salomon his sonne, and sayde: Is not the LORDE youre God with you, and hath geuē you rest on euery syde? for he hath delyuered the inhabiters of the londe in to youre handes, and the londe is subdued before the LORDE and before his people.
Sette ouer your hart now therfore and youre soule, to seke the LORDE your God, and get you vp, and buylde a san ctuary vnto the LORDE God, that ÿ Arke of the couenaunt of ÿ LORDE & the holy vessels of god, may be brought in to the house, which shalbe buylded vn to the name of the LORDE. So Da uid made Salomō his sonne kynge ouer

Israel, whan he hymselfe was olde, & had lyued ynough.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid in his age before his death, appoynteth the offices in the house of God.

A AND Dauid gathered al the rulers in Israel together, and the prestes and leuites, to nombre the Leuites frõ thyrty yeare olde & aboue.
And the nombre of them (whiche were stronge men) from heade to heade, was eyght and thyrty thousande: of whome ther were foure and twentye thousãde which dyd theyr diligence in y worke of the LORDE, and sixe thousand of ficers & Judges, & foure thousand por ters, and foure thousande that songe prayses vnto the LORDE with instrumentes, whiche he hadde made to synge prayse withall.

And Dauid made the ordinaũce amonge the chyldren of Leui, namely amonge Gerson, Kahath and Merari.
The Gersonites were: Laedã and Simei. The chyldren of Laedan: the fyrst, Jehiel, Sethan, and Joel, these thre.

The chyldren of Simei were: Sa-

These were the chefe amõge y fathers of Laedan. These also were the childrẽ of Simei: Jahath, Sina, Jeus, & Bria these foure were Simeis chyldrẽ also.
Jahath was the fyrst, Sina y seconde.
As for Jeus and Bria, they hadde not many chyldren, therfore were they coũted but for one fathers house.

mo chyldren. And Eleasar and Ithamar were prestes. And Dauid ordred them after thys maner: Sadoc oute of the chyldren of Eleasar, and Ahimelech out of the chyldren of Ithamar, accordynge to theyr nombre and office. And ther were mo chefe strōg mē foūd among the chyldren of Eleasar, then ẏ chyldren of Ithamar. And he ordeyned thē after this maner: namely, syxtene out of the chyldren of Eleasar to be rulers thorow out theyr fathers house, & eyght of the chyldren of Ithamar thorowe out of theyr fathers house. Neuerthelesse he ordeyned them by lot, because that both ẏ principall of ẏ chyldren of Eleasar & Ithamar were in ẏ Sanctuarye, & chefe before God. And ẏ scrybe Semeia ẏ son of Nathaneell one of the Leuites, wrote them vp before the kynge, & before ẏ rulers, & before Sadoc ẏ prest, & before Ahimelech ẏ son of Abiathar, & before the chefe of the fathers among the prestes & Leuites; namely one fathers house for Eleasar, and the other for Ithamar.

¶ The office of the porters.

A Of the ordinaunces of the dorekepers amonge ÿ Korahites was Meselemia of the chyldren of Asaph.
The chyldren of Meselemia were these: the fyrstborne zacharias, the seconde Jediael, the thyrde zeb dia, the fourth Jathniell, the fyfth Elam, the syxte Johanã, ÿ seuenth Elio enai. The chyldren of Obed Edõ were these: the fyrstborne Semaia, the secõd Josabad, the thyrde Joah, the fourth zachur, the fyft Methaneell, the syxte Ammiell, the seuenth Isachar, ÿ eyght Pegulthai, for God had blessed hym.
And vnto Samaia hys son ther were sonnes borne also, whiche bare rule in ÿ house of theyr fathers: for they were myghtye valeaunt men. The chyldren of Semaia were, Athni, Rephael, Obed and Elzabad, whose brethrẽ were valeaunt men. Elihu and Semachia: all these were of the chyldren of Obed Edom. These, wyth theyr chyldren and brethren valeaunt men, mete for the offices, were thre score and two, of Obed Edom. Meselemia had chyldrẽ and brethren which were strong men, euen eyghtene.
B Hossa, of the chyldren of Merari had chyldren. Simri the chefest: for the fyrstborne was not there, therfore dyd hys father appoynt hym to be chefest, the seconde Helchias, the thyrde Teba lia, the fourth zacharias. Al the childrẽ & brethren of Hossa were thyrtene.
This is ÿ ordinaũce of the doreke pers among the heades of the valeaũt mẽ in the office besyde theyr brethrẽ, to minister in the house of the LORD.
And the lot was cast for ÿ small as for the great thorowout ÿ house of theyr fathers at euery dore. The lot toward the east fell vpon Meselemia. And the lot was caste for zacharias hys sonne which was a mã of prudẽt coũsel, & vn to him it fell toward the Northe: But vnto Obed Edõ toward the South, & to his sonnes besyde ÿ house of Esu pim. And vnto Supim and Hossa to-warde the West by the gate of Sale-chet in the stret of the burntoffringes, wher the Tabernacles stond together.
C Towarde the east were ther syxe of the Leuites. Towarde ÿ north foure on ÿ day tym. Toward the south foure on the day seasõ lykewyse. Besyd Esu pi two & two. By Parbar westward were ther foure in the strete, and two besyde Parbar. These are the ordinaunces of the dorekepers amonge the children of the Korahites, and chyldren of Merari. Of ẏ Leuites, was Ahia ouer the treasures of the house of God & ouer the treasures ẏ were sanctified.

Of the chyldrẽ of Laedan, the chyldrẽ of the Gersonites. Of Laedã were these the heades of the fathers: namely the Jehielites. The chyldren of the Jehielites were, Setham and his brother Joel ouer the treasures of the house of the LORDE. Amonge the Amramites, Jezeharites, Hebronites and Usielites, was Sebuel the sonne of Gerson the sonne of Moses, prince ouer ẏ treasures. His brother Elieser had a sonne Rehabia, whose sonne was Jesaia, whose sonne was Joram, whose sõne was Sichri, whose sonne was Selomith: the same Selomith and his brethren were ouer all the treasures of the thynges ẏ were halowed, which kyng Dauid halowed, and the pryncypall of the fathers amonge ẏ rulers ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, and rulers in the hoost (of warres & spoyles had D they halowed it, to repayre the house of the LORDE) and ouer al that Samuel the Seyer and Saul the sonne of Cis, and Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sõne of zeru Ja had halowed: what so euer was sanctified, it was vnder the hande of Selomith, and his brethren Amõg the Jezeharites was Chenaia with his sonnes for the worke without ouer Israel, officers and iudges. Amonge the Hebronites was Hasabia and his brethren, valeaunt men, a thousande and seuen hundreth, ouer the offices of Israell on this syde Jordane westwarde for all maner worke of the LORDE, and to serue the kynge.

But amonge the Hebronites was Jeria the chefest amonge the Hebronites of his kynred amonge the fathers. And searche was made amonge them, and in the fourtenth yeare of kynge Dauid ther were founde valeaunt mẽ at Jaeser in Gilead, and theyr brethrẽ myghtye men, two thousande and seuen hundreth pryncypall fathers, and Dauid set them ouer the Rubenites, Gaddites and ouer the halfe trybe of Manasses for all suche busynes as belonged vnto God and the kynge.

The twelfth in the twelfth moneth, was Heldai the Netophathite of Athniell, and vnder his course were foure and twentye thousande.

C Ouer the trybes of Israell were these: Amonge the Rubenites was Prynce Eliezer the sonne of Sichri. Amonge the Simeonites was Sephatia the sonne of Maecha. Amonge the Leuites was Hasabia the sonne of Kemuel. Amonge the Aaronites was Zadoc. Amonge Juda was Elihu one of Dauids brethren. Amonge Isachar was Amri the sonne of Michaell. Amonge zabulon was Jesmaia ÿ sonne of Obadia. Amonge Nephtali was Jeremoth the sonne of Asriel. Amonge the chyldren of Ephraim was Hosea the sonne of Asasia. Among the halfe trybe of Manasses was Joell the sonne of Pedaia. Amonge the halfe trybe of Manasses in Gilead was Jeddo ÿ sonne of zacharias. Amonge Dan was Asareel the sonne of Jeroham. These are the prynces of the trybes of Israel.

But Dauid toke not the nombre of them that were twentye yeare olde and there vnder: for ÿ LORDE had promysed to multiplye Israel as the starres of the skye. * Howbeit Joab the sonne of zeruia had begonne to nombre them, & performed it not: for ther came wrath vpon Israell for the same cause, therfore came not the nombre in the Cronicles of kynge Dauid. 1.par.22.a

D Ouer the kynges treasures was Asmaueth the sonne of Adiell. And ouer the treasures in the lande, in the cyties, villages and castels was Jonathan the sonne of Usia. Ouer the husbandmen to tyll the lande was, Esri the sonne of Chelub. Ouer the vynyardes was Simei the Ramathite. Ouer the wynecellers and treasures of wyne was Sabdi the Siphimite. Ouer the oyle gardens and Molberytrees in the lowe feldes was Baall Hanan the Gaderite. Ouer ÿ treasure of ÿ oyle was Joas. Ouer the oxen of the pasture at Saron was Sitari the Saronite. Ouer the oxen in the valleyes was Saphath the sonne of Adlai.

Ouer the camels was Obil the Ismaelite. Ouer the asses was Jehethia the Meronothite. Ouer the shepe was Jasis the Hagarite. All these were rulers ouer kinge Dauids goodes. Jonathan Dauids vncle was of ÿ counsell, a wyse man and a scribe. And Jehiell, the sonne of Hachmoni was with the kynges chyldrē. * Achitophel also was of the kynges coūsel. Husai ÿ Arachite was the kynges frende. After Achitophell was Joiada the sonne of Benaia & Abiathar. As for Joab, he was the kynges chefe captayne of warre. 2.Re.16.b

The wordes of Dauid to the captaynes, to the people, and to Salomō.

A ND Dauid gathered vnto Jerusalem all the rulers of Israell, namely the princes of the trybes, the rulers ouer the courses which wayted vpon the kynge, the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, the rulers ouer the goodes and cattell of the kynges and of his sonnes, with ÿ chamberlaynes, warryers and valeaunt mē. And Dauid the kinge stode vp vpō his fete, and sayd: Heare me my brethren & my people: * I was mynded to buylde an house, where the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE shulde rest, & a footestoole for the fete of our God, & prepaerd my selfe, for to buylde. But God sayd vnto me: * Thou shalte not buyld an house vnto my name, for thou art a man of warre, & hast shed bloude 2.Reg.7.a 3.Reg.5.a. 1.par.23.b.

B * Now hath the LORDE God of Israell chosen me out of all my fathers house, that I shulde be kynge ouer Israel for euer: for * Juda hath he chosen to be the prynce, and in ÿ house of Juda amonge my fathers chyldren hath he had pleasure vnto me, to make me kynge ouer all Israell: and amonge all my sonnes (for the LORDE hath geuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to syt vpon ÿ seat of the kyngdome of the LORDE ouer Israel: & hath sayd vnto me: * Salomon thy sonne shall buylde me an house & my courtes: for I haue chosen hym to be my sonne. And I wyll be his father, and wyll stablysh his kyngdom for euer, yf he be constant to do after my commaundementes and lawes, as it is this daye. Now in the syght of all Israel the congregacyon of the LORDE, and in the eares of oure God, se ÿ ye obserue and seke all the commaundementes of the LORDE your God, that ye maye possesse this good lande & that ye and your chyldren maye haue ÿ enherytaunce therof for euer. 1.Re.16.a. Arke of the couenaunt of the LORD.
All this is geuen my in wrytynge of the hande of the LORDE, to make me vnderstande all the workes of the Patrone.
And Dauid sayd vnto Salomon his sonne: Be thou manly and stronge and make it, feare not, and be not faint harted, the LORDE God my God shalbe with the, and shal not withdraw his hande, nor fayle the, tyll thou haue

¶ How Dauid talketh of buyldynge the temple, and what the prynces geue therto.

And kynge Dauid sayd vn= I to all the congregacyon: God hath chosen Salomō one of his sonnes, whiche is yet yonge & tender. But the worke is great: for it is not a mās palace, but the LORDE Gods. Yet haue I after myne abilite prepared vn to the house of God, golde for the ves= sels of golde, syluer for them of syluer, brasse for them of brasse, yron for them of yron, wood for them of wood. O= nix stones, set Rubies, and stones of dy uerse coloures and all precyous stones, and Marble stones in multitude. Be= sydes this, for ẏ good wyll that I haue to the house of God, I haue of myne owne proper good thre .M. talentes of golde of Ophir and seuen thousand ta lentes of pure syluer, which I geue vn to the holy house of God, beside al that I haue prepared, to ouerlaye the wal= ought to be of golde, maye be of golde: and that it which ought to be of syluer maye be of syluer: and for all maner of worke by the hande of the craftesmen.

And who is now frewyllyng, to fyl his hande this daye vnto the LORDE? B Then were the prynces of the fa= thers, the prynces of the trybes of Is= rael, the captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundreds, the rulers ouer the kyn by whom so euer were founde stones, they gaue thē to ẏ treasure of ẏ house of the LORDE, vnder the hande of Jehiel the Gersonite.

And the people were glad that they were frewyllynge: for they gaue it ẇ a good wyll (euen with all theyr harte) vnto the LORDE. And Dauid also the kynge reioyced greatly, & praised God, and sayd before the whole cōgregacyon: Praysed be thou o LORDE God of Israel oure father, vnto the be longeth worshippe and power, glorye, victory and thankes: for all that is in heauen and earth, is thyne: thine is the kyngdom, and thou art exalted aboue all prynces. Thyne are ryches, and ho-noure before that thou raygnest ouer all, in thy hande consysteth power and myght, in thy hāde is it to make euery man great and stronge.

C Now thanke we the our God, and prayse the name of thy glory: For who am I? What is my people? that we shulde be able with a fre wyll to offre, as this is done? For of the cōmeth all:
and of thy hande haue we geuen it the:

is thyne altogether. I knowe my god, that thou tryest the harte, and that vn-maundementes, thy testimonies, & thy statutes, that he maye do all, and buyld this place, which I haue prepared.

congregacyon: O prayse the LORD your God. And all the congregacyon praysed the LORDE God of theyr fa thers, and bowed themselues, & worshipped the LORDE, and then the kynge, and offred sacrifices vnto the LORDE. And on the nexte morowe offred they burntofferynges, a M bullockes, a M. rammes, a thousande lam bes with theyr drynkofferynges, & ple-teously offred they amonge all Israell.
And they dyd eat and drynke the same daye before the LORDE with great ioye, and made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge the seconde tyme, and anoynted hym to be the prynce for the LORDE, *and Sadoc to be ŷ prest.
*Thus sat Salomon vpon ŷ seat 3.Reg.2.c.

Salomon. And the LORDE made Salomon excellente and great in the syght of all Israel, *& gaue hym such a glorious kyngdome, as none had be- 3 Reg.4.a

So had Dauid the sonne of Isai now ben kynge ouer all Israel. And ŷ tyme that he was kynge ouer Israell, is fortye yeares: At Hebron raygned he seuen yeares, and at Ierusalem thre and thyrtye yeares, and dyed in a good age, full of dayes, ryches, and honoure.
And Salomon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Of the kyngdome of Salomon, to whom the LORDE appeareth, and Salomō maketh his prayer vnto hym.

A AND * Salomon the sonne of Dauid was stablyshed in his kyngedome and the LORDE his God was w 3.Reg.3. a hym and made hym exceadynge great. And Salomon spake vnto all Israell, to the captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds, to the Judges, and to all the prynces in Israel, and to ẏ chefest fathers, so that they wente (Salomon and the whole cōgregacyon with hym) vnto the hye place which was at Gibea: * for there was ẏ Tabernacle 1.Pa.22. c of wytnesse of God, ‡ which Moses ẏ Exo.36.b. seruaunt of the LORDE had made in the wyldernesse. * For Dauid had 2.Reg.6.a brought vp the Arke of God from Kiriath Jearim, whan he had prepared for it: for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem. As for the brasen altare Exo.38.a. * which Bezaleel the sonne of Uri the sōne of Hur had made, it was there before the habitacyon of the LORDE: and Salomon and the congregacyon sought God. And Salomon offred a thousande burntofferynges vpon the brasē altare before the LORDE that stode before ẏ Tabernacle of witnesse.
B In the same nyght appeared God vnto Salomon, and sayd vnto hym: Axe, what shall I geue the? And Salomon sayd vnto God: Thou hast done great mercy vnto my father Dauid, & hast made me kyng in his steade. Now LORDE God, let the worde ẏ thou hast promysed vnto my father Dauid, be verifyed, * for thou hast made me kynge ouer a people, which is as many in nombre as the dust vpon the earth. Graūt me wysedome therfore & knowlege, that I maye go out and in before this people: for who is able to iudge this great people of thyne?
3.Reg.3. * Then sayd God vnto Salomō: For so much as thou art so mynded, & hast not desyred ryches nor good, nor honoure, nor the soules of thyne enemyes, nor longe lyfe, but hast requyred wysedome and knowlege, to iudge my people, ouer whome I haue made the kynge: Wysedome therfore and knowlege be geuen the. Moreouer, ryches & good, and honoure wyll I geue the, so that suche one as thou, hath not bene before the amonge the kynges, nother shalbe after the.
C So came Salomon from the hye place (which was at Gibeon) vnto Jerusalem from the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and raygned ouer Israell. * And 3.Reg.4. and.10. Salomon gathered hym charettes & horsemen, so that he had a thousande & foure hundreth charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen: and those appoynted he to be in the charret cyties, and by the kynge at Jerusalem. And ẏ kynge brought it so to passe, that ther was as muche syluer and golde at Jerusalem, as stones: and as many Ceders, as the Molberye trees, that are in ẏ valleys. And ther were horses broughte vnto Salomon out of Egipte, and the kynges marchauntes fetched them from Keua for money. And they came vp, & brought out of Egipte a charette for sixe hundreth syluer pens, and an horse for an hūdreth & fyftye. Thus brought they also vnto all the kynges of the Hethites, and to the kynges of the Syrians.

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ How Salomon deuyseth to buylde the temple of the LORDE.

A AND Salomon thought to buylde an house vnto the name of the LORDE, & an house for his kingdome, and told out thre score and ten thousande men to beare burthens, and foure score thousande that hewed tymber vpon the mount, and thre thou sande and sixe hundreth officers ouer 3.Reg.5.a. them. * And Salomon sent vnto Hiram the kynge of Tyre, sayenge: As 2.Reg.5.c. * thou dyddest with my father, & sendest hym Ceder trees, to buylde an house for to dwell in: euen so do thou with me also. Beholde, I wyll buylde an house vnto the name of the LOR-DE my god, to sanctifie it, for to burne good incense before hym, and alwaye to prepare the shewbread, and burntofferynges in the mornynge and in the euenynge, on the Sabbathes and new Moones, and solempne feastes of the LORDE oure God euermore for Israel.

B And the house that I wyll buyld, shalbe great: for oure God is greater then all goddes. But who is able to buylde hym an house? For heauen and the heauens of all heauens may not cō prehende hym. Who am I then, that I shulde buylde hym an house? But only for this intent to burne incense before hym?
Sende me now therfore a wyse mā to worke with golde, syluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, purple, yalow sylke, and suche one as can graue carued worke with the wyse men that are with me in Iewry and Ierusalem, whom my father Dauid ordeyned. And sende me tymber of Ceder, pyne tre, and costly wood from Libanus: for I know that thy seruauntes can hew tymber vpon Libanus. And beholde my seruauntes shalbe with thy seruauntes, to prepare me much tymber: for the house that I wyll buylde, shalbe great and maruay-lous goodly.
C And beholde, I wyll geue vnto ŷ carpenters thy seruauntes which hew the tymber, twenty thousāde quarters of beaten wheat, and twenty thousāde quarters of barlye, and twentye thousande battes of wyne, and twēty thou sande battes of oyle.
Then sayd Hirā the kynge of Tyre by wryttynge, and sent it vnto Salomon: Because the LORDE loueth his people, therfore hath he made the to be kynge ouer them. And Hirā sayd more ouer: Praysed be the LORDE God of Israel, which made heauen & earth, that he hath geuē kynge Dauid a wyse and prudent sonne, & suche one as hath vnderstandynge to buylde an house vn to the LORDE, and an house for his realme. Therfore sende I now a wyse man that hath vnderstandynge, * euen 3.Reg.7.b Hiram Abi (which is the sonne of a woman of the the doughters of Dan, and his father was of Tyre) which can D worke in golde, syluer, brasse, yron, stone tymber, scarlet, yalowe sylke, linnē, pur ple, and to carue all maner of thynges, & to make what cōnyng thynge so euer is geuen hym, with thy wyse men, and with ŷ wyse mē of my lorde kynge Da uid thy father. And now let my lorde sende the wheat, barlye, oyle and wyne vnto his seruauntes, accordynge as he hath sayd, and so wyll we hew the tym ber vpon Libanus, as muche as thou nedest, and wyll brynge it by flotes in the see vnto Iapho, from whence thou mayest brynge it vp to Ierusalem.
And Salomon nombred all ŷ straū gers in the lande of Israel, accordynge to the nombre whan Dauid his father nombred them, and ther were foūde an hundreth & fyftye thousande, thre thou sande and sixe hundreth. And of ŷ same he made thre score and ten thousande bearers of burthens, and foure score thousande hewers vpon the mount, & thre thousande and sixe hundreth ouer-seers, which helde the people at theyr worke.

The.iii. Chapter.

How he begynneth to buyld, and after what fashion.

AND * Salomon begāne to 3.Reg.6.a buyld the house of ŷ LOR DE at Ierusalem vpon ŷ mount Moria, * that was 1.Pa.22.d shewed vnto Dauid his father, which Dauid had prepared for ŷ rowme vpon the corne floore of Ornan the Iebusyte. In the seconde daye the seconde moneth in the fourth yeare of his raygne beganne he to buylde. And so layed Salomon the fundacyon to buylde the house of God. Fyrst ŷ lēgth thre score cubytes: the bredth twenty cu bytes: and the porche before the wydenesse of the house was twenty cubytes longe, but the heyght was an hūdreth and twentye, and he ouerlayed it on ŷ insyde with pure golde.
But the great house syled he with Pyne tre, and ouerlayed it with ŷ best golde, and made palme trees, and thro-wen worke theron, and ouerlayed the house with precious stones to bewtify B it. As for the golde, it was golde of Per ciam. And the balkes and postes aboue and the walles and the dores of it ouer layed he with golde, and caused Che-rubins to be carued on the walles.

He made also the house of ye moost holy, whose length was.xx. Cubites ac cordynge to the wydnesse of the house: and the bredth of it was twēty cubites lykewyse, and he ouerlayed it with the best golde by sixe hundreth talentes.
And for nayles he gaue fyftye sycles of golde in weyght, and ouerlayed ye chā-bers with golde. He made also in the house of the moost holy, two Cherubyns of carued worke, and ouerlayed them with golde: and the length of the wynges of the Cherubyns was twen-tye cubytes, so that one wynge hadde fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of C the house: and the other wynge had fy ue cubitesalso, and touched ye wynge of the other Cherub.

Euen so had one wynge of ye other Cherub fyue cubytes lykewyse, & touched the wall of the house: and his other wyng had fyue cubytes also, & tou ched ye wyng of the other Cherub: so yt these wynges of the Cherubins were spred out twenty cubites wyde, & they stode vpon theyr fete, & theyr face was turned towarde the house,

3.Reg.7.b He made a vayle also of yalowe sylke, scarlet, purple, and lynen worke, and made Cherubyns theron. * And before the house he made two pylers fyue and thyrtye cubites longe, and the knoppes aboue theron, fyue cubytes.
And he made throwen worke for the quere, and put it aboue vpō the pylers: and made an hundreth pomgranates, and put them on the wrythen worke.
And he set vp the pylers before the tem ple, the one on the ryght hande, and the other on the left: and that on the right hande called he Jachin, and it on ye left hande called he Boas.

The.iiii. Chapter.

B ¶ Of the ornamentes of the temple.

HE made a brasen altare also, twenty cubytes longe, & 3.Reg.7.c twenty cubytes brode, and ten cubytes hye. * And he made a molten lauer ten cubytes wyde from the one syde to the other rounde aboute, and fyue cubytes hye. And a meetlyne of thyrtye cubytes myght comprehende it aboute. And ymages of bullockes were vnder it. And aboue the lauer (which was ten cuby-tes wyde) ther were two rowes of knoppes, that were molten withall.

It stode so vpon the bullockes, yt thre were turned towarde the North, thre towarde ye West, thre towarde the South, and thre towarde the East, & ye lauer aboue vpon them, and all theyr hynder partes were on the insyde. The thycknesse of it was an hande bredth, and the edge of it was lyke the edge of a cuppe, and as a floured rose. And it conteyned thre thousande battes. 3.Reg.7.a

* And he made ten kettels, wherof he set fyue on the ryghte hande & fyue on the lefte, to washe in them suche thynges as belonged to the burntofferynge, that they myght thruste thē ther in: but the lauer (made he) for the prestes to washe in.

Ten golden candelstickes made B he also as they oughte to be, and set thē in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the lefte. And made ten tables, and set them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on ye left.
And made an hundreth basens of gold.
He made a courte lykewyse for ye prestes, and a great courte, and dores in ye courte, and ouerlayed the dores with brasse. And the lauer set he on the right syde towarde the south east And Hirā made cauldrons, shouels, and basens.

So Hiram fynysshed the worke which he made for kynge Salomon in the house of God: namely the two py-lers with the roundels and knoppes a boue vpon both the pylers, and both ye wrythen ropes to couer both the roundels of the knoppes aboue vppon the pylers, and ye four hūdreth pomgrana tes on both the wrythen ropes, two ro wes of pomgranates on euery rope, to couer the roundels of the knoppes that were aboue vpon the pylers.

He made the stooles also and the C kettels vpon the stooles, and a lauer, and twelfe bullockes there vnder. And pottes, shouels, fleshokes, and all theyr vessels made Hiram Abif of pure metal for kynge Salomon vnto the house of the LORDE, In the coast of Jordane dyd the kynge cause them to be molten in thicke earth betwene Su-choth and zaredatha.

And Salomon made all these vessels which were so many, yt the weyght of the metal was not to be sought out.
And Salomon made all the ornamen-tes for the house of God: namely ye gol den altare, the tables, and the shewe-breads theron, ÿ candelstickes & theyr lampes of pure golde, to burne before the Quere accordynge to the maner: & the floures and the lampes and ÿ snof fers were of golde, and all these were of pure golde.

And the knyues, basens, spones & pottes, were of pure golde. And the in-traunce and his dores within vnto the Moost holy, and the dores of the house of ÿ tẽple were of golde. Thus was al the worke fynysshed whiche Salomon made in the house of the LORDE.

The.v.Chapter.

¶ The Arke is brought in to the temple. &c.

A AND * Salomon brought in all that his father Da-3.Reg.7.g uid had sanctified, namely, syluer and golde, and al ma ner of ornamentes, and layed them in the treasures of the house of God. * Then gathered Salomõ all 3.Reg.8.a the Elders in Israel together, all the heades of the trybes, prynces of the fathers amonge the chyldren of Israell vnto Ierusalem, to brynge vp the Arke of the couenaunt of the LORDE out of the cytie of Dauid, that is Siõ.
And ther resorted vnto the kinge al the men in Israel at the feast, that is in the seuenth moneth, and all the Elders in Israel came.

And the Leuites toke the Arke, & brought it vp with the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holy vessels that were in ÿ tabernacle: and ÿ prestes and Leuites brought them vp. As for kinge Salomõ and al the cõgregacyon of Is rael that was gathered vnto hym before the Arke, they offred shepe & oxen, so many, that noman coulde nõbre nor reken them.

B Thus the prestes brought ÿ Arke of the couenaunt of the LORD vnto hir place in the quere of the house, euen in to the Moost holy vnder ÿ wyn ges of the Cherubyns, so that the Che rubyns spred out theyr wynges ouer ÿ place of the Arke: and the cherubyns co uered the Arke and the staues therof from aboue. And the staues were so longe that the knoppes of them were sene frõ the Arke before the quere, but on the outsyde were they not sene. And 3.Reg.8.b it was there vnto this day. * And ther was nothynge in ÿ Arke, saue the two tables, which Moses put therin at Ho reb, whan the LORDE made a con-uenaunt with the chyldren of Israell, what tyme as they were departed out of Egipte.

And whan the prestes wente out of the Sanctuary (for all the prestes ÿ were founde, sanctified them selues, be cause the courses were not kepte) ÿ Le uites with all those that were vnder A saph, Heman, Iedithun, and theyr chyl C dren and brethren, beynge clothed in lynnen, songe with Cymbales, Psalteries, and harpes, and stode towarde ÿ eastpart of the altare, and an hundreth and twentye prestes with them, which blewe with trõpettes. And it was, as yf one dyd trompet & synge, as though a voyce had ben herde of prayssinge and geuynge thankes vnto the LORDE.

And whã the voyce arose from the trompettes, cymbales and other instru mentes of musick, and from prayssynge the LORDE (Because he is gracyous, & because his mercy endureth for euer) the house of the LORDE was fylled on the insyde with a cloude, so ÿ the prestes coulde not stande to mynys-ter for the cloude: for the glorye of the LORDE fylled the house of God.

The.vi.Chapter.

¶ Salomõ speaketh vnto the people, prayseth God, & beseketh hym to heare such as make theyr prayer in the tẽple.

THan sayd * Salomõ: The A LORDE sayd ÿ he wold 3.Reg.8.b dwell in a darcke cloude: I haue buylded an house to be an habitacyon vnto the:
and a seat, that thou maiest dwel there for euer. And the kynge turned his face and blessed all the congregacyon of Is rael: for the whole cõgregacyon of Israel stode, and he sayd: Praysed be the LORDE God of Israel, which promysed by his mouthe vnto my father Dauid, and with his hande hath ful-fylled it, whã he sayd: * Sence ÿ tyme 2.Reg.7.a

And whan my father Dauid was

mynded to buylde an house vnto my name, thou hast dō wel: howbeit thou shalte not buylde the house, but thy sonne whiche shal come out of thy loy nes, shal buyld ẏ house vnto my name.

Thus hath the LORDE nowe perfourmed hys worde, that he spake: for I am come vp in my father Da-uids steade, an syt vpon the seate of Israel, euen as the LORDE sayde, & haue buylded an house vnto ẏ name of ẏ LORD God of Israel, and in it haue I put the Arke, wherin is ẏ con-uenaunt of the LORDE, whiche he made wyth the chyldren of Israell.

And he stode before the altare of C the LORDE in the presence of the whole congregacyon of Israell, and spred oute hys handes: for Salomon had made a brasen pulpit, and set it in the myddes of the courte, fyue cubites long, & fyue cubites brode, & thre cubi-tes hygh: vpon the same stode he, & fell downe vpon hys knees in the presence of the whole congregacyon of Israell, and helde out hys hande towarde hea uen and sayde:

the waye of theyr owne londe, whiche thou gauest vnto theyr fathers, and to warde the cytie, which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I haue builded vnto thy name: then hear thou theyr prayer and supplicatyon frō hea uen, euen from the seate of thy dwellynge, and helpe them to theyr ryghte, and be mercyfull vnto thy people that haue synned agaynst the. My God, let thyne eyes now be open, and let thyne eares geue hede vnto prayer in thys place. * Aryse now O LORD God Psa.131.a vnto thy restynge place, thou and the Arke of thy strength. Let thy prestes O LORDE God be clothed wyth health and let thy sayntes reioyce ouer thys good. LORDE God, turne not away y face of thyne anoynted: thinke vpō y mercyes of thy seruaūt Dauid.

The.vii.Chapter.

The fyre commeth from heauē, and consumeth the sacryfyce. The kynge and the people offer. The LORDE appeareth vnto Salomon, and prom-seth to heare hym.

And whan Salomon had A ended hys prayer, ther fell a fyre from heauen, and cō sumed the burntofferynge and the other offerynges.
And the glory of the LORDE fylled the house, so that the prestes could not go in to the house of the LORDE, whyle the glorye of the LORD fylled the LORDES house. And al the chyldren of Israell sawe the fyre fall downe, and the glorye of the LORD ouer the house: and they fell on theyr knees wyth theyr faces to the ground vpon the pauement, and worshypped, and gaue thankes vnto the LORD, because he is gracyous, & because his mercye endureth for euer. As for the kynge and all the people, they offered before the LORDE.

For kynge Salomon offred two, & twenty thousande bullockes, and an hundreth thousande and twenty thou sand shepe, and so both the kynge, and all the people dedicated the house of God.

But the prestes stode in theyr wat- B ches, and the Leuites with the musy-call instrumentes of the LORDE, which kynge Dauid had caused to ma ke for to geue thākes vnto the LOR DE, (because hys mercy endureth for euer) wyth psalmes of Dauid thorow theyr hand. And y prestes blew trōpet tes ouer against thē, & al Israel stode.
And Salomon halowed the middel most court, which was before y house of the LORD, for there prepared he y burntofferynges, and the fat of the thankofferynges. For the brasen alta= re that Salomon made, myghte not conteyne all the burntofferynges, and the fat.

1. Ma. 4. g * And at the same tyme helde Sa helde he a conuocatyon. For the dedi= catyon of the altare helde they seuen

But on the thre and twentyeth

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Salomon buyldeth cyties, and sub= dueth the Heythen. Of hys captaynes and of hys wyfe.

AND * after twentye yea res (where in Salomon A buylded the house of the 3. Reg. 9.
LORDE and hys owne house) he buylded the cyti es also whiche Hiram gaue vnto Sa lomon, and caused the chyldren of Is= raell to dwell therin. And Salomon wente vnto Hemath zoba, and made it stronge, and buylded Thadmor in the wyldernesse, and all the corne cytyes, which he buylded in Hemath. He buyl ded the vpper and lower Bethoron ly= kewyse, so that they were stronge cyti es with walles, portes & barres. And Baelath. And al the corne cities which Saloman had, and all the cities of the charrettes and of the horsemen, and al that Salomon had lust to buyld, both at Jerusalem and vpon Libanus, and in all the londe of hys dominion.
All the remnaunt of the people of B the Hethythes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuithes, and Jebusites, which were not of the chyldren of Israell, & theyr chyldren which they had lefte behynde thē in the lond, (whō ŷ children of Is= raell had not vtterly destroyed) those dyd Salomon make tributaries vnto this day. As for the chyldrē of Israell, Salomon made no bondmen of them to his worke, but they were mē of war & chefe captaynes, and ouer hys char= rettes & horsemen. And ŷ chefe of kyng Salomons officers were two hundreth and fyfty, which ruled the people.

And Salomō caused pharaos doughter to be fetched vp out of the cytie of Dauid in to ẏ house ẏ he had buylded for her. For he sayd: My wyfe shal not dwell in the house of Dauid ẏ kynge of Israel, for it is sanctified, in as much as the Arke of the LORDE is come in to it.

C Then offred Salomon burntofferynges vnto the LORDE vpon the LORDES altare, which he hadde buylded before the porche euery one vpon his daye to offer after * the commaundement of Moses, on the Sabbathes, new Moones and at the appoynted seasons of the yeare, * euen thre tymes: namely in the feast of vnleuended bread, in the feast of wekes, and in the feast of Tabernacles.

And he set the prestes in ordre to theyr ministracyon * accordyng as Dauid his father had appoynted, and the Leuites in theyr offices, to geue thankes and to mynister in the presence of the prestes, euery one vpon his daye. And the dorekepers in theyr courses, euery one at his dore, for so had Dauid the man of God cōmaunded.

1.Pa.10.b

D And they departed not from ẏ kinges commaundement ouer the prestes and Leuites in euery mater, & in ẏ treasures. Thus was all Salomons busynesse made ready, from the daye that ẏ fundaciō of ẏ LORDES house was layed, tyll it was fynished, so that the house of ẏ LORDE was al prepared.

3.Re.9.e

* Than went Salomon to Ezeon Geber, and vnto Eloth by the see syde in the lande of Edomea. And Hiram sente hym shippes by his seruauntes which had knowlege of ẏ see, and they wente ẘ Salomons seruauntes vnto Ophir, & fetched frō thence foure hundreth & fyftye talentes of golde, & brought it vnto kynge Salomon.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The Quene of Saba bryngeth presentes vnto Salomon, and receaueth gyftes of hym. Salomon dyeth.

A AND * whan the Quene of rych Arabia herde the fame of Salomon, she cam with a very great treyne to Ierusalem (with camels that bare spices & golde, & precious stones) to proue Salomon with darke sentences. And whan she came vnto Salomō she spake vnto hym all that she hadde deuysed in hir mynde. And the kynge tolde her all hye matters, and Salomon hadde nothynge in secrete, but he tolde it her.

Mat.12.d

And whan the Quene of ryche Arabia saw the wysedome of Salomō, and the house that he had buylded, the meates of his table, the dwellynges of his seruauntes, the offices of his mynisters and theyr garmentes, and his butlers & theyr apparel, & his parler wher he went vp in to ẏ house of the LORDE, she coulde no longer refrayne. And she said vnto the kynge: It is true that I haue herd in my lande of thy behaueour & of thy wysedome: how be it I wolde not beleue theyr wordes, tyll I came my selfe, and sawe it with myn eyes: and beholde, the halfe of thy great wysedome hath not bene tolde me: ther is more in the thā ẏ fame that I haue herde. Happye are thy men, and happy are these thy seruauntes that alwaye stande before the: and heare thy wysedome. Praysed be the LORDE thy God, which had such pleasure vnto ẏ, that he hath set the vpon his seate to be kynge vnto the LORDE thy god. Because thy God loueth Israel, to set them vp for euer, therfore hath he ordeyned the to be kynge ouer them, that thou shuldest mayntayne iustice and equyte. B

And she gaue the kynge an hundreth and twentye talentes of golde, & very muche spycery and precyous stones. Ther were no mo suche spyces as these that the Quene of ryche Arabia gaue vnto kynge Salomon. And Hirams seruauntes and the seruauntes of Salomon which brought golde frō Ophir, brought costly tymber also & precious stones.

And of the same costly tymber dyd Salomon cause to make stapers in the house of the LORDE, and in the kynges house, and harpes and psalteries for the musicyans. Ther was no such tymber sene before in the lande of Iuda. But kynge Salomon gaue the Quene of ryche Arabia all that she desyred & axed, & muche more thē she had brought vnto the kynge. And she returned, and departed in to hir lande with hir seruauntes. C

The golde that was brought vnto Salomon in one yeare was sixe hundreth & sixe & thre score talentes, besydes ẏ the chapmē & marchauntes brought. And al the kinges of the Arabiās, and the lordes in the londe broughte golde & syluer vnto Salomon. Of the which kynge Salomon made two hū dreth speares of beaten golde, so that sixe hundreth peces of beatē gold came vpon one speare: and thre hundreth shyldes of beaten golde, so that thre hundreth peces of beaten golde came to one shylde: and the kynge put them in the house of the wood of Libanus.

And the kynge made a greate seat D of Yuery, and ouerlayed it with pure golde: and the seate had syxe steppes, & a footestoole of golde fastened vnto ye seate, and it had two leanynge postes vpon both the sydes of the seate, and two lyons stode besyde the leanynge postes, and ther stode twelf lyons vpō the syxe steppes on both the sydes. In al realmes hath not such one ben made.

And all kynge Salomons drynkynge vessels were of golde, and al the vessels of the house of the wood of Libanus, were of pure golde: for syluer was rekened nothynge in Salomons tyme. For the kynges shyppes wente vpon the see with the seruauntes of Hiram, and came once in thre yeare, and brought, golde, syluer, yuery, apes and pecokes.

Thus was kynge Salomō greater then all the kynges vpon earth, in ryches and wysedome. And all the kynges of the earth desyred (to se) Salomons face, and to heare hys wysedō whiche God had geuen hym in hys harte. And they broughte hym yearlye euery man hys presente: Jewels of syluer and golde, rayment, harnesse, spyces, horses and mules.

E 3.Re.4.c. * And Salomon had foure thousand charrethorses, and twelfe thousand horsemen, and put thē in the charetcities, and with the kynge at Jerusalem.
And he was lorde ouer all the kynges from the water vnto the lond of the Philystynes, and to the coast of Egypte. And the kynge broughte it so to passe, that ther was as much syluer at Jerusalem as stones: and as many Ceders, as ther were Molbery trees in the valleys. And ther were horses broughte vnto hym oute of Egypte, & out of all contryes.

What more ther is to saye of Salomon, both of hys fyrste and of hys last: beholde, it is wrytten in the Cronycles of the prophete Nathan, and in the prophecies of Ahia of Silo, and in the actes of Jeddi the seer agaynst Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And Salomon reygned at Jerusalem ouer all Israell fortye yeares. And Salomon fell on slepe wyth hys fathers, & was buryed in the cytie of Dauid hys father. And Roboam hys sonne was kynge in hys steade.

The .x. Chapter.

Roboam oppressynge the people, maketh them to fall awaye from hym.

Roboam * wente vnto Sichem: 3.Re.12. for all Israell was come vnto Sichem, to make hym kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat herde that, whiche was in Egypte (* whether he was fled frō kynge Salomon) 3.Re.11. he came agayne out of Egypt.
And they sent for hym and called him.
And Jeroboam came with all Israel, and spake to Roboam, and sayd. Thy father made our yock greuous, make thou lyghter now the harde bondage of thy father, and the heuy yocke that he layed vpon vs, & we wyll submitte our selues vnto the. He sayd vnto them: Come to me agayne ouer thre dayes.
And the people went theyr waye.

And Roboam the kynge axed counsell at the Elders, which had stand before Salomon hys father whyle he lyued, and he sayde. What is your counsell, that I maye geue thys people an answere? They spake vnto hym, and sayde: Yf thou be louynge vnto thys people, and deale gentlye with them, and geue them good wordes, then shall they alwaye be obedient vnto the. Neuerthelesse, he forsoke the counsell of the Elders that they had geuen hym, and toke counsell at the yonge men, which were growen vp wyth hym, and stode before hym. And he sayde vnto them: What is youre counsell that we maye answere thys people, which haue spoken vnto me, and sayd: Make oure yocke lyghter, that thy father layed vpon vs? The yonge men that were growē vp wyth hym, spake vnto hym and sayde: Thus shalte thou saye vnto the people, that haue talked [illegible] and spoken: Thy father made our yock to heuy, make thou oure yock to lyghter.
Thus shalt thou saye vnto them: My lytle fynger shalbe thicker then my fathers loynes. Yf my father hath layed an heuy yock vpō you, I wyl make youre yocke the more. My father cha-stened you with scourges, but I wyll beate you wyth scorpions.

Now whan Jeroboam and all the people came to Roboam on the thyrde daye (accordynge as the kynge sayde: Come to me agayn on the thyrde day) the kynge gaue them an harde answer.
And Roboā ye kyng forsoke ye cōusel of ye elders, and spake vnto thē after the yonge mens counsell, and sayde: Yf my father haue made your yock to heuy, I wyll make it yet heuyer. My father chastened you wyth scourges, but I wyll beate you wyth scorpions. Thus the kynge folowed not the peoples mynde: for so was it determined of god that the LORDE myghte stablyshe in Dauid, or inheritaunce in the son of Isai? Let euery man of Israel get him to hys tente. Loke ye now to thy house of Juda and Ben Jamin (euen an hundreth & foure came to Semaia the man of God, and sayde: Speake to Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and to al Israell that are in Juda, and Ben Jamin, and saye: Thus sayeth the LOR DE: Ye shall not go vp, nor fyghte agaynste youre brethren: let euery man go home agayne, for thys is my dede.

They herkened vnto the wordes of ye LORDE, and wente not forth a-gaynst Jeroboam. As for Roboam, he dwelt at Jerusalem, and buylded vp ye stronge cytyes in Juda, namely Beth-leem, Etan, Thekoa, Bethzur, Socho, Adullam, Gath, Maresa, Siph, Ado-raim, Laches, Aseka, zarega, Aialon, & Hebron (which were the fensed cytyes in Juda and Ben Jamin) and he made them stronge, and set prynces therein and prouyded them of vytayles, oyle, and wyne, and in all cytyes prepared he shildes and speares, and made them verye stronge. And Juda and Ben Jamin were vnder hym.
The prestes and Leuytes also came B vnto hym out of all Israell and from all the borders therof. And lefte theyr suburbes and possession, and came to Juda vnto Jerusalem: * for Jerobo- 2.Pa.13.b.

the kyngdome of Juda, and mantay-ned Roboā the son of Salomon thre

And Roboā toke Mahelath ye dough C

The.xii. Chapter.

¶ Roboam forsaketh the lawe of the LORDE. The kynge of Egypte cometh vpon hym. The LORDE delyuereth hym.

A But whan the kyngdom of Roboam was confyrmed and stablyshed, he forsoke the lawe of the LORDE and all Israel wyth hym.
3.Re.14.e * And in the fyfthe yeare of Roboam wente Sisack the kynge of Egypt vp agaynst Jerusalem (for they had trans gressed agaynst the LORDE) with a thousande and two hundreth charret= tes, and wyth thre score thousand hors men, and the people were innumerable that came wyth hym oute of Egypte, C Libya, Suchim, and oute of Ethiopia and he wanne the stronge cytyes that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalē.
Then came Semaia the prophet vn to Roboā & the rulers of Juda (which were gathered together at Jerusalem for Sisack) and sayde vnto thē: Thus saieth the LORDE: Ye haue left me, therfore haue I lefte you also in Si= sacks hand. Then the rulers in Israel with the kyng submytted them selues and sayd: The LORD is righteous.
B But whan the LORDE sawe ÿ they humbled them selues, the worde of the LORD came to Semaia, and sayde: They haue humbled them sel= but I wyll geue them a lytle delyue= raunce, that my indignacyon fall not vpon Jerusalem by Sisack: for they shalbe subdued vnto hym, that they maye knowe what it is to serue me, & to serue the kyngdomes of the world Thus wente Sisack the kynge of Egypte vp to Jerusalem, and toke the treasures in the house of the LORDE, and the treasures in ÿ kyn toke the shyldes of golde, * that Sa= chāber. And for so much as he submyt ted hymself, the wrath of the LORD turned frō hym, so ÿ al was not destro

Thus was Roboam the kynge C stablyshed in Jerusalem, and raigned.
One and fortye yeare olde was Robo sen out of al the trybes of Israel, to set hys name there. Hys mothers name was Naema an Ammonytysse: and he dyd euell, and prepared not hys harte

IN * the eyghteenth yeare of A kynge Jeroboam, was A= 3.Re.15.a bia kynge in Juda, & rayg ned thre yeare at Jerusalē.
Hys mothers name was Michaia the doughter of Uriel of Gi bea. And ther was warre betwene A= bia and Jeroboam. And Abia prepa= red hymselfe to the battayll with four hundreth thousand stronge chosen mē of warre. But Jeroboam made hym= selfe ready to fyght agaynst hym wyth eyght hundreth thousande chosen men of strengthe.
And Abia gat hym vp vpon ÿ hyl zemaraim, which lyeth vpon mounte Ephraym, and sayde: Herken vnto me thou Jeroboam, and all Israel: Know ye not that the LORDE God of Is raell hath geuen Dauid the kyngdom of Israell for euer, vnto hym and hys sonnes wyth a Salt couenaunt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat the ser uaunt of Salomon Dauids son, gat hym vp and fell awaye frō his LOR DE. And ther resorted vnto hym va= gabundes and chyldren of Belyal, and haue strengthed them selues agaynst Roboam the son of Salomon: for Ro= boam was but yonge, and of a fearful harte, and could not resyste them. B Nowe thynke ye to set youre sel= agaynst the kyngdome of the LOR= DE amonge the sonnes of Dauid, ...

so muche as ther is so greate a multitude of you, and haue the golden cal-3.Re.12.d. ues * that Jeroboam made you for 2.Pa.11.d goddes? * Haue ye not expelled ye prestes of the LORDE the chyldren of Aaron and ye Leuytes: and haue made you prestes of youre owne, euen as the people of the londes? Who so euer cōmeth to fyll hys hande wyth a yonge bullocke and seuē rāmes, shalbe preste vnto them that are not goddes.

But wyth vs is the LORDE oure God, whom we forsake not: and the prestes that minister vnto ye LOR DE, the chyldren of Aaron and the Le uytes in theyr busynes, and euery mor nynge, & euery euenynge kyndle they the burntofferynges vnto the LOR-DE, and the swete incense, and prepa re the shewbreade vpon the pure table and the golden candelsticke wyth hys lampes, to be kyndled euery euenyng: for we wayte vpon the LORDE oure God.

C As for you, ye haue forsaken hym.
Beholde, God is the captayne of our hoost, and with vs are his prestes, and Nu.10.a. the * blowynge trompettes, to blowe agaynst you. Ye chyldren of Israell, fyghte not agaynste the LORDE God of youre fathers: for ye shall not prospere.

Neuerthelesse Jeroboam made a preuy watch in euery syde, to come vpō them behynde, so that they were befor Juda, and the preuy watche behynde.
Now whan Juda turned the, behold, ther was battayll before them and behynde. Then cryed they vnto ye LOR DE, and the prestes trompeted wyth the trompettes. And whan euery man in Juda gaue a shoute, God plaged Je roboam and Israell before Abia, and Juda. And the chyldren of Israell fled before Juda, and God gaue them in to theyr handes: so that Abia and his peo ple dyd a greate slaughter vpon them, and ther fell wounded of Israell fyue hundreth thousande chosen men.

D Thus were the chyldren of Israel subdued at that tyme, but the chyldren of Juda were comforted, for they put theyr truste in the LORDE God of theyr fathers. And Abia folowed vpō Jeroboam, and wan cytyes from him, Bethell wyth the vyllages therof, Je sana wyth hyr vyllages, and Ephron wyth the vyllages therof, so that Jeroboam came nomore to strength, as long as Abia lyued. And the LOR DE smote hym that he dyed.

Nowe whan Abia was strengththed, he toke fourtene wyues, and begat two and twentye sonnes and sy-tene doughters. What more ther is to say of Abia, and of hys wayes and his doynges, it is wrytten in the storye of the prophet Iddo. And Abia fell on sle pe wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytye of Dauid: and Asa hys sonne was kynge in hys steade.
In hys tyme was the londe in rest ten yeares.

The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Of kynge Asa.

And * Asa dyd that whiche A 3.Re.15.b. was good and ryghte in ye syghte of the LORDE hys God, and put awaye the straunge altares, and the hyghe places, and brake the pylers and hewed downe the groues, & sayde vnto Juda, that they shulde seke the LORDE God of theyr fathers, and to do after the lawe and commaunde-mentes. And the hyghe places and Idols put he awaye out of all the cytyes of Juda: and the kyngdom had rest before hym. And he buylded stronge cy tyes in Juda, whyle the londe was in quyetnes, and whyle ther was no war agaynst hym in the same yeares: for ye LORDE gaue hym rest.

And he sayde vnto Juda: Let vs B buylde vp these cytyes, and fense them rounde aboute wyth walles and towers, with portes and barres, whyle the londe ys yet ī vs: for we haue sought the LORDE oure God, and he hath geuen vs rest on euery syde. So they buylded, and it wente prosperously ī them. And Asa had an hooste of men which bare shyldes and speares, oute of Juda thre hundreth thousande, and out of Ben Jamin two hundreth, and foure score thousand, that bare shildes and coulde shute wyth bowes, and all these were myghtye stronge men.

But Serah the Moryan came out C agaynst them wyth an hoost of a thou sande tymes a thousande, and ī thre hundreth charettes, & came vnto Ma resa. And Asa wente forth against him And they prepared them selues to the battayll in ye valley Zephata besyde Ma resa. And Asa called vpon the LORD Judi.7.a. hys God, and sayde: * LORDE

1.Re.14.a 2.pa.16.b. it is no difference wyth the, to helpe by fewe or by many. Helpe vs O LORDE our God, for oure trust is in the, and in thy name are we come forthe agaynste thys multytude. LORDE oure God, let noman preuayle against the.

D And the LORDE smote the Morians before Asa and before Juda, so that they fled. And Asa wyth the people that was by hym, folowed vpon them vnto Gerar. And the Morians fell, so that none of them remayned alyue, but were smytten before ỳ LORDE and before hys hooste. And they caryed exceadynge muche spoyle from thence. And he smote all the cytyes aboute Gerar, for a fearfulnesse of the LORDE came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cytyes, for ther was muche spoyle in them. They smote the tentes of the cattell also, and toke many shepe, and camels, and came agayn to Jerusalem.

A AND the spyrete of god came vpon Azarias the sonne of Obed whiche wente forth vnto Asa, and sayde vnto hym: Heare me Asa, and all Juda and Ben Jamin: The LORDE is wyth you, whyle ye are wyth hym: and yf ye seke hym, he wylbe found of you. C But yf ye forsake hym, he shal forsake you also. Osee.3.b. Neuerthelesse ther shall be many dayes in Israell, that * ther shall be no true God, no prest to teach, and no lawe. And whan they turne in theyr trouble vnto the LORDE God of Israell, & seke hym, he shal be found. At that tyme shall it not be well wyth hym that goeth out and in: for ther shal be greate vproures vpon al them that dwel on ỳ earth. For one people shal al to smyte another, one citie another: for god shal vexe the ỳ al maner of troble. But be ye stronge, and let not youre handes be feble: for youre worke hathe hys rewarde.

B Whan Asa herde these wordes, and the prophecyenge (of Azarias the sonne of Obed the prophet,) he toke a corage vnto hym, and put awaye the abhominacyons out of all the lond of Juda and Ben Jamin, and out of the cities that he had wonne vpon mounte Ephraim: and renewed ỳ LORDES altare, which stode before the porche of the LORDE. And all Juda & Ben Jamin gathered them selues together, and the straungers wyth them oute of Ephraim, Manasses and Simeon: for ther fell many vnto hym out of Israel whan they sawe that the LORDE hys God was wyth hym. And they resorted vnto Jerusalem in the thyrde moneth of ỳ fyftenth year of ỳ raygne of Asa, and the same daye offred they vnto the LORDE of the spoyle that they had brought, seuen hundreth oxen and seuen thousande shepe.

C And they entred in to the conuenaunt, that they wolde seke the LORDE God of theyre fathers, wyth all theyre harte and wyth all theyre soule. And who soeuer wolde not seke the LORDE God of Israel, shuld dye, both small and greate, both man and woman: and they sware vnto the LORDE wyth loude voyce, wyth shoutynge, with trompettes, and with shawmes. And al Juda were glad ouer the oth: for they had sworne wyth all theyr harte, and they sought him with a whole wyll: and he was founde of them, and the LORDE gaue them reste on euery syde.

D And Asa the kynge put downe his mother Maecha from the mynystracyon, that she had founded in the groue vnto Miplezeth, and Asa roted out hyr Miplezeth, and dyd beate it in sunder, and burnte it by the broke Cedron. But the hyghe places were not put downe out of Israell. Yet was ỳ harte of Asa perfecte as longe as he lyued. And loke what hys father had halowed, & that he hym selfe had halowed, he broughte it in to the house of God, syluer, golde, and ornamentes. And ther was no warre vnto the fyue and thyrtyeth yeare of the raygne of Asa.

The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ Baesa commeth vp agaynste Asa, which agreeth wyth hym, therfore is he rebuked.

B 3.Reg.15 IN the syxe and thyrtyeth yeare of the raygne of Asa * wente Baesa the kynge of Israell vp agaynste Juda, and buylded Rama, to let Asa the kynge of Juda, ỳ he shulde not go oute and in: But Asa toke forth the treasure in the house of the LORDE, and the syluer and golde in ye kynges house, and sent it vnto Benadad ye kynge of Siria, which dwelt at Damascon, and caused to saye vnto hym: Ther is a conuenaũt betwene me and the, betwen my father and thy father, therfore haue I sent the syluer and golde, that thou mayest breake the conuenaunt wyth Baesa the kynge of Israell, that he maye departe fro me.

Benadad herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent hys hooste agaynste the cytyes of Israell, which smote Eion, Dan and Abel Maim, and al the corne cytyes of Nephtali. Whã Baesa herd that, he left of from buyldynge Rama and ceassed from hys worke. But king Asa toke all Juda vnto hym, and caried awaye the stones and tymber from Rama (wherewyth Baesa buylded) and he buylded Geba, and Mizpa wythall.

B At the same tyme came Hanani ye Seyer vnto Asa the kynge of Juda, & sayde vnto hym: Because thou haste trusted vnto the kynge of Syria, and not put thy trust in the LORDE thy god, therfore is ye power of ye kinge of Cpm.14.c Assiria escaped thy hãd. * Were not ye Moryans and Lybians a greate multytude wyth exceadynge manye charettes and horsmẽ: Yet gaue ye LORDE them in to thy hande, whan thou dyddest put thy truste in hym: for the eyes of the LORDE loke rounde aboute all londes, to strength them that are in hym wyth all theyr harte. Thou hast done vnwysely, therfor shalt thou haue warre from henceforth. But Asa was wrothe at the Seyer, and put hym in preson: for he murmured wyth hym ouer thys thynge. And Asa oppressed certayne of the people at the same tyme.

C These actes of Asa both the fyrst and laste, beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Juda, and Israell. And Asa was diseased in hys fete in the nyne and thyrtyeth yeare of hys raygne, and hys sycknesse increa-Eccl.38.b. sed. * Nother soughte he the LORDE in hys syckenes, but trusted vnto Phisycyans. Thus fel Asa on slepe wt hys fathers, and dyed in ye one and fortyeth yeare of hys raygne, and was buryed in hys owne sepulchre whiche he had caused to be grauen for hymselfe in the cytye of Dauid. And they layed hym vpon hys bedde, whiche was fylled wyth swete odoures and al maner of spyces (made after the Apotecaries crafte) and they made a very greate burnynge.

The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ Of the reygne of Josaphat.

AND Josaphat hys sonne was kynge in his steade, & wared myghtye agaynste Israell. And he put men of warre in all the stronge cy- A tyes of Juda, and set officers in ye lond of Juda, and in the cytyes of Ephraim which Asa his father had wonne. And the LORDE was wyth Josaphat: for he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Balaim but the God of his father, and walked in hys commaundementes, and not after the workes of Israell: therfore dyd the LORDE stablyshe the kyngdom in hys hande. And all Juda gaue presentes vnto Josaphat, & he had greate ryches and worshyppe. And whan his hart was coraged in the wayes of the LORDE, he put downe styll the hye places and groues of Juda.

In the thyrde yeare of his raygne B sente he hys prynces, Benhaill, Obadia, zacharias, Nethaneel and Michaia, to teache in the cytyes of Juda: and wyth them the Leuytes: Semaia, Nethania, Sebadia, Asahell, Semiramoth, Jonathã, Adonia, Tobia, and Tob Adonia, and with them the prestes Elisama and Joram. And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of lawe of the LORDE with them, and wente aboute in all the cytyes of Juda, and taught the people.

And the feare of the LORDE came vpon all the kyngdomes in the contrees that laye about Juda, so that they foughte not agaynste Josaphat. And the Philystynes broughte presentes and trybute of syluer vnto Josaphat. And the Arabyans brought hym seuen thousande, and seuen hundreth rammes, and seuen thousande and seuen hundreth hegoates. Thus increased Josaphat, and grew euer greater. And he buylded castels and corne cyties in Juda. And dyd muche in the cytyes of Juda, and had valeaunt & myghtye men at Jerusalem.

And thys was ye ordynaũce thorow out the house of theyr fathers, which C were rulers ouer the thousandes in Juda: Adna a captayne, and with him were thre hundreth thousande myghtye men. Nexte vnto hym was Johanan the chefe, and with hym were two hundreth and foure score thousande.

Next hym was Amasia the son of Sichri the frewyllynge of the LORDE and with hym were two hũdreth thou sande valeaunt men. Of the chyldren of BenJamin was Eliada a myghtye man, and wyth hym were two hun dreth thousande readye wyth bowes, and shyldes. Nexte vnto hym was Jo sabad, and wyth him were an hũdreth and foure score thousande harnessed men of warre. All these wayted vpon the kynge, besydes those that the kynge had layed in the stronge cytyes thorow out all Juda.

The.xviii. Chapter.

¶ Josaphat maketh frendshyppe w Achab, and helpeth hym to fyghte.

A AND Josaphat had greate rychcs and worshippe, and 3.Re.22 a. made frendshyppe with Achab.
* And after two yea res wente he down to A chab vnto Samaria. And Achab cau sed many shepe and oxen to be slayne for hym and for the people that were wyth hym. And he coũseled hym to go vp vnto Ramoth ĩ Gilead. And Achab the kynge of Israell sayde vnto Josa phat the kynge of Juda: Go wyth me vnto Ramoth in Gilead. He sayde vn to hym: I am as thou, and my people as thy people, we wyll go wyth the vn to the battayll.

But Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israell: Axe counsell (I pray the) thys daye at the word of ỹ LOR DE. And the kynge of Israell gathe red the prophetes together, euen foure hundreth men, and sayde vnto them: Shall we go to the battayll vnto Ra moth in Gilead, or shall I let it alone?
They sayd: Go vp, God shall delyuer it in to the kynges hande. But Josa phat sayd. Is ther not yet one prophet of the LORDE here, that we may axe at hym? The kynge of Israel sayd vnto Josaphat: Ther is yet one man, at whome we may axe at the LORD, but I hate hym, for he prophecieth me no good, but alwaye euell, namely Mi cheas the sonne of Jemla. Josaphat sayde: Let not the kyng saye so. And the kynge of Israell called one of hys chamberlaynes, and sayde: Brynge hyther soone Micheas the sonne of Jemla.

And the kynge of Israell, and Jo B saphat the kynge of Juda, sat eyther of them vpon hys seate, araied in theyr garmentes. Euen in the place at ỹ dore of the porte of Samaria sat they, and all the prophetes prophecyed before them. And Sedechias ỹ sonne of Cna ena had made him hornes of yron, and sayde: Thus sayeth the LORDE: Wyth these shalte thou push at ỹ Sy ryans, tyll thou brynge thẽ to naught.
And all the prophetes prophecyed ly kewyse, and sayde: Go vp vnto Ra moth in Gilead, and thou shalte pros pere, and the LORDE shall deliuer it in to the kynges hande.

And the messaunger that went to call Michas, spake vnto hym, & sayde: Beholde, the wordes of the prophetes are with one accorde good before the kynge: let thy worde (I praye the) be as one of theirs, and speake thou good also. But Micheas sayd: As truely as the LORDE lyueth, loke what my God sayeth vnto me, ỹ wyl I speake.
And whan he came to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him: Micheas shuld we go vnto Ramoth in Gilead to the battayll, or shulde we let it alone? He sayde: Go vp and ye shall prospere. It shalbe geuen you in youre hãdes. But the kynge sayde vnto hym: I charge the yet agayne, that thou tell me no thynge, but the treuth in the name of the LORDE.

Then sayde he: I sawe all Israel C scattered abrode vpon the mountay nes, as ỹ shepe that haue no shepherd.
And the LORDE sayde: Haue the se no lorde? Let euery one turne home agayne in peace. Then sayde ỹ kynge of Israell vnto Josaphat: Dyd not I tell the, that he wold prophecye me no good, but euell?

And he sayd: therfore heare ye the 3.Re.22 d worde of the LORDE: * I saw the Esay.6 a LORDE syt vpon hys seate, and all the hooste of heauen stondynge at hys ryghte hande and at hys lefte. And the LORDE sayde: Who wyll deceaue Achab the kynge of Israell, that he maye go vp and fall at Ramoth in Gi lead? And whan one sayde thus, ano ther so, ther came forth a sprete, and stode before the LORDE, & sayde:

I wyll deceaue hym. The LORDE sayde vnto hym: Wherewyth? He sayde: I wyll go forth and be a false spyrete in the mouth of all hys prophetes. And he sayde: Thou shalt deceaue hym, and shalte be able: go thy waye, and do so. Beholde now, * the LORDE hath geuen a false spyrete in the mouth of all these thy prophetes, and ye LORDE hath spoke euel agaynst ye.

Job.12.c. Eze.14.b.

D Then stepte forth Sedechias the sonne of Cnaena, and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayd: Which way is the spyrete of the LORDE departed fro me, to speake thorowe the? Micheas sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it, whan thou commest in to the inmoost chamber to hyde the. But the kyng of Israell sayde: Take Micheas, and let hym remayne wyth Amon the ruler of the cytye, and wyth Joas the sonne of Melech, and saye: Thus sayeth the kynge: Put thys man in preson, & fede hym wyth breade and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peace. Micheas sayde: Yf thou commest agayne in peace then hath not the LORDE spoken thorowe my. And he sayd: Herken to all ye people.

E So the kynge of Israell, and Josaphat the kynge of Juda wente vp vnto Ramoth in Gilead. And ye kynge of Israell sayde vnto Josaphat: Chaunge thy clothes and come to the battayll in thyne araye. And the kynge of Israell chaunged hys rayment, and came in to the battayll. But the kynge of Syria had commaunded the rulers of hys charrettes: Ye shall fyghte nother agaynste small nor greate, but only agaynst the kynge of Israell.

F Now whan the rulers of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thoughte: It is the kynge of Israell, and they wente aboute to fyghte agaynst hym. But Josaphat cryed, and the LORDE helped hym. And God turned the from hym: for whan the rulers of the charrettes saw that it was not ye king of Israell they turned back from him. But a certayne man bended hys bowe harde, and shot the kynge of Israell betwen the mawe and the longes. Then sayde he vnto hys charretman: Turne thyne hande, and carye me oute of the hooste, for I am wounded. And ye battayll was sore the same daye. And the kynge of Israell stode vpon hys charrett agaynste the Syryans vntyll the euenynge, and dyed whan the sonne wente downe.

3.Re.22.d. Esay.6.a.

Jehu rebuketh Josaphat for helpynge the vngodlye. Josaphat amendeth, and lyueth well.

A But Josaphat the kynge of Juda came home agayn in peace vnto Jerusalé. And Jehu the sonne of Hanani the Seyer wente forth to mete hym, and sayde vnto kynge Josaphat: shuldeste thou so helpe ye vngodlye, and loue them that hate ye LORDE? And for thys cause is the wrath vpon the from the LORDE: neuertheless, ther is some good founde in ye, that thou haste put the groues oute of the lond and hast prepared thyne hart to seke God. So Josaphat abode at Jerusalem.

B * And he wente agayne amonge the people, from Berseba vnto moūte Ephraim, and broughte them agayne vnto the LORDE God of theyr fathers. And he set iudges thorowe oute the londe, in all the stronge cyties of Juda, and a certayne in euery cytie. And sayd vnto the iudges: Take hede what ye do: for ye execute not the iudgemēt of man, but of the LORDE, whe is wyth you in iudgement: therfor let the feare of the LORDE be wyth you, and beware, and do it: for with ye LORDE our God ther is no vnrightousnesse, nor respecte of personnes, nor acceptyng of gyftes.

C And at Jerusalem dyd Josaphat ordeyne certayne of the Leuytes, and prestes, and of the auncient fathers of Israell for the iudgemēt of the LORDE, and ouer the matter of the lawe and caused them to dwell at Jerusalem, and commaunded them, and sayd: Se that ye do thus in the feare of the LORDE, in faythfulnesse and in a perfecte hart, in all causes that come vnto you from youre brethren (which dwell in theyr cytyes) betwene bloude and bloude, betwene lawe and commaundement, betwene statutes and ordinaunces ye shall enfourm them, that they synne not agaynst the LORDE and so the wrath to come vpon you, & youre brethren. Do thus, and ye shall not offende.

Beholde, Amaria the prest is chefe ouer you in all causes of the LORDE:

so is Sebadia the sonne of Ismaell, prynce in the house of Iuda in all the kynges matters: Ye haue officers lykewyse the Leuytes before you. Take a good corage vnto you, & be doyenge, and the LORD shal be with y good,

The.xx.Chapter.

¶ The Moabytes, and Ammonytes wyth the Syrians and Edonites go forth agaynst Iosaphat, whiche pray-

A After thys came the chyldren of Moab, the chyldren of against Iosaphat. And they came and tolde Iosaphat, and sayde: Ther commeth a greate multitude a-gaynste the from beionde the See of Syrya: and beholde, they are at Hazezon Thamar, that is Engaddi.

And Iosaphat was afrayed, and set hys face to seke the LORDE, and caused a fast to be proclamed in al Iu-da. And Iuda came together to seke y LORDE. And out of all the cytyes of Iuda came they to seke y LORD.
* And Iosaphat stode amonge the co-but God. Tomorow shall ye go down vnto them at the reed see by the broke: And beholde they go vp by Cis, and ye shall fynde them before the wylderin thys cause. Do ye but steppe forth, and stonde, and se the health of the LORDE that is wyth you. Feare not O Iuda and Ierusalem, and be not afrayed, tomorowe go ye forth a-gaynst them, and the LORDE shall be wyth you.

Then Iosaphat bowed hymselfe wyth hys face to the earth, & all Iuda, and the inhabiters of Ierusalem fell before the LORDE and worshypped the LORDE. And the Leuy-tes of the chyldren of the Kahathites and of the chyldren of the Corahites arose to prayse the LORDE God of Israell wyth loude voyce in hyghe.
And they gat them vp early in the mor-nynge, and wente forth by the wyldernesse of Thekoa.

And whan they were goyenge oute, D Iosaphat stode, and sayde: Herken vnto me O Iuda, and ye indwellers of Ie-rusalem: Put youre truste in y LOR-DE youre God, and ye shalbe safe: and geue credēce vnto his prophetes, & ye shall prospere. And he gaue counsell vnto the people, and appoynted the syngers vnto the LORDE, and them that gaue prayse in the bewtye of the holynesse, to go before the harnessed men, and to saye: O geue thankes vnto the LORDE for hys mercye endureth for euer. And whanne they be-

1.Re.14.c LORDE caused the hynder watche that was come agaynst Iuda, to come vpon the chyldren of Ammon, Moab, and them of mount Seir, & they smote them. Then stode the chyldren of Ammon and Moab agaynst them of mount Seir to damne them, and to destroye them. And whan they had destroyed thẽ, of mount Seir, one helped another to destroye thẽ selues also. And whã Iu-da came to Mispa vnto ŷ wildernesse, they turned thẽ toward the multitude, and beholde, the dead bodies laye vpon the earth, so that none was escaped.
E And Iosaphat came with his people to deuyde the spoyles of them.
And they founde amõge them so much goodes and rayment and precyous Ie-wels (which they toke from them) that they coulde not beare them. And thre dayes were they dyuydyng the spoyle, for it was so much. On the fourth day came they together in the valley of bles syng: for there blessed they the LORD Therfore is the place called the valley of blessynge vnto this daye.
So euery man of Iuda & Ierusalẽ turned backe agayne, and Iosaphat before them, to go to Ierusalem with ioye: for the LORDE had geuen thẽ gladnesse on theyr enemyes. And they entred in to Ierusalem with psalteries harpes and trompettes vnto the house of the LORDE. And ther came a feare of God ouer all the kyngdomes in the landes, whan they herde that the LORDE hadde fought agaynste the enemyes of Israel. Thus was the kyngdome of Iosaphat in quyetnesse, and God gaue hym rest on euery syde.
F * And Iosaphat raygned ouer 3.Re.22.f Iuda, and was fyue and thyrtye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned fyue and twentye yeare at Ie rusalem. His mothers name was Asu-ba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of his father Asa, and departed not asyde from doynge that whiche was ryght in the syghte of the LORDE: sauynge that the hye places were not put downe, for the people had not yet prepared theyr harte to the God of theyr fathers. What more ther is to saye of Iosaphat, both the fyrste and the last, beholde it is wrytten in the actes of Iehu the sonne of Hanani, whiche he noted vp in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

* Afterwarde dyd Iosaphat the 3.Re.22.g kynge of Iuda agre with Ahasia the kynge of Israel, whiche was vngodly in his doynges. And he agreed with hym to make shippes, for to go vppon the see. And they made the shippes at Ezeon Gaber. But Eliezer the sõne of Dodana of Maresa prophecyed a-gaynst Iosaphat, & sayd: Because thou hast agreed with Ahasia, therfore hath the LORDE broken thy workes.
And so the shippes were broken, and myght not go vpon the see.

The.xxi.Chapter.

¶ Iosaphat dyeth, Ioram his sonne is made kynge, slayeth his brethren, and forsaketh the LORDE. Edõ falleth awaye from Iuda. God punysheth Ioram.

AND * Iosaphat fell on A slepe with his fathers, & 3.Re.22.g was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid and Ioram his sonne was kynge in his steade. And had brethren the sonnes of Iosaphat, Asaria, Iehiel Zacharias, Asaria, Michaell and Sephatia. All these were the chyldren of Iosaphat kynge of Iuda. And theyr fa ther gaue them many gyftes of syluer, and golde and Iewels, with stronge cyties in Iuda. But the kyngdome gaue he vnto Ioram: for he was ŷ first borne.
But whan Ioram came vp ouer his fathers kyngdome, and had gottẽ the power of it * he slewe all his bre- Iudi.9.a

waye of the kynges of Israell, euen as the house of Achab dyd (for Achabs doughter was his wyfe) and he dyd that whiche was euell in the syght of
the LORDE.
Neuerthelesse the LORD wolde B not destroye the house of Dauid, for the couenaũt sake, * which he made w Dauid, and accordyng as he had said, 2.Reg.7.c that he wolde geue hym & his chyldren a lanterne for euermore.
* At the same tyme fell the Edo- 4.Reg.8.c mites awaye from Iuda, and made a kynge ouer themselues: for Ioram had gone ouer with his captaynes and all the charrettes with hym, and had gotten hym vp in the nyghte season, and slayne the Edomites on euery syde, & the rulers of the charrettes: therfore fel the Edomites awaye from Juda vnto this daye. At the same tyme fell Libna awaye frō hym also: because he forsoke the LORDE God of his fathers. He made hye places also on the mountaynes in Juda, and caused them of Jerusalem to go a whorynge, and deceaued Juda.

C But ther came a wrytynge vnto hym from the prophete Elias, sayeng: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of thy father Dauid: Because thou haste not walked in the wayes of thy father Josaphat, nother in the wayes of Asa the kynge of Juda, but walkest in the waye of the kynges of Israel, and makest Juda and them of Jerusalē to go a whorynge after the whoredome of yͤ house of Achab, and hast slayne thy brethren also of thy fathers house, which were better then thou. Beholde, the LORDE shal smyte the with a great plage on thy people, and on thy chyldrē and thy wyues, & on all thy substaūce.
But thou thy selfe shalte haue muche sycknesse in thy bowels, tyl thy bowels go forth frō day to day for very payne.
D So the LORDE raysed vp a-gaynst Joram the sprete of the Philis-tynes, and Arabians, which lye besyde the Morians, and they wente vp in to Juda, and waysted it, & caryed awaye all the substaunce that was founde in the kynges house, and his sonnes, and his wyues, so yͭ ther was not one sōne left him saue Joahas his yongest sōne And after all this dyd the LORDE smite him in his bowels, & such a sycknesse as coulde not be healed. And whyl that endured from daye to daye, whan the tyme of two yeares was expyred, his bowels wente from hym with his sycknesse, & he dyed in euel diseases.
And they made not a buryinge ouer hym as they dyd vnto his fathers.
Two & thyrty yeare olde was he whā he was made kynge, & raygned eyghte yeare at Jerusalem, & walked not wel.
And they buryed hym in yͤ cytie of Da-uid, but not amonge the sepulchres of the kynges.

and all the people of ŷ lande were glad and blewe the trompes, and ther were syngers that coulde playe with al mu-

Neuerthelesse Ioiada ŷ prest gat hym

And he toke the captaynes ouer hū-from the house of the LORDE, and brought hym thorow the hye porte of ÿ kynges house, and caused the kyng to syt vpon the seat royall. And all ÿ people of the lande were glad, and the cytie was at rest. But Athalia was slayne with the swearde.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

I Oas * was seuen yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned fortye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was zibea of Berseba. And Joas dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the LORD as longe as Joiada the pryst lyued. And Joiada gaue hym two wyues, & he begat sonnes and doughters. After warde deuysed Joas to renew ÿ house of the LORD, and gathered together the prestes and Leuites, and sayd vnto them: Go forth vnto all the cyties of Juda, and gather the money of all Israel, to repayre the house of your God yearly, and do it ryghte soone: but the Leuites made no haist.

Then the kynge called Joiada the principall, and sayd vnto hym: Why lokest thou not vnto the Leuites, that they brynge in from Juda and Jerusalem, Ex.30.b.c.
* the collectyon whiche Moses ÿ seruaunt of the LORDE appointed to be gathered amonge Israell for the Tabernacle of wytnesse? For that vngodly Athalia and hir sones haue waisted the house of God: and al that was halowed for the house of the LORD, haue they bestowed on Baalim.

4.Re.12.b
* Then commaunded the kynge to make a chest, and to set it without at the intrauce of the house of ÿ LORDE: and caused it to be proclamed in Juda and Jerusalem, that they shulde brynge in to the LORDE: the collecyon, which Moses ÿ seruaũt of God appoynted vnto Israel in the wyldernesse. Then were all the rulers glad, and so were al the people, and brought it, and cast it in to the chest, tyll it was full.

And whan the tyme was that the Leuites shulde brynge the Arke at the kynges commaundement (whan they sawe that ther was muche money therin) then came the kynges scrybe, and he that was appoynted of the chefe prest, and emptyed the chest and caryed it agayne in to his place. Thus dyd they euery daye, so that they gathered much money together. And the kynge & Joiada gaue it vnto the workmaysters of the house of the LORDE, & they hyred masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the LORDE, and men that coulde worke in yron brasse, to repayre ÿ house of ÿ LORD

And the labourers wrought, so ÿ the repayrynge in the worke went forwarde thorowe theyr hande, and they set the house of God in his bewtye, & made it stronge. And whan they hadde perfourmed this, they brought the resydue of the money before the kynge & Joiada, wherof ther were made vessels for the house of the LORD, vessels for the ministracyon and burntofferynge, spones & ornamentes of golde and syluer. And they offred burntofferynges alwaye in the house of ÿ LORDE, as longe as Joiada lyued.

And Joiada waxed olde, and had lyued longe ynough, and dyed, & was an hundreth and thyrty yeare olde whã he dyed: and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid, amonge the kynges, because he had done good vnto Israell, and towarde God and his house. And after the death of Joiada, came the rulers in Juda & worshipped the kynge.

Then consented the kynge vnto them. And they forsoke the house of the LORDE God of theyr fathers, and serued the groues and ymages. Then came the wrath of the LORD vpon Juda and Jerusalem because of this trespasse of theyrs. Yet sent he prophetes vnto thẽ, that they shulde turne vnto the LORDE, and they testified vnto them: but they wolde not heare.

And the spirite of God came vpon * zachary the sonne of Joiada ÿ prest, which stode ouer the people, and sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth God: Wherfore do ye transgresse the commaundementes of the LORDE, whiche shall not be to your prosperite? for * ye haue forsaken the LORDE, therfore shall he forsake you. Neuerthelesse they conspyred agaynst hym, & stoned him at ÿ kynges cõmaũdement in the courte of the house of the LORDE. And Joas the kynge thought not on the mercy ỹ Joiada his father had done for hym, but slewe his sonne. Notwithstãdinge whan he dyed, he sayd: The LORDE shall loke vpon it, and requyre it.

C And whã ỹ yeare was gone about, the power of the Syrians wente vp, & came to Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed the rulers in the temple, & sent all the spoyles of them vnto the kynge at Damascon. For the power of the Syrians came but with a few men, yet gaue the LORDE a very great power in to theyr hande, because thy had forsaken the LORDE God of theyr fathers. They executed iudgement also vpon Joas. And whan they departed frõ hym, they left hym in great sicknesses.

4.Re.12.d *Neuerthelesse his seruauntes cõspyred against hym (because of ỹ bloud of ỹ chyldrẽ of Joiada the prest) & slew him vpon his bed, & he dyed & they buryed him in the cytie of Dauid, but not amonge the sepulcres of the kynges. They that cõspyred agaynst hym, were these: Sabad the sonne of Simeath ỹ Ammonitisse, and Josabad the sonne of Simrith the Moabitisse. As for his sonnes, & the summe that was gathered vnder hym, & the buyldynge of ỹ house of God: behold, they are written in the storye in ỹ boke of ỹ kynges. And Amasias his sõne was kynge in his steade.

The.xxv.Chapter.

¶ Of kynge Amasias which smyteth the Edomites. He worshippeth theyr Idols, therfore ỹ prophet reprouth him He wyl nedes fight with ỹ kynge of Israel, which ouercommeth hym and taketh hym.

A 4.Re.14 a Fyue and twenty yeare old was Amasias whã he was made kynge, and raygned nyne and twentye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joadan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that whiche was ryghte in the syght of the LORDE, but not with a whole hart. Now whan his kyngdom was in strength, he slewe his seruauntes which had slayne the kynge his father. But theyr chyldren slewe he not, for so is it wrytten in the lawe of Moses, (Deu 24.c. 4.Re.14 a Ezech 18.c) *where the LORDE commaundeth, and sayeth: The fathers shal not dye for the chyldren, nother shall the chyldren dye for the fathers, but euery one shall dye for his owne synne.

And Amasias brought Juda together, and set them after the fathers houses, after the rulers ouer thousandes and ouer hundreds amonge all Juda and BenJamin, and nõbred them frõ twenty yeare olde and aboue, & founde of them thre hundreth thousande chosen men, which were able to go forth to the warre, and caryed speares and shyldes. And out of Israel appoynted he an hũdreth thousand stronge men of warre for an hũdreth talẽtes of syluer.

B But ther cam a mã of God vnto him and sayd: O kinge, Let not the hoost of Israel come with the: for the LORD is not with Israel, nother with al the chyldren of Ephraim. For yf thou cõmest to shew thy boldnesse in ỹ battayl, God shal make the to fall before thyne enemyes. For God hath power to help and to cause for to fall. Amasias sayde vnto the man of God: What shalbe done then wt the hundreth talentes ỹ I haue geuen the souldyers of Israell? The man of God sayd: The LORD hath yet more thẽ this to geue ỹ. So Amasias separated out the mẽ of warre which were come to him out of Ephraim, that they shulde departe vnto theyr place. Then waxed theyr wrath very whote agaynst Juda, and they wente agayne vnto theyr place in wrothfull displeasure. And Amasias strengthed hymselfe, and caryed out his people, & wente forth in to the Salt valley, and smote ten thousãd of ỹ chyldrẽ of Seir

And the chyldren of Juda toke ten thousãde of thẽ alyue, whõ they brought vp to ỹ toppe of a moũtaine, & cast thẽ downe headlinges frõ the toppe of the moũt, so ỹ they al to barst asunder But ỹ chyldrẽ of the mẽ of warre whõ Amasias had sent away agayn (ỹ they shulde not go to ỹ battayll wt his people) fell in to ỹ cyties of Juda, frõ Samaria vnto Beth Horon, & smote thre thousand men, and toke much spoyle.

C And whan Amasias came agayne from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought ỹ goddes of the chyldrẽ of Seir, & made thẽ his goddes, & worshipped before thẽ & brent incense vnto them. Thẽ was ỹ LORD very wroth at Amasias, and sent vnto hym a prophet, which sayd vnto hĩ: Why sekest ỹ the goddes of ỹ people, whiche could not delyuer theyr folke frõ thy handes

And whan he talked with hym, ÿ kyng sayd vnto hym: Haue they made the of the kynges counsel? Ceasse, why wylt thou be smytten? Then the prophet ceassed and sayd: I perceaue ÿ the LORDE is mynded to destroy the, because thou hast done this, and herkenest not vnto my counsell.

*And Amasias the kynge of Juda toke counsel, and sent vnto Joas the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel, sayinge: Come, let vs se one another. But Joas the kynge of Israel sent vnto Amasias the kyng of Juda, sayenge: *The hawthorne in Thou thynkest: Beholde, I haue smitten the Edomites, therfore is thyne harte proude to boast. Now byde at home: why stryuest thou after myssfortune, that thou mayest fall and Juda with the?

Neuerthelesse Amasias consented not: for so was it brought to passe of God, that they myght be geuen into the hãdes of the enemyes, because they sought the goddes of the Edomites. Then went Joas the kynge of Israell vp, and they sawe one another, he and Amasias the kynge of Juda, at Beth-Semes which lyeth in Juda. But Juda was smytten before Israell, & they fled euery one vnto his tent.

And Joas the kynge of Israel toke Amasias the kynge of Juda, the sonne of Joas, the sonne of Joahas, at Beth Semes, and brought hym to Jerusalem, and brake downe the wall of Jerusalem, from the porte of Ephraim vnto the corner porte, euen foure hundreth cubytes longe: and toke with him all the golde, and syluer, and all the ornamentes that were founde in ÿ house of God with Obed Edom, and in the treasures in the kynges house, and the chyldren to pledge vnto Samaria. And Amasias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, lyued after the death of Joas ÿ sonne of Joahas kynge of Israell fyftene yeare.

Of kynge Osias, otherwyse called Uzias or Azarias: of his buyldynges, and how he became leper for his presumpcyon.

Then all *the people of Juda toke Osias, whiche was sixtene yeare olde, and made hym kynge in steade of his father Amasias. He buylded Eloth, and brought it agayne vnto Juda, after that the kynge was fallen on slepe with his fathers. *Sixtene yeare olde was Osias whan he was made kynge, and raygned two & fyftye yeare at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jechalia of Jerusalem. And he dyd ryght in the syght of the LORDE, as his father Amasias hadde done, *and sought God as longe as Zacharias lyued, which taught in the visiõs of god: and as longe as he sought the LORD God made hym to prospere.

For he went forth, and fought agaynst the Philistynes, & brake down the walles of Gath, and the walles of Jabne, & buylded cyties about Asdod, & amõge ÿ Philistynes. For God helped hym agaynst the Philistynes, agaynst the Arabians, agaynste them of Gur Baal, and agaynst the Meunites. And the Ammonites gaue Osias presentes, and his name came in to Egipte, for he was exceadynge stronge. And Osias buylded towres at Jerusalem vpon the corner porte, and on the valley gate, and on other corners, and made them stronge. He buylded castels also in the wyldernesse, and dygged many welles: for he had many cattell, both in the medowes and in the playnes: husbandmen also and wyngardeners on ÿ mountaines and on Carmel: for he delyted in husbandrye.

And Osias had an hoost of men of warre goynge forth to the battayll, which were nombred vnder the hande of Jeiell the scrybe and of Maesa the officer, vnder the hande of Hanania of the kynges rulers. And the nombre of the cheke fathers amonge the stronge men of warre, was two thousand and sixe hundreth. And vnder the hãde of ÿ hoost thre hundreth thousande, and seuen thousand and fyue hundreth, mete for the battayl, in the strength of an army to helpe the kynge agaynst the enemyes. And Osias prepared for all the hoost, shildes, speares, helmettes, brest plates, bowes and slynge stones. And at Jerusalem he made ordynaunce connyngly, to be vpon the towres and in the pinacles to shute arowes and great stones. And the fame of hym cam farre abrode, because he was specyally helped, tyll he became myghty.

C And whan his power was great, his harte arose to his owne destruccyon: for he trespassed agaynst the LORDE his God, and wente in to the temple of the LORDE, to burne incense vpon the altare of incense. But *Azarias the prest wente after hym, and foure score prestes of the LORDE, with hym, valeaunt men, and withstode kyng Osias, and sayd vnto hym: *It belongeth not vnto thyne office (Osias) to burne incense vnto the LORDE, but vnto the prestes belongeth it, euen vnto the chyldren of Aaron, which are halowed to burne incense. Go forth out of the Sanctuary: for thou offendest, and it shalbe no worshippe vnto the before God the LORDE.

D And Osias was wroth and had a censure in his hande. *And whyle he murmured with the prestes, the leprosye sprunge out of his forheade in the presence of the prestes in the house of the LORDE before the altare of incense. And Azarias the chefe prest turned his heade towarde hym, and so dyd all the prestes, and beholde, he was leper in his forheade. And they put hym out from thence. Yee he made haist hymselfe to go forth, for his plage came from the LORDE. Thus became Osias the kynge a leper vnto his death and dwelte full of leprosye in a fre house: for he was put out of the house of the LORDE. But Jotam his sonne had the ouersyght of the kinges house, and iudged the people in the lande.

What more ther is to saye of Osias (both fyrst and last) Esay the sonne of Amos hath written it. And Osias fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym with his fathers in the pece of grounde besyde the kynges sepulcres: for they said: He is leprous. And Jotham his sonne was kynge in his steade.

The.xxvii.Chapter.

Jotham *was fyue and twentye yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem. A 4.Re.15.g
His mothers name was Jerusa the doughter of Zadoc: and he dyd ryght in the syght of the LORDE, as dyd Osias his father: sauynge that he went not in to the temple of the LORDE, and the people yet marred them selues. He buylded the hye porte of the house of the LORDE, and on the wall of Ophel buylded he muche, and buylded the cyties vpon the mountaynes of Juda, and in the woodes buylded he castels and towers.

And he fought with the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and ouercame them, B so that the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yeare an hundreth talentes of syluer, ten thousande quarters of wheate, and ten thousande of barlye. So much dyd the chyldren of Ammon geue hym also in the seconde and thyrde yeare. Thus became Jotham myghty, for he gyded his wayes before the LORDE his God.

What more ther is to saye of Jotham, and al his warres, and his wayes, beholde, it is written in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda. Fyue and twenty yeare olde was he whan he was made kynge, and raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem. And Jotham fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed him in the cytie of Dauid, and Achas his sonne was kynge in his steade.

and raygned sixtene yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was ryght in the syght of the LORDE, as dyd Dauid his father, but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israell, made molten ymages vnto Baalim, and burnt incense in the valley of the chyldren of Hennom *and burnt his owne sonnes in the fyre fore the chyldren of Israel. And he dyd sacrifice and burnt encense vpon the hye places and vpon the hylles, and amonge all grene trees.

Esa.7.b *Therfore dyd the LORDE his God delyuer hym into the hande of the kynge of Siria, so that they smote him and caryed awaye a greate multytude of his mẽ presoners, and brought them to Damascon. He was geuen also vnder the hande of the kynge of Israel, so that he dyd great slaughter vpon hym. For Pecach the sonne of Romelia smote in Juda an hundreth and twenty thousande in one daye (which all were valeaunt men) euen because they had forsaken the LORDE God of theyr fathers. And Sichri a myghty man of Ephraim slew Maseia the kynges sonne, and Asrikam the prynce of the house, and Elkana the nexte vnto the kynge. And the chyldrẽ of Israel caryed of theyr brethren presoners two hundreth thousande, wemen, sonnes & doughters, and toke a great spoyle frõ them, and brought the spoile vnto Samaria.

B But euen there was ther a prophet of the LORDE, whose name was Obed, which wente out to mete ye hoost that came to Samaria, and sayd vnto them: Beholde, because the LORDE God of your fathers is wroth at Juda, therfore hath he geuen them ouer in to your handes: but ye haue slayne thẽ so abhominably, that it is come vnto heauen. Now thynke ye to subdue the chyldrẽ of Juda and Jerusalem, to be bondmen and bondmaydens vnto you Is not this a trespasse then with you. agaynst the LORDE your God? Herken now vnto me, and sende the presoners hence agayne, whom ye haue caryed awaye from your brethrẽ: for the wrath of the LORDE is fearce ouer you.

Then gat vp certayne of the chefe of the chyldren of Ephraim, Asarias ye sonne of Johanan, Barachias ye sõne of Mesillemoth, Ezechias the sõne of Sallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, agaynst them that came from ye battayll, and sayd vnto them: Ye shall not bryng the presoners in hyther, for your mynde is but to make vs to trespasse before the LORDE, to make our synnes and offences greater: for the trespasse is to muche already, & the wrath is fearce ouer Israel. So the hoost left the presoners and the spoyle before the rulers & before the whole cõgregacyõ.

C Then stode vp the mẽ (which now were rehearsed by name) and toke the presoners, and as many as were naked amonge them, clothed they with ye spoyles, and deckt them, and put shues vpon theyr fete, and gaue them to eate and drynke, and anoynted them, and caryed them vpon asses (as many as were feble) and brought them to Jericho to the Palme cytie vnto theyr brethren, & came agayne to Samaria. * At the 4.Re.16 same tyme sent kynge Achas vnto the kynge of Assur, that they shulde helpe hym. And the Edomites came agayne, and smote Juda, & caryed some awaye captiue. The Philistines also fell in to the cyties in the playne, and towarde the south parte of Juda, and wanne BethSemes, Aialon, Gederoth, & Socho with the villages therof, Timna with the villages therof, and Gimso with the villages therof, and dwelte therin. For the LORDE subdued Juda for Achas sake the kynge of Juda, because he made Juda naked, and rebelled agaynst the LORDE. And Teglatphalasser ye kynge of Assur cam agaynst hym, and beseged hym, and he was not myghtye ynough for hym.

D For Achas spoyled the house of the LORDE, and the kynges house, & of the rulers, to geue vnto the kynge of Assur, but it helped hym not. More ouer kynge Achas trespassed yet more agaynst the LORDE, euen in his trouble, and dyd sacrifice vnto the goddes of them of Damascon, which had smitten hym, and sayd: The goddes of the kynges of Siria helpe them, therfore wyll I offre vnto them, that they may helpe me also, where as the same yet were a fall vnto hym and vnto all Israel.

And Achas gathered the vessels of the house of God together, and brake the vessels in ye house of God, & *shut 2.Pa.2.. the dores of the house the LORDE, and made hym altares in all corners at Jerusalem, and euery where in the cyties of Juda made he hye places to burne incense vnto other goddes, and prouoked the LORDE God of his fathers vnto wrath.

What more ther is to saye of hym and of all his wayes (both fyrst & last) beholde, it is written in the boke of the kynges of Juda & Israel. And Achas fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Jerusalem: for they brought hym not amonge the sepulcres of the kynges of Israel. And Ezechias his sonne was kynge in his stede.

The.xxix.Chapter.

Ezechias * was fyue & twentye yeare olde whã he was made kynge, and raygned nyne and twenty yeares at Jerusalem. His mothers name was Abia the doughter of zacharye. And he dyd that which was ryghte in the syght of the LORDE, as dyd his father Dauid. * He opened the dores of the house of the LORDE in the fyrst moneth of the fyrst year of his raygne, and made them stronge, and brought in the prestes and Leuites, and gathered them together vnto the East strete and sayd vnto them: Herken vnto me ye Leuites, sanctifye your selues now that ye maye halowe the house of the LORDE God of your fathers, & put fylthynesse out of the Sanctuary: for our fathers haue trespassed, & done that which was euell in the syght of ẏ LORDE our God, and haue forsaken hym. For they turned theyr faces from the habitacyon of the LORDE our God, & turned theyr backes on it, and shut the dores of the porche, & put out the lampes, and burnt no incense, and offred no burntsacrifices in ẏ sanctuary vnto the God of Israel.

Therfore is the wrath of ẏ LORDE come ouer Juda and Jerusalem, and he hath geuen them ouer to be scattered abrode, desolate, and to be hyssed at, as ye se with youre eyes. For beholde euen for the same cause fell our fathers thorowe the sweard, our sõnes, doughters, & wyues were caryed awaye captyue. Now am I mynded to make a cõuenaunt with the LORDE God of Israel, that he maye turne awaye frõ vs his wrath and indignacyon. Now my sonnes be not ye negligent: * for ẏ LORDE hath chosen you to stãde before hym, and to be hys mynisters and to burne incense vnto hym.

Then rose the Leuites: Mahath ẏ sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sõne of Asaria of the chyldren of the Kahathites. Of the chyldren of Merari: Cis ẏ sonne of Abdi, and Asaria the sonne of Jehaleleel. Of the chyldren of the Gersonites: Joah the sonne of Simma, & Eden the sonne of Joah. And of ẏ chyldren of Elizaphan: Simri & Jeiel. And of the chyldren of Assaph: zachary and Mathania. And of the chyldren of Heman: Jehiel and Simei. And of the chyldren of Jedithũ: Semaia & Usiel.

And they gathered theyr brethren together, & were sanctified, and wente in accordynge to the kynges cõmaundement at the worde of the LORDE, to clense the house of the LORDE. And the prestes entred within ẏ house of the LORDE to purifye, and put out all the vnclennes that was founde in the temple of the LORDE, in the courte of the LORDES house: & the Leuites toke it vp, and caryed it out in to the broke Cedron. The fyrst day of the fyrst moneth begãne they to sanctifye them selues, and on the eyght daye of the moneth wente they in to ẏ porch of the LORDE, & halowed the house of the LORD eyght dayes, & fynished it on ẏ sixtenth day of ẏ fyrst moneth.

And they went in to the kynge Ezechias, & sayd: We haue clensed all the house of the LORDE, the altare of burntofferynges, and al his vessels, the table of the shewbread and all the apparell therof: and all the ornamentes that kynge Achas cast awaye whan he was kynge, what tyme he transgressed those haue we prepared & halowed. Beholde, they are before the altare of the LORDE.

Thẽ the kynge Ezechias gat him vp early, & gathered together ẏ Elders of the cytie, & went vp vnto ẏ house of ẏ LORD, & they brought seuen bullockes, seuẽ rãmes, seuẽ lãbes, & seuen he goates, to be the synofferyng for ẏ sanctuary, & for Juda. And he spake vnto ẏ prestes ẏ chyldrẽ of Aarõ, ẏ they shuld offre vpon the altare of the LORD.

So they slewe the bullockes, & the prestes toke the bloude, and sprinkled it vpon the altare, and slewe the rammes, and sprenkled the bloude vpon ẏ altare: and slewe the lambes & sprenkled the bloude vpon the altare. And the goates to the synofferinge brought they before the kynge and the congregacyõ, & layed theyr handes vpon them: and the prestes slewe thẽ, & sprenkled theyr bloude vpon the altare to make attonement for all Israell: for the kyng cõmaunded to offer burntsacrifices and synofferynges for all Israel.

And he set the Leuites in the house of the LORDE with cymbales, psal-1.Pa.26.a teries and harpes, *as Dauid had cõmaunded, and Gad the kynges Seyer and the prophet Nathã: for it was the commaundement of the LORDE by his prophetes. And the Leuites stode with the Musicall instrumẽtes of Da uid, & the prestes with the trompettes.

And Ezechias cõmaunded thẽ to offre burntsacrifices vpon the altare. And a bout the tyme that the burntsacrifice beganne to be offred the songe of the LORDE beganne also, and the trom pettes and dyuerse instrumẽtes of Da uid the kynge of Israel and all the cõgregacyon gaue prayse and thankes.
And the songe of the Musicians, & the blowyng of ẏ trõpettes, endured al tyl the burntofferynge was fynysshed.

Now whã the burntofferyng was perfourmed, the kyng & al they ẏ were wᵗ him, bowed thẽselues, & gaue prayse & thankes. And Ezechias the kynge wᵗ the rulers cõmaunded the Leuites to prayse the LORDE wᵗ the songes of Dauid & Asaph the Seyer. And they gaue prayse tyll they were ioyfull, and they bowed thẽ selues, & worshipped.

F And Ezechias answered & sayde: Now haue ye fylled your handes vnto the LORDE steppe forth, and brynge hyther the sacrifices and thankofferyn ges vnto the house of the LORDE.
And the congregacyon brought sacry-fices and thankofferynges and euery man of a fre wyllynge harte brought burntofferynges. And the nõbre of the burntofferynges that the congregacyõ brought, was thre score bullockes and ten, an hundreth rammes, and two hũ-dreth lambes, and all these for ẏ burnt offerynge vnto the LORDE: & they sanctified sixe hundreth bullockes, and thre thousande shepe.

But the prestes were to fewe, and coulde not plucke of the skynnes of all the burntofferynges, therfore toke they theyr brethren the Leuites, tyl ẏ worke was fynisshed, & tyll the prestes were halowed (for the Leuites are easier to be halowed then the prestes) and many of the burntofferynges were with the fat of the thankofferynges and drynk-offerynges to be burntsacryfices.
Thus was the mynistracyõ of ẏ house of the LORDE prepared. And Ezechi-as reioyced wᵗ all the people, that they were prepared with God: for it was done ryght haistely.

The.xxx. Chapter.

Ezechias calleth the people agayne vnto the LORDE, & putteth downe euery thynge that is set vp agaynst God.

A AND Ezechias sent into al Israel and Iuda, & wrote letters vnto Ephrahim and Manasses, that they shuld come to ẏ house of ẏ LOR DE at Ierusalem, to kepe easter vnto the LORDE God of Israell. And the kynge helde a counsell with his rulers, and all the congregacyon at Ierusalem *to kepe Passeouer in the seconde mo Num.9.c neth: for at that tyme they coulde not kepe it, because the prestes were not sã ctified ynoughe, & the people were not yet come together at Ierusalem. And it pleased the kynge well, and all the congregacyon. And they appoynted to be proclamed thorowe out all Israell frõ Bersheba vnto Dan, that they shulde come to kepe Passeouer vnto ẏ LOR DE God of Israell: for they were not many that kept it as it is wrytten.

And the postes wente with the letters from the hande of the kynge & his rulers thorowe out all Israel and Iu da, at the kynges commaundement, & sayd: Ye chyldren of Israell, turne ye vnto the LORDE God of Abraham, B Isaac and Iacob, and he shall turne to the escaped, which are left ouer amõge you from the hande of the kynge of A sur: and be not ye as your fathers and brethren, which rebelled agaynst the LORDE God of theyr fathers, & he gaue them ouer in to desolacyon as ye se your selues. Be not ye hardnecked now as were youre fathers, but offre your hande vnto the LORD, & come to hys Sanctuarye, whiche he hath sanctified for euer, and serue the LOR DE your God, & so shall the indignacyon of his wrath turne awaye frõ you For yf ye turne vnto the LORD, then shall youre brethren and chyldren haue mercy in the syght of them, which hold them in captiuite, that they maye come agayne in to this lande: for the *LOR Eze.34.a DE your God is gracyous and mercy full, and shall not turne awaye his face from you yf ye conuerte vnto hym.

And the postes wente from one cy- C tie to another in the lande of Ephraim and Manasses, and vnto zabulon. But they mocked thẽ, & laughed thẽ to scorn

Yet were there some of Asser and Ma-nasses, and of zabulon, that submytted them selues, and came to Jerusalem.
And the hande of God came in to Juda, so that he gaue them one harte to do after the commaundement of the kynge and the rulers of the worde of the LORDE. And ther came together vnto Jerusalem a great people to kepe the feast of vnleuended bread in the seconde moneth, a very great cogacyon.
And they gat them vp, & put down 2.par.28.d the *altares that were at Jerusalem, & all the incense put they awaye, and cast it into the broke Cedron, and slewe the Passeouer on the fourtenth day of the seconde moneth. And the prestes and y Leuites were ashamed, and halowed themselues, and brought the burntofferynges to the house of the LORDE and stode in theyr ordinaunce, as it was accordynge, after the lawe of Moses y man of God. And the prestes sprenkled the bloude from the hande of the Leui-tes: for ther were many in the congregacyon which were not sanctified, therfore dyd the Leuites kyll Passeouer for them whiche were not clensed, that they myghte be sanctified vnto the LORDE.
D Ther were many people also of Ephraim, Manasses, Isachar and zabulon, which were not cleane, but dyd eat the Easterlambe not as it is wrytten, for Ezechias prayed for them and sayde: The LORDE, whiche is gracyous, shalbe mercyful vnto al the y prepayre theyr hartes vnto god, to seke y LOR-DE God of theyr fathers, though they be not clensed after the holy purificacyon. And the LORDE herde Ezechi-as, and healed the people. Thus y chyldren of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem, helde the feast of vnleuended bread seuen dayes with great ioye. And the Leuites & prestes praysed y LOR-DE euery daye with the loude instrumentes of the LORDE. And Ezechias spake hartely vnto all the Leui-tes, whiche had good vnderstandynge in the LORDE, and they dyd eat the feast seuen dayes, and offred thankoffe-rynges, & gaue thankes vnto y LOR-DE God of theyr fathers.
E And all the congregacyon deuysed to kepe the feast yet other seuen dayes, 2.par.36.a & so they helde it those seuen dayes also with ioye: *for Ezechias the kynge of Juda gaue an Heaueofferynge for y congregacyon, euen a thousande bullockes, and seuen thousand shepe. But the rulers gaue an heaueofferynge for the congregacyon, euen a thousande bullockes, and ten thousande shepe And many of the prestes sanctified themselues And the whole congregacyon of Juda reioyced, the prestes and Leuites, & all the congregacyon came out of Israel: and the straungers that were come out of the lande of Israel, and they that dwelt in Juda, and great ioy was ther at Jerusalem: for sence the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid the kynge of Israel, was ther no such (ioye) at Jerusalem. And the prestes and Leuites stode vp and blessed the people, & theyr voyce was herd, and theyr prayer came in to his holy habitacyon in heauen.

The .xxxi. Chapter.

¶ By the authorite of the kynge and at his commaundement, the people put downe Idolatrye.

AND whan all this was fy- A

But Ezechias set the prestes and the lawe of the LORDE.

And he spake vnto y people which B dwelte at Jerusalem, that they shulde geue porcyons vnto the prestes and Le-uites, that they might the more stedfast-ly endure in the lawe of the LORD.
And whan the worde came forth, the chyldren of Israel gaue many fyrst fru-tes of corne, wyne, oyle, hony, and all maner increase of the felde, & broughte in much of al maner tythes. And ÿ chil dren of Israel and Juda which dwelt in the cyties of Juda, broughte the ty-thes also of oxen and shepe, and the ty-thes of such thynges as were sãctified, which they hadde halowed vnto the LORDE theyr God, and made here an heape, and there an heape. In the thyrde moneth beganne they to laye vp pon heapes, and in the seuenth moneth dyd they fynish it.

C And whan Ezechias with the rulers went in, and sawe the heapes, they praysed the LORDE, and his people of Israel. And Ezechias axed the prestes and Leuites concernyng ÿ heapes. And Asaria the prest the chefe in ÿ house of Sadoc, sayd vnto hym: Sence the tyme that they beganne to brynge the heaueofferynges in to the house of the LORDE, we haue eaten & are satisfied, and yet is ther lefte ouer: for the LORDE hath blessed his people, therfore is this heape lefte ouer. Then cõmaunded the kynge, that they shulde prepare chestes in ÿ house of ÿ LOR-DE. And they prepared them, and put in the heaueofferynges, and tythes and that which was halowed faythfully.
And the ouersyght of ÿ same had Chanania the Leuite, and Simei his brother the second, and Jehiel, Asaria, Naglath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliel, Jesmachia, Mahath and Be-naia, ordeyned by the hande of Chana nia and Simei his brother, accordyng to the commaundement of kynge Ezechias. But Asaria was prynce in the house of God. And Core the sonne of Jemna the Leuite the porter of ÿ East gate was ouer the frewyllynge gyftes of God (which was geuen for heaueof ferynges vnto the LORDE) & ouer the moost holy. And vnder his hande were, Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Se-maia, Amaria, and Sachania in the cy ties of the prestes vpon credence, that they shulde geue vnto theyr brethren accordynge to theyr courses, to ÿ least as to the greatest.
D And vnto them that were counted for men chyldren from thre yeare olde and aboue, amonge all them that were in to the house of the LORDE euery one vpõ his day to theyr office in theyr attendaũces after theyr courses. And they that were rekened for prestes in ÿ house of theyr fathers, & the Leuites frõ twentye yeare and aboue, in theyr attẽdaũces after theyr courses; And they ÿ were rekened amonge theyr chyl bes in all the cyties, ÿ they shulde geue porcyons vnto all the men chyldren amonge the prestes, and to all them that were n ombred amonge the Leuites.

Thus dyd Ezechias in al Juda, and dyd ÿ which was good, right & true in the syght of the LORDE his God. And in all the busynes ÿ he toke in hãde cõ-cernyng the seruice of ÿ house of God,

After these actes and fayth- 1 rib the kynge of Assur, and went in to Juda, and pitched before the stronge cy-ties, and thought to plucke them vnto hym. And whan Ezechias sawe ÿ Sẽnacherib came, and that his face stode to fyght agaynst Jerusalẽ, he deuysed with his rulers and myghtye men to couer the water of the welles ÿ were without the cytie, & they helped hym: & ther gathered together a great people, and couered all the welles and water brokes in the myddes of the lande, and sayde: Lest the kynges of Assur fynde much water whan they come. And he toke a corage vnto hym, and buylded all ÿ welles where they were in decaye and made towres theron, and buylded yet another wall without, & strẽgthed Millo in ÿ cytie of Dauid. And made muche ordinaunce and shyldes, and set captaynes of warre ouer the people.

And gathered them vnto hym vpõ B the brode strete by the gate of the cytie, and spake hartely vnto them, & sayd: Be stronge and bolde, feare not, and be not afrayed for the kynge of Assur, nor all the multytude that is with hym: for ther is one greater with vs then with Jere.17.b hym. With hym is a * fleshly arme, but with vs is the LORDE our God, to helpe vs, and to fyght for vs. And the people trusted vnto the wordes of Eze chias kynge of Juda.

4.Re.18.c * Afterwarde sent Sennacherib the kynge of Assur his seruauntes vnto Jerusalem (for he laye before Lachis and al his hoost with him) to Ezechias the kynge of Juda, and to all Juda ẏ was at Jerusalem, sayenge: Thus say eth Sennacherib the kynge of Assur: Wherin put ye your trust ye that dwel in the beseged Jerusalem? Ezechias de ceaueth you, that he maye delyuer you vnto death, honger, and thyrst, and say eth: The LORDE our God shall delyuer vs from the hande of ẏ kynge of Assur. Is it not Ezechias, that hath put awaye his hye places and altares, and sayd vnto Juda and Jerusalem: Before one altare shall ye worshippe, & burne incense theron?
E Knowe ye not what I and my fathers haue done to all the people in the londes? Haue the goddes of the Hey-then in the landes bene able to delyuer theyr contryes fro my hande? What is he amonge all the goddes of these Hey then (whom my father damned) that was able to delyuer his people frō my hande? that your God shulde be able to delyuer you fro my hande? Therfore let not Ezechias now deceaue you, and let hym not persuade you ony suche thynge, and beleue hym not. For yf no God of all the Heythen and kyngdomes myght delyuer his people fro my hande, and from the hande of my pro-genitours, then shal not your Goddes be able to delyuer you fro my hande.
His seruauntes also spake yet more agaynst the LORDE God, and a-gaynst his seruaunt Ezechias. And he wrote a letter to blaspheme the LOR-DE God of Israel, and spake of hym and sayd: Lyke as the Goddes of the Heythen in theyr landes haue not bene able to delyuer theyr people fro my hande: euen so shal not the God of Eze chias delyuer his people fro my hande.
D And they cryed with loude voyce in ẏ Jewysh language vnto the people of Jerusalem that were vpon the wal, to make thē fearfull & to be faynthar-ted, that they myght wynne the cytie.
And they spake agaynst the God of Je rusalem, euen as agaynst the goddes of the nacyons vpon earth, whiche were but the workes of mens handes.
But contrary wyse the kynge Ezechias and the prophete Isay the sonne of Amos prayed and cryed vnto heauē.
And the LORD sent an Angel, which destroyed all the myghtye men of the hoost, and the prynces and rulers in the tentes of the kynge of Assur, so that he departed agayne with shame in to his owne lande. * And whan he went into 4.Re.19.b his gods house, they that came of his own body, slew him there wt ẏ sweard: Thus the LORDE helped Ezechi-as and them at Jerusalem, out of the hande of Sennacherib the kynge of As sur, and of all other, and mayntayned them from all on euery syde: so ẏ many brought presentes vnto the LORD to Jerusalem, & Jewels vnto Ezechias the kynge of Juda. And afterwarde was he exalted in the syghte of all the Hythen.
* At the same tyme was Ezechias E dead sycke, & he prayed vnto the LOR 4.Re.?? a hym a wonder token But Ezechias re compensed not accordynge as was geuen vnto hym, for his harte was lyfted vp: therfore came the wrath vpon him, and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Ne-uerthelesse Ezechias humbled hymselfe because his hart had ben exalted, with them at Jerusalem, therfore came not the wrath of the LORDE vpon thē, whyle Ezechias lyued.

And Ezechias had very great ryches & worshippe, and made hym treasures of syluer, golde, precyous stones, spyces, shyldes, and all maner costly vessel, and cornehouses for the increase of corne, wyne, and oyle, and stalles for all maner cattel, & foldes for the shepe, and buylded hym cyties, and had many cattell of shepe and oxen: for God gaue hym very much good.
It is the same Ezechias that coue- F red the hye water condyte in Gihon, & conueied it vnder on the west syde of ẏ cytie of Dauid: for Ezechias prospered in all his workes. But whan the interpreters the chefe of Babilon were sent vnto hym, to axe questions at hym (cōcernynge the wonder token that hadde happened in the lande) God lefte hym

What more ther is to saye of Ezechias, & of his mercyfulnesse, behold, it is written in the vision of the prophets

Esaye the sonne of Amos, and in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israell. And Ezechias fell on slepe wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym ouer the sepulchres of the chyldren of Da-and Manasses hys sonne was kynge in hys steade.

The.xxxiii. Chapter.

Of the raygne of Manasses, & of hys

Of kynge Amon hys sonne.

A Manasses was twolue yeare 4.reg.21.a olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned fyue & fyfty yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd that whiche was euell in syghte of the LORDE (euen after the abhominacions of the Heythẽ, whome the LORDE expelled before the chyldrẽ of Israel) & turned backe, 4.reg.18.a and buylded the hye places, (* which hys father Ezechias had brokẽ down) and set vp alters vnto Baalim, & made groues and worshypped al ẏ hooste of heauen and serued them. He buyl-ded altares also in the LORDES house, wherof ẏ LORDE had sayde: 2.Par.7.c * at Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And vnto all the hoost of heauen buylded he altares in both the courtes in the house of the LORDE. And in ẏ valley of ẏ sonne of Hennon caused he hys owne sonnes to go thorowe the fyre, & dyd chause dayes, and regarded byrdes cryenge and wytches, and foũ-ded soithsaiers & expoũders of tokẽs, & dyd much ẏ was euill in ẏ syght of the LORDE to prouoke hym vnto wrath.

B Carued ymages also and Idols (which he caused to make) sette he vp in Gods house, whereof the LORDE sayde vnto Dauid, and to Salomon hys sonne: In thys house at Jerusalẽ which I haue chosẽ out of al ẏ trybes

Therfore dyd the LORDE C cause the rulers of the hoost of ẏ kinge of Assur to come vpõ them, which toke Manasses presoner with bondes, and boũde hym with cheynes, and brought hym vnto Babilõ. * And whã he was Deu.30.a in trouble, he made intercession before the LORDE his God, and hũbled hymselfe greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed and besought him.
Then herd he is prayer, & brought hym agayn to Jerusalem to his kyngdome.
And Manasses knwe that the LOR DE is God.

Afterwarde buylded he the vttermoost wall of the cytie of Dauid, on ẏ westsyde of Gihon by the broke, and at the intraunce of the fyshgate, & roũde aboute * Ophel, and made it very hye. 2.Esd.3.
And layed captaynes in the stronge cy-ties of Juda, and put awaye ẏ straũge goddes and Idols out of the house of the LORDE, and all the altares which he had buylded vpon the mount of the house of the LORDE, and in Jerusa lem, and cast them out of the cytie, and buylded the altare of the LORDE, and offred slayne offerynges and thankoffe rynges theron, and commaunded Juda, that they shulde serue the LORDE God of Israel, Neuerthelesse thought the people offred vnto ẏ LORDE theyr God, yet offred they vpõ ẏ hye places.

What more ther is to saye of Ma-nasses and of his prayer to his God, & D the wordes of ẏ Seers ẏ spake vnto him in the name of the LORDE God of Israel, beholde, they are amonge the actes of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer and intercession, & all his synne and offence, and the rowmes wherin he buylded the hye places and groues & founded ydols, afore he humbled hym selfe, behold, they are writtẽ amõge the actes of the Seers. And Manasses fell on slepe with his fathers, and they buryed hym in his house. And Amon his sonne was kynge in his steade.

Two and twentye yeare olde was Amon whan he was made kynge, and raygned two yeare at Jerusalem, and dyd euel in the syght of the LORDE, as Manasses his father had done. And Amon offred vnto all the Idols that his father Manasses had made, & ser-ued them. Yet dyd not he humble hym selfe before ẏ LORDE, as Manasses his father had submytted hymselfe: but Amõ trespassed euer more & more. And his seruauntes cōspyred agaynst hym, & slewe hym in his house. Thē smote the people in the londe al them that had cōspyred agaynst kynge Amon. And the people in ẏ lōde made Iosias his sonne kynge in his steade.

The .xxxiiii. Chapter.

A 4.Re.22.a IOsias * was eyghte yeare olde whan he was made kynge, and raygned one & thyrtye yeare at Ierusalem and dyd that whiche was ryght in the syght of the LORDE, & walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, and turned not asyde, nother to ẏ ryght hande nor to the lefte. For in the eyght yeare of his raygne whā he was yet but a chylde, he beganne to seke the God of his father Dauid: & in ẏ twelfte yeare beganne he to clense Iuda & Ierusalem from the hye places, & groues, and carued Idols, and molten ymages & caused ẏ altares of Baalim to be broken downe before him, & the ymages ẏ were theron hewed he down. And ẏ groues, & carued Idols, & moltē ymages brake hē in peces, & made them to dust and scattered it vpon the graues of thē that had offred vnto them. And the bones of the prestes brent he vpon the altares, and so clensed he Iuda and Ierusalem, and in the cytties of Manasse, Ephraim, Simeon, and vnto Nepthali in theyr wyldernesses on euery syde. And whā he had broke downe the altares and groues, and smytten the ydols in peces, and hewed downe all ẏ ymages in all the lande of Israel, he came agayne to Ierusalem.

B 4.Re.22.a * In ẏ eyghtēth year of his raigne whan he had clensed the lande and the house, he sent Saphan the sōne of Azalia and Maeseia the shreue of the cytie, and Ioah the sōne of Ioahas ẏ chaūceler, to repayre the house of ẏ LORDE his God. And they came to Helchias the hye prest, & ther was delyuered vnto them the moneye that was brought vnto the house of God, which the Leuites (that kepte the thresholdes) had gathered, of Manasses, Ephraim, and of all the resydue in Israell, and of al Iuda and Ben Iamin, and them ẏ dwelte at Ierusalem, and they delyuered it vnto the handes of the workemen in the house of the LORDE, and gaue it vnto those that wrought in the house of the LORDE, where it was in decaye that they shulde repayre it. And ẏ same gaue it forth vnto the carpenters and buylders, to bye fre stone and hewen tymber, for the balkes in ẏ houses which the kynges had destroyed. And the mē laboured faythfully in ẏ work.

C And ouer them were ordeyned, Iahath and Obadia the Leuites of the chyldren of Merari: Zachary and Mesullam of the chyldren of the Kahathites, to further the work, and they were all Leuites that coulde playe vpon instrumentes. But ouer them that bare burthens and furthered all maner of worke in all the offices, ther were scrybes, officers and dorekepers of the Leuites. And whan they toke out the money that was brought vnto the house of the LORDE, Helchias the prest founde the boke of the law of ẏ LORDE geuen by Moses. And Helchias answered, and sayd vnto Saphan the Scrybe: * I haue founde the boke of the law in the house of the LORDE. (4.Re.22.b) And Helchias delyuered the boke vnto Saphan. And Saphan bare it vnto the kynge, and brought the kyng worde agayne, and sayd: All that was geuen vnder the handes of thy seruaūtes, that make they: and the money that was founde in the house of the LORDE, haue they gathered together, and delyuered it vnto the officers and the workmen. And Saphan the Scrybe tolde the kynge, and sayd: Helchias the prest hath delyuered me a boke.

D And Saphan red therin before the kynge. And whan the kynge herde the wordes of the law, he rent his clothes. And the kynge commaunded Helchias and Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, and Abdon the sonne of Micha, and Saphā the Scrybe, and Asaia the kynges seruaunt, and sayd: Go your way, are counsell at the LORDE for me and for the remnaūt in Israel, and for Iuda, cōcernyng these wordes of the boke that is founde. For great is the indignacyon of the LORDE ẏ is gone forth ouer vs, because our fathers haue not kepte the worde of LORDE, to do accordynge as it is writtē in this boke. Thē wēt Helchias (& the other ẏ were sent frō the kyng) vnto the prophetisse Hulda the wyfe of Sallū the sonne of Thecoath the sonne of Hasra the keper of ẏ clothes, which dwelt at Ierusalē on ỹ other side, & they spake this vnto her E And she sayd vnto them: Thus say eth the LORDE God of Israel: Tel the man ỹ sent you vnto me, Thus say eth the LORDE: Beholde I wyll brynge plages vpon this place and the inhabiters therof, euen all the curses which are wrytten in the boke, ỹ was red before the kynge of Juda: because they haue forsaken me, & brent incense vnto other goddes, to prouoke me & all the workes of theyr handes. And mync indignacyon shall go forth vpon this cytie, & shall not be quenched.

And after this maner shall ye saye vnto the kynge of Juda, ỹ sent you to axe counsel at the LORDE: Thus sayeth the LORDE God of Israell concernynge the wordes that thou hast herde: Because thyne harte is moued, and because thou hast hũbled thy selfe in the syght of God, whã thou hardest his wordes agaynst this place, & the in habiters therof, & hast submytted thy selfe before me, & rent thy clothes, and wept before me, therfore haue I herde the, sayeth the LORDE. Beholde, I wyll gather the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalte be layed in thy graue with peace, so that thyne eyes shall not se all the euell that I wyll brynge ouer this place & the indwellers therof. And they brought the kynge worde agayne.

F * Thẽ sent ỹ kynge, & caused all 4.Re.23.a the Elders in Juda and Jerusalem to come together. And the kinge went vp in to the house of the LORDE, & all the men of Juda & inhabiters of Jeru-salẽ, ỹ prestes, ỹ leuytes, & al the people both smal & great: & al ỹ wordes in the boke of the cõuenaunt that was fouõde in the house of the LORD, were rede in theyr eares. And the kynge stode in hys place, and made a couenaunt before ỹ LORD, that they shulde walke after the LORDE, to kepe his commaundementes, his testimonies, & his statutes with all theyr harte and with all theyr soule, to do accordyng vnto al the wordes of the couenaunt that are wrytten in this boke.

And there stode all they that were founde at Jerusalem and in Ben Jamin. And the inhabiters of Jerusalem dyd accordynge to the couenaunt of God, the God of theyr fathers. And Jo sias put awaye all the abhominacyons out of all the londes that were the childrens of Israel, and caused all the that were foũde in Israel, to serue ỹ LOR DE theyr God. * As longe as Jo-sias lyued, departed they not from the Jos.24.d LORDE the God of theyr fathers.

The.xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Kynge Josias kepeth the feaste of Easter, and appoynteth the prestes & Leuites to teache the people in ỹ lawe of ỹ LORDE. He goeth forth against the kynge of Egypte, and dyeth.

And * Josias kepte Passe- A ouer vnto ỹ LORD at Je 4.reg.23.c rusalẽ, & slewe ỹ passeouer 1.Esd.1.a on the fourtenth daye of ỹ fyrst moneth & set the prestes in theyr offices, & strẽghted thẽ to theyr ministracion in the house of the LORDE, and sayd vnto the Leuites that taught in al Israel and were sãc-tifyed vnto the LORD: Put the holy arke in the house that Salomõ ỹ sõne of Dauid kynge of Israel dyd buyld. 1.Par.24.b * Ye shall beare it nomore vpõ youre shulders. Se ỹ ye serue now ỹ LOR-DE your God, & hys people of Israel, & prepare the house of your fathers in youre courses, as it was appoynted by Dauid the kynge of Israel, and by Salomon hys sõne: & stãde in the sãctuary after ỹ course of ỹ fathers houses, amõge youre brethrẽ the chylderen of the people. And after ỹ course of ỹ fathers houses amonge the Leuites, & kyll the Passeouer, sanctifye & prepare youre brethrẽ, ỹ they maye do accordynge to ỹ worde of the LORD by Moses.

And Josias gaue lãbes & yonge kyd B des, which were males, to the heaueofferynge for the cõmunetye (all to the Passeouer for euery one ỹ was foũde) in the nombre thyrty thousande, & thre thousande oxen, al of the kynges good.
And his prices of theyr own good wyl gaue to the heaueofferynge for the peo ple, and for the prestes & Leuites (namely, Helchias, zachary & Jehiel, the prynces in ỹ house of God amõge the prestes) for the Passeouer, two thousande & syxe hundreth, & thre hũdreth oxẽ. But Chanania, Semaia, Natha-neell & hys brethren, Hasabia, Jeiel, & Josabad the chefe of the Leuites, gaue the Leuites to the heaueofferige for the Passeouer fyue thousande shepe, and fyue hundreth oxen.

Thus was the Gods seruice prepared, and the prestes stode in theyr place, and the Leuytes in theyr courses accordynge to the kynges commaundement. And they kylled the Passeouer, and the prestes toke it of theyr hãdes, and sprenkled it: and the Leuytes toke the skynnes of them, and remoued the burntofferynge there from, to geue it amonge the porcyons of the fathers houses in ỹ multytudes of theyr congregatyon to offre vnto the LORDE, Leui.1.d. * as it is wrytten in the boke of Moses. Euen so dyd they wyth ỹ oxẽ also. And they dressed the Passeouer Exo.12.b at the fyre * accordynge to the lawe. And that which was halowed, dressed they in pottes, kettels, and pãnes, and made hayste for the cõmune people. Afterwarde prepared they for them selues also and for the prestes: For ỹ prestes the chyldren of Aaron were occupyed in the burnteofferynges and fat vntyll the nyght. Therfore must the Leuytes prepare for them selues, and C for the prestes the chyldren of Aaron.

E And the syngers the chylderen of Asaph stode in theyr place (accordyng 1.Pa.16.27 to * Dauids commaundement) and Asaph and Heman, and Jedithun the kynges Seyer, and the porters at all the gates. And they departed not from theyr office. For the Leuytes theyr brethren prepared for them. Thus was al the Gods seruyce prepared the same daye, that ỹ Passeouer myght be kept, and the burntsacrifices offred vpõ the altare of the LORDE, accordynge to the commaundement of kyng Josias.

So the chyldren of Israell that were at hande, held Passeouer at that tyme, and the feast of vnleuended bread seuẽ dayes. Sence the tym of Samuel the prophet, was no Passeouer kepte in Israell lyke thys: and no kynge in Israell had holden suche a Passeouer as Josyas dyd, and the prestes, Leuytes, all Juda, and such as were found of Israell, and the inhabiters of Jerusalẽ. In the eyghtẽth yeare of ỹ raygne of Josias was this Passeouer kepte.
D After thys, whan Josias had prepared the house, Necho the kynge of Egypte went vp to fight agaynst Carcamis besyde Euphrates. And Josyas wente forth agaynst hym. But he sent messangers vnto hym, sayeng: What haue I to do wyth the O kynge of Juda? I am not com nowe agaynst the, but I fyght agaynste another house: and God hath sayd, that I shall make hayste. Ceasse from God which is wt me, that he destroye the not. Neuerthelesse Josias turned not hys face from hym, but prepared hymselfe to fyghte wyth hym, and herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyghte wyth hym vpon the playne besyde Mageddo. But the archers shot at kynge Josias. And the kynge sayde vnto hys seruauntes. Carye me awaye, for I am sore wounded. And hys seruauntes toke hym from the charret, and caryed him vpon hys seconde charret, and broughte him to Jerusalem. And he dyed, and was buryed amonge the sepulcres of hys fathers.

And all Juda and Jerusalẽ mourned for Josyas, and Jeremy bewayled Josias, and all the syngynge men and wemen, spake theyr lamentacyõs ouer Josias vnto thys daye, and made a costume therof vnto thys daye. Beholde, it is wrytten also amonge the lamentacions. What more ther is to say of Josias, and hys mercy accordynge to the scrypture in the law of ỹ LORDE, and of hys actes (both fyrste and laste) beholde, it is wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ Thre monethes raygneth Joachas after whom raygneth Eliachim other wyse called Joachim: whom Nabuchodonosor caryeth vnto Babylon and in hys steade raygneth Joachim his son whiche also is led awaye captyue vnto Babylon. And Nabuchodonosor broughte certayne vessels of the house of the LORDE vnto Babylon, and put them in hys temple at Babilon. What more ther is to saye of Joachim, & of hys abhominacyōs, which he dyd, and that were founde in hym, beholde they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israell and Juda. Jere. 52.a. 4.Re.24 d *One and twentye year old was zedechias whan he was made kynge, and raygned eleuen yeare at Jerusalē, and dyd that whiche was euell in the syghte of the LORDE his God, and submytted not himselfe before the face of the prophet Jeremy, whiche spake oute of the mouth of the LORDE. He fell awap also from Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon (whiche had taken an othe of hym by God) and was styfnecked, and hardened his hart that he shulde not conuerte vnto ye LORDE God of Israell. And all the chefe amonge the prestes, & the people multiplied theyr synnes, accordynge to all the abhominacyons of the Heythen, & defyled the house of the LORDE, which he had sanctified at Jerusalem

C Jere, 25.a. *And the LORDE God of theyr fathers sent vnto them early by his messaungers (for he spared his people and hys habitacyon) but they laughed the messaungers of God to scorne and despysed hys wordes, and had his prophetes in derision, so longe tyll the indignacyon of the LORDE increased ouer hys people, and ther was no remedye of healyng. *For he broughe the kynge of the Caldees vpon them, 4.Re.25.a and caused for to slaye all theyr yonge men with the swearde in the house of theyr Sanctuarye, and spared nother yonge man, nor virgine, nother aged, nor graundfather, but gaue them al in to hys hande. And all the vessels in the house of God, greate and small, ye treasures in the house of the LORDE, and the treasures of the kynge and of hys prynces, all thys caused he to be caryed vnto Babylon. And they burnt ye house of God, and brake downe ye wall of Jerusalem, and all ye palaces therof burnt they with fyre, so that all ye costlye ornamentes of it were destroyed.

D And loke who escaped the sweard, hym caryed he awaye vnto Babylon, & they became his seruaūtes, & the seruaūtes of his sonnes, tyll ye Persyans had ye empyre: *yt the word of ye LORDE Jere.25.b by the mouth of Jeremy myghte be perfourmed euen vntyll the londe had ynough of hyr Sabbathes: for all the tyme of ye desolacyon was it Sabbath, vntyll the seuentye yeares were fulfylled.

*But in the fyrst yeare of Cyrus 1.Esd.1.a the kynge of Persia (that the worde of 3.Esd.2.a the LORDE spoken by the mouthe of Jeremye myghte be fulfylled) the LORDE raysed vp the spirite of Cyrus the kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclamed thorow out al hys empyre, yee and by wrytynge also, sayenge: Thus sayeth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The LORDE God of heauen hath geuen me all the kyngdomes in the londe, and hath commaunded me to buylde hym an house at Jerusalem in Juda. Thys commaundement haue I geuen And what man so euer he be that altereth these wordes, ther shall a balke be taken from hys house, and set vp, and he shall be hanged thereon, and hys house shal be prysed for ẏ dede doyng.

C But the God that dwelleth in heauen, destroye all kynges and people, ẏ put to theyr hande to altre & to breake downe the house of God at Jerusalem. I Darius haue cōmaunded that thys be diligently done.

Then Thathnai the Debyte beyonde the water, and Sethar of Bosen wyth theyr counselers (to whome kynge Darius had sente) dyd theyr dylygence. And the Elders of the Jewes buylded, and they prospered thorowe the prophecyenge of Aggeus the prophet, and zacharye the sonne of Iddo: and they buylded, and set vp ẏ worke, accordynge to the commaundement of the God of Israell, and after the commaūdemēt of Cyrus, Darius & Artarerses kynges of Persia. And they perfourmed the house vnto the thyrde day of the monethe Adar, that was the syxte yeare of the raygne of kynge Darius.

2 Par.7.a *And the chyldren of Israell, the prestes, the Leuytes, and the other chyldren of the captyuyte helde the dedycacyon of the house of God wyth ioye,

D and offered at the dedycacyon of the house of God, an hūdreth calues, two hundreth lambes, foure hundreth goates: and for the synofferynge for al Israell, twolue hegoates, accordyng to ẏ nombre of the trybes of Israel, and set the prestes in theyr courses, and the Leuytes in theyr offyces, to mynyster vnto God, whiche is at Jerusalem, as it is wrytten in the boke of Moses.

And the chyldren of the captyuite helde Passeouer vpon the fourtenthe daye of the fyrste moneth: for the prestes and Leuytes had puryfyed themselues, so that they were all cleane as one man, and kylled Passeouer for all the chyldren of the captyuyte, and for theyr brethren the prestes, and for thēselues. And the chyldren of Israell which were come agayne out of captyuyte, and all such as had separated thē selues vnto them from the fylthynesse of the Heythen in the londe to seke the LORDE God of Israell, dydde eate & helde the feaste of vnleuended bread seuen dayes wyth ioye: for the LORDE had made them glad, and turned the harte of the kynge of Assure vnto them, so that theyr handes were strēgthed in the worke of the house of God which is the God of Israell.

¶ Artarerses sendeth Esdras to Jerusalem wyth a charge vnto the offycers beyonde the water.

After * these actes in the raygne of Artarerses king of Persia, ther wente vp from Babylon Esdras the sonne of Seraia, the sōne of Asaria, the sonne of Helchias, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Sadoc, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Serahia, ẏ sonne of Usi, the sonne of Buki, the sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Phinees, the sonne of Eleasar, the sonne of Aaron the chefe preste, whiche was a quycke scrybe in the lawe of Moses, 3 Esd.8.a

* which the LORDE God of Israel dyd geue. And the kyng gaue hym all that he requyred, accordynge to the hande of the LORDE hys God vpon hym. Em.3.a

And ther wente vp certayne of the chyldren of Israell, and of the prestes, and of the Leuytes, of the syngers, of the porters, and of the Nethinims vnto Jerusalem, in the seuenth yeare of kynge Artarerses. And they came to Jerusalem in the fyfth monethe, that is the seuenth yeare of the kynge. For vpon the fyrste daye of the fyrste moneth, deuysed he to go vp from Babylon: and on the fyrste daye of the fyfthe moneth came he to Jerusalem, accorkynge to the good hande of God vpon hym: For Esdras prepared hys harte to seke the law of the LORDE, and to do it, and to teache the precepte and iudgement in Israell.

B And thys is the summe of the letter, that kynge Artaxerses gaue vnto Esdras ẏ prest, the scrybe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the LOR-DE and of hys statutes ouer Israel.
Unto Esdras the preste and scrybe in the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and salutacyon. I haue commaunded that all they of the people of Israell, and of the prestes, and Leuytes in my realme which are mynded of theyr own good wyll to go vp to Jerusalem, that they go wyth the, beynge sente of the kynge and of the seuen lordes of the counsell, to vyset Juda and Jerusalem, accordynge to the lawe of God, which is in thy hande: And that thou shuldest take wyth the, syluer & golde, which the kynge and the lordes of hys counsell geue of theyr owne good wyl vnto the God of Israell (whose habitacyon is at Jerusalem) and all the syl uer and golde that thou canste fynd in all the contre of Babylon, with it that the people and prestes geue of theyr owne good wyl vnto the house of god at Jerusalem,
C Take thou the same, and bye diligently wyth the same money, calues, lambes, goates, and meatofferynges, and drynkofferynges, to be offered vpon the altare of the house of youre God at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethren to do with the remnaunt of the money, that do af ter the wyll of youre God. And the ves sels that are geuen the for the ministra cyon in the house of thy God, those de lyuer thou before God at Jerusalem.
And what soeuer thynge more shal be nedefull for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spend, let the same be geuen out of the kynges chamber. I kynge Artaxerses haue cō maunded all the treasures beyond the water, that loke what soeuer Esdras the preste and scrybe in the lawe of the God of heauen, requyreth of you, that ye fulfyll the same diligently, vntyl an hundreth talentes of syluer, and tyl an hundreth quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundrethe battes of wyne, and tyll an hundrethe battes of oyle, and salte wythout measure. What soeuer belōgeth to the lawe of the God of heauen let the same be done with diligence for the house of the God of heauen, that ther come no wrathe vpon the kynges realme, and hys chyldren.
And knowē be it vnto you, that ye D shall haue no authoryte to requyre taxynge and costume, and yearlye ren-tes vpon ony of the prestes, Leuytes, syngers, porters, Nethinims, and mynysters in the house of thys God. But thou Esdras (after the wysdome of thy God that is in thy hande) set thou iudges and arbyters, to iudge all the people that is beyonde Jordane, euen all suche as knowe the law of thy god and thē that know it not, those se that ye teache. And who soeuer wyll not dilygentlye fulfyll the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawes, shall haue hys iudgemente for the dede, whether it be vnto death, or to be banysshed, or to be condemned in goods, or to be put in preson.
Praysed be the LORD God of oure fathers, whiche so hath inspyred the kynges harte to garnysh the house of God at Jerusalem: and hath enclyned hys mercy vnto me in the presence of the kynge, and hys counselers, and before all the kynges hyghe estates.
And I was conforted (accordynge to the hande of the LORDE my God ouer me) and so gathered I the heades of Israell together, that they myghte go vp wyth me.

by the water that runneth toward A-

And whã I loked among the peo oure God, and I told them what they shulde say vnto Iddo and hys brethrẽ

C And (accordynge to the good hand of oure God vpon vs) they broughte vs a wyse man from amonge the chyland theyr sonnes, twentye. And of the Nethinims, whome Dauid and the prynces gaue to mynystre vnto the Le named by name.

3.Esd. 8.b * And euen there at the water besyde Aheua, caused I a fastynge to be proclamed, that we myghte humble oure selues before oure God, to seke of hym a ryghte waye for vs, and our chylderen and al oure substaunce. For I was ashamed to requyre of the king souldyers and horsmen, to helpe vs a-gaynste the enemye in the waye. For we had sayde vnto the kynge: The hande of oure God is for the beste vpon all them that seke hym, and hys vyolence and wrathe vppon all them that forsake hym. So we fastedde, and soughte thys at oure God, and he herde vs.

And I toke oute twolue of the D chefe prestes, Serebia and Hasabia, and ten of theyr brethren wyth them, and weyed thẽ there the syluer & golde and vessels, for the heaue offerynge vn to the house of oure God, whiche the kynge, and the lordes of his counsell, and prynces, and all Israell that were at hande, had geuen to the heaueoffe-rynge: and there weyed I them vnder theyr hande syxe hundreth and fyftye talentes of syluer, and in syluer vessell an hundreth talentes, and in golde an hundreth talentes, twentye cuppes of golde of a thousande guldẽs, and two costly ornamentes of good brasse, as cleare as golde, and sayde vnto them: Ye are holy vnto the LORDE, ther fore are the vessels holy also, and so is the syluer and golde that is geuen of a good wyll vnto the LORDE God of oure fathers: Watche ye therfore & kepe it, tyll ye weye it downe befor the chefe prestes and Leuytes, and awncient fathers of Israell at Jerusalem in the chestes of the house of the LOR-DE. Then toke the prestes and Leuy-tes the weyed syluer, and golde, and vessell, to brynge it to Jerusalem vnto the house of oure God.

So we brake vp, from the wa- E ter of Aheua on the twolfeth day, on the fyrste monethe, to go vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon vs, and delyuered vs from the hande of the enemyes and preuy way-tynges by the waye. And we came to Jerusalẽ, and abode there thre dayes.
But on the fourthe daye was the syluer and golde, and vessell weyed in the house of oure God vnder the hande of Meremoth the sonne of Urias ẏ prest and wyth hym Eleasar the sonne of Phineas, and wyth them Josabad the sonne af Jesua, and Noadia the sonne of Benui the Leuytes, accordynge to the nombre and weyghte of euery one.
And the weyghte was all wrytten vp at the same tyme,

And the chyldren of the captyuite whiche were come out of preson, offered burntofferynges vnto the God of Israell: twolue bullockes for all Israell, syxe and nyentye rammes, seuen and seuentye lambes, and twolue goates for a synofferynge, all to the burnt offerynge of the LORDE. And they delyuered the kynges commyssyon vnto the kynges officers, and to the Debytes on thys syde the water. And they promoted þ people and the house of God.

The. ix Chapter.

¶ Esdras is sory that the people haue myxte them selues wyth the Heythenyshe wemen.

A When al thys was perfourmed, the rulers cam to me and sayde: The people of Israell, and the prestes, & Leuites are not separated from the nacyons in the londes as touchynge theyr abhomynacyons, namely of the Cananytes, Hethythes, Pheresytes, Jebusytes, Ammonites, Moabytes, Egypcyans, and Amorytes.

Deut.7.a. Exo.12.d. Josu.23.c. Judic.3.a. * For they haue taken the doughters of the same, and theyr sones, and haue myxte the holy sede wyth the nacyons in the londes: and the hande of the rulers and lordes of the counsell hath ben prynepall in thys trespasse.

When I herde thys, I rente my clothes and my rayment, and pluct out the heer of my heade and of my beerde and sat mournynge. And ther resorted vnto me all such as feared the LORDE God of Israell because of the greate transgression. And I sat mour-

B nynge vntyll the euenynge sacryfyce. And aboute the euenynge sacryfyce I rose vp fro my heuynes, and rente my clothes and my raymente, and fell vpon my knees, and spredde oute my handes vnto the LORDE my God and sayde:

My God, I am ashamed, & darre not lyfte vp myne eyes vnto the my God: for our wyckednesses ar growne ouer oure heade, and our trepasses are waxen greate vnto the heauen. Sence the tyme of oure fathers haue we bene in greate trespasse vnto thys daye, * &

Deu. 28.d because of oure wyckednesses haue we and oure kynges and prestes bene delyuered in to the hande of the kynges of the nacyons, in to the swearde, in to the captiuite, in to the spoyle, and in to confusion of face, as it is come to passe thys daye.

But nowe is ther a lytle and sodane gracyousnesse come from the LORDE oure God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he maye geue vs a nayle in hys holy place, that oure God maye lyghte oure eyes, and geue vs a lytle lyfe in oure bondage. For we are bonde men, and oure God hath not forsaken vs thoughe we be bondemen, and hath enclyned mercye vnto vs in the syghte of the kynges of Persia, that they shulde geue vs lyfe, and promote the house of oure God, and to set vp the desolacyon thereof, and to geue vs, an hedge in Juda and Jerusalem. C

O oure God what shall we saye nowe after thys? that we haue forsaken thy commaundementes, whiche thou haste commaunded by thy seruauntes the prophetes, and sayd: The londe wherein ye shall come to possesse it, is an vncleane londe thorowe the fylthynesse of the people of the londes, in theyr abhominacyons where with they haue made it full of vnclennesse on euery syde. * Therfore shall D

Deut.7.a. ye not geue your doughters vnto theyr sonnes, and theyr doughters shall ye not take vnto youre sonnes, and seke not theyr peace, and welthe for euer, that ye maye be stronge, and enioye the good in the lond, and that ye and your chylderen maye haue the enheritaunce of it for euermore.

And after all thys that is come vpon vs (because of our euell dedes and greate trespasse) thou oure God haste spared our wickednesses, and haste geuen vs delyueraunce as it is come to passe.

As for vs, we haue turned backe, and haue let go thy commaundementes, to make contracte wyth the people of the abhomynacyons. Wilt thou then be wroth at vs, tyll we be vtterly consumed, so that nothynge remayne, and tyll ther be no delyueraunce? O LORDE God of Israell, thou arte ryghteous, for we remayne yet escaped, as it is thys daye. Beholde, in thy presence are we in oure trespasse, for because of it is ther no stondynge before the.

The.x.Chapter.

¶ They make a couenaunt to putte awaye theyr Heythenyshe wyues.

A AND whan Esdras prayed after thys maner, knowleged, wepte, and laye before the house of God, ther resorted vnto hym oute of Is raell a very great congregacyon of mẽ and women, and chylderen: for the peo ple wepte very sore. And Sachania the sonne of Jehiell one of the chylderen of Elam, answered and sayde vnto Es dras: We haue trespassed agaynst the LORDE oure God, in that we haue taken straunge wyues of all the people of the londe. Nowe ther is no hope yet in Israell concernynge thys, therfore let vs make a couenaũt now: wyth oure God, that we shall put away al the wyues & such as are borne of thẽ (accordyng to the counsell of the LORDE of them that feare the com maundementes of oure God) that we maye do accordynge to the lawe. Get the vp therfore, for the matter belongeth vnto the. We wyll be wyth the, be of good comforte, and do it.
B Then rose Esdras, and toke an oth of the rulers, prestes, and Leuites, and of all Israell, that they shulde do accordynge to hys word: & they swore.
And Esdras stode vp befor, ỹ house of God & wẽtin to ỹ chãber of Johanan the sonne of Eliasab. And whan he came thether, he dyd eate no bread and drank no water: for he mourned, because of the transgression of them that had ben in captyuyte.
And they caused a proclamacyon be made thorowe out Juda and Jeru salem, vnto all the chyldren which had ben in captyuyte, that they shulde gather themselues together vnto Jerusa lem: And that whosoeuer came not wythyn thre dayes accordynge to the deuyce of the rulers and Elders, al his substaunce shulde be forfeted, and he putte oute from the congregacyon of the captyuyte.
Then all the men of Juda, and BenJamin gathered themselues toge ther vnto Jerusalẽ in thre dayes, that is on the twentieth daye of the nynth monethe: and all the people sat in the strete before the house of God, and trẽ bled because of the matter, and for the Deu. 7. a. rayne. And Esdras the prest stode vp, Judi. 3. a. and sayde vnto them: * Ye haue transgressed, that ye haue takẽ strãge wyues, to make the trespasse of Israel yet more: confesse now therfore vnto the LORDE God of youre fathers and do hys pleasure, and separate youre selues from the people of the londe, and from the straunge wyues.
Then answered all the congregacyon, and sayde wyth loude voyce: Let it be done as thou haste sayde. But the peo ple are many, and it is a rayny wether and they can not stonde here wythoute nother is thys a worke of one daye or two, for we are many that offended in thys transgressyon. Let vs appoynte D oure rulers therfore in all the congregacyon, that all they which haue takẽ straunge wyues in oure cytyes, maye come at the tyme appoynted, and the Elders of euery cytye and theyr iudges wyth them, tyl the wrathe of oure God because of thys matter be turned awaye from vs.
Then were appoynted Jonathan the sonne of Asahell and Jehasia the sonne of Thecua ouer thys matter.
And Mesullam, and Sabthai the Leuytes helped them. And the chylderen of the captyuyte dydde euen so. And Esdras the prest, and the awncient fathers, thorowe the house of theyre fathers, and all that were nowe reheairsed by name: separated thẽ selues, and sat them downe on the fyrste daye of the tenthe monethe, to examen thys matter. And on the fyrste daye of the fyrste monethe broughte they the matter to a conclusyon concernynge all the men that hadde taken straunge wyues.
And amonge the chylderen of the E prestes ther were men found that had taken straunge wyues, namely among the chyldren of Jesua the sonne of Josedec and of hys brethren. Maeseia, E lieser, Jarib and Godolia. And they gaue theyr handes there vpon, ỹ they wolde put away theyr wyues: and for theyr trespasseofferynge to geue a ram for theyr traspasse. Amonge the chylde ren of Immer: Hanani, and Sabadia. Amonge the chylderen of Harym: Maeseia, Elia, Semaia, Jehiell, and the wyne, and gaue it unto the kynge, and I was heuy in hys presence. Then sayde the kynge unto me: Why lokest thou so sadlye? Thou art not sycke, that is not the matter, but thou arte heuy harted. Neuerthelesse I was sore afrayed, and sayde unto ye of my fathers buriall lyeth wayste, & the portes thereof are consumed wyth fyre. Then sayde the kynge unto me: What is then thy request? Thē made I my prayer unto the God of heauen, and sayde unto the kynge: yf it please the kynge, and yf thy seruaunt be fauoured in thy syght. I beseke the send me in to Juda unto the cytye of my fathers buryall, that I may buylde it.

B And the kynge sayde unto me, and so dyd the quene that sat by him: How longe shall thy iourneye continue, and whan wyle thou come agayne? And it pleased the kynge to sende me: and I set hym a tyme, and sayde unto the kynge: Yf it please the kynge, let hym geue me letters to the debites beyonde the water, that they maye conueye me ouer, tyll I come in to Juda: and letters unto Asaph the lorde of the kynges wood, that he may geue me wood for beames for the gates of the palace, whiche are harde on the house, and harde on the walles of the cytye, and for the house that I shall entre in to. And the kynge gaue me accordynge to the good hande of God upon me.
And whan I came to the debytes beyonde the water, I gaue them the kynges letters. And the kynge sent captay nes and horsemen wyth me. C But whan Saneballath the Ho-ronyte, and Tobyas the seruaunte of the Ammonytes herde that, it greued them sore, that ther was come a man whiche soughte the welthe of the chyl dren of Israell. And whan I came to Jerusalem, and had ben there thre day es, I gat me up in the nyghte season, and a fewe men wyth me: For I tolde no man what my God had geuen me in my harte to do at Jerusalem: and ther was not one beast wyth me, saue it that I rode upon. And I rode by nyghte unto the valleyeporte before the draggon well, & to ye doungeporte, and consydered the walles of Jerusalem that were broken downe, and the portes thereof consumed with the fyre And I wente ouer unto the well porte & to the kynges condyte, and ther was not rowme for my beaste, that it could go under me. Then wente I on in the nyghte by the broke syde, and consydered the wall, and turned backe, and came home agayne to the valleye porte.
And the rulers knewe not whether D I wente, or what I dyd: for hytherto had I not tolde the Jewes, and the pre stes, the counselers and the rulers, and the other that laboured in the worke, and I sayde unto them: Ye se the myserye that we are in, howe Jerusalem lyeth wayste, and howe the gates thereof are burnt wyth fyre: come, let us buylde up the walles of Jerusalem, that we be nomore a rebuke. And I tolde them of the good hande of my God, whiche was upon me: And the kynges wordes yt he had spoken unto me. And they sayde: Then let us get up. And we buylded, and theyr handes were strengthed to good.
But whan Saneballath the Ho-ronyte, and Tobias the seruaunte of the Ammonytes, and Gosen the Arabiā herde it, they laughed us to scorne.

and despysed vs, and sayde: What is thys that ye do? Wyll ye fall awaye agayne from the kynge? Then answered I them, and sayde: The God of heauen shall cause vs to prospere: for we hys seruauntes are gotten vp, and are buyldynge. As for you, ye haue no porcyon nor ryght, nor remembraunce in Jerusalem.

The.iii. Chapter.

Of buyldynge of the cytye.

A And Eliasib the hyghe prest gatte hym vp wyth hys brethren the prestes, and buyl-ded the shepegate. They halowed it, and set vp the dores of it, euen vnto the tower Mea ha-Ier.31.f. Zach.14.b lowed they it, namely vnto ȳ * tower of Hananeel. Nexte vnto him buylded the mē of Jericho. And besyd him buil ded Sachur the sonne of Imri. But the Fyshporte dyd the chyldren of Ha naa buylde, they couered it, and set on the dores, locks & barres of it. Nexte vnto hym buylded Meremoth the son of Uria the sonne of Hacoz. Next vnto hym buylded Mesullam the sonne of Barachias the sonne of Mesesabeel Nexte vnto hym buylded Sadoc the sonne of Baena. Nexte vnto hym buil ded they of Theora. But theyr greate men put not theyre neckes to the ser-uyce of theyr LORDE.
B The Oldegate buylded Joiada the sonne of Passeah, and Mesullam the sonne of Besodaia: they couered it and set on the dores, lockes and barres of it. Nexte vnto them buylded Melacia of Gibeon, and Jadon of Morono, men of Gibeon and of Mispa, for the seate of the debyte on this syde the wa ter. Nexte vnto hym buylded Usiell ȳ son of Harhaia the goldsmyth. Nexte vnto hym buylded Hanania the Apoticaries sonne, and they repayred Jeru salem vnto the brode wall. Next vnto hym buylded Rephaia the sonne of Hur, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Jerusalem. Nexte vnto hym buylded Jedaia the sonne of Harumaph, ouer agaynste hys house. Nexte vnto hym buylded Hattus the sonne of Hasabe-nia. But Malchia the sonne of Harim and Hasub the sonne of Pahath Moab buylded the other pece, and the tower besyde the fornace. Nexte vnto hym buylded Sallum the sonne of Ha lohes the ruler of the halfe quarter of Jerusalem, and hys doughters.
The valleye gate buylded Hanū, C and the cytesyns of Sanoah. They buylded it, and set on the dores, lockes and barres therof, and a thousande cu bytes on the wall, vnto the dounge-porte. But the doungeporte buylded Malechia the sonne of Rechab, the ru ler of the fourthe parte of the vynyar-des: He buylded it, and set on the dores, lockes and barres therof. But the welgate buylded Sallum the sonne of Calhose, the ruler of the fourthe parte of Mispa: He buylded it, and couered it, and set on the dores, lockes and bar res therof, and the wall vnto the pole of Silo by the kynges garden, vnto ȳ steppes that go downe from the cytye of Dauid. After hym buylded Nehemia the sonne of Asbuke, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Bethzur, vntyll ȳ other syde ouer agaynste the sepulcres of Dauid, and to the pole Asuia, and vnto the house of the myghtye.
After hym buylded the Leuytes, D Rehum the sonne of Bani. Nexte vnto hym buylded Hasabia the ruler of the halfe quarter at Regila in his quar ter. After hym buylded theyr brethren.
Benai the sonne of Henadab, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Regila. After hym buylded Eser the sonne of Jesua the ruler of Mispa, the other pece harde ouer agaynste the harnesse corner. After hym buylded Baruc the son of Sebai the other pece worshypfully and costlye, from the corner vnto the dore of the house of Eliasib the hyghe prest. After hym buylded Meremoth the sonne of Uria the sonne of Hacos the other pece, from the dore of Elia-sibs house, vnto the ende of the house E of Eliasib. After hym buylded the pres tes, the men of the contre. After hym buylded Ben Jamin and Hasub ouer agaynst theyr house. After thē buylded Asaria the sonne of Maeseia the sonnof Anania nexte vnto hys house. After hym buylded Benui the sonne of Ha-nadad the other pece from the house of Asaria vnto the turnynge, and vnto the corner.
After hym buylded Palall the sonne of Usai, ouer agaynst the corner and the hyghe tower, whiche lyeth out ouer from the kynges house, besyd the courte of the preson. After hym Pedaia the sonne of Parcos. (As for the Nethinims they dwelt in Ophel, vnto the watergate, towa[r]d the East wher the tower lyeth oute). After him buylded they of Thecoa, the other pece ouer agaynste the greate tower, that lyeth outewarde, and vnto the wall of 2 Pa.33.c. * Ophell.

F But from the horsegate forth buylded the prestes, euery one ouer against hys house. After them buylded Sadoc the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst hys house. After hym buylded Semaia the sonne of Sachania the keper of the Eastgate. After hym buylded Hanania the sonne of Selemia, and Hanum the sonne of Zelaph the syrte, the other pece. After hym buylded Mesullam the sonne of Berechia ouer agaist hys chest. After hym buylded Malchia the goldsmythes son, vntyll the house of the Nethinims, and of the Marchau͂tes ouer against the counsel gate, and to the parler in the corner. And betwene the parler of the corner vnto the shepegate buylded the goldsmythes, & the marchauntes.

The. iiii. Chapter.

¶ The officers go aboute to hynder the buyldyng. The Jewes watch, and prepare them selues to buylde and to fyghte.

A BUT whan Sanaballat herde that we buylded the wall, he was wrothe, and toke greate indygnacyon, and mocked the Jewes, & sayde before hys brethren and myghty men of Samaria: What do the impotent Jewes? shal they be thus suffred? shall they offre? shall they perfourm it in one daye? shall they make y^e stones whole agayne that are broken to dust, and burnte? And Tobias the Ammonite besyde hym sayde: Let them buyld on, yf a fox go vp, he shal breake down theyr stonye wall. Heare O thou oure God, how we are despysed, turn theyr shame vpon theyr owne heade, & thou mayest geue them ouer in to despysing in the londe of theyr captyuyte. Couer not theyr wyckednes and put not out theyr synne from thy presence: for they haue prouoked the buylders. Yet buylded we the wall, and ioyned it whole together, vnto the halfe heyghte. And the people were well mynded to laboure.

But whan [H]anaballat, and To- B byas, and the Arabians, and Ammonytes, and Asdodites herde, that the walles of Jerusalem were made vp, and that they had begon to stoppe vp the gappes, they were very wroth, and conspyred altogether, to come and fyghte agaynste Jerusalem, and to make an hynderaunce therin. Neuerthelesse we made oure prayer vnto oure God, and set watchmen vpon the wall daye and nyghte ouer agaynste them. And Juda sayde: The strengthe of the bearers is to feble, and ther is to muche dust, we are not able to buylde on the wal. And oure aduersaryes thought: They shall not knowe nother se, tyll we come in the myddes amonge them, and slaye them, and hinder the worke. But whã y^e Jewes that dwelt besyde them, came out of all the places where they dwelt aboute vs, and told vs as good as ten tymes, then set I the people after their kynredes wyth theyr swear des, speares, and bowes beneth in the lowe places behynde the wall, and loked, and gat me vp, and sayd vnto the chefe mẽ and rulers, and to throther people: Be not ye afrayed of them, thynke vpon the greate LORDE whiche oughte to be feared, and fyghte for youre brethren, sonnes, doughters, wyues, and C houses. Neuerthelesse whan oure enemyes herde that we had gotten worde of it, God broughte theyr counsell to naughte, and we turned all agayne to the wall, euery one vnto hys laboure. And from y^t tym forth it came to passe that the halfe parte of the yonge men dydde the laboure, and the other halfe parte helde the speares, shyldes, bowes, and brestplates, and y^e rulers stode behynde all the house of Juda, whiche buylded on the wal, & bare burthens, from those that laded them. Wyth one hande dydde they the worke, and wyth the other helde they the weapen. And euery on that buylded, hadde his swearde gyrded by hys syde, and so buylded they. And the trompettes stode besyde me.

And I sayde vnto the pryncipall men, and rulers, and to the other people: The worke is greate, and large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre frõ another. Loke in what place nowe ye hear the noyse of the trompe, resorte ye thyther vnto vs. * Oure Exo.14.c.
God shall fyghte for vs, and we wyll be labourynge in the worke. And the halfe parte of them helde the speares from the mornynge sprynge, tyl the star res came forth. And at the same tyme sayd I vnto the people: Euery one a byde with his seruaunt at Jerusalem, that in the nyght season we maye geue attendaunce to the watch, & to laboure on the day tyme. As for me and my bre thren, and my seruauntes, and the men of the watch behinde me, we put neuer of our clothes, so much as to wash our selues.

The.v.Chapter.

¶ Nehemias reproueth vsury.

A And ther arose a great com plait of yͤ people, & of their wyues agaynste their bre thren the Jewes. And ther were some that sayde: oure sonnes and doughters are to many, let vs take corne for thē, and eate, that we may lyue. Some sayd: Let vs set oure lādes, vynyardes and houses to pledge & take vp corne in the derth. But some sayd: Let vs borow money of yͤ kynge vpon vsury for our landes and vyne yardes Now are our brethrens bodies as our owne bodyes, and their chyldrē as oure chyldren: e/s shulde we subdue our sonnes and doughters vnto bon dage, and some of oure doughters are subdued already, & no strength is ther in our handes, and other men shal haue our landes and vynyardes.
But when I herde their cōplaynte and such wordes, it displeased me sore, and I aduysed so in my mynde, that I rebuked the counselers, and the rulers and sayd vnto them: * Wyl ye requyre Deu.23.c vsury one of another? And I brought a great congregacyon agaynst them, and sayd vnto them: We (after our a bilite) haue bought oure brethren the Jewes, which were sold vnto the Hey then: And wyll ye sell youre brethren, whom we haue bought vnto vs? Thē helde they their peace, and coulde fynd nothynge to answer.
And I sayd: It is not good that ye B do. Ought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of yͤ hey then our enemyes? I, & my brethrē and my seruaūtes haue lent thē money and corne: but as for vsury, let vs leaue it.
Therfore yͤ same day se yͭ ye restore thē their landes agayne, their vynyardes, oyle gardens, & houses, & the hundreth parte of the money of the corne, wyne, & oyle that ye haue wonne of thē. Thē sayd they: We wyl restore them agayn & wyll requyre nothynge of thē, & wyll do as thou hast spoken. And I called yͤ prestes, & toke an oth of thē, that they shulde do so. And I shoke my lappe, & sayd: God shake out euery man after yͤ same maner from his house & laboure that mayntayneth not this word: euen thus be he shaken out and voyde. And all the congregacyon sayd: Amen, and praised yͤ LORD. And yͤ people dyd so * And from the tyme forth that it C was cōmitted vnto me to be a debite in 2.Esd.2.a the lande of Juda, namely frō the twē tieth yeare, vnto the two and thirtieth yeare of kynge Artaxerses (yͭ is twelfe yeare) I and my brethren lyued not of such sustenaūce as was geuen to a de pyte: For the olde debites yͭ were be fore me, had ben chargeable vnto yͤ peo ple, & had taken of them bread & wyne, & fortye sycles of syluer: Yee and their seruaūtes had oppressed the people.
But so dyd not I, & yͭ because of yͤ feare of God. I laboured also in the worke vpon the wall, and bought no lande.
And all my seruauntes came thether to gether vnto the worke. Moreouer ther were at my table an hundreth & fyftye of the Jewes and rulers, whiche came vnto me frō amonge the Heythen that are about vs. And ther was prepared me dayly an oxe, & sixe chosē shepe, and byrdes, & euer once i ten dayes a great sume of wyne. Yet requyred not I the lyuynge of a debite: for yͤ bondage was greuous vnto the people. * Thynke 2.Esd.13.c vpon me my God vnto the best, accor dynge to all that I haue done for this people.

The.vi.Chapter.

¶ The officers go aboute to kyll Ne hemias.

And whā Saneballat, To A bias and Gosem the Ara bian, and the other of oure enemyes herde, that I had buylded the wall, and that ther were no mo gappes therin (howe be it at the same tyme had I not han ged the dores vpon the gates) Sane ballat and Gosem sent vnto me, sayng: Come and let vs mete together in the villages vpon the playne of the cytie Ono. Neuerthelesse they thought to do me euell. Notwithstandynge I sent messaūgers vnto thē, sayenge: I haue a great busynesse to do, I can not com downe. The worke shulde stande styll yf I were negligent, and came downe to you. Howbeit they sent vnto me as good as a foure tymes after the same maner. And I gaue the same answere.

B Then sent Sanballat hys seruaũtes vnto me the fyfth tyme, wyth an open letter in hys hãde, wherin was wryttẽ: It is tolde the Heythẽ, & Gosen hath sayde it, that thou & the Jewes thynk to rebell: for ỹ which cause thou buyldest the wall, and wylt be theyr kynge in these matters, and hast ordyned the prophetes to preach of the at Jerusalẽ and to saye: He is kynge of Juda.
Nowe shall thys come to the kynges eares: come now therfore, and let vs take our coũsel together. Neuerthe les I sẽt vnto hym, sayng: Ther is no such thynge done as thou sayest: thou hast fayned it out of thyn owne harte.
For they were all mynded to make vs afrayed, & thought: They shall wyth-drawe theyr handes fro the worke, ỹ they shall not laboure. Howe be it I strenghted myne hande the more.
C And I came vnto the house of Se maia the sonne of Delaia, the sõne of Mechtabeel, and he had shut hymself wythin, and sayde: Let vs come together into the house of God, euen vnto the myddes of the temple, and sparre the dores of the temple: for they wyll come to slay the, yee euen in the nyght wyll they come to putte the to deathe.
But I sayde: Shuld such a man flye?
Shulde such a man as I ame go into the temple, to saue hys lyfe? I wyll not go in For I perceaued, ỹ God had not sẽt hym: Yet spake he prophecye vpõ me, neuerthelesse Tobias & Sanballat had hyred hym for monye. Therfore toke he the mony, ỹ I shuld be afrayed and so to do & synne: that they myght haue an euell reporte of me to blasphe me me. My God thinke thou vpõ To bias & Sanballat, accordynge to the se theyr workes, & of the prophet No-adia, and of the other prophetes, that wolde haue put me in feare.
D And the wall was fynysshed on the fyue and twẽtyeth daye of the moneth Auguste *Elul, in two & fifty daies. And whã all oure enemyes herde thereof, all the Heythen that were aboute vs, were afrayed, and theyr corage fayledde them: For they dyd perceaue that thys worke came of God. And at the same tyme were there manye of the chefe of Juda, whose letters went vnto Tobias, and from Tobias vnto thẽ (for ther were many in Juda that were sworne vnto hym: for he was the sõne in lawe of Sachania the sõne of Arah, and his sonne Johanan had the dough ter of Mesullam the sonne of Bara-chia, and they spake good of hym befor me, and tolde hym my wordes.) And Tobias sent letters, to put me in fear.

The .vii. Chapter.

¶ The nombre of them that departe out of Babilon.

Now whã we had buylded A the wall, I hanged on the dores, and the porters, syn-gers and Leuites were ap-poynted. And I cõmaũded my brother Hanani, & Anania ỹ ruler of the palace at Jerusalẽ: for he was a faythfull man, & feared God more then dyd many other, and I sayd vnto thẽ: Let not the gates of Jerusalem be ope ned vntyll the Sonne be whote. And whyle they are yet stãdinge in ỹ watch the dores shalbe shut and barred. And ther were certayn cytesyns of Jerusalẽ appoynted to be watchmen, euery one in his watch, and about his house. As for the cytie it was large of rowme, & great, but the people were few therin, and the houses were not buylded.

the chefe fathers gaue vnto ẏ treasure of the worke, twentye thousande guldens, two thousande and two hūdreth pounde of syluer. And the other people gaue twentye thousande guldens, and two thousande pounde of syluer, and seuen and thre score prestes garmentes And the prestes and Leuites, ẏ porters the singers, and the other of the people and the Nethinims & all Israel dwelt in theyr cyties.

The.viii Chapter.

¶ In the feast of the Tabernacles rea deth Esdras the boke of the lawe.

A Now whan the seuenth mo-neth drue nye, and the chyl-drē of Israel were in theyr cyties, all the people gathered them selues together as one man vpon the strete before the wa tergate, and sayd vnto Esdras ẏ scribe that he shulde fetch the boke of ẏ lawe of Moses, which the LORDE com-Deu.31.c maunded Israel. * And Esdras ẏ prest 4.Re.23.a brought the lawe before the congrega cyon both of men and wemē, and of al that could vnderstande it, vpon ẏ fyrst day of the seuēth moneth, & red therin in the strete that is before ẏ watergate frō the lyght mornynge vntyll ẏ noone daye before men and wemen and suche as coulde vnderstande it: and the eares of all ẏ people were inclyned vnto the boke of ẏ law. And Esdras the scrybe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wood, whi che they had made for the preachynge, and besyde hym stode Mathithia, Se ma, Anania, Uria, Helchias, and Mae seia on his ryghte hande: And on his left hande stode Pedaia, Misael, Mal chia, Hasū, Hasbadana, zachary & Me-sullam.

And Esdras opened the boke be-B fore all the people, for he stode aboue all the people. And whan he opened it, all the people stode vp. And Esdras praysed the LORDE the great God.
And all the people answered Amen, Amen with theyr handes vp, and bowed them selues, & worshipped the LOR-DE wt theyr faces to the groūde. And Jesua, Bani, Serebia, Jamin, Acub, Sabthai, Hodaia, Maeseia, Celita, A saria, Josabad, Hanā, Plaia, & the Le uites, caused ẏ people to geue hede vnto the lawe, & the people stode in theyr place. And they red in the boke of the lawe of God distinctly and playnly, so that mē vnderstode the thynge ẏ was red. And Nehemias (which is Hathirsatha) & Esdras the prest and scrybe, & the Leuites that caused the people to take hede, sayd vnto all ẏ people: This daye is holy vnto the LORDE your God, be not ye sory therfore, and wepe not. For all the people wept, whā they herde the wordes of the lawe.

Therfore sayd he vnto them: * Go C your waye, and eat the fat, and drynke 1.Esd.9.a the swete, and sende parte vnto them also that haue not prepared thēselues: for this day is holy vnto our LORDE, be not ye sory therfore: for the ioye of ẏ LORDE is your strength. And the Le-uites stylled all the people, and sayd: Holde your peace, for the daye is holy, vexe not ye your selues. And all the peo ple went theyr waye to eate & drynke, & to sende parte vnto other, & to make great myrth, for they had vnderstande the wordes ẏ were declared vnto thē.

And on the next daye were gathered together the chefe fathers amonge all the people, and the prestes and Le-uites, vnto Esdras the scrybe, that he shulde teache them the wordes of the lawe. And they founde written in the lawe, * how that the LORDE had Leui.23.f commaunded by Moses, that the chyldren of Israell shulde dwell in bothes in the feast of the seuenth moneth And so they caused it be declared and procla med in al theyr cyties, and at Jerusalē, sayenge: Go vp to the mount and fetch D Olyue braunches, Pynebraunches, Myrtbraunches, Palmebraunches, & braunches of thicke trees to make bo-thes as it is written.

And the people went vp, & fetched thē & made thē bothes, euery one vpō ẏ rofe of his house, & in theyr courtes, & in the courtes of house of God, and in the strete by the watergate, & in the strete by the Ephraims porte. And all the congregacyon of them ẏ were come agayne out of the captiuite, made bo-thes, and dwelt therin: For sence ẏ tyme of Josua the sonne of Nun vnto this dayes, hadde not the chyldren of Israell done so, and ther was very great glad-nesse. And euery day from the fyrst day vnto the last, red he in ÿ boke of ÿ law of God. And seuen dayes held they the feast, & on the eyght day the gatherynge together, accordynge vnto the maner.

The.ix.Chapter.

But for thy great mercyes sake thou hast not vtterly cosumed them, nother forsaken them: for thou art a gracyous and mercyfull God.
Now our God, thou great God, f myghtye and terrible, thou that kepest conuenaunt and mercy, regarde not a lytle all the trauayll y hath happened vnto vs, & our kynges, princes, prestes prophetes, fathers, and all thy people sence the tyme of the kynges of Assur vnto this daye. Thou art ryghteous in all that thou hast brought vpon vs: for thou hast done ryght. As for vs, we haue ben vngodly, & our kynges, prin ces, prestes and fathers haue not done after thy lawe, nor regarded thy com maundemetes, and thyn earnest exhor-tacyons wherwith thou hast exhorted them, and haue not serued the in theyr kyngdome, and in thy great goodes y thou gauest them, and in the large and plenteous lande which thou gauest the to good, and are not couerted fro theyr wicked workes. Beholde, therfore are we in bondage this daye: Yee euen in the lande that thou gauest vnto our fa thers, to enioye the frutes and goodes therof, beholde, there are we bondmen.
And great is the increase of it vnto the kinges, whom thou hast set ouer vs be cause of our synnes, and they haue do minion ouer our bodies and cattel, and we are in great trouble.
And in all this made we a sure con uenaunt, and wrote it, and let our prin was Nethaneel.

And in ẏ tyme of Eliasib: Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua were ẏ chefe fathers amonge the Leuites & the prestes, wrytten vnder the raygne of Darius the Persian. The chyldren of Leui the principall fathers were wrytten in the Cronicles, vntyl the tyme of Johanan the sonne of Eliasib. And these were the chefe amonge ẏ Leuites: Hasabia, Serebia and Jesua the sonne of Cadmiel, & theyr brethrẽ ouer agaynst them, to geue prayse and thankes, acordynge as Dauid the man of God had ordyned it, one watch ouer agaist another. Mathania, Bacbuchia, Obadia, Mesullam, Talmon & Acub were porters in the watch at the thresholdes of the gates. These were in the tyme of Joachim ẏ sonne of Jesua the sõne of Josedec, and in the tyme of Nehemias the Debite, and of the preste Esdras the scribe.
C And in the dedicaciõ of the wall at Jerusalem, were the Leuites soughte out of al theyr places, that they myght be brought to Jerusalem, to kepe the dedicacion in gladnesse, wyth thankesgeuynges, wyth syngynge, wyth cymbals, psalteryes and harpes. And the chylderen of the syngers gathered thẽ selues together from the playne cõtrye about Jerusalem, & from the villages of Nethophati, and from the house of Gilgal, and out of the felde of Gibea and Asmaueth: for the syngers hadde buylded thẽ villages aboute Jerusalẽ.
And the prestes and Leuites puryfyed themselues and clensed the people, the gates, and the wall.
And I caused the prynces to go vp vpon the wal, & appoynted two great queres of thankesgeuynge, whiche wente on the ryghte hande of the wall towarde the Doungate, and after thẽ wente Hosaia, and halfe of the prynces of Juda, and Asaria, Esdras, Mesullã Juda, BenJamin, Semaia, and Jeremy: and certayne of the prestes chyldrẽ with trompettes, namely, zachary the sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Semaia, the sonne of Mathania, the sõne of Michaia, the sonne of Sachur, the sonne of Asaph, and his brethren, Semaia, Asareel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai Nathaneel, and Juda, and Hanani, & the musycall instrumentes of Dauid ẏ man of God. D
And Esdras the scrybe before them towarde the Welgate, and they wente vp ouer agaynst them vpõ the steppes of the cytie of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall to the house of Dauid, vnto the watergate Eastwarde.
The other quere of thankesgeuyng wente ouer agaynst them, & after thẽ, and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wall, towarde the Fornacegate vpwarde, vntyll the brode wall, and to ẏ porte of Ephraim and to ẏ Oldgate, & to the Fyshgate, and to the tower of Hananeel, and to the tower of Meah, vntyll the shepegate. And in the presongate stode they styll: & so stode the two queres of thankesgeuyng of the house of God, and I and the half of ẏ rulers wyth me, and the prestes, namely Eliachim, Maesaia, Minamin, Michaia, Elioenai, zachary, Hanania, with trõpettes: and Maeseia, Semaia, Eleasar, Usi, Johanan, Malchia, Elam, & Asar. And the syngers sõge loude, and Jesraia was the ouerseyer.
And the same daye were ther great E sacrifices offred and they reioyced: for God had geuen them great gladnesse, so that both the wyues and chyldren were ioyfull, and the myrth of Jerusalem was herde farre of.
At the same tyme were ther mẽ appoynted ouer ẏ treasure chestes (wherin were the heaueofferynges, the fyrstlynges, and the tythes) that they shuld gather them out of the feldes about ẏ cytyes, to dystribute them vnto the prestes and Leuytes accordynge to ye lawe: for Juda was glad of the prestes, and Leuytes, that they stode and wayted vpon the offyce of theyr God, and the offyce of the puryfycacion. And the syn gers and porters stode after the commaundement of Dauid and of Salo-1. Pa. 24. and 25. mon his sonne: * for in the tyme of Da uid and Asaph, were the chefe syngers founded, and the songes of prayse and thankesgeuynge vnto God. In the tym of zorobabell and Nehemias, dydde al Israell geue porcyons vnto ye syngers and porters, euerye daye hys porcyon and they gaue thynges halowed vnto the Leuytes: and ye Leuytes gaue thyn ges that were sanctifyed, vnto the chyl dren of Aaron.

The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ They separate the straungers from amonge the people of God. The porcy on of the Leuytes is appoynted, and ye Sabbath renewed.

A AND what tyme as ye boke of Moses was redde in ye eares of the people, ther was founde wrytten the-
Deu. 23. a. rein, * yt the Ammonytes & Moabytes shulde neuer come in to the cōgregacyō of god, because they mette not the chyldren of Israell wt breade Nu. 22. a. and water, * and hyred Balaā against them, that he shulde curse them: Neuer thelesse oure God turned the curse in to a blessynge. Nowe whan they herde the lawe, they separated from Israell euerye one that myxte hymselfe therin.
And befor this had the prest Eliasib de lyuered ye chest of the house of our god vnto hys kynsman Tobia: for he had made hym a great chest, & ther had they afore tyme layed the meatofferynges, frankencense, vessell, and the tythes of corne, wyne, and oyle, (accordynge to the commaundement geuen to the Leuytes, syngers & porters) and ye heaue offerynges of the prestes.
B But in all thys was not I at Jerusalem for in the two and thyrtyeth yeare of Artaxerses kynge of Babylō, came I vnto the kynge, and after cer-tayne dayes optayned I lycence of the kynge to come to Jerusalem. And I gat knowlege of the euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in that he had made hym a cheste in the courte of the house of God, and it greued me sore, and I caste forthe all the vessels of Tobias house oute of the cheste, and commaun ded them to clense the cheste. And thy-ther brought I agayn the vessels of the house of God, the meatofferynge, and the incense.
And I perceaued, that the porcyons of the Leuites were not geuen the,
for the which cause the Leuytes & syn-gers were fled, euery one to his lōd, for to worke. Then reproued I the rulers and sayde: Why forsake we the house of God? But I gathered them together, and set them in theyr place. Then broughte all Juda the tythes of corne, wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And I made treasurers ouer the treasure, euen Selemia the preste, and Sadoc C the scrybe: and of the Leuytes Pedaia and vnder theyr hande Hanan the son of Sachur the sonne of Mathania: for they were counted faithfull, and theyr offyce was, to dystrybute vnto theyr brethren. * Thynke vpon me O my 2. Esd. 5.
God here in, and wype not oute my mercye, that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offyces thereof.
At the same tyme sawe I some treadynge wyne presses on the Sabbath, and brynging in clusters, and asses laden wyth wyne, grapes, fygges, and bryngynge all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalem, vpon the Sabbath daye. And I rebuked them earnestlye the same daye yt they solde the vytayles.
Ther dwelt men of Tyre also therein, which brought fyshe and all maner of ware, and sold it on the Sabbath vnto the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem. Thē reproued I the rulers in Juda, and sayde vnto them: What euell thynge is thys that ye do, and breake the Sabbath daye? Dydde not oure fathers euē thus, and our god brought all thys plage vpon vs and vpon thys cytie? And ye make the wrath yet more vpon Israell, in that ye breake the Sabbath.
And whan the portes of Jerusa- D lem were drawen vp before the Sabbath, I commaunded to shut the gates, and charged that they shulde not be opened tyll after the Sabbath: and some of my seruauntes set I at the gates, that ther shulde no burthen be broughte in on the Sabbath daye.
Then remained the chapmen and mar chauntes once or twyce ouer nyghte wythoute Jerusalem wyth all maner of wares. Then reproued I them sore, and sayde vnto them: Why tarye ye al nyght aboute the wal? Yf ye do it once agayn, I wyl lay hādes vpō you.

From that tyme forthe came they no more on the Sabbath. And I sayde vn to the Leuites which were cleane, that they shuld come and kepe the gates, to halow the Sabbath day. Thynke vpō me (O my God) concernynge thys also and spare me accordynge to thy greate mercye.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that maryed wyues of Asdod, Ammon, and Moab, and theyr chyldren spake halfe in the speache of Asdod, & coulde not speake in the Jewyshe language, but by the tunge myghte a man perceaue euery people. And I reproued them, and cursed them, and smote certayne men of them, and plucte them vp and toke an othe of them by God:
Exo.34.a * Ye shall not geue youre doughters Deu.7.a vnto theyr sonnes, nother shall ye take theyr doughters vnto youre sonnes, 3.Re.11.a or for youre selues * Dydde not Salomon the kynge of Israell synne therein and yet amonge many heythen was ther no kynge lyke hym: and he was deare vnto hys God, and God made hym kynge ouer all Israell, and yet dydde the outlandysshe wemen cause hym for to synne. Haue not ye herde of thys, that ye do suche greate euell, to trespasse agaynste our God wyth outlandysshe wemen?

And one of the chyldren of Ioiada the sonne of Eliasib the hyghe prest hadde made a contracte wyth Saneballath ye Horonyte: but I chaced hym fro me. O my God, thynke thou vpon them that are quyte of the presthode, and haue defyled the couenaunte of the presthode and of ye Leuytes. Thus clensed I them from all suche as were outelandysshe, and appoynted the courses of the prestes and Leuytes, euery one to hys offyce, and to offre ye wood at tymes appoynted, & the fyrste frutes.

Thynke thou vpon me (O my God) for the beste.

The fyrst parte of the boke Hester.

The fyrst Chapter.

Ahasuerus maketh a greate feaste to hys lordes and prynces, calleth for Vasthi the quene she commeth not, therfore is she deposed from the kyngdome.

IN the tyme of Ahasuerus, whiche raigned frō India vnto Ethiopia ouer an hundreth and seuē, and twenty londes, what tyme as he sat on hys seate royall in the castell of Susan in the thyrd yeare of hys raigne, he made a feaste vnto all hys prynces and seruauntes, namely vnto the myghtye men of Persia and Media, to the Debytes, and rulers of hys contrees, that he myghte shewe the noble ryches of hys kyngdome, and the glorious worshyppe of hys greatnesse, manye dayes longe, euen an hundreth and fourscore dayes.

And whan these dayes were expyred the kynge made a feast, vnto al the people that were in the castell of Susan, both vnto greate and small seuen dayes long, in the courte of the garden by the kynges palace: where ther hanged whyte, reed, and yalowe clothes, fastened wyth coardes of lynen, and scarlet in syluer rynges, vpon pylers of marblestone.

B The benches were of golde, and syluer, made vpō a paument of grene whyte, yalowe, and blacke marble. And the drynke was caryed in vessels of golde, and ther was euer chaung of vessell. And the kynges wyne was muche accordynge to the power of the kynge. And noman was appoynted what he shulde drynke: for the kynge had commaunded all the officers of hys house, that euery one shulde do as it lyked hym. And the quene Vasthi made a feast also for the wemen in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seuenth daye when the kynge was mery of the wyne, he cōmaūded Mahumā, Bistha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagtha, Sethar, & Charcas, the seuē chamberlaynes (that dyd seruyce in the presence of kynge Ahasuerus) to fetche the quene Vasthi wyth the crowne regal, that he myghte shewe the people, and prynces hyr fayrenesse: for she was bewtyful. But the quene Vasthi wold not come at the kynges worde by hys chamberlaynes. Then was the kynge very wroth, and hys indignacion kindled in hym.
C And the kynge spake to the wyse men that had vnderstandinge in the ordynaūces of the londe (for the kynges matters muste be handled be fore all suche as haue knowlege of the lawe, and iudgemente: And the nexte vnto hym were: Charsena, Sethar, Admatha, Tharsis, Meres, Marsena, and Memuchan, the seuen prynces of the Persyans, and Medes, whiche sawe the kynges face, and sat aboue in the kyngdome,) what lawe shulde be executed vpon the quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordynge to the word of the kynge by hys chamberlaynes. Then sayde Memuchan before the kynge and the prynces: The quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst the kynge, but also agaynste all the prynces, and all the people in al the londes of kynge Ahasuerus: for thys dede of the quene shal come abrode vnto all wemen, so that they shall despyse theyr husbandes before theyre eyes, and shall saye: The kynge Ahasuerus commaunded Vasthi ȳ quene to come before hym, but she wolde not. And so shall the prynceses in Persia and Media saye lykewyse vnto all the kynges prynces, when they heare of thys dede of the quene, thus shall ther aryse despytefulnesse and wrath ynoughe. Yf it please the kynge, let ther go forthe a kynglye commaundemente from him, and let it be wrytten accordynge to the lawe of the Persians and Medians, (and not to be transgressed) that Vasthi come nomore before kynge Ahasuerus, and let the kynge geue the kyngdome vnto another, that is better then she.
D And that thys wrytynge of the kynge whiche shalbe made, be publyshed thorow out al hys empyre (which is greate) that all wyues maye holde theyr husbandes in honoure, bothe amonge greate and small.

Thys pleased the kyng and ȳ prynces: and the kynge dyd accordynge to the worde of Memuchan. Then were ther letters sente forth in to al the kynges landes, in to euerye londe accordynge to the wrytynge therof, and to euerye people after theyre language, that euerye man shulde be lorde in hys owne house. And thys caused he to be spoken after ȳ language of his people.

The.II.Chapter.

Amonge the doughters Hester pleaseth the kynge. Mardocheus geueth the kynge warnyng of his harm.

A After these actes when the displeasure of kynge Ahasuerus was layed, he thoughte vpon Vasthi, and what she hadde done, and what was concluded concernynge her. Then sayde the kynges seruauntes: Let ther be fayre yong virgins sought for the kynge, and let the kynge appoynte ouerseyers in all the londes of hys empyre, that they maye brynge together all fayre yonge virgins vnto the castell of Susan to the wemens buyldynge, vnder the hande of Hegai the kynges chamberlayne, that kepeth the wemen, and let hym geue thē theyr apparell. And loke whiche damsel pleaseth the kynge, let her be quene in Vasthies steade. Thys plased the kynge, and he dyd so.

In the castell of Susan ther was a Iewe, whose name was Mardochens, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Cis, the sonne of Jemini: whiche was caryed awaye 4.Re.24.c from Jerusalem, * whan Jechonias the kynge of Juda was ledde awaye, (whome Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon caryed awaye) and he no-B ryshed Hadassa (that is Hester) his vn cles doughter: for she had nother, father nor mother, and she was a fayre & bewtyfull damsell. And whã hyr father and mother dyed, Mardocheus receaued her as hys owne doughter.

Now whan the kynges commaun demente, and commyssyon was pub-lyshed, and manye damsels were broughte together vnto the castell of Susan vnder the hande of Hegai, Hester was taken also vnto the kynges house vnder the hande of Hegai, the keper of the wemen, and the dam-sell pleased hym, and she founde grace in hys syghte.

And he putte her wyth hyr may-dens in the beste place of the wemens buyldynge. And Hester shewed not vnto hyr people and hyr kynred: For Mardocheus hadde charged her, that that she shulde not tell it. And Mar-docheus walked euery daye before the courte of the wemens buyldynge, that he myghte knowe howe Hester dyd, and what shulde become of her.

C And whan the appoynted tyme of euerye damsell came that she shulde come to the kynge Ahasuerus, after that she hadde ben twelfe monethes in the deckynge of the wemen (for theyre deckynge muste haue so muche tyme, namelye syxe monethes wyth Balme and Myrre, and syxe monethes wyth good spyces, so were the wemen bewtifyed) then wente ther one damsel vnto the kynge, and whatsoeuer she requyred, that muste be geuen her to go wyth her oute of the wemens buyldynge vnto the kynges palace. And whan one came in the euenynge, the same wente from hym on the morowe in to the seconde house of wemen, vnder the hande of Saasgas the kynges chamberlayne, whiche kepte the concu bynes. And she muste come vnto the kynge nomore, exepte it plased the kynge, and that he caused her to be cal led by name.

Now whan the tyme came of Hester the doughter of Abihayll Mardocheus vncle, (whome he hadde recea-ued as hys owne doughter) that she shulde come to the kynge, she desyred nothynge but what Hegai the kynges chamberlayne the keper of the we men sayde.

And Hester founde fauoure in the syghte of all them that loked vpon her. And Hester was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus in to the house royall, in the tenthe monethe whiche is called Tebeth, in the seuenthe yeare of hys reygne.

And the kynge loued Hester a- D boue al the wemẽ, and she found grace and mercye in hys syghte before al the virgins: and het set the quenes crown vpon hyr heade, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kynge E made a greate feaste vnto all hys prin ces and seruauntes (whiche feast was because of Hester) and let the landes be in quietnesse, and gaue royall gyf-tes.

And whan the virgins were gathered together the second tyme, Mar docheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Hester shewed hyr kynred and hyr people, accordyng as Mar docheus hadde bydden her: for Hester dydde after the worde of Mardoche-us, lyke as whan he was hyr tutoure.
* At the same tyme whyle Mardoche 1.Hest, 6.a us sat in the kynges gate, two of the 2.He.2.a. kynges chamberlayne, Bigthan and Theres whiche kepte the dore, were wrothe, and soughte to laye theyr han des on the kynge Ahasuerus: Whereof Mardocheus gat knowlege, and tolde it vnto quene Hester, and Hester certyfyed the kynge thereof in Mar-docheus name. And whan inquysytyon was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on a tre: and it was wrytten in the Cronycles before the kynge.

The.iii. Chapter.

Aman is great wyth the kynge, ha-teth Mardocheus that wyll not wor-shyppe him, and commaundeth to slay all the Jewes.

After these actes dydde the A kynge promote Aman, the sonne of Amadathai the Agagyte, and set hym hyghe and set hys seate aboue all the princes that were w hym. And al kynges seruauntes that were in the gate, bowed theyr knees, and dyd re-uerence vnto Aman: for the kynge had so cōmaūded. But Mardocheus bowed not the kne, and worshypped hym not. Then y kynges seruaūtes which were in the kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: Why trāsgressest thou the kynges cōmaundement? And whā they spake thys daylye vnto hym, and he folowed them not, they tolde Amā, that they myght se whether Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had tolde them that he was a Jewe.

And whan Aman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the kne vnto hym, he was full of indignacion, & despised that he shulde laye handes onlye on Mardocheus (for they hadde shewed him the people of Mardocheus) but he sought to destroye the people of Mar docheus, and all the Jewes that were in the whole empyre of Ahasuerus.

In the fyrst moneth, that is y mo-B Marche. neth * Nisan, in the twolfth yeare of kynge Ahasuerus, was ther occasiō & oportunite soughte by Aman, frō one day to another, & frō the same moneth vnto the twolfth moneth, that is the moneth * Adar. And Aman sayde vnto February. kynge Ahasuerus: Ther is a people scattered abrode and dispersed amōge all people in all the landes of thyne em pyre, and theyr lawe is contrarye vnto all people, and they do not after the kynges lawes, nother is it the kynges profite to suffer them after thys maner. Yf it please the kynge, let hym wryte that they maye be destroyed, & so wyl I weye downe ten thousāde ta lentes of syluer, vnder the handes of the workmē, to be brought into y kynges chābre. Then toke the kynge hys rynge frō hys hande, and gaue it vnto Aman the sōne of Amadathai the Aga gite, the Jewes enemye. And the kyng sayde vnto Aman: Let the syluer be ge uen the, & that people also, to do with-all what pleaseth the.

C Then were the kynges scribes called on the thyrteēth daye of the fyrst mo neth, & ther was wryttē (accordynge as Aman cōmaūded) vnto the kynges prynces, & to the debites euery where in the lādes, & to the captaynes of eue-ry people in y cōtryes on euery syde, ac cor... ne to the wrytynge of euery na cion & after theyr langage, in y name of kynge Ahasuerus, and sealed w the kynges rynge. And y wrytynges were sent by postes in to all the kynges landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes both yonge and olde, chyldre and wemen in one daye (namely vpon the thyrteēth day of the twelfth moneth which is the moneth Adar) & to spoyle theyr goodes.

This was the summe of the wry-tynge, that ther shulde be a commaun-dement geuen in all landes, to be publysshed vnto all people, that they shuld be ready agaynst the same daye. And y postes went in all the haist accordynge to the kynges commaūdement. And in the castell of Susan was the cōmaundement deuysed. And the kynge and A-man sat and dranke. But the cytie of Susan was disquieted.

The.iiii.Chapter.

Great heuynes amonge the Jewes.

Whan Mardocheus percea- A ued al y was done, he rent his clothes, and put on a sackcloth, and asshes, and wente out in to the myd-des of the cytie, and cryed loude and la mentably, and came before the kynges gate: for ther might no man entre with in y kynges gate, that had a sackcloth on. And in all landes & places, as farre as the kynges worde and commaunde ment extended, ther was great lamen-tacyon amonge the Jewes, and many fasted, wept, mourned, and laye in sack clothes and in asshes. So Hesters dam sels, and hir chamberlaynes, came and tolde it her. Then was the quene exce dyngly astonnyed. And she sent raymēt that Mardocheus shuld put them on, and laye the sackcloth from hym. But Mardocheus wolde not take them.

Than called Hester Hathach one of the kynges chamberlaynes (whiche stode before her) and gaue hym a commaundement vnto Mardocheus, that he myght knowe what it were & wher fore he dyd so. So Hathach wēt forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the cytie, whiche was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde hym of al B that had happened vnto hym, and of y summe of syluer that Aman had promysed to weye downe in y kynges chā ber because of the Jewes for to destroy them, and he gaue hym the coppye of the commaundement, that was deuysed at Susan to destroy them, that he myght shewe it vnto Hester, and to speake to her, and charge her, that she shulde go in to the kynge and make hir prayer & supplicacion vnto hym for hyr people.

And whan Hathach came in and tolde Hester the wordes of Mardocheus, Hester spake vnto Hathach, and cōmaunded hym to saye vnto Mardocheus: All the kynges seruauntes, and the people in ẏ landes of the kynge know, that who so euer commeth within the courte vnto the kynge, whether it be man or woman, which is not called, ẏ commaundement is that the same shal dye immediatly, excepte the kynge hold out the golden cepter vnto hym that he maye lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come in to the kynge now this thyrtye dayes.

C And whan Mardocheus was certified of Hesters wordes, Mardocheus bad saye agayne vnto Hester: Thynke not to saue thyne owne lyfe, whyle thou art in the kynges house before all Jewes: for yf thou holdest thy peace at this tyme, thē shall the Jewes haue helpe and delyueraunce out of another place, & ẏ & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to ẏ kyngdome for this tymes sake? Hester bad geue Mardocheus this answere: Go thou thy waye then, and gather together al the Jewes that are founde at Susan, and faste ye for me, that ye eat not and drynke not in thre dayes, nother daye nor nyght, I and my damsels wyl fast lykewyse, and so wyll I go in to the kynge contrarye to the cōmaundemēt: yf I perysh, I perysh. So Mardocheus went his waye, and dyd all that Hester had commaunded hym.

The.v.Chapter.

Hester commeth before the kynge, & byddeth hym and Aman to a feast. Amā maketh a galowe for Mardocheus

A AND on the thyrde daye put Hester on hir royall apparell, and stode in the courte of the kynges palace, within ouer agaynst the kynges house. And the kynge sat vpon his royall seate in the kynges palace ouer against the dore of the house. And whā the kynge sawe Hester the quene standynge in the courte, she founde grace in his syght. And ẏ kynge helde out ẏ golden cepter in his hāde towarde Hester. So Hester stepte forth, and touched ẏ toppe of the cepter. Then sayd ẏ kyng vnto her: What wylt thou Quene Hester? and what requyrest thou? axe euē the halfe of the Empyre, and it shalbe geuen the. Hester sayd: Yf it please the kynge, let the kynge and Aman come this daye vnto the banket that I haue prepared. The kynge sayd: Cause Aman to make haist, that he maye do as Hester hath sayd.

Now whan the kyng & Aman cam B to the banket that Hester had prepared the kynge sayde vnto Hester whan he had dronken wyne: Hester, what is thy peticyon? it shalbe geuen the. And what requyrest thou? euen the halfe of ẏ empyre, it shalbe done.

Then answered Hester and sayde: My peticyon and desyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kynge, and yf it please the kynge to geue me my peticyon, and to fulfyll my request, then let the kynge and Aman come to the banket that I shal prepare for them, and so wyl I do tomorow as the kynge hath sayd.

Then wente Aman forth the same daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And whan he saw Mardocheus in the kynges gate, that he stode not vp and kneled before hym, he was full of indignacyō agaynst Mardocheus. Ne- C uerthelesse he refrayned hymselfe: and whan he cam home, he sent and called for his frendes, and Seres his wyfe, and tolde them of the glorye of his ryches, and the multytude of his chyldrē al together howe the kinge had promoted hym so greatly, and how ẏ he was taken aboue the prynces and seruauntes of the kynge. Aman sayd moreouer Yee and Hester the quene let no man come with the kynge vnto the banket that she hath prepared, excepte me, and to morow I am byddē vnto her also wt the kynge. But in al this am I not satisfyed as lōge as I se Mardocheus ẏ Jewe syttyng in ẏ kynges gate. Then sayd Seres his wyfe & all his frendes vnto hym: Let thē make a galowe of fyftye cubytes hye, & to morow speake thou vnto the kynge, ẏ Mardocheus may be hanged theron, yf ẏ cōmest merely wt the kynge vnto ẏ banket. Aman was well cōtent withal, & caused a galowe to be prepared.

The.vi.Chapter.

¶ Mardocheus is recompensed for hys frendeshyppe shewed vnto ỷ kyng

A The same nyghte could not the kynge slepe, and he cō-maunded to brynge ỷ Cro nycles and storyes: whiche whan they were redde be-1.Hest. 2.d fore the kynge, they happened on the 2.Hest. 2.a place where it was wrytten, * howe Mardocheus had tolde, that the kynges two chamberlaynes (whiche kept the tresholdes) soughte to laye handes on kynge Ahasuerus. And the kynge sayde: What worshyppe & good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore?
Then sayde the kynges seruauntes ỷ mynystred vnto hym. Ther is nothing done for hym. And the kynge sayde: Who is in the courte? (For Aman was gone in to the courte wythout, before the kynges house, ỷ he mighte speake vnto the kynge to hange Mardocheus on the tre, that he had prepared for hym.) And the kynges seruauntes B sayde vnto hym: Beholde, Aman ston deth in the courte. The kynge sayde: Let hym come in. And whan Amā cam in, the kynge sayde vnto hym: What shall be done vnto the man, whom the kynge is disposed to brynge vnto wor shyppe? But Aman thoughte in hys harte: Whome shulde the kynge els be glad to brynge vnto worshyp, but me?
And Aman sayde vnto the kynge: Let the man vnto whome the kynge is dys posed to do worshyppe, be brought he ther, that he maye be araped wyth the royall garmentes whiche the kynge vseth to weare: and the horse that the kynge rydeth vpon, and that ỷ crown royall maye be set vpon hys heade.
And let thys rayment and horse be delyuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges prynces, that he maye aray the man wythall (whome the kynge is dis posed to honoure) and carye hym vpō the horse thorowe the strete of the cytye, and cause it to be proclamed before hym: Thus shall it de done to euerye man, whome the kynge is disposed to honoure.
C The kynge sayde: Make hayste, and take (as thou haste sayde) the ray-mente and the horse and do euen so to Mardocheus the Jewe that sytteth be fore the kynges gate, and let nothynge fayle of all that thou haste spoken.
Then toke Aman the raymente & the horse, and araped hym, and broughte hym on horsbacke thorowe the strete of the cytye, and proclamed befor him.
Euen thus shall it be done vnto euery man whome the kynge is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came a-gayne to the kynges gate, but Aman gat hym home in all the hayste, mour-nynge wyth bare heade, and tolde Seres hys wyfe, and all hys frendes, eue-ry thynge that had happened hym.
Then sayde hys wyse men and Seres hys wyfe vnto hym: Yf it be Mardocheus of the sede of the Jewes, before whome thou hast begonne to fal, thou canste do nothyng vnto hym, but shalt fall before hym. Whyle they were yet talkynge wyth hym, came the kynges chamberlaynes, and caused Aman to make hayste te come vnto the banket that Hester had prepared.

The.vii. Chapter.

¶ Hester prayeth for hyr people. Amā is hanged on the galow that he hadde prepared for Mardocheus.

A AND whan the the kynge and Aman came to ỷ banc ket that quene Hester had prepared, the kynge sayde vnto Hester on the seconde day whan he had dronkē wyne: What is thy petycyon quene Hester? that it maye be geuen the. And what requy-rest thou? Yee are euen halfe of the em pyre, and it shal be don. Hester ỷ quene answered and sayde: Yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte (O kynge) and yf it please the kynge, then graunte me my lyfe at my desyre, and my people for my petycyons sake: for we are solde to be destroyed, to be slayne, and to peryshe. And wolde God we were solde to be bondemen and bondewemen, thē wolde I holde my tunge, so shulde not the enemye be so hyghe to the kynges harme. The kynge Ahasuerus spake and sayde vnto quene Hester: What is he that? Or where is he that dar presume in hys mynde to do such a thyng after that maner? Hester said: The ene mye and aduersarie is thys wycked Aman.
As for Aman, he was exceadinglye B afrayed before the kynge and quene.
And the kynge arose from the banket and from the wyne in hys displeasure, and wente in to the palace garden.

And Aman stode vp, & besought quene Hester for his lyfe: for he saw that ther was a myschaunce prepared for hym of the kynge already.
And whan the kynge came agayne out of the palace garden in to the par= ler where they had eaten, Aman hadde layed hym vpō the bed that Hester sat vpon. Then sayd the kynge: wyll he force ye quene also besyde me i ye house?
As soone as the worde went out of the kynges mouthe, they couered Amans face. And Harbona one of the chamber laynes that stode before ye kynge, sayd: Beholde, ther stondeth a galowe in A= mans house fyftye cubytes hye, which he had made for Mardocheus, ye spake good for the kynge. The kynge sayd: Hange hym theron. So they hanged A man on the galowe that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kyn= ges wrath stylled.

The.viii.Chapter.

¶ The kynge geueth Amans house to the quene and at hir request he causeth Amans wrytynges to be called agayne

B The same daye dyd kynge A hasuerus geue the house of Aman the Jewes enemye, vnto quene Hester. And Mardocheus came before the kynge: for Hester tolde how that he belonged vnto her. And the kynge put of his fynger rynge, which he had ta= ken from Amā, and gaue it vnto Mar docheus. And Hester set Mardocheus ouer the house of Aman. And Hester spake yet more before the kynge, & fell downe at his fete, and besought hym, ye he wolde put awaye the wyckednes of Aman the Agagite, and his deuyce that he had ymagyned agaynst the Jewes.
And the kynge helde out the goldē cep= ter vnto Hester. Then rose Hester, and stode before the kynge, and sayd: Yf it please the kynge, and yf I haue founde grace in his syght, and yf it be conueni ent for the kynge, and yf I be accepted in his syght, then let it be wrytten, that B the letters of the deuyce of Aman the sonne of Amadathai the Agagite, maye be called agayn: which letters he wrote to destroye the Jewes in al the kynges landes. For how can I se the euell that shall happen vnto my people? and how can I loke vpon the destruccyon of my kynred?
Then sayd the kynge Ahasuerus vnto quene Hester, and to Mardoche= us the Jewe: Beholde, I haue geuen Hester the house of Aman, & hym haue they hanged vpō a tre, because he layed hande vpon the Jewes. Wryte ye now therfore for ye Jewes, as it lyketh you in the kynges name, and seale it with ye kynges rynge (for the wrytynges that were wrytten in the kynges name, and sealed with the kynges rynge, durst no man dysanulle.) Thē were the kynges scrybes called at the same tyme in the thyrd moneth, that is ye moneth * Se= Maye. uan, on the thre and twentyeth daye. C And it was wryttē (as Mardoche us commaunded) vnto the Jewes and to the prynces, to the debytes and cap= taynes in the landes from India vntyl Ethiopia: namely, an hundreth and seuen and twentye landes, vnto euery one accordynge to the wrytyng therof, vnto euery people after theyr speche & to the Jewes accordynge to theyr wry tynge and language.
And it was wrytten in the kynge Ahasuerus name, & sealed with the kin ges rynge. And by postes that rode vpō swyft yonge mules, sent he the wrytyn ges, wherin the kynge graunted ye Je= wes (in what cytties so euer they were) to gather them selues together, and to stande for theyr lyfe, and for to rote out to slaye, and to destroye all the power of the people and lande ye wolde trou= ble them, with chyldren and wemen, & to spoyle theyr good vpon one daye in all the landes of kynge Ahasuerus, na= mely vpon the thyrtenth daye of the twelueth moneth, which is the moneth Adar.
The summe of the wrytynge was, D how ther was a commaundement ge= uen in all landes to be publyshed vnto all the people that the Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye to auenge thē selues on theyr enemyes. And ye postes that rode vpon the mules, made haiste with all spede accordynge to ye kynges worde: and the cōmaundement was de vysed in the castell of Susan.
As for Mardocheus, he wente out from the kynge in royall apparell of ya lowe and whyt, & with a great crowne of gold, beynge arayed with a garmēt of lynnen and purple, and the cytie of Susan reioyced and was glad: but vn to the Jewes ther was come lyght and gladnesse, and ioye and worshippe. And in all landes & cyties, into what places so euer the kynges worde and cõmaun dement reached, ther was ioye, myrth, prosperite and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so much that many people in the londe became of the Jewes beleke, for the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The.ix.Chapter.

Amans sonnes are hanged also, and many enemyes slayne. The Jewes kepe a ioyfull feast.

A IN the twelueth moneth, ỹ is the moneth Adar, vpon the thyrteneth daye, whiche the kynges worde and con maundement had appoynted, that it shulde be done, euen vpon ỹ same day that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed them, it turned contrarye wyse: euen ỹ ỹ Jewes shuld subdue theyr enemyes.
Then gathered the Jewes together in theyr cyties within all the londes of kynge Ahasuerus, to laye hãde on such as wolde do them euell, & nomã coulde withstande them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and prynces and debytes, and officers of the kynge promoted the Jewes: for the feare of Mar docheus came vpon them. For Mardo cheus was great in the kynges house, and the reporte of hym was noysed in al landes, how he increased & grewe.
Thus the Jewes smote all theyr enemyes with a sore slaughter, & slewe and destroyed, and dyd after theyr wyl vnto suche as were theyr aduersaries.
And at the castell of Susan slewe the Jewes and destroyed fyue hundreth men: and slewe Parsandatha, Dalphõ Aspatha, Poratha, Adalia, Aridatha, B Parmastha, Arisai, Aridai, Vaiesatha the ten sonnes of Aman, the sonne of A madathai the enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no hãdes At the same tyme was the kynge certy-fyed of the nombre of those that were slayne at the castell of Susan. And the kynge sayd vnto quene Hester: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fyue hũdreth mẽ at the castell of Susan, & ỹ ten sonnes of Amon: What shall they do in the other landes of the kynge?
What is thy peticyon, that it maye be geuen the: & what requyrest thou more to be done? Hester sayd: Yf it please ỹ kynge, let hym suffre the Jewes tomorowe also to do accordynge vnto this dayes commaundement, that they may hange Amans ten sonnes vpon ỹ tre.
And the kynge charged to do so, and ỹ commaundement was deuysed at Susan, and Amans ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered themsel-ues together at Susan, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, & slew thre hundreth men at Susan, but on theyr goodes they layed no handes.
As for the other Jewes in the kyn- C ges lõdes they cam together, and stode for theyr lyues, and gat rest from theyr enemyes: & slewe of theyr enemies fyue and seuenty thousande, how be it they layed no handes on theyr goodes.
This was done on the thirtenth daye of the moneth Adar, & on the fourtenth daye of the same moneth rested they, which (daye) they ordeyned to be a day of feastynge and gladnesse. But the Je wes at Susã were come together both on the thirtenth daye, and on the fourtenth, and on the fyftenth daye they rested, and the same day ordeyned they to be a daye of feastynge and gladnesse.
Therfore the Jewes that dwelt in the villages and vnwalled townes, ordeyned the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, to be a daye of feastynge & glad-nes and one sent gyftes vnto another.
And Mardocheus wrote these actes, and sent the wrytynges vnto all ỹ Jewes that were in all the lande of kynge Ahasuerus, both nye and farre that they shulde yearly receaue & holde the fourtenth and fyftenth daye of the moneth Adar, as the dayes wherin the Jewes came to rest frõ theyr enemyes D and as a moneth wherin theyr payne was turned to ioye, and theyr sorowe in to prosperite: ỹ they shulde obserue the same as dayes of welth & gladnes and one to sende gyftes vnto another, and to distribute vnto the poore.
And the Jewes receaued it ỹ they had begonne to do, and that Mardocheus wrote vnto thẽ: how ỹ Amã the sonne of Amadathai the Agagite all ỹ Jewes enemye, had deuysed to destroy all Jewes, and caused the lot to be cast for to put them in feare, and to brynge them to nought: and how Hester went and spake to the kynge, that thorowe letters his wycked deuyce (which he y-magyned agaynst the Jewes) myghte be turned vpon his owne head, & how he and his sonnes were hanged on the te. For the which cause they called this daye Purim after the name of the lot, accordyng to all the wordes of this wrytynge, and what they themselues had sene, and what had happened vnto them.

G And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpon them and theyr sede, and vpon all such as ioyned them selues vnto thē that they wolde not mysse to obserue these two dayes yearly, accordynge as they were wryttē and appoynted how that these dayes are not to be forgottē, but to be kepte of chylders chyldren amonge all kynreds in al lādes & cyties.
They are the dayes of Purim, whiche are not to be ouerslypte amonge the Je wes, and the memoriall of them ought not to perysshe from theyr sede.
And quene Hester the doughter of Abihaill and Mardocheus the Jewe, wrote with all auctorite, to confyrme this seconde wrytynge of Purim, and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in ẏ hundreth and seuen and twenty landes of the empyre of Ahasuerus, with frēd ly and faythfull wordes, to confyrme these dayes of Purim, in theyr time ap poynted, accordynge as Mardocheus the Jewe and Hester the quene had or-deyned, concernynge them: lyke as they vpon theyr soule, & vpon ther sede had confyrmed the actes of the * fastynges Hester. 4. and of hir complaynt. And Hester com maūded to stablysshe these actes of this Purim, and to wryte them in a boke.

The.x.Chapter.

¶ Of the auctorite of Mardocheus vnder the kynge.

AND the kynge Ahasuerus A layed trybute vpon ẏ lōde, and vpon the Jles of ẏ see.
As for all the worke of his power and auctorite, and ẏ great worshippe of Mardocheus, whi che the kynge gaue hym, beholde, it is wryttē in the Cronicles of the kynges of Media and Persia. For Mardoche us the Jewe was the seconde nexte vn to kynge Ahasuerus, and great amōge the Jewes, and accepted amōge the multytude of his brethren, as one that seketh the welth of his peo ple, and speaketh the best for all his sede.

¶ The translatour vnto the reader.

These bokes (good reader) which be called Apocripha: are not iudged amonge the doctours to be of lyke reputacyon with the other scripture, as thou mayest perceaue by S. Jerome in epistola ad Paulinum. And the chefe cause therof is this: ther be many places in them, that seme to be repugnaunt vnto the open and manyfest trueth in the other bokes of the Byble. Neuerthelesse I haue not gathered them together to the intent that I wolde haue them despysed, or lytle set by, or that I shulde thynke them false, for I am not able to proue it: Yee I doute not verely, yf they were equally conferred with the other open scripture (tyme, place, and circumstaunce in all thynges consydered) they shulde nother seme cõtrary, nor be vntruly & peruersly aleged. Trueth it is: A mans face can not be sene so wel in a water, as in a fayre glasse: nother can it be shewed so clearly in a water that is stered or moued as in a styll water. These and many other darke places of scripture haue ben sore stered and mixte with blynde and couetous opiniõs of men, which haue cast such a myst afore the eyes of the symple, that as longe as they be not cõferred with the other places of scripture they shall not seme otherwyse to be vnderstande, thẽ as couetousnesse expoundeth them. But who so euer thou be that readest scripture, let the holy goost be thy teacher, and let one texte expounde another vnto the. As for suche dreames, visions and darke sentences as be hyd frõ thy vnderstondyng committe them vnto God, and make no articles of them: But let the playne text be thy gyde, and the sprete of God (whiche is the author therof) shall lede the in all trueth.

As for the prayer of Salomon (which thou fyndest not herin) the prayer of Azarias, and the swete songe that he and his two felowes songe in the fyre: the fyrst (namely the prayer of Salomõ) readest thou in the eyght chapter of ye thyrd boke of the kynges, so that it appeareth not to be Apocriphum: The other prayer and songe (namely of the chyldren) haue I not founde amonge ony of the interpreters, but only in the olde latyn texte, which reporteth it to be of Theodotions translation. Neuerthelesse: both because of those that be weake and scrupulous, and for theyr sakes also that loue suche swete songes of thankesgeuyng: I haue not lefte them out: to the intent that the one shulde haue no cause to complayne, and that the other also myght haue the more occasyon to geue thãkes vnto God in aduersite, as the thre chyldren dyd in the fyre. Grace be with the. Amen.

warde before them selues and the prestes. For the prestes offred the fat, vntyll the tyme was expyred, but the Le-uites prepared for them selues and for theyr brethren the chyldren of Aaron.
The syngers also the chyldren of Astheyre wyues made lamentacyon for of the LORDE, and made Sede-

And he dyd euell also in the syghte of the LORDE, and cared not for ye

And the God of theyr fathers sent hys messaungers vnto them, to turn them theyr synnes: for he wolde fayne haue spared them for hys holy tabernacles sake. Neuerthelesse, they had hys mes-saungers in derisyon, and loke what God spake vnto them by hys prophedrew on so longe, tyll the LORDE was wroth wyth hys people for theyr of Cyrus, the kynge of the Persyans, so that he caused thys wrytynge to be proclamed thorowe oute hys whole realme, sayenge: Thus sayeth ye kynge of the Persyans: The LORDE of Israell that hyghe LORDE hath made my kynge of the londe, and commaunded me to buylde hym an house at Jerusalem in Jewry. Yf ther be eny now of youre people, the LORDE be with him, and go vp wyth him to Je aboute that place, shall helpe thē, whether it be with golde, with siluer, with gyftes, wyth horses and necessary cattell, & all other thynges ye are broughte wyth a frewyl to the house of ye LOR

B Then the pryncypal men oute of ye trybes and villages of Juda and Ben Jamin stode vp: so dyd the prestes also and the Leuites (whom the LORDE had moued) to go vp, and to buyld the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem.
And they that were aboute them, helped them wyth al maner of golde, and syluer, and cattel also, and with many liberal gyftes: and thys dyd many one whose mynde was stered vp therto.

Now in the tyme of kynge Artaxerses the kynge of Persia, these men: Bale-mus and Mithridatus, Sabellius, Ra thimus, Balthemus, Semelius the scrybe, and other that dwelt in Sama ria, and in other places vnder the domynyon thereof, wrote a letter vnto kynge Artaxerses, wherin they cōplay ned vnto the kynge of them in Jewry and Jerusalem. The letter was made after thys maner: Syr, thy seruauntes Rathimus ye C story wryter, Sabellius the scribe, and other iudges of thy courte in Celosy ria and Phenices. Be it knowen and manifeste to oure lorde the kynge, that the Jewes whiche are come vp from you vnto vs in to ye rebellious and wic ked cytye begynne to buylde it agayn, and the walles aboute it, and to set vp the temple of the newe. Nowe yf thys cytye and the walles therof be set vp a gayne, they shall not onely refuse to geue trybutes and taxynges, but also rebell vtterly agaynst the kynge. And for so muche as they take this in hand now aboute the temple, we thoughte it reason, to thynke no scorne of it, but to shewe it vnto oure lorde the kynge and to certifye hym therof: to the ende that yf it please the kyng, he may cause it be soughte in the bokes of olde: and thou shalt fynde suche warnynge wri ten, and shalte vnderstonde, that thys cytye hath alwaye ben rebellious and disobedient, that it hath subdued kynges and cytyes, and that the Jewes which dwell therin, haue euer bene rebellious, obstinate, vnfaythfull, and fyghtynge people, for the which cause thys cytie is wasted. Wherfore nowe we certyfye oure lorde the kynge, that yf thys cytye be buylded and occupyed agayne, & the walles thereof set vp a new, thou canste haue no passage in to Celosyria and Phenices.

D Then wrote the kynge to Rathymus the story wryter, to Balthemus, to Sabellius the scrybe, and to the other offycers and dwellers in Syria, & Phenices, after thys maner: I haue red the epistle which thou sentest vnto me, and haue commaunded to make diligent search, and haue founde, y^t the cytye hath euer resysted kynges, that y^e same people are disobedient, and haue caused muche warre, and that myghty kynges haue raygned in Ierusalē, which also haue raised vp taxinges of Siria & Phenices. Wherfore, I haue commaunded those people, that they shall not buylde the cytye, y^t they make nomore in it, and that they procede no farther w^t the buyldynge: for so muche as it myght be the cause of warre, and displeasure vnto kynges.

Now whan Rathymus and Sabellius the scrybe and the rulers in the lond had red the wrytynge of kyng Artaxerses, they gat them together, and came in all the hayst to Ierusalē wyth an hoost of horsemen, and with muche people of footemē, and forbad them to buylde. And so they lefte of from buyldynge of the temple, vnto the seconde yeare of kynge Darius.

The .iii. Chapter.

¶ Of the feaste that kynge Darius made, and of the thre yonge men that wrote euery one hys sentence, to proue who myghte saye the best. The fyrste sheweth hys mynde.

A Kynge Darius made a great feaste vnto hys seruauntes, vnto all hys courte, and to the offycers of Media, and Persia, yea and to all the debytes, and rulers that were vnder hym, from India vnto Ethiopia, an hundreth, & .xxvii. contryes. So whan they had eaten, and dronken beynge satisfyed, and were gone home agayne, Darius the kyng wente in to hys chambre, layed hym downe to slepe, and so awaked.

Then the thre yonge men, y^t kepte the kynges personne, and watched his body, communed amonge themselues and spake one to another, Let euery one of vs saye some thynge, and loke whose sentence is wyser and more excellent than the other, vnto hym shall kynge Darius geue greate gyftes, and clothe hym wyth purple. He shall geue hym vessels of golde to drynke in, clothes of golde and couerynges: he shall make hym a costly charret and a brydle of golde, he shall geue hym a bonet of whyte sylke, and a chayne of golde aboute hys necke: yee he shall be the seconde and pryncypall nexte vnto king Darius, and that because of hys wysdome, and shalbe called the kynges kynsman.

So euery one wrote hys meaninge sealed it and layed it vnder the kinges pelowe, and sayde: whan the kynge aryseth, we wyll geue hym oure wrytinges: and loke whose worde the kynge and hys cheke lordes iudge to be the mooste wysely spoken, the same shall haue the victorye. One wrote: wyne is a stronge thynge. The seconde wrote: The kynge is stronger. The thyrde wrote: wemen haue yet more strength, but aboue all thynges the treuth beareth awaye the victory. Now whan y^e kynge was rysen vp, they toke theyr wrytynges and delyuered them vnto hym, and so he red them. Then sent he forth to call all hys cheke lordes, al the debytes and rulers of the contryes of Media & Persia. And whan they were set downe in the counsill, the wrytynges were red before them. And he commaunded to call the yonge men, that they myghte declare theyre meanynges them selues by mouth. So whan they were sent for, and came in, the kynge sayde vnto them: shewe vs and make vs to vnderstonde, what y^e thynges are that ye haue wrytten. B

Then beganne the fyrste (whiche had spoken of the strengthe of wyne,) and sayde: O ye men. *Wyne is maruaylous stronge, and ouercommeth them that drynke it: it deceaueth the mynde, and bryngeth both the poore man and the kynge to dotage and vanite. Thus doth it also with y^e bondeman and wyth the fre, wyth the poore & rych: it taketh away theyr vnderstonding, & maketh them carcles & merye, so that none of thē remēbreth ony heuinesse, det, or dewty: It causeth a man C

to thynke also that the thynge whiche he dothe, is honeste and good: and remembreth not that he is a kynge, nor that he is in authorytye, and that he oughte not to do suche thynges. Moreouer, whan men are drynkynge, they forget all frendshyppe, all brotherlye faythfulnesse and loue: but as soon as they are dronken, they drawe oute the swearde and wyll fyghte, and whan they are layed downe from the wyne, and so rysen vp agayne, they can not tell what they dyd. Judge ye nowe, Is not wyne the strögest? For who wolde els take in hande to do suche thynges? And whan he had spoken thys, he helde hys tunge.

The.iiii.Chapter.

¶ The seconde goeth aboute to proue hys sentence the wysest, but zorobabell getteth the victory, for the treuthe beareth euer the bell. Darius commaundeth to buylde vp Jerusalem agayne.

A Then the seconde (whiche had sayde, the kynge was stronger) began to speake, sayenge: O ye men are not they the strongest & moost excellent, that conquere the londe, and the see, and al that is in the see, and in the earthe? Now is the kynge lorde of all these thynges, and hath dominyon of them all: and loke what he commaundeth, it is done. Yf he sende hys men forthe a warfare, they go and breake downe hylles, walles, and towres. They are slayne, and slay (other men) them selues, and ouerpasse not the kynges worde. Yf they get þ victory, they brynge the kynge all the spoyle. Lykewyse the other that medle not wyth warres and fyghtynge, but tyll the grounde: whan they reape they brynge trybute vnto the kynge. And yf þ kyng alone do but commaunde to kyll, they kyll: yf he commaunde to forgeue, they forgeue: yf he commaunde to smyte, they smyte: yf he byd dryue away, they dryue awaye: yf he cömaunde to buylde they buylde: yf he cömaunde to breake downe, they breake downe: yf he commaunde to plante, they plante. The commune people and the rulers are obedient vnto hym. And the kynge in the meane season setteth hym downe, eateth and drynketh, and taketh his rest: than kepe they watch rounde aboute þ kynge, and not one of them darre get hym oute of the waye, to do hys owne busynesse, but muste be obedient vnto þ kyng at a word. Judge ye now O ye men, how shulde not he go farre aboue vnto whome men are thus obedient? And whan he had spoken thys, he helde hys tunge.

B The thyrde (whose name was zorobabell, which had spoken of women & of the treuth) beganne to say after thys maner: O ye men, it is not the greate kynge, it is not the multytude of men, nother is it wyne that excelleth. Who is it then, that hath the lordshyppe ouer the mē? Haue not women borne the kynge, and all the people that rule these thynges? Haue not wemen borne thē, and broughte them vp, that plante the wynes, wherof oute the wyne commeth? They make garmentes for all men, they geue honoure vnto all men, and wythoute women cā not men lyue. Yf they gather gold, and syluer and all precyous thynges, and se a fayre, and welfauoured woman, they leaue altogether, and turne theyr eyes onely vnto the woman, & gape vpon her, & haue more desyre vnto her, then vnto þ syluer, and golde or ony maner & precious thynge. * A man leaueth his father þ broughte hym vp, he leaueth hys owne naturall contre, & cleueth vnto the womā: yee he yoperdeth hys lyfe ꝑ the womā, & remēbreth nother father, nor mother, nor contre. By this then ye must nedes knowe, þ women haue the domynyon ouer you. Gen. 2. d. Mat. 19. a 1. Cor. 6. d Ephe. 5. f.

Doth it greue you? A mā taketh his swearde, & goeth hys way to steale, to kil, to murther, to sayle vpō þ see, & seeth a lyon, & goeth in þ darknesse: & whan he hath stolen, deceaued and robbed, he bryngeth it vnto hys loue. Agayne, a mā loueth his wife better thē father & mother: yee many one ther be, þ renne out of theyr wyttes, and become bond men for theyr wyues sakes: many one also haue peryshed, & haue ben slayne, and haue synned because of women.

C And nowe beleue me, I knowe a kynge whiche is greate in hys power, and all londes stonde in awe of hym, and no man darre laye hande vpon hym: yet dyd I se, that Apame (the doughter of the greate kynge Bartacus) the kynges concubyne, sat besyde the kynge vpon the ryghte hande, and toke of hys crowne from hys heade, and sette it vpon hyr owne heade, and smote the kynge wyth hyr lefte hande, Morouer, the kynge loked vpon her wyth open mouth: yf she laughed vpō hym, he laughed also: but yf she toke ony displeasure wyth hym, the kynge was fayne to flatter her, and to geue her good wordes, tyll he had gottē hys fauoure agayne.

O ye men, are not wemen then stronger? Great is the earth, and hygh is the heauen that do these thynges.
Then the kynge, and the prynces loked one vpon another. So he beganne to speake of the treuth: O ye men, are not wemen stronger? Great is ye earth hyghe is the heauen, swyft is ye course of the Sonne, he compasseth the heauē Eccli. 1.a. rounde aboute * & fetcheth his course

Is he not excellent that doth thys? yee greate is the treuth, and stronger then al thynges. Al ye earth calleth vpon the treuth, ye heauē prayseth it, all workes shake & tremble at it, & it is no vn-righteous thīg. Wyne is vnryghteous the kynge is vnrighteous, wemen are men are vnryghteous, yee all theyre workes are vnryghteous, & ther is no

D The treuth accepteth no persones, it putteth no difference betwixte ryche or poore, betwyxte the myghtye or sym whether they be euell or good, and all men are louyngly dealte wythal in the workes of it. In the iudgemente of it ther is no vnryghteous thynge, but strengthe, kyngdome, and power, and maiesty for euermore. Blessed be the God of treuth.

And wyth that he helde his tung, and all the people cryed and sayde: Greate is the treuth, & aboue al. Then sayde the kynge vnto hym: Are what thou wylt, more then is appoynted in the wrytynge, and I shall geue it the, for thou arte founde wyser then thy companyons: thou shalte syt nexte me, and be my kynsman. Then sayde he vn to the kynge: Remembre thy promyse and vowe, whiche thou haste vowed and promysed (in the daye whan thou camest to the kyngdome) to buylde vp Ierusalem, and to sende agayne al the vessels and Iewels, that were taken awaye oute of Ierusalem: whiche Cyrus separated, whan he offered in Ba bylon, and wolde sende them agayne.
And thy mynde was to buylde vp the temple, whiche the Edomytes brente, whan Ierusalem was destroyed by ye Caldees. Thys only (O kynge) is the thynge that I requyre, thys is the ma yestey, whiche I desyre and axe of the that thou perfourme the vowe, which thou wyth thyne owne mouthe haste made vnto the kynge of heauen. E

Then Darius the kynge stode vp 2.Esd.2. and kyssed hym, * and wrote a letter 3.Esd.6. vnto all the debytes and shreues, to all the lordes and nobles, that they shulde conueye hym forth, and all them that wold go vp wyth hym. He wrote a let ter also vnto al ye shreues that were in Celosyria and Phenyces, and vnto Li banus, that they shuld harle the ceder-trees from Lybanus vnto Ierusalem, to buylde the cytye wythall. Morouer he wrote vnto all the Iewes that were gone oute of hys realme in to Iewrye because of the fredome, that no officer, nor ruler, nor shreue shuld com to theyr dores: and that all theyr londe, whiche they had conquered, shulde be fre, and not trybutarye: And that the Edomymytes shulde geue ouer the cyties, and vyllages of the Iewes, whiche they had taken in: yee and that they shulde yearlye geue. xx. talentes to the buyldynge of the temple, vntyll the tyme halowynge of the brentofferynges (as it is commaunded) ten talentes yearly also. And that all they which come frō Babylon to buyld the citie, shuld haue fre lybertye, they and theyr chyldren, and all the prestes. F

He wrote the greatnesse also, and commaunded that the holy garmente shulde be geuen them, wherin they my nystred: & wrote that cōmaundemētes shuld be geuen to the Leuytes, vntyll the daye, that the house were fynyshed and Ierusalem buylded vp: and commaunded, that al they that watched ye citie, shuld haue theyr poriōs, & wages.

He gaue ouer also all the vessell that Cyrus had separated from Baby lon, and all that Cyrus had geuen in commaundemente, the same charged he also, that it shulde be done and sent vnto Ierusalem. Nowe whan thys yonge man was gone forth, he turned hys face towarde Jerusalem, and prayased the kinge of heauen, and sayde: Of the commeth victory, * of the com-

And so he toke the letters, and wente unto Babylon: And whan he came there, he tolde thys unto all hys brethren that were at Babylon, and they prayased the God of theyr fathers, that had geuen them refreshynge and lyberto to go up, and to buylde Jerusalem and the temple (which is there called after the name of the LORDE) and they reioyced wyth instrumentes and gladnesse, seuen dayes longe.

The.v.Chapter.

¶ What they be, and howe manye, that come agayne to Jerusalem oute of the captyuyte of Babylon. The temple and the altare are buylded agayne. The heythen wythstonde them.

After thys, were the pryncipall men of all the vyllages chosen in the trybes, and kynreddes, that they shulde go up wyth theyr wyues and chyldren, wyth theyr seruauntes and maydens, wyth all theyr cattell & substaunce. And Darius the kynge sente wyth them a thousande horsmen, to conueye them safelye unto Jerusalem: and theyr brethren were gladde, playenge upon instrumentes, and syngynge.

And these are the names of the men, whiche wente oute of the vyllages accordynge to the trybes. Of the prestes, the sonne of Phineas, the son of Aaron: Jesus the sonne of Joseder,

These also are they of Jewrye, whiche came up and turned agayn unto Jerusalem, oute of the captyuyte that Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had broughte unto Babylon. And euerye man soughte hys por-cyon agayne in Jewry, hys cytye, they that came wyth zorobabell, and wyth Jesus, Nehemias, Saraias, Raelaias Elimeus, Emmanius, Mardocheus, Beelserus, Mechpsa, Rochor, Olior9 Emonias, one of theyr prynces.

The.v.Chapter.

These folowenge are they that D wente vp from Chelmellat Thelarsa (whose prynces were Carmelam, and Careth) and myghte not shewe forth theyr cytyes and kynreddes, how they were of Israell: The sonnes of Dalarus, the sonnes of Tuben, the sonnes of Nechodiacus. Of the pres= tes that executed the office of the prest hode, and were not founde: The son= nes of Obia, the sonnes of Achisos, the sonnes of Addin, whiche maryed one of the doughters of Phargeleu, and were named after hym. The wry= tynge of the same kynred was soughte in the register of theyr generacyon, but it was not founde: and therfore were they forbydden to execute the office of the presthode. Unto these sayde Nehe= mias, and Astharas, that they shulde haue no porcyon in the Sanctuary, tyl ther rose vp an hygh preste, that were well instructe in the playne clearnes, & treuth Of all Israell (besyde seruaun= tes and maydens) ther were.xlii thou sand thre hundreth and.xl. Now were ther of seruauntes and maydens.vii. thousande thre hundreth and.xxxvi.
Of syngynge men and syngynge we= men ther were two hundreth and.lxv Foure hundrethe, and.xxxv. Camels.
Seuen thousande, and.xxxvi. horses.
Two hundrethe thousande, and.xlv. mules. Fyue thousand, and fyue and thyrtye asses.

Theyr heades also, and the rulers in the trybes, whan they came to Ieru salem, and wolde buylde and set vp the temple of God agayn in hys place, they gaue (after theyr abylite) vnto the temple, to the treasure and to the ser= uyce of the Sanctuarye. xii. thousand poundes of gold. v. thousand of syluer and an hundreth prestes garmentes.
And so dwelte the prestes, and the Le= uytes, and the people that wente oute of Ierusalem, and in the countre there about, the syngers also, & the porters, euery one of Israell in hys owne londe.

1.Esd.3.a *So whan the seuenth monethe came, and whan the chylderen of Is= raell were euery man at hys busynes, they came all wyth one consent in to ye courte, whiche was before the east dore. And there stode Iesus the son of Iosedec, and hys brethren the prestes, and zorobabell the sonne of Salathiel, & hys brethren, settynge vp an altar to offer burntsacrifice vpõ it as it is wryt ten in ÿ law of Moses the mā of God.

E Ther came people also of other cō tryes, and the Heythē out of al londes set vp the altare in hys place, & offred sacrifices and burntofferynges vnto the LORDE in the mornynge. And so they helde the feaste of tabernacles, Leui.23.f. * as it is commaunded in the lawe.
And dayliye dyd they offre as accor= dynge was, and made the sacrifices appoynted, the offerynges also of the Sabbathes, and of the Newmoones, 1.Esd.3.b. and all holy feastes. * And al they that vowed offerynges vnto the LORD, beganne at the Newmoone of the se= uenth moneth to offre vnto God: for the temple of the LORDE was not yet bylded. And they gaue vnto the masons and carpenters moneye, meate, and drynke wyth chearfulnesse. Vnto them of Sidon also and Tyre they ga ue cartes, that they shuld carye ceder= trees from Libanus to be yrastes and beames, and ÿ they shulde make shyp= pes in the hauen of Joppa, accordyng as it was appoynted and ordyned by Cirus kynge of the Persians.

And in the second yeare they came in to the temple of God at Jerusalem.
Ecli.49. * In the seconde moneth beganne Zo= d.and.c. robabel the sonne of Salathiel, & Je= sua the sonne of Josedec, and theyre brethren the prestes and Leuites, and all they that were come vnto Jerusa= lem out of the captiuite of Babilon, & layed the fundacion of the temple of God in the Newmoone of the seconde moneth, in the seconde yeare that they were come in to Jewry & Jerusalem.
F And they appoynted the Leuites (that were aboue twenty yeare olde) vnto ÿ seruice of the LORDE: so Jesua & hys sonnes and hys brethren al the Le= uites stode together, and perfourmed the lawe, and ordinaunce in the house of the LORDE.

And the prestes stode & had theyre garmentes & trompettes, and the Le= uites the sōnes of Asaph had cimbals, 1.Par.17.b geuynge thankes & prayses vnto the LORD, * accordynge as Dauid the kynge of Israel had ordyned. And the songe that they dyd synge vnto the Psal.135.a LORD, was after thys maner: * O synge vnto ÿ LORDE, for he is gra= cious, & hys goodnesse vpon Israel en dureth for euer. And al ÿ people blewe oute wyth trompettes, and dyd synge wyth lowde voyce, praysynge the LORDE together in the rearynge vp of the house of the LORDE.
Ther came also from amonge the pre= stes and Leuites the rulers and elders, accordynge to the trybes and kynreds (suche as hadde sene the house a= fore) to the buyldynge of this temple with great crye and great mournyng, many also with trompettes and great ioye, in so muche that the trompettes myghte not well be herde for the we= pynge, and mournynge. For the co= mune people blewe goodlye vppon the trompettes.

G * Then came the enemyes of the 1.Esd.4.a tribes of Juda & BenJamin, to know what that trompettynge and noyse of shawmes myght be. And they perceа= ued that it was they which were come agayne out of captiuite, & wold buyld the temple anew vnto the LORDE God of Israel. So they wente to Zoro babel, and Jesua, and to the rulers of the villages, and sayd vnto thē: Shall we buylde with you also, for we lyke= wyse haue herde your LORDE, and we walke after the same maner, frō ÿ dayes of Asbazareth the kynge of Assi= ria, which brought vs hyther. Thē Zo= robabel, and Jesua, and the rulers of ÿ villages of Israel sayd vnto them: It is not mete that ye shulde buylde the tē ple of our God with vs: we our selues alone wyll buylde vnto the LORDE 1.Esd.1.a * lyke as Cyrus the kynge of the Per sians hath cōmaunded vs.

But the Heythen in the lande lay ed them selues agaynst those that were in Jewry, helde vp the buyldynge frō them, layed wayte vpon them preuely, stopped such as brought ony thynge to them, forbad them to buylde and hyn= dered those that made them passage, that the buyldynge shulde not be fyni= shed: & this continued so longe as kyng Cyrus lyued: & so they put of the buyl= dyng for the space of two yeare, vntyll the raygne of kynges Darius.

The.vi.Chapter.

The officers in Syria laboure vn= to kynge Darius, to forbyd the buyl= dynge of the temple at Jerusalem: but he cōmaundeth to kepe the ordinaunce that kynge Cyrus made before.

A NOtwithstandynge, in the se conde year of the raygne of 1.Esd.5.a Darius, * Aggeus and Za= chary the sōne of Addo pro= phecyed vpō them in Jewry and Jerusalē, in ÿ name of God of Israel. Than zorobabel the sōne of Sala thiel and Jesus the sonne of Josedec Aggey.1.c stode vp, * and beganne to buylde the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem, whan the prophetes of the LORDE helped them.

At the same tyme came Sisennes the vndershreue in Syria and Phenices, wyth the landelordes and hys cōpanyons, and sayde vnto them: Who hath byddē & cōmaūded you to buyld the house: to make the rofe and all other thinges agayne: And who are the workemen that buylde them? Neuer-thelesse the Elders of the Jewes had such grace of the LORDE, that they wold not be let (though they were pro uoked therto) but buylded on styl, vn-tyl the tyme ÿ kynge Darius were cer tifyd thereof, and an answer receaued from hym. The letter that these men sent vnto kynge Darius, was after B thys maner: Sisennes the vndershreue in Syria, and Phenices, and the lādelordes wyth theyre companions, which are headrulers in Syria & Phenices sende theyr salutaciō vnto Darius ÿ kynge.
We certifye oure lorde the kynge, ÿ we came in to the lande of Jewry, and went to Jerusalem: where we founde them buyldynge ÿ great house of God & the tēple, wyth great costly frestone and wyth goodly tymber for the wal-les: yee they make greate hayste wyth the worke, and helpe one another, and it goeth forth prosperously in theyre handes, & wyth greate diligence and worshyppe is it made.
Then asked we the Elders, who had cōmaunded them to make vp the house and the buyldyng: and thys we dyd to the intēt that we myght certify the perfectlye, & wryte vnto the ÿ names of those that were the rulers of ÿ worke. So they gaue vs thys answer: We are the seruauntes of the LORD which made heauē and earth: and as for thys house, it hath ben buylded & 3.Reg.6.a set vp afore tyme * by the greate and myghty kynge in Israel. But whan oure fathers dyd prouoke God vnto wrath, and synned agaynst the God of 4.Reg.24 Israel, * he gaue them ouer in to the and.25. power of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Jer.39.52. Babilon, the kynge of the Caldees, which brake downe the house & brent it, & caryed awaye the people presoners vnto Babylon.
* Neuerthelesse, in the fyrst yeare C that kynge Cirus raygned at Babilon 1.Esd.1.a Cyrus the kynge wrote and commaūded to buylde vp this house agayne: & all the ornamentes that Nabuchodo-nosor caryed awaye from Jerusalē vn to Babilō, appropriated vnto his own temple, those brought Cyrus forth a-gayne, and delivered them vnto zoroba bell, & to Salmanasar the vndershreue commaundynge them, that they shulde brynge those same ornamentes agayne to Jerusalem in to the temple, and to begynne from that tyme forth, to buyld the temple agayne in his owne place.
Then Salmanasar layed the founda-cyon of the LORDES house at Jerusalem, and euer sence haue they buyl-ded, and yet is it not ended. And therefore (O kynge) yf thou thinkest it good let it be sought in the libraries, and rol les of kynge Cyrus: yf it be found the, ÿ it is done with the counsell, and cōsent of kynge Cyrus, and yf our lorde the kynge be so mynded, let hym wryte vnto vs therof.
* Then commaunded kynge Da- D rius, to seke in the libraries: and so at 1.Esd.6.a Egbathanis, in a lytle cytie in Media, ther was foūde such a wrytynge: * In 1.Esd.6.a the fyrst yeare of the raygne of Cyrus, the same kynge Cyrus commaunded ÿ the house of the LORDE at Jerusalem shulde be buylded agayne (and odoures to be made there continually vnto the LORDE) whose heyght shal be ten cubytes, the bredth.lx. cubytes, & foure square with thre hewen stones, with a lofte of tymber of the same con tre, yee with a new loft, and the expenses therof to be geuen of the house of kynge Cyrus. And the ornamentes of golde and syluer, that Nabuchodonosor toke out of the house of the LOR-DE at Jerusalem, shalbe set agayne in the temple at Jerusalem, where they were afore. Sysennes also the vnder-shreue in Syria, & Phenices, the princes, and theyr companyons, and the other that be heade rulers in Syria, and Phenices, shall not medle nor haue ony thynge to do with that place.
I Cyrus haue commaunded also, E that they shall buylde the house of the LORDE whole vp: & haue ordeyned them to helpe those that be come out of captiuite, tyll the house of the LORD be fynysshed: and out of the trybute and taxynge that is yearly raysed vp in Syria, and Phenices, diligently to geue them a certayne summe, to the offerynge of the LORDE: and the same to be delyuered vnto Zorobabel the officer: that he therwithall maye ordeyne oxen, ram mes, lambes, and corne, salt, wyne, and oyle, and that continually euery yeare: after the expences which the prestes y be at Jerusalem, shewe to be made day ly: this shalbe geuen vnto them with 1.Esd.6.b out delaye that they maye offre sacrifices dayly to the hyghest God, for y kynge and for his seruauntes, and to praye for theyr lyues. Let it be proclamed also on euery syde, that who so euer breaketh or despyseth this commaunde ment of the kynge, shalbe hanged vpon a galowe (made of his owne good) and all his goodes shalbe seasoned vnto the kynge. The LORDE therfore (whose name is there called vpon) rote out and destroye al the kynges and people, that vndertake by violēce to hinder y same, or to deale vncurteously with y house of the LORDE at Jerusalem. I Darius the kynge haue ordeyned, y these thynges shalbe done with all diligēce.

The.vii.Chapter.

The aduersaries myndes are satis-fyed, the buyldynge is fynished, and the Passeouer holden.

A Then Sysennes the vnder-shreue in Celosyria & Phenices, and the other landlor des with theyr companyōs, obeyed the thynges y kyng Darius had ordeyned, were diligent in the holy workes, and were felowe helpers with the olde rulers of y Jewes.
And so the worke of the Sanctuarye wente forth and prospered, whan Ag-geus and Zachary prophecied. And they perfourmed all thynges thorowe the cōmaundement of the LORDE God of Israell, and after the deuyce of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerses kynges of Persia.

B And thus was our house fynished, vnto the.xxiii.daye of the moneth A-dar in the.vi.yeare of kynge Darius.
And the chyldren of Israell the prestes and Leuites, and the other that were come out of captiuite, & suche as were ioyned vnto them, dyd accordyng as it is wrytten in the boke of Moses. And in the dedicacyon of the temple they of-fred an hundreth oxen, an hundreth rāmes, foure hundreth lambes, and.xii. goates for the synnes of all the people of Israel, after the nombre of y try bes of Israel. The prestes also and the Leuites stode arayed in theyr prestlye garmentes after the trybes, ouer al the workes of the LORDE God of Israel, accordyng to the boke of Moses, and the porters by all the dores.

C And the chyldren of Israel (with those that were come out of captiuite) helde the Passeouer the.xiiii.daye of y fyrst moneth whan the prestes and the Leuites were sanctified. They y came out of captiuite, were not all sanctified together: but the Leuites were al sanctified together. And so all they y came out of captiuite, kylled the easterlambe for theyr brethren, for the prestes, and for them selues. And the chyldren of Israel that came out of captiuite, and escaped from al the abhominacyons of y Heythen, sought the LORDE, and kept the feast of vnleuended bread.vii. dayes longe, eatynge and drynkynge, & were mery before the LORDE: that the LORDE had turned the deuyce of the kynge of Assuria, and cōforted theyr handes to the workes of the LORDE God of Israel.

The.viii.Chapter.

How Esdras and the other (beynge discharged by the letters and cōmaundement of kynge Artaxerses) go vp to Jerusalem. The complaynt cōcernyng those, that were defyled and vncleane.

A And after hym whan Artax erses the kynge of the Per 1.Esd.7.a sians raygned, ther wente vnto hym Esdras the sōne of Saraias, the sonne of A zarias, the sonne of Helchia, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Sadoc, y sōne of Achitob, the sonne of Amarias, the sonne of Azarias, the sonne of Boccus the sonne of Abisu, the sonne of Phine as, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron the fyrst prest. This Esdras wente vp from Babilon (for he hadde good vnderstondynge in the lawe of Moses, that was geuen of the LOR-DE God of Israel, to be taught, and done in dede.) And the kinge fauoured hym and dyd hym great worshippe & honoure after all his desyres. Ther wente vp with hym also certayne of y chyldren of Israel, of the prestes of the Leuites, of the syngers porters, and mi nisters of the temple at Jerusalem.
In the.vii. yeare of the raygne of kynge Artaxerses, in the. v. moneth, ye is in the, vii. yeare of the raygne, they wente from Babylon in the new Moo ne of the. v. moneth, and came the hye waye to Jerusalem after his cōmaundement, lyke as the LORDE had pro spered theyr iourney. For in these Esdras gat great instruccyō, that he shuld leaue none of the thynges behynd, whi che were in the lawe, and cōmaūdemētes of God. And he taught whole Isra el all ryghteousnesse and iudgement.

Thē cam the Secretaries of kynge Artaxerses and delyuered the wrytynges (that were come from Artaxerses the kynge) to Esdras the prest and rea der of the lawe of the LORDE.
And this is the copye of the letter: B Kynge Artaxerses sēdeth his greatyng vnto Esdras the prest and reader of ye lawe of the LORDE: Of frendship, and good wyl I haue ordeyned & char ged, yf ther be ony of the Jewes, of the prestes, & Leuites in my realme whiche desyreth, and is content to go with the vnto Jerusalem, that he maye do it.
Therfore yf ony be mynded to beare ye company, let them come together, & go with the (lyke as I am content and my seuē frendes my cōuselers:) to se what they do at Jerusalem and in Jewrye & kepe the thynges accordynge as yu hast in the lawe of the LORDE: and to bryng the gyftes vnto God the LOR DE of Israell, that I and my fren-des haue promysed vnto Jerusalem, and all the syluer, and golde that is in the contre of Babilō, vnto the LOR-DE to Jerusalē, with the thynge that is geuen for the people in the LOR-DES temple at Jerusalem: Yee that the syluer, and golde maye be gathered and oxen, rammes, shepe, and goates: & other that belonge to these thynges & that they maye offer sacrifyces vnto ye LORD, vpō the altare of theyr LOR DE, which is at Jerusalem.
And what so euer thou & thy brethren wyll do with the syluer, & golde, that do after thy mynde, and after the commaūdement of the LORDE thy God: & lykewyse with all the holy vessels, that are geuen the for the seruyce of the house of the LORDE thy God and other thynges what so euer is necessarye for the to the worke of the tem ple of thy God, that shalbe geuē the of the kynges treasure: and loke what yu with thy brethren wylt do with the golde and syluer, that do after the wyll of the LORDE. And I kynge Artax-erses haue commaunded the kepers of the treasures in Syria, and Phenices, that what soeuer Esdras the prest and reader of the lawe of the LORD doth wryte it shalbe geuen hym: tyll an hun-dreth talentes of syluer, and of golde in lyke maner: Of corne also an. C. measures, and tyll an hundreth vessels of wyne, and other plenteous thynges wt out nombre. Let all thynges be done af ter the lawe of the hyghest God, that ye wrath of God aryse not in the realme of ye kynge & of his sonnes. I cōmaūde you also, that ye requyre no taxyng nor trybute of the prestes, Leuites, syngers and mynisters of the temple, nor of the wryters, and that no mā haue authorite to medle ony thynge against them.
As for the (O Esdras) set thou iudges, and arbiterers in the whole lande of Si ria, and Phenices, after the wysedome of God: and learne all suche as are ignorant in the lawe of God thy LOR DE: and let all them that offende a-gaynst the lawe, be punyshed, whether it be with death, with payne, to be condempned in money, or to be banyshed.
Then sayd Esdras the wryter: Blessed be ye God of oure fathers, that hath geuen so good a mynde and wyll in to the harte of the kynge, to magny-fye his house that is at Jerusalem, & hath made me to be accepted in ye syght of the kynge, of his counsel, of his fredes, and of his nobles. And so I was stedfast in my mynde, accordynge as ye LORDE my God helped me, and I chose out men of Israel, to go vp with C me. * And these are the heades (after theyr kynredes, and houses of theyr fa thers) that went vp with me from Ba bilon, out of the kyngdome of Artaxerses: Of the sonnes of Phares, Gerso-nius. Of the sonnes of Siemarith, A-menus. Of the sonnes of Dauid, Accus the sonne of Cecilia.
Of the sonnes of Phares, zachary-as, and with hym ther turned agayne an hundreth and fyftye men. Of the son-nes of the captayne of Moabilō, zaral-ies, and with hym two hundreth and fyftye men. Of the sonnes of zachues, Je-chonias, zecholi, and with hym. cc & fyfty men. Of the sonnes of Salamaalas, Gotholie, and lxx. with hym. Of the sonnes of zaphacia, zarias, Michel, and with hym. lxxx. Of the sonnes of Iob, Abdias, Iecheli, and with hym.ii. hundreth and twelfe men. Of the sõnes of Bania, Salimoth the sonne of Iosaphia and with hym an hundreth and lx.men. Of the sonnes of Beer, zachary Bebei, and with hym.ii.C.and.viii.mẽ Of the sonnes of Esead, Iohannes, Ezechan, and with hym, C.&.x.men. Of the sonnes of Adonicam those ye were the last, & these are theyr names: Eliphalam the sonne of Gebel, and Semeias, and with hym.lxx.men. All these called I together by ye water Thia, wher we pitched our tentes thre dayes, and there I mustered them.

1.Esd.8.b. * As for the sonnes of the prestes, & Leuites, I foũde none there. Thẽ sent I to Eleasar, & Ecelom, & Masinã, & Molabam, & Enaathan, and Samea, & Ioribumathan, Eunagan, zachary, Mosollamum (these were the leaders and men of experience) and I sent thẽ worde, that they shulde come vnto Loddeus, which was by the place of ye treasury, & cõmaunded thẽ that they shuld speake vnto Loddeus & to his brethrẽ & to those that were in the treasury, to sende vs such men, as myght execute ye prestes office in the house of ye LORD our God. And by the myghtye hand of our LORDE God, they brought vnto vs men of good experiẽce, frõ amõg the sonnes of Moolius, the sõne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, Sebebeiam, & ye sonnes, & his brethrẽ Asbin, and Anim, of whom ther were.xviii. 1.Esd.8.c * Then commaunded I a fastyng vnto the yonge men before the LORDE, that I might desyre of hym a prosperous iourney, and a good waye for vs.ye for vs, for our chyldren, and for the cattell, because of ye layenge wayte: and I durst not requyre of the kynge horsemen and footemen, to conueye vs sauely agaynste oure enemyes, for we had sayd vnto the kynge, ye the power of the LORDE our God shuld be by them, that seke hym with theyr whole harte. And therfore we besought God our LORD earnestly because of these thynges, & he was mercyfull vnto vs, and herde our prayer, And I separated from amonge the rulers of the people, and from the prestes of the temple.xii. men, and Sebeia, and Asania, and ten men of theyr brethrẽ with them. And I weyed thẽ the gold & the syluer & all ye prestly ornamentes of the house of our God, which the kynge & his counsel, & his prynces, & whole Israel had geuẽ. And whan I had weyed it, I gaue thẽ an.C.&.l. talentes in syluer, an.C.talẽtes of syluer vessell, an C. talentes of golde, & of golden vessell seuen tymes twentye, and vessels of other metal (yee of good metall).xii, glysterynge as the golde, and sayd vnto them: Ye also are holy vnto the LORDE, & the vessels are holy, and the golde and the syluer is promysed vnto the LORDE the God of our fathers. Be diligent now, and kepe it, vntyll the tyme that I delyuer it to the rulers of the people, to ye prestes, to the Leuites, and to the pryncipall men of the cyties of Israel in Ierusalem, and in the chamber of ye house of our God.

* So the prestes and the Leuites E which receaued of me the golde, ye syl- 1.Esd.8.d uer, and the vessell, brought it to Ierusalem in to temple of the LORDE. And from the ryuer Thia we brake vp the.xii.daye of the fyrst moneth tyll we came to Ierusalem. And whã the thyrd daye was past, the weyed golde, & syluer was delyuered in the house of the LORDE the fourth daye, vnto Marimoth the sonne of Ior the prest, and with hym was Elasar the sõne of Phineas, and with them were Iosabdus ye sonne of Iesnet, Medias & the sonne of Banus, and certayne of the Leuites to the nombre and to the weyght: and the weyght of thẽ was written vp the same tyme. As for those ye were come, out of captiuite, they offred sacrifice vnto the LORD ye God of Israell: euen xii.oxen for all Israel, lxxxvi.rammes, lxxii.shepe.xii. goates for syn.xii. kyne for a thãkofferyng, al to ye sacrifice of ye LORD. And the kynges cõmyssion delyuered they vnto ye stewardes, & debytes of the kynge, & to the vndershreues in Celosiria, and Phenices.

* Now whan these thynges were 1.Esd.9.a done, the rulers came vnto me & sayd: The generacyon of Israel, the prynces the prestes & Leuites, the straũge people, and indwellers of the lande, haue not put awaye theyr vnclennesse, from the Cananites, Hethites, Pherezites, from the Moabites, Egipcyans, & Edomites. For both they & theyr sonnes haue myngled thẽ selues wt the doughters of them, and the holy sede is mixte with the outlandyshe Heythen, & sence the begynnynge of theyr raygne haue ÿ rulers & heades ben partakers of theyr wickednesse.

As soone as I hadde herde these thynges, immediatly I rente my holye garmentes, and pulled out the heere of my head and my beerd & sat my down sorowfull and heuy. So al they ÿ were moued thorowe the worde of the God of Israel, came vnto me: and I sat styl full of heuynesse vntyll the euenyng sa crifice. Then stode I vp from fastynge hauynge rente clothes and the holy gar ment, kneled downe vppon my knees, helde out my handes vnto the LOR-F DE, and sayd: O LORDE, I am cõ founded and ashamed before thy face, for our synnes are become many vpon our heades, & our wickednesses are ex alted vnto the heauen: for sence ÿ tyme of oure fathers we are in great synne vnto this daye. And for the synnes of vs and our fathers, we with our brethren and with oure prestes haue bene delyuered vnto the kynges of the earth in to the swearde, and in to captiuite, & became a spoyle with cõfusion & shame vnto this daye. And now O LORD God, how great is the mercy that we haue gotten of the? in that thou haste lefte vs a rote & a name in the place of thy Sanctuary, to discouer our lyghte in the house of the LORDE oure God, and geuen vs meat at all tymes of our ministracyon. And whan we were in captiuite, we were not forsaken of the LORDE our God: but he made the kynges of Persia gracyous and fauourable vnto vs, so that they gaue vs vytayles and meat, ye & leaue to buylde vp the tẽple of our LORD God agayne, to repayre the waysted places of Sion, and to dwel in Iewry and Ierusalem. And now O LORD, what shall we saye, hauynge all these thynges in possessiõ? For we haue bro ken thy cõmaundementes, which thou gauest vnto vs by the hãdes of thy ser uauntes the prophetes, sayenge: The londe that ye go vnto, and that is geuẽ you for an heretage to haue in possession, is defyled with the vnclennes & fylthynesse of the Heythẽ, & with theyr abhominacyon haue they polluted it al together. * Therfore shall ye not ioyne Deu.7.a your doughters vnto theyr sonnes, nor and.11.b mary youre sonnes vnto theyr doughters: Moreouer ye shall neuer seke to make peace with them, that ye may in crease and eat the best of the lande, and that ye maye deuyde the inheritaũce of the lande vnto your chyldren for euermore. As for the thynge that now happeneth vnto vs, it commeth all for our wicked workes, and great synnes, yet hast thou geuẽ vs such a rote, ÿ we are come agayn in our owne lõde: & we are so wycked that we haue broken thy sta tutes and commaundementes agayne, and mengled our selues with the vnclẽ nesse of the outlandysh Heythen. O LORDE, arte thou angrye with vs? wylt thou rote vs clene out? that oure rote and name remayne nomore? O LORDE God of Israell, thou arte true, for oure rote endureth yet vnto this present daye. And beholde, now are we before the in oure synnes, nowe can not we stande before the in them.
* And whã Esdras wt this prayer G had knowleged the synne, weppynge, & 1.Esd.10.a lyenge flat vpon the grounde before ÿ temple, ther gathered vnto hym from Ierusalem a great multitude of men, and wemen, of yonge men and may-dẽs, for ther was a very great weppyng and mournynge in the congregacyon.
So whã Iechonias the sõne of Iehely one of the chyldren of Israel cryed, he sayd vnto Esdras: we haue synned against the LORDE, because we haue maryed outlandysh wemen of the Heithen. Now art thou ouer all Israel.
We wyll sweare an oth therfore vnto the LORDE, that we shall put away all our wyues which we haue taken of the Heythen with theyr chyldren lyke as it is appoynted the by our forelders Stonde vp then, open thou it and declare it planely vnto vs accordynge to the lawe of the LORDE: for the mater belongeth vnto the, & we wyll helpe the, quyte the selfe manly. So Esdras arose, and toke an oth of the rulers of the prestes, and of the Leuites and of all Israell, to do after these thynges, & they dyd sweare.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ Of the counsell that was taken, as touchynge the vncleane mariage.

A Then Esdras stode vp from 1.Esd.10.b the courte of the temple a= out, and wente in to the chã bre of Jonathas the sonne of Nasabus, and remayned there, and dyd eate no meate nor drãke drynke for the multitude of the wicked nesse of the people. And ther was made a proclamacyon in all Jewrye & at Je= rusalem, for all such as were gathered at Jerusalẽ out of captiuite, that who so euer came not to Jerusalem within two or thre dayes (accordynge to yͤ iud= gement of the olde lordes of the cõusel) his goodes shuld be taken frõ him, and he excluded from the congregacyon of the captiuite. And in thre dayes were all they of the trybe of Juda, and Ben Jamin gathered together at Jerusalẽ, the.xx. daye of the.ix. moneth. And the whole multytude sat tremblyng in the courte of the temple, for it was wynter So Esdras arose vp, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue done vnryghteously in that ye haue taken outlandysshe wyues to mariage, and so to increase the syn= nes of Israel. And now knowlege the same, and geue prayse vnto the LOR= DE God of our fathers, & perfourme his wyll, departynge from the Heythẽ of the lande, and from the outlandysshe wyues. Then cryed the whole multy= tude with loude voyce, and sayde: Lyke as thou hast spoken, so wyll we B do: But for so much as the people are many, and the wynter here, we maye not stonde without the house: agayne, this worke is not a thynge, that can be fynisshed in a daye or two, for we be ma ny that haue synned in these thynges: Ordeyne therfore, that the rulers of yͤ multytude and all they that dwell a vs, & as many as haue outlandysh wy= ues, the prestes also, & iudges of euery place, may stande in the tyme appoyn= ted, tyll they lowse vp the wrath of the LORDE in this busynes.

Then Jonathas the sonne of E= zeli, and Ozias, and Thecam receaued the charge of this matter, and Bozora= mus, and Leius, and Sabatheus hel= ped thẽ therto. After this, all they stode vp yͭ were come out of captiuite. And Esdras yͤ prest chose vnto hym yͤ prin= cypall men from among the fathers ac cordyng to theyr names, & in the newe Moone of the tenth moneth they sat to gether, to examyn this matter. And so the matter was a determynynge (cõcer= nynge the men that had outlandysh wy ues) vntyll the new Moone of the first moneth. And of the prestes that hadde mixte them selues with outlandysh wy ues, ther were founde: * Of the sõnes 1.Esd.10.b of Jesu the sonnes of Josedec and his brethren Mazeas, Eleaser, Joribus, & Joadeus, whiche offred them selues to put awaye theyr wyues, and to offer a ramme for theyr ignoraunce. And of yͤ sonnes of Semmeri, Masseas, and Es ses, and Jeelech, Azarias. Of the sõnes of Fosera, Lymosias, Hismaen, Na= thanea, Jussio, Jeddus, and Tallas.
And of the Leuites, Josabdus, Seme= is, and Colius, Caletas, Facteas, Cel= nas, and Elionas. Of the syngers of yͤ Sanctuary, Eliarib, zacharus. Of the porters, Sallumus, and Tolbanes. C And of Israel, of the chyldren of Foro, Osy, and Remias, & Geddias, & Mel= chias, Michelus, Eleazarus, Jemmel= bias, and Bannas. And of the chyldrẽ of Jolaman, Chanias, zachary, Jetzre lus, Jodius, Erimoth, and Elias. And of the sonnes of Jathoim, Eliadas, Ly asamus, and zochias, Larimoth, Sab= dis, and Tebedias. And of the sonnes of zebes, Johannes, Amanias, zabdias and Emeus. And of the sonnes of Bã= nus, Olamus, Maluchus, Jeddus, Ja sub, Asabus, and Jerimoth. And of the sonnes of Addin, Naatus and Moosi as, and Caleus, and Raanas, Maasu as, Mathatias, Besell, Bannus, and Manasses.

And of the sõnes of Naue, Noneas, Aseas Melchias, Sameas, Simõ, Bẽ Jamin, Malchus, & Marras. And of yͤ sõnes of Asom, Cariancus, Matha= thias, Bãnus, Eliphalach, Manasses, Semei. Of the sonnes of Bannus, Je remy, Moodias, Abramas, Johel, Ba= neas, Pelias, Jona, Marimoth, Elia sib, Mathaneus, Eliasis, Ozias, Die lus, Semedius, zambris, and Joseph.
Of the sõnes of Nobeus, Idelus, Ma thathias, Sabadus, zecheda, Sedmi, Jesseus, and Baneas. All these had ta= ken outlandysshe wemen to mariage, and they put them awaye with theyr chyldren.

The prestes and Leuytes, and all they that were of Israell, dwelt at Je= rusalem and thorow out all the lande, in the new Moone of the seuenth mo= D neth, and the chyldren of Israell, were 2.Esd.8.a in theyr dwellynges. * And the whole multytude came together vpon yͤ flore at the east syde of the holy porte of the temple. And they spake vnto Esdras ÿ hye prest & reader, that he wolde brynge the lawe of Moses, which was geuen of the LORDE God of Israell. So Esdras the hye prest brought the lawe vnto the whole multytude, to man and woman, and to al prestes, ÿ they might heare the lawe, in the new Moone of ÿ seuenth moneth. And he red it ÿ floore, that is before the holy porte of the temple, from the mornynge early vntyl the euenynge before men and wemen, And they applyed theyr mynde all vnto the lawe.

And Esdras the prest and reader of the lawe stode vp vpon a scaffolde of wood, which was made therfore, & vpon his ryght hande ther stode by hym Mathathias, Samus, Ananias, Azarias, Urias, Ezechias, and Balsamus Upon his lefte hande stode Faldeus, Misael, Malachias, Abuschas, Sabus, Nabadias, and zachary. Then toke Esdras the boke before the whole multitude, for he was the prynсypall, & had in moost honoure of them all. And whan he hadde red out the lawe, they stode all straygh vp vpon theyr fete.

E So Esdras praysed the LORDE the moost hye God, the almyghtye God of hoostes. And all the people answered, Amen: and helde vp theyr handes, fell downe flat vpon the earth, and praysed the LORDE: Jesus, Bannas, Serebias, Jaddinus, Accubus, Sabbatheus, Calithes, Azarias, Joradus, Ananias, & Philias the Leuites which taught the lawe of the LORDE, & red the lawe of the LORDE in the congregacyon, and euery man set those before that vnderstode the lawe. Then spake Atharathes vnto Esdras ÿ hye prest and reader, & to the Leuites that taught the multitude, sayenge: This daye is holy vnto the LORDE: and all they that had herde the lawe, wept.

2. Esd. 8. c. So Esdras sayd: *Depart youe way then, and eate the best, and drynke the swetest, and sende gyftes vnto the that haue nothynge: for this daye is holy vnto the LORDE, and be not ye sory. Then wente they theyr waye eueryichone, and dyd eate and drynke, & were mery, and sente rewardes vnto them that had nothyng, that they also might eate with gladnesse: for they were exceadyngly reioyced, thorowe the wordes that were red vnto them in the lawe.

And so they were all gathered togethe at Jerusalem to holde the feast, accordynge to the couenaunt of the LORDE God of Israel.

haue knowne my name in Israel. Fear not thou mother of the chylderen, for I haue chosen the, saieth the LORD.
And for thy helpe I shall sende the my seruauntes Esaye and Jeremye, after whose counsell I haue sanctifyed, and prepared for the.xii. trees with diuerse frutes, and as many welles flowynge wyth mylke and honye, and seuē moūtaynes, wherevpon ther growe roses and lylyes, wherin I wyll fyll my chylderen wyth ioye. Execute iustice for the wydow, be iudge for the father lesse: geue to the poore, defende the con fortlesse: clothe the naked, heale yͤ woū ded and syck, laugh not a lame man to scorne, defende the crepell, and let the blynde come in to the syghte of my clearnesse. Kepe the olde and yonge wy- Tob.ii. thin thy walles: * where soeuer thou fyndeste the dead, token them, and bu-rye them, and I shall geue the the fyrst D place in my resurrectyon. Holde styll (O my people) & take thy rest, for thy quietnesse is com. Fede thy chyldrē, O thou good norse, stablyshe theyre fete: As for the seruauntes whome I haue geuen the, ther shal not one of them pe ryshe, for I wyll seke them from thy nombre: vexe not thy self.
For whan the daye of trouble and heuynesse commeth, other shall wepe and be sorowfull, but thou shalt be me ry and plenteous. The Heythen shalbe gelous, but they shall be able to do nothyng agaynste the, sayeth the LOR-DE. My handes shall couer the, so yͭ thy chylderen shall not se the fyre euerlastynge. Be ioyfull O thou mother wyth thy chylderen, for I wyll dely-uer the, sayeth the LORDE. Remem bre thy dead chylderen, for I shal bring them oute of the earth, and shewe mer cye vnto them, for I am mercyfull, sa= yeth the LORDE almyghtye.

G Enbrace thy chylderen, vntyll I come and shewe mercye vnto them, for my welles runne ouer, and my grace: shall not fayle. I Esdras receyued a charge of the LORDE vpon the mounte Oreb, that I shulde go vnto Israell. But whan I came vnto them they set me at naught, and despysed ye commaundement of the LORDE.
And therfore I saye vnto you. O ye Heythen, that heare and vnderstonde: Loke for youre shepherde, he shall geue you euerlastyng rest: for he is nye at hande, that shall come in the ende of the worlde. Be ready to the reward of the kyngdome, for the euerlastynge lyghte shall shyne vpon you for euer= more. Flye the shadowe of thys world receaue the ioyfulnesse of youre glory.
I testifye my sauioure openlye: O re= ceaue the gyfte that is geuen you, and be glad, geuynge thankes vnto hym, that hath called you to the heauenlye kyngdome. Aryse vp, and stonde faste: behold the nombre of those that be sea led in the feaste of the LORDE, whiche are departed from the shadow of the worlde, and haue receaued glo= rious garmentes of the LORDE.
Take thy nombre O Syon, and shut vp thy purifyed, whiche haue fulfyl= led the lawe of the LORDE. The nombre of thy chylderen whome thou longedeste for, is fulfylled: beseke the power of the LORDE that thy peo ple whiche haue bene called from the begynnynge, maye be halowed.
F *Esdras sawe vpon the mounte Apoca.7.c Syon a greate people, whom I could not nombre, and they all praysed the LORDE wyth songes of thankes= geuynge. And in the myddeste of them ther was a yonge man of an hyghe sta ture, more excellente then all they, and vpon euery one of theyre heades he set a crown, & was euer hygher & higher, which I maruayled at greatlye. So I axed the angell and sayde: Syr what are these? He answered and sayde vn= to me: These be they, that haue put of the mortall clothynge and put on ye im= mortall, and haue testifyed and know= leged the name of God. Now are they crowned, and receaue the rewarde.
Then sayde I vnto the angell: what yonge personne is it, that crow= neth them, and geueth the the palmes in theyr handes? So he answered and sayde vnto me: It is the sonne of God whome they haue knowleged in the worlde. Then beganne I greatlye to commende them, that stode so stedfast lye for the name of the LORDE.
And so the angell sayde vnto me: Go thy waye, and tell my people, what ma ner of thynges and howe greate won= ders of the LORDE thy God, thou haste sene.

The.iii.Chapter.

¶ Esdras sheweth the excellet wor kes of God, done vnto the people, and hath a frendelye contencyon with God because he suffereth the Babylonians to haue the dominiō ouer them, where as they yet are synners also.

IN the thyrtye yeare of the A fall of the cytye, I was at Babylon and lay troubled vpon my bedde, and my thoughtes came vp ouer my hart: for I sawe the desolacyon of Syon, and the plēteous wealth of thē that dwelte at Babylon: and my sprete was sore moued, so that I beganne to speake fearfull wordes to the mooste hyghest, and sayde: O LORDE LORDE thou spakest at the begyn= ninge, whan thou plantedest the earth (and that thy selfe alone) and gauest commaundement vnto the people, & a body vnto Adam, which was a creatu re of thy handes, *and hast brethed in Gene.2.b. hym the brethe of lyfe: and so he lyued before the, and thou leddeste hym in to paradyse, which gardē of pleasure thy ryghthande had planted, or euer the earth was made. And vnto hym thou gauest commaundemente to loue thy waye, whiche he transgressed, and im= mediatly thou appoyntedest deathe in hym, and in hys generacyons. Of hym came nacyons, trybes, people, and kyn reddes oute of nombre. * And euerye Gene.6.b. people walked after theyre owne wyl, an haue done wonderfull thynges be= fore the and as for thy commaundemē tes, they despysed them.
* But in processe of tyme thou B broughtest the waterfloude, vpon tho Gene.7.b. se that dwelt in the world, and destroy deste them. And lyke as the death was in Adam, so was the water floude also in these. Neuerthelesse one of them thou leftest: namely , Noe wyth hys housholde of whome come all ryghte-ous men. And it happened ỹ whã they that dwelt vpon the earth, beganne to multiplie, and had gotten manye chylderen , and were a greate people , they beganne to be more vngodlye then the fyrste.

Now whan they all lyued so wyc Ge. 12. 15. kedlye before the, * thou dyddeste chose the a man from among them, whose name was Abram. Hym thou louedest, and vnto hym onelye thou shewedeste thy wyll, and maydest an euerlastynge conuenaunt wyth hym , promysynge hym, that thou woldest neuer forsake Gene.21.a hys sede. * And vnto hym thou gauest ‡ Ge.25.c. Isaac ‡ vnto Isaac also thou gauest * Ge.32.a Jacob and Esau. * As for Jacob thou dyddest chose hym , and put backe Esau . And so Jacob became a greate multitude.

C And it happened that whan thou Exo. 19.a. leddest hys sede out of Egypte, * thou Deut.4.b. broughtest them vp to the mount Sy-na, bowynge downe the heauens, settinge fast ỹ earth, mouynge ỹ ground, making the depthes to shake, and trou blynge the worlde: And thy glory went thorow foure portes of fyre, and earth quakes, and wyndes and coulde : that thou myghtest geue the lawe vnto the sede of Jacob , and diligense vnto the generacyon of Israel.

And yet tokeste thou not awaye from them that wicked harte, that thy lawe myghte bringe forth frute in thẽ.
For the fyrste Adam bare a wycked harte , transgressed , and was ouercome, and so be all they that are borne of Rom. 8.a. hym. * Thus remayned weaknesse & the lawe in the harte of the people , & the wyckednesse of the rote: so that the good departed awaye , and the euell abode styll. So the tymes passed away and the yeares were broughte to an 1.Re.16.c. ende. * Then dyddest thou rayse the 2.Re.5.a.g vp a seruaunte called Dauid , whome thou commaundedest to buylde a cytie vnto thy name , and to offre vp incense and sacryfyce vnto the therin. This was done now many yeares.

D Then the inhabiters of the cytye forsoke the , and in all thynges dydde euen as Adam and all hys generacyõs had done : for they also had a wycked harte. And so thou gaueste thy cytye ouer in to the handes of thyne enemies.
Are they of Babylon then better, and more ryghteous then thy people , that they shall therfore haue the domynyon of Syon? For whan I came there, and sawe theyr vngodlynesse, and so great wyckednesse, that it could not be nom bred: yee whan my soule sawe so many euell doers (in the.xxx.yeare) my harte fayled me, for I saw, howe thou sufferest them in suche vngodlynesse, & spa-rest the wicked doers: but thyne owne people hast thou roted oute , and preserued thyne enemies , and thys haste thou not shewed me.

I can not perceaue howe this hap- E peneth. Do they of Babylon then better, then they of Syon? Or is ther any other people , ỹ knoweth the, sauynge the people of Israell? Or what genera cyon hath so beleued thy conuenauntes, as Jacob? And yet theyr rewarde appeareth not, and theyr laboure hath no frute. For I haue gone here & there thorowe the Heythen, and I se, ỹ they be ryche and wealthy, and thynke not vpon thy commaundementes . Weye thou therfore oure wyckednesse nowe in the balaunce , and theyrs also that dwell in the worlde, and so shall thyne name be no where founde but in Israell. Or where is ther a people vpon earth, that hath not synned before the?
Or what people hath so kepte thy cõmaundementes? Thou shalt fynde, ỹ Israell by name hath kepte thy pre-ceptes , but not the other people , and Heythen.

The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ The angell rebuketh Esdras, for takyng in hand to seke out the ground of Gods iudgemente , and instructeth hym with fayre symilitudes.

AND the angell that was A sent vnto me (whose name was Uryell) gaue me answer, and sayde: Thy hart hath taken to muche vpon it in thys worlde , and thou thynkeste to comprehende the waye of the Hygheste. Then sayde I: yee my LOR-D E. And he answered me, and sayde:
I am sente to shewe the thre wayes, and to set forthe thre symplytudes before the: whereof yf thou canste declare me one, I wyll shewe the also the waye, that thou desyreste to se, and I shall shewe the from whence the wyckedde harte commeth , And I sayde:

tell on my LORDE. Then sayde he vnto me: Go thy waye, weye me the weyghte of the fyre, or measure me the blast of the wynde, or cal me agayn the daye that is past. Then answered I and sayde: What man born is able to do that? Why requyrest thou suche of me? And he sayde vnto me: Yf I shuld axe the, howe depe dwellynges are in the see? Or howe greate water sprynges are vpon the firmament? Or how greate water sprynges are in ẏ begynnynge of the depe? Or which are ẏ out goynges of Paradyse? Peraduenture thou woldeste saye vnto me: I neuer wente downe yet in to the depe nor hell, nother dyd I euer clymme vp in to heauen. Neuerthelesse now haue I axed the but onely of fyre and wynde, and of the daye, where thorowe thou haste trauayled, and from the whiche thou cast not be separated: and yet cast thou geue me no answere of them.

B He sayde moreouer vnto me: Thine own thynges, and such as are growne vp wyth the, canste thou not knowe: howe shulde thy vessell then be able to comprehende the waye of the hyghest, and now outwardelye in the corrupte worlde, to vnderstonde the corrupcion that is euydent in my syghte? Then sayde I vnto him: It were better that we were not at all, then that we shuld lyue in wickednesse, and to suffre, and not to knowe wherfore. He answered me, and sayde: I wente in a wood, and the trees toke suche a deuyce and sayd Iudi.9.b. *Come let vs go, and fyghte agaynst 2Pa.25.c the see, that it maye departe awaye before vs, and that we maye make vs yet more woodes.

The floudes of the see also in lyke maner toke thys deuyce, and sayde: Come, let vs go vp, and fyght agaynst the trees of the wood, that we maye make our lond ẏ wyder. The thought and deuice of the wood was but vayn and nothyng worth: for the fyre came, and cōsumed the wood. The thought of the floudes of the see came lykewise to naughte also, for the sonde stode vp and stopped them.

C Yf thou were iudge now betwixte these two, whom woldest thou iustify or whome woldest thou condemne? I answered and sayde. Verely it is a foolyshe thought that they both haue deuysed. For the grounde is geuen vnto the wood, & the see also hath his place to beare hys floudes. Then answered he me and sayde: Thou hast geuen a ryghte iudgemente, why iudgeste thou not thyself also? For lyke as ẏ ground is geuen vnto the wood, and the see to hys floudes: *euen so they that dwell Esay.55.c. vpon earth, maye vnderstond nothing Joh.3.c. but that whiche is vpon earth: and he 1.Cor.2.b that dwelleth aboue the heauens, may onelye vnderstonde the thynges, that are aboue the heauens. Then answered I & sayde: I beseke the (O LORDE) let me haue vnderstondynge: for it was not my mynde to be curious of thy hye thynges, but of such as we daylye medle wythall: namely, wherfore ẏ Israell is blasphemed of the Heythen, and for what cause the people (whome thou euer haste loued) is geuen ouer, to be punysshed of vngodlye nacions: & why ẏ law of our fathers is brought to naught, and the wrytten conuenauntes come to none effecte, and we passe awaye oute of the worlde as the gresshoppers, and oure lyfe is a very feare and we are not worthye to optayne mercye. What wyll he do then vnto hys name whiche is called vpon, ouer vs? Of these thynges haue I axed questyon.

D Then answered he me and sayde: The more thou searchest, ẏ more thou shalte maruayll for the worlde hasteth fast to passe awaye, and can not comprehende the thynges, that are promysed for the ryghteous in tyme to come, *for thys worlde is full of vnryghte- 1.Joh.5.c ousnesse and weaknesse.

But as concernynge the thynges wherof thou axest me, I wyll tell the. The euell is sowne, but the destruccyon therof is not yet come. Yf the euell now which is sowne, be not turned vp syde downe, and yf the place where ẏ euell is sowne, passe not awaye, then can not the thynge come that is sowne wyth the good. For the corne of euell sede hath ben sowne in the hart of mā from the begynnynge, and howe much vngodlynesse hath he broughte vp vnto thys tyme? & how much shal he yet brig forth, vntyl he come in to ẏ barne.

E Pondre now by thy self, whā ẏ corn of euel sede is cut down, how greate a barne shal it fyl? I answered & sayde. How & whā shall these thiges come to passe? Wherfor are our yeares few & euel? & he āswered me, saieg: Haist not ẏ to much vpō ẏ hyest, for thy haistnes to be aboue hym is but in vayne, thou makest to muche a do. Dyd not the soules also of the ryghteous axe questyon of these thinges in theyr holines, sayenge: Howe longe shall I hope of thys fashion? Whan commeth ỹ frute of my barne, and my rewarde? And vpon thys Jeremiell the Archangell ga ue them answere, and sayde: Apoc. 6.b *Euen whan the nombre of the se des is fylled in you: for he had weyed the worlde in the balaunce, in measure and nombre hath he measured ỹ tyme, and moued it not, vntyll the same mea sure be fulfylled. Then answered I & sayde: O LORDE LORDE now are we all full of synne, and for oure sake peraduenture it is, that the barne of the ryghteous shal not be fylled, because of the synnes of them ỹ F dwell vpon earth.

So he answered me, and sayde:
Go thy waye to a woman wyth chyld and axe her, whã she hath fulfylled hyr ix. monethes, yf hyr chyldesbed maye kepe the byrth eny longer wythin her.
Then sayde I: No LORDE, that can she not. And he sayde vnto me: In hel the secrete places of soules are lyke the preuy chamber of a woman. For lyke as a woman that trauayleth, ma-keth hayste, whan the tyme and neces-syte of the byrth is at hande: Euen so doth she hayste to delyuer it that is cõ mitted vnto her. Loke what thou de-syrest to se, it shall be shewed the from the begynnynge. Then answered I & sayde: Yf I haue found fauoure in thy syght, and yf it be possible, and yf I be mete therfore, shewe me then, whether ther be more to come then is past, or more past then is for to come. What is past, I know: but what is for to come I knowe not.
G And he sayde vnto me: Stond vp vpon the ryghtsyde, & I shal expound the symilitude vnto the. So I stode, & beholde, an whote burnynge ouẽ went ouer before me: and it happened that whan the flame was gone by, ỹ smoke had the vpper hande. After thys ther wente ouer before me a watery cloude and sent downe muche rayne wyth a storme: and whan the stormy rayn was paste, the droppes remayned styll. Thẽ seyde he vnto me: lyke as the rayne is more then the droppes, and as the fyre exceadeth the smoke, euen so the measure of the thynges that are past, hath the vpper hand. Then wente the drop pes and the smoke aboue: and I prayed and sayde: Maye I lyue (thynkeste thou) vntyll that tyme? Or what shall happen in those dayes? He answered me, and sayde: As for the tokens whe of thou axest me. I maye tell the of thẽ in a parte: but as touchynge thy lyfe, I maye not shew the, for I am not sent therfore.

The.v.Chapter.

A communicacyon of Esdras, and the angell together.

NEuerthelesse, as cõcernyng A the tokẽs, marck thys: Be holde, the dayes shal come that they which dwel vpõ earthe, shall be taken in a greate nombre, and the waye of the treuth shalbe hyd, and the londe shalbe baren from fayth: * but iniquite shall Mat.24.a haue the vpperhand, lyke as thou hast sene now, and as thou hast herde long ago. And the londe that thou seyste nowe to haue rule, shalt thou shortlye se wayste. But yf God graunte the to lyue, thou shalt se after the thyrde trõpet, that the sonne shall sodenlye shyne agayne in the nyghte, and the moone thre tyme in the daye and bloude shall droppe oute of wood, and ỹ stone shal geue hys voyce, and the people shalbe vnquyete: and euen he shal rule, whom they hope not that dwell vpon earthe, and the foules shall flyt, and the Sodo mytyshe see shall cast out of hys fyshe, and make a noyse in the nighte, which many shall not knowe, but they shall all heare the voyce therof.
Ther shall be a confusyon also in B many places, and the fyre shall be oft sent agayne, and the wyld beastes shal go theyre waye, and menstruous we-men shall beare monsters, and salt wa ters shalbe founde in the swete: one frende shall fyghte agaynste another: then shall all wyt and vnderstondynge be hyd and put asyde in to theyr secrete places, and shalbe soughte of many, & yet not be founde: then shall vnryghte-ousnesse and volupteousnesse haue the vpperhande vpon earth. One londe al so shall axe another, and saye: Is rygh ryghteousnesse gone thorow the? And it shal saye: No. At the same tyme shal men hope, but optayne nothynge: they shall laboure, but theyr waies shal not prospere.

To shewe the suche tokens I haue leue, and yf thou wylt praye agayne, & wepe as now, & fast seuen dayes, thou shalt heare yet greater thynges. Then I awaked, and a fearfulnesse wente thorowe all my bodye, and my mynde was feble and carefull, so that I almoost swouned wythal. So the angel that was come to talke wyth me, held me, comforted me, and set me vp vpon my fete.

C And in the seconde nyghte it happened, that Salathiell the captayne of the people came vnto me, sayenge: Where hast thou ben? and why is thy countenaunce so heuy? Knowest thou not, that Israell is committed vnto ȳ, in the londe of theyr captiuite? Up thē and eate, and forsake vs not, as the shepherde that leaueth hys flock in the handes of wycked wolues. Then said I vnto hym: Go thy waye fro me, and come not nye me: and he herde it, and as I sayde, so wente he hys waye fro me. And so I fasted seuen dayes mournynge and wepynge, lyke as Uriel the angell commaunded me. And after seuen dayes it happened, that ȳ thoughtes of my harte were very greuous vnto me agayne, and my soule receaued ȳ spryete of vnderstondynge, and I begãne to talke with the moost hyghest agayne, and sayde: O LORDE LORDE, of euery wood of ȳ earth, and of all the trees therof, thou haste chosen the one onely vynyarde: and of all londes of the whole worlde thou hast chosen the one pyt: and of all floures of the grounde thou haste chosen ȳ one lylie: and of all the depthes of the see thou haste fylled the one ryuer: and of all buylded cytyes thou hast halowed Siō vnto theself: and of al ȳ foules that are created, thou haste named the one doue: and of all the cattell that are made, thou hast prouyded ȳ one shepe: and amonge all the multytudes of folkes thou haste gotten the one people: and vnto thys people, whome thou louedest, thou gauest a lawe, that is

D proued of all.

And nowe O LORDE, why hast thou geuen thys one people ouer vnto many? and vpō the one rote thou hast prepared other, and why hast thou scattred thy one onely people among many? which treade them downe, yee whiche haue euer wythstonde thy promyses, and neuer beleued thy couenauntes? And though thou werest enemye vnto thy people, yet shuldest thou punyshe them wyth thyne owne handes. Now whan I had spoken these wordes, the angell that came to me the nyghte afore, was sente vnte me, & sayde vnto me: Heare me, and herken to the thynge that I saye, and I shall tell the more. And I sayde: Speake on my LORDE. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou arte sore vexed and troubled for Israels sake. Louest thou that people better, then hym that made thē? And I sayde: No LORDE, but of very grefe and compassion haue I spoken. For my reynes payn me euery houre, because I wolde haue experiēce of the waye of the moost hyghest, and to seke oute parte of hys iudgement. And he sayde vnto my: that thou mayest not. And I sayde: wherfore LORDE? Wherevnto was I borne then? Or why was not my mothers chyldebed then my graue? So had I not sene the mysery and trouble of Jacob, and the trauayle of my people of Israell.

E And he sayde vnto me: Nombre me the thynges, that are not yet come: gather me together the droppes, that are scattred abrode: make me the floures grene agayne, that are wytherd: open me the thynge that is closed: and brynge me forth the wyndes, that are shut vp Shewe me the ymage of a voyce, and then shall I declare the thynge, ȳ thou labourest to knowe. And I sayde: O LORDE LORDE, who maye know these thynges, but he that hath not hys dwellynge wyth men? As for me, I am vnwyse: how maye I then speake of these thynges, whereof thou axest me? Then sayd he vnto me: lyke as ȳ cāst do none of these thinges that I haue spoken of, Euen so canste thou not fynde out my iudgemente, or in the ende, the loue that I haue promysed vnto my people. And I sayde: Beholde O LORDE, yet art thou nye vnto them that haue no ende, and what shall they do that haue ben before me, or we ȳ be nowe, or they that shall come after vs? And he sayde vnto me: I wyll lyken my iudgement vnto a ryng. Lyke as ther is no slacknesse of the laste, euē so is ther no swiftnesse of the fyrst. So I answered and sayd: Couldest thou not make those (ȳ haue ben made, and that be nowe, and that are for to come) in one, that thou migh testshew thy iudgement the sooner.

F Then answered he me and sayde: The creature maye not hayste aboue the maker, nother maie the world hold them at once, that shalbe created.

And I sayde: Howe haste thou sayde then vnto thy seruaũt, that thou lyuynge maker hast made ye creature lyuyng at once, & ye creature bare it: euẽ so myghte it now also beare them yt be present, at once. And he saide vnto me: Axe the chyldesbed of a woman, & say vnto her: Yf thou bryngest forth chyldren, why doest thou it not together, but one after another? Praye her, to brynge forth ten chyldren at once. And I sayd: she can not, but must do it one after another.

Then sayde he vnto me: Euen so haue I geuen a chyldesbedde vnto the earth, for those that be sowne vpon it by processe of tym. For lyke as a yong chylde maye not brynge forth the thinges that belonge to the aged, euen so haue I ordened the worlde whiche I made.

G And I axed and sayd: Seyng thou hast now geuẽ me a way, I wil speake before the: for oure mother of whome thou hast tolde me, is yet yong, & now she draweth nye vnto age. He answered me and sayde: Axe a woman that beareth chylderen, and she shal tell the. Saye vnto her: wherfore are not they (whom thou hast now brought forth) like those that were befor the, but lesse of stature? And she shall answere the: They yt be born in ye youth of strength are of one fashiõ, & they yt are born in ye tyme of age (whan the chyldesbed fayleth) are otherwyse. Considre now thy self, how that ye are lesse of stature, thẽ those that were before you, and so are they that come after you, lesse then ye, as the creatures whiche now begynne to be old, & haue passed ouer ye strẽgth of youth. Then sayde I: LORDE I beseke the, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syghte, shewe thy seruaunte, by whome doest thou vyset thy creature.

The. vi. Chapter.

The angel enfourmeth Esdras, and answereth hym to hys questions.

AND he sayde vnto me: In A the begynnynge whan the grounde was made, befor the worlde stode, or euer the wyndes blewe, before it thondred and lyghtened, or euer the foundacyons of Paradyse were layed before the fayre floures were sene, or euer the moueable powers were stablysshed, before the innumerable multytudes of angels were gathered together, or euer the hyghnesses of the ayre were lyfted vp, afore the measures of the fyrmament were named, or euer ye chymnyes in Syon were hote, and or the present yeares were soughte oute, and or euer the inuencyons of them that now synne, were put asyde, befor they were sealed that nowe gather faith for a treasure: then dyd I consydre and pondre all these thynges, and they all were made thorowe me, and thorow none other: by me also they be ended, and by none other.

Then answered I & sayde: which shall be the partynge asunder of the tymes? Or whan shalbe the ende of ye fyrste, and the begynnyng of it that foloweth? And he sayde vnto me: From Abraham vnto Isaac, whan Jacob, and Esau were borne of hym, Jacobs hande helde fyrste the hele of Esau: for Esau is the ende of thys worlde, and Jacob is the begynnyng of it that foloweth. The hande of man betwixt the hele and the hande. Other question (Esdras) axe thou not.

I answered then and sayde: O B LORDE LORDE, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, I beseke the, shewe thy seruaunt the ende of thy tokens, wherof thou shewdest me part the last nyghte. So he answered, and sayde vnto me: Stonde vp vpon thy fete, and heare the perfecte voyce, and sounde. Ther shall come a greate mocyon, but the place where thou stondest shall not be moued. And therfore whan thou hearest the wordes, be not afrayed: for of the ende shall the word and foundacyon of the earth be vnderstonde. And why? the worde therof trembleth and quaketh, for it knoweth that it muste be chaunged at the ende. And it happened, that whã I had herd it, I stode vp vpõ my fete & herkened: and beholde, ther was a voyce that spake and the sound of it was lyke the sounde of many waters, and it sayde.

Beholde, the dayes come, that I wyll begynne to drawe nye, and vyset them that dwell vpon earth, & wyll begyn to make inquisicion of thẽ, what they be that haue hurt equite wyth vnrygh teousnes, & whan ÿ low estate of Siõ shalbe fulfylled: and whan the worlde that shall vanysh awaye shall be ouersealed, then wyll I do these tokens.
C The bokes shalbe opened before ÿ fyrmament, & they shal se altogether, and the chylderen of a yeare olde shall speake wyth theyr voyces: the wemẽ wyth chylde shall brynge forth vntym-ly chylderen of thre or foure monethes olde, and they shall lyue, and beraysed vp: and sodenly shal the sowen places appeare as ÿ vnsowẽ, the ful storehou ses shall sodenly be founde empty, and the trompet shall geue a sounde, which whan euery man heareth, they shalbe haystily afrayed, * At that tyme shall

The sprynges of ÿ welles shal stad ne Whosoeuer remayneth frõ all these thynges that I haue tolde the, shall escape, and se my saluaciõ, & the ende of your worlde And the men ÿ are receued, shall se it, they ÿ haue not tasted death from theyr byrth: and the harts of the indwellers shalbe chaũged, and turned to another meanynge: for euell shalbe put out, and deceat shalbe quẽched. As for fayth, it shall florysh, corruption shalbe ouercome: & the truth, which hath ben so lõge wythout frute shall be declared.

D And it happened whã he talked wt me, that I loked demurely vpon hym, before whom I stode, & these wordes sayde he vnto me: I ame come to shew the tyme of the nyght for to come.
Yf thou wylt praye yet more, and faste seuen dayes agayne, I shal tel the the more thynges, & greater thã before: for thy voyce is herde befor the Hyest.
For why: The myghtye hath sene thy ryghteous dealynge: he hath sene also thy chastite, which thou hast had sence thy youth: and therfor hath he sent me to shew the these thynges, and to saye vnto the: Be of good conforte, & feare not, and hayste not wyth the tymes ÿ are past to thynke vayne thynges, and make no hayste of the latter tymes.
And it happened after this, that I wepte agayne, and fasted seuẽ dayes in lyke maner, that I myght fulfyll ÿ thre wekes, which he told me. In the eyght nyght was my hart vexed within me a gayne, and I beganne to speake before the Hyghest: for my sprete was greatly set on fyre, and my soule was in di-stresse, and I sayde: O LORDE, thou spakest vnto thy creature from the begynnynge (euen the fyrst daye.) And Gene.1.a saydest. * Let heauẽ and earth be made and thy worde was a perfecte worke.
And then was there the sprete, and the darknesses were yet on euery syde, and sylence: ther was no mans voyce as yet from the. Then commaundedest thou a fayre lyght to come forth out of thy treasures, that thy worke myght ap-peare and be sene.
E Upon the seconde daye thou ma-dest the sprete of the firmament, and cõ maundedest it to parte a sunder and to make a diuision betwixte the waters, that the one parte myghte remayne aboue, and the other beneth. Upon the thyrde daye thou broughtest to passe, ÿ the waters were gathered in ÿ seuẽth parte of the earth: Syxe partes hast ÿ dryed vp, and kept them, to the intente that men myght sowe and occupye hus bandrye therin. As soone as thy worde wente forth, the worke was made. For immediatly ther was great innumera ble frute, and many dyuerse pleasures and desyres of temptacyon, floures of chaũgeable colours and smell, and this was done the thyrde daye.
Upon ÿ fourth daye thou cõmaũ-dedest that the Sonne shulde geue his shyne, and the Moone hir lyght: ÿ star res dydest thou set in order, and gauest Deu.4.c them a charge * to do seruice euen vn- Gen.1.c. to man, that was for to be made. * Up pon the fyfth daye thou saydest vnto ÿ seuenth parte (where the waters were gathered) that they shulde brynge forth dyuerse beastes, foules and fyshes.
And so it came to passe, that the dõme water and without the soule, brought forth lyuynge beastes at the commaun dement of God, ÿ all the people myght prayse thy wonderus workes. Then dyddest thou preserue two soules, the one thou calledest Enoch and the other Leuiathã, and dyddest separate the one frõ ÿ other: for ÿ seuẽth part (namely, wher ÿ water was gathered together) F myght not hold thẽ both. Unto Enoch ÿ gauest one part, which was dried vp ÿ thyrde daye, ÿ he shulde dwell in the same part, wherin ar a thousãd hilles.

But unto Leuiathan thou gauest the seuenth part, namely the moyst, & hast kepte hym to deuoure what thou wylt and whan.

Upon the syxte daye thou gauest commaundement unto the earth, that before the it shulde brynge forth beastes, cattell and all yͤ crepe, and (besydes thys) Adam also, whom thou madeste lorde of al thy creatures. Of hym come we al, and the people also, whom thou haste chosen specially unto theself. All thys haue I sayde nowe & spoken before the, that I myght shew, how that the worlde is made for oure sakes. As for the other people, which also come of Adam, thou hast sayde that they are nothynge, but be lyke spatle: & hast lykened yͤ abundaũce of thẽ unto a drop (that falleth) frõ the rofe of the house.

And now (o LORDE) yͤ Heythen whiche haue euer ben reputed as nothyng, haue begonne to be lordes ouer us, & to deuour us: but we thy people

Exod.4.f *(whom thou hast called yͤ fyrstborne thyne only begotten, & thy feruent louer) are geuen in to theyr handes and powre. Yf the worlde nowe be made for oure sakes, why haue we not the enheritaũce in possessiõ & the worlde? How longe shall thys endure?

The .vii. Chapter.

¶ The aungel sheweth Esdras many secretematters & thynges for to come.

A And it happened after that I had spokẽ out these wordes, ther was sent unto me an angell (whiche had ben by me also the night afore) and sayde unto me: Up Esdras, and heare yͤ wordes that I am come to tel the. And I sayde: Speake on LORD my God. Thã sayde he unto me: The see is set in a wyde place, yͭ it myghte be depe and great: but the intraunce is narow & small lyke a ryuer. For who wolde go into the see, to loke upon it, and to rule it? Yf he went not thorow the narow, how myghte he come in to the broade?

Item another: A cytie is buylded and set upon a brode felde, and is full of all goodes: the intraunce is sodayn and narow, lyke as yf ther were a fyre at the ryghthãd, & a depe water at the lefte, and as it were only one strayght pathe betwyxte them bothe, so small that ther could but one man go there. Yf thys cytie nowe were geuen to an eyre, and he neuer wente thorowe this parlous waye, howe wolde he receaue his enheritaunce? And I said: It is so LORDE. Then sayd he: Euen so is Israel also a porcyon. And why? for theyr sakes haue I made yͤ worlde: And whan Adam transgressed my statutes, then was the thyng iudged that was done. Then were the intraunces of the worlde made narowe, full of sorowe and trauayle: They are but few and euell, full of parels and laboure. For the intraunces of the forworlde were wyde and sure, and brought immortall frute.

D Yf they now which are entred in to this worlde, maye not comprehende these straygtht & vayne thynges, muche lesse maye they comprehende and understonde the secrete thinges. Why disquietest thou the selfe then, seyng thou art but a corruptible man? And what woldest thou knowe, where as thou art but mortall? And why hast not thou receaued in thyne harte the thynge that is for to come, but that is present?

Thẽ sayd I: O LORDE LORDE, thou hast ordeyned in thy lawe, Deut.14

* that the ryghteous shulde enherete these thynges, but that the unfaythful and ungodly shulde perysshe. Neuerthelesse the ryghteous shall suffre strayte thynges, and hope for wyde: for they yͭ haue lyued ungodly and suffred strayt thynges, shall not se the wyde.

And he sayd unto me: Ther is no iudge aboue God, and none that hath understondynge aboue the Hyghest. For ther be many that perysh, because they despyse the lawe of God that is set before them. For God hath geuen strayt cõmaundement to such as come, that they knowe what they do, & how they shulde lyue: and yf they kept this, they shulde not be punished.

Neuerthelesse they were not obedient unto hym, but spake agaynst hym: ymagined vayne thynges, and purposed to synne, and sayd moreouer, yͭ ther was no God, and that God regarded it not. His wayes haue they not knowen, his lawe haue they despysed, & denyed his promyses: in his statutes and ordynaunces haue they not ben faythfull and stedfast, and haue not performed his workes.

E And therfore Esdras, unto yͤ full, plenty: and to the empty, emptynesse. Beholde, the tyme shal came, that these tokens which I haue tolde ẏ, shal come to passe, and the bryde shall appeare: & the earth that now passeth awaye, shal be shewed: and who so euer is delyue-red from the forsayd euels, shall se my wonders. For my sonne Iesus shalbe openly declared with those that be & hym: and they that remayne shalbe me ry in foure hundreth yeares.

After these same yeares shall my sonne Christ dye, and al men that haue lyfe: and the worlde shalbe turned into the olde sylence seuen dayes, lyke as in the fore iudgementes, so that no man shall remayne. And after seuen dayes, ẏ world that yet awaketh not, shalbe ray sed vp, & shal dye corrupt. And ẏ earth shal restore those that haue slept in her and so shall the dust those that dwel in sylence, and the secrete places shall de-lyuer those that be cõmitted vnto thẽ.
And the moost Hyghest shalbe openly declared vpon the seat of iudgement, & all mysery shall vanyshe awaye, & lõge sufferynge shalbe gathered together.
But the iudgement shall contynue the trueth shall remayne, and fayth shall ware stronge, the worke shall folowe, and the rewarde shalbe shewed, ẏ rygh teousnesse shall watch, and the vnrigh teousnesses shall beare no rule.

D Then sayd I: * Abraham prayed

Euen so now, seynge the corrupte is growen vp, and wyckednes increased, and the righteous haue prayed for the vngodly, wherfore shall it not be now also?

He answered me, & sayd: This pre sent worlde is not the ende, ther remay neth much honoure in it, therfore haue they prayed for the weake But ẏ daye of dome shalbe the ende of this tyme, & the begynnynge of immortalite for to come, wherin all currupcyõ vanyssheth, all voluptuousnes is lowsed, all mysbe lefe taken awaye, ryghteousnes gro-wen, and the verite spronge vp. Then shall no man be able to saue hym that is destroyed, nor to oppresse hym that hath gottẽ ẏ victory. I answered thẽ & sayd: This is my fyrst and last sayeng, E ẏ it had ben better, not to haue geuẽ ẏ earth vnto Adã: or els whã it was geuẽ hym, to kepe hym ẏ he shulde not synne For what profyte is it for men now in this present tyme to lyue in heuynesse, and after death to loke for punishmẽt?
O thou Adam, what hast thou done?
For though it was thou that synned, thou art not fallen alone, but we all ẏ come of the For what profyte is it vnto vs, yf ther be promysed vnto vs an immortall tyme, where as we medle & deadly workes? and that ther is promysed vs an euerlastynge hope, where as we our selues are euel and vayne? G that ther are layed vp for vs dwellyn-ges of health, and fredome, where as we haue lyued euell? and that the worshippe of ẏ Hyghest is kept to defende them, whiche haue led a pacyent lyfe, where as we haue walked in the moost wycked wayes of al? & ẏ ther shalbe she wed a paradyse, whose frute endureth for euer, wherin the fredome & medecyne is, where as we shal not go in? for we haue walked in vnpleasaũt places: And that the faces of them which haue abstained, shal shyne aboue the starres, where as oure faces shalbe blacke and darcke? For whyle we lyued and dyd vnryghteously, we cõsydered not, that we shulde suffre therfore after death?

Then answered he me, and sayde: F This is the consyderacyon & thoughte of the battayll which man hath vpon earth: that yf he be ouercome, he shall suffre as thou hast sayd. But yf he get the victorye, he shall receaue the thynge that I say. For this is the lyfe, wherof Moses spake vnto the people, whyle he lyued, sayeng: * Chose the lyfe, that Deu. 30. d. thou mayest lyue. Neuerthelesse they beleued hym not, nother the prophetes after hym: No, nor me which haue spo ken vnto them, that heuynes shuld not reache vnto them to theyr destruccion, lyke as ioye is for to come ouer those, that haue suffred them selues to be en-fourmed in saluacyon.

I answered then and said: I know LORDE, that the Hyghest is mercyfull, in that he hath mercy vpon thẽ, which are not yet in the worlde, & vpõ those also that walke in his lawe: * & Rom. 2. a that he is pacyent and longe sufferynge toward those that haue sinned in theyr workes: and that he is lyberal to geue where as it requyreth: and that he is of great mercy, for he multiplyeth his louynge kyndnesses towardes those that are present, and that are past, & to the which ar for to com. For yf he multiply not his mercyes, the worlde shal not be made lyuynge, with those that dwell therin. He geueth also, for yf he gaue not of his goodnesse, that they whiche haue done euel, myght be eased, ẏ tenth thousande parte of men shulde not be lyuynge. And yf the iudge forgaue not those that be healed with his worde, & yf he wolde destroy the multitude that stryueth, ther shulde be very few lefte in an innumerable multitude.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Esdras prayeth for the people, that God wyll rather loke vpon his owne louynge mercy and ẏ godlynes of few, then vpon the wycked sinnes of many.

A AND he answered me, sayenge: The moost Hyghest made this worlde for many but the worlde to come for fewe. I wyll tell the a similitude Esdras: As whan thou arest the earth, it shall saye vnto the, that it geueth much moulde, wherof earthen vessels are made, but lytle of it that golde commeth of.

Mat. 20. b and. 21. b Euen so is it with ẏ worke of this worlde. * Ther be many created, but fewe shalbe preserued. Then answered I and sayd: Then swalow vp ẏ wytte (O thou soule) and deuoure the vnderstondynge, for thou art agreed to herkē and to geue eare, and wyllynge to prophecye: for thou hast no longe space geuen the, but onely to lyue. O LORDE, wylt thou not geue thy seruaunt leaue that we maye praye before the, & that thou mayest geue sede vnto our harte, and bylde our vnderstondynge, that ther maye come frute of it: and ẏ euery one which is corrupte, and beareth the state and place of a man, may lyue?

For thou art alone, and we all are one workmanshippe of thy hādes, lyke as thou hast sayd, and lyke as the body is fashioned now in the chyldesbed, and thou geuest the membres, & thy creature is preserued in fyre and water: & ix. monethes doth thy worke suffre thy creature, which is fashioned in her: but the thynge that preserueth and it that is preserued, shall both be kepte togyther: and whan tyme is, the chyldesbed delyuereth the thynge, that is kept and growen in her.

B For thou hast commaunded ẏ brestes to geue mylke vnto the frute, and ẏ the thynge whiche is created and fashioned, maye be norysshed for a tyme, & then thou disposest and ordrest it with thy mercy, bryngest it vp with thy ryghteousnesse, nourtourest it in thy lawe, & refourmest it with thy vnderstandyng, mortifiest it as thy creature, and makest it lyuynge as thy worke.

D Seynge then that thou destroyest hym, whiche with so great labours is created and fashioned thorow thy commaundement thou couldest lyghtely ordeyne also that the thinge which is made, myght be preserued.

And this I speake now of all men in general, as thou knowest: but of thy people, for whose sake I am sory, and of thy inheritaunce, for whose cause I am wofull: & for Iacob for whose sake I am greued: therfore begynne I to pray before the, for my selfe and for the for I se the fall of vs, euen of vs, that dwell vpon earth. But I haue herde the swyftenesse of the iudge, which is to come: therfore heare my voyce, & vnderstonde my wordes, and I shal speak before the.

1. Reg. 8. f 2. Par. 6. f 1. Joh. 1. b

C This is the begynnynge of ẏ wordes of Esdras, before he was receaued O LORDE, thou that dwellest in euerlastyngnesse, whose eyes are lyft vp in the ayre, whose stoole is exceadynge hye, whose glorye and maiestye maye not be comprehended, before whom the hoostes of heauen stonde & tremblyng whose kepyng is turned in wynde and fyre, whose worde is true, whose talkynge is stedfast, whose commaundement is stronge, whose ordynaunce is fearfull, whose loke dryeth vp ẏ depthes, whose wrath maketh the mountaynes to melt awaye, & whose trueth beareth wytnes: O heare the prayer of thy seruaunt, & marke with thyne eares the peticyon of thy creature.

Gen. 4. a.

E For whyle I lyue, I wyll speake: and so longe as I haue vnderstādyng I wyll answere. O loke not vpon the synnes of thy people, whiche serue the trueth. Haue no respecte vnto ẏ wycked studyes of the Heythen, but to the desyre of those that kepe thy testimonies with sorowes. Thynke not vpon those that haue walked faynedly befor the: but vpon them, which with wyll haue knowen thy feare.

Let it not be thy wyll to destroye them, which haue had beastly maners, but to loke vpon them that haue clear ly taught thy lawe. Take thou no in-dignacyon at them, whiche are worse then beastes: but loue them, that alway put theyr trust in thy righteousnes and glory: for we & our fathers haue al the same sicknesse & disease, but because of our sinnes ẏ shalt be called mercyfull.
D For yf thou hast mercy vpon vs, thou shalt be called mercyfull, where as we haue no workes of ryghteousnes: For the righteous which haue layed vp many good workes together, shal out of theyr dedes receaue reward For what is man, that thou shuldest shuldest be so rough towarde hym?

For in this (O LORDE) thy ryghworkes.

Then answered he me, and sayde:
Some thynges hast thou spokē ryght, and accordyng to thy wordes it shalbe.
For I wyll not verely cōsyder ẏ worke of thē, which haue synned before death

Gen.4.a. thought of the ryghteous. I wyll remē bre also the pylgremage, the holy ma-kynge and the reward. Lyke as I haue spoken now, so shall it come to passe.
For as the husbandman soweth much sede vpon the grounde, & planteth many trees, and yet alwaye the thynge ẏ is sowen or plantrd is not al kept safe, nother doth it all take rote: Euen so is it of them that are sowen in the world, they shall not all be preserued.
E I answered then, and sayd: Yf I haue founde grace, then let my speake.
Lyke as the husbandmans sede perysheth, yf it receaue not rayne in due sea son, or yf ther come to much rayne vpō it: Euen so peryshech man also, whiche is created with thy handes, and is lyke vnto thine owne ymage and to theself, for whose sake thou hast made all thyn ges, and lykened hym vnto the husbād mans sede. Be not wroth at vs (O LORDE) but spare thy people, and haue mercye vpon thyne owne enheritaūce: O be merciful vnto thy creature
Then answered he me and sayde: Thynges present, are for the present, & thynges to come for such as be to com.
For thou wantest yet muche, seynge ẏ mayest loue my creature aboue me, I haue oftymes drawē nye vnto the, but neuer to the vnryghteous. In this also thou art maruelous before the Hyghest, in that thou hast hūbled theself, as it becōmeth the, and hast not regarded thyne owne selfe, that thou art had in such honoure amōge the ryghteous.
Therfore shall great wretchednesse & F mysery come vpon them, that in latter tyme shall dwell in the worlde, for they haue walked in great pryde.
But vnderstonde thou for thyself, and seke out glorye for such as be lyke the: for vnto you is paradyse opened, the tree of lyfe is planted, the tyme to come is prepared, plenteousnes made ready: a cytie is buylded for you, and a rest is prepared, yee perfecte goodnesse and wysedome. The rote of euell is marked of you, the weaknes & mote is hyd from you, & in to hell flyeth cor-rupcyon in forgetfulnesse. Sorowes are vanysshed awaye, and in the ende is shewed the treasure of immortalite.
And therfore aske thou no more questions, concernynge the multytude of thē that peryshe. For they haue taken ly-bertye, despysed the Hyghest, thought scorne of his law, & forsakē his waies Moreouer, they haue trodē downe G his ryghteous, *and sayd in theyr hart Psal.13.a. that ther is no God, ye and that wyt-tyngly: for they dye. For lyke as the thynge that I haue spoken of, is made ready for you: Euē so is thyrst & payne prepared for them. For it was not his wyll that man shulde come to naught: but they whiche be created, haue defy-led the name of hym that made them, & are vnthankfull vnto hym, which prepared lyfe for thē. And therfore is my iudgement now at hande. These thyn-ges haue I not shewed vnto all men, but vnto fewe: namely, vnto the, & to suche as be lyke the.
Thē answered I & sayd: Beholde O LORD, now hast ẏ shewed me ẏ mul titude of the tokens, whiche ẏ wylt be-gynne to do at ẏ last, but at what tyme & whan thou hast not shewed me.

The.ix.Chapter.

¶ Tokens of the tyme and punishmẽt for to come. Visions are shewed vnto Esdras.

A HE answered me then & sayd Mesure thou the tyme diligently in it selfe, whã thou seyst yͤ one parte of the tokens come to passe, whiche I haue told the before so shalt thou vn derstõde, that it is the very same tyme, wherin the Hyghest wyll begynne to whan ther shalbe sene earthquake and vproure of the people in the world, thẽ shalt thou well vnderstonde, that the moost Hyghest spake of those thynges from the dayes that were before the: euen from the begynnynge.

For lyke as all that is made in the worlde, hath a begynnyng and ende, & the ende is manyfest: Euen so the tymes also of the Hyghest haue plaine be gynnynges in wonders and sygnes, & the end in workynge and in tokens.
And euery one yͭ shalbe saued, & shalbe able to escape by his workes & by faith (wherin ye haue beleued) shalbe preser ued from the sayd parels, and shall se my Sauiour in my londe and within my borders for I haue halowed me frõ the worlde. Then shall they be in care-fulnesse, whiche now haue abused my wayes: and they that haue cast thẽ out despytefully, shall dwell in paynes.
B For suche as in theyr lyfe haue re-ceaued benefites, and haue not knowẽ me, and they yͭ haue abhorred my law, whyle they had yet fredome, and whã they had yet open rowme of amendement and conuersion, and vnderstode not, but despysed it: yͤ same must know it after death in payne, And therfore be thou nomore carefull, how the vngod-ly shalbe punysshed, and how the ryght-eous shalbe saued, & whose the worlde is, and for whome the worlde, & whan 4. Esd. 8. a it is. Then answered I and sayd: * I haue talked before and now I speake, and wyl speake also herafter, that ther be many mo of them which perysh, thẽ shalbe saued, lyke as the floude is grea ter then the droppes.
And he answered me, sayenge: lyke as the felde is, so is also the sede: as yͤ floures be, so are the colours also: such as the workmã is, such is also yͤ work: and as the husbandman is hymselfe, so is his husbandrye also, for it was the tyme of the worlde. And whan I prepa red for them that are now, or euer the worlde was made, wherin they shall dwell, then was there no man that wi stode me. Now whan euery one was, C and the maker also in the world which is now prepared, and the moneth that ceasseth not, and the lawe which is vn searcheable, theyr maners were corrupte. So I consydered the worlde, and beholde, ther was parell, because of the thoughtes that were come in to it. And I sawe, and spared them great ly, and haue kepte me a wynebery of yͤ grapes, and a plante from among many generacyons. Let the multytude pe-rysh thẽ, which are growẽ vp in vaine and let my grape & wyneberry be kept, euen my plante: for with great laboure haue I made it vp.
Neuerthelesse yf thou wilt take vp pon the yet seuen dayes mo (but thou shalte not faste in them) go thy way thẽ in to yͤ felde of floures, where no house is buylded, and eate onely of the floures of the felde, taist not fleshe, drynke no wyne, but eate floures onely. Pray vnto the hyghest continually, so wyl I come, and talke with the.
So I wente my waye, and came D in to the felde which is called Ardath, (lyke as he commaunded me) and there I sat amonge the floures, and dyd eat of the herbes of the felde, and the meat of yͤ same satisfied me. After seuẽ daies I sat vpõ the grasse, and my hart was vexed within me lyke as afore: and I opened my mouth, and began to talke before the Hyghest, and sayd: O LOR DE, thou that shewest thy selfe vnto vs, thou hast declared and opened thy Exo. 19. a selfe vnto our fathers in the * wylder- and. 24. a nesse, in a place where no man dwelleth Deu. 4. b in a baren place, whã they came out of Egipte, and thou spakest sayenge: Heare me O Israel, & marke my wor-des thou sede of Jacob. Beholde, I sowe my lawe in you, and it shal bryng frute in you, and ye shalbe honoured in it for euer. For our fathers whiche re-ceaued the lawe, kept it not, and obserued not thy ordynaunces & statutes, & the frute of thy law was not declared: for it might not. For why? it was thyn because they kepte not the thynge that was sowen in them.

It is a costume when the grounde receaueth sede, or the see a shyp, or a vessell meate and drynke, that, whan it pe- rysheth or is broken wherin a thynge is sowen, or wherin ony thynge is put the thynges also perysh and are broke, which are sowen and put therin. But vnto vs it hath nothappened so: for we that haue receaued the lawe, perysh in synne, and our harte also which receaued the lawe: notwithstandynge * the

And whan I cōsydered these thynges in my hart after this maner, I loked about me wt myne eyes, & vpon the 4.Es.10.D ryght syde I sawe * a woman whiche mourned sore, made great lamētaciō, & wept wt loud voice hir clothes were rēt in peces, & she had asshes vpō hir head.

F Then let I my thoughtes go, that I was in, & turned me vnto her, & said wherfore wepest thou? why arte thou so sory & discomforted? And she sayde vnto me: Syr, let me bewayle my selfe and take yet more sorow: for I am sore vexed in my mynde, and brought very lowe. And I sayd vnto her: What ayleth the. Or who hath done ony thyng to the? tel me. She sayd: I haue ben vnfrutfull and baren, and haue hadde an husbande thirty yeares. And these.xxx. yeares I do nothynge els daye & nyght and all houres, but make my prayer to the Hyghest. After thirtye yeares God herd me thy handmayden, loked vpon my mysery, consydered my trouble, and gaue my a sonne, & I was glad of him. so was my husbāde also & al my neyghbours, & we gaue great honoure vnto the myghtye. And I norysshed hym wt great trauayle. So whan he grewe vp, & came to the tyme, that he shulde haue a wyfe, I made a feast.

The.x.Chapter.

A comunicacyon betwixte Esdras & the woman that appeared vnto hym

A AND it happened that whan my sōne went in to his chāber, he fell downe, & dyed. Thē ouerthrewe we al the lyghtes, and all my neyghbours rose vp to comforte me. Then toke I my reste vnto the seconde daye at nyght: & whan they had all rested, yt they myght comforte me, I rested also, rose vp by nyght, & fled, and am come hyther in to this felde, as thou seyst: & am purposed not to come in the cytie, but to remayn here, and nother to eate nor drynke, but continually to mourn and to fast, vntyll I dye.

Thē let I my meditaciōs & thoughtes fall, that I was in, & spake to her in displeasure: Thou foolysh woman, seyst thou not oure heuynesse & mournynge, and what happeneth vnto vs? how Sion our mother is all wofull & sorye, and howe she is cleane broughte downe and in misery? seynge we be al now in heuynesse, and make our mone (for we be all sorowfull) As for the heuynesse that thou takeste, it is but for one sonne. Damaunde the earth, & she shall tell the, that it is she which ought (by reason) to mourne, for the fal of so many that growe vpon her. For from the begynnynge all men are borne of her, and other shall come: and beholde, they walke almoost all in to destruccyon, and many of them shalbe roted out

Who shulde then (by reason) make more mournynge, then she, that hathe lost so greate a multytude? & not thou wich art sory but for one. But yf thou woldest saye vnto me: My mournyng is not lyke the earthe, for I haue loste the frute of my body, which I bare wt heuynesse: as for the earth, accordynge to the ordinaunce of the earth only, so that many are gone awaie in her, as it is come to passe. Then saye I vnto B the: Lyke as thou hast borne wyth trauayle and sorowe, euē so the earth also from the begynnynge geueth hyr frute vnto man, for hym yt made her. * And Hebr.12.A. therfore wythholde thy sorowe and heuynesse by thy self, and loke what happeneth vnto the, beare it strongly. For yf thou iudgest the mark and the ende of God to be righteous and good, and receauest hys counsell in tyme, yu shalt be commended therin. Go thy way thē in to the cytye to thy husbande.

And she sayde vnto me: that wyll I not do, I wyll not go in the cytye, but here wyl I dye. So I commoned more wyth her, and sayde: Do not so, but be counseled, & folowe me: for how many falles hath Syon? Be of good cōforte because of the sorowe of Jerusalem. For thou seyst that oure Sanctuarye is layed wayst, oure altar broken, oure temple destroyed, oure playenge of instrumentes and syngynge layed down thankesgeuynge put to sylence, oure myrth is vanysshed awaye, the lyght of oure candelstick is quenched, the Arke of couenaunt is taken from vs, al our holy thynges are defyled, and the name that is called vpō ouer vs, is dishonou red, our chyldren are put to shame, our prestes are brent, our Leuites ar caried away into captiuite, our virgyns ar de fyled, & our wyues rauyshed, our rygh teous men spoyled, and our chyldren de stroyed, our yonge men are brought in bondage, and our strōge worthyes are become weake: and Syon (which seale is the greatest of all) is lowsed vp frō hir worshippe, for she is delyuered into the handes of them that hate vs.

And therfore shake of the great he= C uynes and put awaye the multitude of sorowes: that the myghtye may be mer cyfull vnto the, and that the Hyghest may geue the rest from thy labour and trauayle. And it happened, that whan I was talkynge with her hir face dyd shyne & glyster, so that I was afrayed of her, and mused what it myght be.
And immediatly she caste out a great voyce, very fearfull, so that the earth shoke at the noyse of the womā: and I loked, and beholde, the woman appea= red vnto me nomore: but ther was a cy tie buylded, & a place was shewed from the grounde, and foundacyon.
Then was I afrayed, and cryed with loude voyce, and sayd: Where is Uriel the angel, * which came to me at
